3050 dd 2.

THE BIBLE, WITH NOTES.

Seek ye out of the Book of the Lord, and read. Isa. xxxiv. 16.
Search the Scriptures. John v. 39.
They are able to make thee wise unto salvation. 2 Tim. iii. 15.
They shall be in thine heart, and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house. Deut. vi. 7.
God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to the Gospel. Rom. ii. 16.

VOL. I

YORK:
Printed by WALKER and PENNINGTON:
For R. SPENCE, Bookseller in High Ousegate.
MDCCLXXXI.

BIBLE

A

SHORT VIEW OF THE SCRIPTURES,

AND OF THE DESIGN OF THE NOTES.

THE Old and New Teſtament are inſeparably connected, and make together the whole of that revelation, which it hath pleaſed GOD to give to mankind. And theſe writings contain within themſelves the evidence of their divine origin. In the Scriptures many events are foretold concerning particular perſons, families, cities, and a ſucceſſion of the greateſt empires; and in other parts of the ſame writings, containing an Hiſtory of facts, the events are ſeen to take place as they were foretold with all their circumſtances: And in both the Old and New Teſtament, ſeveral other events are foretold, which ſhould take place in the latter ages of the world, and which are now receiving their accompliſhment publicly amongſt mankind, in a manner ſo exactly agreeing with the prophecies, that the one needeth only to be read, and the other conſidered to ſatisfy us, that they are one and the ſame thing. Moſes (Deut. 28.) informeth the Jews, what ſhould befal them, or their deſcendants, if they diſregarded thoſe laws which he had received from the MOST HIGH, in the ſight of the whole nation. Looking at the country where the people of the Jews once poſſeſſed a ſplendour and power, now little reſembled by any nation, and then conſidering the preſent ſtate of the Jews diſperſed throughout the world, under the remarkable circumſtances, that with all the variety which there is in the laws and policy of the different countries in which they are, every nation hath uniformly adopted a conduct to the Jews, which agreeth in every particular with the marks and deſcription laid down in the prophecies, as the penal conſequences of their diſobedience to the laws given to their forefathers, in ſight of the glorious appearance of GOD upon earth, and commemorated every year from that time to the preſent, by the keeping of inſtitutions appointed from the firſt, to prevent its ever being forgot, on what authority the revealed will of the ALMIGHTY was received, for their uſe and that of all mankind.

To the writings of Moſes, were added thoſe of the Prophets, in the different ages in which GOD ſent them, to call the deſcendants of the people to whom HE had revealed his will, back to that regard to it, on which their own peace as individuals, and their proſperity as a nation depended. Theſe Prophets again repeat many other prophecies, ſome at a greater, ſome at a leſs diſtance from the time in which they lived; and the extracts taken from the public records of the Jewiſh nation, which are now in the common poſſeſſion of the Jews and the Chriſtians, preſent us with an account of the accompliſhment of many events foretold in the writings of the Prophets, whoſe meſſages are all along connected with the Hiſtory of the Jewiſh nation, and with that of the firſt cities and empires in the world. The writings of the laſt Prophet in the Old Teſtament bear date 1060 years from thoſe of Moſes, and from his time to the preſent is 3250 years.

WHEN THE LORD JESUS CHRIST came into the world, it appeareth, by the New Teſtament, that the writings of Moſes and the Prophets, were found in the poſſeſſion of the people of the Jews, and were publicly referred to by the directions of Herod, (Mat. 2.) when inquiry was made at Jeruſalem where he was, who was born king of the Jews; and it is in the ſhort Hiſtory, which we have of the life of JESUS in the four Goſpels, that the greateſt diſcoveries are made to us of the accompliſhment of prophecy. The variety of marks that are given in the deſcription of the MESSIAS by Moſes and the Prophets, agree and meet together in the perſon of CHRIST JESUS. The circumſtances of his birth, the words that he ſaid, the actions he did, and the things that he ſuffered, fulfilled ſo many paſſages of the ancient Scriptures, which had then been for many ages in the poſſeſſion of the Jews, and are ſtill found in the hands of the ſame people.

THE references made on the margin of the Old and New Teſtament, direct us to a view of the prophecies and their accompliſhment in ſo many particulars, and with ſuch an agreement between the things foretold, and the facts and events fulfilling them, as affords ſufficient evidence of the DIVINE AUTHORITY of the Scriptures: Nothing being better known than that it is not in the power of men to certainly foretell things to come even for a day; and therefore, when we ſee events take place, and read the writings in which they have been long foretold, we muſt conclude, that theſe writings are not of human authority, becauſe they are above all human reach; and the world itſelf, not preſenting us with proofs of the goodneſs of GOD to us, equal to thoſe we have in the Scriptures, we muſt conclude they are the word of GOD, and given us for our preſent and endleſs advantage.

WE are referred to the Scriptures of the Old Teſtament by the LORD JESUS, where He ſays, "They are they which teſtify of me," John v. 39. To decline therefore to ſearch the Scriptures, as we are enjoined, we deprive ourſelves of that advantage which the DIVINE GOODNESS intends us by their means, of becoming acquainted with the character and offices of that SAVIOUR promiſed firſt to the common Parents of mankind, after they had incurred the penalty of diſobedience, and were in that ſtate of enmity and oppoſition to GOD, which it is ſo apparent and certain, is the natural ſtate of all men, and which gives every individual of mankind an intereſt and concern nothing can equal, in becoming acquainted for himſelf with the only MEDIATOR between GOD and man, and the only PROCURING CAUSE of every bleſſing we poſſeſs or hope for, but eſpecially of that Spirit which is the ſole agent by which all that is good is wrought in the ſoul, the cauſe of all that is good in the conduct of men, and by which alone the ſoul is made at peace, enabled to do the will of GOD on earth, and prepared for a bleſſed immortality. (1 Tim. ii. 5. Iſa. xliii. 11. John xiv. 6, 16, 17, and 26. Phil. ii. 13. Eph. iv. 23, &c. Tit. ii. 11, &c. James i. 17. Gal. v. 22, &c. John v. 15. 1 John iv. 2, &c. Phil. iv. 13. 1 Cor. i. 31.)

THE writings of the New Teſtament are further connected with thoſe of the Old, by the frequent mention that is made by the LORD JESUS, of paſſages in the writings of Moſes and the other Prophets, in ſubſtance or in the words in which thoſe truths are found in them, the application he makes of thoſe paſſages to himſelf, conſtantly directing the minds of his diſciples, and all that heard him, to look back to the Scriptures of the Old Teſtament for true diſcoveries of the Divine will, ſhewing the agreement of what He taught, with the real meaning of what was delivered by the Prophets; and when the multitudes that attended Him had the evidence before them, of His mighty power over all nature, he at once appealed to the facts they ſaw and to the ancient Scriptures, that they were the things foretold of the MESSIAS; ſo that the writings of the New Teſtament give us an equal reference to thoſe of the Old, as we find in the Old to thoſe of the New.

THE firſt Chriſtians being inſtructed by the LORD JESUS in the true meaning of the Scriptures of the Old Teſtament, they regarded them as his revealed will; and from that time, as men became acquainted with real religion, by the publiſhing of the Goſpel in Heathen countries, they valued the writings of Moſes and the Prophets, as the moſt pious Jews had ever done; and thus the Old Teſtament became as much the revealed will of GOD to the Chriſtians as to the Jews, from which a very ſtrong teſtimony ariſes to the certainty of the Scriptures; the Jews continuing to this day to commemorate thoſe events, which accompanied the revelation the Almighty gave to their forefathers immediately from himſelf; and as a people, the Jews give all the proofs that men can give, how ſincerely they believe the writings of the Old Teſtament to be of GOD, by ſuffering many diſadvantages, and enduring no little ſcorn and perſecution on account of their attachment to the forms of the ancient worſhip required of them: and indeed this principle of diſintereſted regard to the Scriptures, however their blindneſs and neglect of the New Teſtament is to be regretted, gives them a title to the good-will of mankind in every country, could any addition be made to the obligation all men are under to treat them, as well as the reſt of their fellow-creatures, with juſtice and benevolence. (Mat. vii. 12. & xxii. 39. Luke vi. 31. John xv. 12. 1 John iii. 15, 16.)

forms

THE diſperſion of the Jews, hath been the providential means of ſpreading the revelation GOD hath given of himſelf in the Old Teſtament, into all the nations of the world; and by the ſingularity of their cuſtoms the attention of mankind hath been called upon, to inquire into the contents of thoſe writings, and ſo afford the preachers and publiſhers of the final revelation of the will of GOD in the New Teſtament, the ſame advantage as the firſt preachers and publiſhers of the ſame truths had in the land of Judea; almoſt every country now that we hear of, being a country where the people of the Jews are found in greater or leſs numbers, poſſeſſing the prophecies of JESUS the SAVIOUR of men, it is nearly the ſame thing as if the Divine Providence had provided a Temple in every nation for the purpoſe of depoſiting the ancient Scriptures, to enable every one who will but do themſelves that juſtice, to be ſatisfied, as far as any evidence ſeems capable of ſatisfying the human mind, that the New Teſtament is proved and warranted by the Old, in a manner which forbids all ſuſpicion of colluſion or deſign; and that the whole Scriptures need only be read to convince any perſon, that they are as much miſled who think the ALMIGHTY hath not fully and finally revealed his will to mankind in the Old and New Teſtament, as they are who look for the coming of any other MESSIAS, than JESUS, who is already come, the great ſubject of the whole Scriptures, and who at his next coming will call the dead to life, diſſolve the world, and in righteouſneſs judge all that have ever lived according to truths revealed to mankind. (John v. 28, 29. Matt. xxv. 31, &c. Mark xvi. 16. Rom. ii. 5, &c. Gal. v. 19, &c. 2 Pet. iii. 10, &c. Rev. xx. 11, &c.)

THE proofs given by the firſt Chriſtians, that they believed the truths contained in the Scriptures to be the revealed will of GOD, appear to be the ſtrongeſt men could give. The brief Hiſtory of the Acts of the Apoſtles is ſufficient to ſhew us what the firſt Miniſters of the Goſpel were willing to ſuffer, rather than deny the evidence they had of the riſing of the LORD JESUS from the dead, contrary to their own expectations, as well as of the Jews; but when they knew it beyond all doubt, by ſeeing him after his death, by hearing him teach them again the truths of his kingdom and of the world to come; when they knew he appealed to the very wounds he had received on the croſs, by the ſpear thruſt into his ſide, the nails driven through his hands and his feet; when they ſaw him in this very perſon, and while he was ſpeaking to them as MAN, and bleſſing them as GOD, aſcend up from earth to heaven, and received by a bright cloud out of their ſight; when they had experienced the accompliſhment of that ancient promiſe made by the prophets, and repeated by JESUS, of his pouring out his ſpirit upon them, (Acts 2.) when they had heard and ſeen all this, and had felt the fears and ſorrows of their hearts taken away; when they knew that Grace of GOD which bringeth ſalvation had appeared to them, (Tit. ii. 11.) when their miſery and ſhame, at having offended and forſaken their LORD in the time of his ſufferings, were turned into that bleſſedneſs which they have whoſe ſins are forgiven, (Rom. iv. 7.) when they were filled with joy unſpeakable, and rejoiced in the hope of the glory of GOD; when they could call JESUS LORD by the Holy Ghoſt, (1 Cor. xii. 3.) what did they not do to ſhew they knew in whom they believed? they would not deny by a word what they knew to be true to ſave their lives; and when offered life on conditions of expreſſing their compliance in the ſlighteſt manner with what they knew to be wrong, they choſe the croſs, the wild beaſts, the flames, with a conſcience void of offence towards GOD their SAVIOUR, who they knew would receive them into his everlaſting arms, were they but faithful to death, (2 Tim. iii 11, &c. Heb. x. 32. Rev. ii. 10.)

MANKIND convinced by the blameleſs lives and honeſt ſufferings of the firſt preachers and meſſengers of the Goſpel, and of them that believed, and the author of it following it with ſigns of his own power from heaven, converting the ſouls of men, opening the eyes of their underſtanding to underſtand the Scriptures, turning them from darkneſs to light, from wickedneſs to goodneſs, from the power of Satan unto GOD, forgiving their ſins, (Acts xxvi. 18.) the word of GOD ſpread amongſt mankind, and our forefathers in this country receiving the knowledge of the only true GOD and JESUS CHRIST whom he had ſent, and taſting of the powers of the world to come, (John xvii 3.) did that which at this day we ſee hath been done to preſerve, ſpread, and perpetuate the revelation which GOD hath given of himſelf in the Scriptures, they erected churches, they built univerſities, and ſet a part a tenth of the public induſtry to maintain the miniſters of the truths of revelation.

from

BUT with all that hath been done to preſerve the Scriptures, and to ſpread the knowledge of them, there hath not been wanting the conſtant oppoſition of the powers of darkneſs to counteract the commands of GOD, in having his revealed will made known to all the ends of the earth, and to every creature; and though nothing is plainer than that it is the will of GOD, all men ſhould become acquainted with his word, yet at this day, in the greater part of thoſe countries, where the Scriptures are received as the word of GOD, the ſubjects of theſe countries are, in general deprived of reading them, that firſt of all means of becoming acquainted with the contents of any writings; an inhumanity, to give it no other name, which would be little equalled by an attempt to deprive the people of France, Spain, and Italy of the light of the ſun; and it is a cauſe of thankfulneſs to GOD to increaſe with every increaſe of ſatisfaction we receive in reading the Scriptures, to call to mind, that it is not yet 240 years ſince the act was made, which declared the third time of reading the Scriptures, to be an offence to be puniſhed with burning the perſon convicted, which act now remaineth amongſt our ſtatutes, to remind us that we are deſcended from forefathers as liable to be as much miſled, and to act as contrary to benevolence and piety as they do, who have now any part in preventing men from reading the revealed will of GOD, in any other country.

THE firſt means to be uſed by thoſe who have the Scriptures to aſſiſt others to the ſame bleſſing, is to take thoſe occaſions that are put into our power, and which we are ſatisfied is our duty to make uſe of, to cauſe it to be known that GOD commandeth all men to read, and ſearch the Scriptures for themſelves; in private life to teach the truths they contain, to thoſe his providence may place us over as parents or ſuperiors, uſing the juſt authority which our ſtation giveth us, to require what GOD commandeth to be complied with, till the perſons, whoſe welfare we are by our ſtation charged with, do by choice that which is only made their duty, becauſe it is their preſent and endleſs intereſt. And that men might loſe no opportunity in doing this, GOD hath given all men in his word, the higheſt inducements to uſe the means of informing others of his will. (Dan. xii. 3. James v. 20.)

IN publiſhing the Scriptures it cannot be too ſoon made known to thoſe that look but at the firſt leaf, that the ALMIGHTY GOD requireth men to become acquainted with the Scriptures for themſelves, and to uſe the means of making them known to others; and feeling our total incapacity to make one good thought deſcend into our own or any human mind, humbly reſigning the effects to GOD, believing, if His commands to read and ſearch the Scriptures are but obeyed, they may as ſurely be expected to make wiſe unto preſent and eternal ſalvation, as that the rainbow is written in the clouds by the finger of GOD, to remind mankind of his word, that whilſt ſun and moon endure, ſeed-time and harveſt ſhall not fail, that all who labour may labour with ſure hopes in that FAITHFULNESS in which none ever hoped in vain. (Gen. viii. 22. Pſal. xxxiii. 18. cxlvii. 11. 1 Pet. i. 13.)

FROM the weight of theſe motives to ſpread the knowledge of revealed truth amongſt men, and from the neglect the people of thoſe countries are treated with who know not the Scriptures, we might wonder, (was not our fallen ſtate ſo clearly revealed and proved,) that individuals do ſo little to make them known; and that nations poſſeſſed of the Scriptures, for ages together, ſpare ſo little of their public revenues, to cauſe the Scriptures at leaſt to be offered with affection to every people under heaven, in the characters and language by which they can underſtand the truths revealed by the CREATOR of all, whoſe command to have his will ſo made known, is too plainly and too often repeated to be miſtaken by any who read or regard the Scriptures. (Mat. xxviii. 19, 20.)

THE

THE truths revealed to us from GOD in the Old and New Teſtaments, are not called by any particular name in the Scriptures; the diſciples of the LORD JESUS were called Chriſtians firſt in Antioch; and to apply to revealed truth, the notions we collect from the names by which different public bodies of men are known in different countries, is to ſuppoſe, with the poor Gentoo, that the Almighty hath given one revelation of his will to one part of mankind, and another to another; or with him who thought himſelf unconcerned in a diſcourſe delivered in his hearing, on the judgment to come, becauſe the place in which he heard it was not his pariſh church. Any other opinion of the Scriptures than that they contain the only revelation which GOD hath given to men, is to ſhew our want of attention to the moſt remarkable facts which this day exiſt in the world, and which have never ceaſed to exiſt in the moſt public manner, from the time the firſt Scriptures of the Old Teſtament began to be written by Moſes. And any perſon who would not believe there is ſuch a people as the Jews, becauſe he never happened to his knowledge to have ſeen any, would not judge more contrary to the beſt poſſible human evidence, than another who denied the whole chain of events recorded in the Scriptures. (John xx. 31.)

THE goodneſs of GOD is indeed to be adored, that in revealing his will, he hath graciouſly given us ſuch a ſyſtem of the moſt public facts, miracles and prophecies, as afford our reaſon the moſt ſatisfactory evidence, and which cannot be denied, without concluding contrary to the evidence of all hiſtory, profane as well as ſacred.

THE Jews are diſtinguiſhed in ſuch a manner, as to make them known from all other men, and thoſe who are now living in this country, deſcended from thoſe who have lived in it for ſome generations, ſtill bear the ſame diſtinction in their looks; they all agree in telling us they are Jews, and they ſhew us the writings of Moſes and the Prophets written in a language and character, at leaſt differing from that made uſe of by any other people, and they have univerſal eſtabliſhed cuſtoms amongſt them, handed down from year to year, to keep in mind that the whole nation of their forefathers, had the ſea divided for them to paſs through, in their way from the country where they were treated as ſlaves, to the country which GOD had ſo long before Moſes's time promiſed to the offſpring of Abraham, for his entirely crediting the diſcoveries GOD made to him, of his will; a mark of approbation never to be forgotten by mankind, how well-pleaſing it is to GOD, for men humbly to believe his word. (Gen. xv. 6. Rom. iv. 3. Ja. ii. 23. Heb. xi. 6.)

WERE we to ſuppoſe no ſuch facts did happen, as the Jews at this day do commemorate, or that both their writings and their cuſtoms are all human invention, we muſt ſtill have to ſatisfy ourſelves how this numerous people, ſo ſeparated from thoſe of every country where they are living, ever came to be ſo diſtinguiſhed, and how the name of their nation ever got into the Hiſtory of mankind.

THE New Teſtament equally with the Old, ſtand upon facts and actual public events, which nothing but the power of GOD could produce, and the truths recorded in the Scriptures are connected in ſuch a manner with all hiſtory, and ſo publiſhed and commemorated as to place us in oppoſition to the beſt human evidence, when we do not conſider the Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament as the revealed will of GOD; every thing being done by the moſt ancient and eſtabliſhed human authority, to expreſs the ſenſe that was entertained of them, by thoſe ages of mankind who have handed them down to us; and of whoſe integrity we have, on ſo many other accounts, reaſon to think ſo highly.

THE Scriptures thus tranſmitted to us, have now been more than 200 years in the language of this country, publiſhed to all who would but read them; they have been committed to the care of the eſtabliſhed churches of England and Scotland, to be conſtantly read, and their meaning made known to the people of the land. To theſe privileges of reading and hearing, in times ſtill nearer our own, that other natural right hath been reſtored to the ſubjects of this country, to aſſemble with whoever they chooſe, for all purpoſes of public worſhip, protected from moleſtation by the laws under which they are governed.* And with all theſe means of being made acquainted with the truths of revelation, the goodneſs of GOD hath alſo diſtinguiſhed the people of this country with the poſſeſſion poſſeſſion of a right, to print and publiſh whatever might inform men of things in which they have any concern.

* 1 Will. & Mary, chap. 18.

When it pleaſed God to bring about the eſtabliſhment of the church of England, its founders publiſhed the ſenſe in which they underſtood the great truths made known to us in the revealed will of God; the church of Scotland did the ſame thing, and the clergy and miniſters belonging to both have conſtantly, ſince the reformation, been adding to thoſe writings, by publiſhing their private obſervations, either on the whole Scriptures, certain parts or books of them, or upon the moſt intereſting and important paſſages: And this example hath been followed by the miniſters or members of all the other religious communities into which the inhabitants of this country are divided; and looking back upon all theſe means of information on ſubjects in which every creature poſſeſſed of reaſon hath a never-ending intereſt, they cannot but be conſidered, next to revelation itſelf, as the loudeſt and moſt univerſal call to the people of this land, to gratefully adore God for them, and reflect with conſtant thankfulneſs on thoſe ways of his wiſe and gracious providence, by which ſuch a ſingular concurrence of mercies as we are now favoured with, hath been brought about; but eſpecially on what, in paſt ages in our own country, God hath enabled thoſe that feared him to do and to ſuffer, to preſerve and hand down his word to our uſe, and to provide ſo many ways of having our real and great concern in it made known to all.

But out of the abundance of theſe privileges an apparent objection ariſes to revelation itſelf, and which objection is alſo the reaſon given for denying to the people of other countries, poſſeſſed of the Scriptures, the free uſe of them in their own language, and of the liberty of exerciſing their right of judging of their intereſt in them for themſelves, and of being benefited by hearing and reading on the ſubject of revelation. This objection is that which appears from what every one knows of the many different religious communities there are amongſt us, called by different names, and holding, as it is ſuppoſed, different and contrary opinions on the things revealed in the Scriptures, in their common poſſeſſion, in a language equally underſtood by all; which is taken as evidence of obſcurity in the things revealed, and of difficulty of knowing who is right, concluding that was any perſon to reſolve on giving up a little of his time daily to look into the Scriptures, he muſt be to the laſt degree uncertain in forming a right judgment, when ſo many, who have made the Scriptures their chief ſtudy, are ſeen ſo divided in their opinions, as to be ſeparated into different communities, avoiding each others public aſſemblies, as places where very miſtaken opinions of the meaning of revelation are taught; and who, after much controverſy and mutual endeavours, are unable to convince one another, and are ſtill found divided after a long-continued courſe of years.

This reaſoning from our public diviſions on matters of religion, may have the appearance of furniſhing ſuch evidence againſt revelation as may make many believe, who truly wiſh well to real religion, among the members of the Roman Catholic Church, that the governors of their community do well to deny the people in general the uſe of the Scriptures; and thoſe alſo, whom the providence of God hath placed in authority in the Catholic countries, may be induced, by the ſame reaſoning, to think it their duty to comply with the wiſhes of the Church, in refuſing to their ſubjects, as our law once did,* the uſe of the Scriptures in their own language, and thoſe other religious liberties, which, in this country, hath the appearance of furniſhing an objection againſt the whole of revelation, as ſo full of perplexity, that it is impoſſible to know what it means, or which of the many opinions we ought to follow.

It is, however, due to truth to inquire, in pronouncing againſt the liberty to obey what God requires of all, kings as well as common men, (Deut. xvii. 19.) whether it is at this day the conſequence in fact, of thoſe long-continued reſtraints which the members of the church of Rome have ſubmitted to, that all the Orders into which the Catholic Church is divided, do any more agree in

* The act made in 1542-3, to forbid the uſe of the Scriptures to the people of England, is in theſe words: "The Bible ſhall not be read in Engliſh in any Church. No women, or artificers, prentices, journeymen, ſervingmen, of the degree of yeomen or under, huſbandmen nor labourers, ſhall read the New Teſtament in Engliſh. Nothing ſhall be taught or maintained contrary to the King's inſtructions. Offenders convicted of the firſt offence to recant, the ſecond to abjure and bear a faggot, the third to be adjudged an heretick, and be burned." The force of this law was not finally deſtroyed till the 1ſt James I. in the year 1601.

in one uniform judgment, than the people of this country, who, by the goodneſs of GOD, have ſo long been delivered from the fears of forfeiting their lives if they obey what GOD requireth.

THE Scriptures make nothing known more plainly, than that the deſigns revealed to us in them, with all that is commanded or forbidden, are ſo many gracious ways in which the compaſſion of GOD diſcovereth itſelf to men for the good of all; (Deut. x. 13. John xx. 31.) prohibiting nothing, but that which hurteth our own, or the peace of others in doing; requiring nothing to be done, but which is as certain as the nature of things, for the good of them that obey, and for the good of all that come within the reach of any conſequences, that ariſe from what is done, in compliance with the will of GOD.

THE higheſt poſſible good to men in this life and that which is to endure for ever, being the ſubject of the Scriptures, let any friend of mankind, in any country, aſk himſelf, What is it which that policy tends to, which would deny men any known reaſonable means of being informed by others, or of informing themſelves of the truths of this revelation? Can it be any other, than an oppoſition to all that is benevolent to men?

BUT whatever are the concluſions of human reaſon, thoſe that form deſigns, and inforce them by human power, to reſtrain men from reading, and hearing the word of GOD, in a language they underſtand, they oppoſe that word, by which theſe duties are commanded, and every deſign and ſtep to forward that policy, or ſtrengthen the power that doth this, cannot but be oppoſed to GOD Himſelf, and is therefore foretold in the New Teſtament, as exalting itſelf againſt GOD, and with thoſe other ſpirits which ſhew themſelves in men, in oppoſition to the revelation GOD hath given of himſelf, are called Antichriſt. (2 Theſſ. ii 4, &c. 1 John ii. 22. & iv. 3.)

BUT whilſt we who have the Scriptures, are placed, by the Divine goodneſs, in circumſtances which give us nothing to fear, in making uſe of all the means, by which we may become acquainted with that heart-felt peace, they are intended to make known to us: Is it not our duty to remember, in our humble addreſſes to GOD, thoſe much miſled human authorities, which forbid the uſe of the Bible; that they may call to mind what their CREATOR requireth of them as men in their conduct to men; and inſtead of obeying that influence, which would have all mankind unacquainted with GOD, (Eph. vi. 12.) they may adopt maxims of religious liberty in conformity to what GOD commandeth. And with theſe authorities, are we not alſo bound to remember thoſe many millions of mankind, who now in France, Spain, Portugal, Italy, and other Roman Catholic countries, are expoſed to penalties as painful as the rack and fire, if they do but comply with what is commanded them in the word of GOD, from which alone, and inſtruction agreeing therewith, can it be known, on what, the preſent and endleſs peace of every human mind depend? (Col. i. 27.)

BUT to do no more than wiſh the good of other men, when the Providence of GOD appeareth to put more in our power, would be to inflict upon ourſelves the conſcious ſenſe of unfaithfulneſs to GOD, (Ja. iv. 17.) who, ever willing the good of All (1 Tim. ii. 4.) conſtantly requireth all means, warranted by His word, to be uſed to ſpread the knowledge of His will, only promiſing the conſolations of His Spirit to thoſe that comply with His gracious deſigns, and obey His will. (John xiv. 21. Luke xxiv. 47. 1 John iii. 16. Matt. x. 39.)

THE agreement which is found in the ſeveral copies of the Scriptures, in the different languages into which they have got from the firſt ages, after having been ſo long ſeperated from each other and their common origin, is a proof of the protecting care of GOD over His word, and of the faithfulneſs with which His goodneſs hath cauſed it to be tranſlated, preſerved, and handed down to ſo many nations; and furniſheth ſatisfactory evidence of the Scriptures being now the ſame, as they were firſt received from the Prophets and the Apoſtles: For were ten thouſand copies of any writings delivered to men, going into many different countries, containing an hiſtory of facts of the moſt public nature, and if, at the diſtance of 1780 years to come, ſuch an hiſtory was found in many different languages, and on comparing the ſeveral tranſlations together, and finding there was in ſubſtance no difference, and but very little in the words; and ſeeing by the hiſtory of thoſe countries in whoſe languages theſe writings were found, that they had been in poſſeſſion of them for many ages, we could then only conclude from ſuch an agreement, as is found in the copies of the Scriptures, that they were not only ſo many proofs, that the original writings from which they all were tranſlated did exiſt, but alſo that their agreement proved the truth of one another and of them all.

WITHIN the time that the Scriptures have been in the language of this country, the providence of GOD appeareth to have produced, from experience, a plain teſtimony of the certainty with which the Scriptures are to be underſtood, by thoſe that will conſider them, and alſo anſwereth every objection againſt allowing them to be read by all mankind.

FROM the firſt eſtabliſhment of the churches of England and Scotland, and of our religious liberties, men of learning and piety, attached by principle to the different communities, into which the inhabitants of this kingdom are divided, have publiſhed their opinions on the whole Scriptures, or on what they deemed the moſt eſſential truths contained in them; and in theſe writings, it is to be ſeen how far men are agreed in underſtanding the Scriptures, where they have the liberty to read them for themſelves, and of publiſhing their thoughts to others.

IN the following Notes, it is intended to make that uſe of thoſe different writings, in explaining the Scriptures, as in the concluſion may afford an opportunity of ſeeing, how far our two national churches, and the other religious communities amongſt us, are agreed in all the great truths, contained in the Scriptures. The Notes taken from the different writings made uſe of, will be diſtinguiſhed from each other by a different number, in the paſſages intended to be referred to, by a Table, to be added at the concluſion; that what is ſaid in the words of the ſeveral writings, on paſſages belonging the ſame branch of truth, may be ſeen under the ſame head, in the Table, and their agreement or diſagreement conſidered in one connected view.

THE writings chiefly made uſe of, are thoſe that have been publiſhed on the whole Scriptures, with any of which, theſe Notes are not offered as any way ſuperior, in giving the ſenſe of the Scriptures; it being hardly poſſible that any work of this kind ſhould be entered upon by any perſon, leſs equal to ſuch an undertaking; but an agreement in eſſentials, appearing in writings approved of by different communities, ſome years ago, and the preſent occaſion, unexpectedly offering an opportunity of collecting the evidence of that agreement more fully together, than could well be done in any other publication, it was not thought ſafe to decline it, for fear it ſhould be keeping back any degree of real evidence, which might remove an objection to reading the Scriptures, ariſing from what appeareth of our religious diviſions; and alſo of ſhewing that religious liberty hath not been found to produce any injury to the certainty of revelation; but on the contrary, from our privileges to hear and read the Scriptures, a general teſtimony ariſeth that they are eaſy to be underſtood.

SHOULD it be found at the cloſe of theſe Notes, that our national churches, and the ſeveral other religious communities are in ſubſtance agreed, in all the eſſential truths; any diviſions amongſt men, cannot then be alledged as proofs, that the Sciptures do not contain the revealed will of GOD, any more than that wars and conteſts amongſt men, about dominion and property, prove that the viſible creation is not the work of GOD. And to refuſe the uſe of the Scriptures, for fear of any abuſes ariſing from that liberty, can no more be juſtified in the miniſters of the church of Rome, and thoſe under their influence, than they would be juſtified in preventing, could it be done, men from being bleſſed with ſeeing the ſun, for fear they ſhould commit crimes under the light of it.

A third conſideration appeareth to ariſe from ſuch an agreement, which is, that ſo far as thoſe that are allowed to be the beſt judges are agreed, particular members of different communities can have no cauſe to conſider one another with leſs regard, becauſe they are connected with any public body of men, called by a different name; and if the ſeveral authorities we have agreed to follow, are themſelves agreed, in all that is eſſential to the glory of GOD and the good of mankind, then we cannot be juſtified, in taking up any of the valuable moments of our time, but in thoſe concerns on which our own and the happineſs of all other men depend.

WHAT theſe concerns are, it is the deſign of the Scriptures to inform us, and they derive their importance from containing all the diſcoveries which the Infinite wiſdom and goodneſs of God, have ſeen neceſſary to make known to us for our good; not to increaſe his bleſſedneſs, that could not be; infinite could admit of no increaſe, but ſolely for mankind, whoſe happineſs is intended by revelation.

neceſſary

THE miracles GOD hath wrought, the prophecies he hath cauſed to be written, and all the proofs of the certainty of the Scriptures, are to induce us to believe the truths they contain;—truths which remain the ſame, whether we will acquaint ourſelves with them or not; it being naturally impoſſible that GOD ſhould make known, and ſeal with ſuch evidence from Himſelf, any thing but what was real and certain; and all the ſervice which ancient eſtabliſhments, human authorities and evidence ſeem capable of doing us, is only to lead us to make uſe of the Scriptures, that by them, we may become acquainted from GOD, with the things on which our own happineſs depends.

To neglect to do this, becauſe the cuſtoms of mankind lead us to think, we have things of more importance to do, is to be guilty of the ſame abſurdity, as we ſhould be chargeable with, if we knew we were ſubject to be called upon every hour, to embark for a diſtant country, and neglected to the laſt, all that was neceſſary to direct our courſe, ſupply our wants, or procure us a favourable reception at our arrival.

IT may perhaps not be an uncommon misfortune amongſt men, and not a little increaſed by levity of manners, to think religion that ſubject, which we may take on our own conjectures, and be perfectly ſatisfied in our own ſafety in ſo doing: Death is a certainty, and what awaits the living after death, is as unknown to us, but by revelation, as the coaſt of a diſtant country, where no man hath ever been, and returned to give us any deſcription of it.

FROM the neglect, with which there is but too much evidence to believe, the Scriptures are treated, it can only be concluded, that we are ſo much miſled in our common way of thinking, as to make the concerns of a life, which may end this night, of more moment than eternity; or againſt all reaſon, take our own conjectuures for our guide, in a caſe where it is a natural impoſſibility for them to give us any information; or we muſt, by neglecting the Scriptures, think they are the writings of all others, of which we can have right notions without the trouble of reading them.

IT is very true, that all the great things mentioned in the Scriptures, are ſo founded in our ears, that to live to the laſt, unacquainted with our concern in them, muſt leave us, whatever is the cauſe of our neglect, without excuſe for our wilful ignorance and the folly of our conduct.

THE notion of being under no neceſſity to pay any attention to revelation, becauſe we think there are many who conſider it as little as ourſelves, is a cauſe of neglect of the Scriptures too abſurd to be named, was it not ſo apparent, that there are thoſe, that allow themſelves to be deceived into it for years together. Any individual, amongſt the numerous inhabitants which were upon the earth, when the flood came, had as much ſafety from their numbers, as thoſe have any grounds to look for, who diſregard GOD, his word and all that he requireth in it, becauſe there are multitudes who do the ſame thing.

BUT perhaps more common than all, is the preſuming on the mercy of GOD, contrary to the whole ſenſe of the Scriptures, and ſo following the objects of ſenſe, gain or ambition without ſufficiently regarding what GOD requireth of us; reſolving all into this, GOD is merciful, and that we are in little danger (from what we flatter ourſelves hath been the whole of our conduct) of falling ſhort of happineſs in a future life, and therefore need not loſe much of our time, in carefully conſidering what GOD hath called upon us to attend to in His word.

SOME may find themſelves ſo involved, in the grand care to procure food and cloathing, and more than they want for years to come, that they may ſo much miſtake their way, as really to believe they are bound in duty, not to ſpend an hour in the four and twenty, either in approaching GOD in prayer, or in conſidering by what laws he will finally judge mankind; and, as the natural conſequence of wilful neglect, remain ignorant of the will of GOD, and of the only end for which we came into life; till they are hurried away by death into the world of Spirits, and there find themſelves covered with ſhame, as immortal Spirits well may, in having made food and cloathing (which GOD promiſeth none ſhall want, who make a preparation to meet Him their firſt care) ſo much the objects of their hearts deſire, as really to think it blameable, or a human weakneſs to be pitied, in all who give up time, or decline any advantage in this life, for the ſake of being informed and prepared for the life to come.

who

AN unneceſſary attention to other mens affairs, bears away its thouſands, into a neglect of the concerns of eternity, forgetting that all earthly objects, are only like marks made upon the ſand, by the footſteps of a traveller within the ſea's ebb, which on its flood returning are waſhed out, and no more ſeen or remembered.

BUT the undenied gratification of ſenſual appetites, is ſo great a cauſe of indiſpoſition to that pure ſyſtem the Scriptures contain, that it demands our caution, as much as our own happineſs is worthy of it, that we do not let the man become the beaſt and live for ſenſe, and ſo by the habits of our ſouls, be naturally unfit for any fellowſhip with the bleſſed above, whoſe very looks muſt fill an unclean ſpirit with ſhame and confuſion. To be therefore a ſlave to our natural appetites, is at once to reſemble animals which have not reaſon, and which are led to look for their only good in the objects of their ſenſes, and to unfit ourſelves for thoſe attainments of the ſoul, which are the very ends for which we were made, and by the poſſeſſion of which, we only can, in the nature of things, enjoy tranquillity of mind in this life, and that pure bleſſedneſs, which it is the very end of the Scriptures to direct us to, in the life to come.

AND as to be led by our appetites is to reſemble beaſts, ſo to be under the dominion of our paſſions—pride, anger, diſcontent, ſelf-will, and miſtaken ſelfiſhneſs, is to reſemble devils, and theſe ſpirits who have finally reſiſted the grace of GOD. To watch and pray therefore againſt the influence of theſe paſſions in our hearts and minds, are neceſſary means to prepare us to read the word of GOD with benefit and delight: And indeed to read or hear the language in which GOD addreſſeth immortal ſouls, is at once ſo high an honour to any man, and intereſting ſo much above all the little ſhort lived objects of appetite and paſſion, that we need only perſevere in reading and hearing the word of GOD, to be ſoon raiſed above the things of this world, which compared with the objects revelation openeth to our view, are but like a few rolling waves over which mariners only have to paſs into the port before them.

ALL the motives cannot be traced, by which we are led to neglect that ſure guide, which the written word of GOD is to all, who will make themſelves acquainted with it. For it is amongſt the proofs which the Scriptures contain within themſelves, of their being the word of GOD, that there is no poſſible caſe left unprovided for, but that all men, from the leaſt to the greateſt, are always, whatever ſituation they are in, provided with the plaineſt directions in the Scriptures, both what to do and avoid, that they may keep a conſcience unpained by their own conduct, and enjoy peace, let other men act to them as they may.

THE deſign of the Scriptures is to lead us to GOD, that we may become acquainted with Him, as the only end in which the ſoul of man can reſt and find all its immortal deſires ſatisfied and bleſſed; and every ſtep we take with a view to this end, is, and ever muſt be productive of our own ſubſtantial happineſs; as on the other hand, looking for true happineſs out of GOD, is at once to miſtake our way, and to ſecure our own miſery: and we are certainly never ſo much deceived, as when we are in truth proceeding on the principle of finding our happineſs in any created good, and aſſure ourſelves, that we are under no miſtake.

WE are only content to live without the kingdom of GOD within us, becauſe our Spirits are naturally without that knowledge, and we neither think ourſelves under any neceſſity of obtaining it, nor think there is any thing deſireable in it; and we readily conclude, it is deluſion or preſumption in any that pretend to an experimental acquaintance with GOD, which we are conſcious we have not: But neither the reality of this knowledge, the neceſſity nor the bleſſedneſs of it, ſtands upon human teſtimony, though in that, as in all other caſes, it is entitled to its juſt weight: All the evidence with which the revealed will of GOD cometh recommended from human authority, and all the proofs of its Divine origin, with which it abounds within itſelf; all the oppoſition made to what is declared in the Scriptures, on the ſubject of an experimental acquaintance with GOD, and all that hath been done and ſuffered by thoſe who delivered the truths the Scriptures contain from

GOD

God to men; if such knowledge was not to be obtained, and was not in itself the most real and substantial good to the human mind; all that evidence would be only to prove mere forms to us; all the opposition made to the subject of revealed religion in the world, by all the powers of darkness and wicked persecuting men, would only have been an opposition to the names of Israel and of Christ, and all that have died rather than deny the truths they wrote and taught, as they are recorded in the Scriptures, must have all deliberately submitted themselves to persecutions, prisons, and most cruel deaths, to establish mere notions amongst mankind, void of reality.

The word of God, offereth the knowledge of the blessed God Himself to men; it inviteth to that knowledge, and in every form of words, promises are made, of an actual communication from God to men, of peace, support, assistance, strength, and comfort; not confined to place or to some peculiar persons, but in terms consistent with every notion that can be entertained of God, abounding with the most gracious designs of love and good-will to every immortal soul of man; (Acts ii. 6, &c.) presenting to our view the Almighty Author of our being, under various figures to convey to our understandings, the idea of His communicating His Spirit to us, at once to recover our souls from their natural, fallen and sinful state, and to restore them to that image and likeness to God in which the first of the human race was made. (Job xxii. 21. Isa. xxvii. 5. John vii. 37, &c. Rev. xxi. 6. 1 Cor. xii. 12, &c. and xv. 49. 2 Cor. i. 22. Rom. viii. 16. Eph. iii. 16, 17, &c.)

To all that is said in the Scriptures on the knowledge of God, examples are added of persons of all ranks, many of them of characters cruel, wicked and abandoned; whose subsequent conduct also is related, their heart-felt conviction of sin, their sorrow for it, the sincerity of their repentance is declared, and their blameless lives, their devotion to the will of God, their usefulness to men is as particularly shewn; and not only a few, but thousands, of such instances pass before our view in the Scriptures, (Acts 2.) and then the whole of the change is ascribed to the Spirit of God from first to last; the same persons in which such changes were wrought, utterly renouncing any part or merit therein, or, at the utmost, only saying, They were not disobedient to the heavenly calling. (Acts xxvi. 18, 19.)

To think ourselves in no need of having the same change from evil to good, wrought in us, is to suppose we are not by nature what all these persons were; but where is the proof of men born in England being this day in a better condition as to their nature or moral rectitude, than the people that lived when St. Peter declared the willingness of God his Saviour, to pour out his Spirit upon all men, to convert their souls to God, first making the tree—the heart good, that the fruit—the life might be so too? Again, to suppose that we can do for ourselves that which the Apostles and first Christians confess God only, out of His mercy and free grace did for them, is to think ourselves possessed of a power to do that for ourselves, which the Prophets, the Apostles, and first Christians solely ascribe to God, and the work of His Spirit. (Eph. ii. 1. & iv. 11. to 24. James i 17. Rom. i. 5. 1 Cor. iv. 7. Luke xvii. 21. Rom. xiv. 17.)

God Himself, declareth the intire necessity there is for every soul of man to undergo this conversion; and to be a partaker of this actual renewal of all the powers of the soul; it is spoken of in all the ways by which it can be understood; as a change from darkness to light, from death to life; from the power of sin reigning in the mind and over us in our lives, to the mind which was in Christ Jesus, (Phil. ii. 5.) and to a submission to the will of God; from the power of Satan unto God. (Acts xxvi. 18.) In other words, Except a man be born again—born of the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God. (John iii. 5.) It is the subject of our faith not contradicted by our reason, as far as reason can go in judging of the work of God. All that we can think of the Divine nature, obliges us to conclude that God is of purer eyes than to behold iniquity, or to allow any thing evil in its nature to dwell in his sight; and the extent of His declared law, which also agreeth with reason, taketh in the designs of the mind as well as words and actions; and here again the knowledge of mercy from God becometh a matter of as much necessity as the change of the mind. God hath said, cursed is every one that continueth not in all things written in the law of God to do them; and that whosoever shall offend but in one point is guilty of all; and all mankind are called upon, to hear the ſentence, GOD hath declared He will paſs after death, on all that ever broke His holy law—diſregarded his calls to repentance—lightly eſteemed the Sacrifice made to Infinite Juſtice for every man's offence, and to the laſt rejected the Divine offers of pardon and of grace, and who finally refuſed to come in and truly ſubmit themſelves to GOD; which ſentence muſt be taken and conſidered as GOD hath declared and publiſhed it to the world; not as it may be fancied or underſtood to mean from notions careleſsly collected. (John v. 29. Rom. ii. 6, &c. Rev. xx. 11, &c.)

THE two great and eternal concerns of pardon and converſion, are united and ever ſpoken of as things to take place in this life, (Matt. vi. 14, 15. xviii. 3.) and the knowledge of them as the great end of it; in compariſon with which, the gain of the whole world is declared as nothing to us. (Mark viii. 36.) And we are, in the Scriptures, made acquainted in all the ways, that words and actions can convey ideas to our minds, with the only medium through which all mercy to pardon, and all grace to convert and ſupport the ſoul, is or can be ſhewn and given from GOD to men—through that ONE Mediator between GOD and man; GOD the Father ſo loving mankind as to ſend His Son to die to ſatisfy His juſtice, that Son ſo loving us as to leave that glory in which he for ever dwelt, to come and die for men, and whoſe boundleſs compaſſion will doubtleſs be found at laſt, not to leave it in the power of one ſoul of man to ſay, that the grace of GOD which now bringeth ſalvation, was not offered in every way and manner, till His Spirit would no longer be obeyed, received or liſtened to. (1 Tim. ii. 5. John iii. 16, 17. xiv. 6. 2 Cor. v. 19. Acts iv. 12. Rom. viii. 9.)

FEARING leſt with-holding a name, ſurely the leaſt entitled to any regard, ſhould appear, to Him, to whom all is due, and who knoweth all, as being with-held from an unwillingneſs to confeſs to men, what is believed to be the truths of His word, I cannot ſend away what hath been written to be printed without the writer's name.

T. PARKER.

SHINCLIFF, near DURHAM,
December 7, 1780.

GENESIS.

THIS is the first Book of MOSES, called GENESIS, because it treats of the beginning and generation of man, and all other creatures. It containeth an History of about 2369 years. In

CHAP. I. Is the account of the creation of heaven and earth, of the light, of the firmament, of the earth separated from the waters, and made fruitful, of the sun, moon, and stars, of fish and fowl, of beasts and cattle, of man in the image of God. Also the appointment of food.—CHAP. II. The first sabbath. The manner of the creation. The planting of the garden of Eden, and the river thereof. The tree of knowledge only forbidden. The naming of the creatures. The making of woman and institution of marriage.—CHAP. III. The serpent deceiveth Eve. Man's shameful fall. God arraigneth them. The serpent is cursed. The promised seed. The punishment of mankind. Their first cloathing. Their casting out of paradise.—CHAP. IV. The birth, trade, and religion of Cain and Abel. The murder of Abel. The curse of Cain. Enoch the first city. Lamech and his two wives. The birth of Seth, and Enos.—CHAP. V. The genealogy, age, and death of the patriarchs from Adam unto Noah. The godliness and translation of Enoch.—CHAP. VI. The wickedness of the world, which provoked God's wrath, and caused the flood. Noah findeth grace. The order, form, and end of the ark.—CHAP. VII. Noah with his family, and the living creatures enter into the ark. The beginning, increase, and continuance of the flood.—CHAP. VIII. The waters asswage. The ark resteth on Ararat. The raven and the dove sent out. Noah being commanded, goeth forth of the ark, he buildeth an altar, and offereth sacrifice, which God accepteth, and promiseth to curse the earth no more.—CHAP. IX. God blesseth Noah. Blood and murder are forbidden. God's covenant signified by the rainbow. Noah replenisheth the world, planteth a vineyard, is drunken, and mocked of his son, curseth Canaan, blesseth Shem, prayeth for Japheth and dieth.—CHAP. X. The generations of Noah. The sons of Japheth. The sons of Ham: Nimrod the first monarch. The sons of Shem.—CHAP. XI. One language in the world. The building of Babel. The confusion of tongues. The generations of Shem. The generations of Terah the father of Abram. Terah goeth from Ur to Haran.—CHAP. XII. God calleth Abram, and blesseth him with a promise of Christ: he departeth with Lot from Haran: he journeyeth through Canaan, which is promised him in a vision: he is driven by a famine into Egypt: fear maketh him feign his wife to be his sister. Pharaoh having taken her from him, by plagues is compelled to restore her.—CHAP. XIII. Abram and Lot return out of Egypt, by disagreement they part asunder. Lot goeth to wicked Sodom. God reneweth the promise to Abram: he removeth to Hebron, and there buildeth an altar.—CHAP. XIV. The battle of four kings against five: Lot is taken prisoner: Abram rescueth him. Melchizedek blesseth Abram: Abram giveth him tithe. The rest of the spoil, his partners having had their portions, he restoreth to the king of Sodom.—CHAP. XV. God encourageth Abram. Abram complaineth for want of an heir. God promiseth him a son, and a multiplying of his seed. Abram is justified by faith. Canaan is promised again, and confirmed by a sign, and a vision. CHAP. XVI. Sarai being barren, giveth Hagar to Abram. Hagar being afflicted for despising her mistress, runneth away. An angel sendeth her back to submit herself, and telleth her of her child. Ishmael is born.—CHAP. XVII. God reneweth the covenant. Abram his name is changed, in token of a greater blessing. Circumcision is instituted. Sarai her name is changed, and she blessed. Isaac is promised. Abraham and Ishmael are circumcised.—CHAP. XVIII. Abraham entertaineth three angels. Sarah is reproved for laughing at the strange promise. The destruction of Sodom is revealed to Abraham. Abraham maketh intercession for the men thereof.—CHAP. XIX. Lot entertaineth two angels. The vicious Sodomites are stricken with blindness. Lot is sent for safety into the mountains: he obtaineth leave to go into Zoar. Sodom and Gomorrah are destroyed. Lot's wife is a pillar of salt. Lot dwelleth in a cave. The incestuous original of Moab and Ammon.—CHAP. XX. Abraham sojourneth at Gerar, denieth his wife, and loseth her; Abimelech is reproved for her in a dream: he rebuketh Abraham, restoreth Sarah, and reproveth her; he is healed by Abraham's prayers.—CHAP. XXI. Isaac is born; he is circumcised. Sarah's joy. Hagar and Ishmael are cast forth. Hagar in distress. The angel comforteth her. Abimelech's covenant with Abraham at Beer-sheba.—CHAP. XXII. Abraham is tempted to offer Isaac: he giveth proof of his faith and obedience. The angel stayeth him. Isaac is exchanged with a ram. The place is called Jehovah-jireh. Abraham is blessed again. The generation of Nahor unto Rebekah.—CHAP. XXIII. The age and death of Sarah. The purchase of Machpelah, where Sarah was buried.—CHAP. XXIV. Abraham sweareth his servant. The servant's journey: his prayer: his sign: Rebekah meeteth him, fulfilleth his sign, receiveth jewels, sheweth her kindred, and inviteth him home. The servant blesseth God. Laban entertaineth him. The servant sheweth his message. Laban and Bethuel approve it. Rebekah consenteth to go. Isaac meeteth her.—CHAP. XXV. The sons of Abraham by Keturah. The division of his goods, his age and death: his burial. The generations of Ishmael: his age and death. Isaac prayeth for Rebekah, being barren. The children strive in her womb. The birth of Esau and Jacob: their difference. Esau selleth his birth-right.—CHAP. XXVI. Isaac because of famine went to Gerar: God instructeth and blesseth him: he is reproved by Abimelech for denying his wife: he groweth rich: he diggeth Esek, Sitnah, and Rehoboth. Abimelech maketh a covenant with him at Beer-sheba. Esau's wives.—CHAP. XXVII. Isaac sendeth Esau for venison. Rebekah instructeth Jacob to obtain the blessing: Jacob under the person of Esau obtaineth it. Esau bringeth venison. Isaac trembleth. Esau complaineth, and by importunity obtaineth a blessing: he threateneth Jacob. Rebekah disappointeth it.—CHAP. XXVIII. Isaac blesseth Jacob, and sendeth him to Padan-aram. Esau marrieth Mahalath, the daughter of Ishmael. The vision of Jacob's ladder. The stone of Beth-el. Jacob's vow.—CHAP. XXIX. Jacob cometh to the well of Haran: he meeteth Rachel. Laban entertaineth him. Jacob covenanteth for Rachel: he is deceived with Leah: he marrieth also Rachel, and serveth for her seven years more. Leah beareth Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah.—CHAP. XXX. Rachel in grief for her barrenness giveth Bilhah her maid unto Jacob. She beareth Dan, and Naphtali. Leah giveth Zilpah her maid, who beareth Gad, and Asher. Reuben findeth mandrakes, with which Leah buyeth her husband of Rachel. Leah beareth Issachar, Zebulun, and Dinah. Rachel beareth Joseph. Jacob desireth to depart. Laban stayeth him on a new covenant. Jacob's policy, whereby he became rich.—CHAP. XXXI. Jacob upon displeasure departeth secretly. Rachel stealeth her father's images. Laban pursueth after Jacob, and complaineth of the wrong. Rachel's policy to hide the images. Jacob's complaint of Laban.

Laban. The covenant of Laban and Jacob at Galeed.—CHAP. XXXII. Jacob's vision at Mahanaim: his message to Esau: he is afraid of Esau's coming: he prayeth for his deliverance: he sendeth a present to Esau: he wrestleth with an angel at Peniel, where he is called Israel: he halteth.—CHAP. XXXIII. The kindness of Jacob and Esau at their meeting. Jacob cometh to Succoth. At Shalem he buyeth a field, and buildeth an altar called El-elohe Israel.—CHAP. XXXIV. Dinah is ravished by Shechem: he sueth to marry her. The sons of Jacob offer the condition of circumcision to the Shechemites. Hamor and Shechem persuade them to accept it. The sons of Jacob upon that advantage slay them, and spoil their city. Jacob reproveth Simeon and Levi.—CHAP. XXXV. God sendeth Jacob to Beth-el: he purgeth his house of idols: he buildeth an alter at Beth-el. Deborah dieth at Allon-bachuth. God blesseth Jacob at Beth-el. Rachel travaileth of Benjamin, and dieth in the way to Eder. Reuben lieth with Bilhah. The sons of Jacob. Jacob cometh to Isaac at Hebron. The age, death, and burial of Isaac.—CHAP. XXXVI. Esau's three wives: his removing to mount Seir: his sons: the dukes which descended of his sons. The sons and dukes of Seir. Anah findeth mules. The kings of Edom. The dukes that descended of Esau.—CHAP. XXXVII. Joseph is hated of his brethren, his two dreams. Jacob sendeth him to visit his brethren: his brethren conspire his death: Reuben saveth him: they sell him to the Ishmaelites: his father, deceived by the bloody coat, mourneth for him: he is sold to Potiphar in Egypt.—CHAP. XXXVIII. Judah begetteth Er, Onan, and Shelah. Er marrieth Tamar. The trespass of Onan. Tamar stayeth for Shelah: She deceiveth Judah: she beareth twins, Pharez and Zarah.—CHAP. XXXIX. Joseph advanced in Potiphar's house: He resisteth his mistress's temptations: He is falsely accused: He is cast into prison: God is with him there. CHAP. XL. The butler and baker of Pharaoh in prison. Joseph hath charge of them: He interpreteth their dreams: they come to pass according to his interpretation. The ingratitude of the butler. CHAP. XLI. Pharaoh's two dreams: Joseph interpreteth them: he giveth Pharaoh counsel. Joseph is advanced: he begetteth Manasseh and Ephraim. The famine beginneth.—CHAP. XLII. Jacob sendeth his ten sons to by corn in Egypt: they are imprisoned by Joseph for spies: they are set at liberty, on condition to bring Benjamin: they have remorse for Joseph. Simeon is kept for a pledge. They return with corn, and their money: their relation to Jacob. Jacob refuseth to send Benjamin.—CHAP. XLIII. Jacob is hardly persuaded to send Benjamin. Joseph entertaineth his brethren: he maketh them a feast.—CHAP. XLIV. Joseph's policy to stay his brethren. Judah's humble supplication to Joseph.—CHAP. XLV. Joseph maketh himself known to his brethren: he comforteth them in God's providence: he sendeth for his father: Pharaoh confirmeth it. Joseph furnisheth them for their journey, and exhorteth them to concord. Jacob is revived with the news.—CHAP. XLVI. Jacob is comforted by God at Beer-sheba: thence he with his company goeth into Egypt: the number of his family that went into Egypt. Joseph meeteth Jacob: he instructeth his brethren how to answer Pharaoh.—CHAP. XLVII. Joseph presenteth five of his brethren, and his father, before Pharaoh: he giveth them habitation and maintenance: he getteth all the Egyptians money, their cattle, their lands to Pharaoh. The priests land was not bought: he letteth the land to them for a fifth part. Jacob's age: he sweareth Joseph to bury him with his fathers.—CHAP. XLVIII. Joseph with his sons visiteth his sick father. Jacob strengtheneth himself to bless them: he repeateth the promise: he taketh Ephraim and Manasseh as his own: he telleth Joseph of his mother's grave: he blesseth Ephraim and Manasseh: he preferreth the younger before the elder: he prophesieth their return to Canaan.—CHAP. XLIX. Jacob calleth his sons to bless them. Their blessing in particular: he chargeth them about his burial: he dieth.—CHAP. L. The mourning for Jacob. Joseph getteth leave of Pharaoh to go to bury him. The funeral. Joseph comforteth his brethren, who craved his pardon: his age: he seeth the third generation of his sons: he prophesieth unto his brethren of their return: he taketh an oath of them for his bones: he dieth.

CHAP. I.

Before Christ 4004.

1 [a] IN [b] the beginning God created the heaven and the earth.

2 And the earth was without form, and void, and darkness was upon the face of the deep: [c] and the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters.

3 ¶ And God said, [d] Let there be light: and there was light.

4 And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided * the light from the darkness.

5 And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night: † And the evening and the morning were the first day.

6 ¶ And God said, [e] Let there be a ‡ firmament in the midst of the waters, and let it divide the waters from the waters.

7 And

a John 1. 1. b Acts 14. 15. & 17. 24. Heb. 11. 3.

c Psa. 33. 6. Isa. 40. 13, 14.

d 2 Cor. 4. 6.

* Heb. between the light and between the darkness.

† Heb. and the evening was, and the morning was, &c.

e Psa. 136. 5.

‡ Heb. expansion.

VERSE 1. The first great subject of the Scriptures, is the creation of all things by the power of God; the next is, that of His government of all things made; and the third is the redemption of mankind. And that power of God which manifesteth itself in the work of the creation, is interesting to all men, as it affordeth us the highest evidence of the power of God to new create the fallen soul of man, and make it meet for future blessedness. And that men might honour the son as they honour the Father, the whole work of creation is attributed to the Son, with the express declaration that without him was nothing made that was made; so that by the strict language of Scripture we are to understand the Lord Jesus Christ as God, creating the heaven and the earth, and all things in them. (John i. 3. Heb. i. 3.)

V. 2. The earth—The solid part of the great mass; the deep—so called from its vast bulk, and the waters—with which the whole was then covered; without order or beauty being without light. And the Spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters to cherish, quicken and dispose the whole earth and water to the production of all that was to be placed in them. As before to the Second person of the Glorious Trinity, so here the power of God, is ascribed to the Third,—the Spirit of the Father and the Son, called the Holy Ghost. (John xiv. 26.)

V. 3. Let there be light—Commanded by a word, the powerful act of his own will, and to the same blessed power the restoration of the soul is attributed. (2 Cor. iv. 6. Phil. ii. 13.)

V. 4. Observed with approbation, that it was agreeable to the end for which it was intended—the use and comfort of man, and all the creatures to be placed under him. Night and day may best explain to us that act of his mighty power which divided the light from the darkness. As free as that light, is the grace that bringeth salvation, as gloomy as darkness, is that unbelief which doth not ascribe to God the sole glory and praise of the soul's restoration. (Acts xxvi. 18.)

V. 5. The natural day begineth with the morning light, as the night doth with the evening or coming on of darkness. How unperceived doth the night of death, wherein no man can work, approach us; when that night cometh, who will not wish to have lived as children of the light, and used the flying moments to do his will on earth? What doth true wisdom say ought now to be my steadfast care?

V. 6. Stretched out and spread the Firmament. (Jer. x. 12.)

V. 7. Made and fixed it in its proper place, and divided the waters that are above from those that are in seas, rivers, lakes

Before Christ 4004.

7 And God made the firmament, and divided the waters which were under the firmament, from the waters which were [f] above the firmament: and it was so.

f Psal. 148. 4.

8 And God called the firmament Heaven: And the evening and the morning were the second day.

9 ¶ And God said, [g] Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so.

g Job 26. 10. & 38. 8. Psal. 33. 7. & 104. 9. & 136. 6. Prov. 8. 29. Jer. 5. 22.

10 And God called the dry land Earth, and the gathering together of the waters called he Seas: and God saw that it was good.

11 And God said, Let the earth bring forth § grass, the herb yielding seed, and the fruit-tree yielding fruit after his kind, whose seed is in itself, upon the earth: and it was so.

§ Heb. tender grass.

12 And the earth brought forth grass, and herb yielding seed after his kind, and the tree yielding fruit, whose seed was in itself, after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

13 And the evening and the morning were the third day.

14 ¶ And God said, Let there be [h] lights in the firmament of the heaven, to divide * the day from the night: and let them be for signs, and for seasons, and for days, and years.

h Deut. 4. 19. Psalm 136. 7. * Heb. between the day and between the night.

15 And let them be for lights in the firmament of the heaven, to give light upon the earth: and it was so.

16 And God made two great lights; the greater light † to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night: he made [i] the stars also.

Before Christ 4004

† Heb. for the rule o' the day, &c.

i Job 38. 7.

17 And God set them in the firmament of the heaven, to give light upon the earth:

18 And to [k] rule over the day and over the night, and to divide the light from the darkness: and God saw that it was good.

k Jer. 31. 35.

19 And the evening and the morning were the fourth day.

20 And God said, Let the waters bring forth abundantly the ‡ moving creature that hath § life, and * fowl that may fly above the earth in the † open firmament of heaven.

‡ Or, creeping. § Heb. souls. * Heb. let fowl fly. † Heb. face of the firmament of heaven.

21 And [m] God created great whales, and every living creature that moveth, which the waters brought forth abundantly after their kind, and every winged fowl after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

m Psa. 104. 26.

22 And God blessed them, saying, [n] Be fruitful, and multiply, and fill the waters in the seas, and let fowl multiply in the earth.

n Chap. 8. 17. & 9. 1.

23 And the evening and the morning were the fifth day.

24 ¶ And God said, Let the earth bring forth the living creature after his kind, cattle and creeping thing, and beast of the earth after his kind: and it was so.

25 And God made the beast of the earth after his kind, and cattle after their kind, and every thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind: and God saw that it was good.

o Chap. 5. 1. & 9. 6. 1 Cor. 11. 7. Eph. 4. 24. Col. 3. 10.

26 ¶ And God said, [o] Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and [p] let them lakes and fountains. As God commanded the waters to be lifted up and divided so it was done.

p Psa. 8. 6.

V. 8. And this Firmament of the starry heaven no more than the earth can be moved but by the power that made them.

V. 9. The waters unto one place—having communication and connected together as springs, rivers and seas.

V. 10. Waters called Seas—differing in quantity. When the usefulness of water is considered, well may they be called good; and how doth its plenty and universality increase the obligation we owe to creating goodness; brought as it were to all the dwellings of men, and at the same time so bound and restrained, that seas and rivers are no objects of dread, though of so much danger, was the Hand that holds them to let them loose but for a moment.

V. 11. The earth and seas being now provided by the power of God, they at once became fruitful; and for the future provision of the inhabitants of the earth, every thing that grew was made to yield seed from itself. To seed producing trees, and plants is compared the grace of God, communicated to the soul of man. (1 Pet. i. 23. 1 John iii. 9.)

V. 12. And to the productions of the earth dying in winter, and rising again as to a new life in spring, is compared the resurrection of our bodies at the Lord Jesus's second coming (John v. 28, 29. 1 Cor. xv. 29, &c.) All things made are so repeatedly pronounced good, doubtless ever to remind us, that nothing hurtful or evil proceeded from God, but from the wilful abuse of those free and god-like powers which were given to angels and to men; and that it was only when opposition to the will of God commenced, that the nature of evil took place: man's rebellion was then written in every poison; but which still by the goodness of God can be made to heal the body of the effects of sin; as the Spirit of God health and restoreth to purity and peace the penitent believing mind.

V. 14. Lights—Bodies of lights, those public servants of the world, which day and night are made to shine upon us; and by the motion of the whole, producing all that variety and usefulness, which we have in the returning seasons. And to these lights are compared, the children of light, who by the grace of God live to his praise on earth, and will shine forth as the stars for ever. (Dan. xii. 3.)

V. 15, 16. To the greater light the appearance of the Lord Jesus is compared. (Rev. i. 16.)

V. 17, 18. Both the greater and lesser lights are set to give light upon the earth; not to the inhabitants of other worlds, for God hath not made any other known but this, and heaven and hell, between which we are placed. (Mat. xxv. 31, &c.)

V. 19. 25. The earth being planted, the seas and rivers all gathered into their places, and the lights of heaven shining upon them, God then gave life to all the creatures that live in the earth, the water and the air; and God blessed them with all the happiness of which their natures were capable. And they also are pronounced good.

V. 26, 27. God said, Let us make man in our image and likeness. So he created man in his own image, in the image of God created them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth.

Before Christ 4004.

27 So God created man in his own image, [o] in the image of God created he him: [p] male and female created he them.

28 And God blessed them, and God said unto them, [q] Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that † moveth upon the earth.

29 ¶ And God said, Behold, I have given you every herb ‡ bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed: [t] to you it shall be for meat.

30 And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is §life, I have given every green herb for meat: And it was so.

31 And [u] God saw every thing that he had made, and behold, it was very good. And the evening and the morning were the sixth day.

o 1 Cor. 11. 7. p Chap. 5. 2. Mal. 2. 15. Matt. 19. 4. Mark 10. 6. q Chap. 9. 1.

† Heb. creepeth.

‡ Heb. seeding seed.

t Chap. 9. 3. Psalm 104. 14, 15.

§ Heb. a living soul.

u 1 Tim. 4. 4.

CHAP. II.

Before Christ 4004.

THUS the heavens and the earth were finished, and [a] all the host of them.

a Psalm 33. 6.

2 [o] And on the seventh day God ended his work which he had made: and he rested on the seventh day from all his work which he had made.

o Exodus 20. 11. & 31. 17. Deut. 5. 14. Hebrews 4. 4.

3 And God blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it: because that in it he had rested from all his work, which God * created and made.

* Heb. created to make.

4 ¶ These are the generations of the heavens and of the earth, when they were created, in the day that the Lord God made the earth and the heavens,

5 And every plant of the field, before it was in the earth, and every herb of the field, before it grew: for the Lord God had not caused it to rain upon the earth, and there was not a man to till the ground.

6 But † there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground.

† Or, a mist which went up from, &c.

7 And the LORD God formed man ‡ of the [c] dust of the ground, and breathed into his ‡ Heb. dust of the ground.

c 1 Cor. 15. 47.

created he him. God is holy, just and good, and blessed, so do his word, his works and government declare him. The design of God to make man in his own image is first expressed, and then it is declared that agreeable to this design, the first parents of mankind were made.

V. 28. And God blessed them—with grace and happiness suitable to their high origin and immortal nature, and that they might be the parents of countless numbers as blessed as themselves; producing their own likeness as the seed from the tree. And God placed all that had life, in a state of subjection to man, who thus under God, was made the head of the creation.

V. 29, 30. Telling man what should be to him for meat; and also securing to all the other creatures the supply of their wants.

V. 31. The world thus made, planted and inhabited, was now declared good.

CHAP. II.

V. 1. All the creatures in heaven and earth are called their host, for their multitude, variety, order, power, and subjection to the Lord of Hosts. The Host of heaven in Scripture signifieth both the stars and the angels, but it is no wonder that so little is said concerning angels, because the Scriptures were written for the use of men, not of angels, and God would hereby take us off from curious speculations, and teach us to employ our thoughts about things in which we have an immediate and endless concern.

V. 2. Finished all these works within six days, God rested not for his own need and refreshment, for he is never weary, but for our example and instruction, that we might keep the seventh day as a day of religious rest.

V. 3. That it should be a day of solemn rest and rejoicing, and celebration of God and his works, and a day of God's bestowing singular blessings upon his servants and worshippers. He separated it from common use and worldly employments, and consecrated it to the worship of God, that it should be accounted an holy day, and spent in holy works and solemn exercises of religion. That the memory of that glorious work of creation, from which he then rested, might be preserved through all generations. Created out of nothing, and afterwards out of that created matter, made or formed divers things, as the beasts out of the earth, the fishes out of the water. These two words appear to be used to shew that God's wisdom, power and goodness, was manifest not only in that which he brought out of meer nothing, but also in those things which he wrought out of matter altogether unfit for so great works.

V. 4. These things mentioned in the first chapter, a true and full relation of their generations, of their original or beginnings.

V. 5. The two great means of the growth of plants and herbs,—rain from heaven, and the labour of man, were both wanting, to shew that they were brought forth by God's Almighty power and word.

V. 6. By God's appointment. Vapour or cloud, which going up into the air, was turned into rain, and fell down again to the earth. Whereby the earth was softened and disposed to the nourishment of those plants or trees that were created, and to the production of new plants.

V. 7. The LORD, in capital letters, is constantly used in our translation for Jehovah. This is that great and incommunicable name of God, which expresseth his having his being of himself, and his giving being to all things. He formed man. Of the other creatures it is said, they were created and made, but of man that he was formed, which implieth a gradual process with great accuracy and exactness, and the soul taketh its rise from the breath of heaven. [I.] The Lord God the great fountain of being breathed into man the breath of life. This is an emphatical phrase, implying that the soul of man was of a quite different nature, extraction and original to the souls of beasts, which together with their bodies are said to be brought forth by the earth, Genesis i. 24. [II.] The soul of man being thus communicated from God himself must be immortal in its nature; the body, though formed, was lifeless till the soul was added, death is therefore the removal of the soul from the body, and at the same time that we are called upon to regard our own and the souls of all other men, as originating from the breath of God, [III.] and so by the bounty of our Creator holding kindred with the Most High,

we

Before Christ 4004.

his nostrils the breath of life; and [d] man became a living soul.

8 ¶ And the Lord God planted a garden [e] east ward in [f] Eden; and there he put the man whom he had formed.

9 And out of the ground made the Lord God to grow every tree that is pleasant to the sight, and good for food: [g] the tree of life also in the midst of the garden, [h] and the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

10 And a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads.

11 The name of the first is Pison: that is it which compasseth [k] the whole land of Havilah, where there is gold.

12 And the gold of that land is good: [l] there is bdellium, and the onyx-stone.

13 And the name of the second river is Gihon: the same is it that compasseth the whole land of § Ethiopia.

14 And the name of the third river is, [m] Hiddekel: that is it which goeth * toward the east of Assyria. And the fourth river is Euphrates.

15 And the Lord God took † the man, and put him into the garden of Eden, to dress it, and to keep it.

16 And the Lord God commanded the man, saying, Of every tree of the garden ‡ thou mayest freely eat:

17 [n] But of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, thou shalt not eat of it: for in the day that thou eatest thereof, [o] § thou shalt surely die.

18 ¶ And the Lord God said, it is not good that the man should be alone: [p] I will make him an help * meet for him.

19 [q] And out of the ground the Lord God formed every beast of the field, and every fowl of the air, and [r] brought them unto † Adam, to see what he would call them: and whatsoever Adam called every living creature, that was the name thereof.

20 And Adam ‖ gave names to all cattle, and to the fowl of the air, and to every beast of the field: but for Adam there was not found an help meet for him.

21 And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept: and he took

d 1 Cor. 15. 45.
e Chap. 3. 24.
f Chap. 4. 16. 2 Kings 19. 12. Ezekiel 27. 23.
g Chap. 3. 22. Rev. 22. 2.
h Ver. 17.
k Chap. 25. 18.
l Num. 11. 7.
§ Heb. Cush.
m Dan. 10. 4.
* Or, eastward to Assyria.
† Or, Adam
‡ Heb. eating thou shalt eat.
n Ver. 9.
o Chap. 3. 19. § Heb. dying thou shalt die.
p Chap. 3. 12.
* Heb. as before him.
q Chap. 1. 20. 24.
r See Chap. 6. 20.
† Or, the man.
‖ Heb. called.

we are still to bear in mind that our mortal nature is of the dust of the earth, to which it will return. Who is willing to renounce their high relation to God? Who will deny that men return to dust? If God in making man, thus united the nature of heaven and earth together, may we not from hence be led to that great subject, of God taking upon himself the human nature, for the most gracious purpose to man, and also to believe that grace through him may be given to souls as dead to the divine life, as Adam's body was, before it was quickened by the same Spirit.

V. 8. Had planted on the third day, when he made the plants and trees to grow out of the ground. A place of the choicest plants and fruits, most beautiful and pleasant.

V. 9. The tree of Life—So called, because it was a sign and seal of that life which man had received from God, and of his continual enjoyment of it upon condition of his obedience to God, who thereby would prove and make known man's good or evil, his obedience and happiness, or his rebellion and misery.

V. 10. Eden—The country in which paradise was; where those rivers either arose from one spring, or met together in one channel from the garden. It was divided into four principal rivers. Concerning which there are now many disputes. But it is no wonder if the rise and situation of these rivers be not now certainly known, because of the great changes, which in so long time might happen in this, as well as in other rivers. Euphrates and Tigris are discovered to have one and the same spring, and that in a most pleasant part of Armenia, where it is thought Paradise was.

V. 11. Pison—An eminent branch of the river Tigris. Havilah—Which is in those parts of Arabia which is towards Mesopotamia, so called from Havilah the issue of Cham, (Gen. x. 7.)

V. 12. Good—Better than ordinary. Bdellium—which signifieth valuable gems and pearls. Onyx-stone—a precious stone.

V. 13. Gihon—Not that river in the land of Israel, (1 Kings i. 33. 2 Chron. xxxii. 30.) but another of the same name, which in Hebrew signifieth, the branch of a greater river.

V. 14. Hiddekel—Tigris, or an eminent branch of it.

V. 15. Commanded and inclined him to go.

V. 16. Commanded the man—and the woman too, as appeareth from Gen. i. 29. either immediately or by Adam.

V. 17. Die—Spiritually by the guilt and power of sin, at that instant thou shalt be dead in trespasses and sins, (Eph. ii. 1.) The death of the body which shall then begin in thee, by decays, infirmities, terrors, dangers, and other harbingers of death; and eternal death shall succeed.

V. 18. Said—On the sixth day, on which the woman was made. (Gen. i. 27, 28.) It is not good—Not convenient either for my purpose of the increase of mankind, or for man's personal comfort. Meet for him—A most emphatical phrase, signifying, one suitable and altogether like to him in disposition and affection, a second self; to be near to him, familiarly to converse with him, always ready to succour and comfort him. Who can tell the blessedness of that state where God is together feared, loved, served, and praised? No plurality is instituted by God; and that must be sacred which God ordains, as well as suited to the soul's highest peace, but if sense is allowed to rule instead of God, then in choosing what God did not appoint, the human race, self-degraded, may know as little of the sacred ties of affection as beasts, and with reason sensualized, renounce the original designs of God, expressed by the great example, of giving the two first parents of mankind to each other.

V. 19. Brought them—by secret instinct unto Adam, to own their subjection to him; and that he being recreated with their prospect, might adore and praise the Maker of them, and withal be sensible of his want of a meet companion, and so the better prepared to receive God's mercy therein; and to see—make a discovery, not to God, who knew it already, but to all future generations, who would hereby understand the deep wisdom and knowledge of their first parent. Call them—To wit, in the primitive or Hebrew language. And this was done for the manifestation both of man's dominion over the creatures, and of the largeness of his understanding; it being an act of authority to give names, and an effect of vast knowledge to give convenient names to all the creatures, which supposeth an exact acquaintance with their natures.

V. 20. But though, in giving names, he considered their several natures and perfections, it was evident to himself, as well as to the Lord, that none of them was an help meet for him.

V. 21. A

Before Christ 4004. took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof.

22 And the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, § made he a woman, and brought her unto the man.

§ Heb. built-ed.

23 And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was [t] taken out of man.

t 1 Cor. 11. 8.

24 [u] Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.

u Chap. 3. 7. 10, 11.

25 [v] And they were both naked, the man and his wife, and were not ashamed.

CHAP. III.

NOW [a] the serpent was [b] more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made, and he said unto the woman, [c] * Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden?

a Revel. 12. 9. 20. 2. b Matt. 10. 16.
c Curios. 11. 3.
* Heb. Yea, because &c.

2 And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden:

3 [e] But of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die.

Before Christ 4004.

e Chap. 2. 17.

4 [d] And the serpent said unto the woman, Ye shall not surely die.

d 2 Cor. 11. 3. 1 Tim. 2. 14.

5 For God doth know, that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened: and ye shall be as gods, knowing good and evil.

6 And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was † pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise; she took of the fruit thereof, [e] and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her, and he did eat.

† Heb. a desire.

e 1 Tim. 2. 14.

7 And the eyes of them both were opened, [f] and they knew that they were naked; and they sewed fig-leaves together, and made themselves ‡ aprons.

f Chap. 2. 25.

‡ Or, things to gird about.

8 And they heard the voice of the Lord God

V. 21. A deep sleep—That he, who was without sin, might feel no pain. The woman was taken out of this part, not out of the higher or lower parts, to shew that she is neither to be her husband's mistress, to usurp authority over him, nor yet to be his slave, but to be kindly treated with respect and affection.

V. 22. Brought her—From a little distance, whither he first carried her, that he might bring her thence, as a bride to a bridegroom to be married to him, the great God being pleased to act the part of a father to give his daughter and workmanship to him.

V. 23. Adam said—By the revelation of God, the woman is made of my rib and flesh, God hath provided me a help-meet and wife out of my own body and of the same nature with myself.

V. 24. These are the words of Moses by the Spirit, and an inference from Adam's words. Leave—their habitation and society, but not as to natural duty and affection. Cleave—in conjugal relation and highest affection, even above what they owe to their parents. Or, they two, as it is in the Samaritan, Syriack and Arabick translations, shall be esteemed by themselves and others to be as intirely and inseperably united, and shall have as intimate and universal communion, as if they were one person, one soul, one body. And this first institution shews the sinfulness of divorces and polygamy, however God might dispence with his own institution, or remit the punishment due to the violators of it.

V. 25. Having no guilt they had not cause of shame, spotless innocency and rectitude must needs exclude shame.

CHAP. III.

V. 1. The Serpent—Or, that Serpent: The serpent's eminent subtilty is noted both in Scripture, and by heathen authors. This text seemeth to be understood not of the whole kind of serpents, but of this particular serpent, as possessed and used by Satan as an instrument, in seducing man to sin against the command of God; Satan is therefore called that old serpent. (Rev. xii. 9.) The serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, (2 Cor. xi. 3.) not through that subtilty which is common to all serpents, but through that subtilty which was peculiar to this, as possessed by the devil. These words, Yea hath God said, are a short and abrupt sentence, and might be the close of a foregoing discourse. And that expression which follows, ver. 6. When the woman saw, understood, that it was a tree to be desired to make one wise, may seem to imply both that the serpent told her, and that she believed, that the speech and understanding of the serpent was the effect of the eating of that fruit, and therefore if it raised him from a brute-beast to the degree of a reasonable creature, it would elevate her from the human to a kind of divine nature. The woman who had retired from her husband for a season; an advantage which the serpent embraced when she wanted the help of her husband. Of a truth, it is scarce credible that God, who is so bountiful, and the sovereign good, and so far from all parsimony, and envy, should forbid you the enjoyment of any part of those provisions, which he hath made for your use. Satan's language to the mind, may be best known by its tendency to deny or doubt God's word.

V. 3. Touch it—In order to the eating of it; Or, the touch might be simply forbidden, or she might reasonably understand it to be forbidden by the prohibition of eating, because it was an occasion of sin, and therefore to be avoided.

V. 4. It is not so certain as you imagine, that you shall die. God did say so indeed for your terror, and to keep you in awe, or, he had some mystical meaning in those words, but do not entertain such hard and unworthy thoughts of that God who is infinitely kind and gracious, that he will for such a trifle, as the eating of a little fruit undo you, and all your posterity, and so suddenly destroy the most excellent work of his own hands. God granteth indulgence to no sin. His grace is to save from it.

V. 5. He knoweth that you shall be so far from dying, that ye shall certainly be entered into a new, and more noble kind of life, and the eyes of your minds, which are now shut as to the knowledge of a world of things shall then be opened, and see things more fully and distinctly, like unto God himself in the largeness of your knowledge, as the very name that God hath put upon the tree may teach you.

V. 6. When the woman saw—By curious observation, and gazing upon it, and by the serpent's discourse. Pleasant—in an eminent degree; to be desired to make one wise—which she might know by the serpent's information, who by this time was returned to her. Gave unto her husband—who now was with her, or, that he might eat with her and take his part of the fruit, by her persuasion. (1 Tim. ii. 14.)

V. 7. The eyes of—their minds and consciences, which hitherto had been closed, and blinded by the arts of the devil. Were opened—as the devil had promised them, though in a sad sense, They knew it before, when it was their glory, but now they knew it with grief and shame.

V. 8. Adam and his wife hid themselves—being sensible of God's approach Before Christ 4003. God walking in the garden in the § cool of the day: and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God amongst the trees of the garden.

§ Heb. wind.

9 And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou?

10 And he said, I heard thy voice in the garden: and I was afraid, [g] because I was naked; and I hid myself.

g Chap. 2. 25.

11 And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree, whereof I commanded thee, that thou shouldest not eat?

h Chap. 2. 18.

12 And the man said, [h] The woman, whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat.

Before Christ 4003.

13 And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat.

14 And the Lord God said unto the serpent, Because thou hast done this, thou art cursed above all cattle, and above every beast of the field: upon thy belly shalt thou go, and [k] dust shalt thou eat all the days of thy life.

k Isaiah 65. 25. Mic. 7. 17.

15 And I will put enmity between thee and approach, and filled with shame for their guilt and dread of judgment, which is natural to all their posterity, instead of flying to God for mercy, they foolishly attempted to run away from him, whom it was impossible to avoid.

V. 9. Thou—whom I have so highly obliged, wherefore doest thou run away from me thy friend and father, whose presence was lately so sweet and acceptable to thee? In what place art thou? What is the cause of this sudden change? This he asks not that he was ignorant of it, but to make way for the following sentence, and to set a pattern for all, that they should examine the offender, and inquire into the offence before they proceed to blame or punish.

V. 10. And I hid myself—He confesseth his nakedness, which was evident; but saith nothing of his sin, which, if possible, he would have hid.

V. 11. Thou wast naked—Or, that thy nakedness, which lately was thy glory, was now become matter of shame. Hast thou eaten of the Tree—concerning which I gave thee so severe a charge.

V. 12. Thus Adam excuseth himself, and chargeth God indirectly. How fallen with his sin.

V. 13. Hast done—How heinous a crime hast thou committed? What a world of mischief hast thou by this one act brought upon thyself and all thy posterity: Why hast thou done this? What causes, or motives couldst thou have for so wicked an action? What need hadst thou of this fruit, when I had given thee so large and liberal an allowance? The Serpent beguiled me—A creature which thou hast made, and that assisted by an higher power, by an evil angel, for such I now perceive by sad experience there are.

V. 14. God said unto the Serpent—Or that Serpent, actuated by the devil, and therefor this sentence, or curse, is pronounced against both of them; against the serpent itself, which though not a reasonable creature, and therefore not subject to a law, and consequently not capable of guilt or sin, yet, being the instrument of the devil's malice, is punished as other beasts are, by man's sin suffering together with him, not for their crime, but for the punishment of man, who is their lord and owner, for whose sake they were made, that in their punishment man might have a demonstration of God's anger against sin, and a motive to repentance; the devil is here principally intended, though as he lay hid in the body of the serpent which he possessed and used, so his curse is here mentioned under the cover of the serpent's curse, and under the disguise of such terms as properly and literally agree to the serpent, but are also to be understood concerning the devil; with whom the Lord entertaineth no conference, but immediately denounceth the curse against him, as one that sinned against knowledge, and from no mistake or mis-information, but from choice and rebellion, from hatred of God, and from meer envy, and implacable malice against man. Because thou hast done this—deceived the woman, and tempted her to this sin. Thou art cursed above all cattle—From henceforth, both really and in the opinion of all mankind; Upon thy breast shalt thou go, dust shalt thou eat. Serpents creeping and groveling upon the earth, and taking their food from thence, necessarily take in dust with it. These curses being applied to the devil, signify the baseness of his nature, and of his delight in the vilest of men and things, it being now his meat and drink to dishonour God, and destroy mankind, and promote the esteem and love of earthly things.

V. 15. Enmity—Though now ye be sworn friends, leagued together against me: Between thee and the woman—and the man too, but the woman alone is mentioned, for the devil's greater confusion: The woman, whom thou didst seduce, shall be the great occasion of thy overthrow, because the son of God, who conquered this great dragon and old serpent, (Rev. xii. 9.) came to destroy the works of the devil, (1 John iii. 8.) was made of a woman only, (Gal. iv. 4. Isa. vii. 14. Luke i. 34, 35.) Between thy seed—Literally, the whole seed or race of serpents, which of all creatures are most loathsome to mankind, and especially to women: And that evil spirit which seduced her, and with him the whole society of devils (who are generally hated and dreaded by all men, even by those that serve and obey them, but much more by good men) and all wicked men who are called devils and the children or seed of the devil, (John vi. 70. and viii. 44. Acts xiii. 10.) And her seed—Her offspring, first and principally, the Lord Christ, who with respect to this promise is called, by way of emineney, the seed, (Gal. iii. 16, 19.) whose work it is alone to break the serpent's head, and to destroy the devil, (Heb. ii. 14. John xii. 31. Rom. xvi. 20.) Secondly, all the members of Christ, all believers and holy men, who are called the children of Christ, (Heb. ii. 13.) and the heirs of the Heavenly Jerusalem, (Gal. iv. 26.) all which are the seed of this woman: And all these are the implacable enemies of the devil, whom also by Christ's merit and strength they do overcome. Bruise thy head—The principal instrument both of the serpent's fury and mischief, and of his defence, and the principal seat of the serpent's life, which therefore men chiefly strike at, and which being upon the ground a man may conveniently tread upon and crush to pieces. In the devil this notes his power and authority over men, the strength whereof consists in death, which Christ, the blessed seed of the woman, overthroweth, by taking away the sting of death which is sin, (1 Cor. xv. 55, 56.) and destroying him that had the power of death, that is, the devil, (Heb. ii. 14.) His heel—Christ, his heel may note, either his humanity, whereby he trode upon the earth, which indeed the devil by God's permission, and the hands of wicked men, did bruise; or his saints and members upon the earth, whom the devil doth tempt and afflict, while he cannot reach their head Christ in heaven, nor those of his members who are or shall be advanced thither.

V. 16. Greatly multiply thy sorrow—Or, certainly, as the repetition of the same word implies, in pains and infirmities peculiar to thy sex. Mercy is mixed with wrath in this sentence: The woman shall have sorrow, but it shall be in bringing forth children; and the sorrow shall be forgotten for joy that a child is born (John xvi. 21.)

Before Christ 4004.

and the woman. and between [l] thy seed and [m] her seed: [n] it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

16 Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy sorrow and thy conception; in sorrow thou shalt bring forth children: [o] and thy desire shall be * to thy husband, and he shall [p] rule over thee.

17 And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, [o] and hast eaten of the tree of which I commanded thee, saying thou shalt not eat of it; [r] cursed is the ground for thy sake: In sorrow shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life.

18 Thorns also and thistles shall it † bring forth to thee: and [s] thou shalt eat the herb of the field.

19 [t] In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return.

20 And Adam called his wife's name ‡ Eve, because she was the mother of all living.

21 Unto Adam also and to his wife did the Lord God make coats of skins, and cloathed them.

l Matth. 3. 7. & 13. 38. & 23. 33. John 8. 44. Acts 13. 10. 1 John 3. 8.
m Isai. 7. 14. Micah 5. 3. n Heb. 2. 14. 1 John 5. 5. Rev. 12. 7, 17.
o Chap. 4. 7.
* Or, subject to thy husband.
p 1 Cor. 14. 34. 1 Timothy 2. 11, 12. Titus 2. 5.
o Chap. 2. 17.
r Isa. 24. 5, 6. Rom. 8. 20 † Heb. cause to bud. s Psa. 104. 14.
t 2 Thes. 3. 10.
‡ Heb. Chavah.

22 ¶ And the Lord God said, [x] Behold, the man is become as one of us, to know good and evil. And now lest he put forth his hand, [y] and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live for ever;

Before Christ 4003.

x Like Isaiah 19. 12. and 47. 12, 13. Jer. 22. 28.
y Chap. 2. 9.

23 Therefore the Lord God sent him forth from the garden of Eden, to till the ground from whence he was taken.

24 So he drove out the man: and he placed, [o] at the east of the garden of Eden, Cherubims, and a flaming sword which turned every way, to keep the way of the tree of life.

o Chap. 2. 8.

CHAP. IV.

AND Adam knew Eve his wife: and she conceived, and bare Cain, and said, I have gotten a man from the Lord. 4003.

2 And she again bare his brother * Abel, and Abel was † a keeper of sheep, but Cain was a tiller of the ground.

* Heb. Hebel.
† Heb. a feeder.

3 And ‡ in process of time it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord.

‡ Heb. at the end of days.

4 And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his § flock, and of the fat thereof. And § Heb. sheep, or, goats.

xvi. 21. She shall be subject; but it shall be to her own husband that loves her, not a stranger, or an enemy. The sentence was not a curse to bring her to ruin, but a chastisement to bring her to repentance.

V. 17. Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife—Obeyed her word and counsel, contrary to my express command. Cursed is the ground—which shall now yield both fewer and worse fruits, and those too with more trouble of men's mind, and labour of their bodies. For thy sake—because of thy sin. In sorrow—with toil and grief.

V. 18. Thorns and thistles—and other unuseful and hurtful plants. Bring forth—of its own accord. To thee—not to thy benefit, but to thy grief and punishment; instead of those generous and delicious fruits of paradise, which because thou didst despise thou shalt no more taste of.

V. 19. Sweat of thy face—Or, with labour of body and vexation of mind. Eat bread—Get thy food and livelihood. Dust thou art—As to the constitution and original of thy body, though upon thy obedience I would have preserved thy body no less than thy soul from all mortality, yet now having sinned thou shalt return unto dust. Thus thy end shall be as base as thy beginning.

V. 20. Eve—Which signifies the giver, or preserver, of life. She was the mother of all living—Though for her sin justly sentenced to present death, yet by God's infinite mercy, and by virtue of the promised seed, was both continued in life herself, and was made the mother of all that should be after her upon the earth

V. 21. Make—Either by his own word, or by the ministry of angels, of beasts slain either for sacrifice to God, or for the use of man, their Lord and owner, which he did to defend them from excessive heats and colds, or other injuries of the air, to which they were now exposed, and to remind them of their sin which made their nakedness, before innocent and honourable, now to be an occasion of sin and shame, and therefore to need covering: And to shew his care of fallen man, and to encourage his hopes of God's mercy through the blessed seed, and thereby to invite him to repentance.

V. 22. God said—But this God uttereth not to insult over man's misery, but to convince him of his sin and danger, and to oblige him to a diligent seeking after and embracing the remedy of the promised seed which God offered him, and to a greater watchfulness over himself, and respect to all God's commands for the time to come. As one of us—As one of the divine persons of wisdom and capacity. Here is an evident proof of a plurality of persons in the Godhead, (Gen. i. 26. and xi. 7.) To know good and evil—To know all things, both good and evil. And now lest he put forth his hand, and take of the tree of life—Now care must be taken, man must be banished hence, lest he prophane that sacrament of eternal life.

V. 23. Therefore the Lord—Expelled him with shame and violence, and so as never to restore him thither: For it is the same word which is used concerning divorced wives. To till the ground—with toil and sweat, without paradise; for he was made without paradise, and then put into it.

V. 24. East of the garden—Where the entrance into it was: Or, before the garden, before any man could come at the garden. Cherubims—Angels so called from their exquisite knowledge, therefore fitly here used for the punishment of man who sinned. A flaming sword—In the Cherubims hands, or, a flaming fire in the shape of a sword.

CHAP. IV.

V. 1. Cain—Whose name signifies a possession. A man—A male child, which was most welcome. From the Lord—By virtue of his blessing and special favour. Or, a man the Lord, as the words properly signify, God-man or the Messias, hoping that this was the promised seed.

V. 2. Abel—Signifying vanity, a vain mortal, miserable man, whereas she thought Cain to be more than man: This name might prophetically design Abel's miserable life, and untimely and unnatural death. Cain was a tiller of the ground—Which was esteemed a more honourable calling than that of a shepherd.

V. 3. In process of time—Probably, at the end of the days of the Before Christ 4003. And the Lord had [a] respect unto Abel, and to his offering:

5 But unto Cain, and to his offering, he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, [b] and his countenance fell.

6 And the Lord said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen?

7 If thou doest well, shalt thou not § be accepted? and if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door. And * unto thee shall be his desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

8 And Cain talked with Abel his brother: and it came to pass, when they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and [c] slew him.

9 ¶ And the Lord said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, I know not. Am I my brother's keeper?

Before Christ cir. 3875.

10 And he said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brothers † blood [d] crieth unto me from the ground.

11 And now art thou cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother's blood from thy hand.

12 When thou tillest the ground, it shall not henceforth yield unto thee her strength. A fugitive and a vagabond shalt thou be in the earth.

13 And Cain said unto the Lord, ‡ My punishment is greater than I can bear.

14 Behold, thou hast driven me out this day from the face of the earth: and from thy face a Heb. 11. 4.

b Chap. 31. 2.

§ Or, have the excellency.

* Or, subject unto thee. Chap. 3. 16.

cir. 3875.

c Mat. 23. 35. 1 John 3. 12. Jude 11.

† Heb. bloods.

d Heb. 12. 24. Rev. 6. 10.

‡ Or, Mine iniquity is greater than that it may be forgiven.

the week, upon the seventh day of the week, Saturday, which then was the sabbath day, which before this time was blessed and sanctified. Cain brought—Either to the place appointed for the solemn worship of God: Or, to his Father.

V. 4. The fat thereof—Or, the choicest and most eminent of the flock; the best of them, as the word fat is often used. The Lord had respect—looked to him with a gracious eye, kindly accepted and owned him and his sacrifice, and testified this to Cain and all present. Abel did it by faith; Cain considered God only as a Creator and Preserver, and he offered the fruits of the earth as an acknowledgement to God; but he had no respect to the sinful state into which his parents and himself were fallen, nor to the way of deliverance from it, revealed in the first promise: But the faith of Abel was fixed on God as a Redeemer, and this he testified by the kind of his offering and sacrifice, which was by death and blood; such being the justice of God, that without the blood of Jesus shed to make an atonement for us, there is no remission of sin, and the way in which men could worship God acceptably has ever been the same;—doing of it only through, and with an eye to, or faith in that one Mediator between God and man, the promised seed, the Messias, the Lamb of God, the man Christ Jesus. God had respect unto Abel, and to his offering; the consequence of his faith in God's mercy through the promised Mediator. (Heb. xi. 4.)

V. 5. Cain was wroth—With God who had cast so public a disgrace upon him, and given the preference to his younger brother: And with Abel, because he had received more honour from God, and therefore was likely to have more respect and privilege from his parents than himself. His countenance fell—Before it was lifted up, now it fell down through disappointment, shame, grief, and envy at his brother. They who feel no need of mercy from God, are under the same enmity against Him, and envy against those they see living in dependance on God's mercy, and to whom God is ever shewing his respect, in ways infinitely various as His providence.

V. 6. The Lord said unto Cain—That he might bring him to repentance and the knowledge of his sin. Why is thy countenance fallen—The cause of this dejectedness is not from me, but from thyself. Self distressed are all who have not peace from God; for He tempteth no man, nor does he willingly afflict the children of men; they are dejected who worship God as Cain did, and see no need of an atonement for sin. A state of mind which always expresses or implies blame against God, thinking He afflicts where there are no crimes, or punishes more severely than they deserve.

V. 7. If thou doest well—Shalt repent of thy sin, amend thy life, and approach God in faith as Abel did. Shalt thou not be accepted—Pardoned, received into favour? and restored unto those rights of the First born, which thou art conscious to thyself thou hast forfeited. If thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door—Sin will be growing upon thee, one sin will bring in another; and that malice and purpose of revenge against thy brother, which now lies hid in the secret chamber of thy mind and heart, lies at the door, ready to break forth into the view of the world in open murder. And if thou wilt go on in sin, and execute thy wicked purpose which I perceive lies working in thy heart, be sure thy sin will find thee out. Thou shalt not long enjoy the fruits of thy wickedness, but a dreadful judgment shall follow thy sin, and one day seize upon thee. And unto thee shall be thy brother's desire, and thou shalt rule over him.

V. 8. Cain talked with Abel his brother—As he used to do, to make him secure and careless: Or by way of expostulation and contention. In the field—Into which Abel was led by his own employment, or by Cain's persuasion for the execution of his wicked purpose of murdering Abel; the last expression he could give of enmity against God, and envy and hatred to man. The seat of these passions is the heart, which God sees; and looks on the consent to the passion, from which proceeds murder, deceit, covetousness or adultery, as the crimes themselves.

V. 9. Where is Abel—Not that God was ignorant where he was, but to convince him of his sin, and to lead him to repentance, and to instruct us to inquire and hear the accused speak for themselves. Thy brother—Whom nature obliged thee to love and preserve. I know not—How allied are wickedness and ignorance. Every untruth intended or uttered, is on the notion that he who made the eye, does not see; and that he who formed the ear, does not hear. May the contrary never be forgotten.

V. 10. What hast thou done—I hear thy words, but what say thy actions? Blood—The meaning is, bloods, to charge him with the murder of all those that might have come of Abel. From the ground—Upon which it was spilt.

V. 11. Now art thou cursed—Cursed in thy own person. From the earth—Which shall grudge thee both its fruits, and a certain dwelling place.

V. 12. Ground—That ground, which shall fall to thy share, besides the first and general curse inflicted upon the whole earth, shall have this peculiar curse added to it. It shall not yield unto thee her strength—Its virtue, and fruit, in such proportion as it hath hitherto done. A fugitive and vagabond—Banished from thy father's house, and from the society of the faithful, mourning, trembling and wandering. These two words note both the unquietness and horror of his mind and conscience. Well may these discoveries of the divine indignation call upon us to consider the severity of God.

V. 13. My punishment—For Cain was not so sensible of his sin, as of the ill effects of it, which he had brought upon himself.

V. 14. Thou hast driven me out—With infamy, as the word signifies.

Before Christ 4004.

face shall I be hid; and I shall be a fugitive and a vagabond in the earth: and it shall come to pass, [e] that every one that findeth me shall slay me.

[e] Chap. 9. 6.

15 And the Lord said unto him, Therefore, whosoever slayeth Cain, vengeance shall be taken on him seven-fold. And the Lord set a mark upon Cain, lest any finding him should kill him.

16 ¶ And Cain went out from the presence of the Lord, and dwelt in the land of Nod, on the east of Eden.

17 And Cain knew his wife, and she conceived and bare § Enoch: and he builded a city, and called the name of the city, after the name of his son, Enoch.

§ Hebrew Chanoch.

18 And unto Enoch was born Irad: and Irad begat Mehujael: and Mehujael begat Methusael: and Methusael begat * Lamech.

* Hebrew Lemech.

19 ¶ And Lamech took unto him two wives: the name of the one was Adah, and the name of the other, Zillah.

20 And Adah bare Jabal: he was the father of such as dwell in tents, and of such as have cattle.

Before Christ 4004.

21 And his brother's name was Jubal; he was the father of all such as handle the harp and organ.

22 And Zillah, she also bare Tubal-cain, an † instructor of every artificer in brass and iron: and the sister of Tubal-cain was Naamah.

† Heb. Whetter.

23 And Lamech said unto his wives, Adah and Zillah, Hear my voice, ye wives of Lamech, hearken unto my speech: for ‡ I have slain a man to my wounding, and a young man § to my hurt.

‡ Or, I would slay a man in my wound, &c.
§ Or, in my hurt.

24 If Cain shall be avenged seven-fold, truly Lamech seventy and seven-fold.

3874.

25 ¶ And Adam knew his wife again, and she bare a son, and [g] called his name * Seth: for God, said she, hath appointed me another seed instead of Abel, whom Cain slew.

[g] Chap. 5. 3.
* Heb. Sheth.

[h] Chap. 5. 6.

3769.

26 And to Seth, [h] to him also there was born a son; and he called his name † Enos: then began men ‡ to call upon the name of the Lord.

† Heb. Enosh.
‡ Or, to call themselves by the name of the Lord.

CHAP.

nifies. From the face of the earth—My native land. From thy face—Favour and protection. Shall slay me—As the enemy of man, and as one devoted by thee to destruction. Whom did Cain fear, when it appears not that there were any but his father and mother? God never intended to give a catalogue of all men, but only of the church, or those who had some relation to or concern with it. Doubtless there were thousands of men now in being. This murder was committed but a little before the hundred and thirtieth year of Adam's age, before which time a numerous offspring might have come from Adam.

V. 15. Therefore—Assuredly, that thou mayest see how I hate murder, and that thou mayest live for an example to mankind, for a terror to thyself and others. Seven-fold—He shall be plagued with many and grievous punishments. Set a mark upon Cain—What this was God hath not revealed.

V. 16. Presence of the Lord—Was banished from the place of God's special presence and habitation, from the society of his father, and of the only church which God had upon earth. Land of Nod—In the land which was afterwards called Nod, from Cain's unsettled condition, because he continued wandering in it. How different the condition of one wandering from disquiet of mind, and those who have found pardon and peace from God, who go about, after the humble example of the prince of peace, to spread the knowledge of His kingdom.

V. 17. Built a city—Perhaps to wipe away the reproach of his being a vagabond, and to divert his troubled mind with business and pleasure, and for his own security against evils which his guilty conscience made him fear, notwithstanding the assurance which God had given him. And this he did as soon as he was in capacity for it, either by the increase of his own posterity, or by the accession of other degenerate sons of Adam to him, who either being banished or having departed from the church, willingly associated themselves with their brethren. After the name of his son Enoch—Not after his own name, which he knew to be infamous and hateful.

V. 19. Two wives—Lamech is noted for his propensity to shed blood, and for his bringing polygamy into the world, being the first we read of that had more wives than one at a time, against God's first institution, and without God's leave. In the country, the seat of the Mahometan government, where polygamy has had its highest countenance, they have been visited with the plague more frequently and severely than any other country in the world.

V. 20. Jabal—Taught shepherds to dwell in tents, and to remove them from place to place, for conveniency of pasture. The first authors or inventers of any thing are commonly called its Fathers.

V. 21. Jubal—The meaning is, he was the inventer of music and musical instruments.

V. 22. Tubal-Cain—Who first taught men how to make arms and other instruments of iron. Naamah—So called from her beauty, which her name signifies.

V. 23. Adah and Zillah—Who, observing his fierceness and cruelty, feared that the vengeance of God or men would fall upon him and upon them for his sake. To my hurt—Be it so that I have slain a man, why do you concern yourselves? It is to my own hurt, not to your's; I must suffer for it, not you. The Holy Ghost in this place describes not the virtues, but the crimes of that wicked race.

V. 24. If the slaughter of Cain shall be punished in him that shall kill him, my death shall be much more severely revenged upon any man that shall murder me.

V. 25. Seth—She gave the name with Adam's consent. (Gen. v. 3.) Said she—By divine inspiration. Seed—The word Seed is used of one single person. To his Seed were the promises made: He saith not to seeds, as of many; but as of one, and to thy Seed, which is Christ; through whom alone the mercies of God are promised to men. (Gal. iii. 8, 16.) Instead of Abel—To succeed his father Adam, as Abel should have done in the Priesthood, and administration and care of Holy things in the church of God.

V. 26. Enos—Which signifies a miserable man, to note the great wickedness and wretchedness of that generation. Call upon—To pray, to worship God in a more public and solemn manner: Praying being put for the whole worship of God. The offspring of Cain, being wholly given up to worldly pleasures, and minding earthly things, were called the sons of men; the offspring of Seth, because they worshipped God, and addicted themselves to piety and virtue, were called the sons of God. Cain's descendents forsook the worship of God, and disregarded his holy will; and those of Seth grew more zealous for God, and separated themselves from the ungodly.

CHAP.

CHAP. V.

Before Christ 4004. THIS is the [a] book of the generations of Adam. In the day that God created man, in the [b] likeneſs of God made he him.

2 [c] Male and female created he them; and bleſſed them, and called their name Adam, in the day when they were created.

3874. 3 ¶ And Adam lived an hundred and thirty years, and begat a ſon in his own likeneſs, after his image; and [d] called his name Seth.

4 [e] And the days of Adam, after he had begotten Seth, were eight hundred years: and he begat ſons and daughters.

5 And all the days that Adam lived were nine hundred and thirty years: and he died.

3769. 6 ¶ And Seth lived an hundred and five years, and [f] begat Enos.

7 And Seth lived, after he begat Enos, eight hundred and ſeven years, and begat ſons and daughters.

8 And all the days of Seth were nine hundred and twelve years: and he died.

3679. 9 ¶ And Enos lived ninety years, and begat * Cainan.

10 And Enos lived, after he begat Cainan, eight hundred and fifteen years, and begat ſons and daughters.

11 And all the days of Enos were nine hundred and five years: and he died.

3609. 12 ¶ And Cainan lived ſeventy years, and begat † Mahalaleel.

13 And Cainan lived, after he begat Mahalaleel, eight hundred and forty years, and begat ſons and daughters. Before Christ 3609.

14 And all the days of Cainan were nine hundred and ten years: and he died.

15 ¶ And Mahalaleel lived ſixty and five years, and begat ‡ Jared. 3544.

16 And Mahalaleel lived, after he begat Jared, eight hundred and thirty years, and begat ſons and daughters.

17 And all the days of Mahalaleel were eight hundred ninety and five years: and he died.

18 ¶ And Jared lived an hundred ſixty and two years, and he begat [g] Enoch. 3382.

19 And Jared lived, after he begat Enoch, eight hundred years, and begat ſons and daughters.

20 And all the days of Jared were nine hundred ſixty and two years: and he died.

21 ¶ And Enoch lived ſixty and five years, and begat § Methuſelah. 3317.

22 And Enoch [h] walked with God, after he begat Methuſelah, three hundred years, and begat ſons and daughters.

23 And all the days of Enoch were three hundred ſixty and five years.

24 And [i] Enoch walked with God, and he was not: for God took him.

25 ¶ And Methuſelah lived an hundred eighty and ſeven years, and begat * Lamech. 3130.

26 And

a 1 Chr. 1. 1. Luke 3. 36.
b Chap. 1. 26.
c Chap. 1. 27.
d Chap. 4. 25.
e 1 Chron. 1. 1, &c.
f Chap. 4. 26.
*Heb. Kenan.
† Heb. Maleleel.
‡ Heb. Jered.
g Jude 14. 15.
§ Gr. Methuſala.
h Chap. 6. 8. & 17. 1. & 24. 40. Pſalm. 16. 8. & 116. 9.
i Heb. 11. 5.
*Heb. Lemech

CHAP. V.

V. 1. Book—The liſt or catalogue. Adam—Not a compleat liſt of all Adam's children, but only of his godly ſeed, which preſerved true religion and the worſhip of God from Adam to the flood, and from whom Chriſt came, (Luke iii. 23.) Man—This is here repeated to note the different way of the production of Adam and of his poſterity; his was by creation from God, their's from their parents.

V. 2. Bleſſed them—With every bleſſing. Adam—Which name is given to the firſt man, and to the whole kind, both the man and the woman, who are called by one name, to ſhew their intimate union.

V. 3. An hundred and thirty years—After he was created.—A ſon in his own image—A weak, ſinful, mortal man like himſelf: For Adam's image is here oppoſed to the likeneſs of God wherein Adam was created; and this is ſaid of Seth, to ſignify, that though he was a good man, yet he, no leſs than wicked Cain, was begotten and born in ſin, and that all the difference which was between him, and conſequently between other good men and the wicked progeny of Cain, was not from the nature which they received from Adam.

V. 4. Sons and daughters—Whoſe names and numbers are omitted as not belonging to the genealogy of Chriſt, nor to the following hiſtory.

V. 5. Nine hundred and thirty years—The long lives of men was ordered by God for the increaſe of mankind in the firſt age of the world, and for the more effectual propagation of true religion.

V. 21. Methuſelah—Whoſe name is thought to contain a propheſy of the flood which was to come a thouſand years after, for it ſignifies, He dies, and the dart or arrow of God's vengeance comes. Or, He dies, and the ſending forth of the waters comes.

V. 22. Walked with God—He lived by faith and not by ſight: He paid a conſtant regard to the only cauſe of his pardon as a ſinful ſon of man, and of his acceptance with God. By faith He lived and walked in the ſpirit: He lived as one whoſe eye was continually upon God, whoſe care and buſineſs it was to pleaſe God, and to imitate him, and to maintain acquaintance and communion with him as one devoted to God's ſervice; and wholly governed by his will, he walked not with the men of that wicked age, or as they walked, but being a prophet and preacher, as may be gathered from (Jude v. 14, 15.) with great zeal and courage he proteſted and preached againſt their evil practices, and boldly owned God and his ways in the midſt of them. From Enoch's life it is evident the married ſtate is not inconſiſtent with the ſevereſt courſe of holineſs.

V. 24. Was not—He appeared not any longer upon earth, or amongſt mortal men. God took him—Out of this ſinful and miſerable world unto himſelf and to his heavenly habitation. (Luke xxiii. 43.) And he took both ſoul and body, as he took Elias, (2 Kings ii. 11.) becauſe he ſo took him that he did not ſee death. (Heb. xi. 5.) By faith Enoch was tranſlated.—By faith in the love of God, through a Mediator: He had the teſtimony, the witneſs of the ſpirit of God that he pleaſed him. Who can deliberately ſerve a king, without knowing he is in his ſervice? Who can with care live to pleaſe God, and be excluded from this conſcious teſtimony of His favour, who is no reſpecter of perſons? (Acts x. 34.) From Enoch's removal from earth to heaven without dying, may we not be informed, what would have become of men had they never wilfully ſinned? But two exceptions are made in the Scriptures to the general ſentence of death to all mankind. But did the firſt Adam forfeit more than the Mighty God, the prince of peace can reſtore? Why are Enoch's faith and Enoch's

Before Christ 3130. 26 And Methuselah lived, after he begat Lamech, seven hundred eighty and two years, and begat sons and daughters.

27 And all the days of Methuselah were nine hundred sixty and nine years: and he died.

2948. 28 ¶ And Lamech lived an hundred eighty and two years, and begat a son.

29 And he called his name * Noah, saying, This same shall comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands, because of the ground [k] which the Lord hath cursed.

30 And Lamech lived after he begat Noah, five hundred ninety and five years, and begat sons and daughters.

2353. 31 And all the days of Lamech were seven hundred seventy and seven years: and he died.

2448. 32 And Noah was five hundred years old: and Noah begat [l] Shem, Ham, [m] and Japheth.

* Gr. Noe. Luke 3. 36. Heb. 11. 7. 1 Pet. 3. 20.

k Chap. 3. 17. & 4. 11.

l Chap. 6. 10.

m Chap. 10. 21.

life and his translation to heaven, set before us by the spirit of God? Surely that we who are born to die, may keep in mind that Jesus Christ is the same yesterday, to day, and for ever, and that he will one day receive the persons as well as the spirits of all to himself, who in this life are made meet for his presence. (Heb. xiii. 8.)

V. 27. Nine hundred sixty and nine years—The longest time that any man lived. He died—But a little before the flood came, being taken away from the evil to come. Looking back through all the ages since he died, and forward to endless ages to come; were lives now as long as his was, what is the best purpose to which they can be applied?

V. 28. Lamech—Not Lamech mentioned chap. iv. he was of the family of Cain; this was descended from Seth.

V. 29. Noah—Which signifies rest. Saying—By the spirit of prophesy. Comfort us concerning our work and toil of our hands—Concerning the hard labour and trouble to which we are sentenced. Doubtless the prophetic name of Noah received its accomplishment to thousands and tens of thousands; he was a preacher of that righteousness which cometh by faith, and which only gives rest to the soul, and brings all its powers into subjection to the will and spirit of God, which is happiness and peace. The faith that does this, coming by hearing; well might his name be called rest, who was a constant publisher of the only way of salvation for a period of time, equal to many ages of our short lives.

V. 32. Of those three sons the eldest seems to be Japheth, (Gen. x. 21.) The second was Shem; the youngest Ham, (Gen. ix. 24.) But Shem is first named in order of dignity, as being the progenitor of the church and of Jesus Christ.

CHAP. VI.

V. 1. Men—Sons of men, such as had only the natures and qualities of corrupt men, without the image of God. To multiply—more than the sons of God. Daughters—Their daughters are here mentioned as one principal occasion of the sin noted in the next verse, and of the deluge.

V. 2. Sons of God—The children of Seth and Enos, the professors of true religion: For such, and only such in the common use of Scriptures, are called the sons and children of God, and servants of God. They are opposed to the daughters of men; the word men meaning such as had nothing in them but the nature of men, corrupt and strangers to God. These unequal marriages between those who know and do not know God, are condemned in Scripture, (1 Cor. vii. 39. 2 Cor. vi. 14.) and therefore spoken of here, as one of the sins which brought the flood upon the world. Saw—Gazed upon. Were fair—Beautiful, and set off their beauty with greater liberty than the daughters of God did, or durst take,

CHAP. VI.

Before Christ 2448. AND it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the earth, and daughters were born unto them,

2 That the sons of God saw the daughters of men, that they were fair; and they took them wives of all which they chose.

3 And the Lord said, [a] My spirit shall not always strive with man, [o] for that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years.

4 There were giants in the earth in those days: and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them; the same became mighty men, which were of old, men of renown.

2469.

5 ¶ And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that * every imagination a 1 Pet. 3. 19. 20.

o Psa. 78. 39.

* Or, the whole imagination. The Hebrew word signifieth not only the imagination, but also the purposes and desires.

(1 Pet. iii. 3.) Took them wives—Possibly more than one for each of them, after the example of the families into which they married. They chose—This is noted as their first error, that they chose wives, without any regard to religion, only pleasing themselves, not pleasing and serving the Lord.

V. 3. The Lord said—Either to the men of that age by the mouth of Noah; or, determined within himself. With man—Contend, as it hath hitherto done, by inward motions and suggestions in the minds and consciences of men, or by the ministry of angels or holy men, and particularly of Noah, who protested against, and contended with, the world of the ungodly. He also is flesh—Not only fleshly in part, or in some actions, but altogether, in regard of soul as well as body, minding nothing but making provision for the flesh to fulfil its lusts, (Rom. xiii. 14.) Not having the spirit, (Jude ver. 19.) not regarding its good motions, but resisting them; flesh not only in the condition of their nature, but in the baseness and corruption of their hearts and lives, as the word flesh is commonly used when it is opposed to the spirit, as (John iii. 6. Rom. viii. 5, 7. Gal. v. 17.) though he deserve a speedy destruction. Yet his days shall be an hundred and twenty years—The time allowed him for repentance and the prevention of his ruin. During which time Noah was preaching, and, to assure them of the truth of the threatened indignation, was preparing the ark. (1 Pet. iii. 20.)

V. 4. Giants—Men so called from their high stature, but principally for their great strength and force, whereby they oppressed and tyrannized over others: Another sin and cause of the flood; and they seem to be here noted not for their stature, but for their violence, ver. 11, 13. After that—After that time there arose a new generation or succession of that sort of men. Daughters of men—Were united with them. Men of renown—Among the men of that first wicked world, famous for the abuse of their strength to tyranny and cruelty.

V. 5. Heart—To which the Scripture commonly ascribes all men's actual wickedness, (Matt. xv. 19.) leading us from acts of sin to the original corruption of nature as the cause and source of them. "The Hebrew word signifies not only the imagination, but also the purposes and desires." [II.] "All the motions and inclinations of the soul." [IV.] "The word is general for all and every thing the heart imagineth, formeth, purposeth." [VIII.] "Only evil without any mixture of good." [XIII.] "This was the bitter root, the corrupt spring: All the violence and oppression, all the luxury and wantonness that was in the world, proceeded from the corruption of nature: The principles were corrupt, and the habits and dispositions evil. The thoughts of the heart were so: Always either vain or vile." [I.] "The corruption of the nature of

Before Christ 2469.

imagination of the thoughts of his [c] heart was only evil [†] continually.

6 And [d] it repented the Lord that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart.

7 And the Lord said, I will destroy man, whom I have created, from the face of the earth [‡] both man and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air: for it repenteth me that I have made them.

8 But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord.

[c] Chap. 8. 21. Matt. 15. 19.
[†] Heb. every day.
[d] See Num. 23. 19. 1 Sam. 15. 11. 29. 2 Sam. 24. 16. Mal. 3. 6. James 1. 17.
[‡] Heb. from man unto beast.

9 ¶ These are the generations of Noah: Noah [e] was a just man, and § perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God.

10 And Noah begat three sons, [f] Shem, Ham, and Japheth.

11 The earth also was corrupt before God; and the earth was filled with violence.

12 And God looked upon the earth, and behold, it was corrupt: for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth.

13 And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled

Before Christ 2469.

[e] Chap. 7. 1. Ezek. 14. 14. 20.
[f] 1 Chr. 1. 7.
2 Ver. 2. 5.
§ Or, upright
[f] Chap. 5. 32.

of every man, the offspring of Adam" [IX. X.] "The heart of man is evil and wicked, desperately wicked, yea wickedness itself, a fountain of iniquity; but God that sees it, only knows perfectly all the wickedness of it, and the evil that is in it: This respects the original corruption of human nature, and shews it to be universal; for this was not only true of the men of the old world, but of all mankind; the same is said of men after the flood as before, and of all men without any exception." (Rom. iii. 9, 10.) [III.] "The world lieth in sin." [X.] "In the miserable state sin brought man into." [XII.] "The Holy Ghost in writing the Scriptures is in nothing more diligent than to pull down man's vain-glory and pride, and to declare their vile corrupt nature." [V.] "In all and every one, none excepted." [XI.] "God made man so as he might have performed his will, but he, by his sins, spoiled himself and his posterity." [XII.] "The whole human race deriving their whole nature from their first fallen parents, and this passage is a full declaration from God of "the depravity of man's will by nature, and his incapacity to do any good, but as assisted by the grace of God so to do." [VI.] "I sincerely acknowledge, says a great and pious man, before thee, mine own weakness and insufficiency for any thing that is spiritually good." [VII.] "And the manner in which the evil of the human nature shewed itself at this time was by perpetually either doing or contriving wickedness, that not only his actions were vile, but his principles also, his very soul, yea the noblest part of it, his mind and thoughts were corrupt and abominable. [II.]

V. 6. Repented the Lord—Properly God cannot repent, because he is unchangeable in his nature and counsels, (James. i. 17.) and perfectly wise and constantly happy, and therefore not liable to any grief or disappointment: But this is spoken of God after the manner of men by a common figure, whereby also eyes, ears, hands, &c. are ascribed to God; it signifies an alienation of God's affections from men for their wickedness, whereby God carries himself towards them like one that is truly penitent and grieved. Grieved him at his heart—At his very soul exceedingly.

V. 7. I will destroy man—The destruction of all the human race, but eight persons, by the flood, was the sentence of God; the memory of it is recorded not only in the Scriptures, but in the earth, by the productions of the sea found mixed with the earth in various countries; not only shells and small productions of the sea, but the whole bones of whales have been found at great depths in the earth; of which our valuable national repository—The British Museum affords many proofs; and the very appearance which the earth makes in many places, presents mankind with further evidence of this great event; which has its highest importance to us, to keep us in mind of the severity of that sentence which God has foretold, will be pronounced against all who to the last disregard the discoveries of his justice, and the offers of his mercy. (Matt. xxv. 41.) Both man and beast—For as the beast were made for man's use and service, so they are destroyed for man's punishment, and to discover the malignity of sin, and God's deep abhorrence of it.

V. 8. Found grace—Obtained mercy and favour, which is noted to shew that Noah was so far guilty of the common corruption of human nature, that he needed God's grace and mercy to pardon him. When pardoned he was exempted from the general sentence, and having obtained the grace and Spirit of God, through faith in his Mediator with God, he belonged to his living head, against whose will the flood that covered the world had no more power to drown, than the flame which shall dissolve the elements will have to hurt those who shall at last be found partakers of the same mercy and grace. (2 Pet. iii. 10. 1 Thess. iv. 17.)

V. 9. Generations of Noah—The posterity of Noah, (the rest of this verse comes in by way of parenthesis.) The events or occurrences which befel Noah and his family. Perfect—He was righteous; not only in appearance, or in part, but perfectly, in all respects, towards God and men; he was for his state and condition just before God, which was by faith, (Heb. xi. 7.) by which every just man lives, (Rom. i. 17.) and perfect, unblameable. [II.] "In whom sin had no dominion." [IV.] "He had been justified, and received remission of sin by faith in the promised Saviour. He knew the love of God to him through that Saviour, and he loved God." [X.] "He was sanctified by the grace of God, and had right principles, [I.] (1 Thess. iv. 3.) and against the example of the whole world, obeyed him." In his generations—Generations, as he lived in two, one before the flood, and another after it, he continued uncorrupted in both. It was his constant care to conform himself to the will of God, to please Him, and approve himself to Him. Appearing for God, when fame and renown were the public wages of wickedness and violence.

V. 11. The earth—Its inhabitants. Before God—Before the face of God, in despight and contempt of God and of his presence and justice. They sinned openly, impudently without shame, boldly and resolutely without any fear of God. The earth—The inhabited parts of it. Violence—Injustice, fraud, rapine, oppression, disregarding God and his worship, which they corrupted by superstition and idolatry, and, as the consequence of their impiety, unmindful of the duties of righteousness to men.

V. 12. All flesh—All men. His way—God's way, his precepts concerning religion and righteousness. The grace of God made known by the preaching of righteousness, being treated with scorn, or turned into wantonness and violence, the Spirit of God forsook the whole world (save Noah and his family); and the last offer of mercy from God being despised, all mankind became like a criminal doomed to death, Noah's publishing the goodness or the severity of God was alike to them; and their conduct shews they thought if God was not good enough to let them do as they pleased, he was not worth serving; and as to any fear about what Noah was preaching of wrath to come, no such things had ever happened as destroying the world either by water or fire, and that it was only the effects of Noah's gloomy notions of God, to think the Creator of mankind should either drown or burn them only for doing as they pleased. Great God! How may sinful filled with violence through them: and behold I will deſtroy them * with the earth.

Before Christ 2469.

* Or, from the earth.

14 ¶ Make thee an ark of gopher wood: † rooms ſhalt thou make in the ark, and ſhalt pitch it within and without with pitch.

† Heb. nests.

15 And this is the faſhion which thou ſhalt make it of: the length of the ark ſhall be three hundred cubits, the breadth of it fifty cubits, and the height of it thirty cubits.

16 A window ſhalt thou make to the ark, and in a cubit ſhalt thou finiſh it above; and the door of the ark ſhalt thou ſet in the ſide thereof: with lower, ſecond, and third ſtories ſhalt thou make it.

17 And behold I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth to deſtroy all fleſh, wherein is the breath of life, from under heaven: and every thing that is in the earth ſhall die.

g 1 Pet. 3. 20. 2 Pet. 2. 5.

18 But with thee will I eſtabliſh my covenant: and [g] thou ſhalt come into the ark; thou, and thy ſons, and thy wife, and thy ſons wives with thee.

19 And of every living thing, of all fleſh, two of every ſort ſhalt thou bring into the ark, to keep them alive with thee; they ſhall be male and female.

Before Christ 2469.

20 Of fowls after their kind, and of cattle after their kind, of every creeping thing of the earth after his kind: two of every ſort [h] ſhall come unto thee, to keep them alive.

h See Chap. 2. 19.

21 And take thou unto thee of all food that is eaten, and thou ſhalt gather it to thee; and it ſhall be for food for thee, and for them.

22 [i] Thus did Noah; [k] according to all that God commanded him, ſo did he.

i Heb. 11. 7.
k Chap. 7. 5. 9, 16.

CHAP. VII.

2349.

AND the Lord ſaid unto Noah, [a] Come thou, and all thy houſe, into the ark: for [b] thee have I ſeen righteous before me in this generation.

a Mat. 24. 38. Luke 17. 26. 1 Pet. 3. 20. 2 Pet. 2. 5.
b Chap. 6. 9.

2 Of every clean beaſt thou ſhalt take to thee by * ſevens, the male and his female: and of beaſts that are not clean by two, the male and his female.

* Heb. seven seven.

3 Of fowls alſo of the air by ſevens, the male and the female: to keep ſeed alive upon the face of all the earth.

4 For yet ſeven days, and I will cauſe it to rain men, born to die, forget the power by which they live, and the juſtice to which they are accountable!

V. 13. The end—The time of ruin. Fleſh—The beaſts alſo were involved in the ſame deſtruction. Is come—Is at the door, and ſhall as certainly be as if it were actually come: However vain men flatter themſelves with hopes of impunity. Through them—By their means. With the earth—With the fruits and beauty, though not the ſubſtance of the earth.

V. 14. An ark—A ſhip made in the form of an ark or cheſt. Gopher—This word is but once uſed in Scripture. With pitch—To cement the parts of the ark together.

V. 15. Or, This is the manner according to which thou ſhalt make it. The length is ſix times more than the breadth, and ten times more than the height. The ordinary cubit, conſiſting of a common foot and an half, appears ſufficient for the containing of all the kinds of living creatures and their proviſions, which was to be put into the ark. The different kinds of beaſts and birds are obſerved by thoſe, who have particularly ſearched into them and written of them, to be little above three hundred, whereof the far greateſt part are but ſmall. The ark is no leſs than four hundred and fifty thouſand ſolid cubits.

V. 16. No circumſtance appears beneath the care of God for the good of them that fear him. (1 Pet. v. 7.)

V. 17. I, even I, do bring a flood—Which is thus emphatically repeated to ſignify, that this flood did not proceed from natural cauſes, but from the judgment of God.

V. 18. My covenant—My promiſe to preſerve thee and thine, notwithſtanding all the ſcoffs of the wicked world againſt thee all the time of thy preaching and building of the ark: The word covenant not a mutual compact or agreement, but a ſingle and gracious promiſe. My covenant concerning the ſending of the promiſed ſeed, and the redemption of mankind by the Meſſias, who ſhall come out of thy loins, and therefore thou ſhalt be preſerved.

V. 19. Two at leaſt of every ſort of the unclean; but of the clean more, as is noted chap. vii. 2.

V. 20. Their kind—Their ſeveral kinds. Shall come unto thee—Of their own accord, by my impulſe, or by the conduct of angels.

V. 22. So did he—Though the work of building the ark was laborious, coſtly, tedious, and ſeemingly fooliſh and ridiculous; eſpecially, when all things continued in the ſame poſture and ſafety for ſo many ſcores of years together: Noah without doubt was all that while the ſport of all that did not believe what God had foretold. So that it is not ſtrange that this is mentioned as an heroic act of faith in Noah, (Heb. xi. 7.) whereby he humbly went on, in the work God had given him to do.

CHAP. VII.

V. 1. The Lord ſaid—When the ark was finiſhed and furniſhed, and the time expired. Come—Prepare to enter. The invitation comes as from within the ark. Thy houſe—Thy family; which conſiſted only of eight perſons, Noah and his three ſons, and their four wives, each had but one wife. If ever polygamy had been allowable it muſt have been now, for the repeopling of the periſhing world. Righteous—By faith, in my mercy and grace, producing all the fruits of righteouſneſs and true holineſs. Before me—Not only before men and ſeemingly, but really, and to my all-ſeeing eye.

V. 2. Of every clean beaſt by ſevens—Becauſe they were more ſerviceable.

V. 3. Of fowls—Of clean fowls: And of the unclean by two; as before of the beaſts. To keep ſeed alive—The breed of them.

V. 4. Yet ſeven days—Within ſeven days, which time God allowed to the world as a further ſpace of repentance and accepting of mercy to their ſouls, though their bodies were doomed to death, whereof Noah doubtleſs gave them notice: Important days, but not more ſo to each of all the many millions which then lived, than ſeven days are to every man who has but that ſpace of time to live. Dare I ſay, I ſhall have more? Am I then with Noah, attending with my whole heart to what God has revealed, fully bent to do His will ſingular as it may ſeem? Or, am I with the periſhing world, living according to the courſe of it? Many who ſlighted the threatening at a diſtance, now might be affected and brought to true repentance: Who though deſtroyed in their bodies by the flood, for their former and long impenitency, which God would not ſo far pardon, yet might be ſaved in their ſpirits. Living rain upon the earth forty days and forty nights; and every living ſubſtance, that I have made, will I † deſtroy from off the face of the earth.

Before Christ 2349.

† Heb. blot out.

c Chap. 6. 22. 5 c And Noah did according unto all that the Lord commanded him.

2348. 6 And Noah was ſix hundred years old, when the flood of waters was upon the earth.

d 1 Pet. 3. 20. 7 ¶ d And Noah went in, and his ſons, and his wife, and his ſons wives with him, into the ark becauſe of the waters of the flood.

8 Of clean beaſts, and of beaſts that are not clean, and of fowls, and of every thing that creepeth upon the earth,

9 There went in two and two unto Noah into the ark, the male and the female, as God had commanded Noah.

‡ Or, on the ſeventh day. 10 And it came to paſs, ‡ after ſeven days, that the waters of the flood were upon the earth.

11 ¶ In the ſix hundredth year of Noah's life, in the ſecond month, the ſeventeenth day of the month, the ſame day were all the fountains of the great deep broken up, and the § windows of heaven were opened.

§ Or, flood-gates.

12 And the rain was upon the earth forty days and forty nights.

13 In the ſelf-ſame day entered Noah, and Shem, and Ham, and Japheth, the ſons of Noah, and Noah's wife, and the three wives of his ſons with them, into the ark.

Before Christ 2348.

14 They, and every beaſt after his kind; and all the cattle after their kind, and every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth after his kind, and every fowl after his kind, every bird of every * ſort.

* Heb. wing.

15 And they went in unto Noah in the ark, two and two of all fleſh, wherein is the breath of life.

16 And they that went in, went in male and female of all fleſh, as God had commanded him: and the Lord ſhut him in.

17 And the flood was forty days upon the earth: and the waters increaſed and bare up the ark, and it was lift up above the earth.

18 And the waters prevailed, and were increaſed greatly upon the earth: and the ark went upon the face of the waters.

19 And the waters prevailed exceedingly upon the earth; and all the high hills, that were under the whole heaven, were covered.

20 Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail; and the mountains were covered.

21 And

ing ſubſtance—All that hath in it the breath of life, as was ſaid, chap. vi. 17.

V. 5. Lord commanded him—Which is repeated, becauſe an inſtance of his faith and obedience. How free from diſtraction that mind, which only has to know the will of God, and then to do it!

V. 7. Noah went—For fear of: For fear is aſcribed to and commended in Noah, (Heb. xi. 7.) Into the ark, becauſe of the waters of the flood——Taking his laſt look of all the multitudes with whom he had lived, how muſt he be affected at their ruin; a proſpect of diſtreſs only ſupportable by the teſtimony God gave to the faithful diſcharge of his duty, in declaring to them, what God in mercy required him to make them acquainted with! Could an unfaithful preacher have entered the ark, would it have been a place of peace to him, when any were left to periſh unwarned by his neglect of duty? If a worm may repeat the requeſt of thy highly favoured ſervant of old: Lord, let a double portion of thy ſpirit deſcend and abide with all who ſhall ever ſtand between the living and the dead, to declare the eternal truths thou haſt in mercy revealed. For ſurely Chryſoſtom interprets the whole of God's word on that ſubject right, when he ſays, the judgment which the miniſters of religion ſhall undergo, will be the moſt ſevere, in that day when they ſhall give an account of their faithful dealing with every immortal ſoul, to whom God by his providence ſent them to declare the danger every ſoul is in, and his power and willingneſs to ſave, who expreſſed his ſenſe of the value of ſouls, by dying for them.

V. 11. Six hundredth year of Noah's life—A little after Noah had gathered the fruits of the earth and laid them up in the ark. The fountains of the great deep—Of the ſea, and alſo of that great abyſs of waters, which is contained in the bowels of the earth. For that there are vaſt quantities of waters there, is implied here and in other Scriptures. Broken up—A paſſage opened for the fountains. The windows of heaven—The waters, reſerved and kept as in priſon, were let looſe, and ſent down for the deſtruction of the world.

V. 12. The rain was—How ſlowly does the juſtice of God here proceed, but how irreſiſtably! The great rain, was God's teſtimony to the truth of Noah's meſſages to mankind; and the gradual manner in which it came in the courſe of forty days, was God's laſt call to the world to repent; and that mercy which made juſtice move ſo ſlowly, aſſuredly ſtood ready to receive, as at the eleventh hour, every penitent ſoul of man, that truly turned to God, and caſt itſelf upon his mercy through that Mediator firſt promiſed to Adam, believed in by Abel, Enoch, and all the faithful; and ſo long and ſo much in vain preached by Noah. What more could be done to awaken the whole world to repentance! O that the earthquakes, wars, thunder, the flaming fire of heaven, the ſtorms and tempeſts, and all the frequent expreſſions of God's diſpleaſure, may call the attention of the world to what God requires of all and every one!

V. 13. The ſelf-ſame day entered Noah—On which the flood began; not in the dark, like one aſhamed or afraid, but when it was clear day-light, in public view of the world.

V. 14. Every bird—The firſt word ſignifies the greater, the ſecond the leſs ſort of every kind of birds.

V. 15. They went into the ark, two and two of all fleſh—All living creatures. And would not their aſcending the ark be another call to a careleſs world? What is now ſo commonly to be obſerved of birds flying, and beaſts running, for ſhelter againſt approaching ſtorms, ſtill ſpeaks the ſame language, and is the preaching of nature to men, to fly from the wrath to come.

V. 16. The Lord ſhut him in—Shut the door upon him. As the redeemed of the Lord will be at laſt ſhut in with God their Saviour in endleſs bleſſedneſs. Will there be no place of diſtinction for the deſpiſers of the juſtice and mercy of God in that day? Shall the proofs of the flood be known to us, without occaſioning any fears for the indignation which is revealed from heaven againſt all ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs of men?

V. 17. The flood—That flood of waters which was poured down. Encreaſed—By the acceſſion of more waters from above and beneath.

V. 18, 19. The ark went upon the face of the waters—The world ſunk in the ſame waters which carried the inhabitants of the ark in ſafety.

V. 20. Fifteen cubits—Seven yards and an half above the higheſt mountains.

V. 21. And

Before Christ 2348.

21 [e] And all flesh died that moved upon the earth, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of beast, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, and every man.

[e] Luke 17.27.

22 All in whose nostrils was [†] the breath of life, of all that was in the dry land, died.

[†] Heb. the breath of the spirit of life.

23 And every living substance was destroyed which was upon the face of the ground, both man, and cattle, and the creeping things, and the fowl of the heaven; and they were destroyed from the earth: and [f] Noah only remained alive, and they that were with him in the ark.

[f] 2 Pet. 2. 5 & 3. 6.

Before Christ 2348.

24 And the waters prevailed upon the earth an hundred and fifty days.

CHAP. VIII.

AND God remembered Noah, and every living thing, and all the cattle that was with him in the ark: and God made a wind to pass over the earth, and the waters assuaged.

2 The

V. 21. And all flesh died that moved—Lived. Every man—We do ourselves injustice when we read the Scriptures as common writings. God in making known that all the inhabitants of the world were destroyed, excepting eight persons, only makes use of few words, leaving it to the consideration of mankind to observe what must necessarily be included in the event so briefly related. The mighty men of renown, and all the powers with which they were allied, that filled the world with violence in those early ages, where are they, what is become of their strength? God opened the windows of heaven, they fly to the mountains, they climb the trees, they look, they tremble at the increasing flood, they reach the highest branch, but at length the waves prevail, as the arrow of the same justice did with him who cried out, Galilean, thou hast overcome me. The whole world, opposed to God by wicked works, are but chaff before the wind. Readers of the Bible, that will stand still and look about them from step to step, will not want God's help to lead them into the vast prospects it is ever presenting to our view; and here, as from the top of a mountain, we may stand and look upon the flood advancing, the ark shut, millions flying to it for refuge, who mocked its building and its builders; hills, houses, and trees covered with the trembling inhabitants of the world: The ignorant insulting the wise, whose infidelity and example misled them to think Noah's preaching beneath the notice of any man, and meanness to attend to it; that the objects most worthy men's attention, were not what God required, but riches, power and fame; and nothing so much beneath them as designs to please God and benefit mankind. But what are the characters that compose those multitudes which now betake themselves to the hills? Infidels, blasphemers of God, deceivers, robbers, oppressors, who neither feared God, nor regarded man; God's vengeance let loose upon the world, they ran to the highest ground like silly sheep surrounded with a flood. But who compose the numberless millions left behind, whose dwellings are beginning to disappear? Fathers, wives, infants, the sick, the weak, the aged, all left as in a sinking ship till their cries are heard no more. But returning to the mountains, what do we see and hear among the men whose avarice and ambition filled the world with wickedness and violence; see we them meekly preparing to go into the presence of the righteous Judge of all? or sullen and stupid with the beasts about them, thinking themselves no more accountable to God than the horses that brought them to the hills. Others who had not sunk so deep in sense, but alive to the various passions of their souls, the proud, the fierce, the selfish, the infidels who made the flood the subject of their mirth, now confounded in their vain self-confidence, hated by all they taught to despise God, his justice, mercy, truth or power. The lovers of houses and lands, what are they saying to the swelling waters; are they saying to Him that sent them, "Thy will be done," or are they cursing the flood, and hating him who sent it, into whose presence they are going to give an account how they obtained what they are now to leave for ever, and why they did not use it to please God, and bring glory to Him, who gave all for the good of all? Hear we sons blessing or cursing fathers from whose example they formed their principles, that men might live as they pleased, and never have any thing to fear from the author of their being? What say the sporting tribe, if then they had learned to be murderers of their moments in idle games; was God's wrath now with them matter of chance or certainty? But what is passing among the greatest throng, who treated all they had ever been told, of the evil man at first contracted, by wilful disobedience against the command of God, as an idle tale, and who, against all the evidence they had of man's wickedness, held themselves not so far gone from original righteousness, as to stand in need of an infinite atonement being made for them; but that their good deeds balanced against their bad ones, would give them all the security they required, and as much as would fall to the share of the rest of mankind. Hear we from the mouths of these self righteous, self-confident characters, nothing but expressions of peace and blessed hopes of an happy immortality, when they should be obliged to resign their lives to the rising flood? No, they that know not God in some degree, as Abel knew him, as Enoch and as Noah knew him, know him not at all; none being forgiven and accepted into the favour of God, but through a Mediator God, and only by him for his own free mercy's sake, unmerited by any works of righteousness which we have done. But before we turn our thoughts from the world sinking in the flood, may we not consider the offensiveness of sin in men to God, who, full of love and goodness as His word and works declare him, should by the act of his own Almighty power destroy at once the inhabitants of the earth, consisting perhaps of more in number than have ever since lived at the same time. Looking at all the evidence the world has had of the severity of God against the infidelity and consequent wickedness of men; well might the Apostle say, Let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably, with reverence and godly fear; for our God is a consuming fire. (Heb. xii. 28, 29.) And considering in how few years death will do that for all the living, which was done by the flood to those that perished in it, who can too often with Milton say,

Hail Son of the Most High, heir of both worlds,
Queller of Satan, on thy glorious work
Now enter, and begin to save mankind.

Who are now of like passions with those that drew upon themselves thy indignation of old, no less prone to forget what thou art and what thou hast done to save us from our sinful nature, and pardon the crimes that have been committed against thy purity, justice, mercy and truth.

V. 22. All died—Whether men or beasts, all that breathed the air with man, all that lived in the same element, which man by his sins had infected.

V. 23. This is so often repeated that it may be more deeply ingrafted in the hearts of men, to lead us again and again to consider this dreadful instance of God's justice against sin, and proud and daring sinners.

V. 24. Prevailed—Continued to prevail. In all, part of which were the forty days mentioned, ver. 17.

CHAP. VIII.

V. 1. Remembered Noah—Shewed that he minded and cared for him; pitied and succoured him. God is said to remember when he shews kindness. Living thing—God punished the beasts for man's

Before Christ 2347.

2 The fountains also of the deep, and the windows of heaven, were stopped, and the rain from heaven was restrained.

3 And the waters returned from off the earth * continually: and after the end [a] of the hundred and fifty days the waters were abated.

* Heb. in going and returning.
a Chap. 7. 24.

4 ¶ And the ark rested in the seventh month, on the seventeenth day of the month, upon the mountains of Ararat.

† Heb. were in going and decreasing.

5 And the waters † decreased continually until the tenth month: in the tenth month, on the first day of the month, were the tops of the mountains seen.

6 ¶ And it came to pass, at the end of forty days, that Noah opened the window of the ark which he had made.

‡ Heb. in going forth and returning.

7 And he sent forth a raven, which went forth ‡ to and fro, until the waters were dried up from off the earth.

8 Also he sent forth a dove from him, to see if the waters were abated from off the face of the ground.

9 But the dove found no rest for the sole of her foot, and she returned unto him into the ark: for the waters were on the face of the whole earth. Then he put forth his hand, and took her, and § pulled her in unto him into the ark.

§ Heb. caused her to come.

10 And he stayed yet other seven days, and again he sent forth the dove out of the ark.

11 And the dove came in to him in the evening, and lo, in her mouth was an olive-leaf pluckt off. So Noah knew that the waters were abated from off the earth.

Before Christ 2347.

12 And he stayed yet other seven days, and sent forth the dove; which returned not again unto him any more.

13 ¶ And it came to pass in the six hundredth and first year, in the first month, the first day of the month, the waters were dried up from off the earth: and Noah removed the covering of the ark, and looked, and behold, the face of the ground was dry. 2348.

14 And in the second month, on the seven and twentieth day of the month, was the earth dried.

15 ¶ And God spake unto Noah, saying,

16 Go forth of the ark, thou, and thy wife, and thy sons, and thy sons wives with thee.

17 Bring forth with thee every living thing that is with thee, of all flesh, both of fowl, and of cattle, and of every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth; that they may breed abundantly in the earth, and [o] be fruitful, and multiply upon the earth.

o Chap. 1. 22. & 9. 1.

18 And Noah went forth, and his sons, and his wife, and his sons wives with him:

19 Every beast, every creeping thing, and every fowl, and whatsoever creepeth upon the earth after their * kinds, went forth out of the ark.

* Heb. families.

20 ¶ And Noah builded an altar unto the Lord, and took of every clean beast, and of every man's sin, so now he favours them for man's sake. God made wind to pass over the earth—God commanded, and it was done.

V. 4. Seventh month—From the beginning, not of the flood, but of the year, upon one of the mountains of Ararat, commonly understood Armenia.

V. 7. A raven—A fit messenger for that purpose, because it smells dead carcases at a great distance, and flies far, and then returneth to its former habitation, with something in its bill. To and fro—Going and returning sometimes from the ark, and sometimes returning to it again. Until—The phrase implies that she never returned.

V. 8. A dove—Which is familiar with man, and constant to its accustomed dwelling, faithful to its mate, and likely to return with some discovery.

V. 9. The dove found no rest—Because the tops of the hills which then appeared were either muddy, or unobserved by the dove, as not soaring so high.

V. 11. In the evening—As the manner of doves is. An olive-leaf—It is probable that God preserved the plants and trees for future ages; there is no mention of any of their roots or seeds being preserved in the ark.

V. 12. The dove returned not—Finding convenient food and resting place upon the earth, and might lose sight of the ark, or mistake the way to it.

V. 13. The waters were dried up from off the earth—After being more than eleven months upon it. (Chap. vii. 11.)

V. 14. Was the earth dried—Those that are living by faith in God, and constantly attend to his will, often convey more instruction to us by their conduct than at first we are aware of. At the command of God Noah prepared the ark, at His command Noah went into it, and now the waters had been dried up from the first day of the first month, on the twenty-seventh day of the second month, Noah is still found in the ark; and it may be asked, What did Noah wait for during a month and twenty six days? Noah knew the Lord, and in knowing him he knew it was his duty, because it was his happiness, humbly to resign his will and judgment to God, and he was satisfied that He who shut him in for his safety, best knew when it would be more for his happiness, and the good of all that were with him, to leave the ark than to remain in it; and whatever were the inconveniencies he might suffer in his confinement, he knew God was his Saviour and his friend, and for the knowledge of God's will Noah waited.

V. 15, 16. God spake—The command to go forth came. Doth not the Lord yet say, that they who know him, know his voice; which must ever agree with the plain meaning of the Scriptures he has caused to be written for our government; well supported will that conduct ever be which hath the will of God for its authority. Reader, do you use the Scriptures to know what God would have you do? It is not in man to direct his steps; the good man's goings are ordered of God. His word will direct, and his spirit will help the infirmities of the weakest believer in his goodness to understand the Scriptures, as well as to will and to do that which is pleasing in his sight.

V. 20. Noah built an altar unto the Lord—The first altar we read of, but not the first which was built: For the sacrifices which were offered before, pre-suppose an altar. Offered—The first thing Noah doth, is to pay his debt of gratitude to that God which had preserved him. Are our mercies followed with acknowledgments to Him that seeth in secret? Who is it that now preserves us day and night? They whose deliberate praises to God for daily, hourly mercies, are yet to begin, have a new life to begin; the happiness of which they will not know from any words, or even example, but they may know it now, by beginning to number

Before Christ 2348.

every clean fowl, and offered burnt-offerings on the altar.

† Heb. a savour of rest.

21 And the Lord ſmelled † a ſweet ſavour; and the Lord ſaid in his heart, I will not again curſe the ground any more for man's ſake; ‡ for the [c] imagination of man's heart is evil from his youth: neither will I again ſmite any more every thing living, as I have done.

‡ Or, though. c Chap. 6. 5. Matt. 15. 19.

§ Heb. as yet all the days of the earth. d Jer. 33. 20, 25.

22 § While the earth remaineth, ſeed-time and harveſt, and cold and heat, and ſummer and winter, and [d] day and night, ſhall not ceaſe.

C H A P. IX.

a Chap. 1. 28. & 8. 17.

AND God bleſſed Noah and his ſons, and ſaid unto them, [a] Be fruitful and multiply and repleniſh the earth.

2 And the fear of you, and the dread of you ſhall be upon every beaſt of the earth, and upon every fowl of the air, upon all that moveth upon the earth, and upon all the fiſhes of the ſea: into your hand are they delivered.

Before Christ 2348.

3 [b] Every moving thing that liveth ſhall be meat for you; even as the [c] green herb have I given you all things:

b 1 Tim. 4. 3. c Chap. 1. 29.

4 [d] But fleſh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof, ſhall you not eat.

d Lev. 17. 14. & 19. 26. Deut. 12. 23. Acts 15. 20.

5 And ſurely your blood of your lives will I require: [e] at the hand of every beaſt will I require it; and [f] at the hand of man, at the hand of every man's brother will I require the life of man.

e Exod. 21. 28. f Pſal. 9. 12.

6 Whoſo

number and conſider the obligations God has heaped upon them, and then with Noah offer Him their thankſgivings and their praiſe on the altar of their heart; to which altar and ſervice none can too frequently repair, who would be bleſſed of God, for to him that offereth God praiſe, will He ſhew His ſalvation; of which they who know it are ever led to think, and ſpeak, and write. I know not this ſalvation ſome reader may ſay. Only offer grateful thanks to God, and let praiſes in the name of Jeſus be heard to ſound from your dwelling, and you will know it; God himſelf hath ſaid, He meeteth them that rejoiceth, and remembereth Him in his ways. (Iſa. lxiv. 5.)

V. 21. A ſweet ſavour—God accepted the perſon, and faith, and praiſe-offering of Noah, and was well pleaſed therewith. The Lord ſaid in his heart—Determined within himſelf, and expreſſed ſo much to Noah; ſaid to his heart, ſpake to the heart of Noah. For God to ſpeak to the heart, in Scripture, ſignifies to comfort, as well as inform. I will not again curſe the ground—With this kind of curſe, another deluge Otherwiſe God doth not hereby tie his hands, that he may not either deſtroy a particular land by a deluge, or deſtroy the world by fire, as he hath declared he will do. Man's heart is evil—The reaſon is this, I will not again deſtroy the earth with a deluge for man's ſake, or for man's ſin, or becauſe his heart is corrupt, and his actions are agreeable to it, which was the cauſe of the laſt deluge. I will not again deſtroy the earth, although I have juſt cauſe to do ſo.

V. 22. While the earth remaineth—In this ſtate; for tho' it ſeems probable that the ſubſtance of the earth will abide for ever, after the diſſolution of the world by fire, yet that will be in another manner, and for other purpoſes, and then there will be no need of ſeed-time or harveſt. Day and night—Which diſtinction in a manner ceaſed during the flood. God here promiſes, that the courſe of nature ſhould never be diſcontinued. While the earth remaineth, and man upon it, God's providence will carefully preſerve the regular ſucceſſion of times and ſeaſons; theſe ſeaſons never ſhall ceaſe while the ſun continues ſuch a ſteady meaſurer of time, and the moon ſuch a faithful witneſs in heaven. This is God's covenant of the day and of the night, the ſtability of which is mentioned for the confirming our faith in the covenant of grace, which is no leſs inviolable, (Jer. xxxiii. 20.) We ſee God's promiſes to the creatures made good, and thence may we aſſuredly conclude that His promiſes to believers ſhall be ſo.

C H A P. IX.

V. 1. God bleſſed Noah and his ſons—Renewed the old bleſſing, which might ſeem to be forfeited and made void by man's ſin, and by God's judgment upon it. God aſſured them of his good-will to them, and his gracious intentions concerning them. By virtue of this bleſſing mankind was to be both multiplied and perpetuated upon earth; and though one generation ſhould paſs away, yet another generation ſhould come; ſo that the ſtream of the human race ſhould be ſupplied with a conſtant ſucceſſion, and run parallel with time, till both be ſwallowed up in eternity.

V. 2. The dread of you ſhall be upon every beaſt—Before they loved and reverenced you as friends, now they ſhall dread you as tyrants. Into your hand are they delivered—For your uſe and ſervice. I reſtore you in part to that dominion over them which you for your ſins have forfeited. Man in innocency ruled by love, fallen man rules by fear. And this promiſe we have ſtill the benefit of—Thoſe creatures which are uſeful to us are reclaimed, and we uſe them for ſervice or food. And ſuch as are hurtful to us are reſtrained; ſo that though now and then man may be hurt by ſome of them, yet they do not combine together to riſe up in rebellion againſt man.

V. 3. Every moving thing—Which is fit for food, and clean. That liveth—This is added to exclude the uſe of thoſe creatures which die of themſelves, or were killed by wild beaſts. Shall be meat for you—It is not a command that we muſt, but a permiſſion that we may, eat of them; the earth was grown more feeble by the flood, and its fruits yielded leſs and worſe nouriſhment. The precepts and proviſos of this charter are no leſs kind and gracious, and inſtances of God's good-will to man. The ſeven precepts of Noah, as they are called, were againſt the worſhip of idols; againſt blaſphemy, and requiring to bleſs the name of God; againſt murder; inceſt and all uncleanneſs; againſt theft and rapine; requiring the adminiſtration of juſtice; againſt eating eating fleſh with the life. Theſe the Jews required the obſervation of, from the proſelytes of the gate.

V. 4. Shall you not eat—Fleſh whilſt it hath in it its life or ſoul, or, which is all one, its blood; God thought fit to forbid this, partly that by this reſpect ſhewn to the blood of beaſts, it might appear how ſacred a thing the blood of man was; and principally becauſe the blood was reſerved and conſecrated to God, as was the means of atonement for man, which reaſon God himſelf gives, (Lev. xvii. 11, 12.) and did in a ſpecial manner repreſent the blood of Chriſt, which was to be ſhed for the redemption of mankind. (Heb. ix. 22.) The life of the ſacrifice was accepted for the life of the ſinner. Blood muſt not be looked upon as a common thing, but muſt be poured out before the Lord. (2 Sam. xxiii. 16.)

V. 5. Your lives—Your blood, which, by the ſpirit it generates, is the great preſerver and inſtrument of your lives, and of all your vital actions, and the great bond which ties your ſouls and bodies together. The ſenſe of the place is, If I am thus careful for the blood of beaſts, be aſſured I will be much more ſolicitous for the blood of men, when it ſhall be ſhed by unjuſt and violent hands. Will I require—I will make inquiſition for the author of ſuch bloodſhed, as I did after Cain, and conſequently puniſh him: For this

Before Christ 2348.

6 g Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: h for in the image of God made he man.

7 And you, i be ye fruitful, and multiply, bring forth abundantly in the earth, and multiply therein.

8 ¶ And God spake unto Noah, and to his sons with him, saying,

9 And I, behold I, establish my covenant with you, and with your seed after you;

10 And with every living creature that is with you, of the fowl, of the cattle, and of every beast of the earth with you, from all that go out of the ark, to every beast of the earth.

11 And k I will establish my covenant with you; neither shall all flesh be cut off any more by the waters of a flood; neither shall there any more be a flood to destroy the earth.

12 And God said, This is the token of the covenant which I make between me and you, and every living creature that is with you, for perpetual generations:

13 I

g Ex. 21. 12. Lev. 24. 17. Matt. 26. 52 Rev. 13. 10.
h Chap. 1. 27
i Chap 1. 28. and 8. 17.
k Isa. 54. 9.

this phrase of requiring implies punishment. If magistrates neglect this duty, I myself will avenge it by my own hand. Of every beast will I require it—Not for the punishment of the beast, but for caution to men. Of every man's brother—All men being made of one blood, having one father, even God, Mal. ii. 10. on which account as well as being all the offspring of the same parents, men are brethren. Will I require the life of man—God who gave life, and who only knows what life is, sets so high a value on the lives of men, that besides all the provision made by his providence by means of human laws, and the care and attention given to the minds of magistrates in the execution of them, God himself hath declared, that He will require the life of him that takes another's life, as the penalty of his crime. May it not be asked, what could the gracious parent of mankind do more to preserve men from suffering violence, than by thus declaring that He, who is acquainted with every thought and design of the hearts of all men, and from whose sight nothing is hid, will himself discover the guilty, and require life for life? And how often doth God prove to the world the truth of his word, by bringing crimes to light, and causing them to be punished, where there were none but the guilty themselves to be the accusers. And will it not be thus at the great day; will not every crime committed against justice, mercy, truth, purity, and the holy will of God, by all men, be brought to light? Yes, God hath said, "Every one of us shall give account of himself to God, and every tongue confess the crimes which ever have been committed." Rom. xiv. 12.

V. 6. Whoso sheddeth man's blood—Whosoever killeth another; by man, by his fellow creatures examining and having proof of the fact from sufficient evidence, by their authority shall his blood be shed—he shall be put to death who sheds another's blood. One man takes offence at the conduct of another and calls upon him to fight; the second agrees to the proposal of the first; they meet and fight, and one is killed by the other; and the word of God says, he that sheddeth his brother's blood, by man shall his blood be shed: but is no allowance to be made on the score of honour, and for the cause of resentment? Nothing is more plain than that God forbids every injury which one man can do to another; and instead of excusing the shedder of blood on account of the motives of resentment which he thinks he hath, all the motives that can be pretended for resentment are themselves condemned in the word of God: all pride in men is declared to be opposed to God, and to hate another is deemed a murderer in the sight of him who sees the heart. 1 John iii. 15. and if the soul's possessing these principles of pride and anger are excluded from the presence of God. Heb. xii. 14. Every motive that can be pretended for such conduct being declared against, the shedder of blood—the taker of another's life in any of these fierce and deliberate contests, stands exposed to the sentence—that by man shall his blood be shed; and this reason is given for the sentence. For in the image of God made he man—and therefore any designed violence offered by one man against another, contrary to all lawful authority, is one of the highest expressions of contempt that can be offered to God. It is then to be considered, what is the authority which our community receiving the word of God hath for excusing the man committing the crime of killing another in these brutal contests, from the punishment God pronounces against it; and which exemption from punishment says in effect—"You have proved yourself possessed of courage enough to expose your life to the last degree of danger to save your pride, or to gratify your own or the resentment of another; you have proved yourself to be without respect either to what God commands or forbids you to do, when your pride or your revenge are to be gratified by disobeying him: You have shown, you were bold enough to run the hazard of intruding yourself into the immediate presence of God, in the act of rebellion against him, and of pointing a deadly weapon at the breast of your fellow-creature, made in the image of God; and in doing this you have done the next thing you could, to that of raising your hand against God himself. The shedder of blood thus acquitted, in the esteem of men, lives an example that both what God forbids and commands, may be set at naught with impunity; and all that God hath revealed, of the eternal danger of dying in disobedience to him, and possessed of passions, which exclude us from future happiness, and shut us up in misery, held in open, public defiance. (Deut. xix. 4. 5. Gal. v. 19. &c. James iv. 1. Matt. vi. 15. Rom. ii. 2, &c.) And may it be asked, in any country where the laws are intended to interpose in all cases, between one subject and another, if in their administration they can be consistent with themselves, when they would severely punish the wilfully presenting a deadly weapon to another's breast, from the base motive of unjust gain, and allow the public knowledge of the same fact to pass with an entire exemption from all punishment, because the motives were pride, or anger, or that false shame which is thus encouraged rather to fly in the face of God, than appeal to the protection of just laws?

V. 7. Be ye—As for you, I do not repent of that former blessing I gave to your parents, (Gen. i. 28.) but hereby renew it, to you and your seed after you.

V. 9. Covenant—My promise. Your seed—Your posterity.

V. 10. To every beast of the earth—Which shall hereafter be in the earth.

V. 11. All flesh be cut off—By a universal deluge, particular inundations there have been, whereby towns and countries have been overwhelmed with all their inhabitants. The world is as provoking as ever, yet he will never drown it any more. This promise of God keeps the sea and clouds in their decreed place, and sets them gates and bars, Hitherto they shall come, (Job xxxviii. 10. 11.) If the sea should flow but for a few hours longer, as it doth twice every day, what desolations would it make? So would the clouds, if such showers as we have sometimes seen, were continued long. But God by flowing seas, and sweeping rains, shows what he could do in wrath; and yet by preserving the earth from being deluged between both, shows what he can do in mercy, and will do in truth.

V. 12. This is the token of the covenant—A sensible sign to assure you that I shall perform this promise.

V. 13. I do set my bow—God calleth it his bow, because it was his workmanship, and his pledge and the seal of his promise. In the

Before Christ 2348.

13 I do set my bow in the cloud, and it shall be for a token of a covenant between me and the earth.

14 And it shall come to pass, when I bring a cloud over the earth, that the bow shall be seen in the cloud.

15 And I will remember my covenant which is between me and you, and every living creature of all flesh: and the waters shall no more become a flood to destroy all flesh.

16 And the bow shall be in the cloud; and I will look upon it, that I may remember the everlasting covenant between God and every living creature of all flesh that is upon the earth.

17 And God said unto Noah, This is the token of the covenant, which I have established between me and all flesh that is upon the earth.

2347. 18 ¶ And the sons of Noah, that went forth
m Ch. 10. 16 of the ark, were Shem, and Ham, and Ja-† Hebrew. Chenaan. pheth: and Ham is the father of † Canaan.

19 These are the three sons of Noah: and Before Christ 2347. of them was the whole earth overspread.

20 And Noah began to be an husbandman, and he planted a vineyard.

21 And he drank of the wine, and was drunken, and he was uncovered within his tent.

22 And Ham, the father of Canaan, saw the nakedness of his father, and told his two brethren without.

23 And Shem and Japheth took a garment, and laid it upon both their shoulders, and went backward, and covered the nakedness of their father; and their faces were backward, and they saw not their father's nakedness.

24 And Noah awoke from his wine, and knew what his younger son had done unto him.

25 And he said, Cursed be Canaan; a servant of servants shall he be unto his brethren.

26 And he said, Blessed be the Lord God, of Shem; and Canaan shall be ‡ his servant. ‡ Or, servant to them.

cloud—A proper seat for it; that they might now fetch an argument of faith from thence, whence before they had matter of just fear; and that which naturally was and is a sign of rain, might by this new appointment of God be turned into an assurance that there should be no more such rain as now had been. The rainbow, 'tis likely was seen in the clouds before, but was never a seal of the covenant till now. This seal is affixed with repeated assurances of the truth of that promise, which it was designed to be the ratification of. The bow is coloured rain, or the edges of a cloud gilded. As God looks upon the bow that he may remember the covenant, so should we, that we also may be ever mindful of the covenant with faith and thankfulness.

V. 14. The bow shall be seen in the cloud—Not always, but very frequently, which is sufficient for this purpose.

V. 16. Remember the everlasting covenant—This covenant made with all succeeding generations. This and the like speeches are oft ascribed to God after the manner of men, who need helps for their memory.

V. 17. This is the token of the covenant—This is repeated for the strengthening of the faith of all men, and especially of Noah and his sons, whom the remembrance of that dreadful deluge, which they had experience of, had made exceeding prone to fears of the like for time to come. They that had seen the world covered with waters, would praise the mercy which gave them a sign that they should not again behold so dreadful a calamity. When we look at the rainbow, then we may call to mind that God hath his divine attention fixed on the same object at the same time. But is there ever a moment when the mind of God is not upon all the works of his hands? Surely not. O that the human race, without a single exception, may soon become acquainted that the Eternal Judge of every thought, word, and action is never a moment unacquainted with them all.

V. 18. Ham is the father of Canaan—Which is here mentioned to make way for the following relation:

V. 19. A truth which the old heathens were not ignorant of, though they changed the names, and mixed their fables with it, for they tell us that Saturn, and his three sons divided the world among themselves. And it is apparent that their Saturn was no other than our Noah, because they tell us he was the common parent and prince of all mankind, also an husbandman and vine dresser, all which Noah was: They say he was born of the sea, because Noah came out of the waters: That he devoured all his children except three, because Noah condemned and foretold the destruction of all the rest of the world.

V. 20. An husbandman—A man that kept ground in his hand and occupied it.

V. 21. 'Tis highly probable, he did not know the effect of it before.

V. 22. Ham told his two brethren without—In the street, as the word is in a scornful deriding manner.

V. 23. Shem and Japheth—Here set an example of charity, with reference to other men's sin and shame.

V. 24. Noah awake from his wine—From the effect of it. And knew—By the information of his sons; or, by divine inspiration. What his younger son—His little son, or Canaan mentioned in the next verse, that first saw it, and told his father Ham of it, and he told it to his brethren.

V. 25. He said—Not from the passion of revenge, but by the spirit of prophesy. Cursed—Hateful to God, abhorred by men, miserable in his person and posterity. Be Canaan—When Canaan is mentioned, Ham is not exempted from the curse. A servant of servants—The vilest and worst of servants. This certainly points at the victories obtained by Israel over the Canaanites, by which they were all either put to the sword, or put under tribute. (Josh. ix. 23. Judg. i. 28. 30. 33. 35.) which happened not till about eight hundred years after this. God visits the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, when the children inherit the father's dispositions, and imitate their wicked practices.

V. 26. Blessed be the Lord God of Shem—Shem is here blessed in the highest degree, because the Lord hath declared himself to be Shem's God. For God to be any man's God is the height of blessedness. (Matth. xxii. 32. Rev. xxi. 3.) God is the fountain of all good that man either doth or receiveth, therefore the blessing is emphatically given to God; who only doth the work and of right is to receive all the glory, the Lord Christ, did take flesh from Shem, and so the incarnation of Christ may be here foretold, and Shem highly honoured and blessed in this, that he should be the father of Christ according to the flesh. (Rom. ix. 5.) This is a short and abrupt manner of speech, which is frequent in the Hebrew tongue, and may signify that Shem should be so eminently blessed, that men beholding it should be wrapt up into admiration, and break forth into the praises of that God who gave such gifts unto men and did so great things for Shem. This was the blessing conferred on Abraham and his seed, the God of heaven was not ashamed to be called their God. (Heb. xi. 16.) Shem is sufficiently recompensed for his respect to his father by this, that the Lord himself puts this honour upon him to be his God; this is a sufficient recompense for all services and sufferings for his name.

Before Christ 2347.

27 God shall ‡ enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem; and Canaan shall be his servant.

‡ Or, persuade

28 ¶ And Noah lived after the flood three hundred and fifty years.

1998. 29 And all the days of Noah were nine hundred and fifty years: and he died.

CHAP. X.

NOW these are the generations of the sons of Noah; Shem, Ham, and Japheth: and unto them were sons born after the flood.

Before Christ 1998.

2 [a] The sons of Japheth; Gomer, and Magog, and Madai, and Javan, and Tubal, and Meshech, and Tiras.

a 1 Chr. 1. 5.

3 And the sons of Gomer; Ashkenaz, and Riphath, and Togarmah.

4 And the sons of Javan; Elishah, and Tarshish, Kittim, and * Dodanim.

* Or, as some read it, Rhodanim.

5 By these were the isles of the Gentiles.

V. 27. Enlarge Japheth—His border: Which was very literally made good to him, because he had a very numerous posterity, and by them he possessed the largest part of the world, even all Europe, a great part of Asia, and as it is probable America also. The Gentiles, were chiefly Japheth's posterity. He shall dwell in the tents of Shem—His seed shall be so numerous and so victorious, that they shall be masters of the tents of Shem, which was fulfilled when the people of the Jews, the most eminent of Shem's race, were tributaries to the Grecians first, and after to the Romans, both of Japheth's seed. This also speaks the conversion of the Gentiles, and the bringing of them into the church; and then we should read it, God shall persuade Japheth; (for so the word signifies) and being so persuaded, He shall dwell in the tents of Shem—That is Jews and Gentiles shall be united under the gospel: after many of the Gentiles shall have been proselyted to the Jewish religion, both shall be one in Christ. (Eph. ii. 14. 15.) This was eminently accomplished: For though Shem and Japheth in their posterity did successively conquer and rule one over the other, yet none of Ham's posterity did ever bear rule over Japheth, but Ham, though for a time he bore sway in his son Nimrod, yet that dominion soon expired, and the Assyrians, Chaldeans, Grecians, and Romans ruled the world for a succession of many ages; and Ham's people were constantly their servants and subjects.

V. 28. Before Adam died, Methuselah was more than 240 years old. Noah lived with Methuselah nigh 600 years, and before Noah died, Abraham was 58 years of age; Moses, the first writer of the Scriptures, was the leader of the Jews, the immediate descendants of Abraham, when they went to take possession of the country which the Almighty promised to Abraham; from that day to this the Jews have never ceased to be a people living under the most remarkable circumstances among mankind; and when the length of time is considered, one may wonder at the plain and easy manner in which the account of the creation of the world is handed down, from the first of mankind to the present time, being no less than 5784 years; 4004 from Adam to Jesus's coming, and 1780 since. What Noah was told by Methuselah, who lived with Adam he had only to relate to Abraham: What has passed from Abraham's time to the present is sufficiently known.

V. 29. Noah died—Who may be considered as the second natural parent of mankind, and he who God alone found faithful among all the millions of men of the same generation with himself: How graciously hath God distinguished him for his faithfulness; and at the same time to show the divine disapprobation of whatever is contrary to that watchfulness and sobriety, which it is his will men should ever live in, (1 Pet. iv. 7.) the instance of unguarded conduct in the life of this faithful servant of God, has been made the subject of public knowledge throughout all ages: but the examples we have in the Scriptures of the strictness and severity of God's justice, are only exceeded by the greatness of his mercy and willingness to pardon all that will accept of his grace, and by it live to him.

CHAP. X.

This Chapter may seem to some of little moment, as consisting almost wholly of genealogies, yet hath indeed great uses: 1. To show the true original of the several nations, and thereby to manifest the providence of God in the government of the world and church, and the truth and authority of the Holy Scriptures. 2. To discover and distinguish from all other nations, that people or nation in which God's church was to be, and from which Christ was to come. 3. That Noah's prophecy concerning his three sons might be better understood, and the accomplishment of it made evident. 4. To explain prophetical passages of Scripture. In general, the world was divided into three parts, whereof the more Eastern parts were allotted to Shem and his issue, the more Southern parts to Ham, and the more Northern parts of it to Japheth.

V. 2. The sons of Japheth—Whose portion was at first Asia the Less, and afterwards by degrees all Europe, and the Northern parts of Asia. This is he so much celebrated among the Greeks, by the name of Japetus. Gomer—Whose posterity are reckoned among the Northern people, and were seated in the Northern parts of the lesser Asia, and from him were called Gomari. And Magog—The father of the Scythians. Madai—Whose posterity were called Medes, and in the Hebrew by the name of their father Madai, (as appears from 2 Kings xvii. 6. Isa. xiii. 17. and xxv. 25. Dan. v. 28. and vi. 8.) Javan—Of whom came the Grecians, who are called by themselves Iaones or Iones, and in Hebrew Jevanim, and their country, Greece, Javan, (Isa. lxvi. 19. Ezek. xxvii. 13. 19. Dan. viii. 21. and x. 20.) Tubal—Of whom came the Iberi, anciently called Thobeli, a people of Asia, near the Euxine sea, (Ezek. xxvii. 13. and xxxii. 6. and xxxviii. 2, 3.) Meshech—The father of the Moschi, the Muscovites, the Cappadocians, were anciently called Meschini and Moschi. Tiras—The father of the Thracians.

V. 3. Ashkenaz—Whose seed possessed Pontus and Bithynia. Riphath—His posterity dwelled near Pontus and Bithynia, where Mela and Pliny and Solinus place the Riphæi, who were anciently called Piphatæi. Togarmah—Whose posterity are joined with Gomer's. (Ezek. xxvii. 14. and xxxviii. 6.)

V. 4. Elishah—The father of the Grecians, who have preserved his name and remembrance in the cities, Elis, and Elissus, in a tract of ground called Ellas, and in the Elysian Fields. And from these came the Æolians, a people of the lesser Asia, where many of the Grecian colonies were seated. Tarshish—The father of the Cilicians, from whom their chief city Tarsus, in Hebrew Tarshish took its name, (Ezek. xxvii. Acts xxii. 3.) and from whom the whole Mediterranean sea is called Tarshish, because the Cilicians were in a great degree masters of that sea. Kittim—Or, Chittim, the father of the Macedonians and Italians, both their countries are called by the name of Chittim; Macedonia, (1 Macc. i. i. and viii. 5. and Italy, Numb. xxiv. 24. Dan. xi. 30. See also Isa. xxiii. 1. Jer. ii. 10.) There are other evidences in prophane writers that the Italians came from the Grecians. Dodanim—called also Rhodanim.

V. 5. The isles—The word isles here and elsewhere signifies all those countries that had the sea between them and Judea, (Isa. xi. 10, 11. and xl. 15. Jer. ii. 10.) the providence of God, determined the bounds of the habitations, (Acts xvii. 26.) this division, though mentioned before was not executed till after the confusion of languages at Babel. After their families—God distributed the languages according to the difference of families, that all the families or branches should have the same language, whereby, both union and love were preserved among themselves, and the several nations were distinguished one from another; which was necessary that the church of God, confined to the Hebrew nation, might neither be mixed with nor infected by the idolatrous nations, and that it divided in their lands; every one after his tongue, after their families, in their nations.

Before Christ 1998.

6 ¶ [b] And the ſons of Ham; Cuſh, and Mizraim, and Phut, and Canaan.

b 1 Chr. 1. 8

7 And the ſons of Cuſh; Seba, and Havilah, and Sabtah, and Raamah, and Sabtecha: and the ſons of Raamah; Sheba, and Dedan.

8 And Cuſh begat Nimrod; he began to be a mighty one in the earth.

9 He was a mighty hunter before the Lord: wherefore it is ſaid, even as Nimrod the mighty hunter before the Lord.

cr. 2218.

10 [c] And the beginning of his kingdom was † Babel, and Erech, and Accad, and Calneh, in the land of Shinar.

c Mic. 5. 6.

† Gr Babylon

11 Out of that land ‡ went forth Aſhur, and builded Nineveh, and § the city Rehoboth, and Calah.

‡ Or, he went out into Aſſyria.

§ Or, the ſtreets of the city.

12 And Reſen between Nineveh and Calah: the ſame is a great city.

13 And Mizraim begat Ludim, and Anamim, and Lehabim, and Naptuhim.

14 And Pathruſim, and Caſſuhim, (out of whom came Philiſtim) [d] and Caphtorim.

Before Christ 2218.

15 ¶ And Canaan begat * Sidon his firſt-born, and Heth, d 1 Chr. 1. 8

* Hebrew. Tzidon.

16 And the Jebuſite, and the Emorite, and the Girgaſite.

17 And the Hivite, and the Arkite, and the Sinite.

18 And the Arvadite, and the Zemarite, and the Hamathite: And afterward were the families of the Canaanites ſpread abroad.

19 And the border of the Canaanites was from Sidon, as thou comeſt to Gerar, unto † Gaza; as thou goeſt unto Sodom and Gomorrah, and Admah, and Zeboim, even unto Laſhah.

† Heb. Azzah

20 Theſe are the ſons of Ham, after their families, after their tongues, in their countries, and in their nations.

21 ¶ Unto Shem alſo the father of all the children of Eber, the brother of Japheth the elder, even unto him were children born.

might be evident to the world, that the Meſſias was born of the ſeed of Abraham according to God's promiſe.

V. 6. The ſons of Ham—Whoſe poſterity were diſpoſed into the parts South from Babel both in Aſia and Africa. (1 Chron. iv. 40. Pſal. cv. 27.) Cuſh—The father both of the Æthiopeans and the Arabians: Who, as it ſeems, ſent forth a colony from themſelves more Eaſtward, even near to India. (Gen. ii. 13. 2 Kings xix. 9. Job xxviii. 19. Jer. xiii. 23. and xlvi. 9.) Mizraim—The father of the Egyptians. Phut—Of whom ſprung the Libyans, and the Moors. (Jer. xlvi. 9. Ezek. xxvii. 10. and xxx. 5. Nahum iii. 9) Canaan—The parent of that race of the Canaanites.

V. 7. Sheba—or Saba, whoſe ſeed were the Sabeans in Arabia the deſart; (Pſal. lxxii. 10. Iſa. xliii. 3.) Havilah—The father of the inhabitants of the land of Havilah, (Gen. ii. 11.) a land in the moſt Eaſtern part of Arabia. Sabtah—The father of thoſe people who were ſeated in the lower part of Arabia, near the Perſian gulf, who alſo ſent forth a colony into Perſia. For in thoſe parts we meet with the Sabateni in Joſephus, the Stabæi, and Meſſabathi in Ptolomy and Pliny. Raamah—From whom deſcended another people dwelling in the ſame Arabia. (Ezek. xxvii. 22.)

V. 8. Who is placed laſt of all his ſons, becauſe he was to ſay more of him.

V. 9. Hunter—By hunting and deſtroying wild beaſts, he got reputation and favour with men, who were ſecured in their dwellings, and having this occaſion to gather great companies of the youngeſt and ſtrongeſt men to himſelf, by their help he eſtabliſhed a tyranny and abſolute power over men, deſtroying like beaſts, all thoſe men who oppoſed his dominion. Tyrants and proſecutors are in Scripture called fowlers and hunters. (Pſal. xci. 3. Jer. xvi. 16.) Before the Lord—In contempt of God, who had ſo lately manifeſted his deteſtation of ſin by the deſtruction of the world, and, amongſt other crimes, for this very ſin of violence, (Gen. vi. 13.) he ſhowed that he neither feared God nor reverenced man. Is ſaid even as Nimrod—His name became a proverb, for any man that was haughty, cruel, and tyrannical.

V. 10. The beginning of his kingdom—His chief city: or the place where his dominion began, and from whence it was extended. We may here ſee the beginning of civil government, and particularly that form of it which lodges the ſovereignty in a ſingle perſon.

V. 11. Nineveh—A famous and vaſt city near the river Tigris, but ſo ruined by time, that it is not agreed where it ſtood. What are they doing who build on earth for fame? They are labouring for that which will ſoon be loſt for ever.

V. 12. Reſen—Nineveh was 60 miles in compaſs; yet this alſo, if compared with moſt others, is a great city.

V. 13. Ludim—Is here underſtood, for the Father of the people called Ludim, dwelling in Africa, ſpringing from the Egyptians, which as they multiplied, went further and further Weſtward and Southward from Egypt.

V. 14.—Pathruſim—The inhabitants of Pathros, (Iſa. xi. 11. Jer. xliv. 1, 15, Ezek. xxix. 14.) Philiſtim—The Philiſtins.

V. 15. Sidon—The father of the people, and builder of the city of Sidon. (Joſ. xi. 8. and xix. 28.) Heth—Of whom came the Hittites. (Joſ. i. 4. and ix. 1. &c.)

V. 18. The Canaanites ſpread abroad—Diſperſed in the ſeveral quarters of the land, who, before they grew ſo numerous, dwelt together in the ſame place.

V. 19. Sidon—The land of the Canaanites poſſeſſed, is more particulary deſcribed than of any other, becauſe their land was to become Immanuel's land. The city and country of Sidon, on the North-Weſt. Gaza—On the South-Weſt. Admah and Zeboim—On the South and South-Eaſt. Laſha—On the North-Eaſt. The poſterity of Canaan had at firſt the beſt earthly poſſeſſion, and were placed in a country of the greateſt fertility; they were the fartheſt from ſerving God in the midſt of their plenty: the temporal mercies of God are to lead men to praiſe and to ſerve him; and they who do not make that uſe of the abundance God gives, the more inexcuſable will they be in that day when to whom much was given, much will be required: the people of this plentiful land were long ſpared, but when they had utterly forgot God, and neither acknowledged his goodneſs or feared his wrath, how miſerably were they at length deſtroyed.

V. 21. The father of all the children of Eber—Of the Hebrews, the only church and people of God when Moſes wrote, who are called Eber, (Numb. xxiv. 24.) the children of Heber. And he is here called the father of them peculiarly, though he had other children, becauſe he was their father not only by natural generation, but alſo in reſpect of the promiſe of God, which was conveyed to them through Shem's hands, and of that faith and holineſs, wherein he was their predeceſſor and eminent pattern: Abraham and his ſeed, deſcended from Heber, and from him were called Hebrews;

Before Christ 2218.

22 The [e] children of Shem; Elam, and Asshur, and ‡ Arphaxad, and Lud, and Aram.

[e] 1 Chr. 1. 17

23 And the children of Aram: Uz, and Hul, and Gether, and Mash.

‡ Heb. Arph. achshad.

24 And Arphaxad begat § [f] Salah; and Salah begat Eber.

2247. § Heb. Shelah. [f] Ch. 11 12. [g] 1 Chr. 1. 19

25 [g] And unto Eber were born two sons; the name of one was Peleg, for in his days was the earth divided; and his brother's name was Joktan.

26 And Joktan begat Almodad, and Sheleph, and Hazarmaveth, and Jerah, 27 And Hadoram, and Uzal, and Diklah.

28 And Obal, and Abimael, and Sheba,

29 And Ophir, and Havilah, and Jobab: all these were the sons of Joktan.

30 And their dwelling was from Mesha, as thou goest unto Sephar, a mount of the East.

31 These are the sons of Shem, after their families, after their tongues, in their lands, after their nations.

32 These are the families of the sons of Noah, after their generations, in their nations: and by these were the nations divided in the earth after the flood.

CHAP. XI.

Before Christ 2247.

AND the whole earth was of one * language, and of one † speech.

* Heb. lip. † Heb. words

2 And it came to pass, as they journeyed ‡ from the East, that they found a plain in the land of Shinar; and they dwelt there.

‡ Or Eastward as Ch. 13. 11 2 Sam. 6 2. with 1 Chron. 13. 6

3 And § they said one to another, Go to, let us make brick, and * burn them thoroughly. And they had brick for stone, and slime had they for mortar.

§ Heb. a man said to his neighbour. * Heb. burn them to a burning.

4 And they said, Go to, let us build us a city and a tower, whose top may reach unto heaven, and let us make us a name, lest we be scattered abroad upon the face of the whole earth.

5 And the Lord came down to see the city and the tower, which the children of men builded.

6 And the Lord said, Behold, the people is one, and they have all one language; and this they begin to do: and now nothing will be restrained from them, which they have imagined to do.

7 Go to, [a] let us go down, and there confound

[a] Ch. 1. 28.

Hebrews; and the holy tongue is also called from him the Hebrew. It is mentioned to Shem's honour, that he was the father of the Hebrews; but lest Japheth's seed should be looked upon as shut out from the church, it is here observed that he was the brother of Japheth, not in birth only, but in blessing, for Japheth was to dwell in the tents of Shem. Though Eber had other children, yet none are called in Scripture the children of Eber, or the Hebrews, but Abraham's posterity. Brother of Japheth—Japheth alone is here mentioned as his brother, and not Ham. Japheth was partaker with Shem both in piety and the blessing pronounced. It is probable that Japheth was the elder. And Shem named first, not because he was the first-born, but because he was chief in the Church of God.

V. 22. Elam—Of whom came the Elamites or Persians, (Gen. xiv. 9. Isa. ii. 21. Jer. xlix. 34. Dan. viii. 2. Acts ii. 9.) Asshur—The father of the Assyrians, (ver. 11.) Arphaxad—Of whom the Chaldeans, and the inhabitants of that part of Assyria, from him called Arphaxitis, which Ptolomy corruptly calls Arrapachitis. Lud—The father of the Lydians, in Asia the less. Aram—Of whom the Syrians, known by the name of Aramites in sacred and other authors.

V. 25. In his days—Either in his birth or time. Was the earth divided—First in language and then in habitations.

V. 26. Almodad—From him and the rest of Joktan's sons, came the people that live in the most innermost parts of Arabia, who profess themselves the posterity of Jechtan, and have a city near Mecca, called Jectan.

V. 29. Ophir—Either that in India, or the other in Arabia. Havilah—A distinct person from him, ver. 7.

V. 30. Sephar, a mount of the East—In Arabia, where there was a people called Saphariæ, and a city called Saphar, from whence this mountain received its name. Arabia is South from Judæa, but East in respect of Egypt, where the Jews long dwelt, and part of it is so to Judæa, so it is called the East Country. (Gen. xxv. 6, 18. Judg. vi. 3, &c.) And Tacitus describing Judæa, saith, it is bounded on the East by Arabia.

CHAP. XI.

V. 1. Earth—Earth is often put for its inhabitants. Of one speech—Which probably was the Hebrew tongue.

V. 2. Found a plain—A spacious plain, able to contain them all. The land of Shinar—Where Babel was.

V. 3. They had brick for stone, and slime had they for mortar—That Babylon was built with this, we have the joint testimony of Berosus, Dion, Curtius, and others.

V. 4. A tower—A very high tower.—This tower and its vast height is noted by Herodotus, Diodorus, and others. A name—A great name, they take no care for God's name, and the propagation of religion, but merely out of pride and vain-glory labour to erect an everlasting monument to all posterity. Their design was to bind themselves together in one empire, and to make this city the seat of it. If men can be so much united in such designs, why not unite in discovering and doing the will of God?

V. 5, 6, 7. The Lord came down—Not by descent; for he is every where, but by the manifestation of his presence and the effects of his power in that place. To see the tower—To know the truth, setting a pattern for men to examine before they pass sentence: God saw this in heaven; in these expressions he condescends to the capacity of men. The children of men—So called for distinction, from the sons of God, or the race of Shem, who were not guilty of the sin, and did not partake in the curse, the confusion of their languages. They opposed themselves to the infinitely wise and powerful God, who did (as they might easily gather both from his words and works) intend to disperse and separate them, that so by degrees they might possess the whole earth, which God had made for that purpose. And the impiety of this union and design was in opposing what they understood of the will of God. How does the diversity of languages and the difficulty and trouble arising from them among mankind, show us in another view how long and severely the consequences of disobedience to God are felt. But all that know him and worship him in Spirit and in truth, have in the best sense all one language like the true Hebrews—the language of loving God, and loving their fellow creatures. Let us—The Blessed Trinity. (Gen. i. 26.) Confound their language—By making them forget their former language, and by putting into their minds several languages. That they may not understand found their language, that they may not understand one another's speech.

8 So the Lord scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth: and they left off to build the city.

9 Therefore is the name of it called † Babel, because the Lord did there confound the language of all the earth: and from thence did the Lord scatter them abroad upon the face of all the earth.

10 ¶ [c] These are the generations of Shem: Shem was an hundred years old, and begat Arphaxad two years after the flood.

11 And Shem lived, after he begat Arphaxad five hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

12 And Arphaxad lived five and thirty years, and begat Salah.

13 And Arphaxad lived, after he begat Salah, four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

14 And Salah lived thirty years, and begat Eber.

15 And Salah lived, after he begat Eber, four hundred and three years, and begat sons and daughters.

16 [d] And Eber lived four and thirty years, and begat [e] Peleg.

17 And Eber lived, after he begat Peleg, four hundred and thirty years, and begat sons and daughters.

18 And Peleg lived thirty years, and begat Reu.

19 And Peleg lived, after he begat Reu, two hundred and nine years, and begat sons and daughters

20 And Reu lived two and thirty years, and begat [f] Serug.

21 And Reu lived, after he begat Serug, two hundred and seven years.

22 And Serug lived thirty years, and begat Nahor.

23 And Serug lived, after he begat Nahor, two hundred years, and begat sons and daughters.

24 And Nahor lived nine and twenty years, and begat [g] Terah.

25 And Nahor lived, after he begat Terah, an hundred and nineteen years, and begat sons and daughters.

26 And Terah lived seventy years, and [h] begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran.

27 ¶ Now these are the generations of Terah: Terah begat Abram, Nahor, and Haran; and Haran begat Lot.

28 And Haran died before his father Terah, in the land of his nativity, in Ur of the Chaldees.

29 And Abram and Nahor took them wives; the name of Abram's wife was Sarai; and the name of Nahor's wife, [i] Milcah, the daughter of Haran, the father of Milcah, and the father of Iscah.

30 But [k] Sarai was barren; she had no child.

31 And Terah took Abram his son, and Lot the son of Haran his son's son, and Sarai his daughter-in-law, his son Abram's wife; and they went forth with them from [l] Ur of the Chaldees, to go into the land of Canaan; and they came unto Haran, and dwelt there.

32 And

Before Christ 2247.

† Thatis, confusion.

c Ch. 10. 22. 1 Chr. 1. 17.

2346.

2311.

2281.

d 1 Chr. 1. 19. 2247

e Called Luke 3. 35 Phalec

2217.

2185.

f Luke 3. 35 Saruch.

2155.

2126.

g Luke 3. 34 Thara.

2056.

h Josh. 24. 2. 1 Chr. 1. 26.

1996.

i Ch. 22. 20.

k Ch. 16. 1, 2. & 18. 11, 12

cir. 1923.

l Neh. 9. 7. Acts 7. 4.

understand one another's speech—And thereby be disenabled from carrying on their design: known unto God only, is the greatness of his power: what may not men expect will be the end of every design and work prosecuted in opposition to the will of God: and will any design or work be more successful against those that fear God, and would do his will, however weakly? Will not God protect them that trust him?

V. 8. They departed in companies after their families and after their tongues, to the several countries and places allotted them which they knew before, but would not go to take possession of, till now they were forced to it. The very thing which they feared came upon them; that dispersion which they thought to evade. The children of men were now finally scattered, and never will come together again till the great day, when the son of man shall sit upon the throne of his glory, and all nations shall be gathered before him. Matt. xxv. 31, 32.

V. 10. Not all of them, but of those who were the progenitors of Christ. Nothing is left upon record concerning those of this line, but their names and ages: there was an observeable gradual decrease in the years of their lives. Shem reached to 600 years, which yet fell short of the age of the patriarchs before the flood; the three next came short of 500, the three next did not reach to 300, and after them we read not of any that attained to 200 but Terah; and not many ages after this, Moses reckoned 70 or 80 to be the utmost men ordinarily arrive at. When the earth began to be replenished, men's lives began to shorten; so that the decrease is to be imputed to the disposal of God and not to any decay of nature. Eber, from whom the Hebrews came, was the longest lived of any that were born after the flood; which perhaps was the reward of his strict adherence to the ways of God.

V. 11. Shem lived—Almost all the time of Abraham; which was a singular blessing both to himself who hereby saw his children of the tenth generation; and to the church of God, which by this means enjoyed the counsel and conduct of so great a Patriarch.

V. 26. Abram—Who is first named in order of dignity, not in order of time, which seems to be this, Haran probably was the eldest, because Nahor married his daughters; Nahor the second; and Abram was the youngest son of Terah.

V. 29. Nahor's wife, Milcah, the daughter of Haran—Such marriages of uncles and nieces being permitted then, (Exod. vi. 20.) as in the beginning of the world were the marriages of brethren and sisters, but were afterwards severely forbidden. (Lev. xviii. 12, 14.)

V. 31. Terah took Abram his son—Being informed by his son of the command of God, he did not despise it, because it came to him by the hands of his inferior, but cheerfully obeyeth it; and therefore he is mentioned as the governor of the action. Haran—Called Charran, (Acts vii. 4.) and by the Romans, Carræ, a place in Mesopotamia, in the way to Canaan, and near to it, well known as the place where Crassus was defeated.

Before Christ 1923. 1921.

32 And the days of Terah were two hundred and five years; and Terah died in Haran.

CHAP. XII.

a Chap. 15. 7. Neh. 9. 7. Acts 7. 3. Heb. 11. 8.

NOW the [a] Lord had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee.

2 And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing.

b Ch. 27. 29. Numb. 24. 9. c Ch. 18. 18. & 22. 18. & 26. 4. Psal. 72. 17. Acts 3. 25. Gal. 3. 8.

3 [b] And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; [c] and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.

4 So Abram departed, as the Lord had spoken unto him; and Lot went with him: and Abram was seventy and five years old when he departed out of Haran.

5 And Abram took Sarai his wife, and Lot his brother's son, and all their substance that they had gathered, and the souls that they had d Ch. 11. 31. gotten [d] in Haran; and they went forth to go into the land of Canaan, and into the land of Canaan they came.

e Deut. 11. 30. Judg. 7. 1.

6 ¶ And Abram passed through the land unto the place of Sichem, [e] unto the plain of Moreh. [f] And the Canaanite was then in the land.

Before Christ 1921.

f Ch. 10. 18.

7 And the Lord appeared unto Abram, and said, [g] Unto thy seed will I give this land; and there builded he an [h] altar unto the Lord, who appeared unto him.

g Ch. 13. 15. h Ch. 13. 4.

8 And he removed from thence unto a mountain on the East of Beth-el, and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the West, and Hai on the East; and there he builded an altar unto the Lord, and [i] called upon the name of the Lord.

i Ch. 13. 4.

9 And Abram journeyed, *[k] going on still toward the South.

* Heb. in going and journeying

k Ch. 13. 3.

10 ¶ And there was a famine in the land: and Abram [l] went down into Egypt to sojourn there; for the famine was grievous in the land.

l Psal. 105. 13.

11 And it came to pass, when he was come near to enter into Egypt, that he said unto Sarai his wife, Behold, now I know that thou art a fair woman to look upon.

12 Therefore it shall come to pass, when the Egyptians shall see thee, that they shall say, This is his wife: and they will kill me, but they will save thee alive.

13 Say

CHAP. XII.

V. 1. The Lord had said unto Abram—In Ur of the Chaldees, (Gen. xi. 31. Acts vii. 3. 4.) Moses speaks here of that command of God which came to Abram before he was gone from his kindred and father's house, and therefore before he came to Haran. Get thee from thy father's house—From the family of Nachor, which was now become idolatrous, (Gen. xxxi. 30. Jos. xxiv. 2.) and consequently, their society dangerous; and therefore God mercifully calls him away. A land that I will show thee—Which as yet he nameth not for the greater trial of Abram's faith. (Isa. xli. 2. Heb. xi. 8.)

V. 2. I will make of thee a great nation, I will bless thee—With all my blessings, spiritual, temporal, and eternal. (Deut. vii. 13, 28, 2, &c. Eph i. 3.) Thou shalt be a blessing—Both a pattern and an instrument of blessedness to others, to thy posterity, who shall be blessed for thy sake, to thy servants and friends, who shall be blessed by thy instruction and help; and to all the world.

V. 3. I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee—Those that are friends or enemies to thee, shall be the same to me. What a condescension and privilege. In thee—In thy seed, in and through Christ, (Acts iii. 25.) or by thee, by thy means: in the same way in which thou art blessed, that is, by faith. (Rom. iv. 11, 12, 16.) All families—All nations: which is to be limited to the believers of all nations, by the whole current of the Scriptures; all that shall be blessed, shall be blessed by this means, and no other way. (Mark xvi. 16.)

V. 4. Abram departed—First from Ur, and after his father's death, from Haran.

V. 5. The souls—The persons. They had gotten in Haran—Abram had no children, Lot had, and their servants had children born in their house. Instructed, turned from idolatry, and taught in true religion, for such were most proper for Abram to take along with him.

V. 6. Sichem—A place afterwards so called in the mountains of Ephraim. The Canaanite—Properly so called; that cruel, impious, and idolatrous nation. (Zach. xiv. 21.) Such was Abram's faith and obedience, that he durst and did profess true religion in the midst of such a people; which could not be without great danger both of his estate and life. Was then in the land—As the settled inhabitants.

V. 7. The Lord appeared unto Abram.—To encourage and comfort him. There built he an altar unto the Lord—A place for sacrifice and worship, erected by him to keep his family in the true religion, and to separate himself and them from his idolatrous neighbours.

V. 8. Beth-el—A known place, which afterwards was called Beth-el.

V. 9. Abram journeyed—Removing from place to place. Towards the South—The Southern part of the land of Canaan towards Egypt.

V. 10. A famine in the land—Of Canaan, to punish that people's sins, (Psal. cvii. 34.) and to try Abram's faith.

V. 11. Thou art a fair woman to look upon.—Her beauty was not diminished by her years.

V. 12. When the Egyptians shall see thee, They shall say, This is his wife; and they will kill me—Abram trusting, and relying on the mercy, the care and love of God, through a Mediator is then the favourite of God; but when Abram did not firmly believe in that grace of God which bringeth salvation, what was Abram more than a common man? What doth he here appear to be; the Spirit of Him who so loved him as to die for him, being the author of his history? "The Egyptians will kill me." Who made the Egyptians? God. Who enables them to live or lift an hand to their heads? God. At whose pleasure do all the living die, when their trial for life and immortality is ended? God's. And whose wisdom would you now trust to determine when and where you shall leave this life? His who gave me life, and hath promised himself to be my Saviour. And if you are putting your trust in him, loving him and obeying him, would you then be unwilling to bow your head and say "Father not my will but thine be done," was He to see it best to translate you from earth to heaven, by now sending death, who for the sake of man's sin, will soon take the lives of all the living.

V. 13

Before Christ 1921.

13 [m] Say, I pray thee, thou art my ſiſter; that it may be well with me for thy ſake: and my ſoul ſhall live becauſe of thee.

[m] Chap. 20. 13. See Ch. 26. 7. cir. 1920.

14 ¶ And it came to paſs, that, when Abram was come into Egypt, the Egyptians beheld the woman, that ſhe was very fair.

15 The Princes alſo of Pharaoh ſaw her, and commended her before Pharaoh: and the woman was taken into Pharaoh's houſe.

[n] Ch. 20. 14.

16 And he [n] entreated Abram well for her ſake: and he had ſheep, and oxen, and he-aſſes, and men-ſervants, and maid-ſervants, and ſhe-aſſes, and camels.

[o] Ch 20. 18. 1 Ch. 10. 21. Pſa. 105. 14.

17 And the Lord [o] plagued Pharaoh and his houſe with great plagues, becauſe of Sarai, Abram's wife.

18 And Pharaoh called Abram, and ſaid, What is this that thou haſt done unto me? Why didſt thou not tell me that ſhe was thy wife?

19 Why ſaidſt thou, She is my ſiſter? ſo I might have taken her to me to wife; now therefore, behold thy wife, take her, and go thy way.

Before Christ 1920.

20 And Pharaoh commanded his men concerning him: and they ſent him away, and his wife, and all that he had.

CHAP. XIII.

AND Abram went up out of Egypt, he, and his wife, and all that he had, and Lot with him, into the South. cir. 1918.

2 And Abram was very rich in cattle, in ſilver, and in gold.

3. And he went on his journeys [a] from the South, even to Beth-el, unto the place where his tent had been at the beginning, between Beth-el and Hai; [a] Ch. 12 8. 9.

4 Unto the [b] place of the altar, which he had made there at the firſt: and there Abram called on the name of the Lord. [b] Ch. 12. 7. 8.

5 ¶ And Lot alſo, which went with Abram, had flocks, and herds, and tents.

6 And [c] the land was not able to bear them, that [c] Ch. 36. 7.

V. 13. Say I pray thee, thou art my ſiſter—And not my wife, that it may be well with me, that I may live. To live on earth and proſper, and have all go well with me, is far better than to depart. Yes, it muſt be better to live than to die, whilſt I love this world better than God. And when this life is loved more than God; what will the ſoul of man not do, to have it go well with it here on earth? The example is here ſet before us by the faithfulneſs of God. The mind that makes this choice, uſes means ſuitable to its miſtaken end. It will do evil to ſhun danger or ſecure its fancied future good on earth.

V. 15. The Princes—The officers and courtiers; whoſe deſign was to gain their Prince's favour. Pharaoh—A name common to all the Kings of Egypt, for many ages. The woman was taken—Taken and brought. Into Pharaoh's houſe—the houſe of his women, that ſhe might be his concubine or wife; even the ceremonies of Courts are made to ſerve the providence of God, and give opportunity for working her deliverance.

V. 16. By Pharaoh's gift over and above his own.

V. 17 Plagued Pharaoh and his houſe—His ſervants: who being partners of his ſin, are made partners in his plagues. Becauſe of Abram's wife—For the act of violence towards her, for the word, taken, implies that it was by conſtraint, and not with Abram's and with her conſent. God who is the ſearcher and judge of men's hearts, often puniſhes in this life for deſigns before they are carried into execution. That Spirit by which the Scriptures were written, here gives Sarai a different title to that which Abram had deſired her to give herſelf. And on this diſtinction we are warranted to conclude Abram's deſign was to miſlead, at the moment he deſired Sarai to ſay ſhe was his ſiſter. Who is obeyed when deceit is the ſentiment on which we proceed. God is truth. Satan is the father of lies; to yield to a principle of deceit in the ſoul, whatever is to be avoided or got by it, cannot but be a ſubmiſſion of the ſoul to the Prince of Darkneſs, and a practical denial that God is King; God is diſhonoured, Satan is obeyed by every ſentiment of deceit and falſhood; and the father of mercies barely recording this inſtance of deceit, in one of the firſt favourites of God among men, is ſurely to carry with it an important leſſon to all mankind, or a parent of tender compaſſion would never have publiſhed to the world, this act of diſtruſt in his faithfulneſs, and of deceit to men. And nothing but a perſuaſion that this inſtance is recorded for an important purpoſe could warrant the dwelling for a moment upon a defect in the conduct of another, eſpecially of one whoſe name God has placed among the firſt on earth and doubtleſs now placed near the fountain of bleſſedneſs for ever. What muſt be God's hatred to falſhood, when he publiſhes to all mankind an inſtance of deceit in one that lived and died moſt highly honoured by him; and what muſt be his deſire that all men ſhould be informed that nothing but truth is the way to his favour, when he expoſes the contrary, though it appears in a perſon moſt dear to himſelf!

V. 18. What is this that thou haſt done—How great an injury has thou done to me in concealing this from me that ſhe was thy wife.

V. 19. I might have taken her to me to wife—Though he had another before.

V. 20. Pharaoh commanded his men concerning him—Gave them a charge concerning him for his ſafe conduct whither he pleaſed.

CHAP. XIII.

V. 1. Abram went and his wife, and Lot into the South—Into the Southern part of Canaan, which in Scripture is called ſimply the South, the Scripture, being written for the Jews, frequently accommodates the names of the quarters of the world to them.

V. 3. He went on his journeys—According to his journeys which he took as he came, going in the ſame road, and reſting in the ſame place.

V. 4. Place of the altar—Where the altar was. Abram called on the name of the Lord—Worſhipped God by prayer. Requeſting God to forgive the diſhonour he had done to his name by complying with any thing contrary to truth, and by diſtruſting his gracious care over all that rely upon him; and offering ſacrifices to expreſs in the preſence of all his family how much he ſtood in need of an atonement to infinite juſtice for the offence he had committed, which no doubt he was ſenſible was known to God, the righteous judge of the thoughts and intents of the heart. As before it appears from Abram's conduct what we ſhould ſhun, here we are ſhown what we ſhould do—turn unto God by prayer and a ſtedfaſt regard to that atonement of which Abram's ſacrifice was only a figure.

Before Christ cir. 1918. that they might dwell together: for their substance was great, so that they could not dwell together.

7 And there was a strife between the herdmen of Abram's cattle, and the herdmen of d Ch. 12. 6. Lot's cattle. [d] And the Canaanite, and the Perizzite, dwelled then in the land.

8 And Abram said unto Lot, Let there be no strife, I pray thee, between me and thee, and between my herdmen and thy herdmen:
*Heb men brethren See Ch. 11. 27. Ex 2. 13 Acts 7. 25. for we be *brethren.

9 [e] Is not the whole land before thee? Separate thyself, I pray thee, from me: if thou e Ch. 20. 15. & 34. 10. wilt take the left hand, then I will go to the right; or if thou depart to the right hand, then I will go to the left.

10 And Lot lifted up his eyes, and beheld all the plain of Jordan, that it was well watered every where, before the Lord destroyed cir. 1917. Sodom and Gomorrah, [f] even as the garden f Isa. 51. 3. of the Lord, like the Land of Egypt, as thou comest unto Zoar.

11 Then Lot chose him all the plain of Jordan; and Lot journeyed East: and they separated themselves, the one from the other.

12 Abram dwelled in the land of Canaan, and Lot dwelled in the cities of the plain, and pitched his tent towards Sodom.

g Ch. 18. 20. Ezek. 16. 49. 13 But the men of Sodom [g] were wicked, and sinners before the Lord, exceedingly.

14 ¶ And the Lord said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him, Lift up now thine eyes and look, from the place where thou art, North-ward, and South-ward, and East-ward, and West-ward:

15 For all the land which thou seest, [h] to thee will I give it, and to thy seed for ever.

16 And [i] I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall thy seed also be numbered.

17 Arise, walk through the land, in the length of it, and in the breadth of it: for I will give it unto thee.

18 Then Abram removed his tent, and came and [k] dwelt in the plain of Mamre, [l] which is in Hebron, and built there an altar unto the Lord.

CHAP. XIV.

AND it came to pass, in the days of Amraphel, king [a] of Shinar Arioch king of Ellasar, Chedorlaomer king of Elam, and Tidal king of nations;

2 That these made war with Bera king of Sodom, and with Birsha king of Gomorrah, Shinab king of Admah, and Shemeber king Zeboiim, and the king of Bela, which is [b] Zoar.

3 All these were joined together in the vale of Siddim, which is the salt-sea.

4 Twelve

Before Christ cir. 1917.

h Ch. 12. 5. & 15. 18. & 17. 8. & 24. 5. & 26. 4. Deut. 34. 4. Acts 7. 5.

i Ch. 15. 5. & 22. 17. & 26. 4. & 28. 14. & 32. 12. Ex. 32. 13. Num. 23. 10. Deut. 1. 10. 1 Kings 4. 20. 1 Chro. 27. 23. Isa. 48. 19. Jer. 33. 22. Heb. 11. 12.

k Ch. 14. 13.

†Heb. plains

l Ch. 23. 17. & 25. 9. & 35. 27.

cir. 1926.

a Ch. 10. 10. & 11. 8.

b Ch. 19. 22.

c Deut. 3. 17.

V. 7. The Canaanite dwelt then in the land—The Canaanites were the lords and owners of it. It may also be added as a reason of Abram's following proposal, because that idolatrous people were present, and diligently observed all their contentions and other miscarriages, and would doubtless take occasion from thence to disparage true religion.

V. 8. Abram said unto Lot—The elder, wiser and worthier person relinquishes his right to his inferior for peace sake. My herdsmen and thy herdsmen—For there was no strife between Abram and Lot: he feared it. We be brethren—By nature kindsmen, and worship God together as heirs of the same promise, and bound by every motive to follow peace with all men, and especially with one another.

V. 9. Before thee—Open to thy view, and free to choose which part thou pleasest, as thou canst agree with the owners. I give thee full power to choose before me.

V. 10. The plain of Jordan—A great plain where the pleasant river Jordan divided itself into streams and rivulets, which made it very fruitful. But this lovely plain was afterwards transformed by divine vengeance into a filthy lake or dead sea. (Gen. xix.) As the garden of the Lord—Like that famous garden of Eden which God himself planted. Like the land of Egypt—A land of eminent fertility by the influence of that great river Nilus: antiently celebrated as the granary of other countries.

V. 11. Lot chose—For himself.

V. 13. The men were wicked before the Lord exceedingly—Eminent, noted and impudent sinners, which is here added, as a reproof to Lot, who was either careless in his inquiry into the dispositions and manners of those among whom he intended to fix his abode; or, he was willing to expose himself to all hazards by their neighbourhood and familiarity for the fertility of the soil.

V. 14. The Lord said unto Abram, after that Lot was separated from him—God is no respector of persons, but we read not of his giving any gracious promise to Lot; Abram had humbly left the choice to his younger relation, and God ever manifesting his grace to the humble, chooses this season to speak to Abram.

V. 15. All the land which thou seest—He gave him all that he saw, but not only that, but also the rest of the land. To thee—God gave Abram the right to it, though not the actual possession of it, until the time that God appointed. I give it, and to thy seed for ever—To thee and to thy seed for thy sake. How for ever, when after some hundreds of years they were turned out of it? This promise was made to them upon condition of their obedience which is oft expressed. (Levit. xviii. 26. Deut. iv. 25. 26. Isa. xlviii. 18, 19.) The word Olam, rendered for ever, doth not always signify eternity, but a long continuance, as is evident from Gen. xvii. 13. and xlviii. 4. Exod. xxi. 6. Psal. cxxxii. 14. and many other places of Scripture; and in particular when it is applied to the Jewish rites and privileges it commonly signifies no more, than during the standing of that commonwealth, or until the coming of the Messias.

V. 18. Mamre—An Amorite of great note, from whom the city Hebron was called Mamre, (Gen. xxiii. 19.) a friend and confederate of Abram. (Gen. xiv. 13.) In Hebron—Near Hebron: For so the Hebrew Beth is sometimes taken.

CHAP. XIV.

V. 1. Tidal King of nations—Of a people which came to him out of several nations, as Tyrus is called the mart of nations. (Isa. xxiii. 3.)

V. 2. King—The name of King is given by Moses to the Chief Governors of cities or little provinces.

V. 3. Which is the salt sea—Which now is, though when this battle was fought it was not so.

Before Christ cir. 1926.

4 Twelve years they served Chedorlaomer, and in the thirteenth year they rebelled.

cir. 1913.

5 And in the fourteenth year came Chedorlaomer, and the kings that were with him and smote [d] the Rephaims [e] in Ashteroth-Karnaim, and [f] the Zuzims in Ham, [g] and the Emims in * Shaveh Kiriathaim, 6 [h] And the Horites in their mount Seir, unto † El-paran, which is by the wilderness.

7 And they returned and came to Enmishpat, which is Kadesh, and smote all the country of the Amalekites, and also the Amorites, that dwelt [i] in Hazezon-tamar.

8 And there went out the king of Sodom, and the king of Gomorrah, and the king of Admah, and the king of Zeboiim, and the king of Bela, (the same is Zoar,) and they joined battle with them in the vale of Siddim;

9 With Chedorlaomer the king of Elam, and with Tidal king of nations, and Amraphel king of Shinar, and Arioch king of Ellasar; four kings with five.

10 And the vale of Siddim was full of slime-pits; and the kings of Sodom and Gomorrah fled, and fell there: and they that remained fled to the mountain.

11 And they took all the goods of Sodom and Gomorrah, and all their victuals, and went their way.

12 And they took Lot, Abram's brother's son, (who dwelt in Sodom,) and his goods and departed.

13 And there came one that had escaped, and told Abram the Hebrew: for [k] he dwelt in the plain of Mamre the Amorite, brother of Eshcol, and brother of Aner: and these were confederate with Abram.

Before Christ cir. 1913.

14 And, when Abram heard that his brother was taken captive, he ‡ armed his § trained servants, born in his own house, three hundred and eighteen, and pursued them [l] unto Dan.

15 And he divided himself against them, he and his servants by night, and [m] smote them, and pursued them unto Hobah, which is on the left hand of Damascus.

16 And he brought back all the goods, and also brought again his brother Lot, and his goods, and the women also, and the people.

17 ¶ And the king of Sodom went out to meet him, (after his return from the slaughter of Chedorlaomer, and of the kings that were with him,) at the valley of Shaveh, which is the [n] King's dale

18 And [o] Melchizedech king of Salem, brought forth bread and wine; and he was the priest of the Most High God.

19 And he blessed him, and said, Blessed be Abram of the Most High God, [p] possessor of heaven and earth;

20 And blessed be the Most High God, which hath delivered thine enemies into thy hand. And he gave him [q] tithes of all.

21 And the king of Sodom said unto Abram, Give me the * persons, and take the goods to thyself.

22 And Abram said to the king of Sodom,

[a] Ch. 15. 10
[e] Josh 13. 12
[f] Deut. 2. 20
[g] Deut. 2. 10 11.
[h] Deut. 2. 12 22.
[i] Num. 12. 16. and 13. 3.
[k] Ch 13. 18.
[l] Deut. 34 1.
[m] Isa. 41. 2. 3.
[n] 2 Sam. 18. 18.
[o] Heb. 7. 1.
[p] Ver 22.
[q] Heb. 7. 4.

* Or the plain of Kiriathaim.
† Or, the plain of Paran.
‡ Or, led forth
§ Or, instructed.
* Heb. souls.

V. 4. They served Chedorlaomer—Who was their Lord.

V. 5. Came Chedorlaomer, and the Kings that were with him—For the recovery of his right, expecting the same assistance from him upon the like occasion. The Rephaims—A fierce and warlike people of Canaan. (Gen. xv. 20.) In Ashtaroth-Karnaim—A place in Basan called Ashtaroth. Emims—A people in Canaan of giant-like stature. Kiriathaim—Kiriathaim is a noted city in Gilead.

V. 6. The Horites—The antient inhabitants of Seir El-paran—El signifies a plain, and paran is the name of a known city and mountain.

V. 12. They took Lot and his goods, and departed—Who now suffered for the choice he had made of situation, without regarding the character of the people he went to live amongst.

V. 13. Abram the Hebrew—So called, from his great and good predecessor Eber, by whom the primitive language and true religion were preserved, and though Abram had five other progenitors between Eber and him, which were persons of less note, he is rightly denominated from Eber, the Hebrew, because he was the first that revived the memory and the work of Eber, that kept up the same language, and eminently propagated true religion. These were confederate with Abram—Had entered into a league for their mutual defence against common enemies.

V. 14. Abram armed his trained servants—Whom he had disciplined and instructed. Dan—Some think this is the fountain of Dan, whence Jordan had its name.

V. 15. Divided himself—His servants into several parties, that coming upon them from several quarters he might strike them with greater terror.

V. 16. He brought back all the goods—Which the victorious Kings had taken.

V. 17. The Kings dale—So called upon this occasion of the meeting of divers Kings here: or because King Melchizedech had his habitation in it. (2 Sam. xviii 18.)

V. 18. He was the priest of the most High God—By whom he was called to this office, and in which he ministered to Him. Who or what he was besides a king and a priest is not revealed, with many other things which God hath not thought of moment more fully to make known to mankind, but which doubtless will be made known hereafter to all that shall sit down with Abram and the blessed in heaven; if that knowledge will add to their blessedness; such being the extent of the sacred promise that nothing shall be witheld from them that love God.

V. 19 He blessed him—Melchizedech blessed Abram which was one act of the priestly office. And said blessed be Abram—It is a prayer for him that God would confirm and increase the blessing which he had given him.

V 20 He gave him tithes of all—Abram gave to Melchizedech, the tithes of all the spoils taken from the enemies.

V. 22. I have lift up my hand—This was the antient manner of swearing. (Exod. vi. 8. Num. xiv. 30. Deut. xxxii. 40. Ezek. xx. 5, 6.) God the possessor of heaven and earth—And has the Most High possession of the earth as well as heaven: and will he that holds all in his hands let them that fear him have less than he sees

Before Christ 1913.

I have lift up mine hand unto the Lord, the Most High God, [r] the poſſeſſor of heaven and earth,

23 That [s] I will not take from a thread even to a ſhoe-latchet, and that I will not take any thing that is thine, leſt thou ſhouldeſt ſay, I have made Abram rich:

24 Save only that which the young men have eaten, and the portion of the men which went with me, Aner, Eſhcol, and Mamre; let them take their portion.

r Ver. 19. Ch 21. 33. sEſth. 9 15. 16.

CHAP XV.

AFTER theſe things, the word of the Lord came unto Abram in a viſion, ſaying, Fear not, Abram: I am thy [a] ſhield, and thy exceeding [b] great reward.

2 And Abram ſaid, Lord God, what wilt thou give me, ſeeing I go childleſs, and the ſteward of my houſe is this Eliezer of Damaſcus?

3 And Abram ſaid, Behold, to me thou haſt given no ſeed: and lo, one born in my houſe is mine heir.

4 And behold, the word of the Lord came unto him, ſaying, This ſhall not be thine heir; but he that ſhall come forth out of thine own bowels ſhall be thine heir.

5 And he brought him forth abroad, and ſaid, Look now toward heaven, and tell the ſtars, [c] if thou be able to number them. And he ſaid unto him, [d] So ſhall thy ſeed be.

6 And he [e] believed in the Lord: and he [f] counted it to him for righteouſneſs.

7 And he ſaid unto him, I am the Lord that brought thee out of [g] Ur of the Chaldees, [h] to give thee this land to inherit it.

8 And he ſaid, Lord God, [i] whereby ſhall I know that I ſhall inherit it?

9 And he ſaid unto him, Take me an heifer of a Pſal. 3. 3. &5 12. &84. 11. &91. 4. & 119 114. b Pſa. 16. 5.

Before Christ 1913.

c Jer. 33. 22. d Ex 32. 13. Deut 10. 22. 1 Chr 27 23 Rom 4 18. Heb. 11. 12. See Ch 13. 16 e Rom. 4. 3. 9 22. Gal 3 6. James 2. 23. f Pſa. 106. 31 g Ch. 11. 28. h Pſa 105. 42 Rom. 4. 13. i See Ch. 24. 13. 14. Judg. 6 17 and 37. 1 Sam. 14. 9. and 10. 2 Kings 20 8.

ſees is good for them? What conſiderations ariſe both to rich and poor from the Moſt High being the actual poſſeſſor of the earth and all things in it. He that holds much, holds it as a ſteward accountable to his Lord that he applies it, till the day of accounts, agreeable to his Lord's commands. Reader, hath the Lord of all given you more than all your moderate wants require, and do you conſider the uſe he requires you to make while it is to day of the ſurplus? No, I do what I pleaſe with my own. What, without examining the rules by which you are to account to God for what he hath given you to uſe—to uſe how long? Say with certainty if you can, an hour. What ſays reaſon? live this hour as if it was the laſt, and be lying up treaſure not on earth but in heaven; where all the poor man's wants may to morrow for ever end.

V. 23. I will not take a thread—Heb. If I ſhall take, God do ſo and ſo to me, (1 Sam. xiv. 44.) A defective manner of ſwearing amongſt the Hebrews, to maintain the reverence of oaths and the dread of perjury, they were afraid ſo much as to mention the curſe which they meant; or to ſhow that they were willing to ſubmit to any puniſhment which God ſhould inflict upon them without exception, if they violated their oaths. A thread—Any thing though never ſo ſmall or mean. Leſt thou ſhouldſt claim a ſhare with God in the honour due to him, to whoſe bleſſing alone I do, and will owe my riches Or. leſt thou ſhouldſt ſay, Abram is enriched with my ſpoils, and however he pretendeth kindneſs, yet indeed it was his covetouſneſs that put him upon this work.

V. 24. The portion of the men which went with me—Abram had a right to ſpoils, ſo had they; though he did give away his own right, he could not give away other mens.

CHAP. XV.

V. 1. The Lord came unto Abram in a viſion—God revealed himſelf to men when aſleep, in a dream: or in a viſion, when he was awake. (Numb. xii. 6, 7, 8. and xxiv. 4. Iſa. i. 1. Acts x. 10. 11.) When the thing was manifeſted by an external repreſentation. Fear not, Abram—Neither the return of thoſe enemies whom thou haſt ſmitten and provoked, nor the envy of thy neighbours, nor for thy own condition. I am thy ſhield and thy exceeding great reward—Seeing thou didſt truſt to my protection, I will be a ſhield and protector to thee; and ſeeing thou didſt ſo honourably and for my ſake reject other rewards, taken by thyſelf, and offered by the King, thou ſhalt be no loſer by it, I will abundantly recompence all thy piety to me, and charity to thy afflicted kinſman Lot, and thy liberality towards others, I will bleſs thee with all ſorts of good things, as well as defend the from all evil.

V. 2. What wilt thou give me, ſeeing I go—I paſs the time of my life, going on and growing in years, and haſtening to my long home. Going his put for dying. Childleſs—What good will the world do me, if I have no heir to poſſeſs it, if God loſe the glory of his truth in making good his promiſe, and I loſe the comfort of my long-hoped for child, and that ſuch a child, the effect of a Divine promiſe, one out of whoſe loins he muſt come, in whom all nations ſhall be bleſſed? The ſteward of my houſe—Heb. The ſon of the care, or management of the affairs of my houſe. The ſteward of my houſe, this Eliezer of Damaſcus, ſhall be my heir.

V. 3. One born in my houſe—Oppoſed to them that are born of a man's body. Is mine heir—For a recompence of his fidelity.

V. 5. Look and tell the ſtars—God bids him make trial when he pleaſed, if he could number the ſtars. Number them—Which thou art not able to do.

V. 6. Believed in the Lord—He was fully perſuaded that God was able to fulfil and would certainly fulfil the promiſe made to him concerning a child, and eſpecially concerning the Meſſias. For righteouſneſs—For a righteous and worthy action, Pſal. 106. 31. and in reſpect of this action and grace of faith, whereby he relied upon God for the promiſed ſeed, and upon the promiſed ſeed as his Mediator, he pronounced him a juſt and righteous perſon, notwithſtanding his paſt failings, and graciouſly accepted him as ſuch.

V. 8. Lord God, whereby ſhall I know—He aſks a ſign not out of diſtruſt of God's promiſe, but for further aſſurance and confirmation of it. And ſuch an aſking of a ſign was not an unuſual practice with good men, nor are they reproved for it: but on the contrary, Ahaz was commanded to aſk a ſign, and reproved for not aſking it. (Iſa. vii.) Abram deſired a ſign, to be treaſured up againſt an hour of temptation. For the ratifying of the promiſe to his poſterity, that they alſo might believe it.

V. 9, 10. Take me an heifer of three years old—God gives Abram a ſign upon a ſacrifice. Thoſe that would receive the aſſurances of God's favour, muſt attend inſtituted ordinances, and expect to meet with God in them. God appointed that each of the beaſts uſed for his ſervice ſhould be three years old, becauſe then they were at their full growth and ſtrength. God muſt be ſerved with the beſt we have. We do not read that God gave Abram particular directions how to manage theſe, knowing that he was well verſed in the cuſtom of ſacrifices. Abram took as God appointed him, though as yet he knew not how theſe things ſhould become a ſign to him. Abram, having prepared according to God's appointment, ſet himſelf to expect what ſign God would give him by theſe.

V. 11.

Before Christ 1913

of three years old, and a she-goat of three years old, and a ram of three years old, and a turtle-dove, and a young pigeon.

k Jer. 34. 18.

10 And k he took unto him all these, and divided them in the midst, and laid each piece

l Lev. 1. 17.

one against another: but l the birds divided he not.

11 And when the fowls came down upon the carcases, Abram drove them away.

12 And when the sun was going down, a m Ex 12. 40. Acts 7. 6.

deep sleep fell upon Abram; and lo, an horror of great darkness fell upon him.

13 And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety, m that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs, and shall serve them, n Ex. 1. 11.

and n they shall afflict them four hundred years.

14 And also that nation, whom they shall o Ex. 12. 36. Psal 105. 37.

serve, will I judge: and afterward o shall they come out with great substance.

15 And thou shalt go to thy fathers in p Ch. 25. 8.

peace; p thou shalt be buried in a good old

q Ex 12. 40.

age.

r 1 Kings 21. 26.

16 But q in the fourth generation they shall

s Dan 8 23. Mat 23 32. t Thess 2. 16 come hither again: for the iniquity r of the Amorites s is not yet full.

17 And it came to pass, that, when the sun went down, and it was dark, behold a smoaking furnace, and * a burning lamp that passed between those pieces.

Before Christ 1913

* Heb. a lamp of fire.

18 In that same day the Lord t made a t Ch. 24. 7.

covenant with Abram, saying u Unto thy seed have I given this land, from the river of Egypt unto the great river, the river Euphrates:

u Ch. 12. 7. & 13. 15 & 26 4. Ex. 23. 31. Num. 34 3. Deut. 1. 7. & 11. 24. & 24 4. Josh. 1. 4. 1 Kings 4 21 2 Chr. 9. 26. Neh. 9. 8. Isa. 27. 12.

19 The Kenites, and the Kenizzites, and the Kadmonites.

20 And the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Rephaims.

21 And the Amorites, and the Canaanites, and the Girgashites, and the Jebusites.

CHAP. XVI.

1912.

NOW Sarai, Abram's wife, bare him no children: and she had an hand-maid, a an Egyptian, whose name was b Hagar.

a Ch. 21. 9. b Gala. 4 24

2 c And Sarai said unto Abram, Behold now, the Lord hath restrained me from bearing: I pray thee d go in unto my maid; it may be that I may * obtain children by her: and Abram hearkened to the voice of Sarai.

c Ch. 30. 3.

d So Ch. 30. 3. 9.

* Heb. he builded by her.

3 And

V. 11. The fowls came down upon the carcasses—To devour them: whereby he signifies, either the disturbance and distraction which good men are exposed to in the service of God from evil spirits and men: or the great peril of Abram's posterity, who were not only, torn in pieces, like these sacrifices, but even the remainder of them were likely to be devoured Abram drove them away—By the blast of his mouth, as the Hebrew word signifies; representing Abram's conquest over all his enemies by faith and prayer, whereby he engaged God to be the preserver and deliverer of his people.

V. 12. And when the sun was going down—About the time of the evening oblation. Early in the morning, while the stars were yet to be seen, God had given him orders concerning the sacrifices, ver. 5. and we may suppose it was at least his mornings work to prepare them, and set them in order; which when he had done, he abode by them praying and waiting till towards evening. A deep sleep fell upon Abram—that being wholly taken off from things sensible, he might be taken up with things spiritual. The doors of the body were locked, that the soul might be private and retired. And lo, a horror of great darkness fell upon him—This was designed to strike an awe upon the spirit of Abram, and to possess him with a holy reverence. Holy fear prepares the soul for holy joy; God humbles first, and then exalts.

V. 13. Thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs—In Egypt. Four hundred years—There were 430 years between the first promise, and Israel's going out of Egypt, but part of this time Abram with his son Isaac lived in much honour and comfort: but after Isaac grew up, the affliction here mentioned began with Isaac in Canaan, and continued to him and his posterity in Egypt, till this time was expired. The heirs of heaven are first pilgrims and strangers on earth.

V. 14. That nation whom they shall serve, even the Egyptians will I judge—This points at the plagues of Egypt, by which God not only constrained the Egyptians to release Israel, but punished them for all the hardships they had put upon them. The punishing of persecutors is the judging of them; it is a righteous thing with God, and a particular act of justice, to recompence tribulation to those that trouble his people.

V. 15. Thou shalt go to thy fathers—Either into heaven, where thy godly progenitors are gone. Or into the state of the dead, where all thy fathers are gone before thee; this may seem more probable, because this phrase is indifferently used concerning good and bad men.

V. 16. The fourth generation—In the fourth generation, numbered from their going into Egypt, or leaving Canaan; Caleb was the fourth from Judah, and Moses the fourth from Levi. The Amorite—The people inhabiting Canaan. The Amorites, one of those people, are put for all the rest. Is not yet full—All men's sins are kept by God as in a book of remembrance, not one of them is lost: and as God exactly observes the number and measure of men's sins, so he determines within himself how far, and how long he will bear with sinful men or nations, and what should be the period of his patience, and when that comes, their measure is full, and their destruction comes, Jer. li. 13. Mat. xxiii. 32. 1 Thess. ii. 16.)

V. 17. A smoaking furnace, and a burning lamp—By which symbol God designed to represent, either the future state of Abram's seed: the smoaking furnace, signifying Israel's misery in the iron furnace of Egypt, as it is called, (Jer. xi. 4.) and the burning lamp, noting their deliverance, or light shining out of darkness, or, His own presence: for God is called a consuming fire, (Heb. xii. 29.) and both smoak and fire are elsewhere mentioned as the signs of God's appearance.

V. 18. Have I given—Promised to give, which makes it as sure, as if it were actually given, I will give: words of the past time being often put for the future, especially in prophecies. The river of Egypt—Not Nilus, but a river called Sihor, which divides Egypt from Canaan. The river Euphrates—The accomplishment see (2 Sam. viii. 3. 1 King. iv. 21.)

V. 19. Kenites—Supposed the Medianites. Kenizzites—Thought to be the Idumæans, Esau's race. The Kadmonites—The Eastern people, as the word signifies, elsewhere called the Hivites, who lived near the mount Hermon, which was in the East part of Canaan. CHAP. XVI.

V. 2. That I may obtain children by her—She reckons the children of her bond-woman, would be accounted her children.

Abram

Before Christ 1911.

3 And Sarai, Abram's wife, took Hagar her maid, the Egyptian, after Abram had dwelt ten years in the land of Canaan, and gave her to her husband Abram to be his wife.

4 ¶ And he went in unto Hagar, and she conceived: and, when she saw that she had conceived, her mistress was despised in her eyes.

5 And Sarai said unto Abram, My wrong be upon thee: I have given my maid into thy bosom; and, when she saw that she had conceived, I was despised in her eyes; the Lord judge between me and thee.

6 But Abram said unto Sarai, Behold, thy maid is in thy hand; do to her † as it pleaseth thee. And, when Sarai ‡ dealt hardly with her, she fled from her face.

† Heb. that which is good in thine eyes. ‡ Heb. afflicted her.

7 ¶ And the Angel of the Lord found her by a fountain of water in the wilderness [e] by the fountain in the way to [f] Shur.

Before Christ 1911.

8 And he said, Hagar, Sarai's maid, whence camest thou? and whither wilt thou go? and she said, I flee from the face of my mistress Sarai.

[e] Ch. 25. 18. [f] Ex. 15. 22.

9 And the Angel of the Lord said unto her, Return to thy mistress, and submit thyself under her hands.

10 And the Angel of the Lord said unto her, [g] I will multiply thy seed exceedingly, that it shall not be numbered for multitude.

[g] Ch. 17. 20. & 21. 18.

11 And the Angel of the Lord said unto her, Behold, thou art with child, and shalt bear a son, and shalt call his name § Ishmael; because the Lord hath heard thy affliction.

§ That is God shall hear.

12 [h] And he will be a wild man; his hand will be against every man, and every man's

[h] Ch. 21. 20.

Abram hearkened to the voice of Sarai—And not to the voice of God.

V. 3. To be his wife—His Concubine, or secondary wife. Polygamy, though it was forbid by God's first institution, and brought into the world by wicked Lamech, yet it was sometimes practised by the Patriarchs, either by God's permission, or by their mistake about the lawfulness of it. As for the present case, it is evident this action was from an earnest desire of having children, and especially of obtaining the blessed and promised seed.

V. 4. Her mistress was despised in her eyes—For barrenness in itself was a reproach, and especially to Sarai, who seemed to be a person rejected by God, as one whom he would not honour with being the mother of that seed: and Hagar being suddenly made Sarai's equal, and superior to her in respect of that great blessing of child-bearing, she grew insolent.

V. 5. Sarai said unto Abram, my wrong be upon thee—The injury done to me by Hagar, who thus wickedly requites my kindness to her, be upon thee; is to be imputed to thee, thou art the cause of it, because thou dost not repress her arrogancy. The Lord judge between me and thee—Give forth a righteous sentence between us, and deal with each of us according to our guilt or innocency in this matter.

V. 6. Thy maid is in thine hand—Subject to thy authority. Do to her as it pleaseth thee—Use whatsoever power God hath given thee over her. And when Sarai dealt hardly with her—Used her with severity which God ever forbids. She fled from her face—Contrary to God's command, and to Abram's right.

V. 7. The Angel of the Lord—The Son of God, who often appeared in man's shape, before he took man's nature, is called an Angel or Messenger, because he was the Angel of the Covenant, and was sent to men in the Old Testament, and at last was to be sent in the flesh as the great Messenger of peace and reconciliation. Shur—A place near Egypt.

V. 8. Hagar, Sarai's maid—By which title he admonishes her, that though she was Abram's wife, yet she was Sarai's maid, to whom she owed subjection, and from which she could not lawfully withdraw herself. Whither wilt thou go—Consider what an exchange thou art making. Thou forsakest not only thy master, but thou castest thyself out of the true church, and art running into a place of idolatry and impiety, and this through pride and impatience.

V. 9. Submit thyself—The way to present and endless peace has ever been the same.—Submit thyself humbly and patiently to thy part of the trouble of this life of trial, to which all men are born, because born in sin: and let experience say whether the heavenly messenger ought or ought not to be obeyed. They that give way to their own passion or self will and injure another, must unavoidably, as indeed we ought, suffer pain ourselves as the punishment for the crime of disturbing another's peace; but when (as in the case of Hagar) we will not endure the difficulties of our station, but passionately fly from them, shall we find peace though our conduct should only affect ourselves? Whether will, passion or submission make us most happy in ourselves, and most useful and agreeable to our fellow-creatures? The message from heaven says submit thyself, and what God commands is ever that which in the nature of things is best for all and every one to do. Every trial and affliction his Providence appoints is either to do us good by curing or preventing some greater evil, or to lead us to some greater blessing: and whatever may be the future benefits of a will resigned to the will of God, to take the advice, or rather command to Hagar, and humbly submit ourselves now to every suffering which God allows or directs, will bring that present heaven which all enjoy who have learned the happy lesson of looking to the author and finisher of their faith for grace to possess their souls in patience.

V. 11. The Lord hath heard thy affliction—Yes! and for ever be adored his goodness, and mine too: and this is the character of Him that hears affliction—His mercy endures for ever to all that fear him; and he helpeth the poor out of misery. What are the occasions wherein all other help, but God's must fail us? Who are the first objects of pity, the poor that have the Lord for their God, or they who are too rich, too full, too busy to think of God, or too high in their own conceits to think how much all who are born to die, stand in need of God's help.

V. 12. He will be a wild man—A man fierce, untamed, and unsettled in his habitation, living in deserts and mountains, warlike, and violent. His hand will be against every man, and every man's hand against him—He will provoke and injure all that converse with him, and thereby will multiply his enemies: which is to be understood not only of him, but also of his posterity. He shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren—In the borders of the other sons and kindred of Abram and Isaac, who though they shall be vexed and annoyed with his neighbourhood, yet shall not be able to destroy him or drive him away. We have here the distinguishing particulars of Ishmael and his descendant's way of living foretold in a most exact manner, which were not only verified in him, but in his descendants to this very day, after the space of above three thousand years: Ishmael and his posterity were to be wild, fierce, savage, ranging in the deserts, and not easily softened and tamed to Society: All that have read or known any thing of this people, need not be told that this is their true character. We find (Gen. xxi. 20.) that Ishmael himself dwelt in the wilderness, and became an archer: and the same is no less true of his descendants than of himself. He dwelt in the wilderness; and his sons still inhabit the wilderness, and many of them neither

Before Christ 1898. hand against him: [i] and he shall dwell in the presence of all his brethren.

i Ch. 25. 18.

13 And [k] she called the name of the Lord that spake unto her, Thou God seest me: for she said, Have I also here looked after him that seeth me? Before Christ 1898.

k See Chap. 31. 30.

neither sow nor plant, according to the best accounts of them antient and modern. And he became an archer; and such were the Ituræans, some of his descendents, whose bows and arrows are famous in all authors; such were the mighty men of Kedar, others of his descendents in Isaiah's time: (Isa. xxi. 17) and such the Arabs, his descendents likewise; have been from the beginning, and are at this time. It was late before they admitted the use of fire-arms among them; the greater part are still strangers to them, and continue skilful archers; and, to this day, the greatest part of them are called the wild Arabs.

It is exactly fulfilled, that his hand is against every man, and every man's hand against him, and yet that he should be able to dwell in the presence of all his brethren: This has been fulfilled both in the person of Ishmael, and his posterity. As for Ishmael himself, the sacred historian relates, (Gen. xxv. 17. 18.) that the years of the life of Ishmael were an hundred and thirty and seven years, and he died in the presence of all his brethren. And as for his posterity, they dwelt likewise in the presence of all their brethren, Abraham's sons by Keturah; the Moabites and Ammonites, descendents of Lot; the Israelites, descendents of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; and the Edomites, descendents of Abraham, Isaac, and Esau. And they still subsist a distinct people, and inhabit the country of their progenitors, notwithstanding the perpetual enmity between them and the rest of mankind.

Though part of the country possessed by the descendents of Ishmael has been famous from all antiquity for the happiness of its climate, its fertility and riches, so as to obtain the name of Arabia the happy; though, besides this temptation, the plundering way of life of the Arabs, and the damage they have ever done to others, has stirred up many great princes, their neighbours, to extirpate them, yet all attempts of this sort have ever proved vain: The great conquerors of antiquity, Cyrus and the Persians, Alexander, and afterwards the Romans, who seem to have conquered and brought under their subjection most other parts of the world, could by no means bring the Arabs under their subjection. Diodorus says of them, that neither the Assyrians, nor the kings of the Medes and Persians, nor yet of the Macedonians were able to subdue them; nay, though they led many and great forces against them, yet they could not accomplish their attempts. And undoubted history informs us of such remarkable interpositions of providence to preserve them, when they have been upon the brink of ruin, that when we consider them, we cannot help being struck with admiration at the holy scriptures declaring the end from the beginning, and from antient times, the things that are not yet done.

When Alexander the great overturned the Persian empire, and conquered all Asia, the neighbouring princes sent their ambassadors to make their submissions. The Arabs (the descendents of Ishmael) alone disdained to acknowledge the Conqueror, and scorned to send any embassy, or take any notice of him. This slight provoked him to such a degree, that he meditated an expedition against them; and humanly speaking, considering the vast army he had, the great assistance he would have received from all the neighbouring princes, and his being in want of nothing that could contribute to his success, we can scarcely suppose but he would have intirely destroyed them: But whilst he was thinking on these things, God took him away by death, and put an end to all his resentment and designs against them, and again showed the world that there was one greater than the greatest. When the Romans subdued the rest of the East, Arabia alone stood out; and when Lucullus, one of their generals, had subdued some of the Arabs, he was recalled, and Pompey sent in his room; and tho' he triumphed over three parts of the world, yet he could not conquer Arabia: He was indeed in a fair way for it, having obtained some victories, and penetrated into the country; but the word of God was against him, so that when success seemed ready to crown him with an entire subjection of the country, other affairs obliged him to leave it, and by retiring he lost all the advantages he had gained. Ælius Gallus, a Roman general in the reign of Augustus, penetrated far into the country, but then a strange distemper made terrible havoc in his army; and after two years spent, he was glad to escape with the small remainder of his forces. But the interposition of providence to save them was still more remarkable; at the times they were attacked by the emperors Trajan and Severus, which is related by Dio, when the emperor Trajan besieged the city of the Hagarenes (who were descended and denominated from Hagar): Dio relates, That as often as his soldiers attacked the city, the whole heavens shook with thunder; rainbows were seen in the sky, (both considered as terrifying omens by the Romans); violent storms, hail, and thunderbolts, fell upon them; and that all these were repeated as often as they returned to the assault of the city; and that as often as they sat down to refresh themselves with a repast, a multitude of flies lighting both on their eatables and liquor, made all that they eat or drank most nauseous; so that by these things the emperor was forced at last to raise the siege, and retire into his dominions. It may be further observed, that when they were attacked by Trajan, the power of the whole world was united into one empire, and the whole power of that empire in his hands; and that he was himself a man of great abilities, remarkably beloved by his soldiers, indefatigable in the toils of war, greatly experienced in all that belongs to it, fearless of death in dangers; so that if it were possible that God's promise of subsistence to Ishmael in freedom, though at enmity with the rest of the world, could be defeated by human wisdom, or mortal might, it must have been at this time: But God had declared, that Ishmael (which included his posterity likewise) should be free as the wild ass, whose bands he has loosed, who scorneth the multitude of the city, neither regardeth he the crying of the driver: That tho' his hand should be against every man, and every man's hand against him; yet he should dwell in the presence of all his brethren; that is, subsist perpetually before their faces, notwithstanding all their endeavours to extirpate him or bring him under subjection. About eight years after, the emperor Severus besieged the same city with a numerous army, and Dio, the historian, who gives an account of this expedition, as well as of that under Trajan, again remarks that God preserved the city; who, by the Emperor, called back the soldiers when they could have entered it, and again restrained the emperor from taking it, when he was willing, by the soldiers.

And well might the historian make this remark, for it appears, that the emperor being at first repulsed with loss, made great preparations for the second assault, in which (after a great loss of his soldiers) he overthrew part of the city wall, so that an entrance lay open into the city: But just at that time the emperor caused a retreat to be sounded, imagining that the besieged would come to intreat for peace; to obtain which, he thought they would discover where the vast treasures, which were supposed to belong to their temple of the sun, were laid; and which he thought might be lost, if the city was sacked, and the inhabitants destroyed. But the Hagarenes continued resolute the whole day, giving no intimation of their desire of any treaty of peace. On the morrow following, when the emperor would have renewed the attack, the European soldiers, before most resolute, would make no attempt to enter at the breach; and the Syrians, enforced to take the service, had a grievous repulse: No persuasions, no promises, no threats, could engage the Europeans to renew their attacks; so that though after the breach in the walls, the conquest in martial esteem appeared so easy, that one of Severus's captains confidently undertook to effect it, if he could have but five hundred and fifty European soldiers assigned to the attack, yet the emperor could do no more than reply in a rage, "Where shall I find so many soldiers!" And so departed

Before Christ 1898.

14 Wherefore the well was called [1] * Beer-lahai-roi: behold it is [m] between Kadesh and Bered.

[1] Ch. 24. 62. and 25. 11. * That is, the well of him that liveth & seeth me.

15 ¶ And [n] Hagar bare Abram a son: and Abram called his son's name, which Hagar bare, Ishmael.

[m] Numb. 13. 26.

16 And Abram was fourscore and six years old, when Hagar bare Ishmael to Abram.

[n] Gal. 4. 22.

1910.

CHAP XVII.

1898.

AND, when Abram was ninety years old and nine, the Lord appeared to Abram, and said unto him, [a] I am the Almighty God, walk [b] before me, and be thou * perfect.

Before Christ 1898.

2 And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and [c] will multiply thee exceedingly.

[a] Ch. 28. 3. [b] Ch. 5. 22. and 48. 15. 1 Kings 3. 14 and 8. 25. * Or, upright or, sincere. [c] Ch. 12. 2. and 13. 16.

3 And Abram fell on his face: and God talked with him, saying,

4 As for me, behold my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of † many nations.

† Heb. multitude of nations.

5 Neither

departed into Palestine. And yet this very emperor was beloved and revered by his soldiers almost to adoration, but could not now influence them to assault the enemy, when they were almost at their mercy. A fact so extraordinary, that it appears to be manifestly the interposition of that Mighty Being, who at his pleasure poureth contempt upon princes, and bringeth the counsel of the heathen to nought. It may be added, that the Hagarenes stood single in this extremity, against the whole Roman power; for Dio expressly says, that not one of their neighbours would assist them. And we may likewise observe, that the spirit of freedom, which was the declared characteristic of Ishmael before he was born, was remarkable at this time in these his descendents, since they seem to have been fully determined, either to live absolutely free, or to die so; disdaining to have any treaty, or make any terms, even with the emperor of the world. Nothing can be more convincing that it was God himself who dictated the scriptures, than to find them thus declaring what shall be, for ages to come; and to know that these predictions have been thus exactly fulfilled without any variation during so many ages; and that the prophecies concerning this son of Abraham's, Ishmael, should to this day be receiving their accomplishment publicly and exactly in every particular, in his numerous descendents. But surely some higher use is intended to mankind, by all the evidence the world has had of this untamed spirit, in those that are opposed to the heirs of the promise. Shall we not find, from the beginning to the end of the scriptures, that all the sons of faithful Abraham, are at the same time the sons of peace, the lovers of God, and the friends and servants of mankind; suffering themselves, rather than raising an hand to hurt even their enemies? And do we not see, on the other hand, that all these elder sons of nature, before their minds are subdued by grace, that in some sense or other their hand is against every man? What will not the ambitious or covetous do to their brethren rather than suffer any restraint in the object of their desires? Ought we not then to look upon these descendents of Abraham as living witnesses to the world in all ages of what the natural man is wherever he lives? And, in going through the scriptures, it is material to keep in view the distinction that is made between those that submit themselves to the government of the blessed spirit, and they who do not; but who are governed by the spirit of the prince of this world, as Satan is called, and by their own natural passions, will, and desires; and whether the faithful or disobedient are described by prophecy, or by the accounts given us of the conduct of men acting under the influence of those opposite spirits. Are we not to look upon those lively descriptions as the most evident discoveries to us of what all men are by nature, and what all men do become when grace takes place? And doubtless not an individual of Ishmael's race, during their state of trial, are placed beyond the reach of that blood which was shed not only for all the sons of Abraham, but of Adam; and surely the God of mercy purchased grace, when he atoned for the sins of the world equal to the wants of all; and that none but such as will not submit themselves to the prince of peace, whether descended from Ishmael or Isaac, will be excluded from God's gracious design of including the heathen in the inheritance of his well-beloved and equal SON. O that his name and nature may soon become known, acknowledged, and submitted to, by all the sons of men!

V. 13. She called the name of the Lord that spake unto her—Elroi—Thou art a God that seest me. Thou God seest me—Thou hast been pleased to take notice and care of me, and graciously to manifest thyself unto me. I also here looked after him that seeth me—In this desolate wilderness, I have seen the face of my gracious God. But this is only the beginning of those discoveries which the scriptures make to men, of God's surprising the afflicted with relief and unlooked for goodness.

V. 14. The well was called Beer-lahai-roi—That is the well of him that liveth and seeth me This name may have respect either to God, The well of him that liveth, the true and living God. And seeth me—Taketh care of me. Or, To Hagar, The well of her that liveth, who though she gave up herself for dead and lost, yet now is likely to live, both in her person, and in her posterity, and seeth, or did see, God present with her.

V. 15. Hagar bare Abram a son—After her return and submission to her mistress.

CHAP. XVII.

V. 1. When Abram was ninety years old and nine—Full thirteen years after the birth of Ishmael. So long the promise of Isaac was deferred; perhaps to correct Abram's over-hasty marrying of Hagar. And Abram and Sarai being so far advanced in years that God's power might be the more evident. The Lord appeared unto Abram—In some visible display of God's immediate glorious presence with him. And said, I am the Almighty God—Who can do all that I have promised, or shall promise to thee, and whatsoever pleaseth me: And therefore do thou firmly believe all my words. Walk before me—As becomes one in the presence of thy Lord, and Judge, and Rewarder, being careful to please and obey me in all things, and depending upon me for thy well doing, and well-being. And be thou perfect—Which my grace is sufficient to make thee, and which grace, for the sake of the promised seed, I am ready to communicate to thee as thy wants require, as I ever shall be to all who will but believe in my power and willingness to save from the evil of their nature, and to bless them with my own, Phil. ii. 5. I am El Shaddai. It speaks the almighty power of God, either as an avenger; or, as a benefactor. Our Old English translation reads it here, very significantly, I am God All sufficient. The God with whom we have to do, is self-sufficient; he hath every thing, and he needs not any thing. And he is enough to us, if we be in covenant with him; we have all in him, and we have enough in him; enough to satisfy our most enlarged desires of happiness here and for ever.

V. 2. I will make my covenant between me and thee—I am come to renew, establish, and enlarge that covenant which I formerly made with thee.

V. 3. And Abram fell on his face while God talked with him—As one overcome by the brightness of the divine glory; as one ashamed and overcome with a sense of the favour of God to one so unworthy. He looks upon himself with humility, and upon God with reverence, and, in token of both, falls on his face.

V. 4. Thou shalt be a father of many nations—The promise is here introduced with solemnity: As for me, saith the Great God, Behold, behold and admire it, behold and be assured of it, my covenant is with thee. And thou shalt be a father of many nations—This implies, That his seed after the flesh should be very numerous,

Before Christ 1898.

5 Neither shall thy name any more be called Abram; but [d] thy name shall be Abraham: [e] for a father of many nations have I made thee.

d Neh. 9. 7.
e Rom. 4. 17.

6 And I will make thee exceeding fruitful, and I will make [f] nations of thee; and kings shall come out of thee.

f Ch. 35. 11.

7 And I will establish my covenant between me and thee, and thy seed after thee in their generations, for an everlasting covenant; to be a God unto thee, and to thy seed after thee.

8 And [g] I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land ‡ [h] wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their God.

g Ch. 12. 7. and 13. 15.
‡ Heb of thy sojournings.
h Ch. 23. 3.

9 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and thy seed after thee, in their generations.

10 This is my covenant, which ye shall keep between me and you, and thy seed after thee; [i] Every man-child among you shall be circumcised.

Before Christ 1898.
i Acts 7. 8.

11 And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your fore-skin, and it shall be [k] a token of the covenant betwixt me and you.

k Acts 7. 8. Rom. 4. 11.

12 And § he that is eight days old [l] shall be circumcised among you, every man-child in your generations, he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any stranger, which is not of thy seed.

§ Heb. a son of eight days.
l Lev. 12. 3. Luke 2. 21. John 7. 22. Phil. 3. 5.

13 He that is born in thy house, and he that is bought with thy money must needs be circumcised: and my covenant shall be in your flesh, for an everlasting covenant.

14 And the uncircumcised man-child, whose flesh of his fore-skin is not circumcised, that soul shall be cut off from his people: he hath broken my covenant.

15 ¶ And

both in Isaac and Ishmael, and in the sons of Keturah. And the event answered, for there have been, and are, more of the children of men descended from Abraham, than from any one man at equal distance with him from Noah, the common root. And that all believers, in every age, should be looked upon as his spiritual seed, as the father of the faithful. In this sense the apostle directs us to understand this promise, Rom. iv. 16, 17. He is the father of those, in every nation, that, by faith, enter into covenant with God, and are gathered under the wings of the divine majesty.

V. 5. Thy name shall be Abraham—In token of this, his name, was changed from Abram, a high father, to Abraham, the father of a multitude. This was to confirm the faith of Abraham, while he was childless; perhaps even his own name was sometime an occasion of grief to him; Why should he be called a high father, who was not a father at all? But now God had promised him a numerous issue, and had given him a name which signified so much; that name was his joy. Ham in the Hebrew being put for Hamon, which signifies a multitude.

V. 6. Kings shall come out of thee—So did the kings of Israel and Judah, of Edom, of the Saracens, and the Messias, who is king of kings, and Lord of lords.

V. 7. I will be a God unto thee; and I will establish my covenant—Not to be altered or revoked; not with thee only, then it would die with thee; but with thy seed after thee; and it is not only thy seed after the flesh, but thy spiritual seed. It is everlasting in the evangelical meaning of it. The covenant of grace is everlasting; it is from everlasting in the counsels of it, and to everlasting in the consequences of it, and the external administration of it is transmitted, with the seal of it, to the seed of believers, and the internal administration of it by the Spirit of Christ's seed in every age. This is a covenant of exceeding great and precious promises. Here are such as are indeed all-sufficient, that God would be their God. All the privileges of the covenant, all its joys, and all its hopes, are summed up in this. A man needs desire no more than this to make him happy. What God is himself, that he will be to his people: Wisdom to guide and counsel them, power to protect and support them, goodness to supply and comfort them; what faithful worshippers can expect from the God they serve, believers shall find in God as theirs. This promise contains in it all blessings, temporal, spiritual and eternal.

V. 8. I will give unto thee, and to thy seed—Unto thee not in thy own person, but in thy seed. For an everlasting possession—Upon their obedience, in which they so notoriously failed, that it is no wonder if they possessed it but a little while, as the prophet complains, Isa. lxiii. 18. God had before promised this land to Abraham and his seed; but here, it is promised for an everlasting possession, as a type of heaven, that everlasting rest which remains for the people of God. This is that better country to which Abraham had an eye, and the grant of which was that which answered the vast extent of that promise, that God would be to them a God. As the land of Canaan was secured to the seed of Abraham, according to the flesh; so heaven is secured to all his spiritual seed for a possession truly everlasting, and the earnest of it is given to all believers.

V. 9. Thou shalt keep my covenant—My laws. This was God's command, which doubtless his grace was ever nigh to enable them to keep.

V. 10. This is my covenant—Circumcision is here called the covenant by an usual metonymy, because it is the condition, sign, and seal of the covenant, the pledge of God's promise and man's duty.

And upon the same grounds the cup, the wine, is called The New Testament in Christ's blood, Luke xxii. 20. This was a confirmation to Abraham and his seed of those promises which were made by God, assuring them that, in due time, Canaan should be theirs: and the continuance of this ordinance, after Canaan was theirs, intimates, that that promise looked farther, to another Canaan. An obligation upon Abraham and his seed to that duty which was their part of the covenant, not only to the duty of accepting the covenants and putting away the corruption of the flesh, which were primarily signified by circumcision, but in general to the observation of all God's commands. They who will have God to be to them a God, must consent to be to him a people.

V. 11. It shall be a token betwixt me and you—A sign, evidence, and assurance, both of the blessing promised by that God who appointed this ordinance, and of man's obligation to the duties required, which is signified by his acceptance of and submission to this ordinance. And here we have the nature and definition of a Sacrament that it is a figure or token of God's covenant.

V. 12 In your generations—Successively till the Messias come who shall circumcise your hearts, and change this ordnance for another.

V. 13. An everlasting covenant—So it was and is properly in regard of the thing signified to all true believers; and for the sign it is so called, because it was to endure through all generations till the coming of the Messias.

V. 14. Shall be cut off from his people—This phrase denotes, either, an exclusion from fellowship with God's people, and from all the promises, privileges, and blessings belonging to them either in this

Before Christ 1898.

15 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, As for Sarai thy wife, thou shalt not call her name Sarai, but Sarah shall her name be.

16 And I will bless her, and give thee a son also of her: yea, I will bless her, and † she shall be a mother [m] of nations; kings of people shall be of her.

† Heb. she shall become nations.
m Chap. 35. 11. Gal. 4. 31.

17 Then Abraham fell upon his face, [n] and laughed, and said in his heart, Shall a child be born unto him that is an hundred years old? and shall Sarah, that is ninety years old, bear?

1 Pet. 3. 6.
n Chap. 18. 12.

18 And Abraham said unto God, O that Ishmael might live before thee!

19 And God said, [o] Sarah thy wife shall bear thee a son indeed; and thou shalt call his name Isaac: and I will establish my covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him.

o Chap. 18. 10. and 21. 2.

20 And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee: Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, [p] and will multiply him exceedingly; [o] twelve princes shall he beget, [r] and I will make him a great nation.

p Chap. 16. 10.
o Chap. 25. 12, 16.
r Chap. 21. 18.

21 But my covenant will I establish with Isaac, [s] whom Sarah shall bear unto thee at this set time in the next year.

s Chap. 21. 2.

22 And he left off talking with him, and God went up from Abraham.

Before Christ 1898.

23 ¶ And Abraham took Ishmael his son, and all that were born in his house, and all that were bought with his money, every male among the men of Abraham's house, and circumcised the flesh of their fore-skin, in the self-same day, as God had said unto him.

24 And Abraham was ninety years old and nine, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his fore-skin.

25 And Ishmael his son was thirteen years old, when he was circumcised in the flesh of his fore-skin.

26 In the self-same day was Abraham circumcised, and Ishmael his son.

27 And all the men of his house, born in the house, and bought with money of the stranger, were circumcised with him.

C H A P. XVIII.

AND the Lord appeared unto him in the plains of Mamre: and he sat in the tent-door in the heat of the day.

2 [a] And he lift up his eyes and looked, and lo, three men stood by him: and when he saw them, he ran to meet them from the tent-

a Heb. 13. 2.

this life, or that to come. Or, An untimely and violent death to be inflicted by the magistrate, to whom God committed the execution of this as well as other laws; and in case of his neglect and default, or the secrecy of the fact, by the extraordinary hand of God, who sometimes ascribes this act to himself.

V. 15. Sarah shall her name be—Sarai signifies my lady, or my princess, which confines her dominion to one family; but Sarah signifies either a lady or princess, without restriction.

V. 17. Abraham fell upon his face—Through admiration and holy rejoicing at so great a blessing; not through unbelief. Now it was that Abraham rejoiced to see Christ's day; now he saw it and was glad, (John viii. 56.) for as he saw heaven in the promise of Canaan, so he saw Christ in the promise of Isaac, and said, Shall a child be born to him that is an hundred years old?—He doth not here speak of it as at all doubtful, for we are sure he staggered not at the promise, (Rom. iv. 20.) but as wonderful, and that which could not be effected, but by the almighty power of God.

V. 18. Grant, O Lord, that the giving of one son may not be joined with the taking away of another, that Ishmael may have a share in thy favour, and gracious covenant. For this seems to be the meaning of this phrase of living before God, or in God's presence. The great thing we should desire of God for our children is, that they may live before him, that is, that they may be kept in covenant with him, and may have grace to walk before him in their uprightness. God's answer to this prayer, is an answer of peace. Abraham could not say he sought God's face in vain.

V. 20. For Ishmael, I have heard thee—God hears Abraham's prayer, and answers, I have blessed thy son; so that neither Ishmael, nor any individual of his posterity, were excluded from that mercy and grace which Abraham asked from God, for the sake of the promised seed, or Saviour of lost mankind. And shall believing parents pray in vain! Is this word, I have heard thee, of private interpretation? Shall the parent's prayer of faith, in the all-prevailing Mediator, return unanswered back? Is it not to make man more merciful than God, when we doubt, whether the fervent prayer of the believing mind shall be heard and answered from that throne of grace, to which the poorest and most miserable of mankind have access through the blood of the covenant?

V. 21. But my covenant will I establish with Isaac—From him shall come that Son of man, that promised Seed in whom the fulness of the God-head shall dwell bodily. (Col. ii. 9.) And as the blessings I have promised to Ishmael, and his offspring, shall be surely fulfilled on earth, so is my covenant of grace established to all the followers of thy faith, who, renouncing all confidence in themselves, shall only look for mercy, spiritual life, my favour and future glory as my free gift, for the sake of my beloved Son in whom I am always well pleased. Abraham's faith, and that of all the believers of old, realized to them the benefit of this promised salvation, (Psal. xvii. 7. John viii. 56.) which is still of faith that it may be by grace, (Rom. iv. 16.) that he who gave and continues natural life to men, may have all the glory of their salvation, and the sole praise for all the good that is done upon earth, and for all the mercies, peace, and blessedness they can require here, and possess for ever.

V. 22. God went up from Abraham—To heaven, in a visible manner, as it seems he conversed with him in some visible shape. (Gen. xxxv. 13.)

V. 26. In the self-same day—Abraham is here an example also of ready obedience to the command of God.

C H A P. XVIII.

V. 1. The Lord appeared unto him—Real greatness and condescension how are they allied; and God yet humbleth himself to behold the dwellers upon earth, and not as an unconcerned spectator, but in his infinite compassion to relieve, support, and bless them, and this without any variableness. (James i. 17.) He sat in the tent-door—Waiting for strangers which might pass that way, for whom no public places being provided in those times, virtuous persons used to entertain them. (Heb. xiii. 2.) In the heat of the day—When travellers used to refresh themselves.

V. 2. Three men—As they seemed to be. He bowed himself toward the ground—The father of the faithful mixes a respect with his good-will.

Before Christ 1898.

tent-door, and bowed himself toward the ground,

3 And said, My Lord, if now I have found favour in thy sight, pass not away, I pray thee, from thy servant.

a Chap. 43. 24. 4 Let [a] a little water, I pray you, be fetched, and wash your feet, and rest yourselves under the tree:

b Judg. 6. 18. and 13. 15. † Heb. stay. d Chap. 19. 8. and 33. 10. ‡ Heb. you have passed. 5 And [b] I will fetch a morsel of bread, and † comfort ye your hearts; after that you shall pass on: [d] for therefore ‡ are ye come to your servant. And they said, So do as thou hast said.

§ Heb. hasten. 6 And Abraham hastened into the tent unto Sarah, and said, § Make ready quickly three measures of fine meal, knead it, and make cakes upon the hearth.

7 And Abraham ran unto the herd, and fetcht a calf tender and good, and gave it unto a young man; and he hasted to dress it.

8 And he took butter and milk, and the calf which he had dressed, and set it before them; and he stood by them under the tree, and they did eat.

9 ¶ And they said unto him, Where is Sarah thy wife? And he said, Behold, in the tent.

e Verse 14. f 2 Kings 4. 16. g Chap. 17. 19, 21. and 21. 2. Rom. 9. 9. 10 And he said, I [e] will certainly return unto thee [f] according to the time of life; and lo, [g] Sarah thy wife shall have a son. And Sarah heard it in the tent-door, which was behind him.

11 Now [h] Abraham and Sarah were old, and well stricken in age: and it ceased to be with Sarah after the manner of women.

h Chap. 17. 17. Rom. 4. 19. Heb. 11. 11, 12.

12 Therefore Sarah laughed within herself, saying, [i] After I am waxed old, shall I have pleasure, my [k] lord being old also?

i Luke 1. 18. k 1 Pet. 3. 6.

13 And the Lord said unto Abraham, Wherefore did Sarah laugh, saying, Shall I of a surety bear a child, which am old?

14 [l] Is any thing too hard for the Lord? [m] at the time appointed will I return unto thee, according to the time of life, and Sarah shall have a son.

l Jer. 32. 17. Zech. 8. 6. Matt. 19. 26. Luke 1. 37. m Chap. 17. 21. 2 Kings 4. 16

15 Then Sarah denied, saying, I laughed not: for she was afraid. And he said, Nay, but thou didst laugh.

16 ¶ And the men rose up from thence, and looked toward Sodom: and Abraham went with them [n] to bring them on the way.

n Rom. 15. 24. 3 John 6.

17 And the Lord said, [o] Shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do; o Amos 3. 7. John 15. 15.

18 Seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be [p] blessed in him?

p Chap. 12. 3. and 22. 18. Acts 3. 25. Gal. 3. 8.

19 For I know him, that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment; that the Lord may bring upon Abraham that which he hath spoken of him.

20 And

V. 3. My Lord, if now I have found favour in thy sight—Abraham only pleads the favour of the Lord: And who that knows him must not with Abraham say, Pass not away from thy servant.

V. 4. I pray you—Abraham first addressed the chief personage; he now turns to his attendants, to include them in the offers of his hospitality and respect.

V. 5. For therefore are ye come—God directed you this way, that I might have an occasion of performing my duty to you, which I cheerfully embrace.

V. 6, 7, 8. Abraham's conduct, and the directions he gave, discovers a mind most ready to oblige and serve, and to provide what he thought would be most grateful to his guests.

V. 9. Said unto him—Not for his own satisfaction, for he who knew her name, knew also where she was, but to give occasion for the following discourse.

V. 10. I will return unto thee—To fulfil my promise, and Sarah shall have a son.

V. 12. Sarah laughed within herself—Not from joy and admiration, but from distrust.

V. 13. Wherefore did Sarah laugh—The sense is, though she laughed only in her heart, it is not unknown to me.

V. 15. Sarah was afraid—From the sense of guilt and the discovery of her shame, and the expectation of a rebuke.

V. 16. Abraham went with them to bring them on the way—Abraham omits no expression of grateful respect to his Lord, and to his attendants.

V. 17. Shall I hide from Abraham—I will not, it is against the laws of friendship to conceal my secrets from him. Here we have an instance how dear those are to God who serve him faithfully. God himself expresses, that Abraham's behaviour was so acceptable to him, that he would not hide from him the thing which he intended to do, but admit him to the high honour of being a partaker in his counsels, in the affairs of the earth.

V. 18. Seeing—Seeing I have done greater things for him, how can I deny him the less? (Rom. viii. 32.) God's ways are not like men's ways. Former favours to men are arguments why they should do no more, but to God they are motives for the adding of new ones.

V. 19. I know him, that he will command his children and his household—God adds hereto a part of Abraham's character which deserves our notice; I know him, says God, that he will command his children, and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment. It will not be in vain that I tell him this, and give him occasion to pray, and to taste my goodness in answering prayers, because he will not smother these things in his own breast, but manifest them to others, and teach them how good God is, who so readily complies with the desires and prayers of men, and how terrible he is to incorrigible sinners, and how evil and bitter a thing it is to sin against God. And so I shall get the end I aim at in all my works, which is that they may be known for the good of others, that they may learn by such examples. After him—He will so diligently imprint these things in their minds that they shall never forget them. He shall not lose his labour; for what he teaches they shall learn and practise. From whence we may learn, that we are not only to know and serve God ourselves, but we are to take all opportunities of instructing others in the ways of God, especially all that are under our particular care, whether children or servants. In reality, every man's family is his flock, and he their shepherd who is to lead

Before Christ 1898.

20 And the Lord said, Because [o] the cry of Sodom and Gomorrah is great, and because their sin is very grievous;

21 [r] I will go down now, and see whether they have done altogether according to the cry of it, which is come unto me; and if not, I will know.

22 And the men turned their faces from thence, and went towards Sodom: but Abraham stood yet before the Lord.

23 ¶ And Abraham drew near, and said, Wilt thou also destroy the righteous with the wicked?

24 [s] Peradventure there be fifty righteous within the city: wilt thou also destroy and not spare the place for the fifty righteous that are therein?

25 That be far from thee to do after this manner, to slay the righteous with the wicked: and that the righteous should be as the wicked, that be far from thee: [t] Shall not the Judge of all the earth do right?

26 And the Lord said, If I find in Sodom fifty righteous within the city, then I will spare all the place for their sakes.

27 And Abraham answered and said, Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord, which am [u] but dust and ashes.

28 Peradventure there shall lack five of the fifty righteous: wilt thou destroy all the city for lack of five? And he said, If I find there forty and five, I will not destroy it.

29 And he spake unto him yet again, and said, Peradventure there shall be forty found there. And he said, I will not do it for forties sake.

30 And he said unto him, Oh let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak: Peradventure there shall thirty be found there. And he said, I will not do it, if I find thirty there.

31 And he said, Behold now, I have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord: Peradventure there shall be twenty found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for twenties sake.

32 And he said, [x] Oh let not the Lord be angry, and I will speak yet but this once: Peradventure ten shall be found there. And he said, I will not destroy it for tens sake.

33 And the Lord went his way, as soon as he had left communing with Abraham: and Abraham returned unto his place.

CHAP.

o Chap. 4. 10. and 19. 13. James 5. 4.
r Chap. 11. 5.
s Jer. 5. 1.
t Job 8. 3. and 34. 17. Psal. 94. 2. Rom. 3. 6.
u Chap. 3. 19. Job 4. 19. Eccles. 12. 7. 1 Cor. 15. 47, 48. 2 Cor. 5. 1. x Judg. 6. 39.

lead them to the pure streams of truth; they are his disciples, and he is to teach them the ways of salvation; they are his followers, and he is to be a guide to direct them to the gate that leads to life. Besides, it is the particular province allotted to him, wherein he is to shew forth the praise of the Lord, and tell forth all his wondrous works. And this we find was what Abraham did in his family, and it was seen and accepted by God.

V. 20. The cry—Sins are said to cry when they are gross and manifest, such as highly provoke God to anger. Sodom and Gomorrah—He names only these two, as being the most eminent and exemplary in wickedness, but under them includes the rest.

V. 21. I will go and see—Inquire into the truth of the thing. God here speaks after the manner of men, and for the example and instruction of Judges to search into causes ere they pass sentence. Whether they have done altogether—Whether they have filled up the measure of their sins.

V. 22. The men—The two angels went on towards Sodom, but the Divine Person entered into farther discourse with Abraham. They are called men in this chapter, probably because they appeared in human shape, and did nothing extraordinary to shew themselves to be other than men, except only the Divine Person, who said enough to Abraham to shew him he was Jehovah.

V. 23. Abraham drew near—Approached unto God to inquire of Him, and to pray unto Him: For so the phrase of drawing near to God is used. (Heb. x. 22.)

V. 24. Within the city—The city of Sodom alone is mentioned, but the rest are comprehended under it, either because of its eminency, or because they were subject or subordinate to it, as may seem probable from the history.

V. 25. Shall not the Judge of all the earth—Now he clearly perceives that this person was no less than the Creator, Governor, and Judge of the world, even the second person in the blessed trinity, to whom that title and work is ascribed. (John v. 22, 27. Acts x. 42. and xvii. 31.) Do right—He speaks not this, as if it were simply unjust for God to involve the righteous in the same temporal destruction with the wicked, for he knew very well and by his own experience, that there was not a just man upon earth that did good and sinned not, and therefore no such just man who did not for his own sin deserve that death and destruction, which is the proper wages of sin. (Rom. vi. 23.) But he speaks not here of strict and rigorous justice, but of that moderate and equitable way which God is pleased to use with the sons of men, and of that right to temporal deliverances, which, by virtue of God's gracious covenant and promise, did accrue to pious persons, especially in the times of the Old Testament, when temporal promises were more expressly and particularly made to good men.

V. 28. How urgent and moving is the entreaty of Abraham for the men of Sodom, though from the corruption of their manners it may be presumed, that he had little society with them; and, therefore, his was a pure and generous philanthropy, which looked upon all mankind as his friends and brethren. We may observe here, how highly precious in the sight of God the faithful are, and how much they contribute to the happiness of the world; for it is not only by their just and kind conduct that they do good to mankind, but it is probable from the instance before us, that they contribute to avert God's severe judgments from the respective communities they live in. And this, perhaps, may account for God's delay in making examples of cities and places which are notoriously wicked. The few righteous mingled among them, which would be involved in their ruin, are so dear to Him, that it turns aside his anger; and, as the Angels told Lot, They cannot do any thing whilst he was there.

V. 32. Yet but this once—Abraham could proceed no further; and being a good man himself, he had a charitable opinion of others, and thought there certainly were so many good men in all those cities, especially including Lot and his family. No doubt Abraham remembered Lot in his prayers; but that large and generous soul could not content himself with Lot's preservation, but aims at the saving of the whole cities, which, when he saw was doubtful and unlikely, he prayed for Lot's deliverance out of that common destruction, as may be gathered from Gen. xix. 29.

CHAP.

Before Christ 1898.

CHAP. XIX.

AND there came two angels to Sodom at even; and Lot sat in the gate of Sodom: and Lot seeing them, rose up to meet them; and he bowed himself with his face toward the ground;

a Heb. 13. 2. 2 And he said, Behold now, my lords, [a] turn in, I pray you, into your servant's house, b Chap. 18. 4. and tarry all night, and [b] wash your feet, and ye shall rise up early, and go on your ways. c See Luke 24. 28. And they said, [c] Nay, but we will abide in the street all night.

3 And he pressed upon them greatly; and they turned in unto him, and entered into his house: and he made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread, and they did eat.

4 ¶ But before they lay down, the men of the city, even the men of Sodom, compassed the house round, both old and young, all the people from every quarter.

5 And they called unto Lot, and said unto him, Where are the men which came in to d Judges 19. 22. thee this night? [d] bring them out unto us, that we may know them.

6 And Lot went out at the door unto them, and shut the door after him,

7 And said, I pray you, brethren, do not so wickedly.

e See Judg. 19. 24. 8 [e] Behold now, I have two daughters which have not known man; let me, I pray you, bring them out unto you, and do ye to them as is good in your eyes: only unto these men do nothing; f See Chap. 18. 5. [f] for therefore came they under the shadow of my roof.

9 And they said, Stand back. And they said again, This one fellow came in to sojourn, [g] and he will needs be a judge: Now will we deal worse with thee, than with them. And they pressed sore upon the man, even Lot, and came near to break the door.

Before Christ 1898.

g Exod. 2. 14.

10 But the men put forth their hand, and pulled Lot into the house to them, and shut to the door.

11 And they smote the men [h] that were at the door of the house with blindness, both small and great: so that they wearied themselves to find the door.

h See 2 Kings 6. 18. Acts 13. 11.

12 ¶ And the men said unto Lot, Hast thou here any besides? son in law, and thy sons, and thy daughters, and whatsoever thou hast in the city, bring them out of this place.

13 For we will destroy this place: because the [i] cry of them is waxen great before the face of the Lord, and the Lord hath sent us to destroy it.

i Chap. 18 20.

14 And Lot went out, and spake unto his sons in law, which married his daughters, and said, Up, get ye out of this place; for the Lord will destroy this city: but he seemed as one that mocked unto his sons in law.

15 ¶ And when the morning arose, then the angels hastened Lot, saying, Arise, take thy wife, and thy two daughters, which * are here; lest thou be consumed in the ‡ iniquity of the city.

* Heb. are found.
‡ Or, punishment.

16 And while he lingered, the men laid hold upon his hand, and upon the hand of his

CHAP. XIX.

V. 1. Two Angels—So they truly were, though they are called men, chap. 18. At even—Of the same day on which they departed from Abraham. The gate of Sodom—Where he sat to wait for strangers, to whom he might exercise kindness and hospitality.

V. 2. Nay, but we will abide in the street all night—This was no untruth, but really intended on supposition that Lot should press them no further; their first denial was but decent, and an act of civility; and in them it was a design to discover Lot's piety and hospitality, and to manifest the great difference between him and the barbarous Sodomites, and the reason and justice of Lot's deliverance, and their destruction.

V. 3. He pressed upon them greatly—Because he would not have them expose themselves by lodging in the streets of Sodom, and because he was desirous of their converse.

V. 4. Every quarter—This is added to shew how universally corrupt they were, and that there were not ten righteous men there.

V. 5. They called unto Lot—They impudently profess their wicked design.

V. 6, 7. Brethren—They were so by nature, and so he calls them, that if possibly he might restrain them.

V. 8. This was a most sinful offer; whoever will say, do, or consent to any known evil from any expectation, make themselves the children and servants of satan, and are securing their own condemnation from God (Rom. iii. 8.) whose promises of protection and support belong to none that are doing evil that good may come.

V. 9. This one fellow—And he, but a stranger, presumes to oppose the whole society of the citizens, and takes upon him to censure and condemn us.

V. 10, 11. And they smote the men with blindness—This was designed to put an end to their attempt, and to be an earnest of their utter ruin the next day.

V. 12, 13. The Lord hath sent us to destroy it—The holy angels are ministers of God's wrath for the destruction of sinners, as well as of his mercy for the preservation and deliverance of those that fear him.

V. 14. Lot seemed to them as one that mocked—They thought, perhaps, that the assault which the Sodomites had just now made upon his house had disturbed him, that he knew not what he said. They that made a jest of every thing, made a jest of that, and so perished. Many who are warned of the danger they are in by sin, make a jest of it; and the examples God has made of men secure in sin, are to admonish the impenitent of their danger—danger, how great!

V. 15. The Angels hastened Lot, saying, Arise—Tarry no longer in expectation of thy sons in law, who are absent, and must be given up for lost; but take thy daughters, which are found and present with thee, and go thy way.

V. 16. He lingered—Either through unwillingness to part with all his estate, or to lose his sons in law: Or, through astonishment and distraction of mind, which made him both listless and impotent. Though Lot did not make a jest of the warning, he did not make so much haste as the case required. And it might have his wife, and upon the hand of his two daughters; the Lord being merciful unto him: and they brought him forth, and set him without the city.

Before Christ 1898.

17 And it came to pass, when they had brought them forth abroad, that he said, Escape for thy life; [k] look not behind thee, neither stay thou in all the plain: escape to the mountain, lest thou be consumed.

18 And Lot said unto them, Oh not so, my Lord.

19 Behold now, thy servant hath found grace in thy sight, and thou hast magnified thy mercy, which thou hast shewed unto me in saving my life: and I cannot escape to the mountain, lest some evil take me, and I die.

20 Behold now, this city is near to flee unto, and it is a little one: Oh let me escape thither (is it not a little one?) and my soul shall live.

21 And he said unto him, See, I have accepted * thee concerning this thing also, that I will not overthrow this city, for the which thou hast spoken.

22 Haste thee, escape thither; for [l] I cannot do any thing till thou be come thither: therefore [m] the name of the city was called Zoar.

23 ¶ The sun was † risen upon the earth when Lot entered into Zoar.

24 Then [n] the Lord rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from the Lord out of heaven.

25 And he overthrew those cities, and all the plain, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and that which grew upon the ground.

26 ¶ But his wife looked back from behind him, and she became [o] a pillar of salt.

27 ¶ And Abraham gat up early in the morning, to the place where [p] he stood before the Lord.

28 And he looked toward Sodom and Gomorrah, and toward all the land of the plain, and beheld, and lo, the smoke of the country went up as the smoke of a furnace.

29 ¶ And it came to pass, when God destroyed the cities of the plain, that God remembered Abraham, and sent Lot out of the midst of the overthrow, when he overthrew the cities in the which Lot dwelt.

30 ¶ And Lot went up out of Zoar, and dwelt in the mountain, and his two daughters

Before Christ 1898.

k Verse 26. Mat. 24. 16, 17. 18. Luke 9. 62. Phil. 3. 13, 14.

* Heb. thy face.

l See Chap. 32, 25. 26 Exod. 32. 10. Deut. 9. 14. Mark 6. 5.

m Chap. 13. 10. & 14, 2.

† Heb. gone forth.

n Deut. 29. 23. Isaiah 13. 19. Jer. 50. 40. Ezek. 16. 49. Hos. 11. 8. Amos 4. 11. Zeph. 2. 9. Luke 17. 29. 2 Pet. 2. 6. Jude 7.

o Luke 17. 32.

p Chap. 18. 22.

have been fatal to him, if the angels had not laid hold on his hand, and brought him forth. The Lord was merciful to him, otherwise he might justly have left him to perish, since he was loath to depart

V. 17. Escape for thy life—Stand not lingering in hopes to save thy goods, them thou shalt lose as a punishment of thy sin and folly in choosing to dwell with so wicked a people, and be thankful that thou hast thy life given thee for a prey. Such as these are the commands given to those who through grace are delivered out of a sinful state. Return not to sin and satan, for that is looking back to Sodom. Rest not in the world, for that is staying in the plain. And reach toward Christ and heaven, for that is escaping to the mountain, short of which we must not take up.

V. 18. Lot said, Oh, not so, my Lord—With what reluctance are the commands of the Lord received, though containing nothing but designs for our preservation and highest advantage. Blessed are they that do his commandments without delay.

V. 19. I die—An unreasonable distrust of God's power and goodness which he had now experienced.

V. 20. It is a little one—As its inhabitants, so its sins, are fewer, and it will not be an eminent example of thy vengeance, as the other places will be.

V. 21. I have accepted thee—I have granted thy request.

V. 22. I cannot do any thing till thou be come thither—The very presence of good men in a place helps to keep off judgments. What care God takes for the preservation of them that fear him.

V. 23. The sun was risen—The sun appeared and shone that morning. Which is noted as a great aggravation of their ruin, which came when they least expected it.

V. 24. The Lord rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah—To signify that it proceeded not from natural causes, but from the immediate hand of God. God the Son, who now appeared upon the earth, rained from God his Father in heaven, both concurring in this act, as indeed all outward actions are common to all the persons of the Trinity. Brimstone and fire—Brimstone and fire signify brimstone inflamed, and in the Hebrew stile, inflamed brimstone signifies lightning.

V. 25. Those cities, and all the plain—This lightning penetrated into the earth, which, being kindled by the fire from heaven, consuming all that was capable of such a destruction, formed the lake, which was afterwards, and is now called the Dead Sea, from the large expansion and stillness of its waters. The Author of the book of wisdom, who wrote many centuries after, says, the waste that smoketh is a testimony. And by later writers it appears that the testimonies of the destruction of these cities still remained. Tacitus relates, that the traces of the fire that consumed them were visible in his days. Pliny, and Strabo, have made mention of them; and to this day, the Dead Sea, which still sends forth smoke, remains, and will remain, an everlasting monument of the justice of God: some of the ruins of these citiesare said to be at times visible at the bottom of its filthy waters. So that, as St. Peter observes, God has made the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, in their overthrow, an example to those that should after live ungodly. Travellers describe this lake to be about thirty miles long and ten miles broad. It has no living creature in it: It is not moved by the wind: The smell of it is offensive: Things do not easily sink in it. The Greeks call it Asphaltis, from a sort of pitch which it casts up. The river Jordan falls into it, and is lost there. The severity of God against sin, how published to the world!

V. 26. His wife—She disobeyed an express command. Probably she hankered after her house and goods in Sodom, and was loath to leave them. (Luke xvii. 31, 32.) She too much regarded her stuff. And her looking back spoke an inclination to go back; and therefore our Saviour uses it as a warning against apostasy. She was struck dead in the place, yet her body did not fall down, but stood fixed and erect like a pillar or monument.

V. 28. Abraham looked toward Sodom—and saw the divine severity. Abraham prayed for Sodom; he was heard for Lot.

V. 29. God remembered Abraham, and for his sake sent Lot out of the overthrow—God will certainly give an answer of peace to the prayer of faith in his own way and in his own time.

V. 30. Lot went up out of Zoar—He durst not dwell there, either because he was conscious to himself that it was a refuge of

Before Christ 1898. ters with him; for he feared to dwell in Zoar: and he dwelt in a cave, he and his two daughters.

31 ¶ And the first-born said unto the younger, Our father is old, and there is not a man in the earth to come in unto us after the manner of all the earth.

32 Come, let us make our father drink wine, and we will lie with him, that we may preserve seed of our father.

33 And they made their father drink wine that night: and the first-born went in, and lay with her father; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose.

34 And it came to pass on the morrow, that the first-born said unto the younger, Behold, I lay yesternight with my father: let us make him drink wine this night also; and go thou in, and lie with him, that we may preserve seed of our father.

35 And they made their father drink wine that night also: and the younger arose, and lay with him; and he perceived not when she lay down, nor when she arose.

36 Thus were both the daughters of Lot with child by their father.

1897. 37 And the first-born bare a son, and called his name Moab: the same is the father of the Moabites unto this day.

Before Christ 1897.

38 And the younger, she also bare a son, and called his name Ben-ammi: the same is the father of the children of Ammon unto this day.

CHAP. XX.

cir. 1898. AND Abraham journeyed from thence toward the south-country, and dwelled between [a] Kadesh and Shur, and sojourned in Gerar.

a Chap. 16. 7, 14.

2 And Abraham said of Sarah his wife, [o] she is my sister: and Abimelech king of Gerar sent, and took Sarah.

o Chap. 12 13.

3 But [c] God came to [d] Abimelech in a dream by night, and said to him, Behold, thou art but a dead man, for the woman which thou hast taken: for she is * a man's wife.

c Psa. 105. 14. d Job 33. 14, 15.

* Heb. married to an husband.

4 But Abimelech had not come near her: and he said, Lord, wilt thou slay also a righteous nation?

5 Said he not unto me, She is my sister? and she, even she herself said, He is my brother: in the † integrity of my heart, and innocency of my hands have I done this.

† Or, simplicity, or, sincerity.

6 And God said unto him in a dream, Yea, his own choosing, and probably he found it as wicked as Sodom; and therefore concluded it could not long survive it; Lot was now glad to go to the mountain, the place which God had first appointed for his shelter. In Lot we have an example of what those bring themselves to at last, that forsake the communion of saints for worldly advantages.

I

V. 31. Not a man—With whom they might or durst marry.

V. 32. Which they thought was made lawful by the supposed necessity.

V. 33. He that was preserved blameless in a sinful city, fell into sin in retirement; and by this example we are taught to see the necessity of being sober and watching unto prayer wherever we are, there being no place or company where we are not in danger of sinning even unto death both of soul and body.

V. 36. A lasting monument of their sin and shame.

V. 37. Moab—The child of her father; she had learned not to be ashamed to declare her own sin. Father of the Moabites—A wicked people.

V. 38. Ben-ammi—The son of my people or kindred. The father of the Ammonites, a people no less wicked than the Moabites.

CHAP. XX.

V. 1. Abraham removed from the neighbourhood of that place which had been made such a monument of God's displeasure.

V. 2. She is my sister—How much do the best men stand in need of the Divine assistance, and of firm confidence in that assistance, when any human force or authority appears to be against them: Human power is visible, and addresses itself to men's passions and their feelings; and when that power is opposed to rules of duty, for any one that acts from a regard to the will of God, to forget for a moment God's power to save, exposes himself to the danger of complying with the will of men, contrary to known duty, and the commands of God; who, though not visible to natural sight, is no less the Governor of all things in heaven and in the earth; neither can the powers of hell go beyond the bounds set them by the Almighty's power: And in this instance Abraham is presented to the world, in this faithful history, as an example of what men are not to do; it being proved and established by God's government of the world, as it is made known to us in the Scriptures, that they whose conduct is regulated by a true regard to the word of God, and are living in his fear, have at no time occasion to fear any thing besides. Took Sarah—Not without violence, for it is not to be believed that Abraham or Sarah would consent to such a separation. And shall any man that has a wife, a sister, or a daughter (or a regard for those that bear these relations to other men) read such instances of what men might do in other countries, without thankfulness to God, whose providence has in this placed us under the government of just and equal laws, which gives no man a right to make another stand up or sit down, or part with any thing that belongs to him, but by his own consent first asked and granted?

V. 3. God came to Abimelech in a dream—God made known his mind in dreams, not only to his people, but even to heathens for their sakes, or in things wherein they were concerned. A dead man—Thou deservest a present and untimely death, and if thou proceedest in thy intended wickedness, it shall be inflicted upon thee. Both for thy injustice in taking her away by force, and for thy intentions, though not yet executed.

V. 4. Abimelech said—This was necessary to be added here for Sarah's vindication, and for the demonstration of Isaac's original from Abraham and Sarah, according to God's promise. Wilt thou slay a righteous—a blameless nation. For he knew it was just and usual for God to punish a nation for the sins of their kings and governors; the sins of public men being more or less imitated or consented to by many below them.

V. 5. In the integrity of my heart—being wholly ignorant of what thou now informest me.

V. 6. I also withheld thee—It is not from God that there is sin; but it is from him that there is not more sin, either by his influence on men's minds checking their inclination to sin, or by his providence taking away the opportunity. Against me—This sin, though directly committed against Abraham and Sarah, is said to be against God, as all sins are, because it was against God's command, written in men's minds, though not yet published by express word or writing.

Before Christ cir. 1898.

I know that thou didst this in the integrity of thy heart; for [e] I also withheld thee from sinning [f] against me: therefore suffered I thee not to touch her.

7 Now therefore restore the man his wife; [g] for he is a prophet, and he shall pray for thee, and thou shalt live: and if thou restore her not, know thou that thou shalt surely die, thou, and all that are thine.

8 Therefore Abimelech rose early in the morning, and called all his servants, and told all these things in their ears: and the men were sore afraid.

9 Then Abimelech called Abraham, and said unto him, What hast thou done unto us? and what have I offended thee, that [h] thou hast brought on me, and on my kingdom a great sin? thou hast done deeds unto me that ought not to be done.

Before Christ cir. 1898.

10 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, What sawest thou, that thou hast done this thing?

11 And Abraham said, Because I thought, Surely the fear of God is not in this place; and they will slay me for my wife's sake.

12 And yet indeed she is my sister; she is the daughter of my father, but not the daughter of my mother: and she became my wife.

13 And it came to pass, when God caused me to wander from my father's house, that I said unto her, This is thy kindness which thou shalt shew unto me; at every place whither we shall come, [i] say of me, He is my brother.

14 And

e Chap. 31. 7. & 35. 5. Exod. 34. 24. 1 Sam. 25. 26.
f Chap. 39. 9. Lev. 6. 2. Psa. 51. 4.
g 1 Sam. 7. 5. 2 Kings 5. 11. Job 42. 8.
h Chap 26. 10.
i Chap. 12. 13.

V. 7. A prophet—A person very dear to me, and familiarly acquainted with me, and therefore the injuries done to him I take as done to my self. He shall pray for thee—which is one part of a prophet's work. Thou shalt die, and all that are thine—which was not unjust, because they all had sins of their own, for which they deserved death whensoever God thought fit to inflict it, and God might take this occasion to punish them. Accept of my grace, and obey my will, and thou shalt live; refuse my grace, and disobey my will, and thou shalt die. Is sin less offensive to the honour of God and to his purity now than it was then? Crimes against human laws forfeit many lives; but how many more are taken for sins committed against the will of God and the rights of others, against which no human sentence is ever pronounced?

V. 8. Called his servants—His principal officers. They were sore afraid—They had doubtless heard of the dreadful judgments which other cities had brought upon themselves by their wickedness.

V. 9. What hast thou done—How great a danger hast thou exposed us to. By this it appears that in heathen countries adultery was thought a great crime, though they thought fornication none: What ought both to be considered who live under that law, which declares that to look upon a woman to lust after her, is to be guilty of a crime that excludes from heaven? Is it my belief, that He shall come to judge both quick and dead whose words these are? It is, if I fear the sentence he has before declared, and turn to him by unfeigned repentance and a reliance on his promised mercy. Thou hast done—No man can do an equal injury to others to that of being the cause of their committing any sin.

V. 10. What sawest thou?—What reason hadst thou for exposing me to the danger of offending God, by the wrong information thou gavest me, that the woman was not thy wife, but thy sister?

V. 11. Because I thought—How liable to be mistaken are the best of men; and what doubtless increases the danger of forming rash conclusions, is the manner in which Satan and evil angels address the human mind; for, in whatever way they suggest evil to men, it must be the first part of their design to mislead men in judging, that they may be misled in their conduct—the consequence of the judgments they form. Such instances as this, in such men as Abraham, are the strongest comments on those passages of the word of God, which require us not to judge from conjecture or appearances. And perhaps men of much experience may not be the less liable to be misled, from their having often found, that the conjectures they formed agreed with the events that followed; but still the Scripture rule is to be regarded, and no human conduct is to be judged of, even by the thoughts of Abraham, nor from appearance, but from real evidence, and no man condemned till it be known what he has to say in his own defence; and a careful regard to this Scriptural rule, in common life, would prevent many bitter pangs of sorrow in the minds of men, who are so often hearing of their sentence before they even knew themselves to be accused; but the cautions given in the Scriptures on this head make but a small part of that provision which God has made in his word to prevent, by his own authority, mankind from unjustly and unnecessarily adding to the number of their sorrows: And as God hath said, That whatsoever any man soweth the same shall he reap; to condemn no man on suspicion ourselves, is one way of securing ourselves against the most painful part of an unjust accusation.—That being conscious, it is but rendering to us that which is our due; for the severity of our hasty sentences formed, as Abraham's was, from our own thoughts, and pronounced in confidence that we could not be mistaken; and how often may a man (whose attention is directed to the spring of all his actions—his own thoughts) discover that he, with Abraham, is ready to conclude unfavourably of others, before he is warranted by any evidence to do so. Who knows how often he offends against Him who sees the heart? Well might David say, Lord, cleanse thou me from my secret faults.

V. 12. However highly it pleased God to honour any particular man or number of men, during the ages in which the Scriptures were written, we are certainly much mistaken when we think that any of them by nature were more than men. Who more highly favoured of God than Abraham? but who that is conscious of having misled another by equivocal words, could have answered worse than Abraham here did? Yet indeed she is my sister—Doubtless the Father of the faithful, as well as the Father of mercies, wishes it now to be made known to all mankind, that Abraham meant to mislead the king as the means of his safety, it was a sinful deceit, and implied distress in God; which is the sin that leads to final impenitence; and therefore thus exposed, that all men may see their danger, and avoid it (Mark xvi. 16.); and hoever men are bound to hide one another's faults and failings, where it can be done with truth and with justice; yet such is God's faithfulness, that he has published to all the world, the sins, the follies, and the unbelieving fears in men, that His mercy made the first use of in revealing His will to the world, that it might be equally manifest that God has no private interest, or personal attachments; but that he who delivered up His Son for us all, has nothing less than the good of all constantly in view; and by thus publishing the faults of His most highly favoured servants, strongly shews to all men, the necessity they are under to have that grace which only is able to save them. (Eph. ii. 8.)

V. 13. When God caused me to wander from my father's house—Then we settled this matter. The blessing of children was denied them during the continuance of this sinful agreement to deny one another. Whilst they did not own their marriage, God did not own it.

V. 14. 15. My

Before Christ cir. 1897.

14 And Abimelech [h] took sheep, and oxen, and men-servants, and women-servants, and gave them unto Abraham, and restored him Sarah his wife.

[h] Chap. 12. 16.

15 And Abimelech said, Behold, my land is before thee: dwell [‡] where it pleaseth thee.

‡ Heb. as is good in thine eyes.

16 And unto Sarah he said, Behold, I have given thy brother a thousand pieces of silver: behold, he is to thee a covering of the eyes, unto all that are with thee, and with all other: thus she was reproved.

17 ¶ So Abraham prayed unto God: and God healed Abimelech, and his wife, and his maid-servants; and they bare children.

18 For the Lord had fast closed up all the wombs of the house of Abimelech, because of Sarah Abraham's wife.

CHAP. XXI.

[a] Chap. 17. 19. & 18. 10. 14. [b] Acts 7. 8. Gal. 4. 22. Heb. 11. 11.

AND the Lord visited Sarah as he had said, and the Lord did unto Sarah [a] as he had spoken.

2 For Sarah [b] conceived, and bare Abraham a son in his old age, [c] at the set time of which God had spoken to him.

Before Christ cir. 1897.

[c] Chap. 17. 21.

3 And Abraham called the name of his son that was born unto him, whom Sarah bare to him, [d] Isaac.

[d] Chap. 17. 19.

4 And Abraham circumcised his son Isaac, being eight days old, [e] as God had commanded him.

[e] Chap. 17. 10, 12.

5 And [f] Abraham was an hundred years old, when his son Isaac was born unto him.

[f] Chap. 17. 1, 17.

6 ¶ And Sarah said, [g] God hath made me to laugh, so that all that hear will laugh with me.

[g] Isa. 54. 1. & 66. 10. Gal. 4. 27.

7 And she said, Who would have said unto Abraham, that Sarah should have given children suck? for I have borne him a son in his old age.

8 And the child grew, and was weaned: and Abraham made a great feast the same day that Isaac was weaned.

9 ¶ And Sarah saw the son of Hagar [h] the Egyptian,

[h] Chap. 16. 1.

V. 14, 15. My land is before thee—Look at all that part of my country which belongs to me, and dwell where it pleaseth thee. The Scripture abounds with examples for all men: Though Abraham and the faithful, the great subjects of the Sacred History, were but men in common life, yet so did the providence of God attend to all that would be wanted to be known by every man in every station: That in the Scriptures there is not only instruction provided in matters of right and wrong in every part of human conduct, but also the knowledge of what is most becoming. How does this instance in the conduct of Abimelech shew a real greatness and liberality becoming his high station; he overlooks what he had just cause to blame, and discovering the care which God had over Abraham, Abimelech, like a king, makes him presents, and then bids him please himself in his country with the choice of a dwelling-place; and restores him his wife, as a proof of the security with which he might live in his dominions.

V. 16. Thy brother—He whom thou didst miscall thy brother. Pieces of silver—Shekels, which is commonly understood, when a sum of silver or gold is indefinitely mentioned. A covering of the eyes unto all—A protection to thee from the eyes of others, whilst they know thee to be the wife of another man; or this, I gave to buy thee a veil wherewith thou mayest cover thy face, as it is usual for married persons to do.

CHAP. XXI.

V. 1. The Lord visited Sarah—Performed his gracious promise of giving her a child. God's visitation of a person in Scripture use, is the execution of his purpose, either for evil or for good; it is here used for the giving of mercies promised.

V. 2. In his old age—Contrary to all human expectation, and therefore the more evidently the gift of God, according to his promise.

V. 4. He circumcised his son—The covenant being established with him, the seal of the covenant was administered to him.

V. 6. God makes me laugh, through excess of holy joy, laughter being often put for joy; God hath given me cause to rejoice, and an heart to rejoice. And they that will laugh with me—Others will rejoice in this instance of God's power and goodness, and be encouraged to trust in him.

V. 7. Who could have said—None could have expected; He whose wisdom foretold it was only able to bring it to pass. The duty of mothers to their little infants, is to be collected from this example of Sarah to her son, at that stage of the journey through life, which calls for nothing less than all the tender feelings of a mother; which tenderness, is not reasonably to be expected will be given in an equal degree to the mind of any other; unless the mother should be taken away, or rendered unable to perform a parent's part: And when this happens, how often is it seen that a mother's watchfulness and care is given to a stranger; but the blessing of the God of nature and of providence, not being to be expected to follow a wilful or careless neglect of that, which has become the duty of any relation the human race bears to one another, when the universal history shall be opened, who can tell how many mothers shall sink confounded at seeing the sufferings of their helpless offspring, left by them to the hazard of meeting with something like a parent's tenderness from another, but who, like their mothers, leave them to cry, to struggle unrelieved from the pains of a thousand infant sufferings, during all those helpless days and nights, which the lords of the creation must live, before they have the ability to turn away the point of a pin, or even to tell the cause of the pains they feel.

V. 9. Mocking—This is called persecution, (Gal. iv. 29.) and by the word flesh being applied to the son of Hagar, and spirit to Sarah's son, we are given to understand by this enmity what is felt in every human mind in its unrenewed state against those in whom the spirit of God is. (Gen. xli. 38.) An enmity which no more admits of any cordial and heartfelt reconciliation and union between minds animated and influenced by the opposite spirits, than the love of this world is to be reconciled with the love of God, an earthly mind with an heavenly one; or that the spirit of Satan can be brought to agree with and love the spirit of God. The angels that kept not their first estate, fell into an eternal enmity against God, and they hate his good spirit wherever it appears; and the case of Ishmael and Isaac is an allegory; Ishmael's mockery and persecution is descriptive to us of that despising and hatred of God which is the very nature of Satan, who is called the God of this world, and who ruleth in the children of disobedience; or in other words, in the minds of men, who do not believe in God as he hath revealed himself by his works and by his word, and who do not live in his fear, or have any regard to his favour: And what is said of Isaac the heir of the promise, and all the joy and gladness discovered on his account, has more in the representation than can easily be expressed or even conceived. In him all the nations of the earth were to be blessed; the Saviour

of

Before Christ cir. 1892.

Egyptian, which she had born unto Abraham, [i] mocking.

i Gal. 4. 29.

10 Wherefore she said unto Abraham, [k] Cast out this bond-woman, and her son: for the son of this bond-woman shall not be heir with my son, even with Isaac.

k Gal. 4. 30. See Chap. 25. 6. & 36. 6, 7.

11 And the thing was very grievous in Abraham's sight, because of his son.

12 ¶ And God said unto Abraham, Let it not be grievous in thy sight, because of the lad, and because of thy bond-woman; in all that Sarah hath said unto thee, hearken unto her voice: for [l] in Isaac shall thy seed be called.

l Rom. 9. 7. Heb. 11. 18.

13 And also of the son of the bond-woman will I make [m] a nation, because he is thy seed.

m Verse 18. Chap. 16. 10. & 17. 20.

14 And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and took bread, and a bottle of water, and gave it unto Hagar (putting it on her shoulder) and the child, and sent her away: and she departed and wandered in the wilderness of Beer-sheba.

15 And the water was spent in the bottle, and she cast the child under one of the shrubs.

16 And she went, and sat her down over against him, a good way off, as it were a bow-shot: for she said, Let me not see the death of the child. And she sat over against him, and lifted up her voice, and wept.

Before Christ cir. 1897.

17 And God heard the voice of the lad: and the angel of God called to Hagar out of heaven, and said unto her, What aileth thee, Hagar? fear not; for God hath heard the voice of the lad where he is.

18 Arise, lift up the lad, and hold him in thine hand: for [n] I will make him a great nation.

n Verse 13.

19 And [o] God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water: and she went, and filled the bottle with water, and gave the lad drink.

o Num. 22. 31. See 2 Kings 6. 17. 18, 20. Luke 24. 16, 31.

20 And God was with the lad; and he grew, and dwelt in the wilderness, [p] and became an archer.

p Chap. 16. 12.

21 And he dwelt in the wilderness of Paran: and his mother took him a wife out of the land of Egypt.

22 ¶ And it came to pass at that time, that [q] Abimelech and Phicol the chief captain of his host spake unto Abraham, saying, God is with thee in all that thou doest.

q Chap. 20. 2. & 26. 26.

23 Now

of men was to descend from his person, and through him, JESUS, as the only Mediator between God and men, was, and is, and only can be given, that grace of God which bringeth salvation to the mind of man,—on the receiving of which, producing true repentance and forsaking all known evil, then is joy in the presence of the angels of God, (Luke xv. 10.) and with every increase of that grace which is promised to all that look for it, believe the promise, and expect it in the name and for the sake of Jesus, is there an increase of the soul's union with its living head; and all these expressions of paternal tenderness which is shewn to the heir of the promise, are intended to convey to us the true knowledge of the love and compassion of God our Saviour to all who worship him in spirit and in truth, and who are only looking for the pardon of sin, and their acceptance with God, for the sake of their Mediator, and who only expect the restoration of their nature, and the ability to do any thing good in itself, by His grace.

V. 10. The Jews, though the offspring of Abraham and of Isaac, that did not believe in Jesus when he came, after all the evidence they had of his being possessed of the power of God, and having all the marks of the promised Messiah, they, like the bond-woman and her son, were cast out for mocking and persecuting Him; and they who embraced his gracious offers of mercy, and followed him in a renewal both of heart and of life, were partakers of the promises: And as the descendants of Cain and of Ishmael were to the generations before CHRIST came, so are the descendants of the Jews to this day, an evident example to all men, how displeasing to God we are while we do not in truth believe the record God hath given of his SON; and the present rejected state of the Jewish people dispersed throughout the world, is the loud call of God by his providence to all mankind, to look unto HIM, who was wounded for our transgressions, that we escape God's future displeasure, which is so universally represented by the present condition of the Ishmaelites and of the Jews, though none of them, as individuals, are denied that grace which God, for Christ's sake, is willing to give to all.

V. 11. Grievous in Abraham's sight—Because of his tender affection to Ishmael. We may also see by this, the excellency of God's institutions, who appointed but one woman for one man, that each might have the entire interest in the other's affections; and the danger of men's inventions, which brought polygamy into the world, whereby a man's affections are thus subject to be divided.

V. 12. God said, hearken unto her voice—Abraham had better authority for his divorce from Hagar than he had for his marriage with her. (Chap. xxi. 2.) Thy seed be called—The promised seed, the heir of the promises.

V. 13. The casting out of Ishmael was not his ruin, and, by his history, it appears that those who are left out of the external dispensation of God's covenant, are not excluded from his mercies.

V. 14. Abraham doubted to do it when Sarah first suggested it, fearing it might not be from right motives; but when once he understands it to be God's will, he makes haste to execute it. An example of prudence and of piety.

V. 15. Not as if she carried him: Ishmael was now about eighteen years old, but being weak and faint, and much dejected, despairing of his life, she lays him down under a shrub.

V. 16, 17. Wept—Hagar wept, and it appears as if Ishmael cried aloud for the distress of their situation. Where is that place of distress in which the Father of mercies does not see the sons and daughters of affliction? And how many are the examples of his readiness to relieve?

V. 18. Lift up the lad—I will bless him, and thy care shall not be in vain.

V. 19. God opened her eyes—Shewed her, led her to look to the place where she might be relieved. The word of God ascribes all the blessings mankind do or can receive in this life, or that blessed world which is to come, to God as the Giver of them.

V. 20. God was with the lad—Abraham prayed that Ishmael might live before God: It is to live when the favour and gracious presence of God is with any one.

V. 22. They saw that the peculiar care and blessing of God rested upon Abraham: The promises of every necessary blessing are now in equal force to every son of Adam who imitates Abraham's faith.

Before Christ 1897.

23 Now therefore swear unto me here by God, * that thou wilt not deal falsly with me, nor with my son, nor with my son's son: but according to the kindness that I have done unto thee, thou shalt do unto me, and to the land wherein thou hast sojourned.

* Heb. if thou shall lie unto me.

24 And Abraham said, I will swear.

25 And Abraham reproved Abimelech because of a well of water, which Abimelech's servants [r] had violently taken away.

[r] See Chap. 26. 15, 18, 20, 21, 22.

26 And Abimelech said, I wot not who hath done this thing: neither didst thou tell me, neither yet heard I of it but to day.

27 And Abraham took sheep, and oxen, and gave them unto Abimelech: and both of them made a covenant.

28 And Abraham set seven ew-lambs of the flock by themselves.

29 And Abimelech said unto Abraham, What mean these seven ew-lambs, which thou hast set by themselves?

30 And he said, For these seven ew-lambs shalt thou take of my hand, that they may be a witness unto me, that I have digged this well.

Before Christ 1897.

31 Wherefore he called that place † Beer-sheba: because there they sware both of them.

† That is, the well of the oath.

32 Thus they made a covenant at Beer-sheba: then Abimelech rose up, and Phicol cir. 1891. the chief captain of his host, and they returned into the land of the Philistines.

33 ¶ And Abraham planted a ‡ grove in Beer-sheba, and called there on the name of the Lord, the everlasting God.

‡ Or, tree.

34 And Abraham sojourned in the Philistines land many days.

CHAP. XXII.

1872. Jos. Ant.

AND it came to pass after these things, that [a] God did tempt Abraham, and said unto him, Abraham. And he said, * Behold, here I am.

[a] Heb. 11. 17.

* Heb. Behold me.

2 And he said, Take now thy son, thine only son Isaac, whom thou lovest, and get thee [o] into the land of Moriah; and offer him there for a burnt-offering upon one of the mountains which I will tell thee of.

[o] 2 Chron. 3. 1.

3 ¶ And

V. 23. The King required Abraham's oath, that he might not use the power which God had given him, to do any injury to Abimelech or to his family.

V. 25. Abraham reproved—That the king might do him justice, as the foundation of the friendship he wished to maintain with him.

V. 26. By this it would appear if Abraham had told of the injury done him before, it would have been as readily redressed; and that he considered the king as chargeable with the wrong which had been done, when he did not so much as know of it: Men in authority may often as unjustly be blamed for what they never did, though they may for not attending diligently to all that is done by those they employ. Abraham's not telling of the injury done, might arise from an unwillingness to complain till he had some such favourable occasion as this; but how many misunderstandings might be avoided, by every person's taking the first opportunity of telling to others, what they think has been done amiss; and indeed as no person is more injured than he who does the wrong, no greater proof can be given of true respect for any person, than to enable them to form a just judgment of their own conduct, or to explain themselves if they have been misunderstood.

V. 27. Abraham took—As an acknowledgment of the King's former kindness to him, and also to assure him of his friendship.

V. 31. Beer-sheba—The well of the oath.

V. 33. A Grove—A place to which he might retire for the equally solemn, exalted, and delightful duty of worshipping God; praising him for past mercies, and calling upon him for the consolations of his grace, and the blessings of his providence.

CHAP. XXII.

V. 1. God did tempt Abraham—Did try and prove the reality of Abraham's faith and love to God; and that it might be made to appear how far Abraham was determined to obey God, in opposition to all the hopes God himself had given him in his son Isaac, and against his natural affection for him. Not that this was necessary for the information of God, for all things are known to him; but that Abraham might have the witness of God's Spirit, the highest happiness, and the testimony of his own, the next in degree to it, that he was sincerely, secretly, and openly devoted to the will of God, whose property he was, with all that he had; and that all ages might have an example of firm faith and obedience set before them, that when the faith of others came to be tried, they might know, from this memorable instance, how pleasing it was to God for men to believe in his love and goodness, and, without doubting about the consequences, obey his commandments; and if, in doing so, they hazarded their character, or exposed themselves to contempt, or to the loss of what might be dearer to them than life, that life, and all belonging to it, was not to be compared to the least degree of the approbation of God, who in this world both could and would repay them a thousand fold; and, continuing faithful unto death, crown them with glory and blessedness in his presence for ever. (James i. 12.)

V. 2. Let them say, who know a parent's feelings, what Abraham felt, understanding this command as he did, and knowing it to be the voice of God which gave him that command. It is here that Abraham becomes the great example to mankind, and obtains from God the title of FAITHFUL ABRAHAM; (Gal. iii. 9.) an higher title than was ever annexed to the name of any one that ever appeared on earth, who was no more than man. By what means Abraham obtained this distinguished title of Father of all that are pleasing to God, most plainly appears. It cannot be doubted but Abraham loved Isaac his son; and not only so, but that he was bound to look upon him as the best gift of God, and the last expression of the Divine favour to him, and from whom Christ the Saviour of the world was to come; and in this command from God to Abraham to offer Isaac for a burnt-offering, all the mercies of God to Abraham might justly appear to be reversed, and all his expectations cut off; and if any thing can increase the anguish of a mind under a sense of the mercy of God being withdrawn, it must be that which Abraham evidently understood himself called to do—to slay his son with his own hand, and offer him as a burnt-offering; and the command to do this being delivered to Abraham without the knowledge of any other person, could Abraham be insensible of what he was to suffer from the accusations which were so likely to be brought against him for mistaking the will of God, who, by all but Abraham, might reasonably be believed as incapable of giving a command which stood opposed to his own promise, and to all that reason or nature could suggest against all these—against all that may so justly and reasonably be believed that Abraham felt and feared, he knew it was the plain command

Before Christ 1872.

3 ¶ And Abraham rose up early in the morning, and saddled his ass, and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son; and clave the wood for the burnt-offering, and rose up, and went unto the place of which God had told him.

4 Then on the third day Abraham lifted up his eyes, and saw the place afar off.

5 And Abraham said unto his young men, Abide you here with the ass; and I and the lad will go yonder and worship, and come again to you.

6 And Abraham took the wood of the burnt-offering, and laid it upon Isaac his son; and he took the fire in his hand, and a knife: and they went both of them together.

7 And Isaac spake unto Abraham his father, and said, My father: and he said, † Here am I, my son. And he said, Behold the fire and the wood: but where is the ‡ lamb for a burnt-offering?

Before Christ 1872.

† Heb. Behold me.

‡ Or, kid.

8 And Abraham said, My son, God will provide himself a lamb for a burnt-offering: so they went both of them together.

9 And they came to the place which God had told him of, and Abraham built an altar there, and laid the wood in order; and bound Isaac his son, and [c] laid him on the altar upon the wood.

c James 2. 21.

10 And Abraham stretched forth his hand, and took the knife to slay his son.

11 And

command of God with as much certainty as any command of God is now to be known by his Spirit and his written word; and thus, knowing that it was the God of glory that bid him offer Isaac, God was his refuge, and he, and he only, was to be feared; trusted, loved, and obeyed. Thus resolved, and supported by the grace which flowed from the throne of God, through the promised seed, to Abraham's believing mind, he obeyed God with readiness and diligence, at the moment his greatest mercy appeared to be withdrawn, and against all he felt as a father and a man.

V. 3, 4. Abraham rose up early in the morning, and went unto the place which God had told him. Then on the third day he lift up his eyes, and saw the place—Where his son was to be offered. And did Abraham feel more when he saw the place, than the Father of mercies felt, who gave us our feelings of tender affection, when he looked on Calvary, the place where his well-beloved and eternal Son was not only offered, but crucified under the weight of the offences of all mankind committed against the infinite purity and justice of God? Well might his highly-favoured servant say, What manner of love is this. Here human words seem almost to lose their use, as altogether unequal to convey any suitable sense of what our thoughts may conceive, by comparing this lively representation which the Scriptures give us of Abraham and his son, with that which took place between God the Father and the Son before the world was made; and when we find ourselves affected with what we can only believe the father of the faithful felt, then may we not raise our minds to heaven and to God, and ask ourselves what did the Father of mercies feel, in looking through numberless ages to the appointed time, when his equal Son was to be made flesh and dwell on earth, and be delivered up in our place and stead to suffer what we alone deserved? If to fallen men the Author of life has given such fine affections as the world has seen, what must God Himself feel at parting with his Son to bear our infirmities as a man, to have the sorrow and the misery due to the iniquities of the whole human race laid upon him, and after enduring the neglect, the scorn, the contempt and persecution, which JESUS as a man met with at the hands of men, together with the rage of satan and all the powers of darkness, and above all to suffer that which could only satisfy and vindicate infinite justice for ever, in pardoning sin in men; say or think who can tell what were the emotions of the Divine mind of the Father of mercies? But the history of JESUS's life on earth must be read and carefully considered, before it can be known what may justly be called the sorrows of God, and how much he felt as God and man, for the sufferings of men; and to understand but a little of the tenderness of the Divine mind, proofs and examples of the Divine compassion must not only be known from this sacred history, but the soul must have a measure of fellowship in the sufferings of Jesus, and be baptized into his death, (Phil. iii. 10. Rom. vi. 3.) and then it may appear in some small degree what must be felt, from that infinite relation which the Father and the Son bear to each other, when it pleased the FATHER to bruise the SON, to put him to grief, to make his soul an offering for sin. (Isai. liii. 10.) Ye immortal spirits of the blessed above, what can ye do throughout everlasting ages to express the mighty obligation, the weight of which is ever increasing far beyond all your most grateful powers! Great GOD! thy word, wherein thy strange design of placing mankind in a condition to receive thy pardon, addresses itself to our reason and our faith; but what, but thy Spirit, can make known to us any suitable sense of the greatness of thy redeeming love, so faintly represented by a father's offering, as a sacrifice, his only son.

V. 5. Abraham charged his servants to remain at a distance, doubtless that they might not be led to interpose in preventing a duty which perhaps they were not able to understand, or if they were, that they might be spared sorrow of a sight so affecting.—When the great sacrifice was offered, the sun in the midst of heaven gave no light, that Jesus's death, though required to be public, might be as little seen as the nature of it would admit, and in which also there was no little mercy to those that loved him as to venture to his cross.

V. 6. Isaac was at this time twenty-five years old; the wood was laid on Isaac, the cross was laid on Jesus.

V. 7. My son—Abraham's short answer shews, how much the feelings of a father were alive in his breast. With what an unwavering mind does this devoted man proceed in doing what he took to be the will of God: He evidently compares nothing with his duty. God does not despise the day of small things, but the sooner that devotion of heart is attained, which compares nothing with the love of God, the more blessed must the soul be in all its approaches to its living head, and in the discharge of every duty.

V. 8. God will provide—He that hath done the greater will do the less: He that hath promised his Son to be my Saviour, will, with him, freely give me all things. (Rom. viii. 32.)

V. 9. Bound Isaac—Burnt-offerings were to be bound to the altar. Christ was bound to the cross; and that Isaac might be the more exact type of Christ, he was bound by his own consent, otherwise his age and strength seem sufficient to have made an effectual resistance. It is therefore highly reasonable to think that Abraham, having prepared Isaac for such a work, did, upon the mount, particularly instruct him concerning the command of God; the absolute necessity of complying with it; the glorious reward of his obedience; and the dismal consequences of his disobedience; the power and faithfulness of God either to prevent the fatal blow, or to restore his life lost with infinite advantage. Upon these, and such like reasons, he laid himself down at his father's feet, and yielded up himself to the Divine will.

V. 10. That

Before Christ 1872.

11 And the angel of the Lord called unto him out of heaven, and said, Abraham, Abraham. And he said, Here am I.

12 And he said, Lay not thine hand upon the lad, neither do thou any thing unto him: for now I know that thou fearest God, seeing thou hast not withheld thy son, thine only son from me.

13 And Abraham lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold, behind him a ram caught in a thicket by his horns: and Abraham went and took the ram, and offered him up for a burnt-offering, in the stead of his son.

14 And Abraham called the name of that place § Jehovah-jireh: as it is said to this day, In the mount of the Lord it shall be seen.

§ That is, The LORD will see, or provide.

15 ¶ And the angel of the Lord called unto Abraham out of heaven the second time, d Psa. 105. 9. Luke 1. 73. Heb. 6. 13.

16 And said, [d] By myself have I sworn, saith the Lord, for because thou hast done this thing, and hast not withheld thy son, thine only son:

Before Christ 1872.

17 That in blessing I will bless thee, and in multiplying I will multiply thy seed [e] as the stars of the heaven, [f] and as the sand which is upon the sea-shore *; and [g] thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies;

e Chap. 15. 5. Jer. 33. 22.
f Chap. 13. 16.
* Heb. lip.
g Chap. 24. 60.

18 [h] And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed: because thou hast obeyed my voice.

h Chap. 12. 3. and 18. 18. and 26. 4. Acts 3. 25. Gal. 3. 8. 16, 18.

19 So Abraham returned unto his young men, and they rose up, and went together to Beer-sheba, and Abraham dwelt at Beer-sheba.

20 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that it was told Abraham, saying, Behold [i] Milcah, she hath also born children unto thy brother Nahor;

i Chap. 11. 29.

21 [k] Huz his first-born, and Buz his brother, and Kemuel the father [l] of Aram, k Job 1. 1.

l Job 32. 2.

22 And

V. 10. That Roman judge, who pronounced sentence of death upon his own son, convicted of a capital crime against the laws, shewed a great and public example of a just mind, and an high regard to those principles of acting, which are so necessary to prevent mankind from being more hostile to each other than the savage race, who commit no such crimes against their kindred as men unrestrained are seen to do; but when the two cases are compared, how much does the real greatness of the father of the faithful exceed the noble instance of the Roman father? Evident guilt, the calls of justice upon a person appointed to do it without partiality, the action being under the public observation, and the sentence, with the name of him that gave it, being to pass down to future ages, were so many motives to bind a sensible mind to the discharge of its duty: Abraham himself took the knife to slay his son, against all the affection of a father for a son who had not offended him, but who revered his commands, and was beloved by him. None were witnesses to what was required of Abraham as his duty; he knew of no records in which the knowledge of his obedience to the Divine command would be transmitted to future ages; God, and the son he loved, were the only witnesses of what he did: And was there no other example in the Scriptures of what faith produces in the human mind, and in consequence of it in the conduct, this is sufficient to shew, that faith, in a God of infinite wisdom, power, justice, mercy, and truth, is the only certain security for right conduct in men; and this, because the mind, in which the light of faith truly is, sees that its highest happiness, and best interest, must ever be in doing the will of God, whose consolations are inseparable from those that receive his grace, and, by the strength of it, do his will.

V. 11, 12. The angel—The Son of God in the appearance of an angel. Now I know—God is said to know a thing when it is made evident to ourselves or others; but he, to whom the thoughts and intents of the heart are known, does not require actions to be performed to shew him what any man will do: God is thus spoken of in the Scriptures, after the manner of men, who are required to imitate God in not declaring their judgments, till the principle, on which the mind proceeds, has fully manifested itself by its fruits or conduct. Thou fearest God—And wilt serve him against every inducement to the contrary, of which thou hast given this sufficient proof, that to obey his will thou hast given up that which was the dearest to thee. The Angel, as he is called, says, Thou hast not withheld thy only son from me. God said unto him, (v. 1, 2.) Take now thy son and offer him; God appeared then in the person of the angel, who afterwards was to appear in the person of JESUS.

V. 13, 14. Abraham had said in answer to his son, The Lord will provide. Abraham believed in God—trusted in his power and goodness to do that which his wisdom knew was best for him, and when it would be best for him; the time now came when this remarkable instance was to be added to all that had gone before, in the case of Noah, Enoch, and all the faithful, that no man shall ever put his trust in God, in the ways of his holy will, and be confounded; and to make known this truth to others, Abraham called the name of the place, Jehovah-jireh; or, The Lord will provide. The Lord commanded sacrifices to be offered of beasts, and these the Lord provided; the Lord also commanded Abraham to offer the son he gave him; but these were only figures and representations of the great provision that was made for the salvation of mankind; and Abraham's words,—The Lord will provide,—And in the mount of the Lord it shall be seen, are words which point immediately to that sacrifice of God's own providing, the ransom he himself found out; and who was so eminently seen in the mount of the Lord as a glorified being, as possessed of all the power and authority of God, and as a man doing and suffering all that had been foretold concerning him by all the prophets.

V. 15, 16. By myself—By which it again appears, that the angel that spoke was Christ and God.

V. 17. In blessing, I will bless thee—Bless thee in thyself; I will make the example of thy faith a blessing to mankind to the end of the world; I will bless thy son, and his offspring; in number they shall be as the stars of heaven and the sand of the sea, and with their numbers they shall be possessed of great power. These promises were fulfilled in an eminent manner in the numberless thousands of the Jews, and in the history of their taking possession of Canaan, and by the victories of David, and the greatness of Solomon.

V. 18. In thy seed—Christ Jesus was the seed of Abraham, and the Gospel of his salvation was thus made known to Abraham; and in this sense all the nations of the earth are blessed in knowing that from Abraham descended Christ the Lord, through whom, consistent with infinite justice, mercy is offered to all mankind, and that whosoever will come unto God through him, shall in no wise be cast out, refused mercy in this life, or excluded from endless blessedness in the world to come; it being through this promised Saviour, that the grace of God is only given, which bringeth salvation, and restores the fallen soul of man to the image and likeness of God. (Gal. iii. 8, 14, 16.)

CHAP.

Before Christ 1872.

22 And Chesed, and Hazo, and Pildash, and Jidlaph, and Bethuel.

m Chap. 24. 15. n Called, Rom. 9. 10. Rebecca.

23 And [m] Bethuel begat [n] Rebekah: these eight Milcah did bear to Nahor Abraham's brother.

24 And his concubine whose name was Rheumah, she bare also Tebah, and Gaham, and Thahash, and Maachah.

CHAP. XXIII.

1860. AND Sarah was an hundred and seven and twenty years old: these were the years of the life of Sarah.

a Josh. 14. 15. Judges 1. 10.

2 And Sarah died in [a] Kirjath-arba; the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan: and Abraham came to mourn for Sarah, and to weep for her.

3 ¶ And Abraham stood up from before his dead, and spake unto the sons of Heth, saying, o Chap. 17. 8. Heb. 11. 13.

4 [o] I am a stranger and a sojourner with you: give me a possession of a burying place with you, that I may bury my dead out of my sight.

5 And the children of Heth answered Abraham, saying unto him,

* Heb. a prince of God.

6 Hear us, my lord; thou art * a mighty prince amongst us; in the choice of our sepulchres bury thy dead: none of us shall withhold from thee his sepulchre, but that thou mayest bury thy dead.

7 And Abraham stood up, and bowed himself to the people of the land, even to the children of Heth.

8 And he communed with them, saying, If it be your mind that I should bury my dead out of my sight, hear me, and intreat for me to Ephron the son of Zoar:

9 That he may give me the cave of Machpelah, which he hath, which is in the end of his field; for † as much money as it is worth he shall give it me, for a possession of a burying place amongst you.

† Heb. full money.

10 And Ephron dwelt amongst the children of Heth. And Ephron the Hittite answered Abraham in the ‡ audience of the children of Heth, even of all that went in at the gates of his city, saying, ‡ Heb. ears.

Before Christ 1860.

11 [c] Nay, my lord, hear me: the field give I thee, and the cave that is therein, I give it thee; in the presence of the sons of my people give I it thee: bury thy dead.

c See 2 Sam. 24. 21---24.

12 And Abraham bowed down himself before the people of the land.

13 And he spake unto Ephron in the audience of the people of the land, saying, But if thou wilt give it, I pray thee, hear me: I will give thee money for the field; take it of me, and I will bury my dead there.

14 And Ephron answered Abraham, saying unto him,

15 My lord, hearken unto me: the land is worth four hundred [d] shekels of silver; what is that betwixt me and thee? bury therefore thy dead.

d Exod. 30. 13. Ezek. 45. 12.

16 And Abraham hearkened unto Ephron, and Abraham weighed to Ephron the silver, which he had named in the audience of the sons of Heth, four hundred shekels of silver, current money with the merchant.

17 ¶ And [e] the field of Ephron, which was in Machpelah, which was before Mamre, the field and the cave which was therein, and all the trees that were in the field, that were in all the borders round about, were made sure e Chap. 25. 9. and 50. 13. Acts 7. 16.

18 Unto Abraham for a possession in the presence of the children of Heth, before all that went in at the gate of his city.

19 And after this, Abraham buried Sarah his wife in the cave of the field of Machpelah, before Mamre: the same is Hebron in the land of Canaan.

20 And the field and the cave that is therein were made sure unto Abraham, for a possession of a burying place, by the sons of Heth.

CHAP. XXIV.

1857. AND Abraham was old and * well stricken in age: and the Lord had blessed Abraham in all things.

* Heb. gone into days.

2 And

CHAP. XXIII.

V. 1. Sarah, the wife of Abraham, is mentioned with peculiar honour, as being the mother of the faithful. (1 Pet. iii. 6.)

V. 2. Abraham came to mourn for Sarah—But not as one without hope of one day meeting in that better world, where she was only gone a little before him.

V. 3, 4. The care that has been taken by mankind in disposing of the bodies of the dead, appears as a general acknowledgment among mankind, that after this life the bodies of the dead were again to have their use, and as such, worthy of being preserved with so much care as was taken of them by nations who had not the revealed will of God clearly to inform them, that all the human race are to rise again.

V. 6. A mighty prince—A prince favoured of God; such the sons of Heth acknowledged Abraham.

V. 7. Abraham bowed himself—Expressed his sense of their kindness by bowing before them.

V. 13. Abraham is unwilling to take what they offered him without paying for it: He knew it was more blessed to give than receive.

V. 15. Shekel of silver—Said to be in value two shillings and three-pence. A shekel in gold—One pound sixteen shillings and six-pence.

CHAP. XXIV.

V. 1. The Lord had blessed Abraham—According to his promise.

Before Christ 1857.

2 And Abraham said [a] unto his eldeſt ſervant of his houſe, that ruled over all that he had, [b] Put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh:

3 And I will make thee ſwear by the Lord, the God of heaven and the God of the earth, that [c] thou ſhalt not take a wife unto my ſon of the daughters of the Canaanites amongſt whom I dwell:

4 But thou ſhalt go unto my country, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my ſon Iſaac.

5 And the ſervant ſaid unto him, Peradventure the woman will not be willing to follow me unto this land: muſt I needs bring thy ſon again unto the land from whence thou cameſt?

6 And Abraham ſaid unto him, Beware thou, that thou bring not my ſon thither again.

7 ¶ The Lord God of heaven which [d] took me from my father's houſe, and from the land of my kindred, and which ſpake unto me, and that ſware unto me, ſaying, [e] Unto thy ſeed will I give this land; he ſhall ſend his angel before thee, and thou ſhalt take a wife unto my ſon from thence.

8 And if the woman will not be willing to follow thee, then thou ſhalt be clear from this my oath: only bring not my ſon thither again.

9 And the ſervant put his hand under the thigh of Abraham his maſter, and ſware to him concerning that matter.

10 ¶ And the ſervant took ten camels, of the camels of his maſter, and departed († for all the goods of his maſter were in his hand:) and he aroſe, and went to Meſopotamia, unto [f] the city of Nahor.

11 And he made his camels to kneel down without the city, by a well of water, at the time of the evening, even the time ‡ [g] that women go out to draw water.

12 And he ſaid, O Lord God of my maſter Abraham, I pray thee ſend me good ſpeed this day, and ſhew kindneſs unto my maſter Abraham.

13 Behold, [h] I ſtand here by the well of water, and [i] the daughters of the men of the city come out to draw water:

14 And let it come to paſs, that the damſel to whom I ſhall ſay, Let down thy pitcher, I pray thee, that I may drink; and ſhe ſhall ſay, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink alſo: let the ſame be ſhe that thou haſt appointed for thy ſervant Iſaac; and [k] thereby ſhall I know that thou haſt ſhewed kindneſs unto my maſter.

15 ¶ And it came to paſs before he had done ſpeaking, that behold, Rebekah came out, who was born to Bethuel, ſon of [l] Milcah, the wife of Nahor Abraham's brother, with her pitcher upon her ſhoulder.

16 And the damſel was § very fair to look upon, a virgin, neither had any man known her: and ſhe went down to the well, and filled her pitcher, and came up.

17 And

a Chap. 15. 2. b Chap. 47. 29. 1 Chron. 29. 24. Lam. 5. 6.

c Chap. 26. 35. and 27. 46. and 28. 2. Exod. 34. 16. Deut. 7. 3.

d Chap. 12. 1, 7.

e Chap. 12. 7. and 13. 15. and 15. 18. and 26. 4. Exod. 32. 13. Deut. 34. 4. Acts 7. 5.

Before Christ 1857

† Or, and

f Chap. 27. 43.

‡ Heb. that women which draw water go forth.

g Exod. 2. 16. 1 Sam. 9. 11.

h Verſe 43.

i Chap. 29. 9. Exod. 2. 16.

k See Judges 6. 17, 37. 1 Sam. 6. 7. and 14. 8. and 20. 7.

l Chap. 11. 29. and 22. 23.

§ Heb. good of countenance.

Not one promiſe of God falls to the ground, or goes unfulfilled to Abraham, or to any who with him put their truſt in God.

V. 2. Thigh—A ceremony uſed in ſwearing, and only among believers, which implied the ſwearing by the promiſed ſeed.

V. 3. And this diſtinction between one part of the human race and another, is one of the ways by which that difference is made known to us from God, which there is between believers and unbelievers, not imagined or in name, but in reality; the mind of the believer being a partaker of the ſpirit of God, one fruit of which is faith, (Gal. v. 22.) and by which God is ſeen, feared, loved, and ſerved; whereas the unbeliever is ſo far from living under the influence of the ſpirit, that he has not God in his thoughts, but lives without any view or deſign to pleaſe God: Perſons ſo unlike in their principles of acting, and ends of living, can never be truly united, ſo long as the one continues to live to pleaſe God, and the other to pleaſe themſelves: And for one who has been brought to ſee the neceſſity of living to God, wilfully marries another who has never ſo much as ſeen themſelves ſinners in the ſight of God, or known the neceſſity of his pardon and grace, ſuch a conduct is a declared diſregard to that diſtinction which God has made between believers and unbelievers; and the action itſelf being forbid, to do it, is no other than to do evil that good may come of it, which as it is certain guilt, its unavoidable conſequences is certain miſery. God commands that which, in every inſtance, is as certainly for our good as that it is commanded.

V. 5. This faithful ſervant would not take the oath, before it was well underſtood what he ſhould do, in caſe none of that family were willing to come with him into Canaan.

V. 6. Beware thou—The command of God to Abraham, to leave his own country, extended to his poſterity; which accounts for this ſharp caution, and diſcovers in Abraham a mind intent in doing the will of God, and in providing for its being done by others under his authority.

V. 7. The father of the faithful here ſpeaks as a man that knew in whom he believed: The more confidently God is truſted in the ways of duty, the more evidently does his faithfulneſs appear in favour of all who do ſo; for, as believing in God our Saviour, and truſting in his mercy and grace, is the foundation of every good word and work, it muſt be, that they who truſt to God's faithfulneſs will be bleſſed, that, by means of their example, others may be led to do the ſame thing, and be alſo bleſſed in obtaining the end of their faith.

V. 8, 14. This was the conduct of a man taught by Abraham. He makes his requeſts known unto God by prayer and ſupplication; he ſpeaks as one ſenſible of his wants and of his entire dependance, and as one who knows every word he ſpeaks is heard by the God of the whole earth, whoſe mercy is over all his works, and ever waits to be gracious, and, though unſeen, will anſwer the prayer of faith.

V. 15, 16. Before he had done ſpeaking, Rebekah came, and ſhe went down to the well—Humility and diligence were then the ornaments

Before Christ 1857.

17 And the servant ran to meet her, and said, Let me (I pray thee) drink a little water of thy pitcher.

18 And she said, Drink, my lord: and she hasted, and let down her pitcher upon her hand, and gave him drink.

19 And when she had done giving him drink, she said, I will draw water for thy camels also, until they have done drinking.

20 And she hasted, and emptied her pitcher into the trough, and ran again unto the well to draw water, and drew for all his camels.

21 And the man wondering at her, held his peace, to wit whether the Lord had made his journey prosperous, or not.

22 And it came to pass as the camels had done drinking, that the man took a golden * ear-ring, of half a shekel weight, and two bracelets for her hands, of ten shekels weight of gold;

* Or, jewel for the forehead.

23 And said, Whose daughter art thou? tell me, I pray thee: is there room in thy father's house for us to lodge in?

Before Christ 1857.

24 And she said unto him, [m] I am the daughter of Bethuel the son of Milcah, which she bare unto Nahor.

m Chap. 22. 23.

25 She said moreover unto him, We have both straw and provender enough, and room to lodge in.

26 And the man [n] bowed down his head, and worshipped the Lord.

n Verse 52. Exod. 4. 31.

27 And he said, Blessed be the Lord God of my master Abraham, who hath not left destitute my master of his mercy and his truth: I being in the way, the Lord led me to the house of my master's brethren.

28 And the damsel ran, and told them of her mother's house these things.

29 ¶ And Rebekah had a brother, and his name was [o] Laban: and Laban ran out unto the man, unto the well.

o Chap. 29. 5.

30 And it came to pass when he saw the ear-ring naments of women; and are they not so now? Yes, and thanks be to the Author of all our mercies, there are not a few who, by wisdom from above, have been made to understand that God giveth grace to the humble, and whose faith and pious care, under their heavenly Father's blessing, can turn this vale of tears into a place of pleasantness and peace.

V. 21. The man wondering—That the thoughts which were given to him in prayer, should be so exactly and so immediately answered by what he saw before him.

V. 24. Rebekah signifies, by her answer, that she was Nahor's daughter by his lawful wife.

V. 25. She tells him the case, with which he might be entertained in her father's house, as an inducement for him to accept of her invitation.

V. 26, 27. The man bowed his head, and worshipped the Lord—Giving praise to his name for having shewn him so much mercy, and fulfilling the expectation of his master, on whose account also he expresses his thankfulness. A part of the instruction in this passage of the word of God, is to lay our wants humbly and particularly before Him, from a sense of our entire dependance, for every blessing, on his unmerited goodness; and then to intreat him to enable us to see the answer to our prayer, wait in the way of our duty with patience and resignation to the Divine will, for any answer his infinite compassion may see best to give; and then to imitate this faithful servant of Abraham's—the moment to express our praises and thanksgivings, the mercy appears to us, either in God's giving or with-holding what we ask: But as it is the Spirit which alone helpeth our infirmities, and as without it we know not what to pray for as we ought, (Rom. viii. 26.) in waiting upon God in prayer, the first duty and care is to wait upon Him for thought, for the knowledge and ability to perform that greatest of all duties—addressing the Most High God and King eternal: And with an entire dependance on the Spirit's aid, it is no less our duty than it is our happiness, to consider what it is we are about to ask of God, as well as our motives and designs in asking: As for instance, it is said on the Divine authority—(James i. 5.) "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally" whatever is asked agreeable to his holy will; but if a man only desires an increase of knowledge from the fountain of wisdom, that he may have praise of men, and not the honour that cometh of God, by truly devoting any increase of understanding which God may give him, to promote his glory by doing his will on earth, let not that man think he shall receive any thing of the Lord: It is in praying as it is in living, if a single eye—intention to please God, who seeth in secret, does not run through the whole soul, and imitate all its powers, to have all the desires of our heart given to us, may be the greatest curse that could be inflicted upon us: To be therefore at one with ourselves, to know our own minds, and what we truly intend by what we ask of God in prayer for ourselves or others, is as necessary as it is to pray; and this will soon appear, if any one will but do as God in his word graciously allows us to do—compare our requests to him with a child asking gifts of a parent:—And were we to see a son entreating his father for things that he had no need of, that he had more of the same kind already than he made a right use of, or that he was asking things without consideration, or without the least design to apply them to purposes which his father had taught him to believe were the wisest and the best, or that he even intended to waste them in ways which he had expressly forbid, or to lay them up and make no use of them till the day of accounts came, when the more that was given, the greater would be the cause of his confusion; did we see all this in a son's requests to a parent, doubtless we should think that parent more kind in not giving than giving: And shall the parent of all good give wisdom where he sees it will be made use of to gratify pride? shall he give abundance of plenty, however it may be desired with all the earnestness of the soul's longings, when to Him it is known that this would be to increase the number of guilty misers among mankind? and shall He pour out affluence upon all who desire to live in ease, riot, and excess? To read God's holy word without thinking and prayer, is the next to not reading it at all; and all the use of other men's reflections is to assist us in thinking and in making a right use of what is intended us by the Scriptures, a great part of which is for the very end of teaching us at all times, on all occasions, and in all places, to make our requests known unto God by prayer and supplication with more reverence than we would approach the presence of all the kings upon earth, and at the same time with all the plainness and singleness of heart with which a child would speak to a parent: And what a king and parent God is to pray to, we may understand by such examples of his willingness to hear, as this of Abraham's servant, and by such words as these—

"God

Before Christ 1857. ear-ring and bracelets upon his ſiſter's hands, and when he heard the words of Rebekah his ſiſter, ſaying, Thus ſpake the man unto me; that he came unto the man, and behold, he ſtood by the camels at the well.

31 And he ſaid, Come in, thou bleſſed of the Lord; wherefore ſtandeſt thou without? for I have prepared the houſe, and room for the camels.

32 ¶ And the man came into the houſe: and he ungirded his camels, and gave ſtraw and provender for the camels, and water to waſh his feet, and the men's feet that were with him.

33 And there was ſet meat before him to eat: but he ſaid, I will not eat, until I have told mine errand. And he ſaid, Speak on.

34 And he ſaid, I am Abraham's ſervant.

35 And the Lord hath bleſſed my maſter greatly, and he is become great: and he hath given him flocks, and herds, and ſilver, and gold, and men-ſervants, and maid-ſervants, and camels, and aſſes.

36 And Sarah my maſter's wife bare a ſon p Chap. 25. 5. to my maſter when ſhe was old: and [p] unto him hath he given all that he hath.

37 And my maſter made me ſwear, ſaying, Thou ſhalt not take a wife to my ſon of the daughters of the Canaanites, in whoſe land I dwell:

38 But thou ſhalt go unto my father's houſe, and to my kindred, and take a wife unto my ſon.

39 And I ſaid unto my maſter, Peradventure the woman will not follow me.

q Chap. 17. 1. 40 And he ſaid unto me, The Lord [q] before whom I walk, will ſend his angel with thee, and proſper thy way; and thou ſhalt take a wife for my ſon of my kindred, and of my father's houſe.

41 Then ſhalt thou be clear from this my oath, when thou comeſt to my kindred; and if they give not thee one, thou ſhalt be clear from my oath. Before Christ 1857.

42 And I came this day unto the well, and ſaid, O Lord God of my maſter Abraham, if now thou do proſper my way which I go:

43 [r] Behold, I ſtand by the well of water; and it ſhall come to paſs, that when the virgin cometh forth to draw water, and I ſay to her, Give me, I pray thee, a little water of thy pitcher to drink; r Verſe 13.

44 And ſhe ſay to me, Both drink thou, and I will alſo draw for thy camels: let the ſame be the woman whom the Lord hath appointed out for my maſter's ſon.

45 And before I had done ſpeaking in mine heart, behold, Rebekah came forth with her pitcher on her ſhoulder; and ſhe went down unto the well, and drew water: and I ſaid unto her, Let me drink, I pray thee.

46 And ſhe made haſte, and let down her pitcher from her ſhoulder, and ſaid, Drink, and I will give thy camels drink alſo: ſo I drank, and ſhe made the camels drink alſo.

47 And I aſked her, and ſaid, Whoſe daughter art thou? And ſhe ſaid, The daughter of Bethuel, Nahor's ſon, whom Milcah bare unto him: and I put the ear-ring upon her face, and the bracelets upon her hands.

48 And I bowed down my head, and worſhipped the Lord, and bleſſed the Lord God of my maſter Abraham, which had led me in the right way to take my maſter's brother's daughter unto his ſon.

49 And now if you will deal kindly and truly with my maſter, tell me: and if not, tell me; that I may turn to the right hand, or to the left.

50 Then Laban and Bethuel anſwered and ſaid, The thing proceedeth from the Lord: we cannot ſpeak unto thee bad or good.

51 Behold

"God ſhall ſupply all your need according to his riches in glory by Chriſt Jeſus." (Phil. iv. 19.) And they who pray thus believing, will ſoon find cauſe to rejoice evermore, and in every thing to give thanks. (1 Theſſ. v. 16. 18.)

V. 31. Come, thou bleſſed of the Lord—Whom God himſelf ſo fully hears and anſwers, as Rebekah has informed us.

V. 33. I will not eat till I have told mine errand—It was a part of the bleſſing beſtowed on Abraham to have ſuch a faithful ſervant, as this ſingle ſentence ſhews this more to be: Bleſſed is that maſter who has a ſervant to ſend who ſtedfaſtly fears God! O may the number of the ſervants of the Moſt High daily increaſe, who are employed throughout the world in ſpreading the meſſages of God to men, and who enter the dwellings of all to whom they come, in the ſpirit of this venerable man, who would not receive refreſhment himſelf till his maſter's buſineſs was advanced.

V. 34. I am Abraham's ſervant—This was his honour.

V. 35. The Lord hath bleſſed my maſter greatly—And this was Abraham's glory.

V. 40. The Lord before whom I walk—This was Abraham's care to walk—to live as in the ſight of God, doing whatever he did to the Lord, his judge and exceeding great reward.

V. 42, 48. The piety and noble ſimplicity of this diſcourſe to the family of his maſter's kindred, is eaſier to be admired than it is to be imitated, till we know Abraham's God, and that in Him there is everlaſting ſtrength, by which alone the proud mind of man can be made humble and ſimple enough to tell of the goodneſs of God.

V. 49. Now if you will, tell me: and if not, tell me—This was the language of a man of piety and integrity: and have mankind, in all the ages ſince his time, found out any better way than this, of delivering our meſſage in plain words, full of meaning, which gives thoſe

Before Christ 1857.

51 Behold, Rebekah is before thee, take her, and go, and let her be thy master's son's wife, as the Lord hath spoken.

52 And it came to pass, that when Abraham's servant heard their words, he [s] worshipped the Lord, bowing himself to the earth.

[s] Verse 26.

* Heb. vessels.

53 And the servant brought forth * jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment, and gave them to Rebekah: He gave also to her brother and to her mother precious things.

54 And they did eat and drink, he and the men that were with him, and tarried all night: and they rose up in the morning, and he said, [t] Send me away unto my master.

[t] Ver. 56. & 59.

† Or, a full year, or ten months. Judges 14. 8.

55 And her brother and her mother said, Let the damsel abide with us † a few days, at the least ten; after that she shall go.

56 And he said unto them, Hinder me not, seeing the Lord hath prospered my way: send me away, that I may go to my master.

57 And they said, We will call the damsel, and inquire at her mouth.

58 And they called Rebekah, and said unto her, Wilt thou go with this man? And she said, I will go.

59 And they sent away Rebekah their sister, and [u] her nurse, and Abraham's servant, and his men.

[u] Chap. 35. 8.

60 And they blessed Rebekah, and said unto her, Thou art our sister, be thou the mother of thousands of millions, and [x] let thy seed possess the gate of those which hate them.

[x] Chap. 22. 17.

61 ¶ And Rebekah arose, and her damsels, and they rode upon the camels, and followed the man: and the servant took Rebekah, and went his way.

Before Christ 1857.

62 And Isaac came from the way of the well Lahai-roi; for he dwelt in the south-country.

[y] Chap. 16. 14. & 25. 11.

63 And Isaac went out ‡ to meditate in the field at the even-tide: and he lifted up his eyes, and saw, and behold, the camels were coming.

‡ Or, to pray.

64 And Rebekah lifted up her eyes, and when she saw Isaac, [z] she lighted off the camel.

[z] Josh. 15. 18.

65 For she had said unto the servant, What man is this that walketh in the field to meet us? And the servant had said, It is my master: therefore she took a veil, and covered herself.

66 And the servant told Isaac all things that he had done.

67 And Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent, and took Rebekah, and she became his wife; and he loved her: And Isaac was comforted after his mother's death. 1857.

CHAP. XXV.

THEN again Abraham took a wife, and her name was Keturah. cir. 1853.

2 And [a] she bare him Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan, and Midian, and Ishbak, and Shua. [a] 1 Chron. 1. 32.

3 And

those our business is with, no other trouble than to say yes or no, after they have had time to determine what they ought to do?

V. 51. Behold, Rebekah, let her be thy master's son's wife, as the Lord hath spoken—When every step is taken and every determination made in the fear of God, and from the best persuasion it is his will, then a peaceful resignation without fear of the consequences will rest upon the mind: God is peace, and they that hear his voice and follow him, are led by him in the ways of peace; God has revealed His will, and it is full of information to direct us in all things what to do to please Him; and would we excuse errors we ought to cultivate an intimate acquaintance with the Scriptures, which will not only enable us to distinguish between what is and what is not the will of God in lesser cases, but they will also make wise unto salvation, with which not a single word or step in our lives is unconnected: But engagements of the nature of this before us are of the last moment, and they that would find all the blessings in them which the Father of mercies intends, would do well to regard his word, his providences, and the conscious testimony of his peaceful approbation; and how necessary it is to do so in our whole conduct is evident, when we reflect only that God is the Author of life, and that in a few days the desire of our eyes may by Him be removed out of our sight.

V. 52. Abraham's servant worshipped the Lord—An increase of mercies called for repeated praises, and he had been taught by the goodness of God, and by means of his master Abraham's example, to render unto God, without delay, that which was his duty to offer.

V. 53. Gave them to Rebekah—In those days men gave portions for their wives.

V. 57. We will call the damsel, and inquire at her mouth—Understand her mind by her words; not so much concerning the marriage itself, in which she resigned up herself to the disposal of her parents and friends, and to which she had given an implicit consent by her acceptance of those presents which were made to her for that end, as concerning the hastiness of her departure.

V. 59. Her nurse—Deborah. In this partly idolatrous family, the mother and the nurse are two distinct persons; but in Abraham's pious family there was no such practice.

V. 60. Thou art our sister—Our near kinswoman; distance of place shall not alienate our affections from thee, but we shall still own thee as our sister, and, as far as we can, be ready to perform all the duties of brethren to thee.

V. 62. Isaac dwelt in the south-country—In the southern part of Canaan.

V. 63. Isaac went out to meditate—To converse with God and with himself, by pious thoughts and fervent prayers. In the field—A solitary place, where he might more freely attend upon God without distraction. At the even-tide—That as he had begun the day with God, so he might close it with him, and commit himself to his protection.

V. 64. Rebekah lighted off the camel—As a testimony of her respect to him whom, by the servant, she understood to be her Lord and Husband.

V. 67. Isaac brought her into his mother Sarah's tent—To give her possession of it. Isaac was comforted after his mother's death—A sorrowful sense whereof he yet had retained, though she died three years before this time.

Before Christ cir. 1853.

3 And Jokshan begat Sheba, and Dedan. And the sons of Dedan were Asshurim, and Letushim, and Leummim.

4 And the sons of Midian; Ephah, and Epher, and Hanoch, and Abidah, and Eldaah. All these were the children of Keturah.

b Chap. 24. 36.

5 ¶ And [b] Abraham gave all that he had unto Isaac.

6 But unto the sons of the concubines which Abraham had, Abraham gave gifts, and sent them away from Isaac his son (while he yet lived) eastward, unto the east-country.

1822.

7 And these are the days of the years of Abraham's life which he lived, an hundred threescore and fifteen years.

c Chap. 15. 15. and 49. 29.

8 Then Abraham gave up the ghost, and [c] died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years; and was gathered to his people.

9 And his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah, in the field of Ephron the son of Zoar the Hittite, which is before Mamre;

Before Christ cir. 1822.

d Chap. 23. 16.

10 [d] The field which Abraham purchased of the sons of Heth: there was Abraham buried, and Sarah his wife.

e Chap. 16. 14. and 24. 62.

11 ¶ And it came to pass after the death of Abraham, that God blessed his son Isaac: and Isaac dwelt by the [e] well Lahai-roi.

12 ¶ Now these are the generations of Ishmael Abraham's son, whom Hagar the Egyptian, Sarah's hand-maid, bare unto Abraham.

f 1 Chro. 1. 29.

13 And [f] these are the names of the sons of Ishmael, by their names, according to their generations: The first-born of Ishmael, Nebajoth; and Kedar, and Adbeel, and Mibsam, 1800.

14 And Mishma, and Dumah, and Massah,

* Or, Hadad. 1 Chro. 1. 30.

15 * Hadar, and Tema, Jetur, Naphish, and Kedemah.

g Chap. 17. 20.

16 These are the sons of Ishmael, and these are their names, by their towns, and by their castles; [g] twelve princes according to their nations.

17 And

CHAP. XXV.

V. 2 Zimran, and Jokshan, and Medan—These persons were the heads of several people dwelling in Arabia and Syria. Midian—The Father of those Midianites. (Job ii. 11)

V. 5. All that he had—Except that which is excepted in the following verse.

V. 6. Abraham sent them away from Isaac his son—That the entire possession of that land might be reserved to the children of Isaac. The east-country—Into Arabia and other parts of Asia the Greater, which were east-ward from the southern part of Canaan where Abraham now was.

V. 8. Abraham gave up the ghost—His soul was not required of him, not forced from him by sharp and violent diseases, but was quietly, easily, and cheerfully yielded up by him into the hands of his merciful God and Father, as the word intimates. A good old age—Good, both graciously, his hoary head being found in the way of righteousness, and naturally free from the infirmities and calamities of old age. And full of years—When he had lived as long as he desired, being in some sort weary of life and desirous to be dissolved: Or full of all good, as the Chaldee renders it, satisfied with favour, and full with the blessing of the Lord, upon himself, and upon his children. And was gathered to his people—To his godly progenitors, the former patriarchs, to the congregation of the just in heaven. For it cannot be meant of his body, which was not joined with them in the place of burial, but buried in a strange land, where only Sarah's body lay. With what religious pleasure does the mind look after a servant of God departed, who thought nothing too much to do or suffer to shew his love to his Redeemer, who loved him, and who promised, and came, and died to save him from the wrath of God due to every sin: But for this hope, they that suffer here for their Master's sake, would be of all men most miserable; but with the sure hopes which this blessed book opens to the view of every believing mind, and all things are good in the way to glory. But alas! how do we look after those who are called away before they would take time from this life's cares, honours, and pleasures, to acquaint themselves with God, his word, or the world to come. O Lord! call home our hearts, for thou alone canst do it; and to Thee, the ever merciful physician of our fallen souls, let the whole human race apply, that nations may not rush into the grave with life's great business left undone, and themselves undone for ever.

V. 11. After the death of Abraham, God blessed his son Isaac—Begun evidently to fulfil the promises made to Abraham; and in doing so, to shew all mankind, that the blessing of God is the best inheritance in this life, as well as that to come.

V. 13. Nebajoth—From whom part of Arabia was called Nabathæa. Kedar—The father of those called Cedarini in Arabia.

V. 15. Tema—He gave his name to the city and country of Tema, or Teman. Jetur—The father of the Itureans.

V. 16. Twelve princes—According to the promise of God, (chap. xvii. 20.) and recorded to shew his faithfulness: None of these sure proofs of the exact accomplishments of the sacred promises are of private interpretation,—they are to teach us to depend on what God hath declared beforehand, concerning our danger in not believing what God hath said; because this is the height of impiety, counting him a liar, and it is also to be guilty of denying all the proofs he has given the world, that not a word of his falls to the ground; and on the other hand, every accomplishment, of what God hath at any time promised to any person in the Scriptures, is to be looked upon as the most certain proof to us that God will not deny himself, but that he does remain for ever faithful to his word, and that as we become sensible of our wants, we may look to him for the sure accomplishment of all his promises: And to these instances of the fulfilling of the promises of God, are added appeals to the experience of men that have known God—"Thou calledst in trouble, and I delivered thee." (Psal. lxxxi. 7.) Reader, Why does God thus speak in his revealed will? Why hath he caused proofs of his faithfulness to be brought under your consideration? Why does he appeal to the experience of other men? Why, but to tell you, and me, and all mankind, That "he "is our Father, our God, and the rock of our salvation," (Psal. lxxxix. 26.) inviting us under every want we feel of his grace or providential aid, that we may "open our mouths wide, and he will "fill us." (Psal. lxxxi. 10.) Yes, to all the sons of Ishmael, as well as Isaac, is the God of glory an everlasting refuge; and hath from himself a peace to give, to all that call upon him and believe in his name, which the world cannot give or take away; and who

that

Before Christ 1773.

17 And these are the years of the life of Ishmael, an hundred and thirty and seven years: and he gave up the ghost and died, and was gathered unto his people.

h 1 Sam. 15. 7.

18 h And they dwelt from Havilah unto Shur, that is before Egypt, as thou goest towards Assyria: and he † died i in the presence of all his brethren.

† Heb. fell. Psa. 78. 55. i Chap. 16. 12.

19 ¶ And these are the generations of Isaac Abraham's son: k Abraham begat Isaac.

k Matt. 1. 2.

1857.

20 And Isaac was forty years old when he took Rebekah to wife, l the daughter of Bethuel the Syrian of Padan-aram, the sister to Laban the Syrian.

l Chap. 22. 23.

21 And Isaac intreated the Lord for his wife, because she was barren: and the Lord was intreated of him, and m Rebekah his wife conceived.

Before Christ 1838.

m Rom. 9. 10.

22 And the children struggled together within her: and she said, If it be so, why am I thus? n And she went to inquire of the Lord.

n 1 Sam. 9. 9.

23 And the Lord said unto her, Two nations are in thy womb, and two manner of people shall be separated from thy bowels: and o the one people shall be stronger than the other people; and p the elder shall serve the younger.

o 2 Sam. 8. 14.

p Chap. 27. 29. Mal. 1. 3. Rom. 9. 12.

24 ¶ And

that truly knows this, and sees themselves surrounded with a world of sorrow and of misery among mankind, can want true benevolence so much, as to be unwilling to speak or write their lives away, if these may but be the means of making known to immortal minds, that peaceful rest of soul, which all may, and none can, find but in God alone.

V. 17, 18. He lived an hundred and thirty and seven years—Which is recorded to shew the efficacy of Abraham's prayer for him. O that Ishmael might live before thee! Then he also was gathered to his people; an expression used for those who died in the favour of God. And he died in the presence of all his brethren—With his friends about him. Who would not wish so to do? But whatever God pleases is wisest, fittest, and best.

V. 20. And Isaac was forty years old—Not much is related concerning Isaac, but what had reference to his father, while he lived, and to his sons afterward; for Isaac seems to have been a man that spent his days in quietness and peace; and therefore the more exact type of the Prince of peace, in whom all the nations of the earth were to be blessed, by his atonement for their sins, by the possession of his mind, and by following the example of his peaceful, blameless life. Blessed are they who do not enter upon this life to act for themselves, before they are taught to look for their safety and their happiness, in walking in the ways of His holy and excellent laws!

V. 21. Isaac intreated the Lord—He prayed, as the Hebrew word signifies, instantly or fervently, frequently and continually, for near twenty years together; for so long it was between their marriage and the first child. He knew God's promises did not exclude, but require the use of all means for their accomplishment. For his wife—In the presence of his wife, signifying, that, besides their more secret devotions, they prayed together. God had promised to multiply his family; but God's promises did not supersede, but encourage his prayers, and were the ground of his faith. Though he had prayed for this mercy many years, and it was not granted, yet he did not leave off praying for it.

V. 22. Why am I thus—Why is it thus with me? Why hath God dealt thus with me? She went to inquire of the Lord—Either immediately by prayer to God, or by her father Abraham, who lived fifteen years after this time, or by some other godly Patriarch yet surviving, by whom God used to manifest his will and counsels to others. The word of God is now first to be consulted, all other information is only certain so far as it is agreeable to the Scriptures; but it is only God Himself that can direct us in our inquiries even in his word; and surely wisest are they who first and last make their requests known unto their Father which is in heaven, who can make known the answer immediately from Himself, or by means of the written word, or by men, or books.

V. 23. The Lord said unto her—In these times the Lord spake with a voice, he descended and conversed with his reasonable creatures in the appearance of an Angel, and universally he spake by his Spirit to his servants, and to them that feared Him, and prayed to him; and by knowledge thus communicated by the Holy Ghost, were the Scriptures written: But since the Scriptures were written, is it not presumption in men to look for any answer to prayer immediately from God to our hearts and minds?—You have considered the Scriptures, you are satisfied they contain the word of God; you believe it able to make you wise to salvation, and to guide you into all truth; and you have now, whatever has been your past conduct, determined to live agreeable to the rules laid down in the Scriptures; you begin to read them, to pray, and sing praises in your dwellings; your friends, who were before familiar with you, forsake you as a man that would infect them with a dangerous disease, and with avoiding you; they think themselves dishonoured that they ever knew you, or that they bear you the most distant relation; you hear yourself charged with many things you never so much as thought of; and to words, actions of real unkindness are shewn to you: Under the pain all this gives you, with Rebekah you go to inquire of the Lord in prayer, and though you hear no voice, you are answered—"All that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution;" and you are as sensible of the meaning of these words in your mind, as if you had read them, or in that moment heard them: They are in the Scriptures, but how are they so seasonably brought to your mind? You again humbly pray to be informed.—"God is a Spirit," is the reply made to your heart. And may all men worship God in spirit at this day, and have the unspeakable consolation of knowing that they have a God to address themselves to in every time of trouble, that heareth and answereth prayer? Yes, or why are men in all the ends of the earth invited to look unto God. Blessed are they who have his word, and read it with a view to know his will, and to understand the gracious language of his spirit; but if men who have his written word, by their guilty neglect or disobedience, leave whole nations of their fellow creatures unacquainted with these blessed discoveries of the will of God, to whom has the Father of mercies given authority to say—He will not seek those that worship him in spirit and in truth in every nation? And if God as a spirit seeks them, and they in spirit worship him, shall not their fellowship be with the Father and with the Son by the Spirit? And if they who are without the written word shall be blessed with fellowship and communion with God by His Spirit, where is it that God hath said, That they that have His word, who also worship Him in Spirit and in truth, shall pray in vain for that bread of life which cometh down from heaven; and which only is able to sustain and comfort the soul against all adversity? Say, ye compassionate parents, do you hear your children's cries for what you alone can give, and still leave them unrelieved? If you rejoice to supply your children's wants, "how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?" (Luke xi. 13.) Two nations and two manner of people shall be separated from thy bowels—Who could say this? None but the Author of life, to whom all future things are present; God having given to men the knowledge

Before Christ 1838.

24 ¶ And when her days to be delivered were fulfilled, behold, there were twins in her womb.

q Chap. 27. 22, 36, 23.

25 And the first came out red, q all over like an hairy garment: and they called his name Esau.

26 And after that came his brother out, and his hand took hold on Esau's heel; and r Hos. 12. 3. s Chap. 27. 36.

s his name was called Jacob: and Isaac was threescore years old when she bare them.

1837.

27 And the boys grew: and Esau was a cunning hunter, a man of the field; and Jacob was a plain man dwelling in tents.

† Heb. venison was in his mouth.

28 And Isaac loved Esau, because † he did eat of his venison: but Rebekah loved Jacob.

29 ¶ And Jacob sod pottage: and Esau came from the field, and he was faint.

30 And Esau said to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, § with that same red pottage; for I am faint: therefore was his name called Edom.

§ Heb. with that red, with that red pottage.

31 And Jacob said, Sell me this day thy birth-right.

Before Christ 1837.

32 And Esau said, Behold, I am * at the point to die: and what profit shall this birth-right do to me?

cir. 1805. * Heb. going to die.

33 And Jacob said, Swear to me this day; and he sware unto him: and t he sold his birth-right unto Jacob.

cir. 1805. t Heb. 12. 16.

34 Then Jacob gave Esau bread and pottage of lentiles; and he did eat and drink, and rose up, and went his way: thus Esau despised his birth-right.

CHAP. XXVI.

AND there was a famine in the land, besides a the first famine that was in the days of Abraham. And Isaac went unto n Abimelech king of the Philistines, unto Gerar.

cir. 1804. a Chap. 12. 10. n Chap. 20. 2.

2 And the Lord appeared unto him, and said, Go not down into Egypt: dwell in the land which I shall tell thee of.

3 Sojourn

knowledge of all things necessary in his revealed will, and established it by ten thousand miracles; that which is already given is not wanted, and these are not included in the unspeakable gift of his blessed Spirit to mankind—"To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of satan unto God" (Acts xxvi. 18.) and to abide in him. The elder shall serve the younger—Or, the greater, namely Esau, who was, as older, of a stronger constitution of body, and of greater power and dignity in the world than Jacob; and Esau's posterity were great Princes for a long time, when Jacob's seed were strangers in Canaan, slaves in Egypt, and poor afflicted wanderers in the wilderness. But, saith he, Esau and his shall not always be stronger and mightier than Jacob and his posterity, the tables shall be turned, and the children of Israel shall be uppermost and subdue the Edomites, which was literally accomplished in David's time, and after that by the Maccabees; but much more eminently in a spiritual sense under the gospel, when one of Jacob's children, even Jesus Christ, shall obtain the dominion, and shall rule the Edomites no less than other heathen nations. Here again lively images are presented to us to keep us in mind—that nature, the first-born, is to yield to grace. That Adam came first into the world and sinned, his nature must truly die in us; and Jesus, the second Head of mankind, must live and reign, till he hath put all things in subjection to the powerful influence of his Spirit.

V. 25. Red—The Red Sea is supposed to receive its name, as the heathen writers tell us, from one who reigned in those parts, and was called Erythras, which signifies red, the same with Edom, or Esau. Esau—Made or perfect, not properly a child, but rather a man as soon as he was born. All have the perfect nature of sinful men, and not of God, from their birth.

V. 26. Jacob—Supplanter, or one that taketh hold of his brother's heel.

V. 27. Esau was a hunter—Of wild beasts, and afterwards an oppressor of men. A man of the field—One that delighted more in conversing abroad than at home: Whoever will consider Esau's whole character, will find it, with Ishmael's, descriptive of the natural or unrenewed mind—oppressive to others, wild and unrestrained in itself. A plain man dwelling in tents—Quietly minding the management of his own domestick affairs, his lands and cattle, and giving no disturbance either to beasts or men.

V. 28. Isaac loved Esau—Not simply nor chiefly, because he pleased his palate, but because this was an evidence of his son's great respect and affection to him, that he would take such pains to please and serve his Father. But Rebekah loved Jacob—Upon better grounds, because of his more pious and meek temper, and because of the oracle and promise of God.

V. 30. I pray thee—The word is doubled in the Hebrew text to shew how vehemently he desired it. Edom—Which signifies red, as he was at first so called from the colour of his hair.

V. 31. This day—Speedily, without delay—Thy birth-right—The dignity and authority over his brethren. A double portion. A special blessing from his Father. The priesthood and chief government of the affairs of the church in his father's absence, or sickness, and after his death. The first-born was a special type both of Christ, who was to be a first-born, and of the church, which is called God's first-born, and of the great privileges of the church, particularly of adoption and eternal life. And therefore he is justly called profane, for slighting so sacred and glorious a privilege. Could the birth-right be lost? Yes. (See Gen. iv. 7. and 1 Chron. v. 1.) Did Jacob well in this? No; because he tempted his brother to an act of profaneness, and so was guilty of his sin. And though God had designed and promised this privilege to him, yet he should have waited till God had executed his promise in his own way, as David did till God gave him possession of Saul's kingdom, and not have anticipated God, and snatched it by an irregular act of his own, as Jeroboam did the kingdom from Rehoboam.

V. 32. What profit shall this birth-right do to me—By which he plainly shews, that his care and affections reached no further than the present life. What do they do, who prefer any present gain, or gratification, to the duties and consolations of real religion?

V. 33. Swear this day—He requires haste in the sale, so in his oath, wherein another sin is added, in hurrying his brother into an oath by precipitation, which neither his brother should have taken, nor Jacob should have advised him to take, without mature advice.

V. 34. Esau rose up, and went his way—Secure and impenitent, without any remorse for his ingratitude to God, or the injury which he had done to himself, and to all his posterity; preferring the present and momentary satisfaction of his appetite before God's and his father's blessing, and all the glorious privileges of the birth-right.

CHAP. XXVI.

V. 2. Go not into Egypt—Whither it seems Isaac intended to go, it being a very fruitful place.

V. 3. Upon

Before Christ cir. 1408.

3 Sojourn in this land, and I will be with thee, and will bleſs thee: for unto thee and unto thy ſeed [c] I will give all theſe countries, and I will perform [d] the oath which I ſware unto Abraham thy father.

4 And [e] I will make thy ſeed to multiply as the ſtars of heaven, and will give unto thy ſeed all theſe countries: and in thy ſeed ſhall all the nations of the earth be [f] bleſſed:

5 Becauſe that Abraham obeyed my voice, and kept my charge, my commandments, my ſtatutes, and my laws.

6 ¶ And Iſaac dwelt in Gerar.

7 And the men of the place aſked him of his wife; and [g] he ſaid, She is my ſiſter: for he feared to ſay, She is my wife; leſt, ſaid he, the men of the place ſhould kill me for Rebekah, becauſe ſhe was fair to look upon.

8 And it came to paſs when he had been there a long time, that Abimelech king of the Philiſtines looked out at a window, and ſaw, and behold, Iſaac was ſporting with Rebekah his wife.

9 And Abimelech called Iſaac, and ſaid, Behold, of a ſurety ſhe is thy wife: and how ſaidſt thou, She is my ſiſter? And Iſaac ſaid unto him, Becauſe I ſaid, Leſt I die for her.

10 And Abimelech ſaid, What is this thou haſt done unto us? one of the people might lightly have lien with thy wife, and [h] thou ſhouldeſt have brought guiltineſs upon us.

11 And Abimelech charged all his people, ſaying, He that toucheth this man or his wife, ſhall ſurely be put to death.

12 Then Iſaac ſowed in that land, and * received in the ſame year an hundred-fold, and the Lord bleſſed him.

13 And the man waxed great, and † went forward, and grew until he became very great.

14 For he had poſſeſſion of flocks, and poſſeſſion of herds, and great ſtore of ‡ ſervants. And the Philiſtines envied him.

15 For all the wells [i] which his father's ſervants had digged in the days of Abraham his father, the Philiſtines had ſtopped them, and filled them with earth.

16 And Abimelech ſaid unto Iſaac, Go from us: for [k] thou art much mightier than we.

17 ¶ And Iſaac departed thence, and pitched his tent in the valley of Gerar, and dwelt there.

18 And Iſaac digged again the wells of water, which they had digged in the days of Abraham his father; for the Philiſtines had ſtopped them after the death of Abraham: and he called their names after the names by which his father had called them.

19 And Iſaac's ſervants digged in the valley, and found there a well of § ſpringing water.

20 And the herdmen of Gerar did ſtrive with Iſaac's herdmen, ſaying, The water is ours: and he called the name of the well * Eſek, becauſe they ſtrove with him.

21 And they digged another well, and ſtrove for that alſo: and he called the name of it † Sitnah.

22 And he removed from thence, and digged another well; and for that they ſtrove not: and he called the name of it ‡ Rehoboth; and he ſaid, For now the Lord hath made room for us, and we ſhall be fruitful in the land.

23 And he went up from thence to Beerſheba.

24 And the Lord appeared unto him the ſame night, and ſaid, I am the God of Abraham

Before Christ cir. 1804.

[c] Chap. 13. 15. and 15. 18.
[d] Chap. 22. 16.
[e] Chap. 15. 5.
[f] Chap. 12. 3. and 22. 18.
[g] Chap. 12. 13. and 20. 2, 13.
[h] Chap. 20. 9.
* Heb. found.
† Heb. went going.
‡ Or, husbandry.
[i] Chap. 21. 30.
[k] Exod. 1. 9.
§ Heb. living.
* That is, contention.
† That is, hatred.
‡ That is, room.

V. 3. Unto thee and thy ſeed—To thee, to enjoy for thy preſent comfort, and to them to poſſeſs as an inheritance. The promiſes were thus confirmed.

V. 5. The promiſe and covenant was made by God with Abraham of mere grace, as is evident and confeſſed; ſo the mercies promiſed and performed to him and his, are ſo great and vaſt, that it is an idle thing to think they could be merited by ſo mean a compenſation as Abraham's obedience, which was a debt that he owed to God, had there been no ſuch covenant or promiſe made by God, and which alſo was an effect of God's graces to him and in him.

V. 7. He feared—He would not have her thought to be his wife.

V. 10. Brought guiltineſs upon us—The guilt of adultery, which was heinous even amongſt the heathens, and eſpecially here, becauſe it was freſh in memory how ſorely God had puniſhed Abimelech and all his family, only for an intention of adultery.—They take it for granted, that their ignorance had not been a ſufficient excuſe for their ſin.

V. 11. He that toucheth this man, or his wife—Hurteth or injureth, ſhall ſurely be put to death.

V. 12. Received an hundred fold—An hundred times as much as he ſowed. Every benefit is from the bleſſing of the Lord; He alone giveth the increaſe of the ſeed that is ſown, and the ſucceſs of them that labour.

V. 14. He had great ſtore of ſervants—Of huſbandry, of cornfields, vineyards, cattle, and lands, which he diligently and ſucceſsfully managed.

V. 16. Thou art much mightier than we—Which breeds envy and fear among my ſubjects, and may occaſion greater miſchiefs, and therefore it is better that we ſhould part friends, than by continuing together be turned into enemies.

V. 20. The water is ours—Becauſe digged in our ſoil: Which was no good encouragement, becauſe he digged it by their conſent or permiſſion, at his own charge, and for his own uſe. Called the well Eſek—Contention.

V. 21. Sitnah—That is, hatred.

V. 23. Beer-ſheba—Where he lived before the famine drave him thence.

V. 24. The Lord appeared unto him—And from himſelf gave ham thy father: fear not, for I am with thee, and will bleſs thee, and multiply thy ſeed for my ſervant Abraham's ſake.

Before Christ cir. 1804.

[l] Chap. 12. 7. and 13. 18.

25 And he [l] builded an altar there, and called upon the name of the Lord, and pitched his tent there: and there Iſaac's ſervants digged a well.

[m] Chap. 21. 22.

26 ¶ Then Abimelech went to him from Gerar, and Ahuzzath one of his friends, [m] and Phichol the chief captain of his army.

27 And Iſaac ſaid unto them, Wherefore come ye to me, ſeeing ye hate me, and have ſent me away from you?

§ Heb. Seeing we ſaw.

28 And they ſaid, § We ſaw certainly that the Lord was with thee: and we ſaid, Let there be now an oath betwixt us, even betwixt us and thee, and let us make a covenant with thee;

* Heb. If thou ſhalt, &c.

29 * That thou wilt do us no hurt, as we have not touched thee, and as we have done unto thee nothing but good, and have ſent thee away in peace: thou art now the bleſſed of the Lord.

30 And he made them a feaſt, and they did eat and drink.

31 And they roſe up betimes in the morning, and ſware one to another: and Iſaac ſent them away, and they departed from him in peace.

32 And it came to paſs the ſame day, that Iſaac's ſervants came, and told him concerning the well which they had digged, and ſaid unto him, We have found water.

Before Christ cir. 1804.

† That is, an oath.

[n] Chap. 21. 31.

‡ That is, the well of the oath.

33 And he called it † Shebah: [n] therefore the name of the city is ‡ Beer-ſheba unto this day.

1796.

[o] Chap. 36. 2.

34 ¶ [o] And Eſau was forty years old when he took to wife Judith the daughter of Beeri the Hittite, and Baſhemath the daughter of Elon the Hittite:

[p] Chap. 27. 46.

§ Heb. bitterneſs of ſpirit.

35 Which [p] were § a grief of mind unto Iſaac and to Rebekah.

CHAP. XXVII.

1760.

AND it came to paſs, that when Iſaac was old and [a] his eyes were dim, ſo that he could not ſee, he called Eſau his eldeſt ſon, and ſaid unto him, My ſon: And he ſaid unto him, Behold, here am I.

[a] Chap. 48. 10.

2 And he ſaid, Behold now, I am old, I know not the day of my death.

3 Now therefore take, I pray thee, thy weapons, thy quiver, and thy bow, and go out to the field, and * take me ſome veniſon;

* Heb. hunt.

4 And make me ſavoury meat, ſuch as I love, and bring it to me, that I may eat; that my ſoul may bleſs thee before I die.

5 And Rebekah heard when Iſaac ſpake to Eſau him theſe words of conſolation—I am with thee. A greater comfort and ſupport to them that know God's faithfulneſs, than the united favour of all mankind, could it be declared to them as with one voice.

V. 25. Called upon—PRAISED him for the gracious conſolations God favoured him with, and for the protection of his almighty Providence; and called upon God for all that his daily wants required, but eſpecially for His grace to keep the flame of faith alive, that he might always continue to truſt him for his grace and providential care.

V. 26. Phichol—This word ſignifies, the mouth of all; or he by whom all the people were to preſent their addreſſes to the king, and receive the king's commands. Or, this might be the ſon of him mentioned before, and called by his father's name, as Abimelech alſo was.

V. 28, 29. We ſaw certainly that the Lord was with thee, and that thou art now the bleſſed of the Lord—Whom God hath enriched with great bleſſings; and ſeeing God hath bleſſed thee, it will not become thee to curſe us, or to bear any grudge againſt us for that little unkindneſs which we expreſſed to thee. They deſired to be on good terms with him, whom they ſaw God bleſſed.

V. 31. They roſe betimes in the morning—This is often mentioned in the Scriptures; and we are not ſo often reminded of riſing early for nothing. Theſe examples are in effect to tell us, that much of our health and much of our uſefulneſs depends upon our following them: One man that gains but two hours each night, which another ſpends in ſuperfluous reſt, reckoning the hours of application to be but twelve in the twenty-four, to the purpoſes of our employment, then he that adds two hours to the twelve, to the real ends of living, may be ſaid to live one ſixth longer than another, who is as uſefully employed in the day, but who waſtes two hours more in needleſs reſt in the night. In thirty years, it is equal to a clear gain of five; or, in two ſuch perſons, it is the ſame as if the one outlived the other five years in a life-time, allowed but to be of thirty years for the real ends of living. What theſe are, it is the buſineſs of theſe Sacred writings to inform us; and, indoing it, they are conſtantly reminding us to bring our lives into a rule of riſing early, and redeeming the time.

V. 33. Beer-ſheba—That is, the well of the oath.

V. 34. Judith and Baſhemath—Both Hittites, the worſt of the Canaanites, which, from his grand-father Abraham's ſevere charge, (Gen. xxiv. 3.) he muſt needs know would be highly diſpleaſing both to God and to his parents.

V. 35. A grief of mind unto Iſaac, and to Rebekah—Bitterneſs of ſpirit, becauſe of their idolatry and other wickedneſs.

CHAP. XXVII.

V. 1. When Iſaac was old—About one hundred and thirty-ſeven years old.

V. 4. That I may eat, that my ſoul may bleſs thee—That, being refreſhed, his ſpirit might be more fit for the giving of this benediction. He ſpeaks not here of a common and cuſtomary bleſſing, which parents may beſtow upon any of their children when they pleaſe; but of the laſt, ſolemn, extraordinary, and prophetical benediction, whereby theſe holy Patriarchs did, by God's appointment, and with His concurrence, conſtitute one of their ſons heir, not only of their inheritance, but of Abraham's covenant, and all the promiſes, both temporal and ſpiritual, belonging to it. As for the oracle delivered to Rebekah, which transferred this bleſſing upon Jacob, (chap. xxv. 23.) either Iſaac knew not of it, not being ſufficiently informed thereof by Rebekah; or he did not thoroughly underſtand it; or he might apprehend that it was to be accompliſhed not in the perſons of Eſau and Jacob, but in their poſterity; or at this time it was quite out of his mind, or he was induced to neglect it through his paſſionate affection to his ſon Eſau.

V. 7, Bleſs

Before Christ 1760. Esau his son: and Esau went to the field to hunt for venison, and to bring it.

6 ¶ And Rebekah spake unto Jacob her son, saying, Behold, I heard thy father speak unto Esau thy brother, saying,

7 Bring me venison, and make me savoury meat, that I may eat, and bless thee before the Lord before my death.

8 Now therefore, my son, obey my voice, according to that which I command thee.

9 Go now to the flock, and fetch me from thence two good kids of the goats; and I will make them savoury meat for thy father, such as he loveth.

10 And thou shalt bring it to thy father, that he may eat, and that he may bless thee before his death.

11 And Jacob said to Rebekah his mother, Behold, Esau my brother is a hairy man, and I am a smooth man.

12 My father peradventure will feel me, and I shall seem to him as a deceiver; and I shall bring a curse upon me, and not a blessing.

13 And his mother said unto him, Upon me be thy curse, my son: only obey my voice, and go fetch me them.

14 And he went, and fetched, and brought them to his mother: and his mother made savoury meat, such as his father loved.

†Heb. desireable. 15 And Rebekah took † goodly raiment of her eldest son Esau, which were with her in the house, and put them upon Jacob her younger son.

16 And she put the skins of the kids of the goats upon his hands, upon the smooth of his neck.

17 And she gave the savoury meat, and the bread which she had prepared, into the hand of her son Jacob. Before Christ 1760.

18 ¶ And he came unto his father, and said, My father: And he said, Here am I; who art thou, my son?

19 And Jacob said unto his father, I am Esau thy first-born; I have done according as thou badest me: arise, I pray thee, sit and eat of my venison, that thy soul may bless me.

20 And Isaac said unto his son, How is it that thou hast found it so quickly, my son? And he said, Because the Lord thy God brought it ‡ to me. ‡ Heb. before me.

21 And Isaac said unto Jacob, Come near, I pray thee, that I may feel thee, my son, whether thou be my very son Esau, or not.

22 And Jacob went near unto Isaac his father, and he felt him; and said, The voice is Jacob's voice, but the hands are the hands of Esau.

23 And he discerned him not, because his hands were hairy, as his brother Esau's hands: So he blessed him.

24 And he said, Art thou my very son Esau? And he said, I am.

25 And he said, Bring it near to me, and I will eat of my son's venison, that my soul may bless thee. And he brought it near to him, and he did eat: and he brought him wine, and he drank.

26 And his father Isaac said unto him, Come near now, and kiss me, my son.

27 And he came near, and kissed him: and he smelled the smell of his raiment, and blessed

V. 7. Bless thee before the Lord—Solemnly, as in God's presence; in his name, and by his authority, and with his leave and favour, which I shall heartily pray for thee. So he signifies that this was more than an ordinary blessing, which he now intended to give him.

V. 9. It is observable, that as Jacob deceived his father by a kid, so his sons deceived him by the same creature, when they informed him of Joseph's death. (Gen. xxxvii. 31.)

V. 12. I shall seem—I shall appear to him to be indeed a deceiver, one that abuseth his age and blindness. I shall bring a curse upon me—Which is due to every one that deceiveth the blind, (Deut. xxvii. 18.) and wilfully to mislead, or misinform others in matters of a religious nature, is to procure the curse of God. (Jer. xlviii. 10.)

V. 13. Upon me be thy curse—She saith so, out of an assured confidence in the Divine promise.

V. 19. I am Esau—This was a manifest untruth, as well as the whole relation, though God graciously pardoned it, and conferred the blessing promised upon Jacob. The mercies which God promises are forfeited by our sins; and when we receive them on true repentance, nothing but His grace can prevent our again forfeiting them: To take indirect means to procure religious benefits, is to do evil that good may come of it, and is never any more necessary, than it was for Jacob thus to misinform his father to inherit the promised blessing: The sufferings of the future part of Jacob's life are in their very nature such, under the government of the Divine Providence, as point out Jacob's crime: All the gracious promises and goodness of God are to lead us to true repentance, and from all evil, to love and serve the living God; and the severity of God against all wilful sin in all men, by whatever name they are called, is sufficiently declared and proved by the Scriptures, to make it certain that whoever does evil, must either accept of his offered grace, and turn to God by true repentance, or suffer under His displeasure. When God shall judge the world in righteousness, who shall stand before Him and justify themselves? He that knoweth His will and doeth it not, shall be beaten with many stripes.—God be merciful to me a sinner, and save, Lord, or I perish, deliver us from evil—is the language of all that come unto God, and who are living in his fear: He that committeth sin is of the father of sin, the devil, whose work the wilful or the careless sinner is then doing: No man can serve two masters, whose commands are in all things, and in every step, directly contrary to each other.

V. 26. Come near now, and kiss me, my son—As a mark of that affection wherewith he bestowed the blessing.

V. 28. God

Before Christ 1760.

blessed him, and said, See, the smell of my son is as the smell of a field, which the Lord hath blessed.

[b] Heb. 11. 20.

28 Therefore [b] God give thee of the dew of heaven, and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of corn and wine.

[c] Chap. 9. 25. and 25. 23.
[d] Chap. 49. 8.
[e] Chap. 12. 3. Num. 24. 9.

29 [c] Let people serve thee, and nations bow down to thee; be lord over thy brethren, and [d] let thy mother's sons bow down to thee: [e] Cursed be every one that curseth thee, and blessed be he that blesseth thee.

30 ¶ And it came to pass, as soon as Isaac had made an end of blessing Jacob, and Jacob was yet scarce gone out from the presence of Isaac his father, that Esau his brother came in from his hunting.

31 And he also had made savoury meat, and brought it unto his father; and said unto his father, Let my father arise, and eat of his son's venison, that thy soul may bless me.

32 And Isaac his father said unto him, Who art thou? And he said, I am thy son, thy firstborn Esau.

§ Heb. trembled with a great trembling greatly.

33 And Isaac § trembled very exceedingly, and said, Who, where is he that hath * taken venison, and brought it me, and I have eaten of all before thou camest, and have blessed him? yea, [f] and he shall be blessed.

Before Christ 1760.

* Heb. hunted.
[f] Chap. 28. 3, 4.

34 And when Esau heard the words of his father, [g] he cried with a great and exceeding bitter cry, and said unto his father, Bless me, even me also, O my father.

[g] Heb. 12. 17.

35 And he said, Thy brother came with subtilty, and hath taken away thy blessing.

36 And he said, [h] Is not he rightly named † Jacob? for he hath supplanted me these two times: [i] he took away my birth-right; and behold, now he hath taken away my blessing. And he said, Hast thou not reserved a blessing for me?

[h] Chap. 25. 26.
† That is, a supplanter.
[i] Chap. 25. 33.

37 And Isaac answered and said unto Esau, [k] Behold, I have made him thy lord, and all his brethren have I given to him for servants; and with corn and wine have I ‡ sustained him: and what shall I do now unto thee, my son?

[k] Fulfilled, 2 Sam. 8. 14.
‡ Or, supported.

38 And Esau said unto his father, Hast thou but

V. 28. God give thee—Is both a prayer and a prophecy. The dew of heaven—He mentions the dew, rather than the rain, because it was of more constant use and necessity in those parts than the rain, which fell considerably but twice in a year, the first being called the former, and the other the latter rain. And under this and the following blessings, which are but temporal, are comprehended all manner of blessings, both spiritual, temporal, and eternal, according to the usage of that time and state of the church. The fatness of the earth—A fat and fruitful land, which Canaan was, abounding with all sorts of precious fruits.

V. 30, 31. Esau brought it unto his father—That Esau did not come to his father till the meat was dressed, may be ascribed to his own choice, that he might come with more acceptance; and to Rebekah, who might easily hinder his coming sooner.

V. 33. Isaac trembled very exceedingly—Trembled with a great trembling; he was filled with astonishment and horror in consideration of Jacob's fraud, and the sad disappointment and great misery of his beloved Esau, and his own rashness and folly in suffering his affection for Esau to carry him headlong into an opposition to the Divine will, (Gen. xxv. 23.) which now came to his remembrance, as appears by his ratification of Jacob's blessing. Who, where is he—A short speech, proceeding from a discomposed mind. And he shall be blessed—This blessing, though otherwise intended by me, and pronounced upon a mistake of the person, shall and must rest upon the head of Jacob; and I neither can nor dare undertake to revoke and contradict God's appointment, which now I more fully discern, and in which both thou and I, and all men, must fully acquiesce. And now Isaac fixeth the blessing upon Jacob by faith, as it is expressed, (Heb. xi. 20.) which, before, through misguided fancy and affection, he intended for Esau.

V. 34. Esau cried with a bitter cry—Not for any sense of his sin in despising his birth-right, but for grief at his great loss: God would not suffer him to be perjured, in keeping that birth-right blessing which he had sold and sworn away. O my father—Thou art my father no less than his; and therefore, as a child, I claim a share in thy blessing. What shall be the bitterness of those cries, which shall be heard from such as shall at last be found to have wilfully sold and forfeited God's gracious offers of an heavenly inheritance, through that redemption which cost so dear a price? Mercy despised, like Esau's birth-right, will one hour be lost and irrecoverable for ever.

V. 35. Thy brother hath taken away thy blessing—Which was thine by the right of nature, and by my hearty desire and intention: But the best part of this blessing was, what none had a natural right to; it was salvation through the promised Seed and Saviour; and when it is looked for as the free gift of God, Esau shall not be excluded from the heavenly and eternal inheritance; because God willeth not the death of a sinner, but is ever willing to give pardon, grace, and endless glory to all who renounce the groundless pretensions to these blessings from natural right, their ideal righteousness, and good qualities; or because they are called by Israel's name or Christ's, but who in truth build all their hopes of mercy from God for the sake of Jesus Christ the righteous, with whom God the Father is ever well pleased, and in whose name, whosoever cometh unto God by unfeigned repentance and faith in His atonement, He will in no wise cast out: When shall a conscious sinner return to a God that proclaimeth pardon to returning rebels against his holy and good laws?—Now is the accepted time, this the day of salvation; this is the day the blessings of pardon and acceptance are to be bestowed by the God of Jacob; the day will come, when to-morrow will be too late for every immortal and impenitent mind:—The flood lingered long, but came at last.

V. 37. What shall I do now unto thee, my son—The blessing of Abraham is not at my disposal, but God's, who hath manifested his will by my error; it cannot be divided.

V. 38. Hast thou but one blessing, my father—By which words, Esau manifests his profane and worldly mind, that he esteemed this blessing of redemption but as one among many others equal to it, and did not apprehend the true and peculiar excellency and absolute necessity of it, and that it was impossible for him or his posterity to be happy without an interest in this covenant, and continuance in that church of true believers to which it was appropriated: When he would have inherited the blessing, it was rejected. (Heb. xii. 17.) Before, he despised it; now, he knew its value by its loss.

V. 39. Thy

Before Christ 1760.

but one bleſſing, my father? bleſs me, even me alſo, O my father. And Eſau lifted up his voice, [l] and wept.

[l] Heb. 12. 17.

39 And Iſaac his father anſwered, and ſaid unto him, Behold, [m] thy dwelling ſhall be § the fatneſs of the earth, and of the dew of heaven from above.

[m] Verſe 28. Heb. 11. 20. § Or, of the fatneſs.

40 And by thy ſword ſhalt thou live, and [n] ſhalt ſerve thy brother: and [o] it ſhall come to paſs when thou ſhalt have the dominion, that thou ſhalt break his yoke from off thy neck.

[n] Chap. 25. 23. Obad. 18. 19, 20. [o] 2 Sam. 8. 14. 2 Kings 8. 20.

41 ¶ And Eſau hated Jacob, becauſe of the bleſſing wherewith his father bleſſed him: and Eſau ſaid in his heart, The days of mourning for my father are at hand, [p] then will I ſlay my brother Jacob.

[p] Obad. 10.

42 And theſe words of Eſau her elder ſon were told to Rebekah: And ſhe ſent and called Jacob her younger ſon, and ſaid unto him, Behold, thy brother Eſau, as touching thee, doth comfort himſelf, purpoſing to kill thee.

43 Now therefore, my ſon, obey my voice: and ariſe, flee thou to Laban my brother [q] to Haran.

[q] Chap. 11. 31.

44 And tarry with him a few days, until thy brother's fury turn away;

45 Until thy brother's anger turn away from thee, and he forget that which thou haſt done to him: then I will ſend, and fetch thee from thence. Why ſhould I be deprived alſo of you both in one day?

[r] Chap. 26. 35. and 28. 8.

46 And Rebekah ſaid to Iſaac, [r] I am weary of my life, becauſe of the daughters of Heth: if Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Heth, ſuch as theſe which are of the daughters of the land, what good ſhall my life do me?

CHAP. XXVIII.

Before Christ 1760.

AND Iſaac called Jacob, and bleſſed him, and charged him, and ſaid unto him, [a] Thou ſhalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan.

[a] Chap. 24. 3.

2 [o] Ariſe, go to [c] Padan-aram, to the houſe of [d] Bethuel thy mother's father; and take thee a wife from thence of the daughters of [e] Laban thy mother's brother.

[o] Hoſ. 12. 12. [c] Chap. 25. 20. [d] Chap. 22. 22. [e] Chap. 24. 29.

3 [f] And God Almighty bleſs thee, and make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, that thou mayeſt be * a multitude of people:

[f] Chap. 17. 1. * Heb. an aſſembly of people.

4 And give thee [g] the bleſſing of Abraham, to thee, and to thy ſeed with thee; that thou mayeſt inherit the land † [h] wherein thou art a ſtranger, which God gave unto Abraham.

[g] Chap. 12. 2. † Heb. of thy ſojournings. [h] Chap. 17. 8.

5 And Iſaac ſent away Jacob, and he went to Padan-aram unto Laban, ſon of Bethuel the Syrian, the brother of Rebekah, Jacob's and Eſau's mother.

6 ¶ When Eſau ſaw that Iſaac had bleſſed Jacob, and ſent him away to Padan-aram, to take him a wife from thence; and that as he bleſſed him, he gave him a charge, ſaying, Thou ſhalt not take a wife of the daughters of Canaan;

7 And that Jacob obeyed his father, and his mother, and was gone to Padan-aram;

8 And Eſau ſeeing that the daughters of Canaan ‡ pleaſed not Iſaac his father:

‡ Heb. were evil in the eyes, &c.

9 Then went Eſau unto Iſhmael, and took unto the wives which he had, [i] Mahalath the daughter of Iſhmael Abraham's ſon, [k] the ſiſter of Nebajoth, to be his wife.

[i] Chap. 36. 3. ſhe is called Baſhemath. cir. 1760. [k] Chap. 25. 13.

10 ¶ And Jacob [l] went out from Beer-ſheba, and went toward [m] Haran.

[l] Hoſ. 12. 12. [m] Called, Acts 7. 2. Charran.

11 And

V. 39. Thy dwelling ſhall be—In a country fruitful and refreſhed with dews and ſhowers, may ſeem to be the ſame as to the fertility of the ſoil, in which divers other parts of the world did and do equal the land of Canaan, yet there is an obſervable difference. When Iſaac ſpeaks of Eſau, he ſaith, Thy dwelling ſhall be the fatneſs. But when he ſpeaks to Jacob, he ſaith, God give thee of the fatneſs, &c. which words being omitted concerning Eſau, and ſo emphatically expreſſed concerning Jacob, intimate, that Eſau's fat ſoil was given by God to him by his general providence, by which He giveth food to all creatures: But this is but one branch of the bleſſing; the other part, which concerns dignity and ſuperiority, is expreſsly given to Jacob, and denied to Eſau.

V. 40. By thy ſword ſhalt thou live—By troubling others, and forced to defend thyſelf. This was fulfilled in his poſterity, the Edomites, whoſe hiſtory makes good this prophecy. Thou ſhalt have the dominion—When thou ſhalt grow potent, or when thou ſhalt have mourned or groaned, thou ſhalt break his yoke from off thy neck.

V. 41. Eſau hated Jacob—This hatred was hereditary, extending to their poſterity alſo. (Ezek. xxxv. 5.) And does continue in them that continue in their natural ſtate, to all that are born of the promiſed Seed; and which Jacob and the heirs of the promiſe only repreſent.

V. 44. A few days—So ſhe expected, but he tarried there twenty years.

V. 45. Why ſhould I be deprived alſo of you both—Of thee by Eſau's bloody hands; and of Eſau, for his murder, by the authority of the Magiſtrate; as God commanded, or, by the hand of God, who often, in ſome extraordinary manner, executes this vengeance. (Acts xxviii. 4)

V. 46. I am weary of my life, becauſe of—Eſau's wives, who were Hittites. If Jacob take a wife of the daughters of Heth, what good ſhall my life do me—Therefore let us, after the example of Abraham, ſend him to fetch a wife from his own kindred. This indeed was one reaſon, but the other ſhe conceals from Iſaac.

CHAP. XXVIII.

V. 1. Iſaac called Jacob, and bleſſed him—Confirmed his former bleſſing, being now ſenſible of God's purpoſe, and of his own duty.

V. 3. A multitude—An aſſembly of people.

V. 5. Bethuel the Syrian—Syria is ſometimes largely taken, and comprehends Meſopotamia or Chaldea.

V. 9. Then went Eſau unto Iſhmael—To his family, called Iſhmael by their father's name. He thought by this means to ingratiate himſelf with his father, and to get a better bleſſing: But he takes no care to be reconciled to God. The ſiſter of Nebajoth—Iſhmael's eldeſt ſon.

Before Christ 1760.

11 And he lighted upon a certain place, and tarried there all night, because the sun was set: and he took of the stones of that place, and put them for his pillows, and lay down in that place to sleep.

12 And he dreamed, and behold, a ladder set upon the earth, and the top of it reached to heaven: and behold, [n] the angels of God ascending and descending on it.

13 [o] And behold, the Lord stood above it, and said, I am the Lord God of Abraham thy father, and the God of Isaac: the land whereon thou liest, to thee will I give it, and to thy seed.

14 And [p] thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth; and thou shalt § spread abroad [n] to the west, and to the east, and to the north, and to the south; and in thee, and [r] in thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed.

15 And behold, [s] I am with thee, and will keep thee in all places whither thou goest, and will bring thee again into this land: for I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of.

16 ¶ And Jacob awaked out of his sleep, and he said, Surely the Lord is in this place; and I knew it not.

17 And he was afraid, and said, How dreadful is this place! this is none other but the house of God, and this is the gate of heaven.

18 And Jacob rose up early in the morning, and took the stone that he had put for his pillows, and [t] set it up for a pillar, and poured oil upon the top of it.

19 And he called the name of [u] that place * Beth-el: but the name of that city was called Luz at the first.

20 [x] And Jacob vowed a vow, saying, If [y] God will be with me, and will keep me in this way that I go, and will give me [z] bread to eat, and raiment to put on;

21 So that I come again to my father's house in peace: then shall the Lord be my God.

22 And this stone, which I have set for a pillar, [a] shall be God's house: [o] and of all that thou shalt give me, I will surely give the tenth unto thee.

n John 1. 51. Heb. 1. 14.
o Chap. 35. 1. and 48. 3.
p Chap 13. 16.
§ Heb. break forth.
n Deut. 12. 20.
r Chap. 12. 3. and 18. 18. and 22. 18. and 26. 4. s See Verse 20. 21.
t Chap. 31. 13. 45. & 35. 14.
u Judg. 1. 23. 26. Hosea 4. 15.
* That is, the house of God.
x Chap. 31. 13.
y Verse 15.
z 1 Tim. 6. 8.
a Chap. 35. 7. 14.
o Lev. 27. 30.

CHAP.

V. 12. The angels of God ascending and descending on it—This ladder may be considered as representing to Jacob the Providence of God, who, though he dwells in heaven, extends his care and government to the earth, and particularly makes use of the Angels as ministering spirits. And these angels do not appear idle, or standing still, but always in motion, either ascending to God to receive his commands, or descending to earth for the execution of them. Which was a most seasonable vision for Jacob in his condition, that he might see, that though he was forsaken and persecuted, and forced to flee away secretly for fear of his life, yet he neither was, nor should be neglected or forsaken by God. Mystically, it may represent Christ, by whom heaven and earth are united, who is called the way to heaven, which this ladder was, who, as the head of Angels, is perpetually sending them forth either to God or from God, to minister to the heirs of salvation. (Heb. i. 14.) And this explication of this vision appears to be warranted by our Saviour himself. (John i. 51.)

V. 14. In thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed—The nations, as that word is used.

V. 15. I will not leave thee, until I have done that which I have spoken to thee of—Nor ever after: For so the word until is frequently used; not so as to exclude the time following, but so as to include all the foregoing time, wherein the thing spoken of might be most suspected or feared, as here the worst and most dangerous state in which Jacob was, or was like to be, was this time of his banishment from his country and kindred, against which he is therefore particularly armed and comforted in these words.

V. 16. The Lord is in this place—By his special and gracious presence, and the manifestation of his mind and will to me. And I knew it not—I little expected to meet with such a revelation out of my father's house, much less in this desart place, when I thought myself rejected by God, as well as abandoned by men. Where is the place where God is not? What are the circumstances under which he cannot support or relieve against?

V. 17. How dreadful—Venerable, both for the Majesty of the person present, and for the glorious manner of his discovery of himself. House of God, the gate of heaven—The habitation of God and of His holy Angels.

V. 18. Jacob set it up for a pillar—As a monument of God's great kindness and gracious manifestation of himself to him; which might bring this mercy to his remembrance. This was an ancient practice among the patriarchs. Oil—Which he brought with him, either for food or medicine. Upon the top of it—As a token of his consecration to this use, to be a memorial of God's favour to him. Oil was used in sacrifices, and in the consecration of persons and places.

V. 19. He called the name of that place Beth-el—That is, the house of God. That city—Either of that city which was nearest to the field in which Jacob lay; or, of that city which afterwards was built in or near to this place, and was known by the name of Beth-el.

V. 20. Jacob vowed a vow—Bound himself by a solemn promise or obligation. If God will be with me—He speaks not thus, as if he doubted of the truth of God's promises, or would, like a mercenary person, make a bargain with God; but rather supposeth that God will do this for him, as he had in effect promised, and thereupon obligeth himself to a grateful return to God for this mercy.

V. 21. Then shall the Lord be my God—I will publicly own Him for my God and the Saviour of men, and will establish His worship.

V. 22. God's house—A place where I will offer prayers and sacrifices to God: Such places being commonly called God's houses; and God is oft said to dwell in them, in regard of his special presence there. I will surely give the tenth unto thee—To be laid out in thy service, and for sacrifices, and for the use and benefit of those who shall attend upon sacred things, as also for the relief of the poor and needy, whom God hath substituted in his room.

CHAP.

Before Christ 1760.

CHAP. XXIX.

THEN Jacob * went on his journey, [a] and came into the land of the † people of the east.

* Heb. lift up his feet.
a Num. 23. 7.
† Heb. children.

2 And he looked, and behold, a well in the field, and lo, there were three flocks of sheep lying by it; for out of that well they watered the flocks: and a great stone was upon the well's mouth.

3 And thither were all the flocks gathered: and they rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the sheep, and put the stone again upon the well's mouth in his place.

4 And Jacob said unto them, My brethren, whence be ye? And they said, Of Haran are we.

5 And he said unto them, Know ye Laban the son of Nahor? And they said, We know him.

‡ Heb. Is there peace to him.

6 And he said unto them, ‡ Is he well? And they said, He is well: and behold, Rachel his daughter cometh with the sheep.

§ Heb. yet the day is great.

7 And he said, Lo, § it is yet high day, neither is it time that the cattle should be gathered together: water ye the sheep, and go and feed them.

8 And they said, We cannot, until all the flocks be gathered together, and till they roll the stone from the well's mouth; then we water the sheep.

9 ¶ And while he yet spake with them, Rachel came with her father's sheep: for she kept them.

10 And it came to pass, when Jacob saw Rachel the daughter of Laban his mother's brother, and the sheep of Laban his mother's brother; that Jacob went near, and [b] rolled the stone from the well's mouth, and watered the flock of Laban his mother's brother.

b Exod. 2. 17.

11 And Jacob kissed Rachel, and lifted up his voice, and wept.

12 And Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's brother, and that he was Rebekah's son: and she ran and told her father.

Before Christ 1760.

13 And it came to pass, when Laban heard the * tidings of Jacob his sister's son, that he ran to meet him, and embraced him, and kissed him, and brought him to his house. And he told Laban all these things.

* Heb. hearing.

14 And Laban said to him, [c] Surely thou art my bone and my flesh: and he abode with him † the space of a month.

c Chap. 2. 23.
† Heb. a month of days.

15 ¶ And Laban said unto Jacob, Because thou art my brother, shouldest thou therefore serve me for nought? tell me, what shall thy wages be?

16 And Laban had two daughters: the name of the elder was Leah, and the name of the younger was Rachel.

17 Leah was tender-eyed, but Rachel was beautiful and well-favoured.

18 And Jacob loved Rachel; and said, I will serve thee seven years for Rachel thy younger daughter.

19 And Laban said, It is better that I give her to thee, than that I should give her to another man: abide with me.

20 And Jacob [d] served seven years for Rachel: and they seemed unto him but a few days, for the love he had to her.

d Hos. 12. 12.

21 ¶ And Jacob said unto Laban, Give me my wife (for my days are fulfilled) that I may go in unto her. 1753.

22 And Laban gathered together all the men of the place, and made a feast.

23 And it came to pass in the evening, that he took Leah his daughter, and brought her to him: and he went in unto her.

24 And Laban gave unto his daughter Leah, Zilpah his maid, for an handmaid.

25 And it came to pass that in the morning,

CHAP. XXIX.

V. 1. Jacob went on his journey—Readily and cheerfully, being encouraged by God's word. The land of the people of the east—Which lay eastward from Canaan, as Mesopotamia did.

V. 4. My brethren—So he calls them, in token of respect and affection; and because they were of the same nature and employment with himself.

V. 6. Rachel his daughter cometh with the sheep—According to the manner of those times, when humility, innocency, simplicity, and industry were in fashion, both among men and women of great quality.

V. 8. We cannot—Because of the custom, or agreement made amongst themselves about it.

V. 9. For she kept them—Having probably other shepherds under her, who did the meaner offices, whom she was to oversee.

V. 11. Jacob kissed Rachel—As the custom of friends then was at their meeting, and taking leave. And wept—Tears of joy, at the gracious providence of God to him, which had brought him safe to his desired place, and so happily conducted him to that person and family, which was so desirable and dear to him.

V. 12. Jacob told Rachel that he was her father's brother—His near kinsman, as that word is used.

V. 14. Thou art my bone and my flesh—Of the same bone and flesh with myself, by our common grandfather Terah, and therefore art justly dear to me, and with me thou shalt be in safety.

V. 19. An ambiguous answer; not directly granting his desire, but only insinuates it in such terms as might hide his design, which the event shewed.

V. 20. They seemed unto him but a few days—He speaks not of the time, but of the service of that time, which seemed but little, and far below the worth of Rachel.

V. 21. Jacob said, Give me my wife—So she was by promise and contract. My days are fulfilled—The seven years of service agreed upon.

V. 25. What is this thou hast done unto me—I know not by what

Before Christ 1760. ing, behold it was Leah: and he said to Laban, What is this thou hast done unto me? did not I serve with thee for Rachel? wherefore then hast thou beguiled me?

26 And Laban said, It must not be so done ‡ Heb. place. in our ‡ country, to give the younger before the first-born.

e Judg. 14. 12. 27 e Fulfil her week, and we will give thee this also, for the service which thou shalt serve with me yet seven other years.

28 And Jacob did so, and fulfilled her week: and he gave him Rachel his daughter to wife also.

29 And Laban gave to Rachel his daughter Bilhah his handmaid, to be her maid.

30 And he went in also unto Rachel, and he loved also Rachel more than Leah, and served with him yet seven other years.

31 ¶ And when the Lord saw that Leah was hated, he opened her womb: but Rachel was barren.

cir. 1752. 32 And Leah conceived, and bare a son, § That is, see a son. and she called his name § Reuben: for she said, Surely the Lord hath looked upon my affliction; now therefore my husband will love me.

33 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Because the Lord hath heard cir. 1751. that I was hated, he hath therefore given me * That is, hearing. this son also: and she called his name * Simeon.

34 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and said, Now this time will my husband be joined unto me, because I have borne him three sons: therefore was his name called † Levi. Before Christ cir. 1750. † That is, joined. See Num. 18. 2.

35 And she conceived again, and bare a son; and she said, Now will I praise the Lord: therefore she called his name f ‡ Judah, and ‖ left bearing. f Matt. 1. 2. cir. 1749. ‡ That is, praise. ‖ Heb. stood from bearing.

CHAP. XXX.

AND when Rachel saw that she bare Jacob no children, Rachel envied her sister; and said unto Jacob, Give me children, or else I die.

2 And Jacob's anger was kindled against Rachel; and he said, a Am I in God's stead, who hath withheld from thee the fruit of the womb? a 1 Sam. 1. 5.

3 And she said, Behold my maid Bilhah, go in unto her; n and she shall bear upon my n Chap. 50. 23. Job 3. 12. knees, c that I may also * have children by c Chap. 16. 2. * Heb. be built by her. her.

4 And she gave him Bilhah, her handmaid d to wife: and Jacob went in unto her. d Chap. 35. 22.

5 And Bilhah conceived, and bare Jacob a son.

6 And Rachel said, God hath judged me, and hath also heard my voice, and hath given me a son: therefore called she his name † Dan. † That is, judging.

7 And Bilhah Rachel's maid conceived again, and bare Jacob a second son.

8 And Rachel said, With ‡ great wrestlings have I wrestled with my sister, and I have prevailed: ‡ Heb. wrestlings of God.

what name to call such a disappointment. Wherefore then hast thou beguiled me—Though Laban could not solidly answer the question, yet Jacob could do it, and had just cause to reflect upon his own former action of beguiling his father, for which God had now punished him in the same kind.

V. 26. It must not be so done in our country—If this was true, custom i. to give place to justice, by which he was obliged to perform his contract with him.

V. 27. Her week—The seven days usually devoted to the feast and solemnity of marriage.

V. 28. He gave him Rachel his daughter to wife also—It was not so strange that Laban should give, as that Jacob should take, not only two wives, but two sisters to wife, which seems to be against the law of nature, and was expressly forbidden by God afterward. (Levit. xviii. 18.) Though it be also true that God might dispense with his own institution, or permit such things in the patriarchs upon special reasons, which are not to be drawn into example: And it is to be remembered, that the Scriptures are not written to vindicate the conduct of men, or to set the whole conduct of any man for the example of other men: This only is done in the person of Him who was both God and man: And his life, and what he did or approved of, is only referred to in the word of God, as that which was right in all things.

V. 31. Leah was hated—Less loved; slighted. Thus variously doth God distribute his favours, that all may be contented, and none despised.

V. 32. The Lord hath looked upon my affliction—With an eye of pity and kindness: Yes, and where live the afflicted, on whom the Father of Mercies does not look down with compassion?—For He pitieth us as a father does his children: Nay, a mother may forget her tender infant, but the Lord will not turn away for a moment from them that cry unto Him for relief, and most especially from those who have no other helper.

V. 33. She called his name Simeon—The name of Reuben signified the Lord looked upon her; Simeon—Hearing—that the Lord had heard her cry for relief, as well as seen her affliction.

V. 34. Levi—That is, joined in more sincere and fervent affection.

V. 35. Now will I praise the Lord—More solemnly and continually: For otherwise, she did praise and acknowledge God for the former mercies. Judah—That is, praise.

CHAP. XXX.

V. 1. Give me children, or else I die—A speech full of impatience, and bordering upon blasphemy, and striking at God Himself through Jacob's sides. For which therefore she afterwards smarted—dying by that very means whereby she hoped to prevent her death, and prolong her life, (Gen. xxxv. 18.)

V. 2. Jacob's anger was kindled against Rachel—For the sin against God. Am I in God's stead—It is God's prerogative to give children.

V. 3. That I may have children by her—Which I may adopt and bring up as my own.

V. 6. Dan—That is, judging—Pleaded my cause, or given sentence for me, as this phrase is often taken.

V. 8. Naphtali

Before Christ cir. 1749.

vailed: and she called his name § [e] Naphtali.

§ That is, my wrestling. e Called, Matt. 4. 13, Nephthalim.

9 When Leah saw that she had left bearing, she took Zilpah her maid, and gave her Jacob to wife.

10 And Zilpah Leah's maid bare Jacob a son.

11 And Leah said, A troop cometh: and she called his name * Gad.

* That is, a troop, or, company.

12 And Zilpah Leah's maid bare Jacob a second son.

† Heb. In my happiness.

13 And Leah said, † Happy am I, for the daughters will call me blessed: and she called his name ‡ Asher.

‡ That is, happy.

1751.

14 ¶ And Reuben went in the days of wheat-harvest, and found mandrakes in the field, and brought them unto his mother Leah. Then Rachel said to Leah, Give me, I pray thee, of thy son's mandrakes.

15 And she said unto her, Is it a small matter that thou hast taken my husband? and wouldest thou take away my son's mandrakes also? And Rachel said, Therefore he shall lie with thee to night for thy son's mandrakes.

16 And Jacob came out of the field in the evening, and Leah went out to meet him, and said, Thou must come in unto me, for surely I have hired thee with my son's mandrakes. And he lay with her that night.

17 And God hearkened unto Leah, and she conceived, and bare Jacob the fifth son.

18 And Leah said, God hath given me mine hire, because I have given my maiden to mine husband: and she called his name § Issachar.

Before Christ cir. 1750.

§ That is, an hire.

19 And Leah conceived again, and bare Jacob the sixth son.

20 And Leah said, God hath endued me with a good dowry; now will my husband dwell with me, because I have borne him six sons: and she called his name * [f] Zebulun.

cir. 1749.

* That is, dwelling. f Called, Matt. 4. 13, Zabulon.

21 And afterwards she bare a daughter, and called her name † Dinah.

22 ¶ And God remembered Rachel, and God hearkened to her, and opened her womb.

cir. 1748.

† That is, judgment.

23 And she conceived and bare a son; and said, God hath taken away [g] my reproach.

1745.

g 1 Sam. 1. 6. Isai. 4. 1. Luke 1. 25.

24 And she called his name ‡ Joseph; and said, [h] The Lord shall add to me another son.

‡ That is, adding. h Chap. 35. 17.

25 ¶ And it came to pass, when Rachel had borne Joseph, that Jacob said unto Laban, Send me away, that I may go unto mine own place, and to my country.

26 Give me my wives and my children, for whom I have served thee, and let me go: for thou knowest my service which I have done thee.

27 And Laban said unto him, I pray thee, if I have found favour in thine eyes, tarry: for [i] I have learned by experience, that the Lord hath blessed me for thy sake.

i Chap. 39. 5.

28 And

V. 8. Naphtali—That is, my wrestling with great and hard wrestlings or strivings with God, in fervent prayer.

V. 11. Gad—That is, a troop or company.

V. 13. Asher—That is, happy.

V. 14. Mandrakes—A plant or fruit of pleasant smell.

V. 18. Issachar—That is, an hire.

V. 20. Zebulun—That is, dwelling.

V. 21. Dinah—That is, judgment.

V. 23. Barrenness was then accounted a great reproach, especially in that race, because it was a kind of curse, whereby such persons were excluded both from the first and general blessing given to all mankind, and from the special blessing given to Abraham for the multiplication of his seed; and from all hopes of being the progenitors of the blessed Messias.

V. 24. Joseph—That is, adding.

V. 25. That I may go unto my country—Canaan, which he calleth his country, both from his former and long habitation in it, and from the right which he had to it by God's promise.

V. 27. I have learned by experience, that the Lord hath blessed me for thy sake—Laban knew that the Lord had blessed him for Jacob's sake; and shall a man not know by experience when the same Lord blesses for Jesus's sake? Yes; if we are seeking the kingdom of God within us, as earnestly as Laban appears to have sought the increase of his property; then shall we learn by experience, when we are blessed with an increase of God's holy, meek, and loving spirit in the place of our own impure, proud, and wrathful nature; and the more we become acquainted with this blessed change, which grace alone produces within us, the more shall we see of the blessings of God in his providence, in things without us: but its being the command of God our Saviour, to first seek the kingdom of God—love, joy, peace, righteous in heart and mind, not doing as we are required, we shall not arrive at the possession of an happy sense of external benefits; but the soul will remain restless and discontented in the midst of mercies, looking for, and labouring for something, which all created things can never in their nature afford an immortal spirit; but reverse the object of our pursuit, and comply with the Divine command, and truly seek for His gracious presence within us, by His Spirit to pardon, purify, and bless; then the creature is falling in with the will of its Creator, the sinner with the design of his Saviour, and he shall then learn by experience that the Lord does bless in all things, for the sake of Jesus: And so long as we continue to esteem that of most value, which Jesus died to send to believers in his name, (John xvi. 13.) who shall separate the believing mind from the consolations of the Spirit of Christ? What shall prevent us from knowing as certainly by experience, that we are blessed for the sake of Jesus, as Laban did, that he was blessed for the sake of Jacob, whose plain declaration it has pleased the spirit of truth to record;—to record, for what end? surely with a gracious design to inform us, that to be blessed of the Lord, is a matter of certain experimental knowledge. Doubtless we may know as Laban did, when we are blessed by providence, because our dear friends, the supply of our wants, and the endless gifts of God's gracious hand are visible, they are objects of our senses. But have all men a thankful sense of the blessings of providence, arising from a certain knowledge that God is the giver of all? No; judging our ownselves, we have murmured,—we have thought it was our own hand that got us what we possessed; and why did we so; why are men ever found living without an heart-felt sense of the goodness of God, when none are to be found without many mercies to thank God for? Why, because all men have not the Spirit, they have resisted its convincing influence, they have grieved it by sin, and they remain unacquainted bo-

Before Christ 1745.

28 And he said, Appoint me thy wages, and I will give it.

29 And he said unto him, Thou knowest how I have served thee, and how thy cattle was with me.

30 For it was little which thou hadst before I came, and it is now ‡ increased unto a multitude; and the Lord hath blessed thee § since my coming: and now when shall I provide for mine own house also?

31 And he said, What shall I give thee? And

Before Christ 1745

‡ Heb. broken forth.

§ Heb. at my foot.

how much they are indebted to the Divine forbearance and compassion, that they are not now suffering under his wrath, and not seeing this by the spirit, they do not raise their minds in praise and gratitude to God, for mercies of which they are not sensible, because not acquainted with the cause of all their mercies—Christ Jesus, their Mediator with an highly offended God, and who they can only know and call Lord by the Holy Ghost. But does not God speak plainer to the minds of men by His visible works in the creation, and by the ways of His providence in His government of the affairs of the world, than He does by His spirit? What says His sacred Word, that sure interpreter of all His works, His ways, and the revealer of His nature?—He is a Jew which is one inwardly, and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, (Rom. ii. 29.) This description of a Jew, or a true worshipper of God—this cutting off the inward evil of the heart, in the spirit, is not the description of a work which cannot amount to any experimental knowledge that by grace ye are saved—born of the spirit—passed from death unto life—Blessed Almighty God, by nature thy fallen creatures are without thee in the world, and too proud to acknowledge themselves indebted to thy providence or preventing grace; but O! hear thy church's cry, Thou who art her living head; and as thou art pleased to work by means of men to men, let all that know thee, so confess thee to their fellow mortals, and so shew their faith by humble, blameless, useful lives, that all the world may be led to understand from thy church on earth, that the true God and Jesus Christ is known in her palaces for a refuge, (Psal. xlviii. 3.) and so understand thy loving kindness in thy death by thy spirit, and then be blessed with seeing thee in all things. (Psal. cvii. 43. Matth. v. 8.)

V. 29. Thou knowest how I have served thee—This was an appeal to Laban's own knowledge of the care and fidelity of Jacob's conduct in the management of his business; and this is a Christian's comfort, that whatever he has been, during that part of his life wherein he neither feared God or regarded man, from this day forward he may live in the service of a God of justice, goodness, truth, and faithfulness; and from one hour to another have grace communicated to his humble believing mind, to enable him so to discharge every duty, as, with Jacob, to be able to say to every man—Thou knowest I have dealt faithfully, justly, and diligently in what I undertook. Who that saw Jacob deceiving his aged father before he came from home, would have expected to have heard of such a witness as Laban appearing, after so many years experience, for Jacob's sincerity in the discharge of all the duties of a servant and a son: Had Laban received at this time the report of Jacob's character from his brother Esau, he might have been equally at a loss to account for such faithfulness in a person, who had before been guilty of so much deceit to his own father, as many of those might be, who knew Peter denied with oaths, that he ever knew his gracious Master; and who so soon after heard him declare before the High Priest publicly in the temple—"Whether it be right in the sight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye." (Acts iv. 19.) When Peter was converted he was to strengthen his brethren; the example of this change from his sinful fear of man, to his christian courage and fear of God, doubtless did strengthen the other disciples of their crucified Lord, and would be stronger evidence than any words, of what was included in that promise of God's pouring out his spirit upon all flesh, (Acts ii. 17.) by which men who were born in sin should be born of God; and to whose work and influence by his spirit it is, that all the good is to be solely attributed which we read of in the Scriptures, hear of in the world, or ever find in ourselves; and these evident changes in the principles and in the conduct of men, recorded in the word of God, are so many proofs of the reality of the spirit of God being received and obeyed in the minds and lives of men: This nature is that second-born, which Jacob represents, who should rule over the first-born which Esau represents; and if Esau is seen afterwards to acquire the superiority over Jacob, and Esau casts off Jacob's yoke, this is to convey to us a lively representation of what they meant, who said, We will not have this man to rule over us; and so says our sinful nature when it rebels against the spirit and laws of God: When evil of any kind is intended, said or done, whether it is by by Noah, Abraham, or Jacob, then that evil nature reigns which is common to all men; and it is one of the ways in which God informs mankind in his word, of the danger and universality of our fallen sinful nature, by shewing us the effects of that nature, as it has discovered itself in the conduct of men, whose names stand foremost in the number of God's public servants on earth: and when to that evil nature they have yielded themselves servants to sin, they have themselves recorded their offences against God, whose will they offended, and whose spirit they resisted and grieved by so doing, in expressions of the bitterest sorrow; and then we are shewn pardon following repentance, and God employing the same men in his honourable service, and under the influence of the same grace, they are seen pressing forward to the mark set before all—the image and likeness of God in their minds and spirits, and conformity to his will in their lives; and in going through the Scriptures, and in settling our judgments on the great truths they are intended to convey to us, it is constantly necessary, whenever we see a fault recorded of any man, to remember when this fault was committed, that man, whoever he was, was not then laying up for himself a good foundation against that day, when God shall judge the world in righteousness; but every sin in every man proceeded from a nature then at enmity to God, and opposed to His holy will, and the person so doing was laying up for themselves the sure recompence of their error, in choosing sin against the admonitions of that grace which would have prevented them, but which was resisted, and in being so, conscious guilt, and shame, and sorrow were, and ever must be, the consequence, as certainly as that which is sown produces its own fruit; and that instead of God, on whose favour our happiness here and for ever depends, discovering Himself to mankind as less offended with what is untrue, unjust, or unholy, in them who know, or have opportunities of knowing, what is the will of God, and how He requires to be worshipped and served, all the examples and all the declarations in substance shew us—that if God does look with greater indulgence on one part of mankind than another, it is at those who are living in ignorance of His will, not by their own neglect, which state is the days of ignorance which His pure eyes are said to wink at; (Acts xvii. 30.) but that he to whom much is given, much will be required; and that he who knew his master's will and did it not, will be beat with many stripes. Whatever failings therefore may appear to us in the future part of Jacob's life, or that of any other man, however high he may stand in the history of the church of God on earth, such failings are recorded to remind us of our danger from the universal corruption of our nature, and of our entire and constant need of the supplies of the grace of God, to preserve us unblameable in His sight, who is of purer eyes than to behold iniquity with favour in any one, and who hath no such private interest to answer, as ever to grant indulgence to any man to do evil, whether born of Isaac or of Ishmael

V. 30. It

Before Christ 1745. And Jacob said, Thou shalt not give me any thing; if thou wilt do this thing for me, I will again feed and keep thy flock:

32 I will pass through all thy flock to day, removing from thence all the speckled and spotted cattle, and all the brown cattle among the sheep, and the spotted and speckled among the goats: and of such shall be my hire.

33 So shall my righteousness answer for me * in time to come, when it shall come for my hire before thy face: every one that is not speckled and spotted amongst the goats, and brown amongst the sheep, that shall be accounted stolen with me.

* Heb. to morrow.

34 And Laban said, Behold I would it might be according to thy word.

35 And he removed that day the he-goats that were ring-straked and spotted, and all the she-goats that were speckled and spotted, and every one that had some white in it, and all the brown among the sheep, and gave them into the hands of his sons.

36 And he set three days journey betwixt himself and Jacob: and Jacob fed the rest of Laban's flocks.

k See Chap. 31. 9----12.

37 ¶ And [k] Jacob took him rods of green poplar, and of the hasel and chesnut-tree; and pilled white strakes in them, and made the white appear which was in the rods.

38 And he set the rods which he had pilled before the flocks in the gutters, in the watering-troughs, when the flocks came to drink; that they should conceive when they came to drink. Before Christ 1745.

39 And the flocks conceived before the rods, and brought forth cattle ring-straked, speckled, and spotted.

40 And Jacob did separate the lambs, and set the faces of the flocks toward the ring-straked, and all the brown in the flock of Laban: and he put his own flocks by themselves; and put them not unto Laban's cattle.

41 And it came to pass whensoever the stronger cattle did conceive, that Jacob laid the rods before the eyes of the cattle in the gutters, that they might conceive among the rods.

42 But when the cattle were feeble, he put them not in: so the feebler were Laban's, and the stronger Jacob's.

43 And the man increased exceedingly, and had much cattle, and maid-servants, and men-servants, and camels, and asses.

CHAP. XXXI.

AND he heard the words of Laban's sons, saying, Jacob hath taken away all that was our father's; and of that which was our father's hath he gotten all this glory. 1739.

2 And Jacob beheld [a] the countenance of Laban, and behold, it was not toward him * as before.

a Chap. 4. 5.

* Heb. as yesterday and the day before.

3 And the Lord said unto Jacob, Return unto the land of thy fathers, and to thy kindred; and I will be with thee.

4 And

V. 30. It was little before I came—Compared to what now it is. Since my coming—Since my feet entered into thy house, or, by my ministry and labour. When shall I provide for mine own—According to my duty.

V. 32. Such shall be my hire—The sense is, then, when the speckled, and spotted, and brown are separated, and none but white remaining, my hire shall be out of those white ones; all the white young ones shall be thine, and the speckled, and spotted, and brown, which shall be brought forth by those white ones; shall be mine.

V. 33. Answer for me—When the cattle shall, contrary to their natural and usual course, bring forth young ones of a contrary colour to their own, it will hereby be evident that this is the work of God, and I shall have this undeniable evidence of my righteousness, that I have no cattle but of that colour, which is by agreement appropriated to me. Before thy face—Thou being present, and diligently observing whether I have any cattle of another colour.

V. 34. I would it might be according to thy word—Laban trusted to the course of nature, whereby cattle usually bring forth their young of their own colour; and Jacob relied on the providence of an Almighty God, and his gracious father.

V. 35. Ring-straked—Which had lines or strakes like bands about them, of different colours from the rest of their body. Some white—Mixed with other colours.

V. 36. Three days journey—Of the travelling of sheep, not of men. Betwixt himself and Jacob—Lest Jacob should mingle and exchange the sheep; or the sheep, by the contemplation of the diverse coloured ones, should bring forth others like to them.

V. 37. Made the white appear—By pilling off the rind which covered it.

V. 39. The flocks brought forth ring-straked, &c.—The sovereign Lord of all estates, (Gen. xxxi. 9, 11. &c.) may take from one and give to another, as it pleaseth him, who also observed Laban's injustice, and gave to Jacob no more than he deserved from Laban.

CHAP. XXXI.

V. 1. Hath he all this glory—These riches, which are called glory, because their possessors glory in them, and by them gain praise and esteem from others.

V. 2. The countenance of Laban was not as before—This change of his countenance argued a change in his mind: Pride and selfishness change countenance at the sight of other men's prosperity.

V. 3. The Lord said, Return unto thy fathers, and I will be with thee—To them that are looking to heaven as their home, and to the redeemed of the Lord, and the spirits of just men made perfect, as their fathers, how acceptable will be the sound of words like these—Return, and I will be with thee. Yes, Reader, JESUS has robbed death of his sting, and he calls upon you to believe, that he maketh his angels ministering spirits; and such, and not death, the child of hell, will wait upon the spirits of the redeemed up into His sacred presence, who, numbering the very hairs of our heads, will assuredly not fail to give his angels charge concerning all, who trust themselves to his mercy and power to save from sin, and all the fear and misery, which are alone its consequences.

V. 4. Jacob called Rachel and Leah—Rachel is first named, because

Before Christ 1739.

4 And Jacob sent and called Rachel and Leah to the field unto his flock,

5 And said unto them, I see your father's countenance, that it is not toward me as before: but the God of my father hath been with me.

6 And ye know that with all my power I have served your father.

7 And your father hath deceived me, and [b] changed my wages [c] ten times: but God suffered him not to hurt me.

[b] Verse 41.
[c] Num. 14. 22. Neh. 4. 12. Job 19. 3. Zech. 8. 23.

8 If he said thus, The speckled shall be thy wages; then all the cattle bare speckled: and if he said thus, The ring-straked shall be thy hire; then bare all the cattle ring-straked.

9 Thus God hath taken away the cattle of your father, and given them to me.

10 And it came to pass at the time that the cattle conceived, that I lifted up mine eyes, and saw in a dream, and behold, the † rams which leaped upon the cattle were ring-straked, speckled, and grisled.

Before Christ 1739.

† Or, he-goats

11 And the angel of God spake unto me in a dream, saying, Jacob: And I said, Here am I.

12 And he said, Lift up now thine eyes and see, all the rams which leap upon the cattle are ring-straked, speckled, and grisled: for I have seen all that Laban doeth unto thee.

13 I am the God of Beth-el, [d] where thou anointedst the pillar, and where thou vowedst a vow unto me: now [e] arise, get thee out from this land, and return unto the land of thy kindred.

[d] Chap. 28. 18.
[e] Chap. 32. 9.

14 And Rachel and Leah answered and said unto him, is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our father's house?

15 Are cause she was his only designed wife. Leah is only mentioned by her name, but Rachel is called Jacob's wife. To the field—Where they might more freely discourse of their business, and without fear or interruption.

V. 5. The God of my father hath been with me—Hath appeared to me.

V. 6. Ye know, I have served your father—Happy are they that can appeal to all that dwell with them, and say—Ye know that with all my power I serve Him that seeth in secret: Though no man's regard is to be lightly valued, yet the heart-felt approval of all that dwell within the walls of the same house, is the next best testimony to that of conscience, the word and the spirit of Him who, in his nature, can only approve of what is in itself right.

V. 7. Ten times—Many times, as that certain number is commonly used. God suffered him not to hurt me—The preventing or keeping away of every evil, is uniformly attributed to God throughout the Scriptures, as well as all the good done upon earth acknowledged to be done by him alone.

V. 8. Then all the cattle—All is here put for the greater part. If he said thus—It appears that Laban broke his agreement with Jacob, and altered it; and that Jacob patiently yielded to him.

V. 9. God hath taken away the cattle of your father—And shall those gain who do not faithfully keep to the spirit and meaning of their contracts, if they even prove to their own hurt?—Yes; they may gain money, and the honour that cometh of men who hold every excellence to be included in prosperity; but peace and the favour of God will not be found our possessions, whilst we are faithless in our engagements, unjust in our dealings with men, or do any thing deceitfully. God is just, and God is judge and king; and he has caused it to be made known to us, that the person here spoken of did not faithfully keep to his engagement; and that, on this account, he was deprived of that which was of most value in his esteem; which is recorded, that it might appear, that God is against all them that do wickedly; and, though they may have greater power over those they wrong or oppress, than Laban had over Jacob, yet there is a God that judgeth the earth, and who heareth the cry of the oppressed.

V. 12. I have seen all that Laban doeth unto thee—And does not He that made the eye see, at this day, all that is done by all the dwellers upon earth?—Yes; he knoweth the thoughts and intents of the hearts of all, and the ways of all: He can bless them that fear him, by means of those that oppose them, and can punish the wrong-doers, by giving them their hearts desires. The Divine interposition, in a matter of justice between two persons in private life, is as sufficient to shew the nature of the government of God in the affairs of men, as if it was a matter in which two nations were concerned; the wisdom and equity of a judge may be made to appear as much to all the world, in a question between two poor women, as in an affair between two kings: And it may sometimes be the case in reading the Scriptures, as in attending the administration of justice—the care, the ability, and the equity of the judge are not seen, because they are not looked for, when the parties are persons in common life, and the matter in dispute of no great value; and many of the discoveries made in the Scriptures, of the nature of God's government of the world, being made by means of examples in common life, and in concerns which make no great figure in the esteem of men in general, we lose the benefit of the instruction intended us, merely because we think the stations, and the employment of many of the persons that are spoken of, and the things in which they are concerned, are such as are incapable of affording us any material information: But the goodness of God is to be admired, for having revealed the knowledge of his will in such a manner as may be understood by all mankind; and as God has told us, that He resisteth the proud, (1 Pet. v. 5.) which is the same thing as saying, While we remain in that state of mind, we are in a state of natural opposition, both to the Divine nature and will; and as it must be that we come out of this state into some degree of an humble mind, before God, in the nature of things, can give His Grace to us, the Scriptures are evidently calculated for that humble state of mind, in which alone we can receive the grace of God: And it is a great discovery of God's universal and gracious designs in the Scriptures, that though the persons, whose lives are the chief subjects of these writings, as an history, were men employed in the ordinary business of common life, in the ages and in countries in which they lived; yet such an eye does the Divine goodness evidently appear to have had to all men, that his providence so ordered it, that a plain account of these persons, their various relations and transactions, should include as much of those of men in the highest as well as the lowest stations, as to make the Scriptures of equal use, equally applicable, and equally interesting to all men, in all stations, in all ages, in all the world.

V. 13. Thou vowedst a vow unto me—And this God mentions to shew his acceptance of that action of Jacob's, his mindfulness of the past, and his purpose now to fulfil the promise there made to him.

V. 14. Is there yet any portion or inheritance for us in our father's house—We can expect no further benefit, and therefore are willing to leave him. Nothing is more reasonably to be expected, than that those principles of the mind, which appear by long example in parents, should communicate themselves to children; a selfishness which

Before Christ 1739.

15 Are we not counted of him ſtrangers? for [f] he hath ſold us, and hath quite devoured alſo our money.

[f] Chap. 29. 15, 27.

16 For all the riches which God hath taken from our father, that is ours, and our children's: now then whatſoever God hath ſaid unto thee, do.

1739.

17 ¶ Then Jacob roſe up, and ſet his ſons and his wives upon camels.

18 And he carried away all his cattle, and all his goods, which he had gotten, the cattle of his getting, which he had gotten in Padan-aram; for to go to Iſaac his father in the land of Canaan.

‡ Heb. teraphim, Judges 17. 5. 1 Sam. 19. 13.

19 And Laban went to ſhear his ſheep: and Rachel had ſtolen the ‡ images that were her father's.

§ Heb. the heart of Laban.

20 And Jacob ſtole away § unawares to Laban the Syrian, in that he told him not that he fled.

Before Christ 1739.

21 So he fled with all that he had, and he roſe up, and paſſed over the river, and ſet his face toward the mount Gilead.

22 And it was told Laban on the third day that Jacob was fled.

23 And he took his brethren with him, and purſued after him ſeven days journey; and they overtook him in the mount Gilead.

24 And God came to Laban the Syrian [g] in a dream by night, and ſaid unto him, Take heed that thou ſpeak not to Jacob * either good or bad.

[g] Job 33. 15.

* Heb. from good to bad.

25 ¶ Then Laban overtook Jacob. Now Jacob had pitched his tent in the mount: and Laban with his brethren pitched in the mount of Gilead.

26 And

which was not to be kept within the rules of juſtice, diſcovered itſelf in the father; and the daughters, by their anſwer now, diſcover, that they had imbibed enough of that dividing principle, to make any conſideration of duty or affection to their father in things not to be named, ſince they had no expectation of being benefited, either by the juſtice or generoſity of their father. He ſowed in ſelfiſhneſs, and he reaped in want of regard, even from his own children: The way in which our fallen ſinful nature looks for its happineſs is, with Laban, to have all our views confined to our own increaſe of wealth, or power, or honour, and to deſire that all ſhould give place, or bow down to ſerve our ends and intereſts. The way in which God directs us to look for our true good is, firſt by his nature within us; and then, as dear children, to be followers of the example our heavenly Father ſet before us in the life of Jeſus Chriſt, (Eph. v. 1, 2.) in truly deſigning, and, againſt whatever treatment we meet with, living for the good of thoſe with whom God hath moſt nearly connected us; and then in good-will to all the world, injuring or intruding on the rights of none, preventing any evil and promoting any good, which the grace of God enables us to every one of the human race, that his kind providence brings within the reach of our power to relieve or ſerve; and which all will do whilſt they keep in mind the end God hath ſet before us—that bleſſed world his holy word opens to our view; ſhewing, by more than words and wiſhes, that they have a conſtant regard to His approval, who will ſay to all ſuch—"Well done thou good "and faithful ſervant." Servant of whom?—Of the Lord of life and glory. By living to do what?—Not by labouring to increaſe his bleſſedneſs; he, for that end, has no need of his rational creature's ſervice. God's beſt ſervants are they who yield themſelves the willing inſtruments of His grace and providence, and become the means, under His moſt merciful diſpoſals, of ſerving the human race, while they live amongſt them; counting nothing too ſmall, nothing too difficult to hinder evil, or to advance the beſt intereſts of all, who, with ourſelves, were made in the image of God; and, however debaſed by ſin, ſo loved of God, as to die for them in that condition. And but to turn, for a moment, from thoſe views of the love of God, and of our true ſelf-intereſt in living and dying his ſervants, to ſuch an example of what men are by nature, as is ſet before us in this true account of Laban's principles of acting, unleſs we are the bond-ſlaves of the ſame ſelfiſh mind, we ſhall ſee that ſatan and his angels cannot deſire a human ſoul to be more oppoſed to the nature and will of God, than to remain in Laban's ſtate, living for itſelf, ſpreading to all around the baneful influence of an example, which prefers our own preſent intereſt to the praiſe of God, and the good of others.

V. 15 Strangers—We have no more expectation from him than ſtrangers. He hath ſold us—Inſtead of a good part of his eſtate, (2 Cor. xii. 14.) wherewith he ſhould have endowed, he hath made ſale of us for this fourteen years ſervice, ſeeking only his own, not our advantage. And hath quite devoured alſo our money—Hath not only withheld from us, but ſpent upon himſelf, that money which he got by thy care and induſtry, whereof a conſiderable part was due in equity to us, and to our children.

V. 16. All the riches which God hath taken from our father, that is ours—By natural right, and on account of thy faithful and laborious ſervice.

V. 17. Jacob roſe up—God's command to Jacob, (v. 13.) was, now ariſe. They that would have the God of Jacob for their father and their God, muſt, in every ſtep, regard his providence, and the beſt information they can obtain of His will, from His word, and them that fear him; and they who truly mean to do His will, ſhall not be left in darkneſs what to do, longer than is beſt for them, and when the diſcovery comes by any of God's appointed ways—Now ariſe; then is Jacob's example to be followed—to do ſo without delay; or, in the wiſe man's words, Whatever thy hand findeth to do, under a conſcious ſenſe of its being the will of God, which, if truly ſo, will ever agree with his word,—do it with all thy might.

V. 19. The images—Thoſe teraphims or images were made in the ſhape of men, which the Gentiles worſhipped as ſubordinate gods. And theſe idols Laban worſhipped together with the true God—ſeemed to retain a ſuperſtitious conceit of them, as may be gathered from (Gen. xxxv. 2.) Others, becauſe they were pretty and precious things, made of ſilver and gold. Others, that ſhe might ſhew her father the vanity of ſuch gods as might be ſtolen away.

V. 20. Jacob ſtole away unawares—Becauſe he knew Laban's ſelfiſh diſpoſition would always hinder him from departing, either by fraudulent pretences, or by open force, nor ſuffer ſo great a diminution in His eſtate.

V. 21. The river—Euphrates, which lay between Meſopotamia and Chaldea. Set his face—Reſolutely directed his courſe. Toward mount Gilead—A very high and long mountain beyond Jordan, adjoining to the mountain of Lebanon, at the foot of which there was a large and fruitful country.

V. 24. God ſaid, Take heed that thou ſpeak not either good or bad—Neither perſuading him by promiſes, nor compelling him by threatnings, to return.

V. 26. Thou haſt carried away my daughters as captives—A charge on ſupicion, and not as he imagined, for they freely conſented to leave their father.

Before Christ 1739.

26 And Laban said to Jacob, What hast thou done, that thou hast stolen away unawares to me, and carried away my daughters, as captives taken with the sword?

27 Wherefore didst thou flee away secretly, and † steal away from me? and didst not tell me, that I might have sent thee away with mirth, and with songs, with tabret, and with harp?

† Heb. hast stolen me.

28 And hast not suffered me to kiss my sons and my daughters? thou hast now done foolishly in so doing.

29 It is in the power of my hand to do you hurt: but the God of your father spake unto me yesternight, saying, Take thou heed that thou speak not to Jacob either good or bad.

30 And now though thou wouldest needs be gone, because thou sore longedst after thy father's house; yet wherefore hast thou stolen my gods?

31 And Jacob answered and said to Laban, Because I was afraid: for I said, Peradventure thou wouldest take by force thy daughters from me.

32 With whomsoever thou findest thy gods, [h] let him not live: before our brethren discern thou what is thine with me, and take it to thee: for Jacob knew not that Rachel had stolen them.

h See Chap. 44. 9.

33 And Laban went into Jacob's tent, and into Leah's tent, and into the two maid-servants tents; but he found them not. Then went he out of Leah's tent, and entered into Rachel's tent.

Before Christ 1739.

34 Now Rachel had taken the images, and put them in the camels furniture, and sat upon them: and Laban ‡ searched all the tent, but found them not.

‡ Heb. felt

35 And she said to her father, Let it not displease my lord that I cannot rise up before thee; for the custom of women is upon me: and he searched, but found not the images.

36 ¶ And Jacob was wroth, and chode with Laban: and Jacob answered, and said to Laban, What is my trespass? what is my sin, that thou hast so hotly pursued after me?

37 Whereas thou hast searched all my stuff, what hast thou found of all thy household-stuff? set it here before my brethren, and thy brethren, that they may judge betwixt us both.

38 This twenty years have I been with thee; thy ews and thy she-goats have not cast their young, and the rams of thy flock have I not eaten.

39 [i] That which was torn of beasts, I brought not unto thee, I bare the loss of it; of [k] my hand didst thou require it, whether stolen by day, or stolen by night.

i Exod. 22. 10, &c.

k Exod. 22. 12.

40 Thus I was, in the day the drought consumed me, and the frost by night; and my sleep departed from mine eyes.

41 Thus

V. 28. Thou hast now done foolishly in so doing—So those have often been accused of doing, who have acted with a regard to the will of Him, whose authority Jacob had for returning to Canaan: And all that sincerely set out on the way to the heavenly Canaan, will have steps to take, which will appear very unwise to them whose treasures are on earth.

V. 29. It is in the power of my hand to do you hurt—No; it is not in the power of thine hand to lift itself to thy head, without God, who gave and every moment gives thee life, allows thee to live; and if He does, and thou shalt lift thy hand against His almighty law of love, know, Laban, that the living God can do what the idols cannot so much as tell thee—God can make all that thou canst do work together, for the good of him who now walks in the fear of God. The God of your father spake unto me—"If God be for us, who can be against us?" (Rom. viii. 31.)

V. 30. My gods—Laban calleth them Gods, because they were the representations whereby he worshipped his gods.

V. 31. I was afraid—We may lose the benefits intended us by the word of God, by looking upon those that are spoken of as the servants of God in the Scriptures, as being so much more than men, that we ought not even to hope for those mercies of pardon and support from God, of which they were partakers, along with the other blessings which were peculiar to them as prophets and apostles: The Scriptures are constantly informing us of the contrary of this, both by examples and plain declarations, that these venerable men were by nature partakers of all that is common to the sinful sons of fallen Adam; and that whatever they became that was holy, just, or good, they were only so by the grace of God given to them, through and for the alone sake of the promised Seed and Redeemer of men; and that before they received this grace, their own confessions inform us, they were in the strictest truth to be numbered with the chief of sinners; and that after they knew God, and tasted of the power of His grace, whenever their faith failed, they were just as other men are at this day; and of which, among many more, we have this proof in the life of Jacob, who, after being favoured with promises of mercy, protection, and support, delivered to him from the Lord of life himself; yet when the trial came, when Jacob was to be exposed to the hazard of Laban's resentment, Jacob expresses himself too plainly for us to mistake, that he thought Laban could do that by force, which the God of Beth-el either could not or would not prevent, though he had so lately received his promise, including every mercy.—Nothing but the Spirit of God can make God known to us; and, when known, nothing but the same Spirit can support us, and enable us to cast all our care on Him who careth for us. (1 Pet. v. 7.) And such examples of the weakness of human nature, in the first public servants of God upon earth, are to shew us what men are, without present faith in the mercy and grace of God, and that any past knowledge of His goodness, though as great as Jacob's, will not preserve us either from sin or misery; but that taking our eye of faith off the Father of mercies, the first temptation would lead us to sin against God, or the first difficulty fill us with as much fear of man as Jacob had of Laban.

V. 32. Let him not live—I give my consent that he shall die by the hands of justice: A plain proof of Jacob's integrity.

V. 33. Jacob's tent, and into Leah's tent—The men and women's were distinct and separate.

V. 36. Jacob was wroth—Expressed his sense of Laban's conduct to him.

V. 39. Of my hand didst thou require it—Which was unjust and unreasonable, except where it fell out through the shepherd's default.

V. 40. Sleep departed from mine eyes—Through my extraordinary care about thy cattle.

V. 42. The fear of Isaac—He calls him not Isaac's God, but his

Before Christ 1739.

41 Thus have I been twenty years in thy house; I served thee fourteen years for thy two daughters, and six years for thy cattle: and [l] thou hast changed my wages ten times.

[l] Verse 7.

42 Except the God of my father, the God of Abraham, and the fear of Isaac had been with me, surely thou hadst sent me away now empty: God hath seen mine affliction, and the labour of my hands, and rebuked thee yesternight.

43 ¶ And Laban answered and said unto Jacob, These daughters are my daughters, and these children are my children, and these cattle are my cattle, and all that thou seest is mine: and what can I do this day unto these my daughters, or unto their children which they have borne?

44 Now therefore come thou, let us make a covenant, I and thou; [m] and let it be for a witness between me and thee.

[m] Josh. 24. 27.

45 And Jacob [n] took a stone, and set it up for a pillar.

[n] Chap. 28. 18.

46 And Jacob said unto his brethren, Gather stones; and they took stones, and made an heap: and they did eat there upon the heap.

47 And Laban called it * Jegar-sahadutha: but Jacob called it Galeed.

* That is, the heap of witness.

48 And Laban said, This heap is a witness between me and thee this day. Therefore was the name of it called Galeed:

49 And [o] † Mizpah; for he said, The Lord watch between me and thee, when we are absent one from another.

Before Christ 1739.

[o] Judg. 11. 29.

† That is, a beacon, or watch-tower.

50 If thou shalt afflict my daughters, or if thou shalt take other wives besides my daughters, no man is with us; See, God is witness betwixt me and thee.

51 And Laban said to Jacob, Behold this heap, and behold this pillar, which I have cast betwixt me and thee;

52 This heap be witness, and this pillar be witness, that I will not pass over this heap to thee, and that thou shalt not pass over this heap and this pillar unto me, for harm.

53 The God of Abraham, and the God of Nahor, the God of their father, judge betwixt us. And Jacob sware by the fear of his father Isaac.

54 Then Jacob ‡ offered sacrifice upon the mount, and called his brethren to eat bread: and they did eat bread, and tarried all night in the mount.

‡ Or, killed beasts.

55 And early in the morning Laban rose up, and kissed his sons and his daughters, and blessed them: and Laban departed, and returned unto his place.

CHAP. XXXII.

AND Jacob went on his way, and the angels of God met him.

2 And when Jacob saw them, he said, This his Fear; because Isaac was yet alive, and in the state of probation, and served God with fear and trembling. God hath seen my affliction—With compassion and intention of good to me for it. God's seeing, is used for his relieving and helping.

V. 43. What can I do—To shew kindness to those my daughters. He pretends that to be an act of his natural affection and kindness, which was indeed the effect of his fear.

V. 44. Let it be a witness—To our own consciences of our natural obligations.

V. 45. Jacob set up a pillar—In testimony of his compliance with Laban's proposal, and his entering into this covenant.

V. 47. Both names signify the same thing, an heap of witness, only Laban gives the name in the Syrian language; but Jacob, though he had been long conversant in Syria, and understood that language, yet he chose to give it in Hebrew, which was both renouncing of the Syrian manners and religion, together with their language, and an implicit profession of his conjunction with the Hebrews, as in their tongue so in their religion.

V. 50. If thou—The curse is here understood, as it commonly is, to maintain a greater reverence for oaths, and to beget a greater dread of the curse belonging to the violators of them. No man is with us—Shortly, when we shall be parted, no man will be with us, to observe and report our actions to the other, or to do the injured person right. God is witness—When Laban wanted to make a covenant for his own safety and satisfaction, he had this knowledge, that God, the righteous judge of all, was witness to men's actions; but Laban forgot this, when justice was to be done by himself to Jacob: A discovery to mankind of that partiality to ourselves, which so blinds the eyes of the human mind, as to make it lose sight even of the omnipresence of God, and leads us to overlook the most obvious duties to others: To guard us against all the danger which there is in such a state of mind, and conduct resulting from it, that ever-to-be remembered rule is given—"Do "unto all men, as ye would they should do unto you." And whatever we may think of ourselves, and of the safety of our state, as candidates for the everlasting favour of God, when we can appeal to him as witness, to bind other men to the discharge of their duty, and, with all that knowledge of God's being privy to our actions, be indifferent whether we ourselves comply with what is required of us; then the opposition of our conduct to our knowledge ought to be the evidence to ourselves, of our being in a state of actual condemnation in the sight of God, who cannot but condemn us, when our own hearts condemn. And the dreadful sentence of Divine justice, (and who can tell the greatness of his wrath) is no arbitrary sentence; but the natural result of our resistance of that grace, which enlighteneth every man that cometh into the world, which shews us right from wrong, which lets us know, as selfish sinful Laban knew, that God is witness to all that is done contrary to His holy will, and with this knowledge resisting that grace of God, which, for JESUS's sake, is ever ready to enable us to do the will of God on earth, as it is done in heaven. (Matth. vi. 10.)

V. 53. He joins idols with the true God, and secretly chargeth the religion of Jacob and Abraham with novelty, and prefers his own as the most ancient religion (Jos. xxiv. 2.); and from this we may learn, that any customs, however long continued, are no proof in themselves of what is right; God's declared will is only that proof.

V. 54. Jacob called his brethren to eat bread—And this practice was usual, in those times, to confirm covenants by a feast.

CHAP. XXXII.

V. 1. The angels of God met him—In visible and glorious shape, as they frequently appeared to the Patriarchs. V. 2. God's

Before Christ 1739

This is God's hoſt: and he called the name of that place * Mahanaim.

3 And Jacob ſent meſſengers before him to Eſau his brother, [a] unto the land of Seir, [n] the † country of Edom.

4 And he commanded them, ſaying, Thus ſhall ye ſpeak unto my lord Eſau; Thy ſervant Jacob ſaith thus, I have ſojourned with Laban, and ſtayed there until now.

5 And I have oxen, and aſſes, flocks, and men-ſervants, and women-ſervants: and I have ſent to tell my lord, that I may find grace in thy ſight.

6 ¶ And the meſſengers returned to Jacob, ſaying, We came to thy brother Eſau, and alſo [c] he cometh to meet thee, and four hundred men with him.

7 Then Jacob was greatly afraid, and diſtreſſed: and he divided the people that was with him, and the flocks, and herds, and the camels into two bands;

8 And ſaid, If Eſau come to the one company and ſmite it, then the other company which is left ſhall eſcape.

9 ¶ And Jacob ſaid, O God of my father Abraham, and God of my father Iſaac, the Lord which ſaidſt unto me, [d] Return unto thy country, and to thy kindred, and I will deal well with thee:

10 ‡ I am not worthy of the leaſt of all the mercies, and of all the truth, which thou haſt ſhewed unto thy ſervant; for with my ſtaff I paſſed over this Jordan, and now I am become two bands.

11 Deliver me, I pray thee, from the hand of my brother, from the hand of Eſau: for I fear him, leſt he will come and ſmite me, and [e] the mother § with the children.

12 And

* That is, two hoſts, or, camps.
a Chap. 33. 14, 16.
n Chap. 36. 6, 7, 8.
† Heb. field.
c Chap. 33. 1.
Before Christ 1739.
d Chap. 31. 13.
‡ Heb. I am leſs than all, &c. e Hoſ. 10. 14.
§ Heb. upon.

V. 2. God's hoſt—So the angels are called for their great number, (Dan. vii. 10. Luke ii. 13.) excellent order, mighty power, and for their uſe and ſervice to God, and to his church, for whoſe protection they are ſent, (2 Kings vi. 17. Pſal. xxxiv. 7.) Mahanaim—Two hoſts; becauſe the angels made one hoſt, and his family another.

V. 4. I have ſojourned with Laban—As a ſtranger and exile; and ſo a more proper object for pity than for envy.

V. 5. I have oxen, &c.—In my exile God hath bleſſed me with worldly goods. Tell my lord—Acquaint him with my coming, and with the ſtate of my affairs. That I may find grace—That I may obtain pardon for my former errors, and thy favour and friendſhip for the future. Who are all the living going to meet?—To meet HIM whom we have offended, more than ever Jacob did Eſau;—offended by tranſgreſſions not to be named or numbered, every one of which having in itſelf the nature of an infinite offence, whether committed againſt our fellow-creatures, or to our own hurt; becauſe committed againſt God, whoſe majeſty, as Creator and Governor, is diſhonoured by the ſin of every ſoul of man in the world of ſpirits, when the conduct of men on earth is reported (Job i. 7, 8.) by the blaſphemers of God, and the accuſers of men (Rev. xii. 10): And ſhall we read the account of ſuch forethought as we ſee Jacob here making uſe of, in preparing to meet a brother he had offended, without reſolving, from this hour, to prepare to meet God, the witneſs of all our actions, to whom it can be no leſs certain that we are accountable, than that we are reaſonable creatures? But how ſhall this be done? By firſt ſending our good works before us into the preſence of God?—No; "Ye [at] who were far off from God are made nigh, by the BLOOD OF CHRIST," (Eph. ii. 13) without which there is no remiſſion of ſins paſt, JESUS being alone our peace, and our peace-maker, and as very man, but without ſpot, and blameleſs; and having no offences of his own to atone for, hath, in Himſelf, no leſs influence with God the Father, than he hath love and good-will to men, whoſe nature he took upon Him, to reconcile us to God, and to make one with God all that will come unto HIM, the only Mediator, who, by HIMSELF once offered, hath purchaſed pardon for all; and who ALONE is to be looked to and regarded, as procuring acceptance with God for any of the human race; and then by GRACE, through faith, do His commandments. Thus pardoned, for JESUS's ſake; thus accepted through HIM; and thus enabled to live—good works, down to a cup of cold water given in his name, will follow after every believer and ſervant of God, (Rev. xiv. 13.) when they ſhall reſt from their labours here below, and be received into thoſe bleſſed manſions which the ſinner's Friend is gone before to prepare for them, and who has declared himſelf a faithful remembrancer. (Matt. xxv. 31. &c.)

V. 6. We came to thy brother Eſau—Who gave them but a doubtful anſwer, as appears from Jacob's fear, (verſe 7.) He cometh, and four hundred men with him—At firſt he deſigned miſchief to Jacob, as may ſeem by diſmiſſing his meſſengers without any teſtimony of his favour.

V. 7. Jacob was greatly afraid—Notwithſtanding the renewed promiſe of God, and the late appearance of the angelic hoſts; and in this he again ſhewed the weakneſs of his faith.

V. 8. The other company ſhall eſcape—He might think Eſau's revenge would be ſatisfied with the firſt ſlaughter.

V. 9. O God—Jacob directs his prayer to God, and not to the angels, though they had ſo lately appeared to him. The Lord, which ſaidſt unto me, Return—When we are where God would have us,—when we are doing what he hath commanded, How ſafely doth the ſoul ſtand between the commands and promiſes of God, if, in ſuch a ſituation, it can only believe, or pray, or hope? (for we are ſaved by hope, Rom. viii. 24.) we ſhall be ſaved from all adverſity.

V. 10. I am not worthy—This was no feigned addreſs,—this was the plea of a Patriarch:—I am not worthy of any of the paſt mercies I have received—of the gracious promiſes given me; and neither am I worthy of thoſe further mercies which I am now about to beg of thee. With my ſtaff—Having nothing with me, but what was barely neceſſary for my journey. Now I am become two bands—Or two troops: They that have been ſent out with Jacob, not to gain worldly goods, but to ſpread the knowledge of God's willingneſs to pardon, and his power to ſave when they are returning home to that bleſſed world, for which they have lived as ſtrangers upon earth, and ſee themſelves ſurrounded with companies, which God hath brought to the knowledge of Himſelf. Say ye, that contend in fields of blood and return in victory, What are the joys you reap from all your toil and danger, compared with gains like theſe, for which the King of glory ſhall be praiſed for ever?

V. 11. Deliver me, I pray thee—God, and God alone, is here ſought to deliver—to deliver Jacob—him, from the hand of his brother—from Eſau. Jacob feared him—he feared that he himſelf, and all that were with him, ſhould be deſtroyed by him. If any are afflicted, let them pray; and let them conſider ſuch examples of this great duty of approaching the Almighty King and compaſſionate Saviour, whoſe will it is, to be thus particularly inquired of by all who feel their need of His gracious aid, that they may

Before Christ 1739.

12 And [f] thou saidst, I will surely do thee good, and make thy seed as the sand of the sea, which cannot be numbered for multitude.

[f] Chap. 28. 13, 14.

13 ¶ And he lodged there that same night; and took of that which came to his hand, a present for Esau his brother;

14 Two hundred she-goats, and twenty he-goats, two hundred ewes, and twenty rams, 15 Thirty milch camels with their colts, forty kine, and ten bulls, twenty she-asses, and ten foles.

16 And he delivered them into the hand of his servants, every drove by themselves; and said unto his servants, Pass over before me, and put a space betwixt drove and drove.

17 And he commanded the foremost, saying, When Esau my brother meeteth thee, and asketh thee, saying, Whose art thou? and whither goest thou? and whose are these before thee?

Before Christ 1739.

18 Then thou shalt say, They be thy servant Jacob's: it is a present sent unto my lord Esau: and behold also he is behind us.

19 And so commanded he the second, and the third, and all that followed the droves, saying, On this manner shall you speak unto Esau, when you find him.

20 And say ye moreover, Behold, thy servant Jacob is behind us: For he said, I will appease him with the present that goeth before me, and afterward I will see his face; peradventure he will accept * of me.

* Heb. my face.

21 So

may learn, from experience, that no man seeks his face in vain; and thus be led to love Him.

V. 13. He took of that which came to his hand—That which was nearest at hand, and most ready for him: The approaching night, and his own fear, gave him not leave to make a scrupulous choice. This seems to have been a sudden thought suggested to the mind of Jacob, by that wisdom which cometh from God, who, though he could have turned Esau's heart, or restrained him as he was pleased to do Laban, here the means were to be used to appease Esau's resentment; and which should at the same time prove Jacob's true humility, that last preparation to his having power with God. O that we may not lose the benefits God intends us by His holy word! He teaches us intire dependence on His goodness and power, to deliver and support; He then teaches us to spread, by name, our wants before Him as Jacob did; and then, by his example, He presents him before us, acting from a thought, which, it is evident, was not in Jacob's mind before he prayed; because then (ver. 7.) he was giving directions, different to the present.—This thought of sending Esau presents, was not to bribe him to an unworthy deed;—it was a just and reasonable acknowledgment of that conduct which Jacob had shewn to Esau, when they were last under the same roof together; and it expressed a real desire, on Jacob's part, to be reconciled to his brother; and the means used, answered the end proposed. And, Is not the use of this example to instruct us to wait for thought from the fountain of wisdom, after we have waited on God in prayer? A single suggestion like this, received and followed, is deliverance and safety at once; and the danger of being misled in what we take to be the answer of prayer, appears not to be so great, when we consider the extent of those principles which God hath given us in His word.—God is love, and all our works are to be done in charity; any suggestions therefore to the mind, which point to works of charity or goodwill, and, when reduced to practice, are expressive of humility, self-denial, purity, peace, or love, are safely to be received and followed; because the word of God shews us, that these principles of the mind come from the Spirit of God (Gal. v. 22.); and therefore, whilst they are strictly regarded, they lead to nothing more, nor nothing less, than what God requires of his reasonable creatures by His revealed will, given us for the purpose of being obeyed, by the power of His Spirit, whilst we remain in this state of trial: And another general rule, for judging of impressions on the mind, or an inward consciousness (which we can no more avoid feeling, than we can avoid being immortal spirits) is, that, as we have nothing which we have not received of God, the will of God is to be known, by its being in our power to do what it appears to us God requires, God never requiring more than he gives; and further, with the thing required, being within the reach of the ability, or means which God hath given; that the thing which appears to us as best to be done, in any difficult case, is, in the doing of it, something that will not lift us up, or carry us over the heads of our brethren; but rather cast us down in our own esteem, and call us truly to shew that we count them better than ourselves, and in honour to prefer them; or, in other words,—those impressions on the mind, in doubtful cases, are most likely to be from the Spirit of God, which, in the first thought about the execution of them, are signed with a cross;—not of wood, or silver, or gold, or precious stones,—but that which is much more valuable, the footsteps in which the Redeemer of men walked, as a man, when he was upon earth, in meekness and true lowliness of heart, lording it over none, but denying Himself all that is pleasing to pride, and the earthly, sensual, corrupt affections of the human mind, that He who was without this evil in His nature, might in all things be an example of what is best for us; that after we have suffered a little while, in an humble submission to what His holy will requires of us in this life, we might also be made perfectly meet for His presence. (1 Pet. v. 10.)

V. 16. He put a space betwixt drove and drove—That his gift might be represented to Esau with most advantage, and his mind might, by little and little, be sweetened towards him.

V. 18. They be Jacob's present: and behold also, he is behind us—Coming to see thy face, and beg thy favour.

V. 20. I will appease him—Appease, or allay his anger. The Hebrew word panim, signifies both anger and face; because a man's anger is most discernible in his countenance. It is most likely that Jacob took this thought of sending presents not to be from God, but from himself; and, like young Samuel, did not know the voice of God, from whom alone cometh every good and perfect gift: And may it not the rather appear that Jacob was mistaken, by his saying,—I will appease him—his anger? It is true, a just submission, and becoming acknowledgments, are means of softening anger; but, unless the blessings of God's grace is given upon those means, Can men any more appease the anger of men, than men can humble the pride of the human mind? This is alone the work of God (Job. xxxiii. 17. & xl. 11, 12, &c.); and such is surely the intire state of the dependence of all men on God for every good, that we must first be indebted to Him for every good thought, and then as intirely dependent on the blessing of His grace, to bring that thought to good effect, and, as it is only that we are or can be safe or happy, whilst we live and act in a state of intire humble dependence on the gracious help of God, the danger is in taking off this dependence; or, in other words, forgetting that we own, and must ever own, every blessing that is brought to us by any thought from within, or by word or deed to HIM, to whom we are indebted for life, and all we every moment possess, and all we can hope for of good, here or for ever.

Before Christ 1739.

21 So went the present over before him: and himself lodged that night in the company.

22 And he rose up that night, and took his two wives, and his two women-servants, and his eleven sons, [g] and passed over the ford Jabbok.

[g] Deut. 3. 16.

† Heb. caused to pass.

23 And he took them, and † sent them over the brook, and sent over that he had.

24 ¶ And Jacob was left alone: and there wrestled a man with him, until the ‡ breaking of the day.

‡ Heb. ascending of the morning.

25 And when he saw that he prevailed not against him, he touched the hollow of his thigh: and [h] the hollow of Jacob's thigh was out of joint, as he wrestled with him.

[h] See Matt. 26. 41. 2 Cor. 12. 7.

26 And [i] he said, Let me go, for the day breaketh: And he said, [k] I will not let thee go, except thou bless me.

[i] See Luke 24. 28. [k] Hos. 12. 4.

27 And he said unto him, What is thy name? And he said, Jacob.

28 And he said, [l] Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but Israel: for as a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed.

[l] Chap. 35. 10. 2 Kings 17. 34.

Before Christ 1739.

29 And Jacob asked him, and said, Tell me, I pray thee, thy name: And he said, [m] Wherefore is it, that thou dost ask after my name? and he blessed him there.

[m] Judg. 13. 18.

30 And Jacob called the name of the place ‡ Peniel: for [n] I have seen God face to face, and my life is preserved.

‡ That is, the face of God.

[n] Chap. 16. 13. Exod. 24. 11. and 33. 20. Deut. 5. 24. Judges 6. 22. and 13. 22. Isai. 6. 5.

31 And as he passed over Penuel the sun rose upon him, and he halted upon his thigh.

32 Therefore the children of Israel eat not of the sinew which shrank, which is upon the hollow of the thigh, unto this day: because he touched the hollow of Jacob's thigh, in the sinew that shrank.

CHAP. XXXIII.

AND Jacob lifted up his eyes, and looked, and behold, [a] Esau came, and with him four hundred men. And he divided the children

[a] Chap. 32. 6.

V. 22. His eleven sons—And Dinah, his daughter, though she be not here mentioned.

V. 24. Jacob was left alone—In some private place, that he might more freely and ardently pour out his soul in prayer; from such examples as this, of Jacob's being alone with God, we may learn how much we lose by not living inwardly retired, by recollection of mind with God, whilst our duties call us to be present with men; for if God is the object of our constant adoration and our love, solitude will be our delight, and our most private moments our most highly-favoured privileges. And there wrestled a man with him—The Angel of the covenant, the son of God; (ver. 28, 30.) who did here assume the shape and body of a man, that he might do this work: For this wrestling was real and corporeal in its nature, though it was also spiritual in its signification, and was accompanied with an inward wrestling by ardent prayers joined with tears, (Hos. xii. 4.)

V. 25. When he prevailed not against him—He suffered himself to be conquered, to encourage Jacob's faith and hope against the approaching danger. Jacob's thigh was out of joint, as he wrestled with him—Which was done that Jacob might see that it was not his own strength, but only God's grace, which got him this victory, and could give him the deliverance which he hoped for.

V. 26. Let me go—He saith this to shew the prevailing power of prayer with God, and to encourage Jacob to persist in his conflict. (Exod. xxxii. 10.) The day breaketh—And I am not willing that there should be any witnesses of these things. I will not let thee go except thou bless me—With the blessings which thou hast promised to Abraham and to me, among which one is protection in this hour of my danger. For Jacob now began to think that it was no man, nor angel, that was with him, but God himself: By comparing this passage with our Lord's instructions to all men on the subject of prayer, (Luke xi. 5. and xviii. 1.) we cannot but understand, that though God is more willing to give all that feeble, helpless, afflicted mortals want, both in things natural and spiritual; yet they are most acceptable who approach God in prayer, under the most just consideration of their wants, and the most lively apprehension of the greatness of their misery, if God himself doth not relieve and bless them, and who, from this persuasion, will not cease to pray, or grow faint in their expectations of God's love and tender compassion to them, and to all who ask in the all-prevailing name of HIM, who ever hath power with God, and who stands in the person of a man (it is our glory) as the head of all mankind, whose right we are by the dear price paid down in his death and sufferings, and before the throne of God ever offers as from himself, the prayers of all who pray unto Him, and worship no other God beside. (Rev. viii. 3.)

V. 28. But Israel—Which signifies a prince, or prevailer with God; or, a Prince of God, a great Prince and Conqueror. As a prince hast thou power with God and with men, and hast prevailed—Thou hast in some sort conquered both God and men, and shalt prevail over Esau, of whom thou art afraid: They that have power with God by faithful prayer, will, whilst they remain in that spirit, have faithful lives, and then they will be the friends of God, (John xv. 14.) and have interest with him, and they will see of the travail of their Redeemer's soul, and be satisfied that whatever God gives is best, and whatever he withholds is to them no less merciful and kind: Let such ask a spirit of faithfulness and unfeigned devotion, to all the public messengers of their gracious Lord;—let them ask souls, the purchase of his dying love.

V. 29. Tell me, I pray thee, thy name—That I may give Thee the honour due to it. Art thou a created angel, or art thou the ever-blessed God? Wherefore is it, that thou dost ask after my name? and he blessed him there—In an eminent manner, which was a real answer to Jacob's question, and gave him to understand both his name and nature.

V. 30. I have seen God face to face—Not in His essence, for so no man ever saw God, (John i. 18.) nor yet in a dream or vision, but in a most-evident, sensible, familiar and friendly manifestation of Himself. My life is preserved—I am now well assured of my safety from Esau, whose approach threatened my life. Or he speaks of it with wonder, as others did, that he should see God, and not be struck dead by the glory of his presence.

V. 32. The children of Israel eat not of the sinew—Not from any superstitious conceit about it, but only for a memorial of this conflict, the blessed effects whereof the future generations received.

CHAP. XXXIII.

V. 1. Esau came—Who had said, (chap. xxvii. 41.) "I will slay my brother Jacob." And with him four hundred men—A force sufficient to enable him to do what he had threatened.

V. 2. He put Rachel and Joseph hindermost—Placing his best beloved in the last and safest place.

V. 3. He

Before Christ 1739.

dren unto Leah, and unto Rachel, and unto the two hand-maids.

2 And he put the hand-maids and their children foremoſt, and Leah and her children after, and Rachel and Joſeph hindermoſt.

3 And he paſſed over before them, and bowed himſelf to the ground ſeven times, until he came near to his brother.

4 And Eſau ran to meet him, and embraced him, and fell on his neck, and kiſſed him: and they wept.

5 And he lifted up his eyes, and ſaw the women and the children; and ſaid, Who are thoſe * with thee? And he ſaid, The children which God hath graciouſly given thy ſervant.

* Heb. to thee?

6 Then the hand-maidens came near, they and their children, and they bowed themſelves.

7 And Leah alſo with her children came near, and bowed themſelves: and after came Joſeph near, and Rachel, and they bowed themſelves.

† Heb. What is all this band to thee.

8 And he ſaid, † What meaneſt thou by all this drove, which I met? And he ſaid, Theſe are to find grace in the ſight of my lord.

9 And Eſau ſaid, I have enough; my brother, ‡ keep that thou haſt unto thyſelf.

‡ Heb. be that to thee that is thine.

10 And Jacob ſaid, Nay, I pray thee, if now I have found grace in thy ſight, then receive my preſent at my hand: for therefore I have ſeen thy face, as though I had ſeen the face of God, and thou waſt pleaſed with me.

Before Christ 1739.

11 Take, I pray thee, [n] my bleſſing that is brought to thee; becauſe God hath dealt graciouſly with me, and becauſe I have § enough: and he urged him, and he took it.

n Judg. 1. 15. 1 Sam. 25. 27 and 30. 26 2 Kings 5. 15.
§ Heb. all thing.

12 And he ſaid, Let us take our journey, and let us go, and I will go before thee.

13 And he ſaid unto him, My lord knoweth that the children are tender, and the flocks and herds with young are with me; and if men ſhould overdrive them one day, all the flock will die.

14 Let my lord, I pray thee, paſs over before his ſervant: and I will lead on ſoftly, according * as the cattle that goeth before me, and the children be able to endure; until I come unto my lord [o] unto Seir.

* Heb. according to the foot of the work, &c. and according to the foot of the children.
o Chap. 32. 3.

15 And Eſau ſaid, Let me now ‖ leave with thee ſome of the folk that are with me: And he ſaid, ‡ What needeth it? [d] Let me find grace in the ſight of my lord.

‖ Heb. ſet, or, place.
‡ Heb. Wherefore is this?
d Chap. 34. 11.

16 ¶ So Eſau returned that day on his way unto Seir.

17 And Jacob journeyed to Succoth, and built him an houſe, and made booths for his cattle: therefore the name of the place is called ‖ Succoth.

‖ That is, booths.

18 ¶ And

V. 3. He paſſed over before them—Expoſing himſelf to the firſt and greateſt hazard, for the ſecurity of his wives and children. In eminent dangers men cannot avoid expoſing themſelves firſt; but are there not numberleſs little occaſions in common life, when being firſt to ſuffer in any difficulty or inconvenience in the place of thoſe about us, which would be the means of filling the minds of many with gratitude to Him who trod the wine-preſs alone for us, that he had, in his providence, caſt their lot under the ſame roof with ſuch, as were conſtantly diſintereſted enough rather to be willing to ſuffer pain than ſee others expoſed to it; and always, with Jacob, firſt in every hardſhip, if that might be the means of another's peace or ſafety.

V. 4. They wept—God is the God of nature, and to be without natural affection is to be without God: In what woods or fields live the beaſts, which meet with their kindred, or former companions, without evident diſcoveries of real kindneſs? And ſhall men, mingled of one blood, meet or paſs each other without good-will? but ſhall brothers, the offſpring of the ſame parents, ever ſee each other, without remembering that one parent gave them birth, and that they owe each other more than common kindneſs?

V. 5. The children which God hath graciouſly given thy ſervant—Jacob's firſt ſentence to his brother has GOD in it, aſcribing unto Him the bleſſings he poſſeſſed.

V. 7. After came Joſeph near, and Rachel—The laſt that were to be expoſed to the hazard of Eſau's reſentment.

V. 8. What meaneſt thou by all this drove, which I met—He knew before from the ſervants; but he aſks, that he might have an occaſion for a civil refuſal of the gift.

V. 9. I have enough—Which the Lord of all the earth had alſo given him; but the Spirit of truth, which records Jacob's acknowledgment, ſays nothing of Eſau's, and as the Sacred Writings are intirely ſingular in this—that they, in ſpeaking of men's conduct, convey to us the knowledge of the ſtate of the perſon's mind that is ſpoken of, we are doubtleſs to underſtand, Eſau held what he had, not as God's gift, in which ſtate a king is poor, compared with him, who poſſeſſes the leaſt ſhare of this world's goods, with a thankful heart to God.

V. 10. For therefore—I tender it unto thee, and humbly beg thy acceptance of it. As though I had ſeen the face of God—It is, in a manner, as pleaſant a ſight to me as the ſight of God himſelf; becauſe, in thy reconciled face, I ſee the face and favour of God thus manifeſted unto me.

V. 11. Take, I pray thee; becauſe God hath dealt graciouſly with me—This gift, which as I received from God's bleſſing, ſo I heartily give it to thee with my bleſſing and prayer, that God would abundantly bleſs it to thee.

V. 12. I will go before thee—To keep thee company. Who would not worſhip and ſerve that God, who can make ſuch as ſay "I will ſlay him," become a companion, a guide; and, if neceſſary, a guard and a defence?

V. 13, 14. This ſhort addreſs of Jacob's, diſcovers a mind filled with kind concern and tenderneſs. Jacob had lately been favoured with the bleſſing of His grace, whoſe nature is love.

V. 15. What needeth it? let me find grace in the ſight of my lord—Let me have but thy favour, and it is enough. The fear of his reſentment was Jacob's dread; and he may be ſaid to have obeyed God's command, to return to his own country at the hazard of his life; and now that was preſerved by the mercy of God, he wanted nothing from his brother, to whom, doubtleſs, his grateful mind thought himſelf ſufficiently obliged, for the kindneſs he had already ſhewn him, in forgiving him ſo intirely as he had done; and in a manner in which much tenderneſs of mind appears—by not once naming what had formerly paſſed between them.

V. 18. Jacob

Before Christ 1739.

18 ¶ And Jacob came to Shalem a city of * Shechem, which is in the land of Canaan, when he came from Padan-aram: and pitched his tent before the city.

* Called, Acts 7. 16. Sychem.

19 And [e] he bought a parcel of a field, where he had spread his tent, at the hand of the children of † Hamor Shechem's father, for an hundred ‡ pieces of money.

e Josh. 24. 32.

† Called, Acts 7. 16. Emmor.

‡ Or, lambs.

20 And he erected there an altar, and [f] called it § El-elohe-Israel.

f Chap. 35. 7.

§ That is, God the God of Israel.

CHAP. XXXIV.

cir. 1732.

AND [a] Dinah the daughter of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob, went out to see the daughters of the land.

a Chap. 30. 21.

2 And when Shechem the son of Hamor the Hivite, prince of the country, saw her, he took her, and lay with her, and * defiled her.

* Heb. humbled her.

3 And his soul clave unto Dinah the daughter of Jacob, and he loved the damsel, and spake † kindly unto the damsel.

† Heb. to the heart of the damsel. See Isai 40. 2. Hosea 2. 14.

4 And Shechem spake unto his father Hamor, saying, Get me this damsel to wife.

5 And Jacob heard that he had defiled Dinah his daughter, (now his sons were with his cattle in the field:) and Jacob held his peace until they were come.

Before Christ 1732.

6 ¶ And Hamor the father of Shechem went out unto Jacob to commune with him.

7 And the sons of Jacob came out of the field when they heard it, and the men were grieved, and they were very wroth: because he [o] had wrought folly in Israel, in lying with Jacob's daughter; which thing ought not to be done.

o Josh. 7. 15.

8 And Hamor communed with them, saying, The soul of my son Shechem longeth for your daughter: I pray you give her him to wife.

9 And make ye marriages with us, and give your daughters unto us, and take our daughters unto you.

10 And ye shall dwell with us: and the land shall be before you; dwell and trade you therein, and get you possessions therein.

11 And Shechem said unto her father, and unto

V. 18. Jacob came to Shalem—By the good providence of God, that had brought him safe in his person, family, and estate, through all his dangers; first from Laban, and then from Esau, till he came to this place. Pitched his tent before the city—Near to it, for the conveniency of his cattle.

V. 19. He bought—For his present use; for the right which he had to it, was only after the time that God had appointed. The children of Hamor—Subjects, called his children, to shew the duty which they owed to him, and the care and affection that he owed to them.

V. 20. Called it—Called upon El-elohe-Israel, the God of Israel.

CHAP. XXXIV.

V. 1. Dinah went out to see the daughters of the land—Exposed herself amongst them, that had no fear of God to restrain them from the most enormous crimes. All who go a warfare at their own cost, that go where they are not called by any necessary duty, or by the directions of those they are bound to obey, and all that followed from this young person's unnecessary visit, ought to silence such as contend for the innocence of those frequent goings out, where we know nothing is intended to be said or done, to advance any one in the least degree in the favour of God, or to obtain for ourselves any increase of his mind or nature, or to give us an opportunity of doing his will, in the discharge of necessary duty: To go out only to see others, as this daughter of Israel's did, is to carry with us our own reproach, that we are either too ignorant to find ourselves useful employment at home, or too idle to do it. It is as much the command of God, that whatever we do, we should do to the glory of God, (1 Cor. x. 31.) as it is his command, that we should not steal or commit adultery; and the whole of this life being no other than the seed-time, the consequences of our use or abuse of time, will as certainly remain to be felt by us for ever, as that we now live, and are to live for ever; to go therefore where no duty calls us, where no design to please God is so much as thought of or named, at the best, is to be employed in doing the direct contrary to that which God hath commanded us; and to plead for the innocence of such goings-out, whoever or whatever is to be seen, where no duty calls us, where no good or useful end or purpose is in view, is the same thing as servants who have certain duties to discharge, and a time fixed when they were to give an account of what they had done, and who excuse themselves by saying, They were employed in going to see others who had the like duties to discharge, but who thought they might innocently neglect what was committed to their care, and spend certain parts of their time in doing the direct contrary to the plainest directions of their employer: But are all mankind to be compared to servants accountable to a master?—Yes, as certainly as mankind are reasonable creatures; but with this difference, that instead of our being certain of an appointed time when we are to account to our Lord, so unknown to us is the moment when we are to be finally called upon, to shew the use we have made of our time, since we came into the possession of reason, that the hand that is now writing, or the eye that is reading, may be motionless or dark before another line is wrote or read; but these are gloomy thoughts to bring thus near the consideration of our latter end: God calls upon all men to consider—to remember their latter end (Deut. xxxii. 29.): To forget it, and not to live with a view to its daily, hourly approach, is no less folly than it is to forget we are immortal creatures, accountable to a gracious Creator, who only requires us to be employed agreeable to his will, that we may in this life enter into those ways, which, at the same time that they call for our seriousness, are ways of such pleasantness and peace, as no human wisdom can invent or equal; and to neglect them, or to allow ourselves to pursue any course contrary to them, is to do ourselves an injury, which no human favour, nor all the world, can in the least degree repair. Our danger now is not from persecutions, rack, and fire, but from taking all upon trust, concluding every body understands all that is in the Bible; and that to live, as the generality of the world about us do, must be right and safe; and, in this light, in a careless and presumptuous state of mind, the daughter of the Patriarch Jacob only went out to see the daughters of the land.

V. 8. Hamor communed with them—With Jacob's sons; Jacob being himself oppressed with shame and grief for his daughter. Your daughter—The daughter of your family.

V. 10. The land shall be before you—In your power, to dwell where you please, and to have the same privileges we enjoy.

V. 13. Deceitfully—Pretending and promising marriages with them, which they never intended.

Before Christ cir. 1732.

unto her brethren, [c] Let me find grace in your eyes, and what ye shall say unto me I will give.

[c] Chap. 33. 15.

12 Ask me never so much dowry and gift, and I will give according as ye shall say unto me: but give me the damsel to wife.

13 And the sons of Jacob answered Shechem and Hamor his father deceitfully, and said, (because he had defiled Dinah their sister.)

14 And they said unto them, We cannot do this thing, to give our sister to one that is uncircumcised: for [d] that were a reproach unto us.

[d] Josh. 5. 9.

15 But in this will we consent unto you: If ye will be as we be, that every male of you be circumcised;

16 Then will we give our daughters unto you, and we will take your daughters to us, and we will dwell with you, and we will become one people.

17 But if ye will not hearken unto us to be circumcised; then will we take our daughter, and we will be gone.

18 And their words pleased Hamor, and Shechem Hamor's son.

19 And the young man deferred not to do the thing, because he had delight in Jacob's daughter: and he was more honourable than all the house of his father.

20 ¶ And Hamor and Shechem his son came unto the gate of their city, and communed with the men of their city, saying,

Before Christ cir. 1732.

21 These men are peaceable with us, therefore let them dwell in the land, and trade therein; for the land, behold, it is large enough for them: let us take their daughters to us for wives, and let us give them our daughters.

22 Only herein will the men consent unto us, for to dwell with us, to be one people, if every male among us be circumcised, as they are circumcised.

23 Shall not their cattle, and their substance, and every beast of theirs be ours? only let us consent unto them, and they will dwell with us.

24 And unto Hamor and unto Shechem his son hearkened all that went out of the gate of his city: and every male was circumcised, all that went out of the gate of his city.

25 ¶ And it came to pass on the third day when they were sore, that two of the sons of Jacob, Simeon and Levi, Dinah's brethren, took each man his sword, and came upon the city boldly, and [e] slew all the males.

[e] Chap. 49. 6.

26 And they slew Hamor and Shechem his son with the * edge of the sword, and took Dinah out of Shechem's house, and went out.

*Heb. mouth.

27 The sons of Jacob came upon the slain, and spoiled the city, because they had defiled their sister.

28 They

V. 14. A reproach unto us—They do not here reject it as unlawful, but only as dishonourable and reproachful.

V. 20. The gate of their city—The place where all public affairs were considered and concluded.

V. 23. Shall not their substance be ours—They cover their private design with the shew of public good.

V. 24. Hearkened—They yielded, in compliance with their young prince, or from the prospect of the proposed advantage.

V. 25. Simeon and Levi—These two only are mentioned, because they were authors of the counsel; but it is probable most of their brethren and their servants would be ready to revenge their master's quarrel, and to punish so great a villany. Dinah's brethren—So they were, both by the father and mother. Slew all the males—Their sin in this act was complicated; that they did it without authority from God or their father; and, without all bounds, unjustly and cruelly punished the innocent and the guilty together; and ushered in this fact with deceit; and that under pretence of friendship and shew of religion.

V. 27. They—The sons of Israel attribute this wicked action to all the men of the city, and say, They have been guilty of the crime: We do not find, when the elders of the city were called together by Hamor, to consider of the proposal made by Jacob's sons, that the men of the city expressed any abhorrence of the action their prince had committed, or that they even required him first to restore the young woman to her family, that, on both sides, they might enter upon the treaty with equal freedom; and that the young person herself might not be deprived of her liberty in their city, or of her just right to refuse that person for her husband, who had taken her away by force: Nothing is said by the elders of the city of these obvious rules of justice; and however highly blameable the sons of Jacob were, for falling upon the subjects with their prince, who alone was strictly guilty, we cannot doubt but the general destruction of all the men of this community, for one man's crime, is recorded to teach mankind of the danger of silence, under the general knowledge of crimes committed by the heads of the community in which they live. Who would take a servant out of a family, where any rule of morality was known to be broken by the heads of that family? The barely living by choice in any man's house, who sets a wicked example before all that dwell with him, and who neither declare against that wickedness, or use any endeavours within their power to prevent it, include themselves in the guilt of the crimes they acquiesce in. We need only suppose the crime to be theft or robbery, though committed by the heads of the family alone, if it is with the knowledge and silence of the servants of that family, and we cannot but include them in the guilt of it: And we need only call to our minds in what light the Almighty God hath declared he considers lying, injustice, drunkenness, adultery, and we cannot then avoid considering ourselves equally guilty in the sight of God, to be silent under the commission of any of these crimes, by those with whom we live by choice, as if we were silent under the known guilt of theft or robbery in the same persons. To make any difference between two actions which God hath declared equally criminal, is to run wilfully into a mistake in judgment, which exposes us to as much danger from the righteous judgment of God, as if we were silent under the commission of crimes which we hold in the greatest abhorrence, such as theft, robbery, or murder; for we are not warranted to form our judgments of crimes by what we ourselves think of them, or by what other

Before Christ cir. 1732.

28 They took their ſheep, and their oxen, and their aſſes, and that which was in the city, and that which was in the field,

29 And all their wealth, and all their little ones, and their wives took they captive, and ſpoiled even all that was in the houſe.

i Chap. 49. 6.
g Exod. 5. 21.
h Deut. 4. 27. Pſa. 105. 12.

30 And Jacob ſaid to Simeon and Levi, [i] Ye have troubled me, [g] to make me to ſtink among the inhabitants of the land, amongſt the Canaanites, and the Perizzites: [h] and I being few in number, they ſhall gather themſelves together againſt me, and ſlay me, and I ſhall be deſtroyed, I and my houſe.

31 And they ſaid, Should he deal with our ſiſter, as with an harlot?

CHAP. XXXV.

Before Christ cir. 1732.

AND God ſaid unto Jacob, Ariſe, go up to Beth-el, and dwell there: and make there an altar unto God, [a] that appeared unto thee [o] when thou fleddeſt from the face of Eſau thy brother.

a Chap. 28. 13.
o Chap. 27. 43.

2 Then Jacob ſaid unto his houſhold, and to all that were with him, Put away [c] the ſtrange gods that are among you, and be clean, and [d] change your garments:

c Chap. 31. 19, 34. Joſh. 24. 2.
d Exod. 19. 10.

3 And let us ariſe, and go up to Beth-el; and I will make there an altar unto God, who anſwered me in the day of my diſtreſs, and was with me in the way which I went.

4 And other men think of them, but by what GOD declares to be crimes, and in what light HE looks upon thoſe that commit the things He hath forbidden, under the penalty of His wrath: And as, in the caſe before us, the known crimes of public characters involves the community in the guilt of thoſe crimes that hears them, knows or believes them to be true, and who, one and all, quietly ſubmit to them, becauſe they think it moſt convenient to themſelves ſo to do, there can be no doubt, but the men of this city knew what was the crime of their prince which led to this propoſal to them: The elders, or leading men of the community, are told of the advantages which might ariſe from their compliance with the wiſhes of their prince; they ſay nothing of their prince's crime, as an high example which others might be led to imitate, to the ruin and miſery of other men's daughters and their families; they ſay nothing about any puniſhment which was due in an higher degree to a perſon of his rank, than any other; becauſe his ſtation was the loudeſt call upon him, by his authority and example, to reſtrain all that was unjuſt and violent, and to recommend all that was for the peace of the people he ſtood at the head of; but the contrary of all, blame appears;—the prince's father we ſee acting as a man, who thought his ſon ought to be gratified in his wiſhes; and all the men of the city prove their willingneſs that he ſhould; and, without blame or reproof to him who had been guilty of one of the laſt degrees of wickedneſs and violence, they all act to him as a perſon to be pleaſed, and not to be puniſhed, which diſcovers the general mind of the king, the prince, and the people, to be corrupt and regardleſs of thoſe rules of right, without which human ſociety would be nothing but violence and confuſion: The reſentment of Jacob's ſons is made the means of their puniſhment; God ſends the ſword through the wicked city, and deſtroys them, and then cauſes their deſtruction to be publiſhed to the world, that God's diſpleaſure might be known by all who ſhould afterwards commit or approve of wicked deeds; and, as to individuals who might fall in the general ſlaughter, who were living in the fear of God, and who, from a ſenſe of duty to their ſuperiors, might ſubmit to the propoſed conditions, ſurely they would raiſe no complaint againſt Him, in whoſe fear they lived, who they knew gave life, and had a right to withdraw it whenever it pleaſed Him, as well as the choice of the means by which it was to be done. Would John, beheaded in the priſon, or Stephen, ſtoned without the gate, regret that God had taken them from a world of ſorrow, becauſe a world of ſin and violence, to a world of purity and peace? Or raiſe one murmur againſt His providence, for ſuffering wicked men to be the inſtruments, by which they were taken from the evil to come, and tranſlated into the kingdom of their Redeemer?

V. 28. They took—They add to what they had done,—theft and robbery.

V. 29. They ſpoiled all—In their ſeveral houſes; or within doors, as the word ſignifies.

V. 30. Jacob ſaid, Ye have troubled me—You have diſcompoſed my mind, and perplexed my affairs, and brought me into trouble; you have made me odious to them who will impute this to my contrivance. When Hamor went to propoſe his ſon's marriage with Jacob's daughter, it does not appear that the Patriarch ſo much as gave him any anſwer, or that he had any knowledge of the deſign of his ſon's, and he diſapproves of what they had done. But the Scriptures are not written to vindicate any man's conduct, or the characters of any number of men, but to vindicate the ways of GOD to men, and to declare and publiſh God's hatred and abhorrence of all ſin, in all men, and to ſhew, that there are none who do not need His pardon of their ſins paſt, and His grace only given for the ſake of His SON, to ſave them from offending Him for the time to come, (1 John iii. 9.) And the truths of God's word do not ſtand or fall with the conduct of any man, or number of men, who only appear on earth for a ſhort ſeaſon, and then their place knows them no more; but the word of the Lord will ſtand for ever, let men ſay or do what they will; ſuch truſt hath not God placed even in his ſaints (Job. xv. 15.) as to declare, that the whole conduct of any man, however highly favoured of God, is to be looked to, and regarded as the law or rule by which other men are to govern their conduct, or to be judged; God will judge the world in righteouſneſs, by the God-man Chriſt Jeſus, who alone, as man, is pointed to as the example for all men, and before whom Jacob, and the ſons of Jacob, as well as all the ſons of men, muſt appear, to be judged according to their works, (Rev. xx. 12.) and, whatever evil we may hereafter meet with, in all, or any of the family of Iſrael, it is ever to be remembered, that it is not the crimes of any man, any family, or any number of men ſpoken of in the Scriptures, though called by the name of Iſrael, which are to be looked to as a ſanction to any other man's crimes, any more than it is allowable for one man to commit crimes againſt the laws of the country he lives in, becauſe other men have done ſo.

V. 31. Should he deal with our ſiſter as with an harlot—Shall we expreſs no more reſentment of this abominable abuſe of our ſiſter, than if ſhe had been ſome common harlot, whoſe abuſe no man either regardeth or revengeth? Thus they excuſe one fault by committing another, and defend themſelves by accuſing their father of ſtupidity, and inſenſibleneſs of ſo great an indignity and injury.

CHAP. XXXV.

V. 1. Go to Beth-el—This kind word came in ſeaſon to comfort his diſquieted mind, and convey him to a ſafer place.

V. 2. The ſtrange gods—The idols; the gods of ſtrange nations. Rachel brought ſome from her father's houſe; or, they might have been taken from the Shechemites as gold and ſilver, though not for religious uſe. And be clean—Jacob, like a good man and a good maſter of a family, takes care, not only for himſelf, but for all his family, to keep them from the exerciſe of a falſe religion, and to engage them, as far as he can, in the profeſſion and practice of the true.

V. 3. I will make there an altar unto God, who anſwered me in the day of my diſtreſs—The religious acknowledgment of a grateful

Before Christ cir. 1732.

4 And they gave unto Jacob all the ſtrange gods which were in their hand, and all their ear-rings which were in their ears; and Jacob hid them under [e] the oak which was by Shechem.

e Joſh. 24. 26. Judges 9. 6.

5 And they journeyed: and [f] the terror of God was upon the cities that were round about them, and they did not purſue after the ſons of Jacob.

f Exod. 15. 16. & 23. 27. & 34. 24. Deut. 11. 25. Joſh. 2. 9. & 5. 1. 1 Sam. 14. 15. 2 Chro. 14. 14.

6 ¶ So Jacob came to Luz, which is in the land of Canaan (that is Beth-el) he and all the people that were with him.

7 And he built there an altar, and [g] called the place * El-beth-el: becauſe there God appeared unto him, when he fled from the face of his brother.

g Chap. 28. 19.

* That is, the God of Beth-el.

8 But [h] Deborah Rebekah's nurſe died, and ſhe was buried beneath Beth-el, under an oak: and the name of it was called † Allon-bachuth.

h Chap. 24. 59.

† That is, the oak of weeping.

9 ¶ And [i] God appeared unto Jacob again, when he came out of Padan-aram; and bleſſed him.

i Hoſea 12. 5.

10 And God ſaid unto him, Thy name is Jacob: thy name ſhall not be called any more Jacob, [k] but Iſrael ſhall be thy name; and he called his name Iſrael.

k Chap. 32. 28.

11 And God ſaid unto him, [l] I am God Almighty; be fruitful and multiply, [m] a nation and a company of nations ſhall be of thee: and kings ſhall come out of thy loins.

l Chap. 17. 1. & 48. 3. m Chap. 17. 5, 6, 16. & 28. 3. & 48. 4.

12 And the land [n] which I gave Abraham and Iſaac, to thee I will give it, and to thy ſeed after thee will I give the land.

n Chap. 12. 7. & 13. 15. & 26. 3, 4.

13 And God went up from him, in the place where he talked with him.

Before Christ cir. 1732.

14 And Jacob [o] ſet up a pillar in the place where he talked with him, even a pillar of ſtone: and he poured a drink-offering thereon, and he poured oil thereon.

o Chap. 28. 18.

15 And Jacob called the name of the place where God ſpake with him, [p] Beth-el.

p Chap. 28. 19.

16 ¶ And they journeyed from Beth-el: and there was but ‡ a little way to come to Ephrath: and Rachel travailed, and ſhe had hard labour.

‡ Heb. a little piece of ground. 2 Kings 5. 19.

17 And it came to paſs when ſhe was in hard labour, that the midwife ſaid unto her, Fear not; thou ſhalt have this ſon alſo.

1729.

18 And it came to paſs as her ſoul was in departing (for ſhe died) that ſhe called his name § Benoni: but his father called him * Benjamin.

§ That is, the ſon of my ſorrow. * That is, the ſon of the right hand.

19 And [o] Rachel died, and was buried in the way to [r] Ephrath, which is Beth-lehem.

o Chap. 48. 7. r Ruth 1. 2. & 4. 11. s 1 Sam. 10. 2.

20 And Jacob ſet a pillar upon her grave: that is the pillar of Rachel's grave [s] unto this day.

21 And Iſrael journeyed, and ſpread his tent beyond [t] the tower of Edar.

t Mich. 4. 8.

22 And it came to paſs when Iſrael dwelt in that land, that Reuben went and [u] lay with Bilhah his father's concubine: and Iſrael heard it. Now the ſons of Jacob were twelve.

u Chap. 49. 4. 1 Chron. 5. 1. See 2 Sam. 16. 22. & 20. 3. 1 Cor. 5. 1.

23 The ſons of Leah; [x] Reuben, Jacob's firſt-born, and Simeon, and Levi, and Judah, and Iſſachar, and Zebulun.

x Chap. 46. 8. Exod. 1. 2.

24 The

ful mind, to that God, whoſe gracious aid is nigh unto all them that call upon Him, and moſt ſo in the days of ſorrow, in the hours of ſore diſtreſs.

V. 4. Their ear-rings—Heathen people did wear ear-rings for the honour of their idols; And for what end are they worn now?

V. 5. The terror of God—A great terror ſent from God: Safe are they whom God is pleaſed to keep.

V. 7. El-beth-el—That is, the God of Beth-el.

V. 8. Allon-Bachuth—That is, the oak of weeping; from the great lamentation which they made there, for the loſs of a perſon they loved.

V. 9. God appeared unto Jacob again, and bleſſed him—They who are humbly living in the fear of God, are thus reminded that God will not leave them or forſake them; but will bleſs them with that peace which the world cannot give or take away.

V. 10. Iſrael ſhall be thy name—I do not repent of the change which I made of thy name, but I again confirm it; and as then thou didſt prevail over thy brother Eſau, ſo now thou ſhalt prevail over thoſe of whom thou art afraid.

V. 11. God, I am God Almighty—The Maker of heaven and earth, who thus ſpeaketh to thee, as a man doth with his friend.

V. 13. God went up from him—By withdrawing the ſigns of his ſpecial preſence, as Gen. xvii. 22. Judg. xiii. 20.

V. 14. Jacob ſet up a pillar—As a monument of God's manifold favours, and to expreſs his gratitude.

V. 18. As her ſoul was departing—Going out of the body, and entering into the world of ſpirits, to be diſpoſed of by God for ever, (Eccleſ. xii. 7. Luke xvi. 22, 23.) Happy is that ſoul who hath the God of Jacob for his help in that moment, ſo ſoon to come to all the living; happy are they who walk, who live as ſeeing God by faith, as in that day they ſhall ſee Him as He is.—All grace and favour to them who die believing in Him as their Redeemer! But what to them who have lived till now, for all things but their dying hour? (Mark xvi. 16.) If, Reader, the conſideration of a ſoul, entering the world of ſpirits, meets you now in the morning, the noon, or evening of your life, turn to and not away from Him who died to purchaſe for you God's pardoning love, and who roſe again, and now liveth, to ſend you His Spirit, according to His faithful promiſe, to apply that pardon to your heart, and to aſſure you by the ſweet foretaſtes of heavenly peace, and joy, and love to God and man, that (holding faſt your faith in Him) you ſhall, when that great moment arrives, dwell with Him in paradiſe. (Luke xxiii. 43.) Benoni—That is, the ſon of my ſorrow. Benjamin—The ſon of my right hand; either as near and dear as his right hand; or, inſtead of his right hand, the ſtaff, ſtay, and comfort of his old age.

V. 19. Rachel was buried in the way to Ephrath—Not in the city. In ancient times ſepulchres were not in places of reſort, but out of cities.

V. 20. Jacob ſet a pillar—As a monument. Unto this day—Unto the time Moſes wrote this book, and long after.

V. 29. Iſaac

Before Christ cir. 1732.

24 The ſons of Rachel; Joſeph and Benjamin.

25 And the ſons of Bilhah, Rachel's handmaid; Dan and Naphtali.

26 And the ſons of Zilpah, Leah's handmaid; Gad, and Aſher. Theſe are the ſons of Jacob, which were born to him in Padan-aram.

27 ¶ And Jacob came unto Iſaac his father unto [y] Mamre, unto the city of Arbah (which is Hebron) where Abraham and Iſaac ſojourned.

y Chap. 13. 18. & 23. 2.

28 And the days of Iſaac were an hundred and fourſcore years.

1716.

29 And Iſaac gave up the ghoſt and died, and [z] was gathered unto his people, being old and full of days: and his ſons Eſau and Jacob [a] buried him.

z Chap. 15. 15. & 25. 8.

a Chap. 49. 31.

C H A P. XXXVI.

cir. 1796.

NOW theſe are the generations of Eſau, who is Edom.

2 [a] Eſau took his wives of the daughters of Canaan; Adah the daughter of Elon the Hittite, and [o] Aholibamah the daughter of Anah the daughter of Zibeon the Hivite:

a Chap. 26. 34.

Before Chriſt cir. 1796.

3 And [c] Baſhemath Iſhmael's daughter, ſiſter of Nebajoth.

o Verſe 25.

cir. 1760.

c Chap. 28. 9. d 1 Chron. 1. 35.

4 And [d] Adah bare to Eſau, Eliphaz: and Baſhemath bare Reuel.

5 And Aholibamah bare Jeuſh, and Jaalam, and Korah: Theſe are the ſons of Eſau, which were born unto him in the land of Canaan.

6 And Eſau took his wives, and his ſons, and his daughters, and all the * perſons of his houſe, and his cattle, and all his beaſts, and all his ſubſtance, which he had got in the land of Canaan; and went into the country from the face of his brother Jacob.

* Heb. ſouls.

7 [e] For their riches were more than that they might dwell together: and [i] the land wherein they were ſtrangers, could not bear them, becauſe of their cattle.

e Chap. 13. 6, 11. i Chap. 17. 8. & 28. 4.

8 Thus dwelt Eſau in [g] mount Seir: Eſau is Edom.

g Joſh. 24. 4.

9 ¶ And

V. 29. Iſaac gave up the ghoſt, and died—He gave up his ſpirit into the hands of a faithful Creator and Redeemer; not dragged by force into a world unknown, with the deſires of his heart fixed on things on earth: His treaſure was with HIM, to whom, in his early life, he had been dedicated; and, by faith in HIM, he lived a life becoming an heir of the promiſes, which are by faith, and a lively likeneſs of the Prince of peace. This venerable Patriach lived a long, a calm, and quiet life; and was, to thoſe early ages, a great example to mankind of HIM that was to come from God, and, by His human nature, deſcend from Iſaac, and who, not only like him, was offered up by His heavenly Father, but who did ſuffer death for us on the croſs, that, by His precious blood, as of a lamb without ſpot, we might have hope in God, and that by grace, the purchaſe of His death, we might die unto ſin, and live unto righteouſneſs, (1 Pet. i. 2.) walking in the ſteps of His example, of which this peaceable man was a repreſentation to the world at the time he lived, and who, being dead, yet ſpeaketh by his example ſo far as it is conformable to his Living Head. He was gathered unto his people—To the congregation of the church of the firſt-born above—the ſpirits of juſt men reſtored to the holy image of God, by grace, the purchaſe and gift of JESUS CHRIST our Lord. And his body was gathered to the ſociety of the dead, to reſt in peace in the quiet grave, till the reſurrection morning ſhall come, the trumpet of God be heard, the ſound of which ſhall fill the world, and wake the dead to endleſs life, in one of theſe two eternities, ſo clearly revealed in this word of God, which endureth for ever. (1 Pet. ii. 25. 1 Cor. xv. 52. Matt. xxv. 46.)

C H A P. XXXVI.

V. 1. The generations of Eſau—Mentioned to ſhew the effect of his father's bleſſing, chap. xxvii. 39.

V. 5. The ſons of Eſau—He had daughters, but their names are not mentioned here.

V. 6. Eſau went from the face of his brother Jacob—He went into a land diſtant from his brother: Eſau the elder gave place to Jacob the younger; how little was this to be expected in that day, when Jacob ſent preſents, and bowed down to his brother; as little was it to be expected that they, who, with wicked hands, crucified the Redeemer of men, ſhould, to the number of many hundreds, be ſeen acting from principles altogether the contrary to thoſe, by which they were led but a few weeks before: (Acts ii. 23, 42.) The ſame thing which the hiſtory of Jacob and Eſau did in the Old Teſtament times, is done in the New more fully and plainly: The Old Teſtament, by figures, conveyed to the minds of thoſe that lived in the early ages, the knowledge of what the grace of God was to do in and for the fallen ſinful ſouls of men: the natural evil paſſions, tempers, and deſires of the human mind, were to give place to the SPIRIT of God, the purchaſe of redeeming love, as Eſau gave place to Jacob; and this moſt intereſting truth, which the Old Teſtament conveyed by figures and allegory (Gal. iv. 24.) to the underſtandings of men, the New Teſtament conveys by facts and real events; preſenting to our view hundreds and thouſands of perſons, who had been guilty of great violence and wickedneſs, becoming humble, meek, and blameleſs: and then informing us, from the apoſtles, who, in their former lives, were of the number of the wicked, that this change of principle was wrought in them by the grace of God (Phil. ii. 13.); and then leaving it to the conſideration of all that ſhould live after them to the end of the world, whether men in any age could pretend to a better nature than they had, who lived when the Scriptures were written, or not in equal need of the ſame grace, to reſtore their ſinful and immortal nature to that ſtate of purity and holineſs, in which alone it can dwell with God. (Heb. xii. 14.)

V. 7. The land wherein they were ſtrangers—Not entire poſſeſſors of it, but only ſojourners, and could only take what the owners pleaſed, which was not ſufficient for both of them and their numerous families.

V. 8. Eſau is Edom—He who ſold his birth-right for a meſs of red pottage, and therefore was called Edom, or Red; and one cannot help concluding from the giving of a name, which expreſſes Eſau's crime, that we are to underſtand the diſpleaſure, or even contempt, with which God looked upon him who did not value his ſpiritual gifts. Say, reader, are you valuing them as life, and health, and peace, to your ſoul (Rom. viii. 6.); or are you, with Eſau, willing to part with your birth-right, through the well-beloved Son of God, and give up all the bleſſings of his holy Spirit; if you, with Eſau, can only obtain the preſent gratification of your deſires, whether they are thoſe of a more ſenſual nature, or ſuch as lead you to love pleaſure rather than God, this world more than his

Before Christ cir. 1740.

9 ¶ And these are the generations of Esau the father of † the Edomites, in mount Seir.

† Heb. Edom.

10 These are the names of Esau's sons; [h] Eliphaz the son of Adah the wife of Esau, Reuel the son of Bashemath the wife of Esau.

h 1 Chron. 1. 35, &c.

11 And the sons of Eliphaz were, Teman, Omar, ‡ Zepho, and Gatam, and Kenaz.

‡ Or, Zephi, 1 Chro. 1. 36.

12 And Timna was concubine to Eliphaz Esau's son; and she bare to Eliphaz, Amalek: these were the sons of Adah Esau's wife.

13 And these are the sons of Reuel; Nahath, and Zerah, Shammah, and Mizzah: these were the sons of Bashemath Esau's wife.

14 ¶ And these were the sons of Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah, the daughter of Zibeon Esau's wife: and she bare to Esau, Jeush, and Jaalam, and Korah.

cir. 1715.

15 ¶ These were dukes of the sons of Esau: the sons of Eliphaz, the first-born son of Esau; duke Teman, duke Omar, duke Zepho, duke Kenaz, 16 Duke Korah, duke Gatam, and duke Amalek: These are the dukes that came of Eliphaz, in the land of Edom: these were the sons of Adah.

17 ¶ And these are the sons of Reuel Esau's son; duke Nahath, duke Zerah, duke Shammah, duke Mizzah. These are the dukes that came of Reuel, in the land of Edom: these are the sons of Bashemath Esau's wife.

18 ¶ And these are the sons of Aholibamah Esau's wife; duke Jeush, duke Jaalam, duke Korah: these were the dukes that came of Aholibamah, the daughter of Anah Esau's wife.

19 These are the sons of Esau (who is Edom) and these are their dukes.

cir. 1840.

20 ¶ [i] These are the sons of Seir [k] the Horite, who inhabited the land; Lotan, and Shobal, and Zibeon, and Anah, i 1 Chro. 1. 38.

k Deut. 2. 22.

21 And Dishon, and Ezer, and Dishan: these are the dukes of the Horites, the children of Seir in the land of Edom.

22 And the children of Lotan were, Hori, and § Heman: and Lotan's sister was Timna.

§ Or, Hemam, 1 Chro. 1. 39.

23 And the children of Shobal were these; * Alvan, and Manahath, and Ebal, † Shepho, and Onam.

* Or, Alian, 1 Chro. 1. 40.
† Or, Shephi, 1 Chro. 1. 40.

24 And these are the children of Zibeon; both Ajah, and Anah: this was that Anah that found [l] the mules in the wilderness, as he fed the asses of Zibeon his father.

Before Christ cir. 1840.

l See Lev. 19. 19.

25 And the children of Anah were these; Dishon, and Aholibamah the daughter of Anah.

26 And these are the children of Dishon; ‡ Hemdan, and Eshban, and Ithran, and Cheran.

‡ Or, Amram. 1 Chro. 1. 41.

27 The children of Ezer are these; Bilhan, and Zaavan, and § Achan.

§ Or, Jaakan, 1 Chro. 1. 42.

28 The children of Dishan are these; Uz, and Aran.

29 These are the dukes that came of the Horites; duke Lotan, duke Shobal, duke Zibeon, duke Anah,

cir. 1780.

30 Duke Dishon, duke Ezer, duke Dishan: these are the dukes that came of Hori, among their dukes in the land of Seir.

31 ¶ And [m] these are the kings that reigned in the land of Edom, before there reigned any king over the children of Israel.

m 1 Chron. 1. 43.

32 And Bela the son of Beor reigned in Edom: and the name of his city was Dinhabah.

cir. 1676.

33 And Bela died, and Jobab the son of Zerah of Bozrah reigned in his stead.

34 And Jobab died, and Husham of the land of Temani reigned in his stead.

35 And Husham died, and Hadad the son of Bedad (who smote Midian in the field of Moab) reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Avith.

36 And Hadad died, and Samlah of Masrekah reigned in his stead.

37 And Samlah died, and Saul of Reboboth by the river reigned in his stead.

38 And Saul died, and Baal-hanan the son of Achbor reigned in his stead.

39 And Baal-hanan the son of Achbor died, and [n] Hadar reigned in his stead: and the name of his city was Pau; and his wife's name was Mehetabel, the daughter of Matred, the daughter of Mezahab.

1496.

n 1 Chro. 1. 50. Hadad Pai. After his death was an Aristocracy. Exod. 15. 15.

40 And these are the names of [o] the dukes that came of Esau, according to their families, after their places, by their names; duke Timnah, duke * Alvah, duke Jetheth, o 1 Chro. 1. 51.

* Or, Aliah.

41 Duke Aholibamah, duke Elah, duke Pinon,

42 Duke

his heavenly presence: If this is my state of mind, am I, any more than Esau, doing that which God would not have me do; that is, chuse spiritual gifts, the nature of which, as necessary to all, are so fully made known in that discourse (Matth. v. 1, &c.) which should be read and read again, till the truths it conveys are familiar to the mind?

V. 15. Princes or heads of their several families and little principalities, according to the manner of those times.

V. 31. The kings that reigned in the land of Edom—The posterity of Esau, who, after they had subdued the Horites, erected a kingdom there.

Before Christ cir. 1496.

42 Duke Kenaz, duke Teman, duke Mibzar,
43 Duke Magdiel, duke Iram: these be the dukes of Edom, according to their habitations, in the land of their possession; he is Esau the father of † the Edomites.

† Heb. Edom.

CHAP. XXXVII.

* Heb. of his father's sojournings.

AND Jacob dwelt in the land * [a] wherein his father was a stranger, in the land of Canaan.

a Chap. 36. 7. Heb. 11. 9.

Before Christ 1729.

2 These are the generations of Jacob; Joseph being seventeen years old, was feeding the flock with his brethren, and the lad was with the sons of Bilhah, and with the sons of Zilpah, his father's wives: and Joseph brought unto his father their evil report.

3 Now Israel loved Joseph more than all his children, because he was the son of his old age: and he made him a coat of many † colours.

† Or, pieces. Judges 5. 30. 2 Sam. 13. 18.

4 And when his brethren saw that their father loved him more than all his brethren, [b] they hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him.

b Chap. 49. 23.

5 ¶ And Joseph dreamed a dream, and he told it his brethren: and they hated him yet the more.

6 And he said unto them, Hear, I pray you, this dream which I have dreamed.

c Chap. 42. 6, 9. & 43. 26. & 44. 14.

7 For [c] behold, we were binding sheaves in the field, and lo, my sheaf arose, and also stood upright; and behold, your sheaves stood round about, and made obeisance to my sheaf.

8 And his brethren said unto him, Shalt thou indeed reign over us? or shalt thou indeed have dominion over us? and they hated him yet the more for his dreams, and for his words.

9 ¶ And he dreamed yet another dream, and told it his brethren, and said, Behold, I have dreamed a dream more, and behold [d] the sun and the moon, and the eleven stars made obeisance to me.

Before Christ 1729.

d Chap. 46. 29.

10 And he told it to his father and to his brethren: and his father rebuked him, and said unto him, What is this dream that thou hast dreamed? Shall I and thy mother and thy brethren indeed come to bow down ourselves to thee, to the earth?

11 And [e] his brethren envied him: but his father observed the saying.

e Acts 7. 9.

f Dan. 7. 28. Luk. 2. 19, 51.

12 ¶ And his brethren went to feed their father's flock in Shechem. cir. 1729.

13 And Israel said unto Joseph, Do not thy brethren feed the flock in Shechem? Come, and I will send thee unto them. And he said unto him, Here am I.

14 And he said unto him, Go, I pray thee, ‡ see whether it be well with thy brethren, and well with the flocks; and bring me word again. So he sent him out of the vale of Hebron, and he came to Shechem.

‡ Heb. See the peace of thy brethren, &c.

15 ¶ And a certain man found him, and behold, he was wandering in the field: and the man asked him, saying, What seekest thou?

16 And he said, I seek my brethren: tell me, I pray thee, where they feed their flocks.

17 And the man said, They are departed hence: for I heard them say, Let us go to Dothan. And Joseph went after his brethren, and found them in [g] Dothan.

g 2 Kings 6. 13.

18 And when they saw him afar off, even before he came near unto them, they conspired against him, to slay him.

19 And they said one to another, Behold, this § dreamer cometh.

§ Heb. master of dreams.

20 Come now therefore, and let us slay him, and cast him into some pit; and we will say,

CHAP. XXXVII.

V. 2. The generations of Jacob—The events or occurrences which happened to Jacob in his family and issue. Joseph brought unto his father their evil report—Acquainted him with their lewd and wicked courses, to the dishonour of God and of their family, that his father might apply such remedies as he thought meet.

V. 3. Israel loved Joseph, because he was the son of his old age—Being born when Jacob was ninety-one years old. A coat—As a token of his special love, and of the rights of the first-born, which being justly taken from Reuben he conferred upon Joseph, (1 Chron. v. 1.)

V. 4. They hated him, and could not speak peaceably unto him—Their hatred was so deep, that they could not smother it, but discovered it by their churlish words and carriage to him.

V. 7. We were binding sheaves—The occasion of Joseph's advancement was from his counsel and care about the corn of Egypt. Your sheaves stood and made obeisance—A posture of ministry and service.

V. 8. They hated him yet the more for his words—For his relation of his dreams, which they imputed to his arrogancy.

V. 9. He dreamed the sun and the moon, and the eleven stars made obeisance—The repetition of the same thing might teach them, that the thing was certain. His brethren went to Egypt, and there they did make obeisance to him in their father's name.

V. 10. His father rebuked him—Not through anger at Joseph, or contempt of his dream, but lest Joseph should give place to pride, on account of his dreams, and to allay the envy and hatred of his brethren. Shall I, and thy mother—Leah, his step-mother, one that filled his mother's place, being now Jacob's only wife, and the mother of the family.

V. 11. His father observed the saying—The words of Joseph, well knowing that God did frequently signify his mind by dreams.

V. 12. In Shechem—In the parts adjoining to Shechem, in the lands which he had purchased there.

V. 13. I will send thee unto them—Having kept him for some time at home, and supposing that length of time had cooled their heats, and worn out their hatred, he now sends him to them.

V. 19. They said behold this dreamer—This master of dreams, this crafty dreamer, that covers his own ambitious designs with pretences of dreams.

V. 20. Let

Before Christ 1729.

say, some evil beast hath devoured him: and we shall see what will become of his dreams.

h Chap. 42. 22. 21 And h Reuben heard it, and he delivered him out of their hands; and said, Let us not kill him.

22 And Reuben said unto them, Shed no blood, but cast him into this pit that is in the wilderness, and lay no hand upon him; that he might rid him out of their hands, to deliver him to his father again.

23 ¶ And it came to pass when Joseph was come unto his brethren, that they stript Joseph out of his coat, his coat of many * colours that was on him.

* Or, pieces.

24 And they took him, and cast him into a pit: and the pit was empty, there was no water in it.

i Amos 6. 6. 25 i And they sat down to eat bread: and they lift up their eyes and looked, and behold, a company of k Ishmaelites came from Gilead, with their camels bearing spicery, and l balm, and myrrh, going to carry it down to Egypt.

k See ver. 28. 36.

l Jer. 8. 22.

26 And Judah said unto his brethren, What profit is it if we slay our brother, and conceal his blood?

27 Come, and let us sell him to the Ishmaelites, and let not our hand be upon him; for he is our brother, and our flesh: and his brethren † were content.

† Heb. hearkened.

m Judg. 6. 3. 28 Then there passed by m Midianites, merchant-men; and they drew and lift up Joseph out of the pit, n and sold Joseph to the Ishmaelites for o twenty pieces of silver: and they brought Joseph into Egypt.

n Psal. 105. 17. Acts 7. 9.

o See Matth. 27. 9.

29 ¶ And Reuben returned unto the pit; and behold, Joseph was not in the pit: and he p rent his clothes.

p Job 1. 20. 30 And he returned unto his brethren, and said, The child is not; and I, whither shall I go?

Before Christ 1729.

31 And they took Joseph's coat, and killed a kid of the goats, and dipped the coat in the blood.

32 And they sent the coat of many colours, and they brought it to their father; and said, This have we found: know now whether it be thy son's coat or no.

33 And he knew it, and said, It is my son's coat; an q evil beast hath devoured him: Joseph is without doubt rent in pieces.

q Chap. 44. 28.

34 And Jacob rent his clothes, and put sackcloth upon his loins, and mourned for his son many days.

35 And all his sons and all his daughters rose up to comfort him; but he refused to be comforted; and he said, For r I will go down into the grave unto my son, mourning: Thus his father wept for him.

r Chap. 42. 38. & 44. 29, 31.

36 And s the Midianites sold him into Egypt unto Potiphar, an § officer of Pharaoh's, and * ‡ captain of the guard.

s Chap. 39. 1. § Heb. eunuch. But the word doth signify not only eunuchs, but also chamberlains, courtiers, and officers.

* Heb chief of the slaughtermen, or, executioners.

‡ Or, chief marshal.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

AND it came to pass at that time, that Judah went down from his brethren, and turned in to a certain Adullamite, whose name was Hirah.

2 And Judah saw there a daughter of a certain Canaanite, whose name was a Shuah; and he took her, and went in unto her.

a 1 Chron. 2. 3.

3 And she conceived, and bare a son; and he called his name Er.

4 b And she conceived again, and bare a son; and she called his name Onan.

cir. 1727.

b Numb. 26. 19.

5 And she yet again conceived, and bare a son; and called his name c Shelah: and he was at Chezib, when she bare him.

c Numb. 26. 20.

6 And

V. 20. Let us slay him, and cast him into some pit—To cover their wicked action; and that they might put him out of their sight and minds.

V. 21. He delivered him—Used his utmost power to deliver him; and did so, as to his being killed.

V. 25. They sat down to eat—To refresh themselves, their consciences being stupified; and their hearts hardened against their brother, notwithstanding his most passionate intreaties. Ishmaelites—The posterity of Ishmael. From Gilead—A famous place for balm, and for the confluence of merchants.

V. 26. Judah said, What profit is it—Why should we suffer him to perish in the pit, when we may sell him with advantage?

V. 28. Midianites, merchant-men—Either the same who are called Ishmaelites, or others being in the same company with them.

V. 29. Reuben rent his clothes—As the manner was upon distressing occasions. Reuben was not present when Joseph was sold.

V. 30. The child is not—He calls him so comparatively with his brethren, though he was seventeen years old, is dead, as that phrase is commonly used. Whither shall I go—Either to find the child, or to flee from our father? He is more solicitous than the rest, because he being the eldest brother, his father would require Joseph at his hand.

V. 32. They sent the coat, and they brought it—They brought it by a messenger whom they sent: Men are commonly said to do what they cause others to do.

V. 34. Jacob put sackcloth upon his loins—A coarse and mournful habit. This is the first example of that kind, but afterwards was in common use upon these occasions.

V. 35. I will go down into the grave unto my son mourning—The sense is, I will kill myself with grief, or I will never leave mourning till I die.

V. 36. Captain of the guard—Whose office it was to apprehend and punish criminal persons. (Gen. xl. 3.)

CHAP. XXXVIII.

V. 1. Judah went down from his brethren——Probably in discontent, upon occasion of quarrels arisen among them about the selling of Joseph, of which Judah was the first mover.

V. 2. A daughter of a certain Canaanite——Whom he married, against the counsel and example of his parents. But when Judah had Before Christ cir. 1727. 6 And Judah took a wife for Er his first-born, whose name was Tamar.

d Num. 26. 19. 7 And d Er, Judah's first-born, was wicked in the sight of the Lord; and the Lord slew him.

e Deut. 25. 5. 8 And Judah said unto Onan, Go in unto e thy brother's wife, and marry her, and raise up seed to thy brother.

9 And Onan knew that the seed should not be his: and it came to pass, when he went in unto his brother's wife, that he spilled it on the ground, lest that he should give seed to his brother.

* Heb. was evil in the eyes of the LORD. 10 And the thing which he did, * displeased the Lord: wherefore he slew him also.

11 Then said Judah to Tamar his daughter in law, Remain a widow at thy father's house, till Shelah my son be grown; (for he said, Lest peradventure he die also as his brethren did:) and Tamar went and dwelt in her father's house.

† Heb. the days were multiplied. 12 ¶ And † in process of time, the daughter of Shuah Judah's wife died: and Judah was comforted, and went up unto his sheepshearers to Timnath, he and his friend Hirah the Adullamite.

i Judges 14. 1. 13 And it was told Tamar, saying, Behold, thy father in law goeth up i to Timnath, to shear his sheep.

‡ Heb. the door of eyes, or, of Enajim. 14 And she put her widows garments off from her, and covered her with a vail, and wrapped herself, and sat in ‡ an open place, which is by the way to Timnath: for she saw that Shelah was grown, and she was not given unto him to wife.

15 When Judah saw her, he thought her to be an harlot; because she had covered her face. Before Christ cir. 1727.

16 And he turned unto her by the way, and said, Go to, I pray thee, let me come in unto thee (for he knew not that she was his daughter in law) and she said, What wilt thou give me, that thou mayest come in unto me?

§ Heb. a kid of the goats. 17 And he said, I will send thee § a kid from the flock: And she said, Wilt thou give me a pledge, till thou send it?

18 And he said, What pledge shall I give thee? And she said, Thy signet, and thy bracelets, and thy staff, that is in thine hand: and he gave it her, and came in unto her, and she conceived by him.

19 And she arose and went away, and laid by her vail from her, and put on the garments of her widowhood.

20 And Judah sent the kid by the hand of his friend the Adullamite, to receive his pledge from the woman's hand: but he found her not.

21 Then he asked the men of that place, saying, Where is the harlot, that was * openly by the way-side? And they said, There was no harlot in this place. * Or, in Enajim.

22 And he returned to Judah, and said, I cannot find her; and also the men of the place said, that there was no harlot in this place.

† Heb. become a contempt. 23 And Judah said, Let her take it to her, lest we † be shamed: behold, I sent this kid, and thou hast not found her.

24 ¶ And it came to pass about three months after, that it was told Judah, saying, Tamar had committed so great a crime as the selling of his brother, and God had forsaken him, no wonder he adds one sin to another.

V. 7. Er was wicked—Notoriously wicked. And the Lord slew him—In some extraordinary manner. Many are the capital offences against God, who often, by remarkable deaths, hath executed his own sentence, without the interposition of any human authority.

V. 9. He brought upon himself the extraordinary vengeance of God.

V. 11. Judah said—He intimated to her, that he would give Shelah to her; but he meant otherwise, and said in himself I will not do it.

V. 18. Thy signet—That his sin might be discovered. And this and other such horrid crimes committed by eminent persons, it hath pleased God, for wise and holy reasons, to leave upon record, partly to discover how great and deep the corruption of man's nature is, and to oblige all men to an humble sense of their own infirmity, and to a diligent application of themselves to God for his gracious succours, and to a greater circumspection and watchfulness to prevent those evils in themselves; partly to encourage even the greatest sinners to repentance and the hope of pardon; and to vindicate his own justice to men and angels at the last, and to the wicked themselves, who are thus informed how highly sin of any kind offends God, who is of purer eyes than to behold it in any without indignation; and that all men might be informed, that by continuing in any known sin, they are treasuring up to themselves wrath from God against the day of wrath; and who can tell what a fearful thing it will be to fall into the hands of God, enraged against an obdurate and incorrigible soul, found in the very spirit of its sin, when death apprehends him, and delivers him over to infinite justice, whose laws all are thus informed of; and which laws God doth so make known to the minds of men, that every wilful sinner is a despiser of the Most High God himself.

V. 23. Lest we be ashamed—At the sins being known to men: How will they be ashamed in that day, who are found in their sins and in their blood; and who have not fled, by true repentance to God their Saviour, for mercy, during the day of salvation on earth; and who have never looked to that blood of atonement which was shed for sin and for uncleanness, to purify and make them white, through the application of the same to the heart, the root from whence all outward evil proceeds; and of which blood all have need, whatever flattering comparisons we may draw between what we think of ourselves, and what we see or hear of others.

V. 24. Judah said, Bring her forth, and let her be burnt—This eagerness of Judah proceeded not from zeal of justice, for then he would not have endeavoured to destroy the innocent child with the

Before Christ cir. 1727.

Tamar thy daughter in law hath played the harlot; and also behold, she is with child by whoredom: and Judah said, Bring her forth, g Lev. 21. 9. g and let her be burnt.

25 When she was brought forth, she sent to her father in law, saying, By the man whose these are, am I with child: and she said, Discern, I pray thee, whose are these, the signet, and bracelets, and staff.

26 And Judah acknowledged them, and said, She hath been more righteous than I; because that I gave her not to Shelah my son: and he knew her again no more.

27 ¶ And it came to pass in the time of her travail, that behold, twins were in her womb.

28 And it came to pass when she travailed, that the one put out his hand; and the midwife took and bound upon his hand a scarlet thread, saying, This came out first.

29 And it came to pass as he drew back his hand, that behold, his brother came out; and she said, * How hast thou broken forth? this breach be upon thee: therefore his name was called † h Pharez.

* Or, Wherefore hast thou made this breach against thee.
† That is, a breach.
h 1 Chro. 2. 4. Matth. 1. 3.

30 And afterward came out his brother that had the scarlet thread upon his hand: and his name was called Zarah.

Before Christ cir. 1727.

C H A P. XXXIX.

1729.

AND Joseph was brought down to Egypt: and a Potiphar an officer of Pharaoh, captain of the guard, an Egyptian, b bought him of the hands of the Ishmaelites, which had brought him down thither.

a Chap. 37. 36. Psal. 105. 17.
b Chap. 37. 28.

2 And c the Lord was with Joseph, and he was a prosperous man: and he was in the house of his master the Egyptian.

c Verse 21. 1 Sam. 16. 18. and 18. 28. Acts 7. 9.

3 And his master saw that the Lord was with him, and that the Lord made all that he did to prosper in his hand.

4 And Joseph found grace in his sight, and he served him: and he made him overseer over his house, and all that he had he put into his hand.

5 And it came to pass from the time that he had made him overseer in his house, and over all that he had, that d the Lord blessed the Egyptian's house for Joseph's sake: and the blessing of the Lord was upon all that he had, in the house, and in the field.

d Chap. 30. 27.

6 And he left all that he had in Joseph's hand;

the guilty mother, that he might take her out of the way which he esteemed a burden and a blot to his family; or his words proceeded from that readiness which the human mind has, in its natural state, to judge others without hearing, and to pronounce severe sentences on what they are thought to deserve, without considering what we ourselves deserve, and the caution and equity with which we should require our conduct to be judged of. Hastiness and severity in judging and condemning others, are discoveries of pride, of ignorance, and of guilt; of pride, because it is one of the ways in which pride lifts itself up in its own conceit, by bringing others forth to view, as guilty: Of ignorance, because we sentence before we are sufficiently informed, which is always, at the same time, to make ourselves guilty at once of the want of equity in our way of thinking, and of want of compassion for them, who may have been hurried or betrayed into sin; and who can never be treated with contempt and severity by their fellow-creatures, without increasing their own condemnation from God, to whom alone vengeance belongs, and who forbids all such rash and inconsiderate judging of others. In what a light must we appear before an holy God, when, as in the instance before us, we are condemning others of that which we are guilty of ourselves, and at the very time we are uttering our sentence, God, by his providence is going to present us with a just view of ourselves, in the persons of those we condemn? In what light must we appear to wicked spirits, who delude us into a firm persuasion that we must be very worthy persons, by loudly condemning sin in others with such severity, whilst we are equally guilty ourselves, and without concern that God, the judge of all, is acquainted with it; but in whose sight we are carrying ourselves, in the spirit of him who said, "God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are," (Luke xviii. 11.) and went down to his house highly pleased with himself, whilst he was not justified, not forgiven, but guilty under the righteous sentence of God. What must be the scorn of wicked spirits, when thus they delude our proud and naturally sinful souls into such most mistaken, and to the last degree dangerous conceits of ourselves, and of our eternal state; that we are good, in the way to heaven, condemning others, and without so much as seeing our need of mercy from God to our unrighteousness? Every soul shall bear its own iniquity; but, as we would escape the wrath due to our offences, let us not only fly from the appearance of evil ourselves, but let us also avoid Judah's spirit, at this time, even to those pitiable sadly deluded ones, who we may look upon as the Tamars of our own age.

V. 26. Judah acknowledged them—His guilty conscience, and the horror occasioned by the delusion of his sin, together with his sudden surprisal, forced him to an ingenuous confession.

C H A P. XXXIX.

V. 2. The Lord was with Joseph—With his gracious presence and blessing, which included mercy, grace, comfort, and support, but did not exempt him from severe and unjust sufferings; but these also, by mercy's strange work, are made to work together for good, not only to Joseph, but to all who truly fear God; sufferings, sanctified by the divine blessing, lead to deeper humility, and God giveth grace to the humble; and, with every increase of the grace of God, there is an increased consciousness that God is with us; that gracious influence rests upon the soul, from which its true blessedness can only arise here, and for ever. He was in the house of his master—He doth not endeavour to make an escape to his father, but demeaned himself patiently and faithfully in the station into which God's providence had brought him.

V. 3. His master saw that the Lord—The supreme God, by his over-ruling providence, made all under his care and management to prosper.

V. 4. He made him overseer—His master had observed that the favour of the Almighty rested upon Joseph, which it does not do upon any who do not live in the fear of God; and the divine blessing on Joseph's conduct, manifesting a careful regard to that blessing, was followed with his being advanced from the condition of a slave, to this authority in the house of his master.

V. 6. He left all that he had in Joseph's hand—He took care for nothing, but committed all to Joseph.

Before Christ 1729. hand; and he knew not ought he had, save the bread which he did eat: and Joseph was a goodly person, and well-favoured.

7 ¶ And it came to pass after these things, that his master's wife cast her eyes upon Joseph; and she said, Lie with me.

8 But he refused, and said unto his master's wife, Behold, my master wotteth not what is with me in the house, and he hath committed all that he hath to my hand.

9 There is none greater in this house, than I; neither hath he kept back any thing from me, but thee, because thou art his wife: how then can I do this great wickedness, and [e] sin against God?

[e] Chap. 20. 6. Lev. 6. 2. Psal. 51. 4.

10 And it came to pass as she spake to Joseph day by day, that he hearkened not unto her, to lie by her, or to be with her.

11 And it came to pass about this time, Before Christ 1729. that Joseph went into the house to do his business; and there was none of the men of the house there within.

12 And she caught him by his garment, saying, Lie with me: and he left his garment in her hand, and fled, and got him out.

13 And it came to pass when she saw that he had left his garment in her hand, and was fled forth, 14 That she called unto the men of her house, and spake unto them, saying, See, he hath brought in an Hebrew unto us to mock us: he came in unto me to lie with me, and I cried with a * loud voice.

* Heb. great.

15 And it came to pass, when he heard that I lifted up my voice and cried, that he left

V. 7. Cast her eyes—See Mat. v. 28. 2 Pet. ii. 14.

V. 9. Sin against God—All sin is against God.

V. 10. Or to be with her—He avoided her; but how shall seducing thoughts be avoided, which are suggested by satan and his unholy and unclean ministers of sin, and from the naturally corrupt imaginations of sinful hearts? Only by that SPIRIT which both can and will cleanse the thoughts of our hearts; and which God, for Christ's sake, will give unto them that ask him: (Luke xi. 13.) and they, who, with Joseph, would avoid the shame and confusion, which the careless and wilfully guilty will be covered with, in that day when the secrets of all hearts shall be made known, must watch unto prayer, first against the evil within, as well as against that which is from without: To be unconcerned about inward corruption, is to make it as certain that our sin will one day find us out, as that sinful thoughts, and desires cherished, are the very roots from which sinful actions spring.

V. 12. He fled—To put himself and her out of the danger of further temptation.

V. 14. He—My husband, whom she would not name, as it were out of disdain, for being the occasion of this pretended affront. The pronouns he and they are often used by way of contempt: We have in this an instance of a guilty person's making use of the language of scorn and contempt; for the express purpose of making the guilty person appear guiltless to others: and it may have its use in preventing our own crimes to settle it in our minds, that to speak with great indignation of the crimes of others, and to give the worst interpretation to their actions, or their words, is the way which guilt takes to make itself appear what it is not; and that, instead of its being a mark of sincerity, and of great honesty, to speak plainly what we think of other men's failings, it is much stronger evidence of our ignorance of ourselves, or of our wanting to hide our own folly or guilt, at the expence of those we unjustly blame, as this person did, by condemning her husband for bringing such a man as Joseph into the house, as if it had been done even with design, that he might commit crimes of the nature of which she falsely accused him: And we are not to think that the Almighty caused the conduct of this daughter of Adam's to be recorded in his holy word, merely to shew how sincerely his servant Joseph lived in his sight, or to make known the sinful behaviour of a single person; all that God does must be great, and consistent with his divine wisdom and goodness, whether we discover the true meaning of what he does or not; and what can we understand from the information which God hath caused to be published to the world in the Scriptures, of the sins of particular persons, in all the different stations in which men can live and act in, but that we should compare these facts with the declarations which God hath given us of the fallen state of our nature, and the general corruption of the whole human race, that when we see the evil which others have committed, we may call to mind that the hearts of all men are alike by nature, and that whatever we may vainly imagine to the contrary, that in the conduct of every sinful child of man, recorded on the divine veracity in these sacred writings, we see a real account of the nature of the human mind as it is in all men, till the grace and spirit of God is communicated to the soul, to restrain or prevent its going to the same excess in us as it has done in others; and every sinful action, word, thought, intention, or desire, which by any means we are informed any of the human race has ever been or at this day is guilty of; on every such occasion it is truly to be said, "This evil, should I have done, said, thought, intended, or desired, but for the grace of God preventing me, and so far as I have escaped any evil which any others have or do commit, the praise is alone due to God for his rich, free, and altogether unmerited grace, given and communicated to me for the alone sake of the God-man, Christ Jesus the Lord; whose love, compassion, and faithfulness is such to every soul of man, that the grace of God, which was and is sufficient to have saved, and to save every soul from sin, hath, and does appear to all men, (Tit. ii. 11.) and that none sin for want of God's offered grace, the purchase of an infinite sacrifice, but by wilfully resisting it, till God hath withdrawn his spirit from the hardened conscience, then indeed it is left to commit or desire the sin which does most easily beset it with greediness. But O! how many offers of grace to save, must INFINITE LOVE make to the souls of men, whom God pities as a father does his children, before one is given up for ever! Who knows but death and the next sin may be embraced together? But supposing death delayed, who shall again expose themselves to God's withdrawing the offers of his grace, and leave them for ever to themselves, impure, passionate, and in consequence of being so, miserable in themselves, at enmity with God and goodness, in love with sin, and in their very nature only fit companions for immortal souls lost like themselves in the evil they chose, when all disguise is for ever over, but each carrying with himself the discovery of his own enormity, his swelling pride, his bitter malice, his fierce rage, his insatiable selfishness, the object of other's scorn, and of his own shame for ever: Who, who can tell what is included in being left exposed to the wrath of God, as every soul must be, when it has offered the last despite to the spirit of God, its Creator and Redeemer: God's word is written to convince of sin, to produce godly sorrow, and the fear of God's wrath; if these are felt, they are felt from the Spirit of God, (John xvi. 8. &c.) left his garment with me, and fled, and got him out.

16 And she laid up his garment by her, until his lord came home.

17 And she spake unto him according to these words, saying, The Hebrew servant which thou hast brought unto us, came in unto me to mock me:

18 And it came to pass, as I lift up my voice, and cried, that he left his garment with me, and fled out.

19 And it came to pass, when his master heard the words of his wife, which she spake unto him, saying, After this manner did thy servant to me; that his wrath was kindled.

20 And Joseph's master took him, and [i] put him into the [g] prison, a place where the king's prisoners were bound: and he was there in the prison.

21 ¶ But the Lord was with Joseph, and [†] shewed him mercy, and [h] gave him favour in the sight of the keeper of the prison.

22 And the keeper of the prison committed to Joseph's hand all the prisoners that were in the prison; and whatsoever they did there, he was the doer of it.

23 The keeper of the prison looked not to any thing that was under his hand; because the Lord was with him: and that which he did, the Lord made it to prosper.

CHAP. XL.

AND it came to pass after these things, that the butler of the king of Egypt and his baker had offended their lord the king of Egypt.

2 And Pharaoh was wroth against two of his officers, against the chief of the butlers, and against the chief of the bakers.

3 [a] And he put them in ward in the house of the captain of the guard, into the prison, the place where Joseph was bound.

4 And the captain of the guard charged Joseph with them, and he served them; and they continued a season in ward.

5 ¶ And they dreamed a dream both of them, each man his dream in one night, each man according to the interpretation of his dream; the butler and the baker of the king of Egypt, which were bound in the prison.

6 And Joseph came in unto them in the morning, and looked upon them, and behold they were sad.

7 And he asked Pharaoh's officers that were with him in the ward of his lord's house, saying, Wherefore * look ye so sadly to day?

8 And they said unto him, We have dreamed a dream, and there is no interpreter of it. And Joseph said unto them, [b] Do not interpretations belong to God? tell me them, I pray you.

9 And the chief butler told his dream to Joseph, and said unto him, In my dream, behold, a vine was before me.

10 And in the vine were three branches: and it was as though it budded, and her blossoms shot forth; and the clusters thereof brought forth ripe grapes.

11 And Pharaoh's cup was in my hand: and I took the grapes, and pressed them into Pharaoh's cup, and I gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand.

12 And

Before Christ 1729.

Before Christ cir. 1720.

1718.

i Psal. 105. 18.

g See Chap. 40. 15. & 41. 14.

† Heb. extended kindness unto him.

h Exod. 3. 21. and 11. 3. and 12. 36. Psal. 106. 6. Prov. 16. 7. Dan. 1. 9.

cir. 1720.

cir. 1720.

a Chap. 39. 21, 23.

* Heb. are your faces evil.

b See Chap. 41. 16. Dan. 2. 11, 28.

&c.) still striving with the soul; true repentance is the way to pardon, because the repenting soul, in every step, obeys that grace of God which bringeth salvation; and only continuing faithful in obeying that grace, it will have that faith of the gospel, by which it shall be enabled to believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, to its present and eternal salvation, though it might have gone as great lengths in sin, as the guilty person who added to her first wicked design such great deceit, falsehood, and injustice.

V. 17. The Hebrew servant which thou hast brought—She makes her husband accessary to the crime, that she might provoke him to the sharper revenge.

V. 20. A place where the king's prisoners were bound—A dungeon, (Gen. xl. 15.) where he endured great hardship. Psal. cv. 18.

V. 21. The Lord was with Joseph, and shewed him mercy—No disgrace in the esteem of men occasions God to withdraw His gracious presence from them that fear Him. A prison or a palace, the fire, the lion's den, are alike to Him; His dwelling-place is the humble, contrite, faithful mind; and wherever it is imprisoned, or called to suffer upon earth, there is the God of all mercy and grace present, as with Joseph, to shew mercy.

V. 22. He was the doer of it—They did nothing but by Joseph's command or permission.

CHAP. XL.

V. 3. The captain of the guard—Potiphar, (Gen. xxxvii. 36.) who, being informed of Joseph's care and faithfulness, began to have a better opinion of him, though, for his wife's reputation, he left him still in the prison. Where Joseph was bound—Was a prisoner; for Joseph, being now made governor of the prisoners, was doubtless freed from his bonds.

V. 5. They dreamed both of them—Not a vain and idle dream, but one that had in it a signification of future things, and needed interpretation.

V. 6. Joseph came in and looked upon them—Kind and compassionate minds inquire after the welfare of all about them by their very looks; and this circumstance does not discover a little of Joseph's real character. They were sad—Perplexed and terrified, both because they perceived the dream was extraordinary, and sent from God, (Matth. xxvii. 19.) and because they understood not the meaning of it.

V. 8. There is no interpreter of it—With us, or to whom we can now resort; for, otherwise, there were many in Egypt of that profession, (chap. xli. 8.) Interpretations belong to God—In vain do you expect such things from your wisemen; for it is only that God who sends these dreams that can interpret them, and to Him you should seek for it. Tell me them, I pray you—Who am the servant of the true God, who useth to communicate his secrets to his people, and who, I doubt not, will hear my prayers for this mercy.

V. 14. Shew

Before Christ 1718.

12 And Joseph said unto him, This is the interpretation of it: The three branches are three days.

c 2 Kings 25. 27. Psal. 3. 3. Jer. 52. 31. † Or, reckon.

13 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh c † lift up thine head, and restore thee unto thy place: and thou shalt deliver Pharaoh's cup into his hand, after the former manner when thou wast his butler.

‡ Heb. remember me with thee.

14 But ‡ think on me when it shall be well with thee, and shew kindness, I pray thee, unto me; and make mention of me unto Pharaoh, and bring me out of this house.

15 For indeed I was stolen away out of the d Chap. 39 20. land of the Hebrews: d and here also have I done nothing that they should put me into the dungeon.

16 When the chief baker saw that the interpretation was good; he said unto Joseph, I also was in my dream, and behold, I had three § white baskets on my head.

§ Or, full of holes.

17 And in the uppermost basket there was of all manner of * bakemeats for Pharaoh; and the birds did eat them out of the basket upon my head.

* Heb. meat of Pharaoh, the work of a baker, or, cook.

18 And Joseph answered, and said, This is the interpretation thereof: The three baskets are three days.

19 Yet within three days shall Pharaoh † lift up thy head from off thee, and shall hang thee on a tree; and the birds shall eat thy flesh from off thee.

† Or, reckon thee, and take thy office from thee.

20 ¶ And it came to pass the third day, e Mark 6. 21. which was Pharaoh's birth-day, that he e made a feast unto all his servants: and he ‡ lifted up the head of the chief butler, and of the chief baker among his servants.

‡ Or, reckoned.

21 And he restored the chief butler unto his butlership again; and he gave the cup into Pharaoh's hand:

Before Christ 1718.

22 But he hanged the chief baker: as Joseph had interpreted to them.

23 Yet did not the chief butler remember Joseph, but forgat him.

CHAP. XLI.

1715. AND it came to pass at the end of two full years, that Pharaoh dreamed, and behold, he stood by the river.

2 And behold, there came up out of the river seven well-favoured kine, and fat-fleshed; and they fed in a meadow.

3 And behold, seven other kine came up after them out of the river, ill-favoured, and lean-fleshed; and stood by the other kine, upon the brink of the river.

4 And the ill-favoured and lean-fleshed kine, did eat up the seven well-favoured and fat kine. So Pharaoh awoke.

5 And he slept and dreamed the second time: and behold, seven ears of corn came up upon one stalk, * rank and good.

* Heb. fat.

6 And behold, seven thin ears and blasted with the east wind sprung up after them.

7 And the seven thin ears devoured the seven rank and full ears: and Pharaoh awoke, and behold, it was a dream.

8 And it came to pass in the morning, a that a Dan. 2. 1. his spirit was troubled; and he sent and called for all the magicians of Egypt, and all the wise-men thereof: and Pharaoh told them his dream: but there was none that could interpret them unto Pharaoh.

9 ¶ Then spake the chief butler unto Pharaoh, saying, I do remember my faults this day.

10 Pharaoh

V. 14. Shew kindness, I pray thee, unto me—Though he patiently endures his prison, yet he prudently useth all lawful means to get his freedom.

V. 15. Here have I done nothing, that they should put me into the dungeon—Joseph doth not accuse either his brethren or his mistress, but only asserts his own innocency, which was necessary for his deliverance.

V. 19. Pharaoh shall hang thee—Joseph was faithful to a dying man.

V. 23. Forgat him—Neglected him and his desire, as men in Scripture are said to forget God, when they do not remember him so as to love and obey him. (Psal. cvi. 13, 21. Hos. ii. 13.)

CHAP. XLI.

V. 1. Two full years—After the butler was restored to his place. He stood by the river—Nilus, called the river simply, because of its eminency.

V. 2. There came up out of the river—This suits well with the nature of the thing; for both the fruitfulness and the barrenness of Egypt depended, under God, upon the increase or diminution of the waters of that river.

V. 7. It was a dream—Not a real thing, as Pharaoh in his sleep imagined it to be. The dream did not vanish, as dreams commonly do, but was fixed in his mind, and he could not shake it off. By which he saw, that it was no common or natural, but a divine and significant dream.

V. 8. His spirit was troubled—Because he understood not the meaning of it, and dreaded the consequences of it. The magicians—Whose profession it was to discover secret and future things, which they did by the help of evil spirits. (Exod. vii. 11. and viii. 19.) The wise-men—Who were conversant in the study of nature, and, by reason of their great sagacity, did make happy conjectures.

V. 9. I do remember my faults this day—Not against Joseph by ingratitude, but against the king; by which expression, he both acknowledgeth the king's justice in imprisoning him, and his clemency in pardoning him. But may not these very words have been used by the butler in a much higher sense? Who hath our faults offended?—The King eternal; whose clemency hath allowed us to live to obtain His mercy, and to enable us to make the best restoration in our power, for any fault which injured our fellow-creatures.

V. 16. Joseph

Before Christ 1715.

10 Pharaoh was wroth with his ſervants, [b] and put me in ward in the captain of the guard's houſe, both me, and the chief baker.

b Chap. 39. 20.

11 And we dreamed a dream in one night, I and he: we dreamed [c] each man according to the interpretation of his dream.

c Chap. 40. 5.

12 And there was there with us a young man an Hebrew, ſervant to the captain of the guard; and we told him, and he [d] interpreted to us our dreams: to each man according to his dream he did interpret.

d Chap. 40. 12, &c.

13 And it came to paſs, as he interpreted to us, ſo it was: me he reſtored unto my office, and him he hanged.

1715.

14 ¶ [e] Then Pharaoh ſent and called Joſeph, and they * brought him haſtily out of the dungeon: and he ſhaved himſelf, and changed his raiment, and came in unto Pharaoh.

e Pſa. 105. 20. * Heb. made him run.

15 And Pharaoh ſaid unto Joſeph, I have dreamed a dream, and there is none that can interpret it: and I have heard ſay of thee, that † thou canſt underſtand a dream, to interpret it.

† Or, when thou heareſt a dream, thou canſt interpret it.

16 And Joſeph anſwered Pharaoh, ſaying, It is not in me: God ſhall give Pharaoh an anſwer of peace.

17 And Pharaoh ſaid unto Joſeph, In my dream, behold, I ſtood upon the bank of the river.

18 And behold, there came up out of the river ſeven kine, fat-fleſhed, and well-favoured; and they fed in a meadow.

19 And behold, ſeven other kine came up after them, poor and very ill-favoured, and lean-fleſhed, ſuch as I never ſaw in all the land of Egypt for badneſs.

20 And the lean and the ill-favoured kine did eat up the firſt ſeven fat kine.

‡ Heb. come to the inward parts of them.

21 And when they had ‡ eaten them up, it could not be known that they had eaten them; but they were ſtill ill-favoured, as at the beginning. So I awoke.

22 And I ſaw in my dream, and behold, ſeven ears came up in one ſtalk, full and good.

§ Or, ſmall.

23 And behold, ſeven ears, § withered, thin, and blaſted with the eaſt wind, ſprung up after them.

Before Chriſt 1715.

24 And the thin ears devoured the ſeven good ears: And I told this unto the magicians; but there was none that could declare it unto me.

25 ¶ And Joſeph ſaid unto Pharaoh, The dream of Pharaoh is one: God hath ſhewed Pharaoh what he is about to do.

26 The ſeven good kine are ſeven years; and the ſeven good ears are ſeven years: the dream is one.

27 And the ſeven thin and ill-favoured kine that came up after them, are ſeven years; and the ſeven empty ears blaſted with the eaſt wind, ſhall be [i] ſeven years of famine.

i 2 Kings 8. 1.

28 This is the thing which I have ſpoken unto Pharaoh: What God is about to do, he ſheweth unto Pharaoh.

29 Behold, there come ſeven years of great plenty, throughout all the land of Egypt.

30 And there ſhall ariſe after them ſeven years of famine, and all the plenty ſhall be forgotten in the land of Egypt: and the famine ſhall conſume the land.

31 And the plenty ſhall not be known in the land, by reaſon of that famine following: for it ſhall be very * grievous.

* Heb. heavy.

32 And for that the dream was doubled unto Pharaoh twice; it is becauſe the thing is ‡ eſtabliſhed by God, and God will ſhortly bring it to paſs.

‡ Or, prepared of God.

33 Now therefore let Pharaoh look out a man diſcreet and wiſe, and ſet him over the land of Egypt.

34 Let Pharaoh do this, and let him appoint * officers over the land, and take up the fifth part of the land of Egypt in the ſeven plenteous years.

* Or, overſeers.

35 And let them gather all the food of thoſe good years that come, and lay up corn under the hand of Pharaoh, and let them keep food in the cities.

36 And that food ſhall be for ſtore to the land, againſt the ſeven years of famine, which ſhall

V. 16. Joſeph anſwered, It is not in me; God ſhall give Pharaoh an anſwer—I cannot do this by any power, virtue, or art of my own, for I am but a man, as your magicians are, but only by inſpiration from God. Thus he gives the honour from himſelf unto God, and leads Pharaoh to the knowledge of the true God. (John xv. 5. 1 Cor. xv. 10.) Give—It is my deſire that God would vouchſafe to Pharaoh a comfortable and happy anſwer.

V. 21. It could not be known that they had eaten them—As many times in famine men eat, but are not ſatisfied, becauſe God withdraws his bleſſing, by which alone it is that meat nouriſheth us.

V. 21. The dream is one—In its deſign and ſignification.

V. 30. All the plenty ſhall be forgotten—There ſhall be no relicks of it to keep it in men's minds, which will be ſo taken up with the contemplation of their preſent miſery and future danger, that they will have neither heart nor leiſure to reflect upon their former plenty, the remembrance whereof will but aggravate the preſent calamity.

V. 34. Let Pharaoh take—Not by force, but by purchaſe, at the common price.

shall be in the land of Egypt; that the land ‡ perish not through the famine.

‡ Heb. be not cut off.

37 ¶ And the thing was good in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of all his servants.

38 And Pharaoh said unto his servants, Can we find such a one as this is, a man [g] in whom the spirit of God is?

[g] Num. 27. 18. Dan. 5. 11.

39 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Forasmuch as God hath shewed thee all this, there is none so discreet and wise as thou art.

40 [h] Thou shalt be over my house, and according unto thy word shall all my people * be ruled: only in the throne will I be greater than thou.

[h] Psa. 105. 21. Acts 7. 10.

* Heb. be armed, or kiss.

41 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, See, I have set thee over all the land of Egypt.

42 And Pharaoh [i] took off his ring from his hand, and put it upon Joseph's hand, and arrayed him in vestures of † fine linen, [k] and put a gold chain about his neck.

[i] Esther 3. 10. and 8. 2, 8.

† Or, silk.

[k] Dan. 5. 7, 29.

43 And he made him to ride in the second chariot which he had; [l] and they cried before him, ‡ § Bow the knee: and he made him ruler over all the land of Egypt.

[l] Esther 6. 9.

‡ Or, Tender father, Chap. 45. 8.

§ Heb. Abrech.

44 And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, I am Pharaoh, and without thee shall no man lift up his hand or foot in all the land of Egypt.

45 And Pharaoh called Joseph's name Zaphnath-paaneah; and he gave him to wife Asenath the daughter of Poti-pherah * priest of On: and Joseph went out over all the land of Egypt.

* Or, prince.

cir. 1715. 46 ¶ And Joseph was thirty years old when he stood before Pharaoh king of Egypt; and Joseph went out from the presence of Pharaoh, and went throughout all the land of Egypt.

47 And in the seven plenteous years the earth brought forth by handfuls.

48 And he gathered up all the food of the seven years, which were in the land of Egypt, and laid up the food in the cities: the food of the field which was round about every city, laid he up in the same.

Before Christ cir. 1715.

49 And Joseph gathered corn as the sand of the sea, very much, until he left numbering: for it was without number.

50 [m] And unto Joseph were born two sons, before the years of famine came: which Asenath, the daughter of Poti-pherah † priest of On, bare unto him.

[m] Chap. 46. 20. & 48. 5.

† Or, prince, 2 Sam. 8. 18.

51 And Joseph called the name of the firstborn ‡ Manasseh: for God, said he, hath made me forget all my toil, and all my father's house.

cir. 1712.

‡ That is, forgetting.

cir. 1711.

52 And the name of the second called he ‖ Ephraim: for God hath caused me to be fruitful in the land of my affliction.

‖ That is, fruitful.

53 ¶ And the seven years of plenteousness that was in the land of Egypt, were ended.

1708.

54 [n] And the seven years of dearth began to come, according as Joseph had said: and the dearth was in all lands; but in all the land of Egypt there was bread.

[n] Psa. 105. 16.

55 And when all the land of Egypt was famished, the people cried to Pharaoh for bread: and Pharaoh said unto all the Egyptians, Go unto Joseph; what he saith to you, do.

56 And the famine was over all the face of the earth: And Joseph opened * all the store-houses, and sold unto the Egyptians; and the famine waxed sore in the land of Egypt.

* Heb. all wherein was.

57 [o] And all countries came into Egypt to Joseph for to buy corn; because that the famine was so sore in all lands.

[o] Deut. 2. 25.

CHAP.

V. 38. A man in whom the spirit of God is—One whom God hath endowed with such admirable knowledge and wisdom.

V. 39. God hath shewed thee all this—Hath given thee this extraordinary gift of foreseeing and foretelling things to come, and of giving such advice for the future.

V. 40. According unto thy word shall all my people be ruled—Direction and command, Heb. mouth, which is oft put for command, as Exod xvii. 1. and xxxviii. 21. Numb. iii. 16. 39, &c. Or, he fed; they shall receive their provisions from thy hand, as inferiors used to do upon their address to, or conference with, great persons. See Job xxxi. 27. Hosea xiii. 2. But it was frivolous for Joseph to command them to do that, which, by the custom of the place, they were obliged and wont to do. Some render the words thus, and that agreeable to the Hebrew, at thy mouth shall the people kiss. Which may be understood either properly, as inferiors did sometimes kiss their superiors in token of their homage. They shall receive all thy commands with reverence and submission. Only in the throne will I be greater than thou—In power and dignity.

V. 42. Pharaoh took off his ring, and put it upon Joseph's hand—Which was a token of highest dignity, and an instrument of greatest power, by which he had authority to make and sign any decree in the king's name.

V. 44. Without thee shall no man lift up his hand—No man shall do any thing in the public affairs of the kingdom, without thy commission or licence.

V. 45. Zaphnath-paaneah—The revealer of secrets. Priest of On—A famous city of Egypt. Joseph went out over all the land—Upon his employment, and to execute the king's command, and his own counsel.

V. 46. Joseph was thirty years old—Which is noted to teach us, that Joseph's short affliction was recompensed with long prosperity; and that Joseph's excellent wisdom did not proceed from long experience, but from the singular gift of God. When he stood before Pharaoh—As his chief minister.

V. 47. The earth brought forth by handfuls—In great plenty.

V. 51. Manasseh: for God hath made me forget—Hath expelled all sorrowful remembrance of it, by my present comfort and glory.

CHAP.

CHAP. XLII.

Before Christ 1707.

NOW when [a] Jacob saw that there was corn in Egypt, Jacob said unto his sons, Why do ye look one upon another?

[a] Acts 7. 12.

2 And he said, Behold, I have heard that there is corn in Egypt: get you down thither, and buy for us from thence; that we may [b] live, and not die.

[b] Chap. 43. 8. Psal. 118. 17. Isa. 38. 1.

3 ¶ And Joseph's ten brethren went down to buy corn in Egypt.

4 But Benjamin, Joseph's brother, Jacob sent not with his brethren: for he said, Lest peradventure mischief befal him.

5 And the sons of Israel came to buy corn among those that came: for the famine was in the land of Canaan.

6 And Joseph was the governor over the land, and he it was that sold to all the people of the land: and Joseph's brethren came, and [c] bowed down themselves before him, with their faces to the earth.

[c] Chap. 37. 7.

7 And Joseph saw his brethren, and he knew them, but made himself strange unto them, and spake * roughly unto them; and he said unto them, Whence come ye? And they said, From the land of Canaan to buy food.

* Heb. hard things with them.

8 And Joseph knew his brethren, but they knew not him.

9 And Joseph [d] remembered the dreams which he dreamed of them, and said unto them, Ye are spies; to see the nakedness of the land you are come.

Before Christ 1707.

[d] Chap. 37. 5.

10 And they said unto him, Nay, my Lord, but to buy food are thy servants come.

11 We are all one man's sons: we are true men, thy servants are no spies.

12 And he said unto them, Nay, but to see the nakedness of the land you are come.

13 And they said, Thy servants are twelve brethren, the sons of one man in the land of Canaan; and behold, the youngest is this day with our father, and one [e] is not.

[e] Lam. 5. 7. See Chap. 44. 20.

14 And Joseph said unto them, That is it that I spake unto you, saying, Ye are spies.

15 Hereby ye shall be proved: [i] by the life of Pharaoh ye shall not go forth hence, except your youngest brother come hither.

[i] See 1 Sam. 1. 26. & 17. 55.

16 Send one of you, and let him fetch your brother, and ye shall be † kept in prison, that your words may be proved, whether there be any truth in you: or else by the life of Pharaoh surely ye are spies.

† Heb. bound.

17 And he ‡ put them altogether into ward three days.

‡ Heb. gathered.

18 And Joseph said unto them the third day, This do, and live: [g] for I fear God.

[g] Neh. 5. 15.

19 If

CHAP. XLII.

V. 1. Jacob saw—Was informed of there being corn in that country.

V. 6. Joseph's brethren came, and bowed down themselves before him—Thus fulfilling Joseph's dream.

V. 7. Joseph spake roughly unto them—To bring their sin to remembrance; to get the knowledge of the true state of his father and family; and to further the following design, and make way for his and their greater happiness.

V. 8. His brethren knew him not—It being now about twenty years since they saw him, and his Egyptian language, habit, and carriage, together with the dignity of his place, were the farthest from affording them any reason for believing, that he who was led away from them for a slave, could be the same person that appeared before them.

V. 9. Ye are spies—This he saith, that he might search out the truth of their affairs. To see the nakedness of the land you are come—The weak parts of it, and where it may be best assaulted or surprised.

V. 11. We are true men—Who honestly and truly mean what we pretend, and have no other design in our coming hither.

V. 13. One is not—Is dead, as that phrase signifies: They concluded he was dead, because for twenty years they had heard nothing of him.

V. 14. That is it that I spake unto you, saying, ye are spies—This justifies my accusation; for it is not probable, that one man should have so many sons, all grown up and living together in one family, and that he should send them all on such a journey.

V. 15. By the life—As sure as Pharaoh lives. It seems to be the form of an oath in use among the Egyptians, as afterwards the Romans used to swear by the name and life of their emperors. And it is not strange that Joseph was carried away by the stream of the general practice of the Court, especially when the law of God was not yet delivered concerning the appropriation of oaths unto God.

V. 18. This DO and live—What shall I DO that I may live in the favour of God? "Thou shalt love the LORD thy God, with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbour (every man) as thyself." (Luke x. 25, &c.) But what course shall I take, that I may obtain the possession of these principles of love to God, and all mankind? Hear how Joseph lived, who did possess what these commands of God require—"I FEAR GOD" was his declaration, at the time he was first minister to the king of Egypt. This declaration includes in it a knowledge of the will of God as a rule of conduct in all things; it also includes a knowledge of the danger of offending against the will or law of God, to whom he owed all the duties of honour, praise, prayer, and devotion, as his Creator and Redeemer, the moral governor of the world, and the final judge of all men; and included in this sense of his duty to God, that which he owed to all the different relations by which he stood connected with his fellow-creatures; and knowing this life to be a state of trial and probation for an happy immortality, rising from the mercy and acceptance of God through that Redeemer, which his family had been distinguished from all the world, by the promises of God to Abraham, that he should descend from him; and seeing the richness of God's mercy, in providing for his personal, his present, and eternal welfare, he feared lest he should in any thing offend God, and forfeit all the blessings temporal, spiritual, and eternal, which solely depended on the favour of God, whose goodness had made him great and honourable among men, and who had presented to his view, prospects suited to all the capacities of his mind, glory, honour, immortality, eternal life: (Rom. ii. 7.) He also feared to offend against that GOODNESS which had done such great things for him already, in preserving him from the evils to which he had been exposed, and

Before Christ 1707.

19 If ye be true men, let one of your brethren be bound in the houſe of your priſon: go ye, carry corn for the famine of your houſes.

h Chap. 43. 5. and 44. 23.

20 But h bring your youngeſt brother unto me; ſo ſhall your words be verified, and ye ſhall not die. And they did ſo.

21 ¶ And they ſaid one to another, We are verily guilty concerning our brother, in that we ſaw the anguiſh of his ſoul, when he beſought us; and we would not hear: therefore is this diſtreſs come upon us.

22 And Reuben anſwered them, ſaying, i Spake I not unto you, ſaying, Do not ſin againſt the child; and ye would not hear? therefore behold alſo, his blood is required.

Before Christ 1707.

i Chap. 37. 21.

23 And they knew not that Joſeph underſtood them; for * he ſpake unto them by an interpreter.

* Heb. an interpreter was between them.

24 And he turned himſelf about from them, and wept; and returned to them again, and communed with them, and took from them Simeon, and bound him before their eyes.

25 ¶ Then

in ſupporting him under his ſufferings, and which GOODNESS had yet prepared for him ſuch bleſſings for greatneſs and felicity, as the heart of man could not conceive (1 Cor. ii. 9.); and with thoſe motives for fearing to offend God, he had thoſe which neceſſarily ariſe from a conſideration of God, as the great lawgiver to all his rational creatures; ſeeing in him the bleſſed GOD, a Being of infinite juſtice, whoſe ſacred precepts and injunctions were neither to be neglected or violated, without leaving all who do ſo, expoſed to that miſery, which muſt be the conſequence of crimes againſt goodneſs and juſtice itſelf, unleſs avoided by true repentance, and turning unto God, as their only Mediator and Redeemer. Such in part are the motives for fearing God, and where this principle of FEAR of God is truly received into the human mind from the Spirit of God, it is more powerful than the fear of death, it is more powerful than the inducements of pleaſure, gain, or honour; theſe will be declined, and death will be preferred to whatever is but thought to be an offence againſt God: (Dan. iii. 18.) And whoever, with this great and excellent man, enters upon a life in the fear of God, taking up the knowledge of his holy will on good grounds for themſelves, and remaining ſtedfaſt in this fear, whatever may have been their paſt conduct, they have His word who cannot lie: That great is the goodneſs which is laid up for them that fear him (Pſal. xxxi. 19.); God ſhall give the reward of redeeming love to them that fear him, (Rev. xi. 18.) they ſhall go on from grace to grace, till they love Him who died for them, with all the powers of their ſouls, and be filled with heavenly charity to all their fellow-creatures. 1 Cor. xiii.

V. 13. Let one of your brethren be bound in your priſon—In which you are ſtill to be, if you accept not this condition.

V. 20. They did ſo—Reſolved and promiſed to do ſo. Thoſe things are often ſaid to be done in Scripture which were ſincerely reſolved upon.

V. 21. We are verily guilty—This is the juſt puniſhment of that great wickedneſs, which, though we could cover from men, yet we now ſee and feel was known to God, who is now reckoning with us for it. Thus Divine vengeance overtakes them, and conſcience tortures them for a ſin committed above twenty years before, and their affliction brings them to repentance. We would not hear, therefore is this diſtreſs come upon us—How many diſtreſſes do men bring upon themſelves, as the due return for their refuſing to hear when others cry unto them in their diſtreſs: Turn not away thy face from a poor man, from the afflicted when they cry unto thee, and the Father of Mercies will not turn away his favour from thee, when thou thyſelf art diſtreſſed: As a man ſoweth ſo ſhall he reap: Let a man be guilty of cruelty, injuſtice, deceit, oppreſſion, or any other crime, and the conſequences of it will come upon him, in ways from which he can no more relieve himſelf, than thoſe men could, who were guilty of this inſtance of cruelty to their brother; and this is but one of many examples given us in the Scriptures, to ſhew, from real events, the truth of God's declarations to all mankind, "That he will cauſe every man to find according to his ways (Job xxxiv. 11.): That he renders to every man according to his own works (Pſal. lxii. 12): That his eyes are upon all the ways of the ſons of men, to give every one according to his ways, and according to the fruit of his doings (Jer. xxxii. 19.): That he will judge every one after his ways (Ezek. xxxiii. 20.): The Son of Man (CHRIST JESUS), at his ſecond coming, ſhall reward every man according to his works (Matth. xvi. 27.): We muſt all appear before the judgment-ſeat of Chriſt; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad (2 Cor. v. 10.): God, without reſpect of perſons, judgeth according to every man's work (1 Pet. i. 17.): And behold, I come quickly, ſaith the Lord, and my reward is with me, to give every man, according as his work ſhall be (Rev. xxii. 12.): God himſelf hath united every man's miſery with every man's ſin; and it is one of the great and gracious deſigns of God in the Scriptures, to inform us, that the union of ſin and miſery is as certain as the nature of things; and if we have not yet felt the effects of any evil we have committed againſt God, his holy nature and will, our fellow-creatures or ourſelves, and ſo conclude the conſequences of our ſin will not come upon us; or if we think ourſelves too well ſecured againſt all adverſities to have any cauſe to fear; we are only judging as mortals who know not what ſhall be to-morrow. God declares the contrary of his taking any pleaſure in the miſery of men; his revealed will is to inform us of the danger of all ſin, in the plaineſt words; and then to preſent us with the example of other men, who have brought miſery upon themſelves by their ſins, that we may learn wiſdom by their experience, and ſo avoid God's diſpleaſure, and our own ſorrow, by obeying his grace and avoiding all ſin; but if, after all, we will not fear to offend God, then it is left to our own actual experience, to prove the truth of what God hath declared and ſhewn us—that he has provided that diſtreſs, ſooner or later, ſhall be bound to all ſin by bands, which all the art of men ſhall not be able to untie, nor all the powers of earth and hell be able to break: Temporal or eternal miſery can be cut off and prevented from coming upon the ſinner by none but God himſelf, the only Redeemer of ſinful men, from the conſequences due to every ſin; and what God requires on our part, is to accept of His offered grace, to enable us to break off from our ſins by true repentance, and ſo be prepared to receive that grace of faith which bringeth ſalvation from ſin: And then all things ſhall be made to work together for our good, as the ſufferings of Jacob's ſons ſoon did, after they confeſſed their ſin, in which their ſorrow and true repentance is included.

V. 22. Spake I not unto you, ſaying, Do not ſin—How is the faithfulneſs of God vindicated, by thus cauſing men to be informed before they commit crimes, that they are ſuch; will it not appear thus in the great day? Will not that faithful voice then ſay, that all heaven may hear, "Spake I not unto you, ſaying, Do not ſin," and you would not hear, therefore will that miſery come upon them who die in their ſins, and in their blood, which is included in that ſentence, Depart from me, ye curſed. (Matth. xxv. 41.)

V. 23. Joſeph

Before Christ 1707.

25 ¶ Then Joseph commanded to fill their sacks with corn, and to restore every man's money into his sack, and to give them provision for the way: and thus did he unto them.

26 And they laded their asses with the corn, and departed thence.

k See Chap. 43. 21.

27 And as k one of them opened his sack to give his ass provender in the inn, he espied his money: for behold it was in his sack's mouth.

28 And he said unto his brethren, My money is restored; and lo, it is even in my sack; and their heart * failed them, and they were afraid, saying one to another, What is this that God hath done unto us?

* Heb. went forth.

29 ¶ And they came unto Jacob their father, unto the land of Canaan, and told him all that befel unto them, saying,

30 The man who is the lord of the land, spake † roughly to us, and took us for spies of the country.

† Heb. with us hard things.

31 And we said unto him, We are true men; we are no spies.

32 We be twelve brethren, sons of our father: one is not, and the youngest is this day with our father in the land of Canaan.

Before Christ 1707.

33 And the man the lord of the country said unto us, Hereby shall I know that ye are true men; leave one of your brethren here with me, and take food for the famine of your households, and be gone.

34 And bring your youngest brother unto me: then shall I know that you are no spies, but that you are true men: so will I deliver you your brother, and ye shall traffick in the land.

35 ¶ And it came to pass as they emptied their sacks, that behold, every man's bundle of money was in his sack: and when both they and their father saw the bundles of money, they were afraid.

36 And Jacob their father said unto them, Me have ye bereaved of my children: Joseph is not, and Simeon is not, and ye will take Benjamin away: all these things are against me.

37 And

V. 23, 24. Joseph wept—Tears of affection and compassion to his brethren, now in great distress and anguish; and of joy to see the happy success of his design in bringing them to the sight of their sins. Took Simeon, and bound him—Whom he chooseth to punish, because next to Reuben, he was the eldest, and because he was the most fierce against Joseph, when Reuben was for milder counsels. Before their eyes—That it might make deeper impression upon their hearts, and make their repentance more effectual.

V. 28. What is this that God hath done unto us—Minds, awakened to a sense of sin, see how they have offended God, and conclude with Jacob's sons, that God is against them in every thing that befals them; and the great consolation of those that are freely justified by the blood of Jesus, (Heb. ix. 22.) is in seeing, if God their Saviour be for them, nothing but sin can separate them from his love, who hath all things in his power. (Rom. viii. 31.)

V. 35. They were afraid—Their fear returned upon them with more violence.

V. 36. All things are against me—They are all against my peace and the welfare of my family: So it appeared to Jacob, but how did the event contradict what Jacob now thought? it might reasonably have been expected that Jacob, before this time, would have been well convinced, that the highest happiness in this life, was in a state of the most entire resignation to the will of God, and dependance on the grace and providence of God; and that he would have well understood, as faith and trust in the goodness of God were the very means of human happiness, that it must be a part of God's gracious designs in the government of all things by his providence, to afford us constant occasion for the exercise of that reliance on his Almighty care and compassion, that by those frequent exercises of our confidence in the love of God, our Redeemer, our souls may be established as upon a rock, that when the hour comes, which shall call us away from all the objects of our regard and care, and bring us to the entrance of the eternal world, we may have learned neither to doubt nor fear; but being thoroughly convinced, from the proofs of love and goodness which God our Saviour hath given the world, and which we for ourselves have seen and known, we may resign ourselves and all that are dear to us as into the hands of a faithful Creator and Redeemer, who, in his nature, can never leave nor forsake them that put their trust in him (Heb. xiii. 5.) It has already appeared in Jacob's life, what cause he had to praise God for the trials of his faith; and one may be ready to wonder, that an aged worshipper of God, who had received so many blessings, by the very means of those things which at one time appeared as much against him as the present, that he should give way to such a thought, and conclude from appearances, as he did, that those things were against him which had now taken place, and by which complaint it can only be understood, that he believed he could only reap sorrow and distress from them. This conclusion was so contrary to the truth, and so contrary to Jacob's experience, that it ought never to be forgot by any who read it, that no experience of God's past goodness is sufficient to support us under present trials of our faith; and that no person, at no time, can be preserved from giving way to complaints, as Jacob did, against the providence of God, but by that grace of God, which only enables us to believe in his goodness against all appearances; and it is in the moment of these unfavourable appearances, that we are to make use of that advice—Take the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked (Eph. vi. 16.); remembering in all the trials of faith, which are of the highest value to us (1 Pet. i. 6.), that Satan and his angels, the spiritual opposers of God, and the enemies of the peace of all men, are intently employed in turning every such trial into an occasion of distrusting God, and of murmuring against Him, making use of all that evil which Satan, by sin, brought into the world, as an argument against God, and his government; and when we are so deceived, this murmuring and complaining at what befals us, may well be called the fiery darts of the wicked; for every such thought which we consent to, is not the language of heaven, but of hell; for what is a murmur less than saying, This is what I do not deserve? Supposing you were betrayed by a pretended friend, who you had long and greatly served, and by him delivered into the hands of wicked men, to be nailed to a tree, till you died upon it; say, whether you, or Christ Jesus the Lord, deserved this most? of him it was truly said, "He hath done

Before Christ 1707.

37 And Reuben ſpake unto his father, ſaying, Slay my two ſons, if I bring him not to thee: deliver him into my hand, and I will bring him to thee again.

38 And he ſaid, My ſon ſhall not go down with you: for his brother is dead, and he is left alone; [l] if miſchief befal him by the way in the which ye go, then ſhall ye [m] bring down my grey hairs with ſorrow to the grave.

[l] Chap. 44. 23.

[m] Chap. 37. 35. & 44. 31.

CHAP. XLIII.

AND the famine was ſore in the land.

2 And it came to paſs when they had eaten up the corn which they had brought out of Egypt, their father ſaid unto them, Go again, buy us a little food.

3 And Judah ſpake unto him, ſaying, The man ‡ did ſolemnly proteſt unto us, ſaying, Ye ſhall not ſee my face, except your [a] brother be with you.

‡ Heb. ſolemnly proteſting proteſted.

[a] Chap. 42. 20. & 44. 23.

4 If thou wilt ſend our brother with us, we will go down and buy thee food.

Before Christ 1707.

5 But if thou wilt not ſend him, we will not go down: for the man ſaid unto us, Ye ſhall not ſee my face, except your brother be with you.

6 And Iſrael ſaid, Wherefore dealt ye ſo ill with me, as to tell the man whether ye had yet a brother?

7 And they ſaid, The man † aſked us ſtraightly of our ſtate, and of our kindred, ſaying, Is your father yet alive? have ye another brother? and we told him according to the ‡ tenor of theſe words: § Could we certainly know that he would ſay, Bring your brother down?

† Heb. asking asked us.

‡ Heb. mouth.

§ Heb. Knowing could we know.

8 And Judah ſaid unto Iſrael his father, Send the lad with me, and we will ariſe and go;

nothing amiſs;" but can you ſay ſo of yourſelf? He ſuffered what every one for his own ſin deſerves from the juſtice of God; and if He, by his providence, lays upon us only a ſmall part of what we deſerve, ſhall we think ourſelves hardly uſed, without being guilty of conſidering ourſelves in that moſt unjuſt and unbecoming light in the ſight of God—that is, of thinking He lays upon us more than is right? but, if I am ill uſed by a friend, or unjuſtly or cruelly treated by any, am I to look upon this as from providence and ſubmit to it? What did He do, who ſaid "Not what I will, but what Thou wilt" (Mark xiv. 36.); God is the author of no man's unkindneſs or wickedneſs, but it is a part of his mercies ſtrange work to make theſe, and every ſuffering thoſe meet with that fear him, work together for their good; and what He requires of us on all occaſions, is not to allow ourſelves to be deceived by the devil and his angels, the adverſaries of our peace, (1 Pet. v. 8.) and ſay or think this, or theſe things are againſt me; but in the moment of the ſuffering, the trial, or the temptation, to humble ourſelves under the mighty power of God, (that in his own way, which is always by the ſubmiſſion of our minds and ſpirits to his will) he may exalt us (1 Pet. v. 6.): and when the deceivers of ſouls (Eph. vi. 11.) are making uſe of every adverſe appearance, as the ſubject-matter of their evil ſuggeſtions, to lead us to diſtruſt his grace, or providence, and to perſuade us that we ſhall want inward ſupport or outward bleſſings: Theſe evil ſuggeſtions and reaſonings are ever to be anſwered according to the great example (Matth. iv. 4. &c.), God hath ſaid, It is written, That men are to live by faith in Jeſus Chriſt, who died for them, and that the God of all grace and providence, who ſpared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, will with Him alſo freely give us all things (Rom. viii. 32.), and thus turning every temptation to diſtruſt the goodneſs of God, into an occaſion of repeating any of his gracious declarations and promiſes of protection and ſupport, we ſhall then know more and more, that God dealeth with us as with ſons (Heb. xii. 7.), and that we may caſt our care upon Him, who, with far more than the kindeſt natural parents care, careth for us (1 Pet. v. 7.); and continuing to watch over ourſelves againſt all appearance of evil, and, with diligence, doing his will, let things appear as they may, let ſatan and his angels ſuggeſt what they will, and let them who know not God, or his gracious ways, blame, pity, or mourn over us as they will, the event of Jacob's miſtaken diſtreſs warrants us never once to follow his example, in ſaying all theſe things are againſt me, but rather to imitate him, who afterwards lived and ſaid—although the fig-tree ſhall not bloſſom, neither ſhall fruit be in the vines, the labour of the olive ſhall fail, and the fields ſhall yield no meat, the flock ſhall be cut off from the fold, and there ſhall be no herd in the ſtalls: Yet I will rejoice in the LORD, I will joy in the God of my ſalvation (Hab. iii. 17, 18.): For God meeteth him that rejoiceth and worketh righteouſneſs; (Iſa. lxiv. 5.) and our fathers truſted in Him, and were not confounded (Pſal. xxii. 5.), and he that believeth on him ſhall never be confounded nor aſhamed (1 Pet. ii. 6. Iſa. xlv. 17.). Thus believing, thus living, the ſoul of man goes on from grace to grace, from one degree of love to God, and cheerful reſignation and obedience to his will to another; and inſtead of looking forward to the going down in ſorrow to the grave, looking up to a throne of grace, where Jeſus our friend and Saviour ever liveth, to make interceſſion for all that do but look unto him (Heb. vii. 25. Iſa. xlv. 22.), and who hath purchaſed and promiſed to beſtow every neceſſary earthly bleſſing, and to give both grace and glory; and to with-hold no good thing from them that walk uprightly. "O LORD of Hoſts, bleſſed is the man that truſteth in thee." (Pſal. lxxxiv. 11, 12.)

V. 37. Slay my two ſons, if I bring him not to thee—Perhaps this was only intended as the ſtrongeſt manner in which he could expreſs himſelf: If his meaning was what the words literally imply, it was a raſh propoſal, and beyond all rules of duty, no one having any right to diſpoſe of the life of another, or of his own; this only belongs to God, and to lawful authority eſtabliſhed under his juſt providence, to reſtrain the ſinful minds of men from violent outrages, by the fear of forfeiting their lives for their own crimes.

CHAP. XLIII.

V. 2. Go buy us a little food—He ſaith, a little, to ſhew, that he took no thought but only for their neceſſity, for which a little would ſuffice.

V. 3. The man did proteſt, Ye ſhall not ſee my face—Ye ſhall not be admitted into my preſence, nor to the purchaſing of any corn here, except your brother be with you.

V. 5. We will not go down—Becauſe we ſhall both loſe the end of our journey, and run the utmoſt hazard of all our lives: The neceſſity of Joſeph's ſtrictneſs and ſeverity now appeared; had he been leſs ſo, they might have been induced to go down without their brother, contrary to Joſeph's wiſe and kind deſign.

V. 7. We told him according to the tenor of theſe words—We gave anſwers ſuitable to his queſtions, or ſuch as his words required.

V. 8. Judah ſaid, Send the lad with me—He calls him lad, becauſe he was the youngeſt of all, though he was now thirty years old.

V. 11. Carry

Before Christ 1707.

go; that we may live and not die, both we, and thou, and also our little ones.

9 I will be surety for him; of my hand
b Chap. 44. 32. shalt thou require him: [b] If I bring him not unto thee, and set him before thee, then let me bear the blame for ever.

10 For except we had lingered, surely now
‖ Or, twice by this. we had returned ‖ this second time.

11 And their father Israel said unto them, If it must be so now, do this; take of the best fruits in the land in your vessels, and carry down the man a present, a little balm, and a little honey, spices, and myrrh, nuts, and almonds.

12 And take double money in your hand: and the money that was brought again in the mouth of your sacks, carry it again in your hand; peradventure it was an oversight.

13 Take also your brother, and arise, go again unto the man.

14 And God Almighty give you mercy
e Esther 4. 16. * Or, and I, as I have been, &c. before the man, that he may send away your other brother, and Benjamin: [c] * If I be bereaved of my children, I am bereaved.

15 ¶ And the men took that present, and they took double money in their hand, and Benjamin; and rose up, and went down to Egypt, and stood before Joseph.

16 And when Joseph saw Benjamin with † Heb. I kill a killing. ‡ Heb. eat. them, he said to the ruler of his house, Bring these men home, and † slay, and make ready: for these men shall ‡ dine with me at noon.

17 And the man did as Joseph bade: and the man brought the men into Joseph's house.

18 And the men were afraid, because they were brought into Joseph's house, and they said, Because of the money, that was returned in our sacks at the first time, are § Heb. roll himself upon us. we brought in; that he may § seek occasion against us, and fall upon us, and take us for bond-men, and our asses.

19 And they came near to the steward of Joseph's house, and they communed with him at the door of the house,

Before Christ 1707.

20 And said, O sir, ‡ ‖ we came indeed
d Chap. 42. 3. ‡ Heb. coming down, we came down. e Chap. 43. 27, 28. down at the first time to buy food.

21 And [e] it came to pass when we came to the inn, that we opened our sacks, and behold every man's money was in the mouth of his sack, our money in full weight: and we have brought it again in our hand.

22 And other money have we brought down in our hands to buy food: we cannot tell who put our money in our sacks.

23 And he said, Peace be to you, fear not: your God, and the God of your father, hath given you treasure in your sacks: I had your money *. And he brought Simeon out unto
* Heb. your money came to me. them.

24 And the man brought the men into Joseph's house, and [i] gave them water, and i Chap. 18. 4. and 24. 32. they washed their feet, and he gave their asses provender.

25 And they made ready the present against Joseph came at noon: for they heard that they should eat bread there.

26 ¶ And when Joseph came home, they brought him the present which was in their hand into the house, and [g] bowed themselves g Chap. 37. 7. 10. to him to the earth.

27 And he asked them of their † welfare, † Heb. peace. § Heb. Is there peace to your father? and said, ‡ Is your father well, the old man [h] of whom ye spake? Is he yet alive?

28 And they answered, Thy servant our h Chap. 42. 11, 13. father is in good health, he is yet alive: and they bowed down their heads, and made obeisance.

29 And he lift up his eyes, and saw his brother Benjamin, his mother's son, and said, Is this your younger brother, [i] of whom ye i Chap. 42. 13. spake unto me? And he said, God be gracious unto thee, my son. 30 And

V. 11. Carry down a present, a little balm, and a little honey—The substance of a diligent man is precious. Prov. xii. 27.

V. 12. Take the money: carry it again—For it is their money, not ours, and therefore must be restored. Peradventure it was an oversight—Either in you, or in the receiver of your money.

V. 14. If I be bereaved of my children, I am bereaved—An expression, whereby he now submits himself and children to God's will and providence, whatever the issue shall be. As if he had said, I have been already bereaved of some of my dearest children, so I shall be bereaved of the rest, and I shall be left solitary; and if this be my portion, God's will be done.

V. 16. At noon—The usual time for the more solemn meal in the East countries, as the evening was the time, and the supper the great meal among the Romans.

V. 18. The men were afraid—But how contrary were their fears, like those of their father's, to the truth, and to all real foundation? But that roughness of speech, and apparent severity of conduct, which Joseph had made use of, gave occasion to these uneasy apprehensions; and whoever would not wish to be an object of dread, or even hatred, especially those that possess any power or authority over others, will find it necessary to use roughness or sharpness of speech, or severity of conduct, with great caution. Blessed are the MEEK, they shall inherit the earth—shall in themselves possess the greatest blessings earthly things can give; and it shall be the sure return of providence to their mild and gentle carriage to others, that they shall inherit the favour of all about them, so necessary to their enjoying peace and quietness in themselves among their fellow-creatures. Take us for bond-men—The punishment for thieves.

V. 23. Peace be to you, fear not—Joseph had doubtless instructed him, as well as others of his family, in the true religion, the language of which this is, speaking to all, who would not carelessly or wilfully do wrong, peace the contrary of fear.

V. 28. Thy servant our father is yet alive: and they bowed—Made obeisance to him, as was foretold.

V. 32. Not

Before Christ 1707.

30 And Joseph made haste; for his bowels did yern upon his brother: and he sought where to weep, and he entered into his chamber, and wept there.

31 And he washed his face, and went out, and refrained himself, and said, Set on bread.

32 And they set on for him by himself, and for them by themselves, and for the Egyptians, which did eat with him, by themselves: because the Egyptians might not eat bread with the Hebrews, for that is [b] an abomination unto the Egyptians.

[b] Chap. 46. 34. Exod. 8. 26.

33 And they sat before him, the firstborn according to his birthright, and the youngest according to his youth: and the men marvelled one at another.

34 And he took and sent messes unto them, from before him: but Benjamin's mess was five times so much as any of theirs. And they drank, and [§] were merry with him.

[§] Heb. drank largely. See Hag. 1. 6. John 2. 10.

CHAP. XLIV.

AND he commanded [*] the steward of his house, saying, Fill the men's sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put every man's money in his sack's mouth.

[*] Heb. him that was over his house.

2 And put my cup, the silver cup, in the sack's mouth of the youngest, and his corn-money; and he did according to the word that Joseph had spoken.

3 As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away, they and their asses.

4 And when they were gone out of the city, and not yet far off, Joseph said unto his steward, Up, follow after the men; and when thou dost overtake them, say unto them, Wherefore have ye rewarded evil for good? Before Christ 1707.

5 Is not this it, in which my lord drinketh? and whereby indeed he [†] divineth? ye have done evil in so doing.

[†] Or, maketh trial.

6 ¶ And he overtook them, and he spake unto them these same words.

7 And they said unto him, Wherefore saith my lord these words? God forbid that thy servants should do according to this thing.

8 Behold, the money which we found in our sacks mouths, we brought again unto thee out of the land of Canaan: how then should we steal out of thy lord's house silver or gold?

9 With whom soever of thy servants it be found, both [a] let him die, and we also will be my lord's bond-men.

[a] Chap. 31. 32.

10 And he said, Now also let it be according to your words: he with whom it is found shall be my servant; and ye shall be blameless.

11 Then they speedily took down every man his sack to the ground, and opened every man his sack.

12 And he searched, and began at the eldest, and left at the youngest: and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack.

13 Then they rent their clothes, and laded every man his ass, and returned to the city.

14 ¶ And Judah and his brethren came to Joseph's house (for he was yet there) and they fell before him on the ground.

15 And

V. 32. Not so much from their disdain of other people, as from their idolatry. They worshipped the creatures which the Hebrews and others commonly eat.

V. 33. They sat before him, the first-born according to his birthright—The elder took place of the younger, who, by that order, were taught what veneration they owe to the aged; and how unbecoming and sinful it is in young persons, to despise those whom they should reverence. The men marvelled—At the manner in which they were placed, and at the honour which Joseph did them; the reason whereof they could not conceive.

V. 34. Benjamin's mess was five times so much as any of theirs—To observe whether this would raise that envy in them towards him, which was the occasion of their malicious enterprise against himself, that he might accordingly provide for his security. Were merry—Rejoiced.

CHAP. XLIV.

V. 2. In the sack's mouth of the youngest—With design to discover their intentions and affections towards Benjamin, whether they did envy him, and would desert him in his danger, as they did Joseph; or would cleave to him, that hence he might take his measures how to deal with him and them.

V. 8. The money we found, we brought again unto thee—It is not probable that we, who restored that which was in our power to keep and to conceal without any danger, should steal that which was likely to be discovered with so much shame and hazard to ourselves.

V. 9. With whomsoever it be found, let him die—This over-daring offer proceeded from their being conscious of their own innocency, and did not suspect any artifice had been used.

V. 10. He with whom it is found shall be my servant, and ye shall be blameless—Thus he moderates the conditions which they proposed, exempting the innocent, and exchanging the deserved and offered death of the guilty into slavery.

V. 12. He began at the eldest—To take off all their suspicion. The cup was found in Benjamin's sack—How would they look at the cup, and at each other? Benjamin was now to be led away, as they thought, into slavery, by the consent they had given whilst they were assured of his innocence: Might they not now read, in the occasion of their present distress, the nature of their crime against their brother Joseph, who was forced away into slavery by their cruelty? They neither regarded the anguish of his soul, nor the sorrow their father would feel for the loss of him; but now their brother's slavery became the cause of their own distress.

V. 13. They rent their clothes, laded every man his ass, and returned to the city—Feeling some degree of that distress which their brother Joseph would feel, when he entered the same city, in consequence of their wicked conduct in selling him for a slave. God thus shewing us, that he brings upon men the return of their own crimes, in ways which they cannot relieve themselves from.

V. 16. God hath found out the iniquity of thy servants—Whether we are guilty of this fact or not, we are guilty of many other sins, for

Before Christ 1707.

15 And Joseph said unto them, What deed is this that ye have done? wot ye not, that such a man as I can certainly ‡ divine?

‡ Or, make trial.

16 And Judah said, What shall we say unto my Lord? what shall we speak? or how shall we clear ourselves? God hath found out the iniquity of thy servants: behold, we are my lord's servants, both we, and he also with whom the cup is found.

17 And he said, God forbid that I should do so: but the man in whose hand the cup is found, he shall be my servant; and as for you, get you up in peace unto your father.

Before Christ 1707.

18 ¶ Then Judah came near unto him, and said, Oh my lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's ears, and let not thine anger burn against thy servant: for thou art even as Pharaoh. 19 My for which God is now punishing us, to whose providence we therefore submit, and are ready to become thy bond-servants together.

V. 17. God forbid that I should do so—That I should include the guilty and the innocent in the same sentence.

V. 18. Then Judah came near unto him, and said—"O my "lord, let thy servant, I pray thee, speak a word in my lord's "ears, and let not thy anger burn against thy servant: for thou "art even as Pharaoh. My lord asked his servants, saying, Have "ye a father, or a brother? And we said unto my lord, We "have a father, an old man, and a child of his old age, a little "one; and his brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother, "and his father loveth him. And thou saidst unto thy servants, "Bring him down unto me, that I may set mine eyes upon him. "And we said unto my lord, The lad cannot leave his father: "for if he should leave his father, his father would die. And "thou saidst unto thy servants, Except your youngest brother "come down with you, you shall see my face no more. And it "came to pass, when we came up unto thy servant my father, we "told him the words of my lord. And our father said, Go again, "and buy us a little food. And we said, We cannot go down; "if our youngest brother be with us, then will we go down: for "we may not see the man's face, except our youngest brother "be with us. And thy servant my father said unto us, Ye know "that my wife bare me two sons. And the one went out from "me, and I said, Surely he is torn in pieces: and I saw him not "since. And if ye take this also from me, and mischief befal him, "ye shall bring down my grey hairs with sorrow to the grave. "Now therefore when I come to thy servant my father, and the "lad he not with us: (seeing that his life is bound up in the lad's "life) It shall come to pass, when he seeth that the lad is not "with us, that he will die: and thy servants shall bring down the "grey hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave. "For thy servant became surety for the lad unto my father, say-"ing, If I bring him not unto thee, then I shall bear the blame "to my father for ever. Now therefore, I pray thee, let thy ser-"vant abide instead of the lad, a bondman to my lord; and let "the lad go up with his brethren. For how shall I go up to my "father, and the lad be not with me? lest peradventure I see the "evil that shall come on my father."—In this speech of Judah's, he addresses Joseph as the king himself; he tells him all that had passed with their father, in consequence of Joseph's desiring Benjamin to be brought to him; and Joseph's property being now found in the possession of Benjamin, and as they could not prove it was conveyed into his sack by any other person, they could not of course prove his innocence; and Benjamin being thus found guilty, Judah only asks his release from the sentence the law pronounced, on condition that Judah should suffer the punishment in his place; and he does not presume to look for Joseph's compassion, without offering, at the same time, that satisfaction to the laws which justice demanded. The grand design of the word of God is, to make mankind acquainted with the necessity all men are under, in having a Redeemer provided, and with the plan of our redemption, and to direct us to God Himself, to receive the benefits of it in this life; and hereafter, with the possession of all that increase of blessedness, which our rational and spiritual nature is capable of for ever. And this being the gracious design of God to men, the Scriptures (written by the immediate authority and preserved by the providence of God) discover to us, that in all ages, God hath been making known to men the necessity of a Redeemer, and what that Redeemer was to do for sinful men; and, to have the benefit intended us by the revelation God hath given us, we ought to read the Scriptures, with a constant regard to that, which makes the great subject of them—the redemption of the world by God the Son, suffering in the person of a man, in the sinner's place and stead, to satisfy the infinite justice of God, and obtaining for us that favour of God, by which we are forgiven all past offences, and that grace, by which the believer is preserved without offence in his sight: And thus reading this passage, what a lively representation have we of the plan of our redemption? Judah, who appears before Joseph in the name of all his brethren, speaks to Joseph as to the king; and what Judah requests is, that Benjamin may be released from that sentence which the law inflicted upon him, for the crime, from which he could not be acquitted by any proofs either he himself, or his brethren, could give of his innocence; but Judah knowing that He that ruleth over men must be just, and that Joseph could not clear Benjamin, who could not clear himself of the charge of the laws of the kingdom brought against him, Judah does not presume to expect mercy at the expence of that justice, by which Joseph himself was bound to act as governor and judge over the whole kingdom; Judah therefore concludes his request of mercy, by offering himself to suffer the sentence of the law; that thus Joseph might have the high satisfaction of saving the whole family of Israel from the distress which, without that mercy, they must suffer; and, at the same time, Joseph laid them all under this obligation to his compassion, justice, so essential to Joseph's character and high station, could not be subject to reproach, as all would see in the person of Judah, the elder brother, one who was more than equal to the guilty person himself, living and suffering under the sentence of the law; and only in this way could all the ends required be fully answered; Joseph, as a gracious king, had it now in his power to give peace to all the family of Israel; and, at the same time that they looked to Joseph as the giver of their peace, Judah must be considered as the procurer of it; and but one thing now remained, That Joseph should make known to the sons of Israel, that he accepted Judah; and that for his sake, and for the satisfaction he offered to justice, he would release the guilty from the sentence of the law, and send them away in peace. And now lifting up our minds to the great and blessed reality, which, by means of this representation, among many others, is conveyed to our knowledge, how may we adore that goodness of God the Father, who, in our nature, and in our place and stead, accepted of HIM who was promised to Adam, to Abraham, to Israel, and who sprang out of Judah, (Heb. vii. 14.) who offered up Himself to the justice of God, to procure pardon for the guilty, and peace to all that are pardoned? Who shall be able to say, any more than this youngest son of Israel, that they are not guilty, when they shall appear to be judged by the laws of purity, truth, goodness, and justice? And, if no man can say He is not guilty in the sight of God, what are the alternatives to be chosen? Let reason and revelation say, what besides the sentence of an holy and just God, and God a Redeemer from that sentence. But when shall the choice

Before Christ 1707.

19 My lord asked his servants, saying, Have ye a father, or a brother?

20 And we said unto my lord, We have a father, an old man, and a child of his old age, a little one: and his brother is dead, and he alone is left of his mother, and his father loveth him.

b Chap. 42. 15. 21 And thou saidst unto thy servants, [b] Bring him down unto me, that I may set mine eyes upon him.

22 And we said unto my lord, The lad cannot leave his father: for if he should leave his father, his father would die.

c Chap. 43. 3, 5. 23 And thou saidst unto thy servants, [c] Except your youngest brother come down with you, you shall see my face no more.

24 And it came to pass, when we came up unto thy servant my father, we told him the words of my lord.

d Chap. 43. 2. 25 And [d] our father said, Go again, and buy us a little food.

26 And we said, We cannot go down; if our youngest brother be with us, then will we go down; for we may not see the man's face, except our youngest brother be with us.

27 And thy servant my father said unto e Chap. 46. 19. us, Ye know that [e] my wife bare me two sons.

28 And the one went out from me, and I f Chap. 37. 33. said, [f] Surely he is torn in pieces; and I saw him not since.

29 And if ye take this also from me, and Before Christ 1707.

g mischief befal him, ye shall bring down my grey hairs with sorrow to the grave. g Chap. 42. 38.

30 Now therefore when I come to thy servant my father, and the lad be not with us: (seeing that h his life is bound up in the lad's h 1 Sam. 18. 1. life)

31 It shall come to pass, when he seeth that the lad is not with us, that he will die: and thy servants shall bring down the grey hairs of thy servant our father with sorrow to the grave.

32 For thy servant became surety for the lad unto my father, saying, i If I bring him i Chap. 43. 9. not unto thee, then I shall bear the blame to my father for ever.

33 Now therefore, I pray thee, let thy servant abide instead of the lad, a bondman to my lord; and let the lad go up with his brethren.

34 For how shall I go up to my father, and the lad be not with me? lest peradventure I see the evil that shall * come on my father. * Heb. find my father.

C H A P. XLV.

THEN Joseph could not refrain himself before all them that stood by him; and he cried, Cause every man to go out from me: and there stood no man with him, while Joseph made himself known unto his brethren.

2 And

be made of misery or a Mediator? When shall he make this choice who died last night, after having lived to please himself and not God, till he could live no longer? When shall he make this choice, who died as he lived, believing that all his time might be better spent, than by employing any of it in considering by what laws God will judge His reasonable creatures in the life to come? God's words neglected, His laws violated and treated with contempt, even to the despising of them that appear to regard them: When shall such choose a Mediator, after they have entered His Almighty presence, with all their guilt and impenitence in the very temper and spirit of their minds? Now the benefits of that mediation may be received, but how soon? Next year, next hour? Nay, the next moment may be too late for ever.

C H A P. XLV.

V. 1. Joseph made himself known unto his brethren—In the person of their judge, they now discover the kindest relation and friend, and they are surprised with unlooked-for goodness, a mediator provided to satisfy justice, their distress is turned into joy; and instead of considering him with dread, who had power to acquit or punish that guilt, from which the most blameless of the sons of Israel could not clear himself, they now find all the grateful feelings of their hearts called upon, to acknowledge what they owe to him, who might justly have inflicted upon them the punishment due to what they had been guilty of against his own person; but who had, instead of doing this, patiently waited, and wisely contrived to make their difficulties the means of leading them into a true knowledge of their own past conduct, and then, when they were sensible of it, and no longer pretending to justify themselves, but casting themselves upon his compassion, justice being satisfied in the person of Judah, then the purpose of their sufferings were answered, because they were truly humbled under a sense of their guilt, and only hoped for relief from his unmerited kindness, against whom they had so much offended, without any other cause, save that of its being foretold, they were all to bow down to him; and the more they see the unprovoked evil they had been guilty of, and the generosity and goodness with which they are now, in the last moment of their distress, made acquainted with, the more they must feel indignation against themselves, for having offended against so much kindness: and the more must they gratefully regard and love the person of him, who had thus made all their sorrows and their fears end in such unlooked-for goodness, and bestowing all this kindness upon them with so much tenderness to their characters, as not to suffer one stranger to be present at the discovery of their guilt, and of his kindness who forgave it all. Thus it is with those, whose folly, whose ambition, avarice, anger, and self-will, have led them into difficulties, from which they could not relieve themselves, which difficulties are made, by the infinite compassion of God, the means of leading them to reflect on what they have been guilty of against HIM who made them, and gave them every blessing; and thus preparing them to listen to that grace, which would have prevented them the misery of every sin they have committed, but which grace they would resist, and do evil against the sacred dictates of God's holy spirit to their hearts and minds; and when brought at last, like the sons of Jacob, to judgment, and arraigned in their conscience as in the sight of God, they see justice must and only can pronounce a sentence that must make them miserable; and that sentence falling upon themselves, they cannot any more than Benjamin ransom themselves from the consequences of their guilt; and thus finding themselves under the conscious sentence of God, from his wrath they feel they cannot fly, plead their innocence, or acquit themselves of guilt, or provide a Saviour for themselves, they cannot; and thus condemned by the righteous sentence

Before Christ 1707.

2 And he * wept aloud: and the Egyptians and the house of Pharaoh heard.

3 And Joseph said unto his brethren, [a] I am Joseph; Doth my father yet live? and his brethren could not answer him: for they were † troubled at his presence.

* Heb. gave forth his voice in weeping.
a Acts 7. 13.
† Or, terrified.

4 And Joseph said unto his brethren, Come near to me, I pray you; and they came near: and he said, I am Joseph your brother, [b] whom ye sold into Egypt.

b Chap. 37. 28.

5 Now

sentence of the justice of God, are they who are brought to feel their need of a Mediator and Redeemer, and then to such God makes Himself known to be a propitiation, (an atonement) through faith in his blood, for the remission of sins that are past, through the forbearance of God; that he might be just, and the justifier of him which believeth in JESUS (Rom. iii. 25, 26.) and the peace and joy which now takes place in their minds is to be judged of, by what may so easily be imagined, would be felt by the sons of Jacob, when Joseph made himself known to them; dispelling all their fears of his sentence as a judge, and turning their perplexity and distress into inexpressible joy: But such lively representations as this, and that (Luke xv.) of a father's receiving a son into his favour, who had reduced himself to the last extremity of distress, are but figures to convey to our understanding just apprehensions of what takes place in the human mind, when God manifests himself (John xiv. 21.) to the soul, and takes away all iniquity—the very cause of guilt, pardoning all transgressions past, and graciously receiving and assuring the penitent mind of his Almighty favour and friendship; (Hos. xiv. 2. Mich. vii. 18.) real examples of which we have (Luke xxiii. 43. Acts xvi. 23, &c.). But who are they that will consider these representations, or actual examples, with thankfulness to God, that he has ever caused them to be published to the world in His revealed will, that he does make known his pardoning love to sinful men? Will they cry to God for mercy, who think they ought not to look upon themselves as sinners justly condemned by any laws, human or divine, and who judge of their title to the favour of God, by the character they think they have inherited from their fathers, or obtained for themselves; or who are regarding the name of their religion, their rank or station in life, their property, their prudence, or their success, as sufficient security for their having the favour of God? Will they read these discoveries of God's making Himself known as pardoning iniquity with delight, who think so of the Father of Mercies, as not to believe that he is as willing to make Himself known to all who truly feel their need of His mercy, as Joseph was to make himself known to those he saw in so much distress in his presence? O! that the discoveries of infinite compassion and condescension may not now be made as much in vain, as it was to those over whom he wept in the days of His humanity, who treated with neglect or scorn the last offers of mercy because they were Abraham's sons, had no need of mercy, or expected none from HIM, and who wilfully exposed themselves to the consequences which sin in every man draws upon himself, and which is such as to have made the Author of our lives, and Judge of all, weep for the sufferings which his justice must inflict upon all who regarded not the day of offered mercy, and who would not look for or receive it from God, for the sake of, and from that only Mediator between God and Man, CHRIST JESUS the LORD. (Luke xix. 41, &c.)

V. 2. He wept aloud—From excess of affection and compassion; and that he could now relieve from distress, and give occasion for so much grateful joy to those that were of the same blood with himself. The house of Pharaoh heard—Those affectionate emotions of Joseph's mind, which were too great for him to restrain, became known to all that dwelt in the palace. When sinners repent, and cast themselves upon the mercy of God their Saviour, and infinite justice is satisfied, and God reconciled to them that come unto Him through His Son, then the blessed in the presence of God become acquainted with the new discovery of the Divine compassion, and there is joy in the presence of the angels of God. (Luke xv. 10.)

V. 3. I am Joseph—He who had led them to a sense of their crimes, now discovers himself to be the person they had so cruelly treated; and the first thing he does, when he is going to remove the distress and fear arising from their conscious guilt, is to declare his name. And thus does God represent to us His own gracious manner of speaking peace to the troubled guilty minds of men,—by declaring His name, and saying, "I AM JESUS," to whom your sins have been so many acts of cruelty, the punishment of which, that wisdom which knew them all, required ME to atone for them to that infinite justice, which, without a suffering for every sin of every sinner, could not justify the ungodly; but the same all-seeing eye, which was witness to every sin, hath now seen your submission to that grace which convinces of sin, and which you have allowed to lead you to godly sorrow and true repentance; the sincerity of which I am acquainted with, I am the LORD, and I forgive you all. (Isa. xlv. 16. Acts ix. 5. 1 Pet. i. 13. Matt. xviii. 27.) They were troubled at his presence—The meaning is, they were terrified as well as troubled; seeing themselves in his presence against whom they had so highly offended, and who they now saw possessed of power to punish them; and their own remembrance told them, that if he doomed them to the most painful lingering death, it would be no more than they had agreed to inflict on him, when they cast him into the pit; and knowing they could not escape beyond the reach of his power, they were thus terrified at his presence; and thus it is with sinners arraigned in their consciences, as before the judge of all, who was doomed to death by every sin, for which he took upon himself to atone his Father's justice; and when deep convictions seize upon the mind, especially for the impurity and rebellion of the heart against the nature and will of God; then will those, that see themselves in the power of God, and justly deserving his severest wrath, frequently find themselves, in the moment when the mercy of God their Saviour is going to be made known to them, like the sons of Jacob, troubled and terrified; or, like them who are shipwrecked, and see no other way to escape death, but by committing themselves to the sea, to be saved by the kind hand of some who stand upon a distant rock to receive them: Thus the soul, casting itself down upon the mercy of God in Christ Jesus, when it is forced to let go its last pretence to justify itself to the justice of God its Creator, is filled with terror before it ventures to trust itself to the boundless love of God its Redeemer. And why are there so many invitations, promises, and examples recorded in the sacred writings, but to prevent every one who stands condemned by God's holy law, (Luke x. 26, &c.) from holding fast by the ropes and planks of self-confidence and self-dependence, with which they must as certainly perish as he that holds by the sinking ship? Why such clouds of witnesses (Heb. xi.) as the word of God presents to the view of all mankind, of men and women in all the extremes of distress and danger, casting themselves down—trusting in the mercy and love of God, through the ONE Mediator? Why, but to shew all mankind, as none can be saved but by God their Saviour, that whatever dread or terror the self-condemned sinner may feel, not to fly from God, and seek for safety or refuge out of him, but humbly to venture all upon his boundless love; and to shew this is what God requires, and that none whoever did so, was disappointed of all the blessings of forgiveness, acceptance, friendship, and protection from Him? Some just notion of which, before the soul experiences these blessings, is conveyed to our understandings, by considering this representation of Joseph's guilty brethren; but still more clearly by such examples as are given us in the New Testament; (Acts ii. 37.) that better information provided

Before Christ 1707.

5 Now therefore be not grieved, † nor angry with yourselves, that ye sold me hither: [c] for God did send me before you, to preserve life.

† Heb neither let there be anger in your eyes.

6 For these two years hath the famine been in the land: and yet there are five years, in the which there shall neither be earing nor harvest.

1706.

[c] Chap. 50. 20. Psal. 105. 16, 17. See 2 Sam. 16. 10. Act. 4. 24.

7 And God sent me before you, ‖ to preserve you a posterity in the earth, and to save your lives by a great deliverance.

Before Christ 1707.

‖ Heb. to put for you a remnant.

8 So now it was not you that sent me hither, but God: and he hath made me [d] a father to Pharaoh, and lord of all his house, and a ruler throughout all the land of Egypt.

[d] Chap. 41. 43.

9 Haste

provided for us, than they possessed in all the figures and examples of the Old Testament times, of God's power to condemn, but of His willingness to save for the sake of His Son. (Heb. vii. 25.)

V. 4 Come near to me—Stand not at a distance—fear not, I am your friend; God has given me power over my resentment, however just. "Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you" (James iv. 8.) His love and goodness with whom we have to do, desires nothing so much as to be entirely trusted for his mercy and his grace; and none will be left exposed to his final justice, but those who will not believe in the assurances he has given, of what he ever has been and is now willing to become, to all who died and lost the image of God in the first natural parents of mankind (Mark xvi. 16. 1 Cor. xv. 22.) I am Joseph your brother, whom ye sold into Egypt—And I do not now remind you of this to increase your distress and your fear, but to assure you, that the worst you ever did against me, I forgive with greater willingness than you can ask or think. When convinced sinners are left without all hopes but from the mercy of God, then it is the business of Satan and his angels, the deceivers of our souls, (1 Pet. v. 8.) to persuade all that will listen to their suggestions—That God's mercy is no greater than that of men to one another; and that it would be presumption to expect more goodness and compassion from God than we are conscious we have shewn to others and have received ourselves; and these unpardonable offenders against God and enemies of men, knowing if they can but keep the soul at a distance from God, and from exercising faith and confidence in that mercy which is higher than the heavens, then they know there never will be real love to God, including in it love to men; and without this they know all besides, however great and excellent in the sight of men, will vanish away (1 Cor. xiii. 8.) and leave the soul, with all other attainments, unfit for the presence of God: The word of God, all the works of his hands, ourselves, and all the ways of his providence, declare the love of God to men; and the love of God to men is thus published and declared, that all may believe in his willingness to pardon the offences all have committed against his goodness, to blot out their transgressions, and to receive them into his favour, when they submit to his grace, and turn unto him by true repentance.

V. 5. Now therefore be not angry with yourselves—Let not the remembrance of what is past distress you—I forgive you, condemn not yourselves—since you have been so sensible of your guilt, and so sincerely sorry for it, I not only acquit you, and relieve you from all fear of my remembering it with any resentment, but now we are reconciled, I would prevent you even the pain that justly arises in your own breasts from your blaming yourselves. And thus it is, when the infinite compassion of the Redeemer of men is made known to the penitent mind. "Who is it that shall condemn? It is GOD that justifieth the sinner from all distressing condemnation—even from Himself; that he may receive the adoption of a son of God, and be made a partaker of the very nature of the happiness of heaven. (Rom. viii. 33, 34. Gal. iv. 5.) God did send me before you to preserve life—God hath brought me, by a way I never would have chosen, to bestow greater mercies upon me than I ever could have expected; and with all the other blessings he hath bestowed upon me, he now makes me the means, in his gracious hands, of relieving you from your distress, and preserving you lives.

V. 6. These two years hath the famine been in the land—Of Egypt, as you have found it in the land of Canaan, and there are yet five years in which the corn that may be sown shall not ripen in the ear, and there shall be nothing to reap in harvest. It pleased God to make known to me, that, after seven years of great plenty, there would follow seven years of famine; and it is on His authority that I thus confidently speak of what shall be for five years to come. All the wisdom of the Egyptians, aided by all their power and industry, could not produce a single ear of corn. Thus dependant are men on the bounty of God, for the food without which we cannot live; and this famine, and the many other instances there have been of the same kind in different ages and countries, are to remind mankind, that God is the governor of the world; and that men, with all their skill, and with all the care and industry which it is their duty to use, are still as dependant on God for their daily bread, as the most helpless animal that lives in the earth, the air, or sea. And we are thus reminded, that we are dependant on God to provide and give the supplies of natural life, to convince us, beyond the possibility of mistake, that we are dependant on God to provide for us the bread of everlasting life, and to give us the supplies of his grace, to bring us into, and keep us in, spiritual life; that, possessing the nature of heaven, we may be prepared to dwell in it for ever. And by such discoveries of God's power as this, he instructs all men, in a manner all men may understand, that we who cannot compel the clouds of heaven to send down rain, nor the earth to yield us food for a single day, cannot give to ourselves that better food—those minds, tempers, and heavenly affections, which proceed from God, and are given by his spirit. The benefits which we receive by the supplies of food to our mortal nature, are only during the short and uncertain season of our lives on earth; but the benefits which we receive by the supplies of God's holy spirit to our souls, are endless and eternal in their nature; all men therefore being certain that they cannot, by any power, wisdom, or industry of their own, compel the earth to give supplies of food, we are obliged to conclude, that we who are dependant on God for that which is less, must be dependant on God for that which is greater. And to be truly convinced of this our entire dependance on God, is that disposition and temper of mind, which is required to be wrought in the soul, as the foundation for that kingdom of heaven which they have within them, who are the poor in spirit, (Matth. v. 3.) and who live in an humble dependant spirit on the great and glorious Creator, Preserver, and Redeemer of men; to which state of mind God himself hath said—He giveth his grace (1 Pet. v. 5.), giveth it with as much certainty as he gave a season of plenty to the people of Egypt, wherein to provide against that season, when those supplies would not be given by God, and could not be obtained by men. And the spirit of God by Joseph made known before-hand, the season in which all that they wanted would be graciously offered to them, and then also declared when that season would have an end. So by the same spirit, the prophets and the apostles of God have made known to the world, that all the inhabitants of the earth, by the unmerited goodness of God, are as certain of a season wherein God sends down, and offers to every one, the free, rich, and abundant supplies of the bread of everlasting life. But the season of grace, like the years of plenty, is one day to expire, and have an end for ever. The commands, the invitations, the entreaties to repentance, the offers of mercy and forgiveness, and the promises of grace

Before Christ 1707. 9 Haſte you, and go up to my father, and ſay unto him, Thus ſaith thy ſon Joſeph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt; come down unto me, tarry not. Before Christ 1707. 10 And grace and protection from God, not embraced, valued, and preſerved, will one day leave thoſe that might have enjoyed all the abundance of theſe ſpiritual bleſſings, as much without them as thoſe thouſands would be of food, who thought the years of plenty would never have an end, who turned the abundance that was given them into wantonneſs, and believed not what was declared to them, of that ſeaſon which was to come, and in which no human power or wiſdom could obtain the ſupplies of life. And, on the authority of the ſame unchangeable truth, which beforehand made known thoſe years of plenty and of famine, it is made known that a day will come, when that door of mercy, which coſt ſo much to open to every one of the human race, will be ſhut for ever. (Matth. xxv. 10.) Great God, hear thy church's cry in thy name, who art her living head, that thou wouldeſt ſtill wait to be gracious to thoſe who have long forgotten thee, and preferred the love of all things to thyſelf; O! let all men hear and lay it to heart, that the night of death cometh, when the day of life—of probation will never more return!

V. 7. God ſent me—By a way I never ſhould have choſen, and therefore all the praiſe is due to Him that I am here before you, that you may be delivered from the diſtreſs of this long-continued and dreadful famine, and your lives, and thoſe of your children, preſerved in the earth.

V. 8. So now it was not you that ſent me hither, but God—Such has been God's goodneſs to us, that he has not only ſpared, when juſtly he might have deſtroyed; but after you had done that which highly offended God, He has, in His mercy, made the very wrath of man to praiſe Him, and made my coming here the means of ſaving your lives by a great deliverance, and God, in ſending me hither, hath made me a father to the king, and given me authority over his whole family, and the government of all his numerous ſubjects. When ſuch a man as Joſeph ſays, no leſs than three times within a few moments, God ſent me, we ſhould be wanting to ourſelves, were we not narrowly to examine, if there is not ſomething more implied than is fully expreſſed, and which may be beneficial to us to underſtand. Whatever God does muſt be worthy of Himſelf; and though the leaſt want any of His creatures feel, is never beneath His gracious care, the ſending Joſeph to provide, as His ſervant, for ſo many againſt the years of famine, was a great act of His goodneſs; yet it is plain, a much greater good is included in what is here related, and that Joſeph was made a far higher uſe of, by being ſent of God, from his father's family into Egypt, than that, great as it was, which God made him the inſtrument of, to Jacob and his family, and to the king of Egypt and his ſubjects, in delivering them from the diſtreſs of the famine, and preſerving their lives. The word of God, and all his works and government, all ſpeak with one voice, and declare to us, that we only think juſtly when we fully and conſtantly believe, that God ever deſigns the higheſt poſſible good to every creature that he has made; and hence it is, that whoever does an injury to any thing that God has given life to, is in that act oppoſing himſelf to the deſign of God himſelf; and when God is ſaid to have ſent ſuch a man as Joſeph, under ſuch ſingular circumſtances, from the family of his father, who was then at the head of the Church of God upon earth, into a country where they worſhipped not the true God, as he ever requires to be worſhipped, that is alone and without any intermediate object or idol of any kind in heaven or earth; and always keeping in our view that the SALVATION of mankind is that higheſt poſſible good, which God declares He ever did, and ever does, deſign to all men; then, in conſidering the hiſtory given us, on the Divine authority of God's ſending the beloved ſon of Iſrael out of Canaan into Egypt, we may ſee ſo many circumſtances of agreement in Joſeph with the LORD JESUS, as to warrant us to conclude, that the things which attended Joſeph's going into Egypt, were evidently the means by which the way of ſalvation was, and is made known and explained. And this ought to be obſerved of the whole Scriptures, that they contain more of meaning than is fully expreſſed, or indeed can be; for the great ſubjects of the Scriptures are GOD, and His gracious deſigns to men; and though all is fully expreſſed, which is neceſſary to lead men to know GOD, and be bleſſed; yet as God is infinite, and his deſigns and ways are like himſelf, words cannot of courſe fully diſcloſe, nor any thought comprehend, all that is included in the plaineſt language of the Scriptures; and thoſe of the Old Teſtament are covered with a kind of veil, and heavenly and ſpiritual diſcoveries are conſtantly to be looked for, where the things ſpoken of only appear to relate to human events. From the time of Iſrael's ſending his ſon Joſeph to his brethren, clothed as it were with his father's love, we ſee an eminent type of Him who left the preſence of God His Father, to die for men; Joſeph was envied and hated by the ſons of Iſrael; JESUS was the ſame by the heads of the family of Iſrael when he appeared among them; they would not bow down to him. Joſeph was ſold by the advice of one of his brethren, Jeſus was ſold by one of His diſciples. Only one of Joſeph's brethren regarded him whilſt he was in the pit, and but one of the diſciples of JESUS followed Him and ſtood by Him, whilſt He hung upon the croſs. Joſeph was led away in the anguiſh of his ſoul who had committed no crime; Jeſus was ſore amazed when the time was approaching, when He was to be led away a guiltleſs victim for the ſins of men. Joſeph was unjuſtly condemned by Potiphar, Jeſus by Pilate. Joſeph was innocently doomed to priſon, Jeſus to the croſs. Joſeph was delivered from priſon, was a father, equal to the king himſelf, lord in his houſe, and governor and judge over all his ſubjects; Jeſus was delivered from death, and aſcended into heaven to reign with God His Father, equal with Him, Lord and Governor of the family of heaven, the inhabitants of the earth, and judge of all. Joſeph, when he might have juſtly puniſhed his brethren for their cruel conduct to him, beſtows benefits upon them before they knew him to be their brother; Jeſus ſpares ſinners when He might juſtly condemn them, and beſtows benefits on them who have wounded Him by their ſins, and loads them with mercies before they know Him to whom they are ſo much indebted. Joſeph, inſtead of reſenting the injury done him, contrives to bring thoſe that had ſo offended againſt him, againſt nature, and againſt God, to a ſenſe of what they had done, that he might ſhew them his forgiveneſs, and do them good; Jeſus returns no evil for the ſufferings every man's ſin occaſioned him to paſs through, but with the knowledge, and under the ſenſe of all the ſcorn, malice, injuſtice, and cruelty which was ſhewn to Him, He, by His providence, His word and grace, contrives to bring all who have offended (and there are none that have not) to a ſenſe of what they have done, that they may be humbled under that ſenſe, that He may give them pardon, peace, deliver them from death and every evil, and do them every good. With all theſe circumſtances of agreement, between Joſeph and the promiſed Saviour of men; with the repreſentation in the perſons of Joſeph's brethren, of Jeſus's bringing loſt ſinners to a ſenſe of their need of the mercy of God, and when diveſted of every pretence to juſtify themſelves, to pardon them freely through a Mediator; with this, and much more of reſemblance between Joſeph and HIM who ſent him into Egypt, the way of ſalvation, that higheſt poſſible good to men, is opened to our view; and then connecting this with Joſeph's attributing every good to God alone, we have then thoſe two ineſtimable diſcoveries in Joſeph's hiſtory—the way of ſalvation made known, and God referred to as the GIVER of every bleſſing; and, as it muſt be God's deſign always to make known that, which it is His great deſign to do for all the children of men; taking the gracious purpoſe of men's ſalvation

Before Christ 1707. 10 And [e] thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen, and thou shalt be near unto me, thou, and thy children, and thy children's children, and thy flocks, and thy herds, and all that thou hast. Before Christ 1707.

[e] Chap. 47. 1.

11 And

into our view, the words of Joseph, thrice repeated—God sent me, have more important meaning than they at first appear; and it is to the praise of the blessed Giver of all our mercies, that these discoveries, made by Joseph's means, of the way of salvation, and of every blessing coming from God alone, were known by the church of God from the first promise of a Redeemer, and by the representation which Joseph's history gives, from the first planting of the Israel of God in Egypt, and to be spoken of, and spread by all the faithful servants and messengers of God, wherever they went; and handed down from one generation of believers to another, till God, in mercy, caused the substance of what His goodness had done by Joseph's means, and in the first ages of the world, to be written for the use of the church of God, and of all that shall be added to it, till faith shall have its end; and God, the God of LOVE, shall reign in, and over, all the Redeemed for ever.

V. 9. Haste you—Make no delay. Blessed are they that obey the call and commands of God, their Saviour, without delay. Time is the seed-time for eternity; and though the true believer will be calm and peaceable, free from hurry and confusion of thought, yet he will also remember that the king's business requires haste; and having, with Joseph's brethren, received forgiveness from JESUS his Redeemer, he will, in every design, in every conversation, in every action, listen to his secret voice, and what that bids him do, keeping his single eye of faith on God, and regulated by his written word, he will make haste to what God commands, with all his might. Go up to my father—Joseph commands them to return home. JESUS is gone before to his Father, and our father; and all that his followers do below, he commands them to do it to the Lord, that every step on earth may be under the influence of his grace, and their whole lives one going up to their heavenly home, in that glory which is the purchase of redeeming love. And say unto him, Thus saith thy son Joseph—Let your first salutation be, That you are sent to him by his son Joseph, whom he sent to you. Thus are despised humble believers taught how they are to go to God in this life, and with what warrant they are to be admitted into his gracious presence; bearing the name of JESUS, and solely regarding it as the cause of their acceptance, and possessed of his pardoning love, and in his image appearing before the throne of glory. God hath made me lord of all Egypt—Given me power over all; and, as you have found, with that power, a mind inclined to use it to the kindest purposes; declare this before my father and your father, and to all his house. JESUS, as man, is made Lord of all, judge of quick and dead; possessed of all power, and full of grace only to use it, in shewing mercy to all who, with the self-condemned sons of Israel, cast themselves upon his compassion. Come down unto me—Let us no longer live at a distance; sufficient is the time that we have been separated already; but now tarry not any longer from ME, whom God hath made so able and so willing to serve you, and supply all your wants. Come down—Those whom JESUS has freely pardoned, and graciously received into his and his father's favour, are to go up to God in glory, and the way is by coming down—humble thyself, that thou mayest walk with God; in this the soul has rest and peace: A crucified Saviour is, and only can be, the humble soul's delight; and his grace is only given to them that humbly hope and trust in him. Tarry not—In following JESUS in newness of life; his sacred precepts, threatnings, invitations, and promises have but one object—Tarry not away, remain not at a distance, neither go out of the ways that lead to God, nor linger in them; for from God our Saviour, not in communion with him, and at a distance from JESUS, though in the family of Israel itself, and living in the very land of Canaan, famine, want, and death, the souls of all will feel, who tarry in doubt whom they shall serve, and shun the daily cross, regard not his invitation, nor obey his command, to love their God with all their hearts.

V. 10. And thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen—A part of Egypt nearest Canaan, well watered, fittest for cattle, and therefore most proper for the present use of Israel's family. And thus when a self-condemned sinner receives the knowledge of the pardoning love of God, he that gave the greater will, and ever does, give the less, and fulfils his own faithful word, which says, First seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all other things shall be added unto you.—They that cast themselves upon his mercy, and look to him for his grace, will have the blessings of his providence, and be placed where it will be best for their growth in grace, and in the knowledge of the love of God; and there all that are guided by his council shall continue to dwell, till he that reigns over them shall receive them to glory. Goshen—Where Israel's family was to be placed, was not in the inward part of Pharaoh's dominions, but at a distance from court; not that Joseph was ashamed of his kindred, as it is plain from his desiring them to come to him; but Joseph, whose business led him to be amongst those, who, as men, were far above him, a shepherd's son, knew the danger of keeping a good conscience, and the company of the great was such, to every truly spiritual mind, that to be at a distance from them, was to be at a distance from snares and dangers, as much above those of common life, as pits that are smoothly covered, but will let the traveller down, are more dangerous than those that are uncovered, and plainly appear to be what they are. Joseph had been taught by experience, that men who wrought in the field, and whose business was with cattle, were the same by nature with himself, and with those that dwelt in courts, and taken up with the refinements of life; for by the one he had been sold for a slave, and by the other he had been long confined in a dungeon; but the providence of God had placed Joseph where he was, and he knew God both could and would preserve him from every snare, so long as he lived in his fear, and acknowledged God as the giver of all the abilities that qualified him for his station, as well as of every blessing he possessed; and these we see he was careful to do upon all occasions, and chiefly so, when inducements to a contrary conduct presented themselves to him; but Joseph knew his brethren were called to cultivate a spirit of simplicity and godly sincerity, and to bring them near the great, might be to take them where providence did not intend them to be, and to expose them to their ruin, where smooth words and smiles would rob them of that fear of offending God which is ever necessary, but most of all where those, that desire to live to God, have any thing to do with such as still live in pleasure, and are dead to God whilst they live to themselves. The influence which God had given to Joseph in the country where he lived, and there being yet five years of the famine to come, the dependance which both king and people had upon his piety, and his prudence, might have given him the first stations for his friends, and Joseph's love to his brethren was not wanting; but he knew it would be mistaken kindness, so much as to wish to make them great, or even to bring them amongst those that were so: For these reasons, which had and have their foundation both in the knowledge of God and of men, Joseph knowing the mind of the king, at once appointed a dwelling-place for his brethren, at a distance from the seat of human government, that there the church of God, and all that were added to the numbers of its humble self-denied members, might neither be led away, nor broken in upon by the rich and great. Thus does the crucified Redeemer of men represent to us, by Joseph's means, the manner in which he disposes of the church he has purchased with his blood, those living members of his body who have fled to him for mercy: He places before them far higher objects than worldly honour,

Before Christ 1707.

11 And there will I nouriſh thee (for yet there are five years of famine;) leſt thou, and thy houſhold, and all that thou haſt, come to poverty.

12 And behold, your eyes ſee, and the eyes of my brother Benjamin, that it is my mouth that ſpeaketh unto you.

13 And you ſhall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that you have ſeen; and ye ſhall haſte, and [1] bring down my father hither.

Before Christ 1707.

[1] Acts 7. 14.

14 And he fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept upon his neck.

15 Moreover,

honour, he gives them better treaſures than any that can be laid up on earth; the true followers of God and of the Lamb are partakers of purer joys than they that live in the pleaſures of ſenſe: So far as immortal ſouls are renewed by the ſpirit of God, they are members of the church of God, and having, with Joſeph's brethren, been convinced of ſin, and obtained pardon, they are children of God, and heirs of all the promiſes of grace and glory. But whilſt the church is thus favoured of God, in the ſight of men, like Iſrael's family, it is far removed from the appearance of worldly greatneſs; and thoſe that are living in pleaſure, and ſeeking the honour and riches of this world, can no more be living members of the church of God, whilſt they remain in that ſtate of mind, than that fleſh and blood can inherit the kingdom of God; or that thoſe who are looking for promotion from Pharaoh, would quit the court, and go and dwell in the diſtant place appointed by Joſeph for the family of his father Iſrael.—Such being the natural loftineſs and deceitfulneſs of the human mind, that the ſtate of Chriſt's church on earth cannot be ſuch as to fall in with the views and deſires of the natural mind. Had Joſeph placed Iſrael's family in the palace of the king, inducements would have been offered for men to have mixed among them, to have recommended themſelves and their ſuits to Joſeph, and to the king; had the viſible church of God appeared in the place of worldly honour, it would have been the ſame as the huſbandman ſowing tares among his own wheat. In this ſacred hiſtory of the family of Iſrael, whom God took as a viſible figure, to ſhew the nature of his gracious deſigns to men, we are given to underſtand from the beginning, That He who died to redeem us, and who lives to ſave us from the nature and ſpirit of this preſent evil world, does not, by his providence in the government of the world, counteract the work of his ſpirit, in renewing the ſouls of men in his own image.—At the time God calls men by his grace, and by his word, to love him as their maſter and redeemer, he does not place his real church under circumſtances in the ſight of men, which ſhall in all human reaſon afford thoſe that are loving the things of this world, a fair proſpect of making gain by mixing with men who are ſincerely intending to live for nothing beneath the love of God. Jeſus, who calls all his followers to an humble mind, and to an humble life, in the ways of his providence, does not at the ſame time ſet before men, in the ſtate of his church, inducements for pride; the Hebrews were an abomination to the Egyptians; Iſrael himſelf had the hatred of his brother Eſau, and the deſigns of his maſter Laban againſt him; and when his offſpring became a people they were oppreſſed; and all the nations were in arms againſt the Iſrael of God; and when he himſelf appeared as a man among men, the head was treated as the members ever have been: They who were called by the name of Iſrael, but had not the ſpirit of the God of Iſrael, they united in ſpeaking evil of Jeſus, in perſecuting him to death; and the very name of Chriſtian, afterwards, became the object of the ſcorn of all who knew not the true God, nor Jeſus Chriſt whom he had ſent. But thus removed from views of worldly greatneſs, and deſpiſed of men, as the living members of Chriſt's church in its viſible ſtate appears by his word, Jeſus ever ſays to all who live by faith in him, as Joſeph ſays to the family of Iſrael—Thou ſhalt be near unto me, thou, and thy children, and thy children's children—For I have redeemed your ſouls from ſin, and your bodies from the power of death, and all that are the heirs of Abraham's faith ſhall be found in Abraham's boſom near to me for ever; and whilſt you remain in this ſtate of trial on earth, ſo near to Me ſhall you be, that he that receiveth you, is kind to you, I ſhall conſider him as kind to ME; and he that hateth you, is in a ſtate of mind that he would hate Me, was I on earth again in that perſon in which I was crucified for the ſins of the world; and ſo near to me ſhall all be that believe in me, that the hairs of their head are numbered—their ſmalleſt intereſts are under my care—their flocks, their herds, and all that belongs to them: I ſhall only take away, or allow to be taken away, what would but be a hurt to have, and I ſhall charge myſelf with all their wants, and ſupply them out of that fulneſs in which they believe or hope.

V. 11. There will I nouriſh thee—Where I appoint thee to dwell. For yet there are five years of famine—A ſeaſon of diſtreſs, in which you will need the daily ſupplies, which the king gives to none, but through my hands; and without which, thou—the family of Iſrael, would come to poverty.—More dependant than the houſe of Iſrael then was on Joſeph, is all the children of men on Jeſus for the ſupplies of natural life, ſpiritual life, and future glory; and Joſeph's faithfulneſs and kindneſs is but a faint repreſentation of the faithfulneſs and love of Jeſus, to all who do but look for him in his appointed ways. (Heb. ix. 28.)

V. 12. Behold, your eyes ſee that it is my mouth that ſpeaketh unto you—Joſeph ſaw that his brothers ſtood in need of this aſſurance that it was Joſeph, their brother, who now ſpake to them. Jeſus, in like manner, had occaſion to ſay to his diſciples after he roſe from death—Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myſelf. (Luke xxiv. 39.) And thus like the brethren of Joſeph, and the diſciples of Jeſus, truly penitent minds, ſeeing with what juſtice both God and men may be againſt them, they are hardly brought to believe, that there can be in God ſuch love to men, as to forgive all the offences he has not only known, but in the perſon of Jeſus atoned for to the Divine juſtice, by his own ſorrow, ſufferings and death; and when the ſelf-condemned ſee themſelves before that God they have ſo highly offended, they require the application of thoſe gracious aſſurances which God, in his word, and by his grace, gives to them that come unto him by true repentance, in the name of Jeſus for mercy; and even when words of pardon and peace are applied to the penitent mind, they are ready to be put away, and the tempter ſays, "Can it be that God, who has ſeen all your diſregard to his Majeſty, to his power, and to his purity, that he ſhould not reſent your conduct?" Not ſo, ſaith the word of God—There is mercy and forgiveneſs with him for all them that fear him: accept of his grace, and by its offered power turn from all evil, and your ſouls ſhall live; and here, in the perſon of Joſeph, is the example how Jeſus does forgive.

V. 13. You ſhall tell my father of all my glory—That he may rejoice with you, and you with him; for my deſign is not only that we ſhould be united together by the ties of cordial affection, but that your father and my father ſhould alſo be a partaker with us of our cauſe of rejoicing, therefore tell him all that you have ſeen with me; and ye ſhall haſte and bring down my father hither—that we may dwell together. It is the promiſe, and it is the prayer of Jeſus, that the Father of mercies ſhould himſelf abide with all them that have fled to him for mercy, and who live by faith in his name, and that they ſhould be one with him as he is one with the Father. John xiv. 23. xvii. 22.

V. 14. He fell upon his brother Benjamin's neck, and wept—To him, who had appeared in the worſt ſituation before Joſeph, he ſhews his affection firſt. And Jeſus does the ſame; they who ſtand

Before Christ 1707.

15 Moreover, he kiſſed all his brethren, and wept upon them: and after that his brethren talked with him.

16 ¶ And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's houſe, ſaying, Joſeph's brethren are come: and it [a] pleaſed Pharaoh well, and his ſervants.

[a] Heb. was good in the eyes of Pharaoh.

17 And Pharaoh ſaid unto Joſeph, Say unto thy brethren, This do ye; lade your beaſts, and go, get you unto the land of Canaan;

Before Christ 1707.

18 And take your father, and your houſeholds, and come unto me: and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt, and ye ſhall eat [g] the fat of the land.

g Chap. 27. 28.

19 Now

moſt condemned, and only hope to be forgiven for the ſake of a Mediator, firſt receive, becauſe they will moſt gratefully embrace and acknowledge the unmerited kindneſs that is ſhewn to them. Benjamin wept upon his neck—The criminal and the judge embrace, and they who before were at ſuch a vaſt diſtance, now know they have one father, that they are brothers; and Benjamin finds in Joſeph, before whom he ſo lately trembled with fear of his juſtice, a friend he can truſt with his life, and love with all the powers of his ſoul. As Benjamin ſtood before Joſeph, ſo one day will the kings of the earth, with every ſoul of man, ſtand before Jeſus, to be tried for all they knew, and all they did: the dead are gone to the place, where if they went unreconciled to God, ſo God's word declares they will be found for ever: but how differently will thoſe meet the all-ſeeing eye of God in the perſon of Jeſus, who in this life are united to him by thoſe motives, which, Benjamin is made the example of ſhewing us, they feel, who in this life have been convinced of ſin, (and who have not) but who alſo have caſt themſelves upon the compaſſion of him againſt whom they offended. Did all men know Jeſus by faith to be their Redeemer, as Benjamin now knew Joſeph to be his brother, would not all men love the Lord who lived and ſuffered, and died for them, and who they found, on their turning to him, ſo freely forgave them all?

V. 15. He kiſſed all his brethren, and wept upon them—Benjamin, who had been in moſt danger of being condemned to bondage for his life, when he was ſurpriſed with the ſentence he feared being changed into ſo much kindneſs, having a ſenſe of much being forgiven, he loved much. his contrite ſpirit could not contain itſelf, and he returned Joſeph's tears of love and compaſſion with tears of gratitude; and Benjamin wept upon Joſeph's neck: the other brothers did not ſo, but ſtill they all received from Joſeph the ſame expreſſion of forgiveneſs and affection, and were all received into his favour. And after that his brethren talked with him—Joſeph, great as he was in the kingdom where he governed, now placed himſelf upon a level with his brethren, and gave them all the freedom with him of a brother and a friend; and they convinced that he, who would make no unkind return to their cruel treatment when it was in his power, was worthy to be confided in, they were therefore conſtrained to give up all their fears, and now began to talk with him as with one who they were well aſſured forgave and loved them. This ſeaſonable and kind familiarity in Joſeph with his brethren, ſtill leads to our underſtanding his moſt gracious character who was to come, and with whom we all have to do. Jeſus, after being betrayed by one he wiſhed to call his friend, (John xv. 14.) forſaken of all the reſt (Mark xiv. 50.) and crucified; how much above reſentment does he ſhew himſelf, and how like a parent and a friend does he ſpeak to men on earth, who with God the Father reigns in eternal glory above all praiſe: as Joſeph ſtood among his brethren who ſold him, ſo did Jeſus appear in the midſt of his diſciples, who fled from him in the hour of the power of darkneſs, when as man he was moſt deſtitute and afflicted: "Peace be with you" are his kind words to them who feared to own him in his deepeſt diſtreſs; and children, have you any meat? is the kind inquiry which Jeſus makes of his diſciples, that he may diſmiſs their fears, and lead them to converſe with him as their brother and their friend. Great as the reſemblance is in the life of Joſeph, to that of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt's, the whole of Joſeph's godly, great, and amiable character, together with all that is holy, juſt, and good among men, evidently from but little parts, and amount only, when united, to a faint likeneſs to him who is the author and the finiſher of our faith, God in whom all fulneſs dwells, and yet very man in the perſon of Chriſt Jeſus, and as ſuch ever ſaying, by his word to all, Follow me—I have given you an example; Learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye ſhall find reſt unto your ſouls. (John xiii. 15. Matt. xi. 29.) This is the gracious end for which Jeſus repreſented himſelf to men by the conduct of thoſe to whom in different ages, countries, and ſtations he gave his ſpirit, as to Joſeph; and whoſe lives he has cauſed to be written, that though the men are dead, their example may aſſiſt us, as by ſo many ſteps to deſcend from all the raſh and vain conceits of the natural pride of the human mind, down to that ſure reſt and peace which they have, who give up the laſt idol of their ſouls to him who died for them, and whoſe whole lives are one conſtant, ſtedfaſt, patient coming unto JESUS, and in one ſpirit with him to find reſt to their ſouls, not in languor and indolence of mind, for ſouls born of God are ever on their way to glory, and to contemplate, worſhip, adore, praiſe, love, and ſerve God, with all the active powers of the ſoul, is not toil and labour, but ſweeteſt reſt; for the FOUNTAIN of wiſdom, love, and goodneſs, cannot, in its nature, but enlarge, harmonize, and bleſs the immortal ſpirits which God hath given to men; and as here, and for ever, all the grace given from God to the ſouls of men, proceeds from, and through, JESUS alone, who died for men: to ſtudy his church's hiſtory with a view to know him her living head, and to live a life of looking unto JESUS, is to begin that which, the more faithfully, and humbly, and diligently it is ſtudied and followed, will bring more and more of peace, and joy, and love; and yet theſe bleſſings of his holy ſpirit no more to be known to the uttermoſt for ever, than that the creatures which have their being in the great deep can exhauſt the element in which they live.

V. 16. And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's houſe—The manner in which Joſeph had brought back his brethren, and then made himſelf known to them. And when thoſe that have lived in the ways of folly and vice, in idleneſs and ſinful exceſſes, and this, without either fear of God or ſhame, that all who knew them, knew their reigning ſins, as well as they knew their names, when ſuch are brought to Jeſus, the friend and Saviour of returning ſinners, the fame thereof is reported by all, ſaying, Joſeph's brethren are come—diſtreſs has brought them from far; as affliction brings ſinful men to think of Him whom their ſins have pierced. It pleaſed Pharaoh well, and all his ſervants—They had cauſe to love and honour Joſeph, and they were ſincere partakers with him in the ſatisfaction they ſaw he had in his brethren's coming to him. Though want of bread had brought them from their own country, to find their brother in the high ſtation he held, yet Joſeph was not aſhamed to own them; and though he poſſeſſed the dignity of governing the whole land, and was looked upon as a father with the king, and his brethren were but ſhepherds, yet he had left them no room to doubt how truly acceptable their coming was to him; and the king and all his ſervants underſtanding this occaſion of joy to Joſeph, it gave them pleaſure. And thus do all thoſe ſincerely rejoice, who know the worthineſs of him that was ſlain for them, when others come to Jeſus, and are known to be His brethren.

V. 17, 20. And

Before Christ 1707.

19 Now thou art commanded, this do ye; Take you waggons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones, and for your wives, and bring your father, and come.

† Heb. let not your eye spare, &c.

20 Also † regard not your stuff: for the good of all the land of Egypt is yours.

21 And the children of Israel did so: and Joseph gave them waggons, according to the ‡ Heb. mouth.

‡ commandment of Pharaoh, and gave them provision for the way.

22 To all of them he gave each man changes of raiment: but to Benjamin he gave three hundred pieces of silver, and five changes of raiment.

Before Christ 1707.

23 And to his father he sent after this manner; ten asses ‖ laden with the good things of Egypt, and ten she-asses laden with corn and bread and meat for his father by the way.

‖ Heb. carrying.

24 So he sent his brethren away, and they departed: and he said unto them, See that ye fall not out by the way.

25 ¶ And

V. 17—20. And Pharaoh said unto Joseph, Say unto thy brethren, Take your father, and your households, and come unto me, and I will give you the good of the land of Egypt: Now thou art commanded; Take you waggons for your little ones, for your wives, and bring your father, and regard not your stuff: for the good of all the land is yours—And I am glad to take them from a country where now they suffer so many difficulties, and to place them in the best part of my kingdom; my obligations to thee makes it a duty thus publicly to acknowledge what I, and all my subjects, owe to thee, for thy past and present services; and though, as the just reward of thy labour, thou hast acquired enough to provide for thy family, and hast a right to place them among my subjects, I cannot but charge myself with all that concerns thy family; Thou art therefore commanded to bring them to me, that I may shew them my regard on thy account; let none that belongs to them be left behind, and charge them to pay no regard to any thing that would detain them from me; let them leave all behind,—it is not theirs, but them I want; for their property is of no esteem with me, and the less they come with to me, the more secure shall I think myself in their affection; and tell them they come at no uncertainty; they have my word, that the good of the land is theirs; and, as a token and an earnest, see that they are provided for in their journey hither at my expence. The designs and conduct of Joseph and the king, to Israel and his family, were in all things the same: Joseph told his brethren his design of placing them in the best of the land; the king does the same: Joseph declared this to his brethren himself; the king does it through Joseph, that his princely favour might be made more acceptable, by coming to them through one to whom they were so nearly related, and from whom they had already received such assurances of his affection and good-will; and that they might, by this means, be encouraged to greater confidence in all that was promised them, when they received those favours through the hands of one who sprung from the same parent with themselves, and who was placed next the throne of the kingdom, in which they were thus invited to dwell. And may sinful men look up to the throne of God, and there see Jesus, possessed of all power, appearing in the person of a man in behalf of men?—Yes; with no less certainty, than that the sons of Israel had a brother and a friend at the throne of the king of Egypt. (Rev. viii. 3.) And when the Divine invitation is given to partake of all the blessings flowing from His atonement, mediation, and intercession, shall a regard cleaving in affection to the perishable things of this earthly Canaan, induce immortal souls to say, I will be content to hear of the greatness of my Advocate and Friend—I will enjoy my good things at a distance from him, though He requires me to come near to Him? But, from whom shall the soul's wants be supplied in this life's journey, and for ever? Is all that is dug out of the bowels of the earth, or all that it produces, food for an immortal spirit, however useful this life's benefits may be made to our endless interest, when acquired and applied agreeable to the will of God?—God gives here all we want—bread and water, and clothing; but these are no more peace, and joy, and love, than an healthy body and plenty are the same as an heavenly mind.

V. 21. And Joseph gave them waggons, according to the commandment of Pharaoh, and gave them provision for the way—In obedience to what Joseph had required and the king commanded, it became their duty to take this journey, and they were provided for it at the king's expence: They were not now to stay in Egypt; their duty to their father and their families required their return, and the king's designs and Joseph's were for the happiness of the whole house of Israel. Joseph's brethren had an aged father; they had wives and little ones; and they were to be detained no longer from them, now that those steps had been taken which were to lead to all their good. And thus the infinite designs are declared to every one, for the good of all, "Love them as thyself," including more, than many volumes could express, of the things to be done by every one, in all the relations by which he can stand connected with his fellow-creatures.

V. 22. To all of them he gave each man changes of raiment—Since they had received assurances of pardon from Joseph, and promises of being provided for in the kingdom where he governed, they were to wear the raiment he had provided, and which he gave each man. And thus are they clothed with the mind which was in Jesus, (Phil. ii 5.) who have fled to Him for mercy, found pardon and acceptance into His favour; they have the nature of that kingdom, which Jesus taught His disciples to pray might come—righteousness, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. (Rom. xiv. 17.)

V. 23. And to his father he sent good things, and corn, and bread, and meat for his father by the way—Joseph, by these, expressing his duty to his father, and his desire to have him come to him in Egypt, knowing how precious in the sight of God His aged servants were; and that now the sons of Israel were reconciled to Joseph, he could only desire that they might dwell near each other, and be inseparably united. And wherever souls are reconciled to God, and live by faith in Redeeming love, on that rock does Jesus build His church; and the delight of the Lord is to dwell with them.

V. 24. So he sent his brethren away—From his immediate presence, that they might go on their journey to Canaan, and, with the Israel of God, return to him again. And when repenting sinners become acquainted with Jesus's willingness to forgive, and power to save, He sends them not from His presence, but to journey to Canaan, that one day they may be with Him in His kingdom of glory for ever. And they departed—From the place where they had met with such unlooked-for relief, from the distressing remembrance of their guilt against their brother: And besides the happiness of finding him, receiving his forgiveness, and such a plentiful supply of their present wants, they had set before them the surest prospects of all the protection and support they stood in need of, for the time to come; and that none of them might forfeit these happy expectations, or have the way rendered unnecessarily difficult or painful to them, Joseph gives this only direction to them all, See that ye fall not out by the way—Whatever may befal you in your journey, allow nothing to induce you to believe, that any one means another any thing contrary to kindness; and, however appearances or any unguarded expressions may indicate the contrary, dwell not upon it; but allow the bread you eat by the way, the presents you carry with you, and the clothes you wear to remind you of the last words of him who freely gave them to

Before Christ 1706.

25 ¶ And they went up out of Egypt, and came into the land of Canaan unto Jacob their father, 26 And told him, saying, Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land of Egypt. [h] And * Jacob's heart fainted, for he believed them not.

h Job 20. 32. Psa. 126. 1. Luke 24. 41. * Heb. his.

27 And they told him all the words of Joseph, which he had said unto them: and when he saw the waggons which Joseph had sent to carry him, the spirit of Jacob their father revived.

28 And Israel said, It is enough; Joseph my son is yet alive: I will go and see him before I die.

Before Christ 1706.

CHAP. XLVI.

AND Israel took his journey with all that he had, and came to Beer-sheba, and offered sacrifices [a] unto the God of his father Isaac.

a Chap. 26. 24, 25, and 28, 10.

2 And God spake unto Israel in the visions of the night, and said, Jacob, Jacob: And he said, Here am I.

3 And he said, I am God, the God of thy father:

you, with his own forgiveness and assurances of all the future good he can do you; remembering that you all have the same friend; that you are children of the same father; and that you are all invited to dwell in the same country. When the time drew near, that those poor great men, who had cast themselves upon the compassion of Jesus, were no longer to see his person, but by faith, He said to them, "This is my commandment, That you love one "another, as I have loved you." (John xv. 12.) Satan and his angels, the enemies of my kingdom of love, will suggest to you every suspicion that can induce you to think, speak, and act unkindly; for he is the constant accuser of all that ever set out to follow Me; that they, if possible, wherever they live, may not only be troubled, but cast down, or bitterly contend with one another, that he may, upon men's murmurs and miseries, raise blasphemy against their Creator, and against the name of Jesus, who died to purchase for them forgiveness and peace. O! fall not out by the way, but love one another.—Ye are my friends, if you do whatsoever I command you.

V. 26. And told him, Joseph is yet alive, and he is governor over all the land—And thus they declare that have become acquainted with Jesus Christ, and him crucified, that he that was dead and buried is alive, and is God over all the blessed for ever, and hath power to quicken them that were dead in trespasses and sins. And Jacob's heart fainted—At the greatness and suddenness of the news, and the conflict of contrary and violent passions; grief at the remembrance of his former loss, joy for Joseph's recovery and felicity; hope that this might be true, and fear lest it should be but a fiction of theirs: any one of these passions are able to cause a fainting of the spirits, but much more when all meet together, especially in an aged person. He believed them not—Much had Jacob known of the goodness of God to him, for the sake of the promised Saviour; but this so much exceeded all, that he who watches over the Israel of God, not for good but evil, was quicker with the suggestion of a lie than Jacob was in looking unto Jesus, whom to see as he has made himself known, is enough to prevent all surprise at whatever is great and good that is done by God to men; Jacob not getting his mind at once so high, gave the tempter a momentary triumph, by saying in his heart, "No, such goodness as this can never be; my long-lost son cannot now be found; I had the report of his death, and evidence that satisfied me it was true; and now what are the words I hear—Joseph is yet alive; No, my Lord, I know thou art gracious, but such an act of goodness as this to thy aged and unworthy worm can never be true. Thus many pious parents have lived, persuaded that their sons who left them to run the course of an ungodly life, and by death prevented to return to them, were lost amongst all that forget God, and with Jacob believing that the lost with men could not be found of God, even amongst those his mercy receives at the eleventh hour, or with him who said, Lord, remember me, and obtained pardon, and died in peace with God, by his Redeemer's side; (Luke xxiii.) but how will those parents praise that Redeemer's name, when first they shall behold in heaven, amongst the holy and the blessed, those they had given up for lost.

V. 27. The spirit of Jacob revived—When he saw the provision which had been made by Joseph for his journey into Egypt. It was an act of duty in Joseph to send carriages for the conveyance of his father and his family to him, and the sight of them were the means of satisfying Jacob that Joseph was yet alive. Words are but signs of thoughts and of things, and Joseph was not contented with only sending a message to his father; Joseph expressed his sense of duty and regard to Jacob, and his desire to have him near to himself, by an action which afforded his father the double pleasure—first of shewing of him evidence that his son lived, and also that neither time nor distance had prevented his feeling for him the affection of a son. Every act of duty and of kindness is casting that bread upon the waters, the benefits of which are found after many days; and should any such expressions ever appear to be lost, and to be labour in vain, they are remembered by HIM to whom, if the action be but done, it is a small thing should the labours of love go for nothing amongst men; but instead of its doing so, is it not often the case, as it here was, that the act of kindness done, or the duty discharged, answers an higher purpose than that which was intended?—Joseph only sent the carriages to remove his father to him, but the sight of them became the means of dispelling Jacob's fears, and of reviving his fainting mind when nothing else was found to do it; and thus does that gracious power, who commands all our duties to one another, shew us, that he carries them farther in their effects, than the doers of them ever thought of or intended; and no act or real expression of heavenly charity in the heart is too small for God to notice and to bless; and whatever proceeds from the Spirit of Love and Good-will, and is truly shewn in our intercourse among men, leads to God with the same certainty that every good thought and intention comes from God.

V. 28. And Israel said, It is enough—I desire no more, no greater happiness in this world, than to see him; which when I have done, I am willing to die.

CHAP. XLVI.

V. 1. And Israel took his journey, and came to Beer-sheba, and offered sacrifices—In thankfulness to God for former favours, and for Joseph's preservation and happiness; and by way of supplication to God for his protection and blessing, as well in his journey as in Egypt. Unto the God of his father Isaac—Whom Isaac honoured and served, and who had constantly protected and provided for Isaac, and confirmed his covenant with him. He mentions Isaac rather than Abraham, partly for Isaac's honour, to shew that though Isaac was much inferior to Abraham in gifts and graces, yet God was no less Isaac's than Abraham's God, and therefore would be his God also, notwithstanding his unworthiness.

V. 2. God spake unto Israel in the visions of the night—In that manner of visions which God affordeth to men by night and in their

Before Christ 1706. father: fear not to go down into Egypt; for I will there make of thee a great nation.

4 I will go down with thee into Egypt; and I will also surely bring thee up again:
b Chap. 50. 1. and [b] Joseph shall put his hand upon thine eyes.
c Acts 7. 15. 5 And [c] Jacob rose up from Beer-sheba: and the sons of Israel carried Jacob their father, and their little ones, and their wives, in the waggons which Pharaoh had sent to carry him.

6 And they took their cattle, and their goods which they had gotten in the land of Canaan, and came into Egypt, [d] Jacob, and all his seed with him:
Before Christ 1706.
d Josh. 24. 4. Psal. 105. 23. Isa. 52. 4.

7 His sons, and his sons sons with him, his daughters, and his sons daughters, and all his seed brought he with him into Egypt.

8 ¶ And their sheep. Jacob, Jacob—The name is doubled, both in token of his friendship and familiarity with him, and to raise Jacob's attention. Here am I—To hear what my gracious God hath to say to me; and here am I by the help of his grace, when I know thy blessed will to do it.

V. 3. I am God, the God of thy father: fear not—For here were many causes of fear; lest he should do evil in forsaking the promised land, and lest he should expose his children to be infected with the vices and idolatry which reigned in Egypt, and of being inveigled by the pleasantness and fruitfulness of that soil, to give up themselves to pleasure, and to settle there, and give over all thoughts of returning to Canaan.

V. 4. I will go down with thee, and I will also surely bring thee up again—Though not in thy person, yet in thy posterity, which are thyself multiplied. Jacob's great desire to see his son Joseph, seems to have hurried him from home; but after he had offered, on his journey, sacrifices to God, of praise for past mercies, and of prayer for his goodness for the time to come, then God answers, saying, I am God—Learn to know my voice, and to distinguish the communications of my will to thee, though in the visions of the night, from the ministry even of the angels of my presence, lest, by not knowing the voice of thy God from every created being, satan should take upon him the language of an angel of light, and at any time mislead thee. My presence shall go with thee into Egypt, and there I will greatly multiply thy offspring, and make of them in number a great nation; and I will also surely bring thee up again—to the promised land. They who worship God in spirit, and in truth, do not live at an uncertainty, whether they shall be blessed of God or not: The divine assurances of his presence with his spiritual worshippers, his true Israel, and of his constant care over them, are as strong as those assurances which God hath given, that he will be their God for ever, who are faithful to him to the last moment of their lives of trial upon earth; and however greatly things may appear to be against them, who are conscious that they yield an heart-felt obedience to the dictates of his holy Spirit, and obey his will, such followers of God their Saviour, from the first day they resolve, by the strength of his grace, to set out for his glorious presence in heaven, and betake themselves to the study of the law of Christ, and to the practice of a religious life; the word of God forbids our thinking that there is the same uncertainty of success attends the true worship of God, and devotion to his will, as we see among men in the concerns of this life, where, amongst many labourers for more than enough, there are but few reapers: There is no variableness nor shadow of turning with God; and he is ever with Israel, and his spiritual children—all the worshippers of God by faith in Christ Jesus the Lord; and this assurance, which God gives to Jacob on his journey, is intended to convey the certain knowledge that God will never leave nor forsake them that believe in him, for mercy and for grace; God being no respecter of persons; he is in all ages and nations the same; wherever that faith is, which produces love to God and man, with such God goes down into Egypt, and with such he returns to Canaan; faith and love are the fruits of God's spirit, and where these are, there is the God of All present, though unseen; and not present as an unconcerned observer, but to quicken, to save, and to bless by his grace, to protect by his providence, and to make all things work together for the good of all them that look to him, fear him, and put their trust in him. And thus reading what God said to his Israel of old, the history which God hath given us of the words he so mercifully made use of, become precious to all that believe; because they are not then of private interpretation, but faith makes them suit the believer's own: And the Divine goodness is to be adored, for connecting those gracious assurances with such events as this of an aged man, his sons, and their wives, and their little ones, in their humble journey to obtain dwellings, by the favour of others, in a distant country; an history, so far as it is only described a meer human action, of little more moment than the account of a plain countryman and his sons, who were shepherds, removing from one side of a country to another; and therefore an history which only will be carefully studied by such as are brought into some degree of that poverty of spirit, and knowledge of their unworthiness in the sight of God, as to make them contented to turn their thoughts from objects that are great in the esteem of men, and to look for discoveries of the goodness of God, in the lives and histories of such as we naturally look down upon with indifference, as upon persons and events of no consequence, till we begin to see a little of our need of the mercy and grace of God; and then, when we are thus prepared to love and value God's gracious assurances, they are thus mercifully provided in his holy word, for all that feel their need of them, and from which none are excluded by their stations among men, but only by those states of mind which are unbecoming and sinful in the highest as well as the lowest in the sight of God. Joseph shall put his hand upon thine eyes—Shall close thy eyes; which office was usually performed by the nearest and dearest relations among the Jews, Greeks, and Romans. They who look for the salvation which is by faith in Jesus, when they come to die, death shall be without its terrors, and without its sting, He, that is the resurrection and the life, having deprived death of both; and they that possess the salvation which Jesus purchased, he shall close their eyes in peace, and take them from a world of wickedness and sorrow, and place them where no evil thing can ever dwell.

V. 6. And in Mesopotamia. But Canaan only is here mentioned, because here they got the far greatest part of them, which by a Synechdoche is put for the whole.

V. 7. All his seed brought he with him into Egypt—This is twice declared, that Jacob and all his seed came together. So will all that are partakers of the blessings included in the promised seed—the grace of God which bringeth salvation; they will one day appear together in the kingdom of God and of Christ, as the redeemed of the Lord; not one child of faithful Abraham, that is faithful unto death, will be left behind; they all will have an inheritance in the heavenly country; a crown of life will be given to every one of them: And this blessedness and glory is the free gift of God, for the sake of Jesus, as the dwelling-places of Jacob and his sons, were the free gift of the king of Egypt, for the sake of Joseph; Israel and his sons had no right to those dwellings, and instead of having power in themselves to obtain such a possession, they were brought to feel a need of applying for relief, as men who had neither right nor power; and though they were possessed of property, they had not bread, the supply of life. They were at a distance,

Before Christ 1706.

c Exod. 1. 1. and 6. 14. i Num. 26. 5. 1 Chron. 5. 1.

8 ¶ And c these are the names of the children of Israel, which came into Egypt, Jacob and his sons: i Reuben Jacob's firstborn.

9 And the sons of Reuben; Hanoch, and Phallu, and Hezron, and Carmi.

g Exod. 6. 15. 1 Chron. 4. 24. * Or, Nemuel. † Or, Jarib. ‡ Or, Zerah. ‖ Gen. 46. 24. h 1 Chr. 4. 1, 16. § Or, Gershom. ‖ 1 Chron. 2. 3. and 4. 21.

10 ¶ And g the sons of Simeon; * Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and † Jachin, and ‡ Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman.

11 ¶ And the sons of h Levi; § Gershon, Kohath, and Merari.

12 ¶ And the sons of ‖ Judah; Er, and Onan, and Shelah, and Pharez, and Zerah: But h Er and Onan died in the land of Canaan. And ‖ the sons of Pharez, were Hezron, and Hamul.

k Chap. 38. 3. 7. 10. 29. 30. l 1 Chron. 2. 5.

m 1 Chron. 7. 1. ‖ Or, Puah and Jashub.

13 ¶ m And the sons of Issachar; Tola, and ‖ Phuvah, and Job, and Shimron.

14 ¶ And the sons of Zebulun; Sered, and Elon, and Jahleel.

15 These be the sons of Leah, which she bare unto Jacob in Padan-aram, with his daughter Dinah: all the souls of his sons and his daughters were thirty and three.

n Num. 26. 15, &c. Zephon. * Or, Ozni. † Or, Arod.

16 ¶ And the sons of Gad; n Ziphion, and Haggai, Shuni, and * Ezbon, Eri, and † Arodi, and Areli.

o 1 Chron. 7. 30.

17 ¶ o And the sons of Asher; Jimnah, and Ishuah, and Ishui, and Beriah, and Serah their sister: And the sons of Beriah; Heber, and Malchiel.

p Chap. 30. 10. q Chap. 29. 24.

18 p These are the sons of Zilpah, q whom Laban gave to Leah his daughter: and these she bare unto Jacob, even sixteen souls.

19 ¶ The sons of Rachel r Jacob's wife; Joseph and Benjamin.

Before Christ 1706.

20 And unto Joseph in the land of Egypt were born Manasseh and Ephraim, s which Asenath the daughter of Potipherah ‡ priest of On bare unto him.

r Chap. 44. 27. s Chap. 41. 50. ‡ Or, prince.

21 ¶ t And the sons of Benjamin were Belah, and Becher, and Ashbel, Gera, and Naaman, u Ehi, and Rosh, x Muppim, and § Huppim, and Ard.

t 1 Chron. 7. 6. & 8. 1. u Numb. 26. 38, 39 Ahiram x Numb. 26. 39. Shupham. 1 Chron. 7. 12. Shuppim. § Hupham.

22 These are the sons of Rachel, which were born to Jacob: all the souls were fourteen.

y 1 Chron. 7. 12. ‖ Or, Shuham. Num. 26. 42.

23 ¶ y And the sons of Dan; ‖ Hushim.

24 z And the sons of Naphtali; Jahzeel, and Guni, and Jezer, and Shillem.

z 1 Chron. 7. 13.

25 a These are the sons of Bilhah, b which Laban gave unto Rachel his daughter, and she bare these unto Jacob: all the souls were seven.

a Chap. 30. 3. b Chap. 29. 29.

26 c All the souls that came with Jacob into Egypt, which came out of his * loins, besides Jacob's sons wives, all the souls were threescore and six;

c Exod. 1. 5. * Heb. thigh.

27 And the sons of Joseph which were born him in Egypt, were two souls: d all the souls of the house of Jacob, which came into Egypt, were threescore and ten.

d Deut. 10. 22. See Acts 7. 14.

28 ¶ And he sent Judah before him unto Joseph, to direct his face unto Goshen; and they came into the land of Goshen.

29 And Joseph made ready his chariot, and went up to meet Israel his father, to Goshen; and presented himself unto him: and he distance, and might have remained among the Canaanites, but they had all the motives which could induce them to leave Canaan, to look for dwellings in the country to which they were invited: Joseph, their near relation, who, though living and possessed of the chief authority in the kingdom, was unknown to them; the difficulties to which they were reduced led them to him; his forgiving them, his affection, his kind offer of the best part of the country; this offer, repeated by the king, and a command laid upon them to come and take possession of what was offered, the journey provided for, at the king's and Joseph's expence; food, clothes, money, carriages, and assurances of the most welcome reception was given them; and they were pressed by the consideration of the famine which Joseph had told them was yet to come, and the fears of their own sufferings in it; and they were drawn by affection and sympathy to live near to one who had shewn them so much good-will, and who had procured them such favour in the sight of the king. And thus does every motive concur with every one to accept of the invitation to an heavenly inheritance, to embrace the provision made for them in their way to it; and to receive everlasting life as the free gift of God, through Jesus Christ the Lord, of which none can be finally found to fall short, but such as neither believe what is told them of the sufferings to which they are exposed, or the great and endless benefits offered to them, though the very evidence and tokens of them are given into their own possession, and which all are guilty of despising who lose themselves, and are cast away.

V. 8. These are the names of the children of Israel which came into Egypt—This account shews the faithfulness of God in the performance of his promise concerning the multiplication of Abraham's seed, and that in so short a time; and distinguishes the tribes, which was necessary for the disposal of the kingdom and priesthood, and, above all, for the discovery of the true Messias.

V. 15. All the souls of his sons and his daughters were thirty and three—Dinah was all the daughters which Jacob had; all the souls, sons and daughters, being reckoned together with their father.

V. 26. All these souls were threescore and six—Exclusive of Jacob, the common parent, and Joseph and his two sons, as being in Egypt before Jacob's coming.

V. 28, 29. He sent Judah before him unto Joseph, to direct his face unto Goshen—To give notice to Joseph of his approach. Judah had freely offered himself to suffer in Benjamin's stead, and by doing so, to relieve Israel and all his family from the distress of the sentence from which Benjamin could not clear himself; and now Judah has the honourable office of going before Israel to direct him, and all his family, to the place prepared for them in the kingdom of Egypt. And this is the great and gracious office of Jesus, who redeemed his church by the shedding of his blood, to go before all the true Israel of God in all ages, and to prepare their places for them in the kingdom of glory, where they will be loved and honoured by God the father and the e So Luke 2. 29. 30 And Israel said unto Joseph, [e] Now let me die, since I have seen thy face, because thou art yet alive.

Son

Before Christ 1706. he fell on his neck, and wept on his neck a good while.

31 And Joseph said unto his brethren, and unto his father's house, I will go up, and shew Pharaoh, and say unto him, My brethren, and my father's house, which were in the land of Canaan, are come unto me:

* Heb. they are men of cattle. 32 And the men are shepherds, for * their trade hath been to feed cattle; and they have brought their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have.

Before Christ 1706.

33 And it shall come to pass when Pharaoh shall call you, and [i] shall say, What is your occupation?

i Chap. 47. 2, 3.

34 That ye shall say, Thy servants trade hath been about cattle, from our youth even until now, both we and also our fathers: that ye may dwell in the land of Goshen; for every shepherd is [g] an abomination unto the Egyptians.

g Chap. 43. 32. Exod. 8. 26.

CHAP.

Son, and dwell with the redeemed of the Lord for ever. Jesus, the promised Messiah and Saviour of men, came of Judah; and Joseph having now nearly served his generation as an eminent type of Jesus, the future discoveries of the character and gracious offices of the friend of men is to be looked for in the line of Judah; though some beautiful discoveries of what Jesus is, to all who come unto Him, still remain to be seen in Joseph, who made ready his chariot—prepared to go to meet his father, in a manner which publicly discovered to Pharaoh, and all about him, how he honoured and regarded Israel, though he came to him as a pilgrim and stranger on earth, without appearing to be any thing more in the sight of men than an aged shepherd. And thus is the Israel of God—every soul that has fled to Jesus, and lives to him, is honoured of his Father also. (John xii. 26.) And Joseph went up to meet Israel, and presented himself unto him, and he fell on his neck, and wept a good while—The manner in which Joseph went, shewed how much he honoured Israel, and the manner in which he met him, shewed how much he loved him; and considering the greatness of the nation, of which Joseph was then the head, and the apparent character of his aged father, and the situation of his family, whose very employment was looked upon with contempt by the people of Egypt; this conduct of Joseph's discovers the highest degree of that real greatness and solid worth, which they, and they only possess, who publicly own the despised Israel of God in every age or country, let them be looked upon as they may by all the world. And without some degree of this spirit of godly courage and integrity of mind, which shewed itself in Joseph, who would have attached themselves to Christ the Lord when he was on earth, in the character of a carpenter's son, when it was said of him, Where hath this man learned? He hath a devil—He deceiveth the people. And now he is at his father's right hand, in the highest glory in heaven, where it is that his followers may expect to appear in the eyes of men, in a more honourable light than the family of Israel did to all about them, when Joseph owned them for his nearest relations, and most honoured and beloved friends. When is it promised by the Lord Jesus, that those He loves and honours shall be looked upon as wiser and better than Himself, by all who live in the high-minded spirit of the Prince of that power, which influences the thoughts of every unrenewed mind? Christ's real followers may expect to be loved and honoured when his kingdom is come on earth, as it is established in heaven, where all men live to fulfil the law of Christ; then, and not till then, will they who love Him, and by his grace serve him most humbly and sincerely, be most loved and honoured by all about them; but till then, and so long as pride and natural self-will reigns in the minds of men, openly or secretly will the Israel of God—the spiritual worshippers of God in Christ Jesus, be looked upon like Israel's family and Jesus's followers; and they never can be truly loved, honoured, or owned, but where there is some degree of the same spirit of Jesus, which Joseph shewed himself possessed of, by discovering openly to all who knew him, that he honoured his father, and regarded his family as those that were the dearest to himself.

V. 30. Now let me die—Now I expect no greater happiness upon earth, and therefore am content to die. Now Israel's largest desires were satisfied, when he had embraced Joseph, and been received by him in the kingdom where he governed. And thus will it be with every follower of Israel's faith, when they are received into the kingdom of God, where their Saviour reigns: Their largest desires—the greatest immortal spirits feel will all be satisfied, and that fulness of joy, and all the sacred pleasures which are at God's right hand, will be possessed for evermore. (Psal. xvi. 11.)

V. 31. And Joseph said, I will go, and shew Pharaoh my brethren, and my father's house, which are come unto me—That the king, and all who know what reason they have to regard me, may regard you as my brethren and nearest kindred; and for this end I shall acknowledge you all before the king. And thus will Jesus, in his father's kingdom, confess all them that have fled to him for mercy, and been faithful to him to their death; that all heaven's hosts, who were bought by Jesus's blood, and supplied by his grace, may look upon and love every newly-arrived believer in glory, as one of the dear relatives of Jesus, their Saviour and their God.

V. 32, 33, 34. The men are shepherds—I inform you that I shall say what your employment has been, that you may know that I am not ashamed to own either your persons or your calling; and that you may have the satisfaction of knowing, that it is understood by all, that he is your friend, and holds the nearest relation to you, who is possessed of all the power of the government of the country in which you are come to live. And when Pharaoh shall call you—To inquire in what way you have been employed, you will at once confess to him what you have been, as well as those from whom you descended; and, though your profession is an abomination to the people of Egypt, yet the king will place you in the best of the land; and, as you have come to me, for my sake, the king himself, who, with me, invited you hither, will kindly regard you, as will all the subjects who love and honour the king; so that however blameable you have been brought to see you yourselves were, and though you may be despised by some, let not this distress you; for, at the time God sent me here before you, I passed through greater sufferings than you are exposed to, and had none to stand by me; but you, in whatever may befal you, I shall not fail to feel for you, who know myself what it is to suffer, and who am, at the same time, able to succour and relieve you. No wonder that the word of God, in the O'd Testament, was and is more precious than gold, or health, or life itself, to all whose understandings God has in any measure opened, to see the discoveries of life and salvation, which God has been pleased to make known to all who seek for them, though they are hid from us while we are choosing death in the error of our ways, and are counted foolishness by us so long as the wisdom of this world is high in our esteem. But who that has judged their ownselves by those laws of God, by which he will, after this life, judge all men, and have found themselves guilty, and have nothing but a fearful looking for of the wrath of an holy and just God of truth against them, who know themselves to have been impure, unjust, and guilty of a thousand false and deceitful words and actions—who that see themselves lost, and cut off from all hopes of seeing

CHAP. XLVII.

Before Christ 1706. THEN Joseph came and told Pharaoh, and said, My father, and my brethren, and their flocks, and their herds, and all that they have, are come out of the land of a Chap. 45. 10. Canaan; and behold, they are in [a] the land of Goshen.

2 And he took some of his brethren, even five men, and presented them unto Pharaoh.

3 And Pharaoh said unto his brethren, What is your occupation? And they said unb Chap. 46. 34. to Pharaoh, [b] Thy servants are shepherds, both we and also our fathers.

4 They said moreover unto Pharaoh, For to sojourn in the land are we come: for thy servants have no pasture for their flocks, for the famine is sore in the land of Canaan: now therefore, we pray thee, let thy servants dwell in the land of Goshen. Before Christ 1706.

5 And Pharaoh spake unto Joseph, saying, Thy father and thy brethren are come unto thee:

6 The land of Egypt is before thee: in the best of the land make thy father and brethren to dwell, in the land of Goshen let them dwell: and if thou knowest any man of activity amongst them, then make them rulers over my cattle.

7 And the face of God in peace, but, through a Mediator, can read the plain and easy information that is given us in the first part of the Scriptures, of the way which infinite wisdom and goodness has appointed to bring men to trust in his mercy, and to love and serve Him in this life, that they may one day be confessed among the true Israel of God, and, for the sake of Jesus their Redeemer, dwell for ever in his kingdom.

CHAP. XLVII.

V. 1. My father and my brethren, and all that they have—They have accepted of the invitation that was given them; and though such was thy good-will to them on my account, that they were told not to regard what they left behind, yet they considered themselves bound in duty, as subjects, to promote the prosperity of thy kingdom; and with themselves they have therefore brought here all they have; and this they have done, to shew that they confide in thee, and have not left themselves a single thing to wish or care for, but what is within the limits of thy dominions. They that set out to seek the kingdom of God, when once they come to the knowledge of him, on whose account they are only received into it, their confidence is in God through him, and trusting themselves to his mercy, they do not leave or lay up their treasures, when they know they never can return to have any benefit from it; but in his kingdom, who has graciously invited them, there they place their All. Joseph informed the king, that his father and his family were in the land of Goshen—Placed at a distance from the court, that, as little as possible, the Egyptians might not look upon them with envy, nor that the sons of Israel might be led, by seeing the dignity of their near relation's office, to leave their peaceful dwellings and employments, to climb the heights of worldly ambition, where they would be torn from within, and annoyed from without, by constant storms of their own and other men's vain and selfish passions, which, while they dwelt at a distance in humble life, would blow over their heads, and leave their minds calm and undisturbed, to listen to the gracious communications of the Spirit of God their Saviour, which, like himself, turns away when he is not received; and though he pities all, but few are relieved and blessed, because they will, though warned against it, mix with the crowd their Saviour shunned, and, with misled multitudes, throng the downward road, persuaded and persuading one another, that the rich and great, and all who follow closest after them, must be as directly in the way of advancement in the favour of heaven, as they are to promotion among men. (John v. 13, 44. Matth. vii. 13.)

V. 2. He took some—Of the meanest of them; for so the word is to be understood. Joseph did not present those sons of Israel, who, though shepherds, and brought up in the fields among cattle, yet had as much of dignity and comeliness in their appearance as kings and princes; these were not taken to court, but five of little outside shew, men lowly in heart and eye, and who would not presume, on account of their near relation to Joseph, then so honourable and useful to the king and nation, but who would, both in their carriage and in their answers, discover nothing contrary to the spirit of meekness; and, after returning from the sight of so much grandeur, would be subject to be the least hurt by entertaining ambitious views themselves, or infecting any of their family with the same sentiments; but being dead to the world, and having their hearts taken up with the glorious perfections of the God of Israel, they would shew the respect which religious minds find themselves bound to pay to those the providence of God has placed in authority, and, at the same time, look upon all the glare of a court, (as dying men ought) whose glory, in the highest stations, is but as the flower of the grass which soon fadeth away, (1 Pet. i. 24.) and so, in giving an account of what they had seen to their brethren, would mix their relation with true and suitable reflections. And Joseph thus introducing five of the least of his brethren, would be sufficient to assure all the rest how much they might depend upon his acknowledging his relation to them, when any necessity of theirs should give them occasion to apply to them. And by Joseph acknowledging the least and the humblest, it was the means of conveying to all Israel's family the knowledge of a truth, of more moment to their happiness than all the riches of Egypt—That the kingdom of heaven is theirs who are poor in spirit. (Matth. v. 3.) And thus did Joseph set before his brethren that example which Jesus gave his disciples, (John xiii.) that the humblest among men were the first in his favour, because that is the state of mind to which he can only communicate his grace. The world of nature and of grace, how opposed! with God the truly humble only are received; with the natural world, humble designs and humble labours are considered as so many marks of meanness: With God every soul of man, so far as it is proved, (and it may be so of the name of humility) it is resisted by God. In our natural esteem, high designs, and high attempts to raise a name, a family, or to get a step higher among men, is a laudable ambition. The God of all grace can only shew how much a human soul stands in need of being renewed by his spirit, when it thinks that right to which God is unalterably opposed—pride.

V. 3. Thy servants are shepherds, both we and also our fathers—This employment is not taken up by us in design or in contempt of thee or thy people, but was handed down to us by our fathers, and hath been our business to this day.

V. 4. To sojourn in the land are we come—Not to defraud thy people of their lands and habitations, but only to be here for a season, as strangers and sojourners, till we can conveniently return to our own land. The famine is sore in the land of Canaan—Which being an higher ground than Egypt, and watered in a manner only by rain from heaven, feels more the effects of drought and scarcity than Egypt.

V. 6. The land of Egypt is before thee—To view it, and take thy choice where thou pleasest; it is in thy power.

V. 7. Jacob

Before Christ 1706.

7 And Joseph brought in Jacob his father, and set him before Pharaoh: and Jacob blessed Pharaoh.

8 And Pharaoh said unto Jacob, * How old art thou?

* Heb. How many are the days of the years of thy life?

9 And Jacob said unto Pharaoh, [c] The days of the years of my pilgrimage are an hundred and thirty years: few and evil have the days of the years of my life been, and have not attained unto the days of the years of the life of my fathers in the days of their pilgrimage.

c Heb. 11. 9, 13.

10 And Jacob blessed Pharaoh, and went out from before Pharaoh.

11 ¶ And Joseph placed his father and his brethren, and gave them a possession in the land of Egypt, in the best of the land, [d] in the land of Rameses, as Pharaoh had commanded.

d Exod. 1. 11. & 12. 37.

12 And Joseph nourished his father, and his brethren, and all his father's household with bread, † ‡ according to their families.

† Or, as a little child is nourished.
‡ Heb. according to the little ones.

13 ¶ And there was no bread in all the land: for the famine was very sore, so that the land of Egypt, and all the land of Canaan, fainted by reason of the famine.

14 And Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, for the corn which they bought: and Joseph brought the money into Pharaoh's house.

Before Christ 1706.

15 And when money failed in the land of Egypt, and in the land of Canaan, all the Egyptians came unto Joseph, and said, Give us bread: for why should we die in thy presence? for the money faileth.

1702.

16 And Joseph said, Give your cattle; and I will give you for your cattle, if money fail.

17 And they brought their cattle unto Joseph: and Joseph gave them bread in exchange for horses, and for the flocks, and for the cattle of the herds, and for the asses; and he ‡ fed them with bread, for all their cattle, for that year.

‡ Heb. led them.

18 When that year was ended, they came unto him the second year, and said unto him, We will not hide it from my lord, how that our money is spent, my lord also hath our herds of cattle; there is not ought left in the sight of my lord, but our bodies, and our lands.

19 Wherefore

V. 7. Jacob blessed Pharaoh—Not in an authoritative way, as the greater blesseth the less; but he saluted him, thanked him for all his favours to him and his, and prayed to God to bless and recompense him for it.

V. 9. The years of my pilgrimage—Of my unsettled life, in which I have been flitting from place to place. And have not attained unto the years of my fathers—Though I seem old in comparison of thy people, yet I fall much short of my progenitors, Isaac, and Abraham, and Terah.

V. 11. And Joseph placed his father and his brethren in the land of Rameses—A part of the land of Goshen. The Israelites were not now numerous enough to possess the whole land of Goshen which was given them, but contented themselves with a part of it, leaving the rest to the management of the Egyptians, and therefore, when they encreased greatly, they were forced to spread their habitations amongst the Egyptians.

V. 12. Joseph nourished his father and his brethren, according to their families—As much as every one desired, without any restraint: Or, according to the manner of a little child, it was brought to them without any more care or pains of theirs, than an infant takes for its food. When Joseph first invited his father and his brethren to come to him, (chap. xlv. 11.) he told them that he would place them in the land of Goshen, and there he would nourish them; and that promise is now fulfilled: they acted in confidence of his word, and he did not fail them in the time of their sore necessity. And those whom Jesus invites to come unto Him, he promises to nourish; and none ever find his promise fail, who trust him in the ways of his holy will; all surely comes to pass which the Lord says: (Josh. xxiii. 14.) and as Joseph nourished all the family of Israel in Egypt, so does Christ Jesus charge himself with supplying the necessary wants of all that believe in Him; and as Joseph only had the possession and disposal of the supplies of life, to all the people under his government, so only are the spiritual wants, heavenly mindedness, and resignation to the will of God, to be supplied out of that fulness which is in Christ Jesus the Lord, for all that look unto Him; and the bread of everlasting life is no more to be obtained by any other means, or from any other than the ONE Mediator between God and man, than bread was to be obtained in the kingdom where Joseph governed, from any other than Joseph. And this state of entire dependance, in which the house of Israel, and all Egypt, were living for their daily bread from Joseph, resembles that dependance in which every soul of man can only be happy in placing in God their Saviour for every good and perfect gift. (James i. 17.)

V. 13. The land of Egypt, and all the land of Canaan, fainted by reason of the famine—That singular providence of God which watcheth over kings and rulers, and stilleth the tumults of the people, and prevented their rising to take the corn by force; and Joseph had, no doubt, foreseen this difficulty, and took due care to prevent it, by not permitting the people to despair or come to the utmost extremity, but giving them relief in all their exigencies.

V. 14. Joseph gathered up all the money that was found in the land of Egypt—Wherein he did no more than any of the subjects might have done: he bought great store of corn in the plentiful years with the king's money, and kept it till a time of famine, and sold it at a rate which was agreeable to the season.

V. 15. Why should we die—Why shouldest thou see and suffer us to perish for our want of money, when thou canst relieve us? All are obliged to apply to Joseph, or perish: The proudest subjects in Egypt were obliged to come to him for relief, who first came among them in the form of a servant, and was sold by the offence of his brethren. So must all come unto Jesus, who came among men in the form of a servant, and was sold, betrayed, and crucified: there is salvation in no other, and every one of the human race will, all their life-time, be subject to the bondage of some sinful temper, passion, or desire, that will destroy their peace, till they are humbly content to come unto the Prince of Peace, to find that life and health to their souls, which Jesus, the bread of life, can only give.

V. 18. They came unto him the second year—This seems to have been Before Christ 1702. 19 Wherefore shall we die before thine eyes, both we and our land? buy us and our land for bread, and we and our land will be servants unto Pharaoh: and give us seed, that we may live and not die, that the land be not desolate.

1701. 20 And Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh; for the Egyptians sold every man his field, because the famine prevailed over them: so the land became Pharaoh's.

21 And as for the people, he removed them to cities from one end of the borders of Egypt, even to the other end thereof.

e Ezra 7. 24. § Or, princes. 22 e Only the land of the § priests bought he not: for the priests had a portion assigned them of Pharaoh, and did eat their portion which Pharaoh gave them; wherefore they sold not their lands.

23 Then Joseph said unto the people, Behold, I have bought you this day, and your land for Pharaoh: lo, here is seed for you, and ye shall sow the land. Before Christ 1701.

24 And it shall come to pass in the increase, that you shall give the fifth part unto Pharaoh, and four parts shall be your own, for seed of the field, and for your food, and for them of your households, and for food for your little ones.

25 And they said, Thou hast saved our lives: let us find grace in the sight of my lord, and we will be Pharaoh's servants.

26 And Joseph made it a law over the land of Egypt unto this day, that Pharaoh should have the fifth part; except the land of the ‖ priests only, which became not Pharaoh's. ‖ Or, princes.

27 ¶ And

been the last year of the famine, because he now gives them corn for food, and for seed too.

V. 19. Wherefore shall we die before thine eyes—Whilst thou lookest upon us like an idle spectator, not pitying and relieving us! Just and merciful as Joseph's character was, the Egyptians thought Joseph did not care for them, who only could relieve them; and this is the great unhappiness in this life of all that know not God, they think God does not regard their afflictions. How different the state of the poorest of Israel's family, who were assured of Joseph's regard for them, as all who know Jesus, know that he careth for them, and that his compassions fail not; and knowing Him to be the God of all grace and of providence, they have that confidence He will never leave them nor forsake them, which every one of the family of Israel had in Joseph. Those that have fellowship with God their Saviour (1 John i. 3.) live without fear, casting all their care upon God, and are happy under the same circumstances in which others are miserable, saying, with the people of Egypt, shall we die in thy sight, unpitied and unrelieved? We and our land will be servants unto Pharaoh—Pharaoh shall be the sole proprietor, and we are content to be his tenants, to manage it for his use. All that a man has he will give for his life: they, who in the days in which they think not of death, will remain at a distance from the only deliverer from death; but when the hour of extreme distress arrives, then will they give up all, and themselves to His service, who only has power to save them. But what if death should meet us at a distance from Him, and so in love with what we must leave behind us, that we would not give them up, or ourselves, to Him who has all the right of Creator, Preserver, and Redeemer, both to us and ours? Give us seed—Because this was the last year of famine, as Joseph informed them, and therefore they tilled and sowed the ground for the following year. That the land be not desolate—Without inhabitants, as it will be if thou sufferest us to die for want of bread.

V. 20. Joseph bought all the land of Egypt for Pharaoh—And he that died for the sins of the world, purchased the world, and with it His right to reign over all; and whilst we do not choose Him to reign over our hearts by his grace, and to conduct our whole designs and actions by his will, we rob God of his right, and are guilty of the highest injustice, as well as of disobedience.

V. 21. The people, he removed them—Far from their native soil and ancient patrimonies, that none of them might plead prescription, but that all might be forced to acknowledge that they owed their estates not to their own industry, nor to their parents gift, but wholly to the king's favour.

V. 22. The land of the priests bought he not—Under this name he understands chiefly those who administered to the worship of the gods or idols of Egypt, and those who applied themselves to the study of the arts and virtues, called their wisemen and magicians. Joseph knew that the wrath of man did not work the righteousness of the true God in the minds of men; he would not, therefore, take the lands which were set apart for the use of religious persons, lest the owners of them should look upon it as persecution in Joseph, and by their doing so, have their prejudices against real religion increased.

V. 23. Joseph said, Behold, I have bought you: here is seed for you—Now you are become mine by purchase, I am bound to provide for my own, and here is seed for you. O! when shall we learn to know the blessed security there is in belonging to Him who is governor of both worlds: the ancient followers of Jesus knew what they said, when they answered,—I am a Christian—I am a believer in Jesus Christ who was crucified—He is my God, and the blessedness I have in Him here, I know I shall have in Him for ever; and I know it is my happiness, as much as it is my duty, to confess I belong to Him who bought me with his blood, though my confession may cost me my life.

V. 24. You shall give the fifth part unto Pharaoh, and four parts shall be your own—The king has no occasion for what you have, the cattle upon all the plains of Egypt are his, and the whole kingdom is in his power; but now you have given all you have up to me, I only wanted to win your hearts to the king, and to unite him to you: what you required I gave you, and now I restore you all, only reserving a part for the king's use, which he does not mean to exact from you as an hard master from slaves; the fifth give to the king freely, that he may love you for your loyalty, and you obtain an increase in his favour every time you pay your tribute to him.

V. 25. Thou hast saved our lives—We own ourselves to thee, and thine we are, let us find grace in thy sight, on whose favour our All depends; be thou our friend with Pharaoh, and we will be his servants. Well may the redeemed of the Lord say, We are not our own, we are bought with a price—give us but Thy grace, by which we can only live in peace, and we will live to God, and be His servants.

V. 26. Joseph made it a law—The propriety of the land should be Pharaoh's, and that in token thereof the people should pay the fifth part of the produce of it to Pharaoh. As Joseph was the law-giver in the kingdom of Egypt, so is Jesus the law-giver to all the world; and it is His law we are required to fulfil. (Gal. vi. 2.)

V. 27. Israel

Before Christ 1701. 27 ¶ And Israel dwelt in the land of Egypt, in the country of Goshen; and they had possessions therein, and grew, and multiplied exceedingly.

28 And Jacob lived in the land of Egypt seventeen years: so * the whole age of Jacob was an hundred forty and seven years.

1689. * Heb. the days of the years of his life.

29 And the time drew nigh that Israel must die: and he called his son Joseph, and said unto him, If now I have found grace in thy sight, [i] put, I pray thee, thy hand under my thigh, and deal kindly and truly with me; [g] bury me not, I pray thee, in Egypt.

i Chap. 24. 2.

g So Chap. 50. 25.

30 But I will lie with my fathers, and thou shalt carry me out of Egypt, and [h] bury me in their burying-place. And he said, I will do as thou hast said.

h Chap. 49. 29.

31 And he said, Swear unto me: And he sware unto him. And [i] Israel bowed himself upon the bed's head.

i Chap. 48. 2. 1 Kings 1. 47. Heb. 11. 21.

CHAP. XLVIII.

1689. AND it came to pass after these things, that one told Joseph, Behold, thy father is sick: and he took with him his two sons, Manasseh and Ephraim.

2 And one told Jacob, and said, Behold, thy son Joseph cometh unto thee: and Israel strengthened himself, and sat upon the bed.

Before Christ 1689.

3 And Jacob said unto Joseph, God Almighty appeared unto me at [a] Luz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me, a Chap. 28. 13. and 35. 6.

4 And said unto me, Behold, I will make thee fruitful, and multiply thee, and I will make of thee a multitude of people, and will give this land to thy seed after thee, for an everlasting possession.

5 ¶ And now thy [b] two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, which were born unto thee in the land of Egypt, before I came unto thee into Egypt, are mine: as Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine.

b Chap 41. 50. and 46. 20. Josh. 13. 7. and 14. 4.

6 And thy issue which thou begettest after them, shall be thine, and shall be called after the name of their brethren in their inheritance.

7 ¶ And as for me, when I came from Padan, [c] Rachel died by me in the land of Canaan, in the way, when yet there was but a little way to come unto Ephrath: and I buried her there in the way of Ephrath, the same is Beth-lehem.

c Chap. 35. 19.

8 And

V. 27. Israel dwelt in the land, and they had possessions—Lands, not for the dominion or property of them, for that rested in Pharaoh, but for the use and profit of them for their present use. God only is the Possessor of heaven and earth, and men have but the use of the earth for a season, and then, though they may call it their own, they are to resign it to God, who gave it to them, then he gives it to whom it pleases him. Israel grew, and multiplied exceedingly—They grew in strength, and multiplied in number. And when the Israel of God are placed where he would have them, and are nourished by him as Jacob's family was by Joseph, they go on from strength to strength, getting power over the sin which did beset them, walking in the ways of God with delight; and others seeing their blameless useful lives, they are won to the Lord, and Israel's family multiplies exceedingly.

V. 29. Israel called Joseph, and said, put thy hand under my thigh—Swear to me by the promised Seed—The holy one of God my Redeemer.

V. 30 I will lie with my fathers—Abraham and Isaac in Canaan. Which he desired not so much for himself, as knowing that wherever he was buried, he shold rise to glory, as for his children, to shew his own, and confirm their faith in God's promise of Canaan, to discover his high valuation of that land not only for itself, but as it was a type and pledge of the heavenly inheritance, to keep his children's minds and hearts loose from Egypt, a place of so much sin and danger, and fixed upon Canaan, that they might be more willing to go thither when God called them.

V. 31. Israel bowed himself—To God, who is here to be understood, whom with this gesture he worshipped and praised for the promise of Canaan, and the assurance which he had now received from Joseph of his being buried there, so for all his favours to him and to Joseph, and by him to all his family. Jacob being now to give God solemn thanks, though the words and manner of it be not here expressed, he raised himself, and sat upon the head or upper part of his bed, that he might express his reverence to God as much as he could, by bowing, when he could not do it as much as he would, being unable to do it kneeling.

CHAP. XLVIII.

V. 1. Joseph took with him his two sons—To obtain his venerable and religious father's blessing for them.

V. 2. Israel strengthened himself—He got new strength, his spirits being quickened and refreshed by the tidings of Joseph's approach, and he put forth all the strength which he had. They that hear, think, or believe, that he whom their soul loveth is approaching, they with Israel strengthen themselves, that they may quit themselves as it becomes believers in a merciful Saviour, that their weakest and last moments may speak good of his name. The Romans drew no man's character till he was dead: To die as becomes a Christian, is the greatest proof that the life has been hid with Christ in God. Nearer than Joseph was to Jacob, is Jesus to all that look to him for life and support; and if the presence of a beloved son made an ancient saint strengthen himself, what ought not his presence do, who is every where present and Almighty to save? When as near as Israel now was to that change, which is so soon to take place with all the living, how important will it then be to know in whom we have believed, and to whom we can commit ourselves, and all we leave behind, as to a faithful Creator and Redeemer: As important as it will be in that day, it may be in this day, because now the messenger may be nigh at hand, who is finally to tell me—This is not thy continuing city.

V. 3. And Jacob said, God Almighty appeared unto me, and blessed me—These were the first words of dying Israel to his beloved Joseph;—that he knew God for himself, and could tell the place where God blessed him, and in whose never-failing goodness he now rested in full confidence of hope, and assurance of what God had then promised to him.

V. 4. I will give this land to thy seed—To all the heirs of Abraham's faith.

V. 5. Thy sons are mine—By adoption I shall own them as if they were my immediate children, and each of them shall have equal share both in my present estate and future inheritance of Canaan, with the rest of my children.

V. 6. The Scriptures do not mention that Joseph had any other sons but these.

Before Christ 1689.

8 And Israel beheld Joseph's sons, and said, Who are these?

9 And Joseph said unto his father, They are my sons, whom God hath given me in this place: And he said, Bring them, I pray thee, unto me, and I will bless them.

d Chap. 27. 1. * Heb. heavy.

10 (Now d the eyes of Israel were * dim for age, so that he could not see:) And he brought them near unto him; and he kissed them, and embraced them.

11 And Israel said unto Joseph, I had not thought to see thy face: and lo, God hath shewed me also thy seed.

12 And Joseph brought them out from between his knees, and he bowed himself with his face to the earth.

13 And Joseph took them both, Ephraim in his right hand towards Israel's left hand, and Manasseh in his left hand towards Israel's right hand, and brought them near unto him.

14 And Israel stretched out his right hand, and laid it upon Ephraim's head, who was the younger, and his left hand upon Manasseh's head: guiding his hands wittingly; for Manasseh was the first-born.

Before Christ 1689.

e Heb. it. 21.

15 ¶ And e he blessed Joseph, and said, God, f before whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac did walk, the God which fed me all my life long unto this day,

f Chap. 17. 1. and 24. 40.

g Chap. 28 15. & 31. 11, 13.

16 The Angel g which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads; and let my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac: and let them † grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth.

† Heb. as fishes do increase. See Num. 26. 3, 37.

17 And when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him: and he held up his father's hand, to remove it from Ephraim's head unto Manasseh's head.

18 And

V. 7. Rachel died by me—Beside me, near me, before mine eyes, I seeing, but not being able to help her; which makes the remembrance of it more grievous to me. The sight of Joseph and his children brought his beloved Rachel to his remembrance. Rachel was his first rightful wife, and therefore the right of the first-born was truly Joseph's.

V. 8. Israel said, Who are these—Jacob's eyes were dim through age and infirmity.

V. 9. Joseph said, They are my sons, whom God hath given me—Joseph still acknowledges God to be the giver of all his mercies. Bring them, and I will bless them—Not with a common, but with a prophetical blessing, in the name and by the spirit of God, praying for, and foretelling those blessings, which God will confer upon them.

V. 11. Israel said, I had not thought to see thy face: lo, God hath shewed me also thy seed—One day I did not so much as expect to see thee, but how has God exceeded all my expectations.

V. 12. Between his knees—Between which they stood, whilst Jacob embraced them. He bowed himself—Testifying his reverence to his father, his thankfulness, and his humble and earnest request for his blessing upon them.

V. 14. Israel stretched out his right hand, and laid it upon Ephraim's head, who was the younger—Why is the younger again preferred to the elder?—Not because God (whose mercy is over all his works) loved one and hated the other; but to teach mankind, from the history of the church in this its early state, that Israel's strength and consolation can only rest upon the second-born sons of grace; they that are born of the Spirit unto God; dying unto that sinful nature, in which all men are first born into the world; thus keeping that distinction alive, and in the memories of mankind, on which all depends. That to be spiritually minded is life and peace; and to shew us, that the right hand of the God of Israel rests upon all, in every age and country, who worship God in spirit and in truth; while resting in a state of death and separation from God, is to be carnally minded; not that God delighteth in the death of one son of sinful Adam; but to convince us in every possible way, that the blessings of the divine life are only to be received by them, who look for them in and through the second Adam—Christ Jesus the Lord, who is thus continually pointed to in these representations, that he may become our present and everlasting peace, who had power with God to purchase our pardon, the sure forerunner of peace from God.

V. 15. He blessed Joseph—Not now in his person, but in his children, which yet is called here a blessing of Joseph, because they were a part of himself. In which sense, the land of Canaan is said to be not only promised, but given to Abraham and Isaac; not as if they were in person to possess it, but because it should be given to their children. The God which fed me all my life long unto this day—The God which has supplied all my wants, and done me good in such unlooked-for ways; how am I bound to ascribe all my mercies to him, both spiritual and temporal! for the ways in which God hath led me, to feel my need of his grace, have been such as, with all my power, I would have shunned; and thus has it also been with the supply he has given me of all temporal blessings; they have never failed me: And what praise shall I render to his goodness, that he did not withdraw all my mercies from me, when I limited the Almighty, and thought with myself, he surely could not bless me in the way that he took! but now I see all was evil in me, all goodness in him; and, as a tender parent watches over, and supplies the wants of an helpless restless infant, so has God, in faithfulness and mercy, fed me all my life long to this day.

V. 16. The angel—Not a created angel, but Christ Jesus, who is called an angel, (Exod. xxiii. 20.) and the angel of the covenant, (Mal. iii. 1.) who was the conductor of the Israelites in the wilderness, as (1 Cor. x. 4, 9.) this angel is called Jacob's Redeemer, which is the title appropriated by God to himself, (Isa. xliii. 14. and xlvii. 4.) and that from all evil, and therefore from the nature and being of sin, from which no created angel can deliver us, but Christ only, (Matt. i. 21.) and that Jacob worshippeth and prayeth to this Angel no less than to God for the blessing, and that without any note of distinction, the word bless being in the singular number, and equally relating to God and to the angel; and that the Angel to whom he here ascribes his deliverances from all evil, must in all reason be the same to whom he prayed for these very deliverances which he here commemorates, and that was no other than the very God of Abraham, (Gen. xxviii. 15. 20, 21, and xxxii. 9, 10, 11, and xxxv. 3.) Let my name be named on them—i. e. Let them be called my name, owned for my immediate children, and invested with the same privileges with my other children, be the heads of distinct tribes, and, as such, receive distinct inheritances. And hence they are called the children of Jacob or Israel, no less than the children of Joseph. The name of my fathers, Abraham and Isaac—Let them be called their children; let them not

Before Christ 1689.

18 And Joseph said unto his father, Not so, my father: for this is the first-born; put thy right hand upon his head.

19 And his father refused, and said, I know it, my son, I know it; he also shall become a people, and he also shall be great; but truly [h] his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a † multitude of nations.

h Num. 1. 33, 35. 8. 2. 19, 21. Deut. 33. 17. Rev. 7. 6. 8.
† Heb. fulness.

20 And he blessed them that day, saying, [i] In thee shall Israel bless, saying, God make thee as Ephraim, and as Manasseh: and he set Ephraim before Manasseh.

i So Ruth 4. 11, 12.

21 And Israel said unto Joseph, Behold, I die; but God shall be with you, and bring you again unto the land of you fathers.

22 Moreover, [k] I have given to thee one portion above thy brethren, which I took out of the hand [l] of the Amorite with my sword and with my bow.

Before Christ 1689.

k Josh. 24. 32. John 4. 5. 1 Chap. 15. 16. & 34. 22.

CHAP. XLIX.

AND Jacob called unto his sons, and said, Gather yourselves together, that I may tell you that which shall befal you [a] in the last days.

a Deut. 4. 30. Num. 24. 14. Isa. 2. 2. & 38. 9. 16. Jer. 23. 20. Dan. 2. 28. Acts 2. 17. Heb. 1. 2.

2 Gather yourselves together, and hear, ye sons of Jacob; and hearken unto Israel your father.

3 ¶ Reuben, thou art [b] my first-born, my might, [c] and the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power.

b Chap. 29. 32.
c Deut. 21. 17. Psal. 78. 51.

4 Unstable

not only have my blessing, but the blessings of Abraham and Isaac; let all meet together upon their heads; and let that gracious covenant of God made with Abraham, and confirmed with Isaac and me, be ratified and made good unto them. And only let them look for all their mercies for the sake of that seed that was promised to Adam, and repeated to Abraham, and Isaac my father, and they shall be equally blessed.

V. 17. And when Joseph saw that his father laid his right hand upon the head of Ephraim, it displeased him—Because of that natural affection which parents generally have for their first-born, (Gen. xxi. 11.) Here for a moment Joseph, that man of God, forgot, that grace, not natural affection, must govern. He was displeased with the conduct of his venerable father, who was then under the guidance of God's spirit into depths of divine wisdom, which Joseph did not so much as comprehend. With what caution are the actions of those to be considered, who are grown old in God's good service? Their conduct, like Israel's, may have in it a depth of religious design, which God does not enable any of their sons to see into.

V. 18. Not so, my father: this is the first-born—Suffer me, my father, to correct thy mistake. The words, my father, shew that Joseph spake with the greatest reverence, when he informed Israel of what he thought his error. The displeasure which Joseph first felt, had now given place to that grace which is the author of all respect, so much the duty of every one to pay to all the aged; but especially to those who have arrived at hoary hairs in religious labours: If it is held so high a crime to offend one of those infant followers of Israel's faith, (Luke xvii 2.) what must we appear in his sight, when we wilfully give any just cause for a father in Israel being offended with us? What occasion is there for every one to live every moment by faith in God, doing every thing to him? Nothing but this can surely preserve souls, that would be devoted to God in active lives, from piercing themselves through with many sorrows.

V. 19. His father refused, and said, I know it, my son, I know it—All Israel's affection to his beloved Joseph, and all the kindness he had received from him, would not procure this favour from Israel, to give the blessing as Joseph desired to his first-born. Israel knew the mind of God his Redeemer; and whatever he might feel in refusing the request of one he loved so much, yet one thing was but needful for Israel to do—that was, to obey his Maker's will on earth, that he might continue in the way to glory, where duty will be all delight, unmixed with one cross or pain, or fear of offending those we love for ever. What name shall be given to this real greatness of mind, which here shews itself in Israel! The son he loved, a minister of state, asking what to reason appeared to be no more than a father's duty; but Israel, firm and unmoved from HIM whom he knew and loved, appears not to have doubted for a moment, whether he should comply with all the motives he had for granting what Joseph requested, or obey him whom by faith he saw. He refused his beloved son, and friend, and the helper of his family, and obeyed what he knew to be the will of God. Truly his younger brother shall be greater than he——So the tribe of Ephraim was both in number, (Deut. xxxiii. 17.) and in power and privileges. The name of Ephraim is sometimes put for all the ten tribes, (Isa. vii. 2.) and sometimes for Joseph himself, (Numb i. 32.) which Manasseh never is. His seed shall become a multitude of nations—Equal to many nations, in number and strength.

V. 20. In thee shall Israel bless—In thee, in thy seed, using their names in the form of blessing, as eminent examples of blessedness.

V. 21. Israel said, behold I die—I am about to die. The present time for that which will shortly and certainly be. God shall be with you—This is your greatest blessing; on this all the rest depend. Who shall rob them of peace and blessedness, who are followers of God as dear children? To the land of your fathers—Canaan, their land. By habitation, as Nazareth is called Christ's country, because he dwelt in it; and theirs by the donation of God, who had promised, and would in his time give the actual possession of it to them, and to their seed.

V. 22. I have given to thee—I give to thee the right, and God will give unto thy son Ephraim, or his posterity, who shall possess this part over and above that portion which shall fall to him by lot. This was all the land which Jacob had in Canaan, which he here gives to Joseph, partly in testimony of his great affection and obligation to him: Partly as a sign that he did confer the right of the first-born upon him: And partly for the confirmation of the faith of Joseph and his brethren, and to oblige them to set up their rest no where, but in Canaan. One portion—The word is Shechem, which signifies choice and good. Jacob was a man of peace; yet his sons were warriors, and they by his permission might drive out by their arms those straggling Canaanites which had taken possession of his purchase, Jacob being the more willing to recover his right, because it was an earnest of his future possession of the whole land.

CHAP. XLIX.

V. 1. That which shall befal you in the last days—In the latter days, when you shall enter into, and be settled in, the land of promise.

V. 3. Reuben, thou art—The first of my children. The excellency of dignity—As first-born thou hadst the right of precedency before all thy brethren.

V. 4. Unstable as water—Unstable, light, and vain; thy posterity shall be unstable, coming to nothing. Here is a description,

of

Before Christ 1689.

4 Unſtable as water, * [d] thou ſhalt not excel, becauſe thou [e] wenteſt up to thy father's bed: then defiledſt thou it: § he went up to my couch.

5 ¶ [i] Simeon and Levi are brethren: ‖ [g] inſtruments of cruelty are in their habitations.

6 O my ſoul, come not thou into their ſecret; unto their aſſembly, [h] mine honour, be not thou united: for [i] in their anger they ſlew a man, and in their ſelf-will they ‡ digged down a wall.

7 Curſed be their anger, for it was fierce; and their wrath, for it was cruel: [k] I will divide them in Jacob, and ſcatter them in Iſrael.

8 ¶ [l] Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren ſhall praiſe; [m] thy hand ſhall be in the neck of thine enemies: [n] thy father's children ſhall bow down before thee.

9 Judah is a lion's whelp; from the prey, my ſon, thou art gone up: [o] he ſtooped down, he couched as a lion, and as an old lion; who ſhall rouſe him up?

10 [p] The ſceptre ſhall not depart from Judah, nor [q] a law-giver from between his feet, [r] until Shiloh come, [s] and unto him ſhall the gathering of the people be.

11 Binding his foſe unto the vine, and his aſs's colt unto the choice vine; he waſhed his garments in wine, and his clothes in the blood of grapes.

12 His

* Heb. do not thou excel.
d 1 Chro. 5. 1.
e Chap. 35. 22. 1 Chro. 5. 1.
§ Or, my couch is gone.
i Chap. 29. 33, 34.
‡ Or, their ſwords are weapons of violence.
g Chap. 27. 3.
h Pſal. 16. 9.
i Chap. 34. 25.
‡ Or, houghed oxen.
k Joſh. 10. 1. & 21. 5, 6, 7. 1 Chro. 4. 24, 39.
l Chap. 29. 35.

Before Christ 1689.

m Pſa. 18. 40. n 1 Chro. 5. 2.
o Num. 23. 24. & 24. 9.
p Num. 24. 17. Jer. 30. 21. Zech. 10. 11.
q Pſal. 60. 7. & 108. 8. or, Num. 21. 18.
r Ezek. 21. 27. Luke 1. 32.
s Hag. 2. 7.

of Reuben's excellent ſtate to which he was born, and of his fall from that ſtate, thou ſhalt not excell; thou haſt loſt thy birth-right both for thyſelf and for thy poſterity, and it ſhall be given to others, the prieſthood to Levi, the dominion to Judah, and the double portion to Joſeph. He went up—Turning his ſpeech and face from Reuben to his brethren. Which is not imputed to Jacob's paſſion, but to the ſpirit of God, for terror, inſtruction, and caution to all others, and to aſſure them that ſin, though it may be long borne with, yet it will be brought to judgment.

V. 5. Simeon and Levi are brethren—Not only by nature, but in iniquity, of like cruel and bloody diſpoſition, confederate in the ſame wicked deſign. Inſtruments of cruelty are in their habitations—(i. e.) They covered their bloody deſign with a pretence of an agreement with the Sichemites, which was a great aggravation of their crime, that thoſe things which, to others, are bonds of love and peace, were made by them inſtruments of cruelty.

V. 6. O my ſoul, come not thou into their ſecret—Counſel, or company, do not partake with them in their ſecret and wicked deſigns. Mine honour—Let not my good name be bound up with theirs.

V. 7. Curſed be their anger—It was abominable both before God and men, ſuch as deſerved and brought the curſe of God upon themſelves, which I, as God's inſtrument, am now to pronounce againſt them. I will divide them in Iſrael—I here declare they ſhall be divided and diſperſed among the tribes. A very great number of them were forced to ſcatter themſelves amongſt the other tribes to get a ſubſiſtence.

V. 8. Judah—Thou art Judah, thy brethren ſhall praiſe thee. As thy name ſignifies praiſe, ſo ſhalt thou have praiſe from thy brethren. Thou art deſervedly called Judah, not only becauſe thy mother praiſed God for thee, but alſo becauſe thy brethren ſhall praiſe and bleſs thee. But this, as alſo the other bleſſings, do not ſo much declare the ſtate of Judah, or the reſt, in their own perſons as in their poſterity. Thy hand—Thou ſhalt overthrow and ſubdue. This was fulfilled in David and Solomon, and moſt eminently, though ſpiritually, in Chriſt.

V. 9. As a lion—Theſe bleſſings were not diſtributed according to Jacob's affections and inclinations, for then Judah ſhould never have been advanced above his beloved Joſeph, but by the direction of God's ſpirit, for courage, and ſtrength, and terror to his enemies. He is compared firſt to a lion's whelp, then to an old lion, to ſignify the growth of that tribe in ſtrength, that from ſmall beginnings it ſhould aſcend to the height of honour, and power, and happineſs in David, and eſpecially in the Meſſiah, who ſhould conquer all nations. When he had taken the prey, he doth not convey it away with haſte for fear, but, like a lion, he ſtoops down to feed upon his prey. Judah's conqueſts ſhall not be followed with ill ſucceſſes, and defeats or overthrows afterward, as it frequently happens in the courſe of war, but he ſhall quietly poſſeſs his ſpoils, and after the bloody wars to which he will be forced, ſhall enjoy a ſweet peace and tranquillity. Who ſhall rouſe him up—Who ſhall dare to diſturb or provoke him? All ſhall fear him, and ſeek peace with him.

V. 10. The ſceptre—The dominion or government which is expreſſed by this word, becauſe it is an enſign of government. The ſcene is, That ſuperiority or dominion over his brethren, which I ſaid he ſhould obtain, he ſhall keep, it ſhall not depart from him. The other tribes ſhall be captivated, diſperſed, and confounded; the tribe of Judah ſhall be kept entire and diſtinct until Chriſt come. This is a ſingular demonſtration of the truth and divine authority of the Scriptures. Law-giver—The verb from whence this word comes, ſignifies to make laws, (Prov. viii. 15.) both the civil and the eccleſiaſtical power ſhould continue in Judah till Chriſt came, and then ſhould be taken away, both which the event verified. Shiloh—The Meſſias, which is ſo expounded by all the three Chaldee paraphraſts, and by the Jewiſh Talmud, and by many of the latter Jews themſelves. And the word ſignifies, either a peace-maker, or Saviour; or, as others, her ſon, or one that came of the woman. It notes that the Meſſias ſhould be born of a woman; or, as others, the ſent, he who was promiſed and to be ſent. The Shiloh or Meſſiah often goes under the name of him that was to come. (Luke vii. 20.) Unto him ſhall the gathering—They ſhall be gathered together under him as their head. When the Meſſiah ſhould come, the pale of the church ſhould be enlarged, the partition wall between Jews and Gentiles taken down, and the Gentiles ſhould worſhip the true God and the Meſſias. The ſum of this verſe is, The ſceptre or dominion ſhall not depart from thence till the Meſſiah come, and then Judah ſhall loſe his ſceptre and other privileges, and the Gentiles ſhall come into the ſtead of the Jews, and ſhall embrace that Meſſiah whom they ſhall reject. This is an undeniable argument to prove that the Meſſiah is already come, and that the Lord Jeſus Chriſt is he, becauſe he was to come during the time wherein the ſceptre was in the hands of Judah; and about that time when Jeſus Chriſt came, the ſceptre was taken away from Judah and the Jews, and hath now been loſt for nigh eighteen hundred years together. The ſceptre was, for a time, in other tribes, as in Moſes of the tribe of Levi, in divers of the judges, who were of ſeveral tribes, and in the tribe of Benjamin under Saul, but the ſceptre departed from all theſe. But this is prophecied as Judah's privilege, that when once the ſceptre or government came into that tribe, (which it did in David's time) it ſhould not depart from it till Chriſt came, and then it ſhould depart. And thus it came to paſs. Concerning the time from David, unto the captivity of Babylon, there is no diſpute, there being a conſtant

Before Christ 1689.

12 His [t] eyes shall be red with wine, and his teeth white with milk.

13 ¶ [u] Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea: and he shall be for an haven of ships; and his border shall be unto Zidon.

14 ¶ Issachar is a strong ass, couching down between two burdens.

15 And he saw that rest was good, and the land that it was pleasant; and bowed [x] his shoulder to bear, and became a servant unto tribute.

16 ¶ [y] Dan shall judge his people, as one of the tribes of Israel.

17 [z] Dan shall be a serpent by the way*, an adder in the path; that biteth the horse-heels, so that his rider shall fall backward.

18 [a] I have waited for thy salvation, O Lord.

19 ¶ [b] Gad, a troop shall overcome him: but he shall overcome at the last.

20 ¶ [c] Out of Asher his bread shall be fat, and he shall yield royal dainties.

21 ¶ [d] Naphtali is a hind let loose: he giveth goodly words.

22 ¶ Joseph is a fruitful bough, even a fruitful bough by a well; whose † branches run over the wall.

23 The archers have sorely grieved him, and shot at him, and hated him.

24 But his [e] bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong, by the t Prov. 23.29. u Deut. 33.18. Josh. 19.10,11.

x 1 Sam. 10.9.
y Deut. 33.22.
z Judges 18. 27.
* Heb. an arrow-snake.
a Psa. 119.166. Isa. 25. 9.
b Deut. 33.20. 1 Chro. 5. 18. c Deut. 33.24. Josh. 19. 24.
d Deut. 33.23.
† Heb. daughters.
e Job 29. 20.

stant succession of kings in that tribe all that time. For the time of the Babylonish captivity, the sceptre or government was not lost or departed from Judah, but only interrupted, and that but for seventy years. All that was then left of the sceptre of the Jews, was in the tribe of Judah, nor was the sceptre departed from Judah to any other tribe; and that is the thing which seems especially to be respected in this prophecy: For Judah is here compared with the rest of the tribes, and it is here signified, that the power and dominion which was in Judah, when once it came thither, should not shift from tribe to tribe, as it had done, but, whilst there was any sceptre, or supreme government among the Jews, it should be in that tribe till the coming of the Messias. Judea became a province of the Roman empire, just at the time of our Saviour's birth, and was at that time taxed as one of the provinces, (Luke ii. 1.) and at the time of his death the Jews expressly owned, We have no king but Cæsar. Then did the Jews bring upon themselves that sentence under which, as a people, they still suffer, and have constantly, without any intermission, suffered for more than seventeen hundred years, never once having been in all that time formed into one body or society, but have been dispersed among all nations; their tribes and genealogies have been all confounded; and they have lived without a ruler, without a law-giver, and without supreme authority and government in any part of the known world. Thus did the Lord Jesus come, exactly at the time appointed.

V. 11, 12. That it should be a fruitful tribe, especially that it should abound with milk and wine. Vines were so common that they should load their asses from them; wine as plentiful as water, so that the men of that tribe should be very healthful and lively. Much of that which is here said concerning Judah is to be applied to our Lord Jesus. He is the ruler of all his father's children, and the conqueror of all his father's enemies, and he it is that is the praise of all the saints. He is the lion of the tribe of Judah, as he is called with reference to this, (Rev. v. 5.) who having spoiled principalities and powers, went up a conqueror, and couched so as none can stir him up when he sat down on the right hand of the Father. To him belongs the sceptre, he is the law-giver, and to him shall the gathering of the people be, as the desire of all nations, who, being lifted up from the earth, should draw all men unto him, (John xii. 32.) and in whom the children of God that are scattered abroad should meet as the centre of their unity, (John xi. 52.) In him there is plenty of all that which is nourishing and refreshing to the soul, and which maintains and cheers the divine life in it; in him we have wine and milk, the riches of Judah's tribe, without money, and without price, (Isa. lv. 1.)

V. 13. Zebulun shall dwell at the haven of the sea—God enabled Jacob thus exactly to foretel the portion of Zebulun, which fell to them two hundred years after this, and that not by choice or any design of men, but merely by lot. His portion was extended from the sea of Galilee to the Mediterranean sea, and to such parts of it where there were convenient havens.

V. 14. Issachar is a strong ass—An ass of bone; of great bulk and strength of body, but of little spirit and courage. Between two burdens—Enjoying his ease and rest between the borders of the other tribes, which secured them from foreign enemies, which made him secure and slothful; and between the folds of cattle, to the feeding and minding whereof he wholly gave himself, neglecting more generous things.

V. 15. He became a servant unto tribute—Paying whatsoever tributes were imposed upon him, rather than forfeit his pleasant and fruitful country, and his sweet repose.

V. 16. Dan shall judge his people—Rule and govern them: He shall not be subject to any other tribe, but shall have an absolute power within himself, as the rest of the tribes have.

V. 17. Dan shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path—They shall conquer their enemies more by craft and cunning, than by strength or force of arms.

V. 18. I have waited for thy salvation, O Lord—To save me from spiritual and eternal mischiefs by that Messiah which thou hast promised. Jacob, in the midst of his great work, finding himself weakened by his speech to his children, and drawing nearer death, he opens his arms to receive strength from God's grace, as the only effectual remedy and deliverance from all his pains and miseries, and from his present horrors upon the contemplation of the future state of his children. And this pathetic exclamation, thus mixed with the things which all his children and their posterity would be concerned to take notice of, they might be reminded, that God's salvation was the sole object of Israel's desire.

V. 19. Gad, a troop shall overcome him—Troops of enemies shall frequently invade his country, and for a time conquer and spoil it: And so it came to pass; the inheritance of that tribe lay beyond Jordan, near to the Ammonites and Moabites, two inveterate enemies of Israel. He shall overcome at the last—Or, afterward. This was fulfilled, (1 Chron. v. 18, &c.)

V. 20. Out of Asher his bread shall be fat—Out of the land of Asher shall grow bread-corn, fuller, sweeter, and better than ordinary. He shall yield royal dainties—Not only oil for ointments, but also delicious and excellent fruits fit to be presented to a king.

V. 21. Naphtali is a hind let loose—Wholly left to its own freedom to feed upon the best pastures; (Deut. xxxiii. 23.) He giveth goodly words—His speeches and discourses with others are fair, friendly, and winning.

V. 22. Joseph is a fruitful bough—Those numerous tribes which proceeded from his two sons. Even fruitful branches—Against a wall, whose heat furthers their growth.

Before Christ 1689.

the hands of [i] the mighty God of Jacob: from thence [g] is the shepherd, [h] the stone of Israel.

25 [i] Even by the God of thy father, who shall help thee, [k] and by the Almighty, [l] who shall bless thee with blessings of heaven above, blessings of the deep that lieth under, blessings of the breasts, and of the womb.

26 The blessings of thy father have prevailed [m] above the blessings of my progenitors, unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills; they shall be on the head of Joseph, [n] and on the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren.

27 ¶ Benjamin shall ravin as a wolf: [o] in the morning he shall devour the prey, [p] and at night he shall divide the spoil.

28 ¶ All these are the twelve tribes of Israel: and this is it that their father spake unto them, and blessed them; every one according to his blessing he blessed them.

29 And he charged them, and said unto them, I [q] am to be gathered unto my people: [r] bury me with my fathers, [s] in the cave that is in the field of Ephron the Hittite,

30 In the cave that is in the field of Machpelah,

Before Christ 1689.

g Ps. 132. 2.
h Psa. 95. 1.
i Isa. 28. 16.
k Chap. 28. 13. & 35. 11.
l Chap. 17. 1.
m Deut. 33. 15. Hab. 3. 6.
n Deut. 33. 16.
o Judges 1. 8. 21.
p Num. 23. 24. Ezek. 39. 10. Zech. 14. 1, 7.
q Chap. 15. 15. & 25. 8.
r Chap. 47. 30.
s Chap. 50. 13.

V. 23. The archers—His adversaries, as well his own brethren, as his master and mistress. They have sorely grieved him—With their slanders and injuries, which, in Scripture, are compared to arrows.

V. 24. His bow abode in strength—Wherewith he opposed his enemies; which was no military bow, but faith and hope in God, whereby he resisted and vanquished all the temptations and difficulties which he met with, so that all his enemies could neither defile nor destroy him. His hands were made strong, by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob—When men forsook and persecuted him, my God and his God stood by him. It was not Joseph's wisdom or courage, but God's gracious assistance, that made him conqueror. From thence is the shepherd, the stone of Israel—Israel or Jacob hath a shepherd to feed him, a stone to lay his head upon, as once a rock of refuge to fly to in his great distresses; or a foundation stone, or pillar, to sustain and preserve Jacob's house. Joseph was a blessed instrument in this wonderful work, yet the God of Jacob was the chief author of it, by whose wise and merciful providence it was so ordered that Joseph should be first sold, and afterward advanced, and all in order to this end, that his Israel, with whom he hath been pleased to make a gracious and everlasting covenant, should have a shepherd to feed him in the time of famine, and a stone or rock to support him.

V. 25. The God of thy father, the Almighty, shall bless thee—The sweet and powerful influences of the dews and rains which fall from heaven. And both men and beasts shall be greatly multiplied and abundantly supplied.

V. 26. Above the blessings of my progenitors—The temporal blessings which I, thy father, have conferred upon thee, are more considerable than those which I received from my father Isaac or from my grandfather Abraham. Unto the utmost bound of the everlasting hills—As long as the most solid and stable mountains shall last, for ever. Him that was separate from his brethren—Though he was once scorned and trampled upon by his brethren, yet now is highly honoured and advanced above them.

V. 27. Benjamin shall ravin as a wolf—They shall be of a warlike and fierce disposition. He mentions both morning and evening, because these are the two seasons when the wolves prey, and to note that this would be Benjamin's carriage both in the first and last times of that tribe, as indeed it was.

V. 28. These are the twelve tribes—The heads and parents of the twelve tribes. Every one according to his blessing—According to that blessing which God in his purpose had allotted to each of them, which also he manifested unto Jacob by his Spirit. An inheritance in Canaan was provided and promised to all their numerous descendants. None were excluded: But of those for whom it was intended, How many of them entered not in? And why entered they not into Canaan on earth? Because they believed not what was foretold by the spirit of God; they did not like the way which God took to bring them to the promised possession; they murmured against Moses, whom God had appointed to be their leader; and they murmured against God himself, though all their sufferings were brought upon themselves by their own impiety. The meaning of every murmur is—I think myself worse treated than I deserve; and, as I am now so treated, How can I believe, that there are any better designs in view for me?—I will not believe any such in reality are intended me. Had this language been uttered by any of Jacob's sons, directly upon his delivering the prophecy to them, the impiety of so doing would have been no less, than it was at the time the same sentiments discovered themselves in that generation, which God carried by his own power from Egypt on their way to Canaan, and which so few of them ever entered; not from any want of God's gracious intentions to give it to them, or want of readiness in God to help them in their way to it; but because they turned the mercies of God into wantonness, and answered his gracious design in sending them sufferings, who murmur against his dealings with them: And they that thought they had a right to murmur against the present dispensations of God, thought they had an equal right to disbelieve what God now foretold, and promised by Israel their father; they did so, and, as the consequence of their unbelief, the thousands of that generation, which God divided the sea for, to make them a passage to the promised Canaan, never entered it. Lord, are there few that be saved? Many will seek to enter, is thy answer; and STRIVE to enter that kingdom which thou hast so dearly purchased, and so graciously promised, is thy command. Who shall read what thy goodness hath caused to be published of Canaan above, without fearing to make any of thy mercies the means of forgetting THEE, the purchaser and giver of them all; and without watching unto prayer to Thee, against every complaining or murmuring thought, under the pains, persecutions, afflictions, or disappointments which Thou, in mercy, mayest send to humble the souls that have sinned against thee? Hear, O Lord, thy Israel's cry, and send us grace to believe what thou hast said to warn us of our danger, and to direct us to our safety in thee, O Lord God of our salvation!

V. 29. Bury me with my fathers—In Canaan, by which he designed to withdraw their minds from Egypt, and fix them upon Canaan.

V. 30. In the cave before Mamre—He describes it so particularly, for their direction; and, to express how much his heart was set upon what God had promised, and how firmly his whole soul was fixed on the faithfulness of God, in performing all that he had said. Pardon, grace, and glory, through, and for the sake of the God-man, is promised with no less certainty to all, than the blessings of Canaan to the descendants of Jacob; and they who know not yet what it is to have the faith of dying Israel, may truly be said not to know what it is to live. Faith in the Lord Jesus realizes his promises, and makes his future designs of love and goodness the believer's own. And no less confidence than

Before Christ 1689.

pelah, which is before Mamre in the land of Canaan, [t] which Abraham bought with the field of Ephron the Hittite, for a poſſeſſion of a burying-place.

[t] Chap. 23. 16.

31 ([u] There they buried Abraham and Sarah his wife; [x] there they buried Iſaac, and Rebekah his wife; and there I buried Leah)

[u] Chap. 23. 19. & 25. 9.

[x] Chap. 35. 30.

32 The purchaſe of the field and of the cave that is therein, was from the children of Heth.

33 And when Jacob had made an end of commanding his ſons, he gathered up his feet into the bed, and yielded up the ghoſt, and was gathered unto his people.

CHAP. L.

Before Christ 1689.

AND Joſeph [a] fell upon his father's face, and wept upon him, and kiſſed him.

[a] Chap. 46. 4.

2 And Joſeph commanded his ſervants the phyſicians to [b] embalm his father: and the phyſicians embalmed Iſrael.

[b] 2 Chro. 16. 14. John 19. 40.

3 And forty days were fulfilled for him (for ſo are fulfilled the days of thoſe which are embalmed) and the Egyptians * mourned for him threeſcore and ten days.

* Heb. wept.

4 And when the days of his mourning were paſt, Joſeph ſpake unto the houſe of Pharaoh, ſaying, If now I have found grace in your eyes, ſpeak, I pray you, in the ears of Pharaoh, ſaying, 5 My than that, with which Iſrael ſpoke of being buried in Canaan on earth, is the will of God, every heir of Iſrael's faith ſhould have that their Redeemer now liveth for them, as their Advocate at the throne of God; and that they ſhall ſoon live with him in that bleſſed country, where pain, ſorrow, and death ſhall never come, and where He that promiſes is gone before to prepare the places he has promiſed to all them that believe it is his will, that they ſhall have that holineſs of ſoul, without which no man ſhall ſee the Lord. (1 Theſſ. iv. 3. Heb. xii. 14.)

V. 31, 32. There they buried Abraham—And my father Iſaac, and there let me be buried in that land which God has given to Abraham's faith, as a pledge of heaven to all that believe in the promiſed Saviour of men; and it is not ſo much from any anxiety that I feel for my poor remains on earth, that I thus require you to bury me in Canaan, as to expreſs to you, my ſons, and to all the generations to come, who ſhall hear of my name, that in my laſt moments among men my confidence was placed in the faithfulneſs of the God of my ſalvation, that they alſo may be led to look to him, to imitate the faith of his poor worm Jacob, who in mercy he was pleaſed to call Iſrael, and in doing ſo be bleſſed, as I now am in entering his glorious and immediate preſence whom my ſoul loveth.

V. 33. Jacob yielded up the ghoſt—Dying, gave himſelf up into His Almighty care, whoſe compaſſion he had ſo long known never failed them that, living or dying, put their truſt in him. If the living would wiſh their latter end ſhould be like unto his, let them hear HIM who taught his ſervant to ſay to his church at Rome—"I beſeech you, brethren, by the mercies of God, that you preſent your bodies a living ſacrifice, holy acceptable unto God, which is your reaſonable ſervice. And be not conformed to this world; but be ye tranſformed by the renewing of your mind, that you may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God." (Rom. xii.) The mind in you that was alſo in Chriſt Jeſus. (Phil. ii. 5.) And in which ye ſhall rejoice evermore in the hope of a bleſſed immortality; and pray without ceaſing for the continuance of pardon, and the conſtant ſupport of his grace; and in all the croſſes you take up, and under every ſuffering of every kind, you will give him thanks, with whom ye walk by faith in his never-failing goodneſs. (1 Theſſ. v. 16, &c.)

CHAP. L.

V. 1. Joſeph fell upon his father's face, and wept, and kiſſed him—God had promiſed Jacob (ch. xlvi. 4.) that Joſeph ſhould be preſent at his death, to put his hand upon his eyes. With what faithfulneſs is that promiſe fulfilled! Nothing is too ſmall for God to charge himſelf with, for thoſe that live by faith in his goodneſs. Without any fear of awakening envy in his brothers' breaſts, he could now give way to all the affection of his noble mind, and ſhew, by his tears and embraces, how truly he loved his venerable father. Iſrael only aſked to ſee his ſon Joſeph, and then to die. How bountifully God grants him his requeſt! He ſaw him again and again, and lived near to him for ſeventeen years together, and when he died had his beloved ſon by him.

V. 2. Joſeph commanded his ſervants, the phyſicians, to embalm his father—The prime miniſter of a powerful king, poſſeſſed of all the dignity of the high ſtation he filled, and having phyſicians retained as his domeſtic ſervants, thus attends the aged ſhepherd, his father, and gives directions for this reſpect to be paid to his remains.

V. 3. The Egyptians mourned for—Iſrael, who, being an aged man, lived in retirement, and was little known to the Egyptians but by his ſon; and out of reſpect to Joſeph they made a general mourning for his father for ſeventy days. Honourable as the employment of cultivating the ground, and taking care of ſheep and cattle anciently was, and from the great uſefulneſs of thoſe employments, ever ought to be; yet the vaineſt citizen could not look upon the moſt homely labourer in the country with greater contempt, than the Egyptians in general looked upon Jacob's profeſſion—they abominated the employment of a ſhepherd. With the knowledge of this before him, Joſeph publicly owns, ſupports, and honours his father and his family; and in this is diſcovered the godly independance of his mind: He performed the duties of a father to the king, and acted the part of a friend to the whole kingdom, but Joſeph was God's ſervant, and therefore not to be reſtrained from doing his duty to his venerable father and his family, by any fear of bringing upon himſelf the contempt of the princes, courtiers, or citizens. He did his duty; and then God, who has the hearts of all men under his Almighty influence, inclined the whole kingdom to ſhew this reſpect to Joſeph in mourning for his father; thus fulfilling that word of the Lord's—"If any man ſerve me, him will my father honour." (John xii. 26.) And will the Lord be unmindful of thoſe, who, in any age or country, acknowledge his Iſrael—they that live godly in Chriſt Jeſus, and are deſpiſed for his ſake? No; they who thus confeſs the Lord before men, by openly ſhewing their regard to them that fear him, however they may be abominated, he himſelf will confeſs them before the angels of his preſence. But who will confeſs thoſe that are, in any country, deſpiſed for their profeſſion, as the family of Iſrael were for their's in Egypt? God is only to be ſerved acceptably by his own grace. (Heb. xii. 28.) They that have grace will be humble, and they will then ſhew they regard the pooreſt among men, who are waiting for the conſolations of the God of Iſrael in his appointed ways.

V. 4. Joſeph

Before Christ 1689.

5 [c] My father made me ſwear, ſaying, Lo, I die: in my grave [d] which I have digged for me, in the land of Canaan, there ſhalt thou bury me. Now therefore let me go up, I pray thee, and bury my father, and I will come again.

[c] Chap. 47. 29.
[d] 2 Chron. 16. 14. Iſa. 22. 16. Matt. 27. 60.

6 And Pharaoh ſaid, Go up, and bury thy father, according as he made thee ſwear.

7 ¶ And Joſeph went up to bury his father: and with him went up all the ſervants of Pharaoh, the elders of his houſe, and all the elders of the land of Egypt,

8 And all the houſe of Joſeph, and his brethren, and his father's houſe: only their little ones, and their flocks, and their herds, they left in the land of Goſhen.

9 And there went up with him both chariots and horſemen: and it was a very great company.

10 And they came to the threſhing-floor of Atad, which is beyond Jordan, and there they mourned with a great and very ſore lamentation: [e] and he made a mourning for his father ſeven days.

[e] 1 Sam. 31. 13. Job 2. 13.

11 And when the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, ſaw the mourning in the floor of Atad, they ſaid, This is a grievous mourning to the Egyptians: wherefore the name of it was called † Abel-mizraim, which is beyond Jordan.

Before Christ 1689.

† That is, the mourning of the Egyptians.

12 And his ſons did unto him according as he commanded them.

13 For [f] his ſons carried him into the land of Canaan, and buried him in the cave of the field of Machpelah; which Abraham bought with the field for a poſſeſſion of a burying-place, of Ephron the Hittite, before Mamre.

[f] Chap. 49. 30. Acts 7. 16.
[g] Chap. 23. 16.

14 ¶ And Joſeph returned into Egypt, he and his brethren, and all that went up with him to bury his father, after he had buried his father.

15 ¶ And when Joſeph's brethren ſaw that their father was dead, they ſaid, Joſeph will peradventure hate us, and will certainly requite us all the evil which we did unto him.

16 And they † ſent meſſengers unto Joſeph, ſaying, Thy father did command before he died, ſaying, † Heb. charged.

17 So ſhall ye ſay unto Joſeph, Forgive, I pray thee now, the treſpaſs of thy brethren, and their ſin; for they did unto thee evil: And

V. 4. Joſeph ſpake unto the houſe of Pharaoh—To thoſe who were chief in place and favour with the king. Speak, I pray you, in the ears of Pharaoh—Joſeph makes uſe of their interceſſion, leſt he might ſeem to deſpiſe them, or to preſume too much upon his own intereſt, and to engage them in this, who otherwiſe might have been ready to cenſure this action, which they would have an opportunity to do in Joſeph's abſence.

V. 5. My father made me ſwear—Here is a triple obligation on Joſeph. 1. His duty to fulfil the will of the dead. 2. The obedience which he owed to his father's command. 3. The tie of a ſolemn oath;—all which had weight with the Egyptians, and were ſo many arguments to Pharaoh and his courtiers. In my grave—And this reaſon is prudently added, to ſhew that the deſire proceeded not from any contempt of Pharaoh or his land, but from that common and cuſtomary deſire of perſons of all ages and nations, to be buried in their fathers' ſepulchres.

V. 6. Go up, and bury thy father, as he made thee ſwear—If thou had but underſtood it to have been thy father's deſire to be buried with his anceſtors, it would have been thy duty to have exactly fulfilled the will of the dead; but ſince thy father was ſo deſirous of having this done as to require an oath, thou haſt entered into the moſt ſolemn contract; and ſince thou haſt applied to me, I cannot but command thee to go, becauſe I am bound, by my ſtation, to decree the ſtrict performance of every juſt engagement made amongſt all who dwell under my authority.

V. 7. Joſeph went, and with him all the ſervants of Pharaoh—A great number of the chief officers and governors of his family. And all the elders of the land—The great officers, civil and military, whoſe places of habitation and command were diſperſed in the ſeveral parts of the land.

V. 8. Only their little ones they left—And ſuch as were neceſſary to take care of them.

V. 9. There went up with him both chariots and horſemen—For their defence, in caſe of any oppoſition.

V. 10. Atad—A man ſo called.

V. 15. Joſeph will certainly requite us—Return to us now the evil we committed againſt him. Thus they thought, though Joſeph had ſo fully and freely forgiven them. And into this belief it is the buſineſs of ſatan to ſeduce every ſoul of man that has been fully and freely forgiven of God: At ſuch a time the tempter will ſay, There was a cauſe for mercy, but now that cauſe ceaſes, and thou art left expoſed to this juſtice, againſt whom thou haſt offended. But this deceit is ever to be anſwered, with remembering, that the only cauſe of God's forgiveneſs never changes: The ſoul that turns to him, by true repentance and forſaking of ſin, ſhall find mercy; and, continuing to live in his fear, ſhall one day live by faith in the Lamb, that was ſlain from the foundation of the world. And the deſigns of God, through the ſon of his love, to all who come unto him in the name of Jeſus, are unchangeable in mercy and goodneſs; and are not to be explained away by all the evil ſuggeſtions of ſatan and his angels.

V. 17. Forgive the treſpaſs of the ſervants of the God of thy father—For whoſe ſake, pardon thoſe that join with thee in his worſhip; and making our requeſts known, with prayer and ſupplication, is thus pointed out to all who have known the forgiveneſs of God, and are led to fear that God will ſtill puniſh them for what they have done, though they continue to live in fear of offending him in thought, word, or deed. And Joſeph wept—In compaſſion to their fear and trouble: And becauſe they ſtill retained a diffidence in his kindneſs, after all his great and real demonſtrations of it. Grieve not the ſpirit of God, by doubting of his love, when it is only expected for the ſake of Chriſt Jeſus the Lord.

V. 18. Behold, we be thy ſervants—Ready and willing to undergo that ſervitude into which we ſo wickedly ſold thee.

V. 19. Fear

Before Christ 1689. And now, we pray thee, forgive the treſpaſs of the ſervants of the God of thy father. And Joſeph wept when they ſpake unto him.

18 And his brethren alſo wept and fell down before his face: and they ſaid, Behold, we be thy ſervants.

h Chap. 45. 5. i Rom. 12. 19. 19 And Joſeph ſaid unto them, [h] Fear not: for am I [i] in the place of God?

k Iſa. 10. 7. 20 [k] But as for you, ye thought evil againſt me; but God meant it unto good, to bring to paſs, as it is this day, to ſave much people alive.

21 Now therefore fear ye not: I will nouriſh you, and your little ones. And he comforted them, and ſpake § kindly unto them.

§ Heb. to their hearts.

22 ¶ And Joſeph dwelt in Egypt, he, and his father's houſe: and Joſeph lived an hundred and ten years.

23 And Joſeph ſaw Ephraim's children, of the third generation: [m] the children alſo of Machir, the ſon of Manaſſeh, [n] were ‖ brought up upon Joſeph's knees.

l Before Christ 1635. l Job 42. 16. m Num. 32. 39. n Chap. 50. 3. ‖ Heb. born.

24 And Joſeph ſaid unto his brethren, I die: and [o] God will ſurely viſit you, and bring you out of this land, unto the land [p] which he ſware to Abraham, to Iſaac, and to Jacob.

o Exod. 3. 16. Heb. 11. 22. p Chap. 15. 14. & 26. 3. & 35. 12. & 46. 4.

25 And [q] Joſeph took an oath of the children of Iſrael, ſaying, God will ſurely viſit you, and ye ſhall carry up my bones from hence.

q Exod. 13. 19. Joſh. 24. 32. Acts 7. 16.

26 So Joſeph died, being an hundred and ten years old: and they embalmed him, and he was put in a coffin in Egypt. 1635.

V. 19. Fear not: for am I in the place of God—It is God's prerogative to take vengeance, which I dare not uſurp. Can I do what I pleaſe with you, without God's leave? Therefore, Fear Him rather than me; and, upon your experience of his wonderful care and kindneſs to you, believe that God will not, and therefore that I neither can nor will, do you any hurt. Dare I deſtroy thoſe whom God ſo eminently deſigned to ſave? Dare I puniſh thoſe whom God hath pardoned?

V. 20. Ye thought evil againſt me—Therefore I do not excuſe your guilt, though I comfort you againſt deſpondency.

V. 21. I will nouriſh you, and your little ones—Expect not only a free pardon from me, but all the kindneſs of a loving friend.

V. 24. God will ſurely viſit you—Deliver you out of this place, where I foreſee you will be hardly uſed after my deceaſe; and fulfil his promiſed kindneſs to you.

V. 25. Joſeph took an oath—For the ſame reaſon which moved Jacob to require an oath from him. The children of Iſrael—He ſaith not, of his brethren, but of Iſrael's children, under which his grand-children are comprehended. Ye ſhall carry up my bones from hence—This was a viſible pledge of their deliverance, and an help to their faith, and an obligation to them to perſiſt in the true religion.

V. 26. Joſeph died, being an hundred and ten years old—For about thirteen years of affliction, he enjoyed eighty years of honour; and as much happineſs as earth could afford him.

EXODUS.

THE meaning of the name of this ſecond book of MOSES, EXODUS, is going out. The hiſtory of the Iſraelites is continued in it. They are firſt made an example of the moſt cruel oppreſſion under the power of the government of Egypt. And then God ſhews all mankind, in all the circumſtances that attended their deliverance, that no human power can be finally ſucceſsful, whoſe meaſures proceed on principles of injuſtice or oppreſſion. All the wiſdom and power of Egypt are made to appear no more before the power of God, than dry leaves before the wind. And, on the other hand, it is ſhewn in the perſons of the Iſraelites, that when the moſt helpleſs cry unto God, no ſtate of human miſery and wretchedneſs is beyond the reach of God's power to ſave and relieve. Such was the oppreſſion of the Iſraelites, that they had their children taken from them and drowned, to prevent their increaſe; but when they made their appeal to God, he took them from under the hand of their cruel oppreſſors, and deſtroyed the mighty, and ſaved the helpleſs that cried unto him.

The events that are recorded in this book, were of the moſt public nature; they were within the knowledge of the people of Egypt, or of all the thouſands of Iſrael, or of both together; and, by thoſe events, God diſcovers to men, that he is intimately acquainted with all that paſſes on earth, and that his divine honour is concerned to oppoſe, defeat, and puniſh whatever is done by men, againſt any principle of real religion, piety, charity, juſtice, and truth; as, on the other hand, it is to protect, ſupport, and deliver all them that look unto him, whatever is the cauſe of their diſtreſs. In this book, God ſhews himſelf the governor in all the kingdoms of men, and is equally preſent in the palaces of kings, as in the dwelling-places of the pooreſt men; and not preſent as an idle ſpectator, but as God the Father of all, to bleſs them who accept of the influence of his grace, and fall in with his deſigns, for the good of all; and to give fear, diſquiet, and miſery to the unjuſt, the ſelfiſh, and the wicked.

God alſo, in this book, appears on earth as the law-giver to the whole human race; and, in this character, he does not ſhew himſelf, as he often had been pleaſed to do to his highly-favoured ſervants, as an angel. God, in declaring what he requires of men, makes known to us a little of that majeſty and greatneſs which belongs to him, with whom all have to do, as creatures accountable to Him. The earth itſelf trembles at the more immediate preſence of God; and they that beheld his deſcending upon the mountain, greatly feared.

But with theſe diſcoveries from God to men, of his being the law-giver, governor, and judge of all men, in this book much is diſcovered of mercy, his darling attribute, and of this mercy in that laſt, higheſt-choſen work of God—the redemption of the world.

The beginning of this book bears date 2369 years from the creation, and 1635 years before the coming of the Lord. It includes a period of 145 years, and is divided into forty chapters.

CHAP. I. The children of Iſrael after Joſeph's death multiply. The more they are oppreſſed by a new king, the more they multiply. The godlineſs of the midwives in ſaving the male children alive. Pharaoh commandeth the male children to be caſt into the river.—CHAP. II. Moſes is born, and in an ark caſt into the flags. He is found, and brought up by Pharaoh's daughter. He ſlayeth an Egyptian. He reproveth an Hebrew. He fleeth into Midian. He marrieth Zipporah. Gerſhom is born. God reſpecteth the Iſraelites' cry.—CHAP. III. Moſes keepeth Jethro's flock. God appeareth to him in a burning buſh. He ſendeth him to deliver Iſrael. The name of God. His meſſage to Iſrael.—CHAP. IV. Moſes's rod is turned into a ſerpent. His hand is leprous. He is loath to be ſent. Aaron is appointed to aſſiſt him. Moſes departeth from Jethro. God's meſſage to Pharaoh. Zipporah circumciſeth her ſon. Aaron is ſent to meet Moſes. The people believe them.—CHAP. V. Pharaoh chideth Moſes and Aaron for their meſſage. He increaſeth the Iſraelites taſk. He checketh their complaints. They cry out upon Moſes and Aaron. Moſes complaineth to God.—CHAP. VI. God reneweth his promiſe by his name JEHOVAH.—The genealogy of Reuben, of Simeon, of Levi. Of whom came Moſes and Aaron.—CHAP. VII. Moſes is encouraged to go to Pharaoh. His age. His rod is turned into a ſerpent. The ſorcerers do the like. Pharaoh's heart is hardened. God's meſſage to Pharaoh. The river is turned into blood. —CHAP. VIII. Frogs are ſent. Pharaoh ſueth to Moſes, and Moſes, by prayer, removeth them away. The duſt is turned into lice, which the magicians could not do. The ſwarms of flies are ſent. Pharaoh inclineth to let the people go. But yet is hardened. —CHAP. IX. The murrain of beaſts. The plague of boils and blains. The meſſage about the hail. The plague of hail. Pharaoh ſueth to Moſes, but yet is hardened.—CHAP. X. God threateneth to ſend locuſts. Pharaoh, moved by his ſervants, inclineth to let the Iſraelites go. The plague of the locuſts. Pharaoh ſueth to Moſes. The plague of darkneſs. Pharaoh ſueth again unto Moſes, but yet is hardened.—CHAP. XI. God's meſſage to the Iſraelites to borrow jewels of their neighbours. Moſes threateneth Pharaoh with the death of the firſt-born.—CHAP. XII. The beginning of the year is changed. The paſſover is inſtituted. The rite of the paſſover. Unleavened bread. The firſt-born are ſlain. The Iſraelites are driven out of the land. They come to Succoth. The ordinance of the paſſover.—CHAP. XIII. The firſt-born are ſanctified to God. The memorial of the paſſover is commanded. The firſtlings of beaſts are ſet apart. The Iſraelites go out of Egypt, and carry Joſeph's bones with them. They come to Ethan. God guideth them by a pillar of a cloud and a pillar of fire.—CHAP. XIV. God inſtructeth the Iſraelites in their journey. Pharaoh purſueth after them. The Iſraelites murmur. Moſes comforteth them. God inſtructeth Moſes. The cloud removeth behind the camp. The Iſraelites paſs through the Red ſea, which drowneth the Egyptians.—CHAP. XV. Moſes's ſong. The people want water. The waters at Marah are bitter. A tree ſweeteneth them —CHAP. XVI. The Iſraelites come to Sin. They murmur for want of bread, God promiſeth them bread from heaven. Quails are ſent and mannah. The ordering of mannah. It was not to be found on the Sabbath. An Omer of it is preſerved.—CHAP. XVII. The people murmur for want of water at Rephidim. God ſendeth them for water, to the rock in Horeb. Amelek is overcome by the holding up of Moſes's hands. Moſes buildeth the altar, JEHOVAH-NISSI.—CHAP. XVIII. Jethro bringeth to Moſes his wife and two ſons. Moſes entertaineth him. Jethro's counſel is accepted. Jethro departeth.—CHAP. XIX. The people come to Sinai. God's meſſage by Moſes unto the people out of the mount. The people's anſwer returned again. The people are prepared againſt the third day. The mountain muſt not be touched. The fearful preſence of God upon the mount.—CHAP. XX. Ten commandments. The people are afraid. Moſes comforteth them. Idolatry is forbidden. Of what ſort the altar ſhall be.—CHAP. XXI. Laws for men-ſervants, for the ſervant whoſe ear is bored, for women-ſervants, for manſlaughter, for ſtealers of men, for curſers of parents, for ſmiters, for an hurt done by chance, for an ox that goreth, for him that is an occaſion of harm.—CHAP. XXII. Of theft, of damage, of treſpaſſes, of borrowing, of fornication, of witchcraft, of beſtiality, of idolatry, of ſtrangers, widows, and fatherleſs; of uſury, of pledges, of reverence to magiſtrates, of the firſt fruits.—CHAP. XXIII. Of ſlander and falſe-witneſs, of juſtice, of charitableneſs, of the year of reſt, of the ſabbath, of idolatry, of the three feaſts, of the blood and the fat of the ſacrifice. An Angel is promiſed with a bleſſing, if they obey him. —CHAP. XXIV. Moſes is called up into the mountain. The people promiſe obedience. Moſes buildeth an altar, and twelve pillars. He ſprinkleth the blood of the covenant. The glory of God appeareth. Aaron and Hur have the charge of the people; Moſes goeth into the mountain, where he continueth forty days and forty nights.—CHAP. XXV. What the Iſraelites muſt offer for the making of the tabernacle. The form of the ark. The mercy-ſeat with the cherubims. The table with the furniture thereof. The candleſticks with the inſtruments thereof.—CHAP. XXVI. The ten curtains of the tabernacle. The eleven curtains of goats-hair. The covering of ram-ſkins. The boards of the tabernacle, with their ſockets and bars. The veil of the ark. The hanging of the door.—CHAP. XXVII. The altar of the burnt-offering, with the veſſels thereof. The court of the tabernacle incloſed with hangings and pillars. The meaſure of the court. The oil for the lamp.—CHAP. XXVIII. Aaron and his ſons are ſet apart for the prieſt's office. Holy garments are appointed. The ephod. The breaſtplate, with twelve precious ſtones. The urim and thummim. The robe of the ephod; of pomegranates and bells. The plate of the mitre. The embroidered coat. The garments for Aaron's ſons. —CHAP. XXIX. The ſacrifice and ceremonies of conſecrating the prieſts. The continual burnt-offering. God's promiſe to dwell with the children of Iſrael.—CHAP. XXX. The altar of incenſe. The ranſom of ſouls. The braſen laver. The holy anointing oil. The compoſition of the perfume.—CHAP. XXXI. Bezaleel and Aholiab are called, and made meet for the work of the tabernacle. The obſervation of the ſabbath is again commanded. Moſes receiveth the two tables.—CHAP. XXXII. The people, in the abſence of Moſes, cauſe Aaron to make a calf. God is angered thereby. At the intreaty of Moſes He is appeaſed. Moſes cometh down with the tables: He breaketh them: He deſtroyeth the calf. Aaron's excuſe for himſelf. Moſes cauſeth the idolaters to be ſlain: He prayeth for the people.—CHAP. XXXIII. The Lord refuſeth to go, as he had promiſed, with the people. The people mourn thereat. The tabernacle is removed out of the camp. The Lord talketh familiarly with Moſes. Moſes deſireth to ſee the glory of God.—CHAP. XXXIV. The tables are renewed. The name of the Lord proclaimed. Moſes intreateth God to go with them. God maketh a covenant with them, repeating certain duties of the firſt table. Moſes, after forty days in the mount, cometh down with the tables: His face ſhineth, and he covereth it with a veil.—CHAP. XXXV. The Sabbath. The free gifts for the tabernacle. The readineſs of the people to offer. Bezaleel and Aholiab are called to the work.—CHAP. XXXVI. The offerings are delivered to the workmen. The liberality of the people is reſtrained. The curtains of cherubims. The curtains of goats hair. The covering of ſkins. The boards with their ſockets. The bars. The veil. The hanging for the door.—CHAP. XXXVII. The ark. The mercy-ſeat with Cherubims. The table with his veſſels. The candleſtick, with his lamps and inſtruments. The altar of incenſe. The anointing oil, and ſweet incenſe.—CHAP. XXXVIII. The altar of burnt-offering. The laver of braſs. The court. The ſum of that the people offered.—CHAP. XXXIX. The clothes of ſervice and holy garments. The ephod. The breaſt-plate. The robe of the ephod. The coats, mitre, and girdle of fine linen. The plate of the holy crown. All is viewed and approved by Moſes.—CHAP. XL. The tabernacle is commanded to be reared, and anointed. Aaron and his ſons to be ſanctified. Moſes performeth all things accordingly. A cloud covereth the tabernacle.

covereth

CHAP. I.

Before Chriſt 1706.

NOW [a] theſe are the names of the children of Iſrael, which came into Egypt, every man and his houſhold came with Jacob.

2 Reuben, Simeon, Levi, and Judah,

3 Iſſachar, Zebulun, and Benjamin,

4 Dan, and Naphtali, Gad, and Aſher.

5 And all the ſouls that came out of the * loins of Jacob, were [b] ſeventy ſouls: for Joſeph was in Egypt already.

6 And [c] Joſeph died, and all his brethren, and all that generation.

7 ¶ And

[a] Gen. 46. 8. Chap. 6. 14.

Before Chriſt 1706.

* Heb. thigh.

[b] Gen. 46. 27. Deut. 10 22.

[c] Gen. 50. 26.

CHAP. I.

V. 1. The children of Iſrael which came into Egypt—This liſt is repeated, that, by comparing this ſmall number with all the thouſands which ſo ſoon ſprung from them, we may ſee the wonderful providence of God in the fulfilling of his promiſes.

V. 5. Were ſeventy ſouls—Including Jacob, and Joſeph, and his two ſons.

V. 6. Joſeph died—Joſeph's death is here repeated, not in vain, but that his whole example may be looked back upon; and beſides ſeeing in him the eminent type he was of HIM, in whom all the nations of the earth were to be bleſſed, we may alſo ſee an eminent example of living by faith in the goodneſs of God, thro' the Son of his love. He told his brethren, God would in mercy viſit them, and bring them out of Egypt, and take them to the country he had promiſed to faithful Abraham, and to their believing fathers. Joſeph, looking through the years which were to take place between his death and the deliverance of his family, gave charge concerning his remains, that they might be removed by his brethren when they went to the promiſed land, that nothing of Joſeph might be left where there was no remains of Iſrael; and that all the thouſands of Iſrael might know in what manner Joſeph believed the promiſes of God his Saviour; and by ſeeing how aſſuredly he believed God would fulfil his promiſes, their faith might be ſtrengthened: And thus does firm faith in God extend its beneficial influence to thoſe that are yet unborn. It is not the conquerors of nations that are the benefactors of mankind; they are the inſtruments, as one of them acknowledged, by which God corrects men for guilt. The benefactors of mankind are thoſe whoſe lives, or particular parts of them, are examples of humble patient faith in the mercy and goodneſs of God, for the ſake of a Mediator. The lives and actions of ſuch men are land-marks to guide thoſe that know them, and future generations, into that calm haven of reſt, which remains for all who chooſe the Lord for their portion. In the life and death of Joſeph, God has given to men a great example, how pleaſing thoſe are in his ſight who fear him, and live by faith in his mercy, through the only Mediator, interpreting all God's deſigns to them to be for good. And, in the perſon of Joſeph, it is proved, that It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth. (Lam. iii. 27.) And that early afflictions are more than equal to the bleſſings of a good education, if they are allowed to anſwer the purpoſe which they did in this eminent perſon. In all the difficulties of the different ſtations through which he paſſed, from his coming into Egypt to his death, there is not a ſingle action recorded of him, but what diſcovers fear of God, or faith in him, aſcribing all that was good to him; and to his fellow-creatures, nothing but reſpect, good-will, juſtice, and affection; and in himſelf, from his youth up, plain, humble, and diligent in all the ſtations in which it pleaſed God to exerciſe the mind of this his faithful ſervant, the firſt of which began ſo low as ſlavery and ſervitude in a priſon, and went up as high as that of being the prime miniſter, and intire governor for a long courſe of years, in a great and powerful nation; living in them all to God, and leaving an example to men, placed by the providence of God in the firſt ſtations in any country, that God, the univerſal governor of all the nations of the earth, does not allow the affairs of any country to ſucceed the worſe, for being in the hands of thoſe that pay a conſtant regard to His ſacred will, as the only rule of their deſigns and actions, and who are not aſhamed to give God the glory due unto him, for all the good they either receive or do, and who uniformly and ſincerely worſhip God in ſpirit and in truth. And piety towards God, by this example, muſt appear to be the beſt policy among men, in any ſtation, till an example be found in any hiſtory to be depended on, of any perſon who diſcharged the duties of ſo high a ſtation as Joſeph's, with more favour from his prince, more reſpect from his ſubjects, and with greater ſucceſs in all his meaſures; and who, at the ſame time, was under equal diſadvantages, as a ſtranger in the country where he lived, and where, for eighty years together, in his great and active ſtation, not a ſingle inſtance is recorded in this faithful hiſtory, where all that is bad, as well as good, is told of this great man's diſcovering a want of ſobriety, diligence, juſtice, compaſſion, or truth.—In this diſtinguiſhed character of Joſeph's, the Father of mercies, and God of all conſolation, hath ſhewn to the world, that Jeſus, the angel of the covenant, encampeth round about all them that fear him, and live by faith in his love and goodneſs; and that God is no reſpecter of perſons, and makes none of thoſe diſtinctions in beſtowing the bleſſings of his grace, which we are ready to think there is made by his providence, between dwellers in palaces and priſons. In this ſingle life of Joſeph's, God ſhews he is alike in both; and that thoſe ſouls that are born from above, and whoſe hearts are attentive to the communications of his grace, the purchaſe of redeeming love, wherever they are, the bleſſings of his ſpirit, and of his providence, will reſt upon them, and be with them. And thus the uſe of God's word, is the ſame as the work of his grace; both are to draw—to lead all men, in all ſtations, in all countries, in all ages, to look unto him in the Son of his love to find mercy and grace, to help them under every neceſſity; and to receive from him, the author and finiſher of their faith, thoſe ſure proofs and foretaſtes of his love and goodneſs, which will not leave them in life or death; but which will abound and increaſe for ever, from the GOD of LOVE, to all that LOVE HIM. All that generation—Died; all that were of the ſame age with Joſeph and his brethren. Though Joſeph enjoyed the honour of his high ſtation for eighty years, and lived an hundred and ten; and, though many of his brethren might live to an equal age, yet their life of trial on earth came to an end; and the whole

Before Christ 1635.

7 ¶ [d] And the children of Israel were fruitful, and increased abundantly, and multiplied, and waxed exceeding mighty; and the land was filled with them.

d Deut. 26. 5. Acts 7. 17.

8 Now there arose up a new king over Egypt, which knew not Joseph.

9 And he said unto his people, Behold, [e] the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we.

e Psa. 105. 24.

10 Come on, [i] let us deal wisely with them: lest they multiply, and it come to pass, that when there falleth out any war, they join also unto our enemies, and fight against us, and so get them up out of the land.

i Acts 7. 19.

11 Therefore they did set over them task-masters, [g] to afflict them with their burdens. And they built for Pharaoh treasure-cities, Pithom [h] and Raamses.

Before Christ 1635.

g Gen. 15. 13.

h Gen. 47. 11.

12 † But the more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied and grew. And they were grieved because of the children of Israel.

† Heb. And as they afflicted them, so they multiplied, &c.

13 And the Egyptians made the children of Israel to serve with rigour.

14 And they made their lives bitter with hard bondage, [i] in mortar, and in brick, and in all manner of service in the field: all their service, wherein they made them serve, was with rigour.

i Psal. 81. 6.

15 And

whole generation, like the corn from the fields of harvest, were gathered into the grave, and their immortal spirits, to one or other of those two unchangeable eternities, which God hath so plainly made known, as the only states of all the living, after this life. Who shall be believed, that pretend to be better informed, till they bring proofs of greater miracles and prophecies done and fulfilled, than those that are declared to all the world in the word of God? And, if all the dead divide themselves into the blessedness of heaven, or the miseries of hell, What is the business to All of this, and of every generation of men, who, with those of Joseph's age, are so soon to be removed for ever from the earth? How vain and mispent would the life of an Israelite appear to us, who devoted himself to the study of the wisdom of the Egyptians, with the hope of one day being exalted with Joseph, to have all men bow the knee to him, and to become the fame of all his kindred:—the knees that bowed, and the tongues that dwelt upon his fame, had he been successful, have now for ages been motionless and silent in the grave, and mixed with the common dust of the earth, of which we are so wonderfully made. What now is that man's praise, who lived and died, with the supreme desires of his soul set upon obtaining the praise of men, or any other earthly object? Shall that soul be happy with God, whose delight was in itself, and not in God, when death called it away into the world of spirits? This world's objects are present; they are suited to the desires of our fallen nature, and take deep root within us; but we are warned against their delusions, by nothing less than the death in our nature of the eternal Son of God; and every thing is done to prevent us from following one another in courses of ambition, avarice, and love of pleasure, and to call us to a life of faith and humble walking with God, that our spirits may go into his blessed presence, when our bodies, with those that lived in ages past, return to the dust. What need is there to make God's plain but sublime word our daily study, that, by the means of reviewing, again and again, the unchangeable truths God, in so much mercy, has set before us, we may, by his grace, be preserved from the accursed influence of the spirit of this world, which would magnify houses, and land, and money, and rank, and a name among men above heaven, and the name of God, and of the Lamb that died to redeem us from this present evil world. (Gal. i. 4.)

V. 7. The children of Israel increased abundantly, and multiplied—Words, to express their incredible multiplication. And waxed exceeding mighty—Their numbers added to their strength.

V. 8. There arose a new king—Of another disposition. Which knew not Joseph—Acknowledged not the obligations which Joseph had laid upon the kingdom of Egypt, and the king under whom Joseph lived, and upon his successors. This phrase notes his ungrateful disowning and ill requiting of Joseph's favours. For words of knowledge in Scripture, commonly include the affections and actions, as men are said not to know God, when they do not love nor serve him.

V. 9. The children of Israel are more and mightier than we—This was not a true but an invidious representation, to justify the severities which he designed.

V. 10. And so get them up out of the land—Which they might easily learn from some of the Hebrews that they were in due time to do. And they were very unwilling to part with them, because of the tribute and service which they receive from them.

V. 11. Set over them task-masters—Masters of tribute, who were to exact from them the tribute required, which was both money and labour; that their purses might be exhausted by the one, their strength by the other, and their spirits by both. To afflict—Or oppress, or humble: to spend their strength by excessive labours. They built for Pharaoh treasure-cities—Or, defenced cities, in which garrisons are placed. Pithom and Raamses—It is thought they were built to keep the Israelites in subjection, and to hinder them from going out of the land.

V. 12. The more they afflicted them, the more they multiplied—Through God's singular blessing, to hasten their deliverance. They were grieved—Through envy and fear. When satan works up the pride, envy, and malice of them that know not God, to persecute the true Israel of God, Jesus, who is persecuted in his children, shews that he is God, and that such is his power, that he can make wrath itself to redound to his praise, by the increase of his church, and by the closer union and more entire dependance on him, their living head, in all things; and then wickedness receives its wages in an increase of conscious grief, like that of the cruel king of Egypt, and his subjects, at the increase of the Israelites.

V. 13. With rigour—Without mercy or mitigation. This God permitted for wise and just reasons. 1. As a punishment of their idolatry, into which divers of them fell. 2. To wean them from the land of Egypt, and to quicken their desires after Canaan. 3. To prepare the way for God's glorious works, and Israel's deliverance. And thus does the Lord suffer his spiritual worshippers, and faithful servants, frequently to be afflicted, to wean them from this world, on which all are so ready to set their hearts, to increase their desires after his presence, their only certain comfort, and to make an inheritance in the heavenly Canaan, more delightful to them for ever, by looking back with thankfulness on all the tribulation through which they were brought by the all-sustaining grace of God their Saviour, to his kingdom of glory.

V. 14. They made their lives bitter—But thus far were they to go; power over their lives was not given to the Egyptians. The constant presence of evil to seduce a soul into sin, will make the life of a believer bitter, but shall not hurt or destroy the soul which will not comply with evil; no, rather they shall be blessed who endure temptation by looking unto Jesus, who, for our sakes, suffered sore temptations. (James i. 12. Matth. iv. 1, &c.) Hard bondage, and all manner of service in the field—Which was the basest and most laborious of all their services.

V. 15. The

Before Christ 1635.

15 And the king of Egypt ſpake to the Hebrew midwives (of which the name of one was Shiphrah, and the name of the other Puah:)

16 And he ſaid, When ye do the office of a midwife to the Hebrew women, and ſee them upon the ſtools: if it be a ſon, then ye ſhall kill him, but if it be a daughter, then ſhe ſhall live.

17 But the midwives feared God, and did not as the king of Egypt commanded them, but ſaved the men-children alive.

18 And the king of Egypt called for the midwives, and ſaid unto them, Why have ye done this thing, and have ſaved the men-children alive?

k See Joſh. 2. 4, &c. 2 Sam. 17. 19, 20.

19 And [k] the midwives ſaid unto Pharaoh, Becauſe the Hebrew women are not as the Egyptian women: for they are lively, and are delivered ere the midwives come in unto them.

20 Therefore God dealt well with the midwives: and the people multiplied, and waxed very mighty. Before Christ 1635.

21 And it came to paſs, becauſe the midwives feared God, [l] that he made them houſes. l See 1 Sam. 2. 35. 2 Sam. 7. 11, 27, 29. 1 Kings 2. 24. & 11. 38. Pſa. 127. 1.

22 And Pharaoh charged all his people, ſaying, [m] Every ſon that is born ye ſhall caſt into the river, and every daughter ye ſhall ſave alive. cir. 1573. m Acts 7. 19.

CHAP. II.

AND there went [a] a man of the houſe of Levi, and took to wife a daughter of Levi. a Chap. 6. 20. Num. 26. 59. 1 Chro. 23. 13.

2 And the woman conceived, and bare a ſon: and when ſhe ſaw him, that he was a goodly child, ſhe [b] hid him three months. 1571. b Acts 7. 20. Heb. 11. 23.

3 And when ſhe could not longer hide him, ſhe took for him an ark of bulruſhes, and daubed it with ſlime and with pitch, and put the

V. 15. The king ſpake to the midwives—What will not the wicked policy of tyrants make them do! He ſaid before (verſe 10.) Come on, let us deal wiſely, then he oppreſſed them, now ſecretly their little infants were to be killed. Yes, and you, poor man, who toil for your bread with the hard labour of your hands, look and learn of this king's heart the hardneſs of your own, and grace not preventing, you, in his place, would have done the ſame thing. This is one purpoſe for which God's word is to be read, that in whatever is wrong in men, we ſee a part of what we are ſo unwilling to believe—The evil that is in ourſelves by nature. (Mark vii. 21.) O! that ſeeing and feeling our inbred enmity to God and goodneſs, we may apply, while it is to-day, to Him who alone can deliver from evil. (Luke ii. 4.)

V. 16. If it be a daughter, then ſhe ſhall live—Becauſe he feared not them, but the males only; ſo much as we have of cruelty in our hearts, ſo much we have of cowardice.

V. 17. The midwives feared God, and did not as the king commanded them—The king, void of the fear of God, feared the increaſe of the men of Iſrael; the women, in whoſe minds the fear of God had taken place, feared not the king, and with all his power they would not do what he commanded, which they knew would offend God. O thou bleſſed Spirit, which taketh of the things of God, and communicateth them to the ſouls of men, how glorious does thy work within appear, when ſuch effects are ſeen to follow thy ſacred preſence! Oppoſed to thy bleſſed and gentle influence, even in the minds of the weaker ſex, the command of an abſolute king and a cruel tyrant have no force; but poſſeſſed of THEE—ſacred, inward Comforter, firm they ſtand in the ſtrength divine, and by Thee overcome all other fear but that of God. (1 John iv. 4.)

V. 19. They are delivered ere the midwives come—The fears of the Hebrew women might haſten their birth, as the ſame cauſes do; or becauſe they, underſtanding their danger, would not ſend for the midwives, but committed themſelves to God. So here was nothing but truth, though they did not ſpeak the whole truth, which they were not obliged to do. The king's words only amount to this queſtion—Why have ye ſaved the men-children alive? They anſwer this by ſaying what there appears no reaſon to doubt the truth of. The king aſks no further queſtion, and to have informed him further, would have been a voluntary provocation of his reſentment; and they that fear God dare not give occaſion to anger in any one, though they may have nothing to fear from their reſentment.

V. 20. God dealt well with the midwives—Becauſe they would not offend God by murdering the children, which they might have done may times ſecretly, and therefore it was only the fear of God which reſtrained them from it.

V. 21. God greatly increaſed their families, both in children and poſterity, and in wealth and other outward bleſſings; which a God of truth would not have beſtowed upon them, if they were now living in the ſpirit of falſehood, or were guilty of telling an untruth to the king at any hazard. Whatever is done from a principle of fear of God, or love to him, or thoſe that are called by his name, in this world God will requite them with bleſſings; and this is an example to tell mankind God will always bleſs them that fear him.

V. 22. Pharaoh charged all his people, ſaying, Every ſon that is born, ye ſhall caſt into the river—Now a general commiſſion was given with a charge, and all that would pleaſe the king rather than the God of nature, were to take the ſons of the Hebrews and drown them. Who, that now ſaw the thouſands of Iſrael bewailing themſelves as the helpleſs ſpectators of ſo much wrong and cruelty, would ever have thought that this people would be delivered with an high hand, and the power that oppreſſed them overthrown? They would have expected both, who knew that God recompenſes the way of the wicked on their own head. (Ezek. ix. 10.) And is a refuge for the oppreſſed. (Pſa. ix. 9.)

CHAP. II.

V. 1. There went a man of the houſe of Levi—From the place of his abode to another place And took to wife a daughter of Levi—One of the ſame tribe or family.

V. 2. She hid him three months—His father, as well as his mother, reſolved to do ſo; and they did it truſting in God, and they were not afraid of the king's commandment. (Heb. xi. 23.) The event proves, that the faith they placed in God was anſwered above what they could well have either aſked or even thought.

V. 3. And when ſhe could not longer hide him—Becauſe they now grew more violent in executing that bloody decree, and the child growing up was more likely to be diſcovered. She took for him an ark of bulruſhes—Boats were made of ſuch materials, as appears from Pliny and others. And ſhe laid it in the flags—That the child

Before Christ 1571. the child therein; and she laid it in the flags by the river's brink.

c Num. 26.59. 4 c And his sister stood afar off, to wit what would be done to him.

5 ¶ And the daughter of Pharaoh came down to wash herself at the river, and her maidens walked along by the river's side: and when she saw the ark among the flags, she sent her maid to fetch it.

6 And when she had opened it, she saw the child: and behold, the babe wept. And she had compassion on him, and said, This is one of the Hebrews children.

7 Then said his sister to Pharaoh's daughter, Shall I go, and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee? Before Christ 1571.

8 And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Go. And the maid went, and called the child's mother.

9 And Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Take this child away, and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages. And the woman took the child, and nursed it.

10 And the child grew, and she brought him might be sooner discerned, and more easily taken up by any kind hand, which she hoped for.

V. 4. His sister stood afar off—That she might not be thought to have laid the child there, or to be related to it; but yet to watch over her dear little relation: This is the beginning of the life of Moses; and in this helpless situation did he then lie, who has now, for many ages, been looked back upon as one of the first among men; most highly favoured of God his Saviour, and in himself one of the meekest, most faithful servants of the Lord, under the united difficulties of a commander of a great army, incumbered with thousands of the aged and the helpless, a law-giver, a judge, and a governor in all things, both civil and sacred.

V. 5. The daughter of Pharaoh came—One great object of the word of God is to acquaint us, that God himself is the governor of the world: And how does this instance shew us, with what ease God commands all events to work together for the good of them that put their trust in him. A thought occurs to the king's daughter to go down to the river; and, in doing so, she finds the child whom faith had preserved under its parents care, till their dwelling was no longer the place where it was most safe to keep him; and then faith committed him to the care of the God of Israel; that faith still regarding all human means of accomplishing the end for which God was trusted: a little ark, or boat, is provided, when he must be exposed by the river's side, that in case the waters reached the place, the beautiful infant, ignorant of his danger, might sleep upon the surface of the water; and so long as the ark remained where it was laid, the sister that loved the child was placed at a distance, to see what would be done to him, and to convey the most speedy intelligence to the parents at home: thus does that faith proceed which is the fruit of God's holy Spirit; it leads to all just and reasonable means which God hath appointed, and which according to the circumstances He suggests to the believing mind; and looking through the means, the faith of the Scriptures, still finally rests on God, that the means may be blessed by Him to the end for which they are made use of. Whatever God speaks of in His word with approbation is, in itself, a real good; the grace of faith embraced and made use of in the human mind, is that grace which brings all other blessings from God to men; and instead of faith being an ideal thing, it is as real as God Himself, who is at once its giver and its end; and when the believing mind has, with the parents of Moses, some end of mercy, justice or truth in view, it applies faith to God, and reason it applies to the things of reason; but faith allows not reason to set bounds to God, and to predict that this, or this, God can never do. Nature called upon the parents of Moses to preserve him from being destroyed by the wicked order of the king: by faith they hid their child, this was the reasonable means to be made use of; and in doing it, they allowed not reason to say to faith—"It is all in vain to hide him."—the king's messengers must find him at last, and with your own lives you must, after seeing your son destroyed, pay the penalty of disobeying the king's order; but their faith answered without contradicting right reason—God, the giver of life, forbids its being taken away by violence; our little son has not forfeited his life by any offence against the king, or the laws of Egypt; to destroy him is a sin against God, and therefore it is our duty to prevent it by all the means we can make use of, which offends against no law of God; and however reasonably it may be expected, that the messengers of the king, or some of the Egyptians about us, may hear the infant cries of our little son, we have given him to God, and believing that whatever is committed to God, He will charge himself with, according to His accustomed goodness; we shall therefore, against all the probabilities of reason, continue from this moment to the next to trust in God, and leave no means in our power untried, which at the time may be made to appear to us most likely to preserve the life of the child God hath given us; and in this we know but one thing is needful for us to do, and that is to take every step in the fear of God, in whose love, for the sake of the promised seed, we now believe, and are therefore bound to serve God, without fearing the unjust command of any human authority which opposes itself to God, because opposed to nature and to justice; and it would be sinful in us, who know the true God, did we fear the king's command, because that fear would be the same thing as declaring, that we believed the God of glory was not greater than the king of Egypt, and less able or willing to preserve them that trusted in Him, than the king was to destroy.

V. 6, 7. The babe wept—It did not cry aloud. He that communicates thought to infant minds, as well as every merciful and good thought to the aged and the prudent, appears by this word already to have taught the infant to refrain from loud cries, and to weep in silence; and thus expressing a manly sorrow was he found, when the king's daughter first beheld him: The grace of compassion in her mind prepared her for the hasty address of the watchful sister of the child.

V. 8. Pharaoh's daughter said unto her, Go—The action, as well as her making use of no more words than were necessary, discovers a mind under the influence of wisdom, as well as compassion.

V. 9. Take this child away, and nurse it for me—The daughter of the king takes it under her protection, and charges herself with every expence that shall attend her. The woman took the child—As from God, to whose merciful care she had committed it: God now restores it to her as one of the numberless proofs he has given in his word, and is ever giving to the world, of that which sooner or later he ever does, in answer to every soul that yields to the grace of faith, and trusts in Him for his mercy and his aid.

V. 10. He became her son—By adoption, (Heb. xi. 24.) Philo reports, she, though long married, had no child of her own; and therefore treated him as her own, and gave him royal education and instruction. (Acts vii. 21.)

V. 11. In

Before Christ 1571. him unto Pharaoh's daughter, and he became her ſon. And ſhe called his name * Moſes: and ſhe ſaid, Becauſe I drew him out of the water.

* That is, drawn out.

11 ¶ And it came to paſs in thoſe days, [d] when Moſes was grown, that he went out unto his brethren, and looked on their burdens: and he ſpied an Egyptian ſmiting an Hebrew, one of his brethren.

d Acts 7. 23. Heb. 11. 24.

12 And he looked this way and that way; and when he ſaw that there was no man, he ſlew the Egyptian, and hid him in the ſand.

1531. 13 And [e] when he went out the ſecond day, behold, two men of the Hebrews ſtrove together: and he ſaid to him that did the wrong, Wherefore ſmiteſt thou thy fellow?

e Acts 7. 26.

† Heb. a man, a prince.

14 And he ſaid, Who made thee † a prince and a judge over us? intendeſt thou to kill me, as thou killedſt the Egyptian? And Moſes feared, and ſaid, Surely this thing is known.

Before Christ 1531.

15 Now when Pharaoh heard this thing, he ſought to ſlay Moſes. But [i] Moſes fled from the face of Pharaoh, and dwelt in the land of Midian: and he ſat down by a well.

i Acts 7. 29.

16 [g] Now the ‡ prieſt of Midian had ſeven daughters: [h] and they came and drew water, and filled the troughs to water their father's flock.

g Chap. 3. 1. ‡ Or, prince, as Gen. 41. 45. h Gen. 24. 11.

17 And the ſhepherds came and drove them away: but Moſes ſtood up and helped them, and watered their flock.

18 And when they came [i] to Reuel their father, he ſaid, How is it that you are come ſo ſoon to day?

i Num. 10. 29.

19 And

V. 11. In thoſe days—Whilſt Moſes lived at court, and was owned as the ſon of Pharaoh's daughter. When Moſes was grown—To maturity, being 40 years old. (Acts vii. 23.) He went out unto his brethren—That he might learn the ſtate of his brethren, and help him, ſuppoſing that they would have underſtood that he was raiſed and ſent of God to deliver them. (Acts vii. 25.)

V. 12. He ſlew the Egyptian—This action of Moſes is not to be juſtified by the common right of defending the oppreſſed, which belongs not to private perſons, (Rom. xii. 19.) but only by his divine and ſpecial appointment to be ruler and deliverer of Iſrael. Which call of his, howſoever manifeſted, was evident to his own conſcience; and he gave this as a ſignal to make it evident to the people, by doing that juſtice which God authoriſes the public magiſtrates to execute upon the guilty; and there ſeems to be no cauſe to doubt but the action which Moſes himſelf ſaw the Egyptian guilty of, had enough of violence and wrong in it to juſtify Moſes in taking the life of the criminal with his own hand, and immediately; both which we find frequently done in the ſacred hiſtory; and it is plain, that Moſes was at this time acquainted with the deſign of God, in making him the deliverer of his nation from their cruel bondage. (Acts vii. 25.) But if Moſes in this was guilty of inflicting a greater puniſhment than the crime itſelf ought to have awarded againſt it; the word of God is not wrote to vindicate the character of Moſes, or to ſhew that he was without ſin; but the contrary, that all men are ſinful in the ſight of God, and remain ſo, till the grace of God reſtores them to purity and to rectitude; and the moſt eminent ſervants of God are not thoſe who have never ſinned, but thoſe who have been convinced how much God hates all ſin, and how ſeverely he will puniſh it, if not repented of and forſaken; and who being ſo convinced, have turned unto God for mercy, and then by his grace avoided the appearance of evil. And when by unwatchfulneſs they have afterwards committed crimes, it is neither the penitent nor the faithful ſervants of God that make their own faults, or thoſe of others, the grounds of any charge againſt God, or real religion: Want of faith in God—want of real religion, is the ſole cauſe of all that is truly blameable in men. And God, in his word, does not ſay he will not employ, in any part of his ſervice, the man that has been guilty of breaking any of his holy laws. Thoſe who truly and humbly come unto him, he will in no wiſe caſt out or reject; but will employ them, ſupport and bleſs them, and continue to do ſo, from moment to moment, ſo long as they truly in heart live by that faith in Him, which ever leads to an humble watchful obedience to his will in all things.

V. 13. He went out the ſecond day—To execute the office in which God had ſet him, as a judge, and to reconcile brethren.

V. 14. Moſes feared—Through the weakneſs of his faith, which afterwards growing ſtronger, he feared not the wrath of the king. (Heb. xi. 27.) And in going from Egypt, and his leaving the people of Iſrael to ſuffer ſo many years longer, is rather to be imputed to their want of willingneſs to have Moſes reign over them, than to the fear which Moſes had in offering himſelf to them in that capacity. The general temper of a nation is often diſcovered by the words or actions of a few, which paſs under the knowledge of many, without being contradicted; and we do not read that any of the elders of Iſrael appeared to deſire Moſes to put himſelf at the head of their nation, and lead them to the land promiſed to their fathers: At this time they rejected Moſes as the deliverer which God deſigned them; Moſes therefore left Egypt.

V. 15. When Pharaoh heard this thing, he ſought to ſlay Moſes—Not to puniſh him as a murderer, but to prevent his becoming the deliverer of Iſrael. But Moſes fled from the face of Pharaoh—Not chooſing to expoſe himſelf to the reſentment of the king, when his brethren would not regard him, or accept of him as their deliverer; they were therefore left expoſed to their bondage and oppreſſors for a further ſeaſon. And thus will they be finally left to ſuffer who will not accept of HIM for their deliverer, who was ſent of God, as was Moſes, to ſave his people from the bondage of corruption, and the ſlavery of ſin, and the power of ſatan over them: boundleſs mercy renewed the offer of a deliverer to Iſrael in the perſon of Moſes, and the ſame mercy renews offers of life and ſalvation by the Spirit, for the ſake of Jeſus, in every way and manner, till the laſt offer is finally rejected.

V. 16. The prieſt of Midian—Not of idols, but of the true God, for ſome ſuch were in thoſe ancient times, here and there, as appears by Melchiſedeck.

V. 17. The ſhepherds drove them away—That they might make uſe of the water which they had drawn for their own cattle. Moſes ſtood up, and helped them—By perſuading them with fair words, or by force.

V. 18. Reuel their father—Or their grandfather, the father of Jethro.

V. 19. An Egyptian—So they gueſſed him to be by his habit and ſpeech, or he told them that he came from thence. Delivered us out of the hand of the ſhepherds, and alſo drew water for us—Moſes was not only ſent to be the deliverer of Iſrael, and to do them good, but as ſoon as he came among the people of Midian, he

Before Christ 1531.

19 And they said, An Egyptian delivered us out of the hand of the shepherds, and also drew water enough for us, and watered the flock.

20 And he said unto his daughters, And where is he? why is it that ye have left the man? Call him, that he may eat bread.

21 And Moses was content to dwell with the man: and he gave Moses Zipporah his daughter.

22 And she bare him a son, and he called his name [k] Gershom: for he said, I have been [l] a stranger in a strange land.

23 ¶ And it came to pass [m] in process of time, that the king of Egypt died, and the children of Israel [n] sighed by reason of the bondage, and they cried; and [o] their cry came up unto God, by reason of the bondage.

24 And God heard their groaning, and God remembered his [p] covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob.

k Chap. 18. 3.
l Heb. 11. 13, 14
m Chap. 7. 7. Acts 7. 30.
n Num. 20. 16.
o Gen. 18 20. Chap. 22. 23, 27. Deut. 24. 15. James 5. 4. p Gen. 15. 14. and 46. 4.

25 And God looked upon the children of Israel, and God ‖ [q] had respect unto them.

Before Christ 1531.

‖ Heb. knew.
q Chap. 3. 7.

CHAP. III.

NOW Moses kept the flock of Jethro his father in law, [a] the priest of Midian: and he led the flock to the back side of the desert, and came to [b] the mountain of God, even to Horeb.

1491.

a Chap. 2. 16.
b Chap. 18. 5. 1 Kings 19. 8.

2 And the angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a [c] flame of fire out of the midst of a bush: and he looked, and behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed.

c Deut. 33. 16. Acts 7. 30.

3 And Moses said, I will now turn aside, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt.

4 And when the Lord saw that he turned aside to see, God called unto him [d] out of the midst of the bush, and said, Moses, Moses. And he said, Here am I.

d Deut. 33. 16.

5 And

he appears as a deliverer, and a doer of good. Thus was Jesus sent to be the Saviour of his people Israel, and in the same character did he appear on earth for all the world.

V. 20. Why is it that ye have left the man—And he a stranger and traveller: Be careful to entertain strangers, for thereby some have entertained Angels unawares, who came on the business of the God whom they serve, and who those imitate in a low degree, who are sent to tell us the messages of the gospel of peace; and though they may often appear as a poor traveller from Egypt, receive them, that they may eat bread, and one day they may acknowledge the kindness, before the thousands which God has given him.

V. 21. Moses was content to dwell with the man—Consented to his desire or offer. He gave Moses Zipporah his daughter—Whom Moses married.

V. 23. The king of Egypt died—And left the Israelites in all the miseries to which they had been reduced by his cruelty, arising from avarice, or a slavish fear that they might do him hurt.—He died; and when the books of God shall be opened in the great day of accounts, then will it appear what he knew and what he did; and when the Lover of Men, being judge, every plea will have its full weight and force; and when the final award of JESUS shall be heard, the countless millions of Angels, and of the dead revived to life assembled, will say—Just art thou, O God, in all thy ways. Had this king known what God had foretold concerning his people Israel, then he would have seen how unnecessary all that worldly wisdom was, which so mistakenly led him into the beginnings of his unjust and cruel treatment of the people of Israel;—had he known what was so certainly foretold, That they were to leave his country, and to go into Canaan, then he would have seen it no less needless than it was wicked to take the life of a single infant, to prevent any injury to himself, or his country, from their increase; and had he known that the Most High had said, The children of Israel were to go out of his country, he would have seen how vain all human strength or wisdom must be, if opposed to HIM who made the world. And is ignorance of what God hath foretold and said, less dangerous now than it was then? Will not the same mistaken notions of God's designs leave every one that wilfully remains in ignorance of his word, exposed to delusions which may lead them in their stations to oppose God, as this king thought it wise in him to do? We not only err by not knowing what God has declared, but men perish—lose their souls for want of the knowledge of the word of God, which is the power of God unto present and eternal salvation in all that believe. The children of Israel sighed by reason of the bondage—In which they were left by the late king, and which was not abated by his successor. They cried, and their cry came up unto God—They cried in the bitterness of their distress. It does not appear that they prayed unto God. And thus souls, sorely oppressed and sunk in sorrow, the consequence of sin, are ready to conclude God himself has given them up, and they cry in the bitterness of their distress; but to pray they think it is in vain, neither are they at all inclined to do it; for, by the anguish of their souls, they are led by the tempter to entertain a degree of spite against God himself. Why did Israel refuse the offered deliverer years before?—Because they knew not what they did. But that offer refused, their hopes of relief on the death of the king disappointed, by the continuance of their oppressions under his successor, and now being sunk to the lowest ebb of misery.

V. 24, 25. God remembered his covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob. And God looked upon the children of Israel, and had respect unto them—So as to pity and help them, as words of knowledge are often used; he, who seemed to have rejected them, now owned them, and came for their rescue. And this history is an example and sure proof of the gracious dealings of God our Saviour, who came, and, by his grace, is ever going about to seek and to save them that truly feel themselves lost.

CHAP. III.

V. 1. The mountain of God—So called, from the vision of God here following. (Acts vii. 30) Horeb—Called also Sinai.

V. 2. The Angel of the Lord appeared unto him—The Angel of the covenant, Christ Jesus, who then and ever was God, and was to be man, and to be sent into the world in our flesh. And these were presages of his more solemn coming, and therefore he is fitly called an Angel. That this Angel was no creature appears by the whole context, and by his saying, I am the Lord. The Angels never speak that language in Scripture, but I am sent from God, and I am thy fellow-servant. A flame of fire—By which God's majesty, and purity, and power were represented. The bush was not consumed—Which doubtless represented the condition of the Church and people of Israel, who were now in the fire of affliction, yet that God was present with them, and that they should not be consumed in it, of which this vision was a pledge.

V. 4. God called unto him and said, Moses, Moses—The name,

Before Christ 1491.

5 And he said, Draw not nigh hither: [e] put off thy shoes from off thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground.

e Josh. 5. 15. Acts 7. 33.

6 Moreover he said, [f] I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face: for [g] he was afraid to look upon God.

f Matt. 22. 32. Mark 12. 26. Luke 20. 37. Acts 7. 32.

g So 1 Kings 19. 13. Isa. 6. 2, 5.

7 ¶ And the Lord said, I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and [h] have heard their cry, by reason of their task-masters: for I know their sorrows.

h Chap. 2. 23.

8 And [i] I am come down to deliver them out of the hand of the Egyptians, and to bring them up out of that land, unto a good land, and a large, unto a land flowing with milk and honey; unto the place of [k] the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites.

i Gen. 11. 5, 7. & 18. 21.

k Gen. 15. 18.

9 Now therefore behold, the cry of the children of Israel is come unto me: and I have also seen the oppression wherewith the Egyptians oppress them.

Before Christ 1491.

10 [l] Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.

l Psa. 105. 26.

11 ¶ And Moses said unto God, [m] Who am I, that I should go unto Pharaoh, and that I should bring forth the children of Israel out of Egypt?

m See Isa. 6. 5, 8. Jer. 1. 6.

12 And he said, [n] Certainly I will be with thee; and this shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee: When thou hast brought forth the people out of Egypt, ye shall serve God upon this mountain.

n Josh. 1. 5.

13 And Moses said unto God, Behold, when is doubled to shew kindness and familiarity, and to make Moses more attentive.

V. 5. The place is holy ground—This is required as an act of reverence to the divine Majesty then eminently present, and of his humiliation for his sins whereby he was unfit and unworthy to appear before God: with a relative holiness at this time, because of my special presence in it.

V. 6. I am the God of thy father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob—The God engaged to them by covenant or promise, which I am now come to perform. He was afraid to look upon God—As other servants of God have been through the sense of their own meanness and sinfulness, and of God's Majesty and holiness.

V. 7. The Lord said, I have surely seen—I have seen and observed it accurately, and certainly, for so much the doubling of the verb signifies.

V. 8. I am come down to deliver them—This word notes God's manifestation of himself and his favour, and giving help from heaven. To bring them unto a good land and a large—So it was, if we take the land of promise according to its first bounds, and not according to those narrow limits to which they were afterwards confined for their unbelief, sloth, cowardice and impiety. A land flowing with milk and honey—Abounding with the choicest fruits both for necessity and for delight. And if at this day the land be now grown barren in a great measure, it is not strange considering both the great neglect and sloth of the people as to the improvement of it, and the great wickedness of its inhabitants, for which God hath threatned to turn a fruitful land into barrenness, Psal. 107. 34.

V. 9. The cry of the children of Israel is come unto me: and I have also seen the oppression—Whenever any of the sons of men suffer oppression, the Father of mercies is acquainted with it, in all its circumstances of injustice and cruelty; and the righteous Judge of all the earth, sees the very sentiments of the hearts of all that are guilty of injustice or cruelty; and one day, shall make known every private, as well as every public, act of oppression; and every transgression shall receive its just recompense of reward in shame and sufferings; and for which the guilty have not, before their time of trial on earth expired, fled by true repentance to that fountain which is opened by the death of the Saviour of sinners, and looked to his atonement to save them from the wrath of that just and merciful God, whose gracious and compassionate nature is at once grieved and offended at every act of oppression to a child, a servant, a wife, or to any of the poor or helpless sons and daughters of men. O Lord God, let them, that know thee in the Son of thy love, cry without ceasing, that thy mercies, and the slowness of thy wrath may lead the nations that are called by thy name, to let the captives they have taken into cruel slavery, or brought under unjust oppression, be set at liberty and relieved, that thy just indignation may be turned away!

V. 10. Come now, I will send thee—Moses had now known what it was to be persecuted by the great and rejected by his brethren, exposed to the charges of ingratitude from the one, and with a vain presumption from the other; and, after suffering banishment in a foreign country for forty years, and not only seen, but gone thro' the difficulties, for that long season, of a life of labour; and, being thus prepared, patiently to consider the sufferings of the afflicted, then the Almighty says to Moses, Come into my service, now I will send thee, to do that which thou wast so willing to have done when thou first came from the court of the king of Egypt, and saw the oppression of thy brethren, and was filled with so much indignation at the conduct of the king and people of Egypt, not sufficiently considering that the very same selfish and evil nature was in thyself; but now thou art better acquainted with the evil and misery which is in the human nature, thou art prepared to forward my designs of doing good to the worst of the whole race of men, whose need of my grace, is shewn by the evil that discovers itself in those that are now oppressing my people Israel.

V. 11. Moses said unto God, Who am I that I should go—What a mean, inconsiderable person am I, how unworthy and unfit for that employment? He was more forward in the work forty years ago; the fervour of his youth, his inexperience in affairs, the advantage of his power and interest in the Court, made him then believe that he could and should procure their deliverance. But now age had made him cool and considerate, the remembrance of his brethren's rejection of him, when he was a great man at court, took away all probability of prevailing with them to follow him, much more of prevailing with Pharaoh to let them go. Thus Moses falls into that distemper to which most men are prone, of judging of God by the probabilities of second causes.

V. 12. Certainly I will be with thee—Thus does God take upon himself to support those he sends as the means of doing his works of mercy among men. This shall be a token unto thee, that I have sent thee—Moses was otherwise assured of the presence, power and faithfulness of that God who spoke to him, and was to expect more assurances that God would be with him to help him in, and carry him through his work. And as an evidence that this work of bringing Israel out of Egypt should be completed, he gives

Before Christ 1491. when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? What shall I say unto them?

14 And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM: And he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, [o] I AM hath sent me unto you.

o Chap. 6. 3. 2 Cor. 1. 20. Heb. 13. 8. Rev. 1. 4.

15 And God said moreover unto Moses, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath sent me unto you: this is [p] my name for ever, and this is my memorial unto all generations.

p Psa. 135. 13.

16 Go and [q] gather the elders of Israel together, and say unto them, The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, of Isaac, and of Jacob, appeared unto me, saying, [r] I have surely visited you, and seen that which is done to you in Egypt.

q Chap. 4. 29.

r Gen. 50. 24.

17 And I have said, I will bring you up out of the affliction of Egypt, unto the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Perizzites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, unto a land flowing with milk and honey.

Before Christ 1491.

18 And [s] they shall hearken to thy voice; and thou shalt come, thou and the elders of Israel, unto the king of Egypt, and you shall say unto him, The Lord [t] God of the Hebrews hath met with us: and now let us go (we beseech thee) three days journey into the wilderness, that we may sacrifice to the Lord our God.

s Chap. 4. 31.

t Chap. 5. 3.

19 ¶ And I am sure that the king of Egypt will not let you go, * no, not by a mighty hand.

* Or, but by strong hand.

20 And I will stretch out my hand, and smite Egypt with all my wonders which I will do in the midst thereof: and after that he will let you go.

21 And I will give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians: and it shall come to him a promise that he should serve God in that place: Which promise coming from God, he knew to be as infallibly certain, as if it were already come to pass; and therefore this strengthened his faith in his present undertaking.

V. 13. Moses said unto God, What is his name—Since I must go to them in thy name, and thou hast a variety of glorious titles, and some of them are ascribed to idols, not only by the Egyptians, but by too many of thy own people. What name shall I use, that thy people may be encouraged to expect deliverance from thee?

V. 14. I AM THAT I AM—A most comprehensive name. It notes the reality of his being the eternity, and unchangeableness of it; whereas, all other beings once were not, and all their being was derived from him, and wholly depends upon him; and he only is by and from himself. It expresses the constancy and certainty of his nature, will, and word. The sense is, I am the same that ever I was,—the same who made the promises to Abraham, and am now come to perform them, who, as I can do what I please, so I will do what I have said, Heb. I shall be what I shall be. He useth the future tense, either, because that tense, in the use of the Hebrew tongue, comprehends all times, past, present, and to come, to signify that all times are alike to God, and all are present to him, and therefore what is here, I shall be, is rendered, I am, (John. viii. 58.) to intimate, the mystery of Christ's incarnation, I shall be what I shall be, i. e. God-man, and I who now come in an invisible, though glorious manner, to deliver you from this temporal bondage, shall in due time come, visibly and by incarnation, according to my promises, to make an atonement to God for the sins of all men. I AM—Jehovah. This he adds, because God was best known to the Israelites by that name, and to shew, that though he had given himself a new name, yet he was the same God.

V. 15. This is my name for ever, and this is my memorial—I will be remembered, owned, and served by my people, as God Almighty from everlasting to everlasting—infinite in holiness, wisdom, power, justice, and MERCY to men; and of which this is my memorial—that I am God in covenant with my Eternal Father, and by promise to men, to come and take their nature upon me, and, in the person of a man, to lay down my life for all mankind, to satisfy the justice of the Godhead, and to save them from the Divine wrath against all and every sin; and that in Me, as the only Mediator between God and man, all that look unto Me, come unto Me, seek after My mediation, accept of the offers of it, and receive Me in the grace which is given to all that believe in Me, shall on earth be saved from sin, and be made meet for that blessedness which is with Me in glory, where the NAME of God, and of the Lamb that redeemed you, shall be praised for ever.

V. 16. Gather the elders of Israel together—Though they were all slaves to the Egyptians, yet among themselves they retained some order and government, and had some whom they owned as their rulers, as heads of tribes and families; and such being raised up by God himself, he requires Moses to make his first address to them.

V. 17. I will bring you up out of the affliction of Egypt, unto the land of the Canaanites—God first declared who he was, and then what he would do; making use of words to express his gracious purpose, so direct and plain, that every child might understand that God Almighty would take them out of all their afflictions in Egypt, and place them in a good land, in which they should dwell in peace, no one making them afraid. And thus plainly does God speak to every child of man, that Jesus is the Christ, that all that believe in him may have pardon and peace in this life, and in the world to come, everlasting life in the presence of God.

V. 18. The Lord God hath met with us—He hath appeared to us, expressing his displeasure for our neglect of him, and his will that we should do what follows. Let us go, (we beseech thee) three days journey into the wilderness, that we may sacrifice to the Lord our God—To Sinai, which was not far from Egypt; for here God had declared he would be served. Pharaoh had no just right to keep them in bondage; they came thither only to sojourn for a time. It pleased God, for wise and just reasons, to propose only this to Pharaoh, that his denial of so modest a request might make his tyranny more manifest, and vindicate the Divine justice.

V. 19. I am sure—I know it infallibly before hand. No, not by a mighty hand—Though he see and feel the miraculous and dreadful works of a strong, yea Almighty hand, yet he will not consent to your going.

V. 21. I will give this people favour in the sight of the Egyptians—So that they shall readily grant what the Israelites desire.

V. 22. Ye

Before Christ 1491.

to pass, that when ye go, ye shall not go empty:

u Gen. 15. 14. Chap. 11. 2. & 12. 35.

22 u But every woman shall borrow of her neighbour, and of her that sojourneth in her house, jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment: and ye shall put them upon your x Exek. 39. 10.

sons, and upon your daughters; and x ye

† Or, Egypt.

shall spoil † the Egyptians.

CHAP. IV.

AND Moses answered, and said, But behold, they will not believe me, nor hearken unto my voice: for they will say, The Lord hath not appeared unto thee.

a Verse 20.

2 And the Lord said unto him, What is that in thine hand? And he said, a A rod.

3 And he said, Cast it on the ground; and he cast it on the ground, and it became a serpent: and Moses fled from before it.

4 And the Lord said unto Moses, Put forth thine hand, and take it by the tail. And he put forth his hand, and caught it, and it became a rod in his hand;

5 That they may believe that the Lord God of their fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, hath appeared unto thee.

Before Christ 1491.

6 And the Lord said furthermore unto him, Put now thine hand into thy bosom; and he put his hand into his bosom: and when he took it out, behold, his hand was leprous b as snow.

b Num. 12. 10. 2 Kings 5. 27.

7 And he said, Put thine hand into thy bosom again: and he put his hand into his bosom again, and plucked it out of his bosom, and behold, it was turned again as his other flesh.

8 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign, that they will believe the voice of the latter sign.

9 And it shall come to pass, if they will not believe also these two signs, neither hearken unto thy voice, that thou shalt take of

V. 22. Ye shall spoil the Egyptians—Ye shall take these things from them; and they are given to you in part of the much greater debt they owe you, for all that has been taken from you, and for all the hard labour wherewith they have made you to serve them. The word borrow here, does not so properly mean, to take with a promise to return; for the struggle was between the king and people of Israel, because it was well understood they were not to return; and therefore the things given to them, on their going away, could not be expected to be restored.

CHAP. IV.

V. 1. Moses said, They will not believe me—Which he conjectured, because the greatness and strangeness of the deliverance made it seem incredible, and their minds were so oppressed with cares and labours, that it was not likely they could raise them up to any such expectation; and from the experience which he had of them forty years before, when their deliverance, by his means and interest at court, seemed much more credible, than now it did. And this would reason suggest to every one that is sent to declare God's willingness to deliver men from the slavery of sin, and to offer them peace with God, and power over sin by grace, the gift of God, through Jesus Christ. Well may reason say, The dead in trespasses and sin will not believe such words as these,—that men who have lived only to gratify the lusts of the flesh, the desire of the eye, and the pride of their hearts in this world, shall, by any power, become pure and holy, and heavenly minded, living with a single eye in the favour of God their Saviour. But it is to be remembered, what Moses was going upon, was a work with which the Almighty God charged himself with the execution of; and so has, and yet does, God charge himself with the salvation of sinful men; and what is it which God requires of those he sends on the messages of his love—FAITH in that love, through and for the sake of Christ Jesus, the Mediator between God and man? What is it that God requires in those to whom he sends—FAITH—in the things that are written, that they may believe that Jesus is the Christ, and in believing the love and goodness of God to guilty men for His sake, by the Spirit of God, the Divine life and image of God may be restored to their souls? (John xx. 31.) The word of God, and all the gracious acts and promises in it, address themselves to that grace of FAITH which God offers to every soul to profit withal. He that believeth in the power and willingness of God in Christ Jesus to save, shall be saved. Acts xvi. 31.

V. 3. It became a serpent—Was really changed into a serpent; whereby it was intimated what and how pernicious his rod should be to the Egyptians.

V. 4. Take it by the tail—The dangerous part; whereby God would try Moses's faith, and prepare him for the approaching difficulties.

V. 5. That they may believe—An imperfect sentence; to be thus completed, This thou shalt do before them that they may believe.

V. 6. His hand was leprous as snow—For witness. Hereby God would suggest to them, how soon he could weaken and destroy the hard and strong hand by which the Egyptians tyrannized over them. It might also be done to keep Moses humble and depending upon God, and to teach him and Israel to ascribe all the future miracles not to the hand of Moses, which was weak and liable to many distempers, but wholly to the Divine power and goodness. And why is it that the proofs are not more in number of lost sinners being brought to the knowledge of God through his Son, by preaching of his everlasting gospel? Is it for want of doctrine or discipline? Or, Is it for want of practically and entirely believing that word of the Lord's to his first servants—"Without "Me, ye can do nothing?" (John xv. 5.) And are all the eminent servants of God thus dependent upon the Great Master-builder for all the good that is done upon earth? Surely not less so than Moses was dependent on God to perform the things which were now shewn to him. Go, ye wise! to the proud and vain, and say, Be ye meek and lowly in heart, and clothe your own word with power, and see the accomplishment of it.—Go, to the self-condemned and sorrowful, and say, Peace be unto you, and see if it shall come to pass as ye command it.—No; Jesus said, Without ME, ye can do nothing.—No power but his Spirit can change a single temper of the soul. Does my knee bow to HIM alone? Does MY tongue confess, That besides HIM there is no other Saviour?

V. 8. If they will not believe thee, neither hearken to the voice of the first sign—To the voice or word of God delivered and confirmed by the first sign. Moses acquainted them with the mind of God. God's works have a voice to speaks to us, which we must diligently observe.

V. 9. Thou shalt take of the water of the river, and the water shall become blood—It shall assuredly be so.

Before Christ 1491.

of the water of the river, and pour it upon the dry land: and [c] the water which thou takeſt out of the river, * ſhall become blood upon the dry land.

c Chap. 7. 19.
* Heb. ſhall be and ſhall be.

10 ¶ And Moſes ſaid unto the Lord, O my Lord, I am not † eloquent, neither ‡ heretofore, nor ſince thou haſt ſpoken unto thy ſervant: but [d] I am ſlow of ſpeech, and of a ſlow tongue.

† Heb. a man of words.
‡ Heb. ſince yeſterday, nor ſince the third day.
d Chap. 6. 12.

11 And the Lord ſaid unto him, [e] Who hath made man's mouth? or who maketh the dumb, or deaf, or the ſeeing, or the blind? have not I the Lord?

e Pſa. 94. 9.

12 Now therefore go, and I will be [f] with thy mouth, and teach thee what thou ſhalt ſay.

f Iſa. 50. 4. Matt. 10. 19. Mark 13. 11. Luke 12. 11.

13 And he ſaid, O my Lord, ſend, I pray thee, by the hand of him whom thou ‖ wilt ſend.

‖ Or, ſhouldeſt.

14 And the anger of the Lord was kindled againſt Moſes, and he ſaid, Is not Aaron the Levite thy brother? I know that he can ſpeak well. And alſo behold, he cometh forth to meet thee; and when he ſeeth thee, he will be glad in his heart.

15 And [g] thou ſhalt ſpeak unto him, and put words in his mouth: and I will be with thy mouth, and with his mouth, and will teach you what ye ſhall do.

Before Christ 1491.

g Chap. 7. 1, 2.

16 And he ſhall be thy ſpokeſman unto the people: and he ſhall be, even he ſhall be to thee inſtead of a mouth, and [h] thou ſhalt be to him inſtead of God.

h Chap. 7. 1. & 18. 19.

17 And thou ſhalt take this rod in thine hand, wherewith thou ſhalt do ſigns.

18 ¶ And Moſes went and returned to § Jethro his father in law, and ſaid unto him, Let me go, I pray thee, and return unto my brethren, which are in Egypt, and ſee whether they be yet alive. And Jethro ſaid to Moſes, Go in peace.

§ Heb. Jether.

19 And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes in Midian, Go, return into Egypt: for [i] all the men are dead which ſought thy life.

i Chap. 2. 15, 23. Matt. 2. 20.

20 And Moſes took his wife, and his ſons, and ſet them upon an aſs, and he returned to the land of Egypt. And Moſes took [k] the rod of God in his hand.

k Num. 20. 8, 9.

21 And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, When thou

V. 10. O my Lord, I am not eloquent—Not able to deliver thy meſſage acceptably and decently, either to Pharaoh or to the Iſraelites. Neither heretofore, nor ſince thou haſt ſpoken unto thy ſervant—Since thy appearance to me, thou haſt made ſome change in my hand, but none in my tongue, but ſtill I am, as I was, moſt unfit for ſo high an employment. But indeed he was therefore fit for it, as the unlearned apoſtles were for the preaching of the goſpel, that the honour of their glorious works might be intirely given to God, and not to the inſtruments which he uſed.

V. 12. I will be with thy mouth—By my ſpirit to direct and aſſiſt thee what and how to ſpeak. Whence Moſes, though he ſtill ſeems to have remained ſlow in ſpeech, yet was in truth mighty in words as well as deeds, Acts vii. 22.

V. 13. O my Lord, ſend, I pray thee, by whom thou wilt ſend—By one who is fitter for the work than I am. Thou uſeſt, according to thy wiſdom, to chooſe fit inſtruments, and to uſe none but whom thou doſt either find or make fit for their employment, which I am not.

V. 14. The anger of the Lord was kindled againſt Moſes—Becauſe he made ſo many excuſes for his inſufficiency to do what he knew God required of him; and by this it appears, how ſlow of heart all men are to believe, that all power to do good belongeth to God alone. When the word of God, and an heart-felt conviction agree in ſaying, This is my duty to God; then, What are excuſes, but ſo many declarations, that I queſtion the faithfulneſs of God to enable me to do what Scripture, reaſon, and conſcience convince me is my duty; or, that the ſervant is a better judge than his lord, who he ought to ſend? Aaron cometh forth to meet thee—By my inſtigation and direction; which, becauſe I ſee thou art ſtill diffident, I give thee for a new ſign, to ſtrengthen thy belief, that I will carry thee through this hard work.

V. 15. Thou ſhalt ſpeak unto him—Inſtruct him what to ſpeak, and command him freely and faithfully to expreſs it.

V. 17. Take this rod wherewith thou ſhalt do ſigns—Both thoſe which I have already made thee to do, and others as I ſhall direct and enable thee.

V. 18. Moſes ſaid, Let me go unto my brethren, and ſee whether they be yet alive.—He did not deceive him, nor intended to do ſo, though he thought fit to conceal from him the errand, upon which God ſent him, leſt his father or wife ſhould attempt to hinder or diſcourage him from ſo difficult and dangerous an enterprize, Moſes ſhews here a rare example as well of modeſty and humility, that ſuch glorious and familiar converſe with God and the high calling to which God had advanced him, did neither make him forget the civility and duty which he owed to his Father, nor make him break forth into public and vain-glorious boaſting of ſuch a privilege; as alſo of his piety and prudence, that he avoided all occaſions and temptations to diſobedience to God's command.

V. 19. The Lord ſaid, all the men are dead which ſought thy life—This ſeems to have been a ſecond viſion, whereby God calls him to the ſpeedy execution of that command which before was delivered. God who was acquainted with the deſigns of thoſe who wanted to deſtroy Moſes, was alſo acquainted with the ſecret fear of his ſervant; and therefore God graciouſly gives him this information of the death of thoſe that ſought his life, to remove the force of this objection which Moſes had to going into Egypt, though he did not profeſs it. God, the governor of the earth, and judge of all men, here ſhews his knowledge of every deſign of the ſoul of man.

V. 20. Moſes took his wife, and his ſons, and ſet them upon an aſs—Gerſhom, and Eliezer; whom he intended to carry with him, but afterwards obſerving that they were like to be impediments to him in his great buſineſs, and being well aſſured that it would not be long ere he returned to them, he ſent them back to Jethro. With what great humility did this eminent perſon appear on his way to deliver a numerous people from oppreſſion; and in this Moſes was like unto HIM, who came with the utmoſt meekneſs and lowlineſs, to be the deliverer of the world from the power of ſin and of ſatan. Moſes took the rod of God—So called, becauſe it was to be uſed for God's ſpecial ſervice, to be the inſtrument in all his glorious works; and to ſhew that whatſoever was done, was

Before Christ 1491.

thou goeſt to return into Egypt, ſee that thou do all thoſe wonders before Pharaoh, which I have put in thine hand: but [l] I will harden his heart, that he ſhall not let the people go.

22 And thou ſhalt ſay unto Pharaoh, Thus ſaith the Lord, [m] Iſrael is my ſon, [n] even my firſt-born.

23 And I ſay unto thee, Let my ſon go, that he may ſerve me: and if thou refuſe to let him go, behold, [o] I will ſlay thy ſon, even thy firſt-born.

24 ¶ And it came to paſs by the way in the inn, that the Lord [p] met him, and ſought to kill him.

25 Then Zipporah took [q] a ſharp * ſtone, and cut off the foreſkin of her ſon, and † caſt it at his feet, and ſaid, Surely a bloody huſband art thou to me.

26 So he let him go: then ſhe ſaid, A bloody huſband thou art, becauſe of the circumciſion.

27 ¶ And the Lord ſaid to Aaron, Go into the wilderneſs to meet Moſes. And he went and met him in [r] the mount of God, and kiſſed him.

28 And Moſes told Aaron all the words of the Lord, who had ſent him, and all the ſigns which he had commanded him. Before Christ 1491.

29 ¶ And Moſes and Aaron went, and gathered together all the elders of the children of Iſrael.

30 And Aaron ſpake all the words which the Lord had ſpoken unto Moſes, and did the ſigns in the ſight of the people.

31 And the people believed: and when they heard that the Lord had viſited the children of Iſrael, and that he had looked upon their affliction, then [s] they bowed their heads and worſhipped.

CHAP. V.

AND afterward Moſes and Aaron went in, and told Pharaoh, Thus ſaith the Lord God of Iſrael, Let my people go, that they may hold a feaſt unto me in the wilderneſs.

2 And Pharaoh ſaid, [a] Who is the Lord, that I ſhould obey his voice to let Iſrael go? I know not the Lord, neither will I let Iſrael go.

3 And

l Chap. 7. 3, 13. & 9. 12. & 10. 1. & 14. 8. Deut. 2. 30. Joſh. 11. 20. Iſa. 63. 17. John 12. 40. Rom. 9. 18.

m Rom. 9. 4. n Jer. 31. 9. James 1. 18.

o Chap. 11. 5. & 12. 29.

p Num. 22. 22.

q Joſh. 5. 2, 3.

* Or, knife.

† Heb. made it touch.

r Chap. 3. 1.

s Chap. 12. 27.

a 2 Kings 18. 35. Job 21. 15.

was not done by any virtue in the rod, or in Moſes, but merely by the power of God, who was pleaſed, for the greater confuſion of his enemies, to uſe ſo mean an inſtrument.

V. 21. Which I have put in thine hand—In thy power, to be done by thy hand, and the rod in it. I will harden his heart—That he ſhall be unmerciful to all the groans and preſſures of the Iſraelites, inexorable to the requeſts of Moſes, unmoveable and incorrigible by all my words and works. But God doth not properly and poſitively make men's hearts hard; they are ſo by being without the preſence of the Spirit of God, and by being forſaken of him, whom they will not have to reign over them, and whom they reſiſt and grieve, by obeying that ſpirit which in its nature is oppoſed to God and goodneſs, and which is the occaſion of God's withdrawing from them that grace, which alone can make men ſoft, flexible and pliable to the Divine will.

V. 22. Thus ſaith the Lord, Iſrael is my firſt-born—By my choice and adoption. They are moſt dear to me, and reſerved by me out of all nations to be my peculiar people; and therefore I will no longer ſuffer thee to invade my right, nor them to live in the neglect of my ſervice.

V. 23. I ſay unto thee—I command thee. I will ſlay thy firſt-born—By which plague coming after the reſt, thou wilt be enforced to do what I adviſe thee now to do upon cheaper terms.

V. 24. The Lord met him—Appeared to him in ſome viſible ſhape. And ſought to kill him—Moſes, ſpoken of and to before. The reaſon of this ſeverity was the neglect of circumciſing his child, as plainly appears, from the Lord's diſmiſſion of Moſes upon the circumciſion of the child. Moſes underſtood the will and law of God about it better than any man, and God had lately reminded him of that covenant of his with Abraham, whereof circumciſion was a ſeal; the bleſſings and benefits of which covenant, Moſes was now going to procure for himſelf and for his people, whilſt he remained under the guilt of groſly neglecting the condition of it. This was a great ſin in itſelf; and therefore it is no wonder that God was ſo angry at Moſes for it.

V. 25. Then Zipporah—Perceiving the danger of her huſband, and the cauſe of it, and her huſband being diſenabled from performing that work, whether by ſome ſtroke or ſickneſs, or by the terror of ſo diſmal and unexpected an apparition to him, ſhe thought it better to do it herſelf, rather than put it off a moment longer. A ſharp ſtone—Which ſhe took as next at hand in that ſtoney country; let none think this ſtrange, for not only this work, but the cutting off that part, which ſome uſed to do, was commonly performed with a flint or a ſharp ſtone, as is expreſsly affirmed by Herodotus, l. 2. Plin 35. 12. See alſo Juvenal Satyr. 6. and Martial. Epigram. 3. 18. But the word may be rendered, a ſharp knife, ſee Joſ. v. 2, 3. Caſt it at his feet—The words are very ſhort, and therefore ambiguous, and may be rendered either thus, ſhe caſt herſelf at his feet, either 1. At the feet of the angel, as a ſuppliant for her huſband's life. A bloody huſband art thou to me—She durſt not accuſe God, the author of this work; but ſhe falls upon her huſband as the occaſion of it, and as a coſtly and bloody huſband to her, whoſe endangered life ſhe was forced to redeem with blood, even the blood of her little child.

V. 26. He let him go—God or the deſtroying Angel ſent from God, departed from Moſes, and removed the tokens of God's indignation. A bloody huſband thou art, becauſe of the circumciſion—She repeats her former cenſure, and reproacheth not only her huſband but alſo God's ordinance. Which her huſband obſerving, and conſidering how much diſturbance ſhe might give him in his great and difficult work in Egypt, he thought fit to ſend her and her children back to her father.

V. 29. Moſes and Aaron gathered together all the elders—All of them whom they could eaſily and quickly bring together.

V. 30. Aaron ſpake—Thus beginning to execute the office which God had put upon him. And did the ſigns—Aaron did them, by the direction of Moſes.

V. 31. The people believed, the Lord had viſited the children of Iſrael—Taken cognizance of their condition, and reſolved to deliver them. They bowed their heads and worſhipped—Acknowledging and adoring the kindneſs and faithfulneſs of God therein.

CHAP. V.

V. 1. Moſes and Aaron went in, and told Pharaoh—Either both ſucceſſively told him: Or Aaron did it by the command of Moſes.

Before Christ 1491.

3 And they said, [b] The God of the Hebrews hath met with us: let us go, we pray thee, three days journey into the desert, and sacrifice unto the Lord our God; lest he fall upon us with pestilence, or with the sword.

[b] Chap. 3. 18.

4 And the king of Egypt said unto them, Wherefore do ye, Moses and Aaron, let the people from their works? get you unto your burdens.

5 And Pharaoh said, Behold, the people of the land now are many, and you make make them rest from their burdens.

6 And Pharaoh commanded the same day the task-masters of the people, and their officers, saying,

7 Ye shall no more give the people straw to make brick, as heretofore: let them go and gather straw for themselves.

8 And the tale of the bricks which they did make heretofore, you shall lay upon them; you shall not diminish ought thereof: for they be idle; therefore they cry, saying, Let us go and sacrifice to our God.

* Heb. Let the work be heavy upon the men.

9 * Let there more work be laid upon the men, that they may labour therein; and let them not regard vain words.

10 ¶ And the task-masters of the people went out, and their officers, and they spake to the people, saying, Thus saith Pharaoh, I will not give you straw.

11 Go ye, get you straw where you can find it: yet not ought of your work shall be diminished.

12 So the people were scattered abroad throughout all the land of Egypt, to gather stubble in stead of straw.

13 And the task-masters hasted them, saying, Fulfil your works, your † daily tasks, as when there was straw.

Before Christ 1491.

14 And the officers of the children of Israel, which Pharaoh's task-masters had set over them, were beaten, and demanded, Wherefore have ye not fulfilled your task in making brick, both yesterday, and to day, as heretofore?

† Heb. a matter of a day in his day.

15 ¶ Then the officers of the children of Israel came and cried unto Pharaoh, saying, Wherefore dealest thou thus with thy servants?

16 There is no straw given unto thy servants, and they say to us, Make brick: and behold, thy servants are beaten; but the fault is in thine own people.

17 But he said, Ye are idle, ye are idle: therefore ye say, Let us go, and do sacrifice to the Lord.

18 Go therefore now and work: for there shall no straw be given you, yet shall ye deliver the tale of bricks.

19 And the officers of the children of Israel did see that they were in evil case, after it was said, Ye shall not minish ought from your bricks of your daily task.

20 ¶ And they met Moses and Aaron, who stood in the way, as they came forth from Pharaoh.

21 [c] And they said unto them, The Lord look upon you, and judge; because you have made our savour ‡ to be abhorred in the eyes of Pharaoh, and in the eyes of his servants, to put a sword in their hands to slay us.

[c] Chap. 6. 9.

‡ Heb. to stink, Gen. 34. 30.

22 And Moses returned unto the Lord, and

V. 2. Who is the Lord that I should obey his voice—I am the sovereign Lord of Egypt, and I own no superior here.

V. 3. The God of the Hebrews hath met with us—Hath appeared to us lately, and laid this command upon us. Lest he fall upon us—Lest he punish either of us if we disobey his command, or thee, if thou hinderest us from obeying it: But this latter they only imply, as being easily gathered from the former.

V. 4. Get you unto your burdens—Ye, the elders of Israel, who are here come with Moses and Aaron: Or, ye, Moses and Aaron. So far am I from granting the liberty which you desire for the people, that as a just punishment upon you for your seditious attempt, I command you also to go with the rest, and to take your share in their burdens, and to perform the task which shall be required of you.

V. 5. The people of the land now are many—The Israelites in this land are very numerous, and therefore it would be a madness in me to permit them all to meet and go together, as you desire, which may tend to the ruin of my whole kingdom, and probably it is designed by you to that purpose.

V. 6. Pharaoh commanded the task-masters and their officers—The task-masters were Egyptians, and the officers were Israelites, under-officers to them.

V. 9. Let them not regard vain words—The words of Moses and Aaron, which are vain, which they falsely pretend to come from God, when it is only an ill design of their own to advance themselves by raising sedition.

V. 16. Thy servants are beaten, but the fault is in thine own people—Thy people make themselves guilty, and will bring the vengeance of God upon them for their cruelty.

V. 19. The children of Israel did see that they were in evil case—Looked upon them with sadness, with a sorrowful and angry countenance, as those that could obtain no relaxation for themselves, or for their brethren.

V. 20. They met Moses and Aaron as they—The officers who went to pour out their complaints to Pharaoh.

V. 21. You have put a sword in their hand to slay us—To give them, what they have long sought and thirsted after—an occasion to destroy and root us out.

V. 22. Moses returned unto the Lord—To expostulate with him, and pray to him. To the people he saith nothing, but meekly passeth by their severe censures, as forced from them by intolerable oppression, and because their minds being now imbittered and exasperated, they were incapable of admonition. Lord, wherefore hast thou so evil intreated this people—By giving occasion to their

Before Christ 1491.

and said, Lord, wherefore hast thou so evil intreated this people? why is it that thou hast sent me?

23 For since I came to Pharaoh to speak in thy name, he hath done evil to this people; § neither hast thou delivered thy people at all.

§ Heb. delivering, thou hast not delivered.

CHAP. VI.

THEN the Lord said unto Moses, Now shalt thou see what I will do to Pharaoh: for [a] with a strong hand shall he let them go, and with a strong hand [b] shall he drive them out of his land.

a Chap. 3. 19.
b Chap. 11. 1. & 12. 33, 39.

2 And God spake unto Moses, and said unto him, I am the Lord:

3 And I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob, by the name of [c] God almighty, but by my name [d] JEHOVAH was I not known to them.

c Gen. 17. 1. & 35. 11. & 48. 3.
d Chap. 3. 14.

4 [e] And I have also established my covenant with them, [f] to give them the land of Canaan, the land of their pilgrimage, wherein they were strangers.

e Gen. 17. 4.
f Gen. 17. 8. & 28. 4.

5 And [g] I have also heard the groaning of the children of Israel, whom the Egyptians keep in bondage: and I have remembered my covenant.

g Chap. 2. 24.

6 Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, I am the Lord, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will rid you out of their bondage: and I will redeem you with a stretched out arm, and with great judgments.

7 And I will take you to me for a people, and I will be to you a God: and ye shall know that I am the Lord your God, which bringeth you out [h] from under the burdens of the Egyptians.

Before Christ 1491.

8 And I will bring you in unto the land concerning the which I did * [i] swear to give it, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob; and I will give it you for an heritage. I am the Lord.

h Chap. 5. 4, 5. Psa. 81. 6.
* Heb. lift up my hand. See Gen. 14. 22. Deut. 32. 40.
i Gen. 15. 14. & 26. 3. & 35. 12.

9 ¶ And Moses spake so unto the children of Israel: [k] but they hearkened not unto Moses, for † anguish of spirit, and for cruel bondage.

k Chap. 5. 21.
† Heb. shortness, or, straitness

10 And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

11 Go in, speak unto Pharaoh king of Egypt, that he let the children of Israel go out of his land.

12 And Moses spake before the Lord, saying, Behold, the children of Israel have not hearkened unto me; how then shall Pharaoh hear me, [l] who am of uncircumcised lips?

l Verse 30. Chap. 4. 10. Jer. 1. 6.

13 And the Lord spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, and gave them a charge unto the children of Israel and unto Pharaoh king of Egypt; to bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt.

14 ¶ These be the heads of their fathers houses: [m] The sons of Reuben the first-born of Israel; Hanoch, and Pallu, Hezron, and Carmi: these be the families of Reuben.

m Gen. 46. 9. 1 Chron. 5. 3.

15 [n] And the sons of Simeon; Jemuel, and Jamin, and Ohad, and Jachin, and Zohar, and Shaul the son of a Canaanitish woman: these are the families of Simeon.

n 1 Chron. 4. 24.

16 ¶ And these are the names of [o] the sons of Levi, according to their generations; Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari: And the years o Num. 3. 17. 1 Chron. 6. 1, 16.

their greater bondage. He expostulates the matter with God, not from pride or arrogance, as one that would censure and condemn his actions, but from zeal for God's glory and his people's happiness, as one that would prevail with God to relieve them.

V. 23. Since I came to speak in thy name—Not of my own head, but by thy command and commission. Neither hast thou delivered thy people at all—According to thy promise, and thy people's expectation.

CHAP. VI.

V. 1. With a strong hand shall he let them go—Being compelled to do so by my powerful and terrible works.

V. 3. By my name JEHOVAH was I not known to them—God speaks not of the letters or syllables, but of the thing signified by that name. For that denotes all his perfections, and, amongst others, the eternity, constancy and immutability of his nature and will, and the infallible certainty of his word and promises.

V. 6. I will redeem you with a stretched out arm—My Almighty power. A metaphor from a man that stretcheth out his arm and puts forth all his strength to give the greater blow. With great judgments—Punishments justly inflicted upon them.

V. 7. I will take you to me for a people—For my people: You shall no longer be the people and slaves of the king of Egypt, but my people and servants, whom I shall bless and preserve. I will be to you a God—To judge and deliver you.

V. 8. I am the Lord—And therefore have authority and power to dispose of lands and kingdoms, as I please; and faithful to give you what I have promised.

V. 9. They hearkened not unto Moses for anguish of spirit—Their minds were so oppressed with their present burdens, and future expectations, that they could not believe nor hope for any deliverance, but deemed it impossible; and having been once deceived in their hopes, they now quite despaired, and thought their entertainment of new hopes, or use of further undeavours, would make their condition worse, as it had done.

V. 12. The children of Israel have not hearkened unto me, how then shall Pharaoh hear me—This was a weakness of faith, as if God could not effect his purpose, because the instrument was unfit.

V. 14. These be the heads of their father's houses—This genealogy he describes here, to shew the lineage of Moses and Aaron, by whom this great work was to be effected.

V. 16. According to their generations—From each of which proceeded a distinct generation, or family, called by their father's name.

Before Christ 1619. years of the life of Levi were an hundred thirty and seven years.

p 1 Chron. 6. 17. & 23. 7. 17 p The sons of Gershon; Libni, and Shimi, according to their families.

q Num. 26. 57. 1 Chron. 6. 2, 18. 18 And q the sons of Kohath; Amram, and Izhar, and Hebron, and Uzziel: And the years of the life of Kohath were an hundred thirty and three years.

r 1 Chron. 6. 19. & 23. 21. 19 And r the sons of Merari; Mahali and Mushi: these are the families of Levi, according to their generations.

s Chap. 2. 1, 2. Num. 26. 59. 20 And s Amram took him Jochebed his father's sister to wife; and she bare him Aaron and Moses: And the years of the life of Amram were an hundred and thirty and seven years.

t Num. 16. 1. 1 Chron. 6. 37, 38. 21 ¶ And t the sons of Izhar; Korah, and Nepheg, and Zichri.

u Lev. 10. 4. Num. 3. 30. 22 And u the sons of Uzziel; Mishael, and Elzaphan, and Zithri.

cir. 1530. 23 And Aaron took him Elisheba daughter of x Amminadab, sister of Naashon, to wife; and she bare him y Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar.

x Ruth 4. 19, 20. 1 Chron. 2. 10.

y Num. 3. 1. & 26. 60. 1 Chron. 6. 3. & 24. 1. 24 And the sons of Korah; Assir, and Elkanah, and Abiasaph: these are the families of the Korhites.

z Num. 25. 11. 25 And Eleazar Aaron's son took him one of the daughters of Putiel to wife; and z she bare him Phinehas: these are the heads of the fathers of the Levites, according to their families.

26 These are that Aaron and Moses, to whom the Lord said, Bring out the children of Israel from the land of Egypt, according to their armies.

1491. 27 These are they which spake to Pharaoh king of Egypt, to bring out the children of Israel from Egypt: these are that Moses and Aaron.

28 ¶ And it came to pass on the day when the Lord spake unto Moses in the land of Egypt, Before Christ 1491.

29 That the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, I am the Lord: speak thou unto Pharaoh king of Egypt all that I say unto thee.

30 And Moses said before the Lord, Behold, a I am of uncircumcised lips, and how shall Pharaoh hearken unto me? a Ver. 12. Chap. 4. 10.

CHAP. VII.

AND the Lord said unto Moses, See, I have made thee a a god to Pharaoh: and Aaron thy brother shall be thy prophet. a Chap. 4. 16. Jer. 1. 10.

2 Thou shalt speak all that I command thee: and Aaron thy brother shall speak unto Pharaoh, that he send the children of Israel out of his land.

3 And b I will harden Pharaoh's heart, and multiply my signs and my wonders in the land of Egypt. b Chap. 4. 21.

4 But Pharaoh shall not hearken unto you, that I may lay my hand upon Egypt, and bring forth mine armies, and my people the children of Israel, out of the land of Egypt, c by great judgments. c Chap. 6. 6.

5 And the Egyptians shall know, that I am the Lord, when I stretch forth mine hand upon Egypt, and bring out the children of Israel from among them.

6 And Moses and Aaron did as the Lord commanded them, so did they.

7 And Moses was fourscore years old, and Aaron fourscore and three years old, when they spake unto Pharaoh. 1491.

8 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, saying,

9 When Pharaoh shall speak unto you, saying, Shew a miracle for you: then thou shalt say unto Aaron, d Take thy rod, and cast it d Chap. 4. 2, 17.

V. 23. Aaron took him Elisheba, daughter of Amminadab—A Prince of the tribe of Judah. To wife—There were many marriages made between the tribes of Judah and Levi, to signify that both were united in Christ, who was to be both king and priest. It is observable that Moses is here silent in his own progeny, but gives a particular account of his brother's, not only from his great humility and modesty, which shines forth in many other passages, but because it was of more concern, and the honour of priesthood given to Aaron was to be hereditary and peculiar to his seed, and therefore it was necessary they should be exactly known, whereas Moses's honour and government was only personal, and did not pass to his children.

V. 26. According to their armies—According to their numerous families, which were equal to great armies, and which went out of Egypt, like several armies in military order, and with great power.

CHAP. VII.

V. 1. The Lord said unto Moses I have made thee a God to Pharaoh—To represent my person, to act like God, by requiring his obedience to thy commands, and by punishing his disobedience with such punishments as none but God can inflict, to which end thou shalt have my omnipotent assistance. Aaron shall be thy prophet—Thy interpreter, to deliver thy commands to Pharaoh.

V. 6. So did they—An emphatical repetition, to shew their courage in attempting to say and do such things to so great a monarch in his own dominions, and their fidelity in the execution of all God's commands.

V. 7. The ages of Moses and Aaron here, are so exactly set down, that thence we may understand the accomplishment of God's prediction, (Gen. xv. 13.) and the time of Israel's being in Egypt.

V. 9. Thou shalt say unto Aaron—By whose hands this and other miracles were to be done, and not by Moses immediately, partly to take off the suspicion that these miracles were wrought by some magical artifice of Moses; and partly for the greater honour of Moses, that he might be, what God had said, a God to Pharaoh, who not only could work wonders himself, but also give Before Christ 1491. caſt it before Pharaoh, and it ſhall become a ſerpent.

10 ¶ And Moſes and Aaron went in unto Pharaoh, and they did ſo as the Lord had commanded: and Aaron caſt down his rod before Pharaoh, and before his ſervants, and it became a ſerpent.

e Gen. 41. 8. 11 Then Pharaoh alſo [e] called the wiſe-men, f 2 Tim. 3. 8. and [f] the ſorcerers: now the magicians of Egypt, they alſo did in like manner with their inchantments.

12 For they caſt down every man his rod, and they became ſerpents: but Aaron's rod ſwallowed up their rods.

13 And he hardened Pharaoh's heart, that g Chap. 4. 21. he hearkened not unto them; [g] as the Lord had ſaid.

h Chap. 8. 15. & 10. 1,20,27. 14 ¶ And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, [h] Pharaoh's heart is hardened, he refuſeth to let the people go.

15 Get thee unto Pharaoh in the morning, lo, he goeth out unto the water, and thou ſhalt ſtand by the river's brink againſt he come, and the rod which was turned to a ſerpent ſhalt thou take in thine hand.

16 And thou ſhalt ſay unto him, The Lord God of the Hebrews hath ſent me unto thee, i Chap. 3. 12, 18. & 5. 1, 3. ſaying, Let my people go, [i] that they may ſerve me in the wilderneſs: and behold, hitherto thou wouldeſt not hear.

17 Thus ſaith the Lord, In this thou ſhalt k Chap. 4. 9. know that I am the Lord: [k] behold, I will ſmite with the rod that is in mine hand, upon the waters which are in the river, and they l Rev. 16. 6. ſhall be turned [l] to blood.

18 And the fiſh that is in the river ſhall die, and the river ſhall ſtink; and the Egyptians ſhall lothe to drink of the water of the river. Before Christ 1491.

19 ¶ And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, Say unto Aaron, Take thy rod, and ſtretch out thine hand upon the waters of Egypt, upon their ſtreams, upon their rivers, and upon their ponds, and upon all their * pools of water, that they may become blood; and that there may be blood throughout all the land of Egypt, both in veſſels of wood, and in veſſels of ſtone. * Heb. gathering of their waters.

20 And Moſes and Aaron did ſo, as the Lord commanded: and he [m] lift up the rod and ſmote the waters that were in the river, in the ſight of Pharaoh, and in the ſight of his ſervants: and all the [n] waters that were in the river, were turned to blood. m Chap. 17. 5. n Pſa. 78. 44. & 105. 29.

21 And the fiſh that was in the river, died: and the river ſtank, and the Egyptians could not drink of the water of the river: and there was blood throught all the land of Egypt.

22 And the magicians of Egypt did ſo with their inchantments: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, neither did he hearken unto them; [o] as the Lord had ſaid. o Verſe 32.

23 And Pharaoh turned and went into his his houſe, neither did he ſet his heart to this alſo.

24 And all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink: for they could not drink of the water of the river.

25 And ſeven days were fulfilled, after that the Lord had ſmitten the river.

CHAP.

give power to others to do ſo. Take thy rod—The ſame rod was uſed both by Moſes and Aaron in their great works. And this rod Moſes ordinarily held in his hand, and delivered it to Aaron upon occaſion, for the execution of his commands. It ſhall become a ſerpent—(Heb.) A dragon, a great ſerpent: Others, a crocodile, to whoſe jaws he had expoſed the Iſraelitiſh infants.

V. 11. Pharaoh called the wiſemen—To give their opinion and advice. The magicians—The ſame now called ſorcerers, who acted by the power of the devil, whom they engaged to their aſſiſtance. Of theſe, the two chief were Jannes and Jambres, (2 Tim. iii. 8.) They alſo did in like manner—In ſhew and appearance.

V. 12. Aaron's rod ſwallowed up their rods—By which it was evident, either that Aaron's rod was turned into a real ſerpent, becauſe it had the real properties and effects of a ſerpent, viz. to devour.

V. 14. Pharaoh's heart is hardened—Is obſtinate and reſolved, ſo as neither my word nor works can make any impreſſion upon him.

V. 15. He goeth out unto the water—Nilus, whither he went at that time, either for his recreation, or to pay his morning worſhip to that river, which the Egyptians had in great veneration.

V. 17. Thou ſhalt know that I am the Lord—Becauſe thou ſaidſt, Who is the Lord? and, I know not the Lord; thou ſhalt know him experimentally and to thy coſt. I will ſmite—By Aaron's hand, who ſhall do it by my command and direction. The river—Nilus, which was one of their principal Gods. Turned to blood—Which was a very grievous plague to them; both becauſe it was a diſhonour to their religion, and becauſe from hence they had both their drink and their meat. And their ſin was ſhewn in the puniſhment, who had made that river an inſtrument for the execution of their bloody deſigns againſt the Iſraelitiſh infants.

V. 18. The Egyptians—Therefore the Iſraelites were free from this plague, and thoſe branches of Nilus which they uſed were uncorrupted, when all others were turned into blood.

V. 19. Upon all their pools of water—Over ſome of them in the name of all the reſt.

V. 23. Neither did he ſet his heart to this—He did not ſeriouſly conſider it, nor the cauſes or cure of this plague, and was not much affected with it, becauſe he ſaw this fact exceeded not the power of his magicians.

V. 24. The Egyptians could not drink of the water—It is obſervable, that though the devil could do ſomething which might increaſe the plague, or imitate it, yet he could do nothing to remove it.

V. 25. Seven days were fulfilled—Ere all the waters of Egypt were perfectly free from this infection. Philo tells us, that many of them died of this plague.

CHAP.

CHAP. VIII.

Before Christ 1491.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, Go unto Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

2 And if thou refuse to let them go, behold, I will smite all thy borders with [a] frogs.

[a] Rev. 16. 13.

3 And the river shall bring forth frogs abundantly, which shall go up and come into thine house, and into thy bed-chamber, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thine ovens, and into thy * kneading-troughs.

* Or, dough.

4 And the frogs shall come up both on thee, and upon thy people, and upon all thy servants.

5 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch forth thine hand with thy rod over the streams, over the rivers, and over the ponds, and cause frogs to come up upon the land of Egypt.

6 And Aaron stretched out his hand over the waters of Egypt; and [b] the frogs came up, and covered the land of Egypt.

[b] Psa. 78. 45. & 105. 30.

7 And the magicians did so with their inchantments, and brought up frogs upon the land of Egypt.

8 ¶ Then Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron, and said, [c] Intreat the Lord, that he may take away the frogs from me, and from my people: and I will let the people go, that they may do sacrifice unto the Lord.

[c] Chap. 9. 28. & 10. 17. Num. 21. 7. 1 Kings 13. 6. Acts 8. 24.

9 And moses said unto Pharaoh, † Glory over me: ‡ when shall I intreat for thee, and for thy servants, and for thy people, § to destroy the frogs from thee, and thy houses, that they may remain in the river only?

† Or, Have this honour over me, &c.
‡ Or, against when.

Before Christ 1491.

§ Heb. to cut off.

10 And he said, ‖ To-morrow. And he said, Be it according to thy word: that thou mayest know, that there is none like unto the Lord our God.

‖ Or, Against to-morrow.

11 And the frogs shall depart from thee, and from thy houses, and from thy servants, and from thy people; they shall remain in the river only.

12 And Moses and Aaron went out from Pharaoh: and Moses cried unto the Lord, because of the frogs which he had brought against Pharaoh.

13 And the Lord did according to the word of Moses: and the frogs died out of the houses, out of the villages, and out of the fields.

14 And they gathered them together upon heaps: and the land stank.

15 But when Pharaoh saw that there was respite, [d] he hardened his heart, and hearkened not unto them: as the Lord had said.

[d] Chap. 7. 14.

16 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Say unto Aaron, Stretch out thy rod, and smite the dust of the land, that it may become lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

17 And they did so; for Aaron stretched out his hand with his rod, and smote the dust of the earth, and [e] it became lice, in man and in beast: all the dust of the land became lice throughout all the land of Egypt.

[e] Psa. 105. 31.

18 And

CHAP. VIII.

V. 2. I will smite all thy borders—All thy land, which is within thy borders.

V. 3. The river—Under which are comprehended all other rivers. But the river Nilus is mentioned, because God would make that an instrument of their misery, in which they most gloried, and to which they gave divine honours, and which was the instrument of their cruelty against the Israelites. Frogs shall go into thy bed-chamber—This plague was worse than the former, because it was more constant and more general.

V. 4. The frogs shall come up both on thee, and upon thy people—Not upon the Israelites, whom he hereby exempts from the number of Pharaoh's people and subjects, and owns them for his peculiar people. The frogs did not only invade their houses, but assault their persons, which is not strange, considering that they were armed with a divine commission and power.

V. 5. The Lord spake unto Moses—In the king's presence.

V. 9. Moses said unto Pharaoh, glory over me—Glory concerning me, as one that by God's power can do that for thee which all thy magicians cannot, of whom therefore thou now seest thou canst not glory, nor boast, as thou hast hitherto done. When shall I intreat for thee—Appoint me what time thou pleaseth. Hereby he knew that the hand and glory of God would be more conspicuous in it. And this was no presumption in Moses, because he had a large commission.

V. 10. To-morrow—Why not presently? Because he hoped before that time they might be removed, and so he should not need the favour of Moses, or his God; or, because he thought Moses might use divers ceremonies, as the magicians did, in his addresses to God, which would require time.

V. 12. Moses cried unto the Lord—Though he was assured that the frogs would depart at his word, yet he would use the means appointed by God for the accomplishment of it.

V. 13. The Lord did according to the word of Moses—God fulfilled by his power what Moses had foretold by his Spirit; and God being the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever, the same power is ever present to fulfil all that is foretold by his Spirit in the Scriptures, of good to them that fear him and believe in him; and of evil to all that live without God in the world, and are enemies to him by wicked works. The frogs died out of the houses—They died, and were removed out of the houses.

V. 14. They gathered them together upon heaps—God would not instantly and wholly take them away, both to convince them of the truth of the miracle, and to make them more sensible of this judgment, and more fearful of bringing another upon themselves.

V. 16. The Lord said unto Moses, say unto Aaron—God now gave him no warning, because he shewed himself in the last plague to be both perfidious and incorrigible. Smite the dust that it may become lice—It is probable, that they were much more loathsome and troublesome than ordinary.

V. 17. Aaron smote the dust, and it became lice—Which was not fit matter to produce them, and therefore shews this work to be divine and miraculous.

V. 18. The

Before Christ 1491.

18 And the magicians did so with their inchantments to bring forth lice, but they could not: so there were lice upon man, and upon beast.

19 Then the magicians said unto Pharaoh, This is [f] the finger of God: and Pharaoh's heart was hardened, and he hearkened not unto them; as the Lord had said.

[f] 1 Sam. 6. 3, 9. Psa. 8. 3. Matt. 12. 28. Luke 11. 20.

20 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, (lo, he cometh forth to the water) and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

21 Else if thou wilt not let my people go, behold, I will send * swarms of flies upon thee, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thy houses: and the houses of the Egyptians shall be full of swarms of flies, and also the ground whereon they are.

* Or, a mixture of noisom beasts, &c.

22 And [g] I will sever in that day the land of Goshen, in which my people dwell, that no swarms of flies shall be there; to the end thou mayest know, that I am the Lord in the midst of the earth.

[g] Chap. 9. 4, 26. and 10. 23. and 12. 13.

23 And I will put † a division between my people, and thy people: ‡ to morrow shall this sign be.

Before Christ 1491.

† Heb. a redemption.
‡ Or, by to morrow.

24 And the Lord did so: and [h] there came a grievous swarm of flies into the house of Pharaoh, and into his servants houses, and into all the land of Egypt: the land was § corrupted by reason of the swarm of flies.

[h] Psa. 78. 45. and 105. 31.

§ Or, destroyed.

25 ¶ And Pharaoh called for Moses, and for Aaron, and said, Go ye, sacrifice to your God in the land.

26 And Moses said, It is not meet so to do; for we shall sacrifice [i] the abomination of the Egyptians to the Lord our God: Lo, shall we sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians before their eyes, and will they not stone us?

[i] Gen. 43. 32. and 46. 34.

27 We will go [k] three days journey into the wilderness, and sacrifice to the Lord our God, as [l] he shall command us.

[k] Chap. 3. 12.
[l] Chap. 3. 18.

28 And Pharaoh said, I will let you go, that ye may sacrifice to the Lord your God, in the wilderness: only you shall not go very far away: [m] intreat for me.

[m] Verse 8. Chap. 9. 28. 1 Kings 13. 6.

29 And

V. 18. The magicians did so—Endeavoured to do so. But they could not—It was as easy for them to produce lice as frogs, but God hindered them, partly to confound them and their devilish arts; and to shew that what they did before was only by his permission, and partly to convince Pharaoh and the Egyptians of their vanity, in trusting to such impotent magicians, and in opposing that God who could control and confound them, when he pleased.

V. 19. This is the finger of God—Of that supreme God. Pharaoh hearkened not unto them—To Moses and Aaron.

V. 21. I will send swarms of flies—A mixture of insects, of various kinds, as bees, wasps, gnats, hornets.

V. 22. I will sever the land in which my people dwell—How easy is it for God to make it go well with the righteous in times of the greatest and most general calamity, which his justice sends to punish sin, and to lead men to repentance.—God severs from the rest the places where those live, that have separated themselves from the society of the wicked, and who mourn for their own past sins, and those they cannot prevent in others. That thou mayest know that I am the Lord—Of the whole earth, not only the Lord of Israel, but of thee, and thy dominions.

V. 23. I will put a division—A redemption, a wall of partition, by which I will preserve the Israelites whilst I destroy the Egyptians. To morrow shall this sign be—This he saith, to gain the more belief to himself in what he now did, or should further speak in God's name to them, and to warn them of their danger, and make their disobedience more inexcusable.

V. 24. The Lord did so—Immediately by his own word, and not by Moses, lest the Egyptians should think it was a magician's art, and that all Moses did was done by the power of the devil. There came a grievous swarm of flies—An heavy mixture of flies, mischievous and troublesome. The land was corrupted by reason of the swarm of flies—Many of the people were poisoned or stung to death by them, as appears from Ps. lxxviii. 45.

V. 25, 26. Pharaoh said, sacrifice to your God in the land. Moses said, it is not meet—Not right, in God's eyes, who hath appointed us the place, as well as the duty. We shall sacrifice the abomination of the Egyptians—That which the Egyptians abhor to kill, or to see killed. The Egyptians will they not stone us—For doing what they so much abhor; as they not only think it cruel to kill those animals which are to be offered, but the Egyptians think it impious to the last degree, to see violence done to any creature which they wickedly worship as a God, at the instigation of Satan; who will make use of all his art, to make them believe they are doing their God service, even to lose their lives in the attempt to destroy us, for thus dishonouring the idols they have so long been accustomed to adore as God, though to do so, is the shame and disgrace of human reason, and the evidence of its naturally blind and fallen state.

V. 27. We will go three days journey, and sacrifice to the Lord our God, as he shall command us—For we know not what kind or number of sacrifices to offer to him, till we come thither.

V. 28. You shall not go very far away: intreat for me—My own people inform me, that it is the Most High God, whose power performs the things that have been done to afflict me and my kingdom, and the reason of these calamities, you tell me, is the detaining of the people of your nation in my dominions, against the will of God; but I will not consent that you shall go very far away, whatever may be the will of God: However, as he has such power, as I now find he has to hurt me, intreat for me, that our distress may be removed. This conduct is no other than that of a determination to do what we think most beneficial to ourselves, without regarding the will of God, or the rights of others; and, at the same time, offering to the eternal God, that which is an offence to his truth and goodness:—That is, to intreat of him to grant what we want, resolving, at the same time, to do what we choose ourselves, though we know it is contrary to the very nature and will of God. To live according to our own natural self-will, and without any real intention of doing what God requires, and to use words of prayer, or to desire others to do it for us, is to have our very prayers added to the number of our sins. Carelessly, or wilfully to live in any known sin, and to intreat God to remove this evil, or to bestow upon us the other blessing, is the same thing as saying, Is there wisdom in the Most High? Doth God know that I am thus insulting his Infinite wisdom, and that I am but applying to him in the language of the apostate spirits of satan, which reigns in us before we know God, and which leads men

Before Christ 1491.

29 And Moſes ſaid, Behold, I go out from thee, and I will intreat the Lord, that the ſwarms of flies may depart from Pharaoh, from his ſervants, and from his people, tomorrow: but let not Pharaoh deal deceitfully any more in not letting the people go to ſacrifice to the Lord.

30 And Moſes went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the Lord:

31 And the Lord did according to the word of Moſes; and he removed the ſwarms of flies from Pharaoh, from his ſervants, and from his people: there remained not one.

[o] Verſe 15. Chap. 4. 21.

32 And Pharaoh [o] hardened his heart at this time alſo, neither would he let the people go.

CHAP. IX.

THEN the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, Go in unto Pharaoh, and tell him, Thus ſaith the Lord God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may ſerve me.

2 For if thou refuſe to let them go, and wilt hold them ſtill,

3 Behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thy cattle which is in the field, upon the horſes, upon the aſſes, upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the ſheep: there ſhall be a very grievous murrain. Before Christ 1491.

4 And [a] the Lord ſhall ſever between the cattle of Iſrael, and the cattle of Egypt: and there ſhall nothing die of all that is the children's of Iſrael. [a] Chap. 8. 22.

5 And the Lord appointed a ſet time, ſaying, To morrow the Lord ſhall do this thing in the land.

6 And the Lord did that thing on the morrow, and [b] all the cattle of Egypt died: but of the cattle of the children of Iſrael died not one. [b] Pſal. 78. 50.

7 And Pharaoh ſent, and behold, there was not one of the cattle of the Iſraelites dead. And [c] the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, and he did not let the people go. [c] Chap. 7. 14.

8 ¶ And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, and unto Aaron, Take to you handfuls of aſhes of the furnace, and let Moſes ſprinkle it towards the heaven in the ſight of Pharaoh.

9 And men to uſe words contrary to their real meaning; ſpeaking fair, but, in truth and in our actions, oppoſing every good wiſh and principle of thoſe we addreſs, with words of ſeeming reſpect and ſincerity.

V. 29. Let not Pharaoh deal deceitfully any more—Moſes gives the king this ſtrong caution againſt making any future attempt to deal deceitfully with God, who knows the thoughts and intents of the heart; but Moſes does not here go ſo far as to conclude, that, becauſe the king had dealt deceitfully, that he would continue to do ſo.

V. 30, 31, 32. Moſes intreated the Lord, and the Lord did according to the word of Moſes—God graciouſly hears his ſervant's prayer at the requeſt of the king, and not only hears but anſwers it, and removes the evil that diſtreſſed the whole country. What willingneſs in God to anſwer prayer! And to which the king made this return, He would not let the people go; though he had his requeſt granted by the Almighty, he would not do as God would have him.

CHAP. IX.

V. 1. Go in unto Pharaoh, and tell him, thus ſaith the Lord God, Let my people go—Tell him I have anſwered his prayer, I have done what he deſired thee to intreat ME for; I upbraid him not for what he has already done; he has ſuffered for his diſobedience, and is not to be reproached; but tell him God again ſays, Let my people go; and again ſet before him what he will expoſe himſelf to, by again refuſing to do what he knows is My will.

V. 2, 3. If thou refuſe, the hand of the Lord is upon thy cattle—In an immediate manner, not by my rod, that thou mayeſt know, it is not I, but the Lord, which doth all theſe things to thee.

V. 4. There ſhall nothing die of all that is the children's of Iſrael—The gracious care of God is not only over them that fear him, but he charges himſelf with all that belongs to them: Whatever the pooreſt Iſraelite poſſeſſed, the Almighty was the protector of it; whilſt all that belonged to the king and people of Egypt, was expoſed to the rage of thoſe plagues, which ſatan and his angels only want God's permiſſion immediately to inflict upon the wicked; their whole powers being ever intently ſet to do evil continually, the greateſt miſchief, miſery, and deſtruction that can be inflicted on men, or any thing belonging to men, is therefore that which they never delay to do; that they may, if but for a moment, wound HIS cauſe who died for men, loves them all, and willeth the death of none, and who willingly neither afflicts or grieves any of the ſons of men.

V. 5, 6. The Lord appointed a ſet time; and the Lord did that thing on the morrow, and all the cattle of Egypt died—Either of all ſorts; or a very great number of them, as the word all is frequently uſed; or, all that were in the field, but not all abſolutely. He did not believe the word of God, which foretold this; he ſent to ſee if it was true, as God had ſaid: God hath ſaid the wicked ſhall be turned into hell, and all that forget God; and that except a man repent and forſake ſin, believe the goſpel—the revelation God hath given of himſelf, and be born of God—poſſeſs his ſpirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of bleſſedneſs, becauſe not poſſeſſed of the nature of heaven; and whilſt we are in the mind of the king of Egypt, we do not believe it is as God has ſaid: But when ſhall they know the certainty, who live and die believing not the ſolemn repeated declarations of God, ſealed with miracles like theſe before us? They that delay, till after death, to be informed whether there is ſalvation in any other name than that of JESUS, will be informed of the ſafety of the true believers, and of their own ſufferings, as Pharaoh was informed of the ſafety of Iſrael, when he was ſuffering under the calamity which God had told him would come upon him, and all his people, if they would not obey the command of God.

V. 8. The Lord ſaid, Take to you handfuls of aſhes of the furnace—To remind them of their cruel uſage of the Iſraelites in their furnaces. Let Moſes ſprinkle it—Both were to take them up, but Moſes only to ſprinkle them, to ſhew that they were but inſtruments, which God could uſe as he pleaſed, and God was the author of what was done.

V. 9. A boil breaking forth with blains—A burning ſcab, which quickly raiſed blains and bliſters.

V. 10. It

Before Christ 1491.

9 And it shall become small dust in all the land of Egypt, and shall be [d] a boil breaking forth with blains, upon man, and upon beast, throughout all the land of Egypt.

d Rev. 16. 2.

10 And they took ashes of the furnace, and stood before Pharaoh, and Moses sprinkled it up toward heaven: and it became [e] a boil breaking forth with blains, upon man, and upon beast.

e Deut. 28. 27.

11 And the magicians could not stand before Moses, because of the boil: for the boil was upon the magicians, and upon all the Egyptians.

12 And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh, and he hearkened not unto them; [f] as the Lord had spoken unto Moses.

f Chap. 4. 21.

13 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Rise up early in the morning, and stand before Pharaoh, and say unto him, Thus saith the Lord God of the Hebrews, Let my people go, that they may serve me.

14 For I will at this time send all my plagues upon thine heart, and upon thy servants, and upon thy people: that thou mayest know that there is none like me in all the earth.

15 For now I will stretch out my hand, that I may smite thee and thy people with pestilence; and thou shalt be cut off from the earth.

Before Christ 1491.

16 And in very deed for [g] this cause have I * raised thee up, for to shew in thee my power; and that my name may be declared throughout all the earth.

g Rom. 9. 17. See Chap. 14. 17. Prov. 16. 4. 1 Pet. 2. 8.

* Heb. made thee stand.

17 As yet exaltest thou thyself against my people, that thou wilt not let them go?

18 Behold, to morrow about this time, I will cause it to rain a very grievous hail, such as hath not been in Egypt, since the foundation thereof, even until now.

19 Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle, and all that thou hast in the field; for upon every man and beast which shall be found in the field, and shall not be brought home, the hail shall come down upon them, and they shall die.

20 He that feared the word of the Lord amongst the servants of Pharaoh, made his servants and his cattle flee into the houses.

21 And he that † regarded not the word of the Lord, left his servants and his cattle in the field.

† Heb. set not his heart unto.

22 ¶ And

V. 10. It became a boil—God multiplying that dust, and dispersing it over all the land, and causing it to fall and rest upon the bodies of the Egyptians.

V. 11. The magicians could not stand before Moses, because of the boil—As they hitherto had done, both as spies and as adversaries, for though their understandings were convinced of God's hand and infinite power, yet their hearts were not changed, but for their worldly interest they persisted to rebel against their light, and therefore are justly plagued.

V. 13, 14. Thus saith the Lord God, I will send all my plagues upon thine heart—Into thy heart: Thou hast hitherto not felt my plagues upon thy own person, or thy body, but I shall shortly reach and wound it, and that not only in the skin; as the magicians and others are now smitten, but even to thy heart, such as shall give thee a mortal and irrecoverable wound. Who can tell the greatness of his wrath; or, what a fearful thing it is to fall under the righteous judgment of an holy offended God?

V. 15. I will smite thee and thy people with pestilence—With an utter and irrecoverable destruction. This relates partly to the killing of the first-born, which plague did more immediately and nearly concern both him and his people, and principally to their destruction in the Red Sea.

V. 16. For this cause have I raised thee up—So the Hebrew word is translated; (Rom. ix. 17.) I have raised thee up out of thy first nothing into thy being, and life, and kingdom; and upheld thy being and reign even in the midst of thy tyranny. I have made thee to remain alive and untouched, when thy magicians could not stand. I have preserved thee in life, not for want of power to destroy thee, as thou mayest fancy, nor for want of provocation from thee, but for my own glory. To shew in thee my power—In those mighty works which have been occasioned by thy rebellion, and obstinacy. That my name—My being and providence, and my manifold perfections, my patience in bearing thee so long, my justice in punishing thee, my power in conquering thee, my wisdom in over-ruling thy pride and tyranny and cruelty to thy own destruction and the redemption of my oppressed people, and my faithfulness in making good my promises to them, and my threatenings to thee.

V. 17. As yet exaltest thou thyself against my people—Against Me acting for my people. The gracious God takes what is done to or against his people, as done to or against himself. (Zech. ii. 8. Matth. xxv. 40, 45. Acts ix. 4, 5.)

V. 18. Such as hath not been in Egypt since the foundation thereof—Since they were a kingdom, or a nation.

V. 19. Send therefore now, and gather thy cattle—This forewarning God gives to mitigate the severity of the judgment, and to make a difference between the penitent and the incorrigible Egyptians. It being far from God to inflict the same punishment on those who mourn because of any national crime, and those who for their profit or pleasure will continue to do that which is opposed to God. Before this, it had pleased God sufficiently to publish to all the people of Egypt, what was the cause of the calamities he visited them with; and now, in mercy, he gives this public notice of the further evil which the conduct of the governing part of the nation was bringing down upon themselves, by persisting in their disobedience to the declared will of the Almighty; and this warning is given, that all that feared God, and were against the oppression of the people of Israel, and against their being detained in slavery, contrary to the will of God, might shelter themselves and their families, and cattle, against the impending storm of God's anger.

V. 20. He that feared the word of the Lord, made his servants and his cattle flee into the houses—They that feared God, believing the discoveries which he had given of his displeasure, at the slavery and oppression of the people of Israel, such persons refusing all concurrence of theirs in this part of their national crimes, regarding the notice God had given, and did as he commanded.

V. 21. He that regarded not the word of the Lord, left his in the field—Concluding that Pharaoh and the leading men of the nation, had a right to do what they pleased with the people of Israel; that they were foreigners, had strange customs, and were people of a different colour to the people of Egypt; that it was

Before Christ 1491.

22 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch forth thine hand toward heaven, that there may be [h] hail in all the land of Egypt; upon man, and upon beast, and upon every herb of the field, throughout the land of Egypt.

[h] Rev. 16. 21.

23 And Moses stretched forth his rod toward heaven, and [i] the Lord sent thunder and hail, and the fire ran along upon the ground; and the Lord rained hail upon the land of Egypt.

Before Christ 1491.

[i] Psa. 78. 47. and 105. 32.

24 So

beneficial to the Egyptians to have so many thousands of men, women, and children, to do what cattle could not do for them; and that it well suited the dignity of so powerful a people as the Egyptians, to be served by so many slaves; and as for any danger from God's taking the part of a people, who were neither wise enough, nor strong enough, to free themselves from their bondage, it was little to be expected, after they, and their fathers before them, had been so long accustomed to make use of these people as their slaves; and as the word of the LORD was a new thing to them, was opposed to their interest, their conveniency, and to their ambition, though they could not but allow that it agreed well enough with the rights of humanity, and with that naturally equitable rule, that every man should do to all men, as he would wish all men should do to him; but as neither this rule of conduct from men to men, nor the word of God, commanding the sending away the Israelites, were in reality regarded by Pharaoh, his ministers, and the generality of the people about them; it might have the appearance of disrespect to the government, did they pay any regard to the word of the LORD, as this appeared in opposition to the measures of established authority, and on the side of releasing the Israelites from slavery: It is true, Pharaoh had publicly desired God to be entreated, that the evils that were felt or feared, might be turned away from him and his people, but then it is evident it was not their intention to let the people go, whose cry under their oppression had come up before God, and who gave this notice of the storm that was to come, as the executioner of HIS offended justice, who is the supreme guardian of all the rights of humanity, and the judge of all the dealings between men and men, nation and nation. But the language of that time was—Intreat God for us; this is but a becoming respect to any God: But who is the LORD GOD of the Hebrews, that we should obey him in doing what would be so much to our disadvantage as a nation, as that of sending all the people away we have brought into a state of slavery to us? And besides this, the leading authority had other powerful motives for not going so far as to do what God required in releasing the oppressed Israelites—If they had done this, the abilities of all their wise men would have been called in question, for not finding out expedients for keeping the Israelites in slavery, and doing what they pleased, and at the same time, so to conduct the affairs of Egypt, as to carry the whole nation clear of all the judgments of God: But this was not all; to have done what God commanded, however just and humane it would have been to have sent the people away they had brought into slavery, but to do it from a fear of any public danger, would have placed the courage of all the commanders of Pharaoh's numerous armies in an unfavourable light; and would have been to have acknowledged a superior, in truth and in reality, who had the right to govern them, and the power to punish their disobedience to his laws; this agreed not with the high spirit of so great and powerful a nation as Egypt; the natural equity or humanity of what was to be done in sending all their slaves away, was not therefore a matter of any dispute, for it admitted of none, because every man knew that would but look at the Israelites, and the Egyptians as a friend of the common human race, that the Egyptians had no more right to make slaves of the Israelites, though they did not go to bring them from a distant country for that purpose, than the Israelites had to make slaves of the Egyptians, or that the people of a third nation had to oppress and make slaves of both, only because they had it in their power to do it; the natural justice, and humanity therefore of detaining the people of Israel in slavery in Egypt against their will, and against the express command of God, was not the matter in dispute; the real contest was, whether the conduct of the Egyptian government should be such as pleased themselves, or whether they should regulate their measures by what they knew of the will of Almighty God, and of those universal principles of equal justice, goodness, mercy, and truth, which ever invariably flow from the adorable nature of God, and which it is his blessed will should be the foundation from which all human government, and all the conduct of men to men should derive its warrant and authority. Pharaoh, and those of his servants, who determined not to adopt such measures, as by the spirit of them should acknowledge the God of the despised Hebrews for their superior, regarded not the word of the LORD; but slaves the Israelites had been in their time, and in the age before them, and slaves they should be, let GOD do what he would: This is the living language of their conduct, and the storm of God's anger that follows, and all the destruction and ruinous consequences that follow, are so many ways by which God in mercy to mankind has been shewing to all the generations which have since lived, that the dangers to which those expose themselves, whose designs and actions in public or private life are opposed to the will of God, is no other than their own ruin and final destruction, if they will persist in them against all the compassionate warnings which God gives them of the wrath to come; and what we are to expect in one way or other from the justice of God, when we will not submit ourselves in the whole spirit of our minds to the gracious influence of his holy spirit, and living by its power, regulate all our actions by the plain and express laws which are made known to the very hearts and minds of all mankind, written in the Scriptures, and in all the works of God in the creation, and explained by his mild and merciful government of all things for the good of them that fear him, and by his shewing, sooner or later, that he is himself the avenger of the oppressed in every age and country, he being no respecter of persons, but as Creator, Preserver and Redeemer, in boundless mercy bears all the same relations to all the sons of men; ever willing the present and endless blessedness of the whole family of the earth; neither willing the misery or destruction of a single person, or of a nation; and as in the history before us, when individuals, forming a community, draw down his judgments upon themselves by their disobedience to his will; he publishes to the world, and makes known, both the crimes and their punishment, for the gracious purpose of warning all men in every after-age, and in every nation, against being led by any example of men, or by the influence of any human authority, either to do or give any concurrence to what is done contrary to God's universal law of love, and designs of peace on earth, and good-will towards men.

V. 22. The Lord said, stretch forth thine hand, that there may be hail upon man—Upon those men that presumed to continue in the field after this admonition.

V. 23. And the Lord sent thunder and hail, and fire—And GOD it is, who still gives to the tempests their commission, who sends destroying war among those who will not be of one mind in doing the will of God; and the great use of God's word is, to acquaint us with the nature of his government; and, after shewing us what God has done for men in other ages and countries who feared him, and them that regarded him not, he then informs us, that, from everlasting to everlasting, he is the same, and as much offended with the want of justice, mercy, and an humble walking with

God

Before Christ 1491.

24 So there was hail, and fire mingled with the hail, very grievous, such as there was none like it in all the land of Egypt, since it became a nation.

25 And the hail smote throughout all the land of Egypt, all that was in the field, both man and beast: and the hail smote every herb of the field, and brake every tree of the field.

k Chap. 8. 22. and 10. 23 and 11. 7. and 12. 13.

26 [k] Only in the land of Goshen, where the children of Israel were, was their no hail.

27 And Pharaoh sent, and called for Moses and Aaron, and said unto them, I have sinned this time: the Lord is righteous, and I and my people are wicked.

l Chap. 8. 8, 28. & 10. 17. Acts 8. 24.

28 [l] Intreat the Lord (for it is enough) that there be no more * mighty thunderings and hail; and I will let you go, and ye shall stay no longer.

* Heb. voices of God.

29 And Moses said unto him, As soon as I am gone out of the city, I will spread abroad my hands unto the Lord: and the thunder shall cease, neither shall there be any more hail; that thou mayest know, how that the

m Psa. 24. 1.

earth is [m] the Lord's.

30 But as for thee and thy servants, I know that ye will not yet fear the Lord God.

Before Christ 1491.

31 And the flax, and the barley was smitten: for the barley was in the ear, and the flax was bolled.

n Ruth 1. 22. and 2. 23.

32 [n] But the wheat and the rie were not smitten: for they were † not grown up.

† Heb. hidden, or, dark.

33 And Moses went out of the city from Pharaoh, and spread abroad his hands unto the Lord: and the thunders and hail ceased, and the rain was not poured upon the earth.

34 And when Pharaoh saw, that the rain, and the hail, and the thunders were ceased, he sinned yet more, and hardened his heart, he and his servants.

o Chap. 4. 21.

35 And [o] the heart of Pharaoh was hardened, neither would he let the children of Israel go; as the Lord had spoken ‡ by Moses.

‡ Heb. by the hand of Moses.

CHAP. X.

a Chap. 4. 21. and 7. 14.

AND the Lord said unto Moses, Go in unto Pharaoh: [a] for I have hardened his heart, and the heart of his servants; that I might shew these my signs before him:

2 And

God in any nation now, as he was when he sent these his judgments upon the people of Egypt; and this God discovers also in his word, that where his will is most clearly known amongst any people, that to persist in a disregard of what he requires, is then most severely punished.

V. 24. There was hail, and fire mingled with the hail—Which strange mixture much increased the miracle. Such as there was none like it in Egypt, since it became a nation—For that hail and rain did sometimes, though but seldom, fall in Egypt, is attested by divers eye witnesses.

V. 25. The hail smote every herb, and brake every tree—Most of the herbs and trees of all sorts.

V. 26. Where the children of Israel were, was there no hail—It seems the Egyptians that dwelt there were spared for the sake of their neighbours the Israelites; which great obligation probably made them more willing to lend their jewels to them.

V. 27. Pharaoh said, I have sinned this time—I now see and acknowledge my sin in striving with God.

V. 28. Intreat the Lord, (for it is enough) that there be no more—Let it be enough, (let God content himself that he hath punished me so long, and that I have confessed my sin, and promised amendment) that there may be hereafter no more.

V. 29. Moses said, I will spread abroad my hands unto the Lord, and the thunder shall cease, that thou mayest know the earth is the Lord's—Even His, whom thou deniedst to have any jurisdiction in it, or over thee. That thou mayest see, that He can either cause the heavens to send forth such thunders and hails, or restrain them, as he pleaseth.

V. 30. I know that ye will not yet fear the Lord God—God enabled Moses to know more of Pharaoh's mind, than the king knew of his own. He had not been brought humbly to confess that the human heart by nature, was deceitful and desperately wicked; and as the consequence of that knowledge to implore the communication of the grace of God to cleanse the thoughts of his heart.

V. 31. The flax and the barley was smitten—Thus God still sends smaller judgments before the greater.

V. 32. The wheat and the rie were not grown up—But tender and hidden in the ground, or in the herb; whereby it was secured from the fire by its greenness and moisture, and from the hail by its pliableness and yielding to it; whereas the stalks of barley were more dry and stiff, and therefore more liable to the hail and fire. And thus with men, as with the produce of the ground; they who are most tender, and the soonest afflicted with the fear of offending God, and are lowly in heart, they turn from evil, and the storms of divine wrath, pass over them, which drives away and destroys those that would not yield and submit themselves to God, whose goodness and mercy, for the sake of His Son JESUS, who need only be believed in, to hide such from all destruction; and this safety is given them in this life as a sure pledge from God of that safety, which all that believe shall have at last; when the sun shall be darkened, the elements take fire and melt with fervent heat. 2 Pet. iii. 10.

CHAP. X.

V. 1. The Lord said, I have hardened his heart—When any soul of man refuses to hear the gracious admonitions of the Spirit of God, but will grieve him, and resist his mild, holy, just, and good influence; and will yield themselves servants to the spirit of satan, which rules in all that disobey God: The holy Spirit of God does not always continue to strive with men, but when the heart of man, against all it knows, and all it feels of good and of evil, will embrace and obey, in the spirit of their minds that which is opposed to the very nature of God, as Pharaoh's cruelty and oppression of the Israelites was opposed to God's tenderness and compassion; then, from those that will not have God to reign over them, is his spirit withdrawn, and, in that soul or heart which is left and forsaken of God, there satan reigns, whose spirit of cruelty, pride, impurity, deceit, and selfishness, was preferred to the presence and will of God; and when an heart is hardened, it is so, because it will not submit to God, will not have God to reign over it. God is love, and they that dwell, live in a spirit of love to God and men, they dwell in God, and enjoy a divine life. (1 John iv. 16.) They, on the other hand, that will live in a spirit of pride, anger, and self-will, pleasing themselves, and obeying the god of this world, as satan is called, have both their hearts hardened and their eyes blinded, because by

Before Christ 1491.

2 And that [b] thou mayeſt tell in the ears of thy ſon, and of thy ſon's ſon, what things I have wrought in Egypt, and my ſigns which I have done amongſt them; that ye may know how that I am the Lord.

[b] Pſa. 71. 18. and 78. 5, &c.

3 And Moſes and Aaron came in unto Pharaoh, and ſaid unto him, Thus ſaith the Lord God of the Hebrews, How long wilt thou refuſe to humble thyſelf before me? Let my people go, that they may ſerve me.

Before Chriſt 1491.

4 Elſe if thou refuſe to let my people go, behold, to morrow will I bring the locuſts into thy coaſt.

5 And

by evil deeds they chooſe darkneſs rather than light; and the ſpirit of this world before the ſpirit of God; and the laſt ſtate of a ſoul, before it falls forever under the dominion of that wicked ſpirit it has choſen, is deſperate hardneſs of heart, where ſatan reigns with all his want of mercy, who ſinned againſt ſo much as to be ſhut out from mercy for ever. And this part of God's word is clearly to make known to us, the nature of that ſpirit which is oppoſed to God, and to ſhew us that ſatan who wanted to be like the Moſt High himſelf, and who fell with other angels from their firſt bleſſed eſtate, (Iſa. xiv. 14. Jude 5, 6.) is ever intent on erecting a government oppoſed to God's, carrying on their deſigns by leading men firſt to doubt, and then to diſbelieve all the diſcoveries which God has given of his nature and his will, in his word, his works, and by his grace and providence; and when this evil ſpirit has ſeduced a ſoul from its allegiance to God, and prevailed with it to do diſpite to that grace of God which, for Jeſus's ſake, appears to all men; then new reaſons, to doubt and diſbelieve God's word, are followed with new inducements to live without God in the world, in the ſpirit and under the dominion of the wicked one; and whether the prevailing temper of the mind is, pride or love of eaſe, anger or the fear of man, love of money or a careleſs contempt of all the commands of God, to have all things done to his glory; whether men are employed in oppreſſing thouſands, or ſecretly cheating a few; whether they are living in ſenſuality or in robbery, ſo as it is but in any conduct or ſpirit that is oppoſed to God, the ſoul that is ſo, is under ſatan's government, his purpoſes are anſwered, and God is robbed of the ſouls for whom his beloved Son came and died; and to prevent this ruin to men, God has ſet before us the nature of the world of wicked ſpirits, and our danger from them, leſt we, like Pharaoh, ſhould wilfully continue in known ſin, till hard, we become harder ſtill. And the uſe to be made of the information given us in the word of God of the nature of ſatan, and of his devices is—when he propoſes doubts to the mind, of the truth of theſe eternal realities, which God has made known in his revealed will—when he offers objects of delight to the ſoul, as he does in in every thing, but God—when he offers inducements to do what God hath forbidden, and to neglect what God hath commanded; to avoid our own danger, and to ſecure our own ſafety is one and the ſame. Beſides God our Saviour, there is no other Saviour; and they that make uſe of all ſatan's temptations, as occaſions of looking unto Jesus the author and finiſher of our faith, (Heb. xii. 2.) inſtead of finding that it is God that hardens the heart, they will find that the heart was only hard, becauſe it did not receive his merciful ſpirit, did not believe in Him, and in his great and gracious deſigns of love and goodneſs, for the ſake of Jeſus.

V. 2. That thou mayeſt tell thy ſon, and thy ſons ſon, what things I have wrought; that ye may know how that I am the Lord—That it may be made known by you to all who now live with you, and to the generations to come, and from my viſible church in the world to all mankind, what are the dangers to which all men expoſe themſelves by any ſin; that miſery is the wages of all wickedneſs; and that finally, the wages of ſin is death eternal, to all them who will continue in any ways of diſobedience to God: Pharaoh, and his ſervants, being reſolved to perſiſt in a conduct which proceeded from pride, injuſtice, avarice, and ſelf-will, God makes all theſe diſcoveries of his diſpleaſure at their conduct, that it may be known to all mankind, that whatever proceeds from evil, or has evil in view, invariably draws after it diſtreſs, miſery and deſtruction; and there being none of the ſons of men who have not, with Pharaoh and his ſervants, offended againſt ſome of God's holy laws, (James ii. 10.) by the wrath of God thus made known againſt all ſin; the whole human race may be led to look unto Him who is exalted, and lives as a prince and a Saviour; to redeem and to reign over all them that believe in Him; and who by faith receive the continued ſupplies of that grace by which they are enabled to do the will of God on earth as it is in heaven.

V. 3. Moſes and Aaron came to Pharaoh, and ſaid, Thus ſaith the Lord God of the Hebrews, how long wilt thou refuſe to humble thyſelf before me—How long wilt thou go on to do violence to thoſe juſt and merciful laws by which men are bound to conduct themſelves to men, and according to which they are all to be accountable to God? How long wilt thou continue to oppoſe what thou knoweſt I require of thee; and refuſe to humble thyſelf for thy paſt diſobedience to the Moſt High, by confeſſing in the charge of thy conduct, that now thou art willing that the Creator of the world ſhould have his laws and will obeyed by thee, thy ſubjects, and all mankind?

V. 4. If thou refuſe to let my people go—To detain them was the great ſubject of ſatan's temptation in the mind of Pharaoh, and he had on his ſide in this, moſt of the natural inclinations of the human mind: Power to puniſh and infinite readineſs to do good with all the paſt mercies of God, were the inducements and motives for obedience; and the queſtion whether Pharaoh would ſubmit to God or continue to obey ſatan, was confined to this—Let my people. And thus it is with every ſoul of man in every ſtep, and in every ſtage of this life of trial for an happy immortality, where the holy will of God is, and will be the everlaſting law. God, by his ſpirit to all men, by his word, and by all the truths that are made known from it; is trying the ſoul whether it will or will not humble itſelf and obey his will, which the ſoul of man can only be bleſſed in doing; and this his goodneſs does as plainly to every one as he did to Pharaoh, when he required him as the evidence of his preſent ſubmiſſion—to let His people go. God, by his Spirit, ſays to the heart and conſcience, and by his word ſays the ſame thing—Ceaſe from this evil, or let this duty be done as an evidence of thy willingneſs to ſubmit thyſelf to the will of God, whoſe grace waits to help thy infirmities, to enable thee to do what thou art required to do, and then to crown thee with the bleſſings of ſafety, of peace, and joyful hopes of a glorious immortality in the preſence of God, whoſe grace is yielded to, whoſe will is obeyed: On the other hand ſatan, the declared and everlaſting enemy of God, as the only way in which he can with effect expreſs his enmity, is, with all the fallen ſpirits, offering to every ſoul inducements not to live to God, not to accept of his grace, not to obey him; not to regard all the inexpreſſible obligations which are included in creation, preſervation, and redemption, till at length it finally comes to a ſingle queſtion, as in the caſe of Pharaoh—Humble thyſelf, accept the offered grace, and do that which is commanded thee, as the evidence of thy believing in God thy Redeemer, and all that his juſtice might inflict ſhall be turned away; and bleſſings, for the ſake of the God-Man, ſhall flow unto thee; or elſe, if thou refuſe, thou ſhalt be left, becauſe thou wilt be left expoſed to thoſe meſſengers of wrath, who only wait God's withdrawing his protection to fall upon

Before Christ 1491.

5 And they shall cover the * face of the earth, that one cannot be able to see the earth: and [c] they shall eat the residue of that which is escaped, which remaineth unto you from the hail, and shall eat every tree which groweth for you out of the field.

6 And they shall fill thy houses, and the houses of all thy servants, and the houses of all the Egyptians; which neither thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers have seen, since the day that they were upon the earth, unto this day. And he turned himself, and went out from Pharaoh.

7 And Pharaoh's servants said unto him, How long shall this man be a snare unto us? Let the men go, that they may serve the Lord their God: Knowest thou not yet, that Egypt is destroyed?

8 And Moses and Aaron were brought again unto Pharaoh: and he said unto them, Go, serve the Lord your God: but † who are they that shall go?

9 And Moses said, We will go with our young, and with our old, with our sons, and with our daughters; with our flocks, and with our herds will we go: for we must hold a feast unto the Lord.

10 And he said unto them, Let the Lord be so with you, as I will let you go, and your little ones: look to it; for evil is before you.

11 Not so: go now ye that are men, and serve the Lord; for that you did desire. And they were driven out from Pharaoh's presence.

12 ¶ And

* Heb. eye.
c Joel i. 4.
† Heb. who, and who, &c.

upon any soul of man, keeping back nothing of the evil they have power to inflict on the soul, on the body, or on any occasion in the condition of outward things. Who can tell how often he has offended? Who can tell how many offers of life and salvation he has wilfully resisted? And who can tell the unwillingness of Infinite LOVE to withdraw itself from any soul of man, and leave it exposed to the endless rage of satan, and his angels? But this truth runs through all God's word; it agrees with all reason—This is a life of trial which one day, one hour, or one moment, will end for ever the offers of mercy and grace—present salvation will either be received, retained, and for ever possessed; or resisted, despised and rejected, and the soul be forsaken by infinite goodness, for ever. And in reading Pharaoh's history, and seeing the force and power of his besetting sin; the application is to be made to ourselves, what is the desire of my soul, what is my heart set upon? And if the answer is, My delight is not in the Lord, (Ps. xxxvii. 4.) then am I now willing to deny myself, my own will and desires, and to do or suffer what in my conscience I am convinced the Lord my God requires of me? If I am not, and do not in truth cry unto God to deliver me from the great evil of looking for my happiness out of God; but if against the conscious testimony in my own breast, I go on with Pharaoh, doing what I know is contrary to the will of God, then this sacred account of the plagues inflicted upon him, are to move me with fear against wilfully or carelessly going one step farther, or living one moment longer in opposition to God, who is no less offended with sin in one man than in another; sin being, wherever it is obeyed, the fruit of that spirit which is opposed to God. (Eph. ii. 2. and vi. 11)

V. 5. The locusts shall eat the residue of that which is escaped—The wheat and the rye, the staff of their lives. And shall eat every tree—The fruits and leaves of every tree.

V. 6. Which neither thy fathers, nor thy fathers fathers have seen—Such for number, or shape, or mischievous effects, as were never seen before. He turned himself, and went out from Pharaoh—Moses begins now to treat Pharaoh, as one determined to oppose God to the last; he therefore only now delivers God's message, leaves him without waiting to hear any thing from him.

V. 7. How long shall this man be a snare unto us—An occasion of sin and destruction. To the impenitent the punishment, not the sin which is the occasion of it, is the cause of their sorrow; the distress of a penitent mind arises from a sense of its ingratitude to God its Creator, his Preserver and Redeemer, and from a conviction of the greatness of its guilt against all the love and goodness of God.

V. 8. Pharaoh said, Go serve the Lord your God—By whom I am so punished, and who is so much against me on your account. But who shall go—I am not willing you all shall go, it will degrade me in the sight of my subjects, that I shall be obliged to submit to HIM, who thus makes himself the friend of my very slaves: You must not therefore expect all to go, that the dignity of our government may be maintained, and that what is done, may not appear to be what your God would have done whether we would or not.

V. 9. Moses said, We will go with our young, and with our old—And with all that we have—We will leave nothing to afford so much as an occasion for any one to say, we acted as if we did not believe our God had power to deliver us, and to compel thee to let us go against all the power and rage of that spirit which now worketh in thee.

V. 10. Let the Lord be so with you, as I will let you go—I wish God may be no more ready and willing to be with you, and to do you good, than I am willing to let you go. Here the spirit of wickedness speaks its own language in impotent wishes of evil, when all its guile, malice, rage, and pride could perform nothing to hurt, or hinder the Israel of God from doing as he commanded. When satan cannot prevent those whose hearts are set to obey God, he places evil before them, as the sure consequence of what they resolve to do; and thus through Pharaoh, who predicts evil to the Israelites as the consequence of their doing what God required them, satan's ordinary language appears, as it is in common use with those that are deceived by him, and by whom he will say to all that follow God in the spirit, as well as by the letter of his words—Yes, go and sacrifice to your God—read his word, pray, praise, and do all that he commands you, and look to it; evil is before you—Consider who you will offend in so doing—you will have none for your friends but them that can do you no good, and all for your enemies who have power to hurt you. But say, doubting mind, To whom, in earth or hell, has the blessed God and thy Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel, given power to hurt or destroy a soul that believes in him, and who, by his grace, commits itself to his Almighty care in well-doing?—None; God is the Lord, by whom alone we escape eternal death, as well as every less degree of evil. Who shall harm you, if you are a followers of that which is good?—Peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord. (Heb. xii. 14.) But are we in this way of safety under the protection of God, when we sit down on easy terms with folly and vice, without so much as a word or a look to indicate that we know God hath said the soul that sinneth shall surely die, unless it repents and forsakes its sin, and looks unto Jesus the Mediator God, for life and salvation. Look to it, for evil is before you—He speaks of the evil they would bring upon themselves

Before Christ 1491.

12 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand over the land of Egypt for the locusts, that they may come up upon the land of Egypt, and eat every herb of the land, even all that the hail hath left.

13 And Moses stretched forth his rod over the land of Egypt, and the Lord brought an east wind upon the land all that day, and all that night: and when it was morning, the east wind brought the locusts.

e Psa. 78. 46. and 105. 34.

14 And [e] the locusts went up over all the land of Egypt, and rested in all the coasts of Egypt: very grievous were they; [f] before them there were no such locusts as they, neither after them shall be such.

f Joel 2. 2.

15 For they covered the face of the whole earth, so that the land was darkened, and they did eat every herb of the land, and all the fruit of the trees, which the hail had left: and there remained not any green thing in the trees, or in the herbs of the field, through all the land of Egypt.

† Heb. hastened to call.

16 ¶ Then Pharaoh † called for Moses and Aaron in haste; and he said, I have sinned against the Lord your God, and against you.

17 Now therefore forgive, I pray thee, my sin only this once, and [g] intreat the Lord your God, that he may take away from me this death only.

g Chap. 9. 28.

18 And he went out from Pharaoh, and intreated the Lord.

19 And the Lord turned a mighty strong west wind, which took away the locusts, and ‡ cast them [h] into the Red sea: there remained not one locust in all the coasts of Egypt.

‡ Heb. fastened.

h Joel 2. 20.

20 But the Lord [i] hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go.

i Chap. 4. 21. & 11. 10.

21 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Stretch out thine hand toward heaven, that there may be darkness over the land of Egypt, § even darkness which may be felt.

§ Heb. that one may feel darkness.

22 And Moses stretched forth his hand toward heaven: and there was [k] a thick darkness in all the land of Egypt three days.

k Psa. 105. 28.

23 They saw not one another, neither rose any from his place for three days: [l] but all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings.

l Chap. 8. 22.

24 ¶ And

from so potent a king, by continuing in such insolent and unreasonable demands.

V. 11. Go ye that are men, for that you did desire—Which was not true, but only was gathered by him out of their declared intention of going to sacrifice, wherein he thought the presence of the women and children wholly unnecessary.

V. 15. There seems to have been some distance of time between these two plagues, in which space, new productions might be sprouting forth both out of the ground and from the trees.

V. 16. Pharaoh called for Moses and Aaron in haste—Because this kind of plague in itself was most pernicious, whereby whole countries had been wasted, and grievous famines and pestilences caused, and was mightily aggravated by the vengeance of God, and by the peculiar quality of these locusts, which did not only fall upon their herbs and fruits, as they use to do, but invade their very houses, infect their meats, fill their beds, poison them with their stink and their venomous bitings, whereby they killed many. I have sinned against the Lord your God, and against you—By contempt of your great and terrible works, by breach of my promise made to you, and by my denial of your just desires and commands given to me in his name, whom I now find and feel to be the Almighty and Sovereign God.

V. 17. Forgive, I pray thee, this once—I desire no further favour, I will no more offend nor need your pardon. Intreat the Lord your God, that he take from me this death—This deadly plague.

V. 18, 19. He intreated the Lord, and the Lord took away the Locusts; there remained not one—Moses prayed to God; the wind blew, and the cause of their universal distress disappeared. Blessed Jesus! well might thy disciples request of thee to teach them to pray; and to ask thy help to perform a-right a duty which has such power with thee the Omnipotent God, who thus shews thyself nigh unto thy faithful servants, willing to hear, ready to relieve. But does such instances of the Divine power and willingness to deliver, appear unto all men?—Yes, to all but such as have no need to pray for pardon, no offences to be punished, no sinful tempers and desires to be saved from, no terrors of death to struggle with, no sorrows or distresses of their own or others to be relieved, no temptations to avoid, no evils to be delivered from, no blessings wanted, but such as they can at pleasure obtain or bestow upon themselves;—all, all have need to study what God himself hath shewn to men of the great, the high and blessed science of prayer, but they who have no evils seen, felt, or feared, but which they can save themselves or others from, and procure for themselves all the good they want, all their daily wants require. Rom. viii. 26. On the universal requisite and ability to pray.

V. 20. The Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart—Pharaoh again departed in heart from that grace which had convinced him of his sin, and God again left him to the evil he chose.

V. 21. Darkness which may be felt—That darkness may continue in the day-time as well as in the night.

V. 23. They saw not one another—Because these gross and moist fogs and vapours did not only quite shut out the light of the heavenly bodies, but also put out their artificial lights, or so darken them that they could have no benefit by them. Neither rose any from his place—The horror of that darkness was so great that they durst not remove from place to place, but remained where the darkness found them, like men astonished, being terrified with their guilty consciences, and with the dreadful noises which they heard, and with the apparitions of evil angels, (Psal. lxxviii. 49.) put instead of this plague of darkness, which therefore is omitted in that place where all the rest are reckoned up. Or rather, more largely, for their own houses or dwellings, for so the Hebrew word is certainly used, Exod. xvi. 29. So the sense is, they did not stir abroad out of their houses upon their most necessary occasions. He saith not that they could not go, but that they could not rise from their place, which may seem to limit this expression to their particular places. The words to rise, are commonly put for going about any business, and here it is a pregnant word, as they call it, and implies going in it; none arose to go or remove from his place. And rising cannot be properly taken here for that particular posture, unless we will suppose that this darkness found all men sitting. But all the children of Israel had light in their dwellings—Whereby

Before Christ 1491.

24 ¶ And Pharaoh called unto Moſes, and ſaid, Go ye, ſerve the Lord; only let your flocks and your herds be ſtayed: let your little ones alſo go with you.

‖ Heb. into our hands.

25 And Moſes ſaid, Thou muſt give ‖ us alſo ſacrifices, and burnt-offerings, that we may ſacrifice unto the Lord our God.

26 Our cattle alſo ſhall go with us; there ſhall not an hoof be left behind: for thereof muſt we take to ſerve the Lord our God; and we know not with what we muſt ſerve the Lord, until we come thither.

m Chap. 14. 4, 8.

27 ¶ But the Lord [m] hardened Pharaoh's heart, and he would not let them go.

28 And Pharaoh ſaid unto him, Get thee from me, take heed to thyſelf, ſee my face no more: for in that day thou ſeeſt my face, thou ſhalt die.

Before Christ 1491.

29 And Moſes ſaid, Thou haſt ſpoken well, [n] I will ſee thy face again no more.

n Heb. 11.27.

CHAP. XI.

AND the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, Yet will I bring one plague more upon Pharaoh, and upon Egypt; afterwards he will let you go hence: [a] when he ſhall let you go, he ſhall ſurely thruſt you out hence altogether.

a Chap. 12.31, 33, 39.

2 Speak now in the ears of the people, and let every man borrow of his neighbour, and every woman of her neighbour, [b] jewels of ſilver, and jewels of gold.

b Chap. 3. 22. & 12. 35.

3 [c] And the Lord gave the people favour in

c Chap. 12.36.

Whereby they might have conveyed themſelves, and families, and goods away, as afterwards they did in haſte; but they waited for orders from Moſes, and he for God's command; and God intended to bring them forth not by ſtealth, but in a public manner, in ſpite of all oppoſition. This outward ſtate of darkneſs in the dwellings of the Egyptians, with all the gloomy horror of that darkneſs, when the ſun roſe not upon them, nor gave them its light, may convey to us a juſt notion of the ſtate of the natural mind, before the light of the ſun of righteouſneſs is made manifeſt to it, as the ſituation of the Iſraelites, who had light in their dwellings, may give us, before we experience it, ſome notion of the pleaſantneſs of that change which takes place, when a ſoul paſſes from darkneſs to light, from the power of ſatan unto God, and receives forgiveneſs of ſins. (Acts xxvi. 18.) A change ſo great and bleſſed, that the inhabitants of heaven who know its value beſt, when they are informed that another ſoul of man is born from above—has repented and turned unto God, it becomes a new occaſion of joy in the preſence of God, whoſe grace has got the victory over another ſinful ſoul of man, (Luke xv. 10.) and that one more is added to the number of the children of God upon earth, and of the heirs of the kingdom of heaven: And theſe heavenly inhabitants poſſeſſing the loving Spirit of the LORD of glory, as the miniſters of his gracious will, they wait with delight to receive the Divine commiſſion, to attend upon another heir of ſalvation, (Heb. i. 14.) rejoicing to imitate the love of JESUS, who left the higheſt glory to deſcend on earth, to die for ſinful men. It is above all natural reaſon to comprehend how it ſhould be, that in the ſame country there ſhould be the moſt diſmal darkneſs in all the houſes inhabited by the Egyptian people, and, at the ſame time, light in all theſe that any of the children of Iſrael lived in: But unable as our reaſon is to account for this, ſo it was.—The Iſraelites knew they were bleſſed with the light, the Egyptians knew they were incloſed in thick darkneſs. The Iſraelites were then the true church of God on earth—They were the profeſſed worſhippers of God by faith in him that was to come as the Redeemer of men, and for whoſe ſake alone, God gave grace to ſerve him acceptably, with reverence and godly fear. (Heb. xii. 28.) No people could at the time be held in greater contempt, or treated with more ſeverity by all about them, than they were; and the uſe to us of this ſacred Hiſtory of theſe events is to ſhew us, that as the light of the LORD was with them, who thus worſhipped him by FAITH as their only Saviour, ſo is the true light and Spirit of God with thoſe who ſo worſhip him in every age and country, though they may be as much deſpiſed as the Iſraelites were.

V. 24. Pharaoh ſaid, Go ye: only let your flocks and your herds be ſtayed—Only let ſomething of yours be left to ſhew that your God only delivers you, not yours; and that I do not altogether ſubmit and acknowledge any power above me.

V. 25, 26. Moſes ſaid—Suffer us to take of our own ſtock. Our cattle alſo ſhall go with us, there ſhall not an hoof be left behind—Our God is a jealous God, and we dare not in the leaſt degree comply with any thing that is required of us contrary to his holy and Almighty will. He is GOD, and beſides him there is no other, and we muſt not leave an hoof behind, to acknowledge that any power oppoſed to him can do the leaſt to hurt them that put their truſt in him, ſo long as they continue to bow down to him alone. We know not with what we muſt ſerve the Lord, until we come thither—Which was not a pretence, but a real truth. For this being a ſolemn and extraordinary ſacrifice by the expreſs and particular appointment of God, they knew not either of what kinds, or in what number or manner their ſacrifices muſt be offered. And for all theſe things they did not receive particular directions till they come to mount Sinai.

V. 27. The Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart—He would not ſubmit to God, and God again withdrew the grace which accompanied the laſt offer.

V. 28. Pharaoh ſaid, Get thee from me, for in that day thou ſeeſt my face, thou ſhalt die—Pride, ſelf-will and indignation, are the paſſions which diſcover themſelves in theſe words, and along with theſe, total ignorance of what he himſelf was, and what God is—That he was a mortal whoſe ſpirit God might require of him before the next hour, and that it muſt be by God's permiſſion, that the hand of the wicked ſhall be the inſtrument by which any that believe in him, ſhall be taken from a world of ſuffering to dwell with him for ever.

V. 29. Moſes ſaid, thou haſt ſpoken well—Right, that which agrees though not with thy duty, yet with the event and truth of the thing: for as thou haſt warned me to ſee thee no more, ſo I in the name of God aſſure thee, that thou ſhalt ſee me no more, to beg my prayers, or to be helped out of thy troubles by my means. And therefore that diſcourſe of Moſes to Pharaoh, which follows chap. xi. 4, &c. though it be put there out of its order and proper place, as many other paſſages are, yet was delivered at this time, and upon occaſion of theſe words.

CHAP. XI.

V. 1. The Lord ſaid unto Moſes—Either whilſt Moſes was not yet gone out of Pharaoh's preſence, or before his laſt coming to Pharaoh. And this is here added, as the reaſon why Moſes ſpake ſo boldly to Pharaoh. He ſhall thruſt you out hence altogether—Men, and women, and children, and cattle, and all that they had, which he would never do before.

V. 2. The Iſraelites, who at firſt lived diſtinctly by themſelves, when they were greatly multiplied, and Pharaoh began to caſt a jealous eye upon them, and to take cruel counſels againſt them, were more mixed with the Egyptians. Jewels—Or veſſels, as the Hebrew word properly ſignifies.

V. 3. Moſes was very great in the ſight of the people—Therefore they Before Christ 1491. in the sight of the Egyptians. Moreover, the man Moses was very great in the land of Egypt, in the sight of Pharaoh's servants, and in the sight of the people.

e Chap. 12.29. 4 And Moses said, Thus saith the Lord, e About midnight will I go out into the midst of Egypt.

f Chap. 12.12. 5 And f all the first-born in the land of Egypt shall die, from the first-born of Pharaoh, that sitteth upon his throne, even unto the first-born of the maid-servant, that is behind the mill; and all the first-born of beasts.

6 And there shall be a great cry throughout all the land of Egypt, such as there was none like it, nor shall be like it any more.

g Chap. 8. 22. 7 g But against any of the children of Israel h shall not a dog move his tongue, against man or beast: that ye may know how that the Lord doth put a difference between the Egyptians and Israel.

h Josh. 10.21.

i Chap. 12.31, 33. 8 And i all these thy servants shall come down unto me, and bow down themselves unto me, saying, Get thee out, and all the people * that follow thee; and after that I will go out: and he went out from Pharaoh in † a great anger.

* Heb. that be at thy feet. So Judg. 4.10. & 8. 5. 1 Kings 20. 10. 2 Kings 3. 9.

† Heb. heat of anger.

9 And k the Lord said unto Moses, Pharaoh shall not hearken unto you; that l my wonders may be multiplied in the land of Egypt.

k Chap 3. 19. & 10. 1.

l Chap. 7. 3.

10 And Moses and Aaron did all these wonders before Pharaoh: m and the Lord hardened Pharaoh's heart, so that he would not let the children of Israel go out of his land.

Before Christ 1491.

m Chap. 10. 20, 27.

CHAP. XII.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying,

2 This month shall be unto you the beginning of months: it shall be the first month of the year to you.

3 ¶ Speak ye unto all the congregation of Israel, saying, In the tenth day of this month, they shall take to them every man a * lamb, according to the house of their fathers, a lamb for an house.

* Or, kid.

4 And if the household be too little for the lamb, let him and his neighbour next unto his house take it, according to the number of the souls; every man according to his eating, shall make your count for the lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be a without blemish, a male † of the first year: ye shall take it out from the sheep or from the goats.

a Lev. 22. 20, 21. Mal. 1. 8. Heb. 9. 14. 1 Pet. 1. 19.

† Heb. son of a year.

6 And ye shall keep it up until the fourteenth day of the same month: and b the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it ‡ in the evening.

b Lev. 23. 5. Numb. 9. 3. & 28. 16. Deut. 16. 1.

‡ Heb. between the two evenings. Chap. 16. 2.

7 And they shall take of the blood, and strike they complied with their request, not only out of love to the people, but out of fear of Moses, lest he should punish them severely in case of refusal.

V. 4. Moses said—To Pharaoh, before his departure, as appears by comparing ver. 8. with chap. x. 29. And therefore the three first verses of this chapter come in by way of parenthesis, and now he returns to the story, and sets down the last words which Moses spake to Pharaoh for a final parting. Thus saith the Lord, About midnight will I go out—God is said to go out or go forth, or come down, by way of condescension to the custom and capacity of men, when he doth any eminent act of power either in way of justice or mercy.

V. 7. Against any of the children of Israel shall not a dog move his tongue—Instead of those loud cries of the Egyptian families, there shall be so great a tranquillity among the Israelites, that even the dogs, which are sensible of, and awaked and provoked by the least noise, shall not be stirred up by them.

V. 8. All thy servants—The courtiers and great officers, who now are so insolent and obstinate. Shall come down unto me—By their own inclination and necessity, and in thy name and by thy command. Get thee out, and all the people that follow thee—That are under thy conduct and command. He went out in a great anger—Not for the affront offered to himself, but for his incurable rebellion against God. (Mark iii. 5.)

CHAP. XII.

V. 2. This month—The first month after the vernal equinox, called Abib, containing part of our March, and part of April. The beginning of months—It shall be accounted the chief and principal of all months; and justly must they prefer this month before the rest, whether they looked backward to their prodigious deliverance from Egypt therein, or forward to their spiritual redemption by Christ, and to the acceptable year of the Lord, for in this very month our Lord Jesus suffered, John xviii. 28. It shall be the first month of the year—As to sacred and ecclesiastical matters, this shall henceforth be your first month.

V. 3. They shall take to them every man a lamb—Partly that they might have the lamb ready for the sacrifice, and might not be distracted about procuring it when they should be going to use it; partly that by the frequent contemplation of the lamb, as a sign appointed by God, they might have their faith strengthened as to their approaching deliverance, and afterwards might have their minds quickened to the more serious consideration of that great deliverance out of Egypt, and of that more glorious deliverance from hell by Christ the true Passover, which should be offered for them; partly to teach the Church in all ages, how necessary a thing preparation is to the solemn duties and exercises of religion; and partly to signify, that Christ should be first set apart and separated to the ministry, which was done three or four prophetical days, i.e. years, before his death, and afterwards offered.

V. 5. Your lamb shall be without blemish—Without any deformity or distemper of body. This was required, both to typify Christ, a lamb without spot or blemish, and to instruct us, what all our services to God must be. A male—To typify the man Christ Jesus. Of the first year—A year old, when it is in its vigour and perfection, and the fittest type of Christ. Ye shall take it out from the sheep, or from the goats—If you want a lamb, you shall take a kid.

V. 6. Ye shall keep it up—Separate it from the rest. The evening—Which begun at their ninth, or our third hour, and the time of the day in which Christ was killed. (Mat. xxvii. 46, 50.)

V. 7. Take of the blood, and strike it—As a badge of distinction between their houses and the Egyptians, not to direct the destroying

Before Christ 1491. strike it on the two side-posts, and on the upper door-post of the houses, wherein they shall eat it.

8 And they shall eat the flesh in that night; c 1 Cor 5. 8. roast with fire, and [c] unleavened bread, and with bitter herbs they shall eat it.

9 Eat not of it raw, nor sodden at all with water, but roast with fire: his head with his legs, and with the purtenance thereof.

d Chap 23 18. & 34. 25. 10 [d] And ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning: and that which remaineth of it until the morning, ye shall burn with fire.

11 ¶ And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand: and ye shall eat it e Deut. 16. 5. in haste; [e] it is the Lord's passover.

12 For I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and f Num. 33. 4. beast: and [f] against all the * gods of Egypt I will execute judgment; I am the Lord.

* Or, princes

13 And the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where you are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you, † to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt. Before Christ 1491.

† Heb. for a destruction.

14 And this day shall be unto you for a memorial; and you shall keep it a feast to the Lord throughout your generations: you shall keep it a feast by an ordinance for ever.

g Chap. 13. 6. & 23. 15. & 34. 18, 25. 15 [g] Seven days shall ye eat unleavened bread, even the first day ye shall put away leaven out of your houses: for whosoever eateth leavened bread from the first day until the seventh day, h that soul shall be cut off from Israel. h Gen. 17. 14.

16 And in the first day there shall be an holy convocation, and in the seventh day there shall be an holy convocation to you: no manner of work shall be done in them, save that which every ‡ man must eat, that only may be done of you. ‡ Heb. soul.

17 And

destroying Angel where they were, but to direct their thoughts to Christ, whose blood was hereby typified, as the sole cause of salvation from sin, and deliverance from the consequences of it.

V. 8. In that night—The lamb was killed upon the 14th day, in the evening or close thereof, but it was eaten upon the 15th day, in the beginning of it; whence the Passover is said to be offered sometimes upon the 14th, and sometimes upon the 15th day. With fire—To be a type of the lamb of God, CHRIST, and of the sharp and dreadful pains which he suffered, not only from men, but from God, and from the fire of his sore displeasure against sinners, whose place and person Christ sustained in his sufferings. Unleavened bread—To teach us how men should be qualified that come to the sacrament; they should be purged from pride, and malice, and hypocrisy, which are called and compared to leaven, and to signify the singular purity of Christ from all kinds of spiritual leaven. With bitter herbs—With great bitterness, or with grief of heart, that together with faith in God and in Christ, and hope and joy for their approaching deliverance, they might exercise bitter and hearty repentance for their idolatries, and other sinful practices, whereof they were guilty in Egypt. And also shews the absolute necessity of true and bitter repentance in all those that would profitably feed upon Christ, our Passover.

V. 9. With the purtenance thereof—God would have the whole lamb roasted and eaten, to signify, that we must have either nothing of Christ, or the whole Christ, and all his benefits, his spirit to sanctify and rule us, as well as his blood to save us.

V. 10. That which remaineth, ye shall burn with fire—To prevent any profane use of that which had been consecrated to God's service.

V. 11. With your loins girded—Like travellers. Your shoes on your feet—In readiness for their departure. And your staff in your hand—Like persons upon the point of departing. The living are removing by death into eternity with every moment. Ought not then all life's business lead to this—To have the loins of the mind girded about, firm, recollected, and always resigned to all God's disposals, and especially to that of leaving this life, however sudden the call may be? It is the Lord's passover—This lamb, or your eating of it, is the Lord's passover. It is a sign of God's passing over you and your houses, when he cometh to destroy the Egyptians on every side of you. They that are partakers of the benefits of Christ's death, and die believing in him will thus be distinguished; and in the great day of God's wrath it shall pass over them, as the wrath of God now passed over the people of Israel.

V. 12. Against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment—By overthrowing their idols.

V. 13. The blood shall be to you for a token—A sign and a pledge, to confirm your faith in the expectation of the promised deliverance: And without the blood of Christ there is no remission of sins nor salvation by any other means, than the application of that blood, to take away all guilt and misery from the sinner's conscience. When I see the blood—This is spoken of God after the manner of men; the sense is, If you regard that which I require, you may expect the priviledge which I have promised you; otherwise not.

V. 14. This day shall be a memorial—Monument, both of this deliverance from Egypt, and of your redemption by Christ. Upon which day our blessed Lord was crucified for the redemption of his people. You shall keep it a feast—You shall observe it for a solemn festival. You shall keep it a feast for ever—So long as your state and church continue, or till the coming of the Messias. This word doth not always signify eternity, but any long time.

V. 15. That soul shall be cut off from Israel—Because it was a tacit renunciation of their religion, and of the covenant of God with them, and of their interest both in that past deliverance out of Egypt, and in the future deliverance by the Messias. The same Lord hath said "Do this in remembrance of me." What answer shall we be able to make for disregarding his mild command, if we will continue carelessly to neglect eating of that bread, and drinking of that wine of the altar, in remembrance that God the Son became flesh, and dwelt on earth, and suffered his body to be crucified, and his blood to be shed, to make an atonement for our sins. This judgment declared against those that regarded not the command to the Israelites, is to shew us the danger to which men expose themselves, who are but called Christians, and who slight or neglect what the same Lord of All requireth of All.

V. 16. An holy convocation—A solemn day for the people to assemble together, and to attend upon the public worship and service of God, in hearing his word, prayers, praises, and sacrifices.

Before Christ 1491.

17 And ye shall observe the feast of unleavened bread; for in this self-same day have I brought your armies out of the land of Egypt: therefore shall ye observe this day in your generations, by an ordinance for ever.

i Lev. 23. 5. Num. 28. 16.

18 ¶ [i] In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month at even ye shall eat unleavened bread, until the one and twentieth day of the month at even.

k Exod. 23. 15. & 34. 18. Deut. 16. 3.

19 [k] Seven days shall there be no leaven found in your houses: for whosoever eateth

l Num. 9. 13.

that which is leavened, [l] even that soul shall be cut off from the congregation of Israel, whether he be a stranger, or born in the land.

20 Ye shall eat nothing leavened: in all your habitations shall ye eat unleavened bread.

21 ¶ Then Moses called for all the elders of Israel, and said unto them, Draw out and take you a ‡ lamb, according to your families, and kill the passover.

‡ Or, kid.

m Heb. 11. 28.

22 [m] And ye shall take a bunch of hyssop, and dip it in the blood that is in the bason, and strike the lintel, and the two side-posts, with the blood that is in the bason: and none of you shall go out at the door of his house until the morning.

23 For the Lord will pass through to smite the Egyptians, and when he seeth the blood upon the lintel, and on the two side-posts, the n Ezek. 9. 6. Rev. 7. 3. & 9. 4.

Lord will pass over the door, and [n] will not o 1 Cor. 10. 10. Heb. 11. 28.

suffer [o] the destroyer to come in unto your houses to smite you.

24 And ye shall observe this thing for an ordinance to thee, and to thy sons for ever.

Before Christ 1491.

25 And it shall come to pass, when ye be come to the land, which the Lord will give you, according as he hath promised, that ye shall keep this service.

26 [p] And it shall come to pass, when your children shall say unto you, What mean you by this service?

p Josh. 4. 6.

27 That ye shall say, It is the sacrifice of the Lord's passover, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, when he smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses. And the people [q] bowed the head and worshipped.

q Chap. 4. 31.

28 And the children of Israel went away, and did as the Lord had commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

29 ¶ [r] And it came to pass that at mid-

r Chap. 11. 4.

s Num. 8. 17. & 33. 4. Psa. 78. 51. & 105. 36. & 135. 8. & 136. 10.

night [s] the Lord smote all the first-born in the land of Egypt, [t] from the first-born of Pharaoh, that sat on his throne, unto the first-born of the captive that was in the § dungeon; and all the first-born of cattle.

t Chap. 4. 23.

§ Heb. house of the pit.

30 And Pharaoh rose up in the night, he and all his servants, and all the Egyptians; and there was a great cry in Egypt: for there was not a house where there was not one dead.

31 ¶ And [u] he called for Moses and Aaron u Psa. 105. 38.

by night, and said, Rise up, and get you forth from amongst my people, [x] both you x Chap. 10. 9.

and

In the seventh day—Because then Pharaoh and his host were drowned in the sea; as on the first day the first-born were killed. Their deliverance was begun on the first and compleated on the seventh day, and therefore those days deserved a special character of honour, And that there were seven days between those two miracles the Jews unanimously affirm. No manner of work—Of servile work.

V. 17. In this self-same day have I brought your armies out—So called not from their military force or courage, but from their numbers and the order and manner in which they came.

V. 18. On the fourteenth day—The day of the passover, and seven days after.

V. 19. A stranger—A proselyte: For strangers unconverted to the Jewish Religion, were not obliged nor admitted to the celebration of the passover or feast of unleavened bread. Or born in the land—Of Canaan, which I have promised to you, and to which I am now leading you, which was so well known to all of them that it was needless to express it.

V. 22. None shall go out of his house until the morning—Till the beginning of the morning after midnight, and after the slaughter of the Egyptians first-born.

V. 23. The Lord will not suffer—Not give him licence or commission. The destroyer—The destroying angel.

V. 24. Ye shall observe this thing—The Passover and feast of unleavened bread.

V. 26. What mean you by this—Part of divine worship. God expects this even from the Jewish children, and much more from Christian men, that they should inquire and understand what is said or done in the public worship or service of God, and therefore not to rest in signs, whereof they neither inquire nor know the meaning, or in a language which they understand not.

V. 27. It is the sacrifice of the Lord's passover—The passover was a sacrifice, because there was in it the shedding and sprinkling of blood, wherein the essence of a sacrifice consists, and also a sacrament, as it was received and eaten by men. And the people bowed the head and worshipped—In token of their thankful acknowledgment of God's favours, and of their cheerful submission to God's command and ordinance.

V. 28. So did they—They killed and did eat the Paschal Lamb in such manner as God prescribed. How safely do they go on, who look to Jesus for grace, and then regard the letter of his holy word, as the law and rule of their lives: For thus shall they be delivered from all evil, as Israel was delivered out of Egypt, and from all the calamites which befel the people who feared not God, neither regarded the words which he caused to be made known to them.

V. 29. At midnight—When they were secure, and least expected such a stroke. The first-born—Both of man and beast, whether male or female.

V. 30. For there was not a house where there was not one dead—Of those houses which had any first-born in them.

V. 31. He said, go, serve the Lord, as ye have said—Pharaoh sent this message to them, for they came no more to him.

V. 32. Take

Before Christ 1491.

and the children of Israel: and go, serve the Lord, as ye have said.

y Chap. 10. 26. 32 [y] Also take your flocks, and your herds, as ye have said, and be gone: and bless me also.

33 And the Egyptians were urgent upon the people, that they might send them out of the land in haste: for they said, We be all dead men.

‖ Or, dough. 34 And the people took their dough before it was leavened, their ‖ kneading-troughs being bound up in their clothes upon their shoulders.

35 And the children of Israel did according to the word of Moses: and they borrowed of the Egyptians z Chap. 3. 22. and 11. 2. [z] jewels of silver, and jewels of gold, and raiment.

a Chap. 11. 3. 36 [a] And the Lord gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians, so that they lent unto them such things as they required: and b Gen. 15. 14. Chap. 3. 22. Psa. 105. 37. [b] they spoiled the Egyptians.

c Num. 33. 3, 5. d Gen. 47. 11. Chap. 38. 26. Num. 1. 46. and 11. 21. 37 ¶ And [c] the children of Israel journeyed from Rameses to Succoth, about [d] six hundred thousand on foot that were men, besides children.

* Heb. a great mixture. Num. 11. 4. 38 And * a mixed multitude went up also with them; and flocks, and herds, even very much cattle.

39 And they baked unleavened cakes of the dough, which they brought forth out of f Chap. 6. 1. and 11. 1. Egypt, for it was not leavened: because [f] they were thrust out of Egypt, and could not tarry, neither had they prepared for themselves any victual.

Before Christ 1491.

40 ¶ Now the sojourning of the children of Israel, who dwelt in Egypt, was [g] four hundred and thirty years.

g Gen. 15. 13. Acts 7. 6. Gal. 3. 17.

41 And it came to pass, at the end of the four hundred and thirty years, even the self-same day it came to pass, that all the hosts of the Lord went out from the land of Egypt.

* Heb. a night of observations. h See Deut. 16. 6. 42 It is * [h] a night to be much observed unto the Lord, for bringing them out from the land of Egypt: this is that night of the Lord to be observed of all the children of Israel, in their generations.

43 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses and Aaron, This is the ordinance of the passover: there shall no stranger eat thereof.

44 But every man's servant that is bought for money, when thou hast circumcised him, then shall he eat thereof.

45 A foreigner, and an hired servant shall not eat thereof.

46 In one house shall it be eaten, thou shalt not carry forth ought of the flesh abroad out of the house: [i] neither shall ye break a bone thereof.

i Num. 9. 12. John 19. 36.

‡ Heb. do it. 47 All the congregation of Israel shall ‡ keep it.

k Num. 9. 14. 48 And [k] when a stranger shall sojourn with thee, and will keep the passover to the Lord, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him

V. 32. Take your flocks, and be gone—I will now give up all, and submit to the command of the Lord your God; for I see now destruction cometh nigh to me. I dare not any longer withstand God. And bless me also—Pray to God for me, that I may not perish by this or any other plague.

V. 33. The Egyptians were urgent—Not by force, which they durst not now use, but by earnest intreaties.

V. 35. They borrowed of the Egyptians—Which the Egyptians let them have, that they might more readily depart from them.

V. 36. The Lord gave the people favour in the sight of the Egyptians—Inclined their hearts to do it willingly. They lent them such things as they required—Jewels or vessels. They spoiled the Egyptians—The Judge of all the earth, who had waited with such patience, for many years, for the repentance of the people of Egypt, not only at length punishes them for their cruelty, but obliges them to make satisfaction for the injustice and wrong they had done the Israelites. And thus doth God judge the earth, and doth justice between nation and nation.

V. 37. Grown and strong men, fit for war, amongst whom there were none feeble or sick. Psal. cv. 37.

V. 38. A mixed multitude went with them—Consisting of Egyptians, either because they were their servants, or that, by this means, they might free themselves from the servitude, because the glorious works which they had seen, had raised their esteem of God and of his people, and made them expect a share in the great felicities, which they presumed would be conferred upon a people so highly beloved of such an Almighty and All-sufficient God. Numb. xi. 4. Zech. viii. 23.

V. 39. They were thrust out of Egypt—Not by force, but by importunate requests.

V. 40. Those years are to be computed from the first promise made to Abraham, to the giving of the law. Gal. iii. 17.

V. 41. The self-same day—When it was broad day-light, the Egyptians seeing, and not being able to hinder them. This circumstance is noted to set forth the infallibility of God's foreknowledge.

V. 42. A night to be much observed unto the Lord—A night in which their preparation for their journey was made.

V. 43. The ordinance of the passover—The law or appointment of God concerning the celebration of the passover. No stranger—Or foreigner, who is so both by nation and religion; for, if he was circumcised, he might eat of it. Those whose hearts are set upon other things, and are strangers to the Lord, are excluded by the state they are in, from the benefits intended and bestowed on penitent and believing minds.

V. 44. When thou hast circumcised him—Circumcision was not to them a seal of God's covenant, nor of their religion, for that must be matter of choice, but only a civil badge or a note, that they were politically incorporated.

V. 45. A foreigner, and an hired servant shall not eat thereof—Except he submit to circumcision.

V. 46. Thou shalt not carry forth ought of the flesh out of the house—To signify, that Christ and salvation are not to be had out of God's house or church. There is but one God and one Mediator, and where God is known by his Spirit, the soul that worships him in spirit and in truth, is of the household of God. And in this state, and no other, all the blessings of God, through Christ, the church's living head, are to be received and enjoyed.

V. 51. The

Before Christ 1491. him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised person shall eat thereof.

49 One law shall be to him that is homeborn, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you.

50 Thus did all the children of Israel; as the Lord commanded Moses and Aaron, so did they.

51 And it came to pass the self-same day, that the Lord did bring the children of Israel out of the land of Egypt, [h] by their armies.

h Chap. 6. 26.

CHAP. XIII.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 [a] Sanctify unto me all the first-born, whatsoever openeth the womb among the children of Israel, both of man and of beast: it is mine.

a Chap. 22. 29. and 34. 19. Lev. 27. 26. Num. 3. 13. and 8. 16, 17. and 18. 15. Luke 2. 23.

3 ¶ And Moses said unto the people, Remember this day, in which ye came out from Egypt, out of the house of * bondage; for by strength of hand the Lord brought you out from this place: there shall no leavened bread be eaten.

* Heb. servants.

4 [b] This day came ye out, in the month Abib.

b Chap. 23. 15. and 34. 18. Deut. 16. 1.

5 ¶ And it shall be when the Lord shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Amorites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites, which he sware unto thy fathers to give thee, a land flowing with milk and honey, [c] that thou shalt keep this service in this month.

Before Christ 1491.

c Chap. 12. 25, 26.

6 [d] Seven days shalt thou eat unleavened bread, and in the seventh day shall be a feast to the Lord.

d Chap. 12. 15, 16.

7 Unleavened bread shall be eaten seven days: and there shall no leavened bread be seen with thee, neither shall there be leaven seen with thee in all thy quarters.

8 ¶ And thou shalt shew thy son in that day, saying, This is done because of that which the Lord did unto me, when I came forth out of Egypt.

9 And it shall be for [e] a sign unto thee upon thine hand, and for a memorial between thine eyes; that the Lord's law may be in thy mouth: for with a strong hand hath the Lord brought thee out of Egypt.

e See Ver. 16. Num. 15. 38. Deut. 6. 8. and 11. 18. Prov. 1. 9. Isa. 49. 16. Jer. 22. 24. Matt. 23. 5.

10 Thou shalt therefore keep this ordinance in his season from year to year.

11 ¶ And it shall be when the Lord shall bring thee into the land of the Canaanites, as he sware unto thee and to thy fathers, and shall give it thee, 12 [f] That thou shalt † set apart unto the Lord all that openeth the matrix: and every firstling that cometh of a beast, which thou hast, the male shall be the Lord's.

f Chap. 22. 29. and 34. 19. Lev. 27. 26. Num. 8. 17. Deut. 15. 19. Ezek. 44. 30.

† Heb. cause to pass over.

13 And [g] every firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a ‡ lamb; and if thou wilt not redeem g Num. 18. 15, 16.

‡ Or, kid.

V. 51. The Lord did bring the children of Israel out—And by a power altogether his own. God used men as instruments, and appointed them to make use of means; yet all these were but so many ways by which some exercised faith in his power, and others were led to look to it, and to believe that all the power to save and to deliver them belonged to God alone; and that it might be known and never forgotten, by all that hear of the salvation of Israel of old, that it was the LORD that did bring them out of their distress, and protect and bless them; to the end that none may believe in the LORD and serve other gods, as thinking that men, or something men can make or do, are in part entitled to the honour and the praise of their salvation.

CHAP. XIII.

V. 2. Sanctify unto me—Dedicate, give unto my use and service. All the first-born—Every male child which is the first-born of his mother: It is mine—By special right and title, as being by my singular care and favour preserved from the common destruction, and therefore I challenge a peculiar interest in them, and do hereby require that they be devoted to me.

V. 4. In the month Abib—In the spring time.

V. 9. A sign—This feast shall be as a token to prevent the events ever being forgot, which my power accomplished when it was first instituted.

V. 12. Thus did God graciously provide for the future good of all that should belong to His ancient church, by having a living witness in every family, in the person of the first-born, that the promised Saviour His Son JESUS, was to be given up to God for the whole family of mankind, that all might be led to look unto Him and be saved.

V. 13. Every firstling of an ass—And of other unclean creatures. Thou shalt redeem with a lamb; and if thou wilt not redeem it, then thou shalt break its neck—Every unclean creature that I require, must either be redeemed by one I will accept in its place, or it must be put to death.—That which I require to have set apart for my service must not be employed in any other. Infinite compassion leaveth nothing undone which can explain redeeming love to men. Sinful men, like the unclean creatures, could not be offered, or immediately accepted of God in their own persons, but through the Son of God, who laid down his life in man's place, the just for the unjust to bring us to God. It was required that the unclean creatures should be set apart unto the LORD; and if each of them was not redeemed, then it was to be destroyed; if the owner of it would not thus secure its life it must not live; it could only be spared as a redeemed creature. And thus God sheweth mankind through the church of old, that the souls of men, by nature sinful, can only have spiritual, or the nature of an heavenly and everlasting life given them, when they truly consider and hold themselves as redeemed creatures; and regard the price paid for them by the Son of God, as the sole cause of their being spared from eternal death: The unclean creature belonging to one man was not to be spared, because a creature of the same kind, belonging to another, had a price paid for it and was redeemed; every one that God requireth to be dedicated unto him, must be redeemed, or die; it was not to have its life allowed it on any other terms; nothing in itself of usefulness, or innocency could save it; God declared it should be put to death, if a price was not paid for it, and redeemed by an offering which he would accept in its place and stead. The Before Christ 1491. redeem it, then thou ſhalt break his neck: and all the firſt-born of man amongſt thy children [h] ſhalt thou redeem.

Creator

h Num. 3. 47. and 18. 16.

Creator of All, who has a right to All, requires every ſoul of man to be given up, and devoted to his will, as their reaſonable ſervice: (Rom. xii. 1.) And none can become that holy and living ſacrifice unto God, which God himſelf requires and commands them to be, but through the atonement made by His Equal Son for every ſinful ſon of man. And thus doth the law of God for redeeming the life of the unclean creatures, which he required to be dedicated unto him, apply itſelf to all men by a plain figure level with every man's underſtanding: God requireth men, who by nature are born in ſin, to be given up to his ſervice, to do his will on earth as it is done in heaven: God is holineſs and purity itſelf, men are impure and ſinful, and cannot love him nor ſerve him; when we would do good, evil is preſent with us, and yet as reaſonable and immortal creatures, our happineſs entirely depends upon living to God in conformity to his holy will; and without this conformity to the nature and will of God, it muſt be as certain that we cannot dwell in the preſence of God, and have everlaſting life, as that it is that the unclean creatures which God commanded to be given up to him, muſt either be redeemed or deſtroyed. The Almighty declared what he would accept in their place as a ranſon for them; he himſelf as certainly provided that ranſom, as that he gave the creatures that were to be redeemed; but then if men would not regard what he required, the Almighty Law-giver did not leave it to human choice, both to diſregard the ranſom he provided, and required to be uſed, and at the ſame time ſave the life of the creatures which were to be redeemed: It was the Author of Life in every creature, who appointed it thus to be done, and could never for a moment want the power to inforce the ſentence of his own law. And thus that redemption which is provided for every ſoul of man, is either to be regarded and made uſe of, or thoſe for whom it is provided left expoſed, like thoſe creatures which the owners would not redeem, to the juſtice of the ſovereign Law-giver, whoſe power is treated with contempt, when the proviſion made for our redemption in Jeſus Chriſt is not looked unto and regarded, as the ſole cauſe of our being ſaved from that wrath, which every ſinful thought, word, and action has at once provoked and defied, and as the means by which alone we receive that grace of God by which our fallen ſinful nature is cleanſed, and made acceptable unto God in this life, and fit for his glorious preſence in the life to come. And if I do not this day believe in Jeſus Chriſt,—the God-man, the promiſed and ſent of God, as the only Mediator between God and man, and as the purchaſer and giver of all mercy and grace, and of future glory; then, does it not above all things concern me to inquire by what other means I can reaſonably hope for peace with God here, and an heavenly inheritance in his preſence. Can I ſay that by nature I am exempt and free from all the effects of Adam's fall, from whom I am deſcended; and that from myſelf I have all that holineſs which God requires me and all to have, who are to dwell with him for ever? Can I this day make out a good title to eternal life from my own inward purity, and from a life free from every ſpot and ſtain of guilt in the ſight of God? Can I ſay I have no need of a Redeemer, for I have from my youth till this moment done all that God requireth of me, of Juſtice, mercy, and truth, and this in all humility and purity, without once in heart yielding to a proud, angry, deceitful, or unjuſt thought or deſire? Can I ſay I have loved God as he requireth of all his reaſonable creatures—that is, with all my heart, mind, ſoul, and ſtrength, and alſo loved my fellow-creatures as myſelf; and as a proof that I have ſo complied with God's Almighty will, I have never in a ſingle inſtance done to any other man what I would not have wiſhed that man to have done to me, had I been in his place and he in mine—I have never 14 ¶ And it ſhall be when thy ſon aſketh thee * in time to come, ſaying, What is this? Before Christ 1491.

* Heb. to morrow.

that

once murmured againſt God, but the ſtate and temper of my whole mind has ever been a meek and patient ſubmiſſion and reſignation to God, under every pain, difficulty, and diſappointment I have felt or met with in my whole life—I, in honour, prefer every other man before myſelf, and have ever done ſo, and from the firſt moment of my having the uſe of reaſon to this, I have ſet God always before me as the final judge of all my actions, and whether I eat or drunk, or whatever I did or deſigned to do, was with one fixed, ſettled purpoſe to pleaſe God; and, as a proof of it, my heart, and all my affections and deſires of happineſs are and ever have been with God and God alone; and all the uſe I have ever made of all the capacities of mind which God hath given me, and of all the property I have ever had under my care, hath been to pleaſe God and not myſelf; and it hath been my conſtant and chief ſtudy to know what God my Creator and Preſerver required of me in all things, that I might do his will, not according to other men's notions of it, or taken upon report, but I have read, inquired, and thought of it for myſelf, I underſtand it, and I have done all that God required I ſhould do in every action of my whole life to this hour. But if I cannot ſay all this—if my heart, my memory, my reaſon, my conſcience convince me that I have been guilty but of one ſingle crime—one ſingle neglect of what God commands, one ſingle breach of what he requireth; If I know that I have been guilty of one ſingle act of impiety, impurity, or want of charity, then God declareth me guilty and unclean, and expoſed to his juſtice with others that are ſo, not excuſing or pardoning guilt in me, becauſe in my eſteem there may be others more guilty than myſelf. God declareth me guilty, if I have but offended againſt what he requireth in one point, or command. (James ii. 10.) Now, what is my hope? Suppoſe it is this—I do not intend to offend; I am reſolved not to offend God again;—This God requireth; but will this ſatisfy the offended purity and juſtice of God for the crime of which I am obliged to confeſs myſelf guilty already? Will avoiding to contract a debt to-day, pay off the debt I already owe. If I could live blameleſs in the ſight of God, and to all men from this moment to that of my death, it is my duty to God to do ſo, it is my duty to my fellow-creatures, and it is (becauſe my duty) my intereſt and my happineſs ſo to do; but do I, on this account, become guiltleſs in the ſight of God, the eternal Judge of all men, for what I have already done? Doth the ſubject that was convicted of high treaſon, or any other crime yeſterday, clear himſelf from all danger of ſuffering the ſentence the law awards againſt his crime, becauſe he thinks himſelf reſolved never to commit the ſame, or any other crime again: But God is merciful, and I hope to be forgiven my offences againſt his holy law: But was the life of any of the unclean creatures ſpared by the law, when the owner of it would not regard what God required—that is to have it redeemed? No, it muſt be deſtroyed notwithſtanding all the mercy of God, if the owner of it would not regard what God declared ſhould only redeem it. And God hath declared he pardoneth none of the ſinful ſons of men, accepts of none into his favour, giveth grace to none, receiveth none into his ſacred preſence in heaven, but in and through, and by and for the ſake of his well-beloved Son, Chriſt Jeſus; and not to regard and look to him as the ſole cauſe of life and ſalvation, is to leave the ſoul as much under God's declaration, that it ſhall not have the divine life given it; as that the unclean creature ſhould not have its natural life ſpared, without being redeemed by one, which God had ſaid he would accept in its place and ſtead; and other means of its being preſerved there were none. Is God allowed to be the judge, and to have the right to declare on what terms He will ſhew mercy, and accept of my ſubmiſſion, after his grace

Before Christ 1491. that thou ſhalt ſay unto him, By ſtrength of hand the Lord brought us out from Egypt, from the houſe of bondage.

15 And it came to paſs, when Pharaoh would hardly let us go, that the Lord ſlew all the firſt-born in the land of Egypt, both the firſt-born of man, and the firſt-born of beaſt: therefore I ſacrifice to the Lord all that openeth the matrix, being males; but all the firſt-born of my children I redeem.

16 And it ſhall be for a token upon thine hand, and for frontlets between thine eyes: for by ſtrength of hand the Lord brought us forth out of Egypt. Before Christ 1491.

17 ¶ And it came to paſs, when Pharaoh had let the people go, that God led them not through the way of the land of the Philiſtines, although that was near; for God ſaid, Leſt peradventure the people repent when they ſee war, and [i] they return to Egypt:

[i] Deut. 17. 16.

18 But God [k] led the people about, through the

[k] Chap. 14. 2.

has convinced me of my ſin? Am I, or am I not looking to and regarding the Lord Jeſus Chriſt as the Lamb that was ſlain for the ſins of men, promiſed to the firſt man after his fall, made known to the world by all the ways that words, types, and figures can repreſent, and fully and finally in the life and death of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, God in the perſon of a man? Is He and He alone the foundation of all my hopes of mercy for paſt offences? Are all my expectations of grace to keep me from ſin, and to ſupport me in doing and ſuffering the will of God on earth, built only upon the love of God, for the ſake of his Son as MY Redeemer. If with an humble confidence I can ſay, this and this only is the foundation of all my hopes of mercy from God, then Chriſt Jeſus, believed in as the only Mediator, is not a probable cauſe of the ſinner's pardon, it is as certainly to be expected and poſſeſſed, as that the life of the unclean creature was ſpared for the ſake of that by which it was redeemed. For in him is neither power nor willingneſs wanting, to do more than the penitent believing mind can either aſk or think: In him dwells all the fulneſs of the Godhead, and having lived, ſuffered, and died in a perſon that partook of our infirmities, He is not without feeling for all the human race, and equally related to God and man, in his own gracious words, He invites all the ends of the earth to look unto Him for all the mercies and all the bleſſings which He purchaſed by that one offering made of Himſelf in the ſinner's ſtead, and which by his Spirit he ever lives to make effectual; (John xiv. 23.) but unite all that men call great, or wiſe, or good in all the world in a ſingle perſon, and the MEDIATOR between God and man, not looked to, believed in, and regarded by that perſon to the laſt moment of his life of trial, as the ſole cauſe of every bleſſing from God which can either be poſſeſſed or hoped for, that ſoul's final doom is with the unredeemed under the law of God; and it muſt, for its final neglect and contempt of the higheſt act of love and goodneſs in God, ſuffer the loſs of ſpiritual life and eternal baniſhment from the preſence of God, for He hath ſaid there is none beſides that Mediator which is provided—Chriſt Jeſus the Lord, any other Saviour for all or any of the ſons of men. Great GOD forgive and take away that pride, which would be offended at being compared with the meaneſt creature thou haſt made; if thy reaſonleſs creatures were to be redeemed, what muſt be my neceſſity of having a Redeemer, who, againſt reaſon, conſcience, duty, and the weight of all thy benefits, have forgot thee and ſinned againſt thee; and having ſo much need of mercy, ſo many ſins in thy ſight to be atoned for, ſo evil a nature to be ſaved from, ſhall I for one day more forget thee, ſhall I any longer be unaffected with all the diſcoveries thou haſt given in thy word of truth, of thy love and goodneſs in ſending, coming, living and dying for me, O Lord God of my ſalvation.

V. 14. What is this—What is the meaning of this offering? Or, why is the firſt-born of the beaſts to be put to death? Thou ſhalt ſay the LORD brought us out of bondage—The Lord redeemed us out of Egypt by his mighty power, and we are commanded to do this that you, our children, may know and teach it to your children, that you are to look to God through the promiſed Meſſiah, to redeem you from all ſin, that you may ſerve him without fear, in holineſs and righteouſneſs all the days of your life of trial on earth, and then finally dwell in his heavenly kingdom in the world to come.

V. 15. Pharaoh would hardly let us go—Pharaoh was as unwilling to let us go, as ſatan and all the powers of darkneſs are to allow men to ſerve God. But the LORD ſlew all the firſt-born, and deſtroyed the ſtrength of Egypt; as for the ſake of the promiſed Saviour, the Spirit of God deſtroys ſin, and caſts down the power of Satan: Therefore I ſacrifice all the firſt-born of the beaſts unto the Lord as the Lord commanded, that I may never forget, and that my children may be taught to look unto the Lord God who redeemed Iſrael, as the ſtrength and redeemer of all them that believe in him. But the firſt-born of my children I redeem—I offer a ſacrifice in their ſtead, to ſhew that it is not on account of any thing that is good in us, but of his mercy that he ſaveth us.

V. 16. It ſhall be for a token—And as a monument always before thy face. Salvation is from the LORD as entirely, as that it was by His ſtrength that He brought all Iſrael out of Egypt, and not by their own wiſdom, or might, or merit, who were bond ſlaves to Pharaoh and his ſervants, as all men are to ſin and ſatan's wicked influence, till by grace they are ſaved.

V. 17. God led them not through the way that was near—And the moſt direct to the country he had promiſed. For God ſaid—God ſaw that when the people came to ſee war, and to experience the difficulties their unbelief would bring upon them, then they would repent that they had ever attempted to come from under their cruel maſters, notwithſtanding the God of all mercy and grace had charged himſelf with all that concerned them; and repent that they had ever ſet out from Egypt; God therefore in mercy led them the way of the wilderneſs, that their return might be made more humanely difficult than their advancement, and by this means exclude all boaſting, that their deliverance and all the bleſſings which they or their children might ever profeſs in conſequence of it, had not ſo much as either their deſign or choice, but that ſuch was their doubts of God's goodneſs to them, that His infinite wiſdom was exerciſed, and all the meekneſs and patience of Moſes, to prevent their forſaking their own mercies, and in diſtruſt of God's goodneſs, murmuring in their hearts, travel back again to Egypt, and to bondage.—God ſaw that this they could do; and led them the way of the wilderneſs to prevent it. Theſe were men as men are now; and all that concerns them is recorded that we may not be betrayed into the ſame unbelief, and add to the number of our offences, the great ſin of looking upon the Divine diſpenſations to us as unmerciful, and his commands grievous, when there is nothing but love and compaſſion in them all.

V. 18. God led the people—By a way they never would have choſen, to ſave them from the ſlavery and miſery to which of themſelves they would have returned.

V. 19. Moſes

Before Christ 1491.

the way of the wilderneſs of the Red ſea: and the children of Iſrael went up † harneſſed out of the land of Egypt.

† Or, by five in a rank.

19 And Moſes took the bones of Joſeph with him: for he had ſtraitly ſworn the children of Iſrael, ſaying, [l] God will ſurely viſit you; and ye ſhall carry up my bones away hence with you.

l Gen. 50. 25. Joſh. 24. 32. Acts 7. 16.

20 ¶ And [m] they took their journey from Succoth, and encamped in Etham, in the edge of the wilderneſs.

m Num. 33. 6.

21 And [n] the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of a cloud, to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire, to give them light to go by day and night.

n Chap. 40. 38. Num. 9. 15. and 10. 34. and 14. 14. Deut. 1. 33. Neh. 9. 12, 19. Pſa. 78. 14. and 99. 7. and 105. 39. 1 Cor. 10. 1.

22 He took not away the pillar of the cloud by day, nor the pillar of fire by night, from before the people.

Before Christ 1491.

CHAP. XIV.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, [a] that they turn and encamp before [b] Pi-hahiroth, between [c] Migdol and the ſea, over againſt Baal-zephon: before it ſhall ye encamp by the ſea.

a Chap. 13. 18.
b Num. 33. 7.
c Jer. 44. 1.

3 For Pharaoh will ſay of the children of Iſrael, They are intangled in the land, the wilderneſs hath ſhut them in.

4 And [d] I will harden Pharaoh's heart, that

d Chap. 4. 21.

V. 19. Moſes took the bones of Joſeph with him—Remembering his faith in God when he ſaid, God will ſurely viſit you for good, and for the ſake of the promiſed ſeed will do for you all that he has promiſed. Moſes, as the leader under God of the people of Iſrael, charged himſelf with the care of the remains of Joſeph; and Jeſus, the leader of the Iſrael of God in all ages, charges himſelf with the remains of all that die in him, and when he ſhall come again, will raiſe them up, and be the Saviour of their bodies as well as of their ſpirits. The remains of Joſeph was an evidence of his firm belief to all Iſrael, that God would fulfil his holy promiſes; and thoſe acts and monuments of faith which are recorded in the word of God, are to be obſerved and carefully remembered and carried with us in our journey to the heavenly Canaan, that under all the conflicts we have to paſs through, we may remember how men of like paſſions with ourſelves believed in God, and how faithfully he brought all and more to paſs than they even either aſked or thought. Infinite wiſdom can do nothing in vain; none of the examples of faith which it hath pleaſed God to record of his ſervants of old, are to be looked upon as things we have no need of knowing; to be unprovided with arguments in ſupport of faith in God, or to be indifferent about knowing them, is to imitate travellers on a journey of certain difficulties, and of the greateſt danger, who are careleſs and unconcerned about the very means which the Almighty himſelf has informed us they made uſe of, and which procured them his protection, and by which they only were brought ſafely through.

V. 20. They encamped in the edge of the wilderneſs—The whole family of Iſrael, and all that they had, here reſted. And in their way to this place.

V. 21. The Lord—The ſecond perſon of the Godhead—the churches living head in all ages, and who purchaſed the ſame by the giving up himſelf to make an atonement to the Divine juſtice for the ſins of men, and at the appointed time appearing in the human nature, and dying in the perſon of JESUS, and afterwards aſcending up again into that glory which he had with God the Father from everlaſting. He it was who is here called the LORD, and went before the children of Iſrael in the appearance of a pillar of a cloud by day, and by night in a pillar of fire; by the cloud kindly to cover all that belonged to his viſible church from the natural heat of the ſun in the day-time; and by the pillar of fire, to prevent their ſuffering any diſtreſs for the darkneſs of the night; and that both by the cloud and the pillar they might be aſſured of his Almighty preſence, who, by his power, had performed all they had ſeen done for their deliverance from thoſe that had ſo long oppreſſed them; and that by theſe evident diſcoveries of his preſence day and night, his church in all ages might make it known to all that would turn unto God, and worſhip the Father and the Son, that the Holy Spirit as the light, the ſtrength, and comfort of every believing mind, was preſent to give them the rich ſupplies of grace to go by, in the ways of his holy commandments, day and night—continually.

V. 22. He took not away the cloud, nor the pillar night nor day—That through the church it might be publiſhed to mankind in all ages, that whoſoever embraces the offers of the infinite love and compaſſion of God, for the ſake of the God-man—the Mediator, and chooſes God for their portion, their reward, and the object of their ſouls delight, that they do not enter into covenant with a variable, diſtant, or uncertain being, but the contrary, and that every ſoul of man, who, with full purpoſe of heart, determines and does cleave unto God, is, and may be as certain of his Almighty preſence, as all the thouſands of Iſrael were certain that day and night God their Saviour was preſent with them, and that the cloud and the pillar by which he ſhewed himſelf, were invariably preſent, and that the ever-bleſſed God withdrew not himſelf for a moment, day nor night, from thoſe that were following in obedience to the diſcoveries he had made to them of his holy mind and will.

CHAP. XIV.

V. 1. The Lord ſpake——Not immediately from himſelf to all Iſrael, but to the ſerious, humble, devoted faithful mind of Moſes, making uſe of him as his miniſter to all the people; and commanding him——

V. 2. To ſpeak unto the children of Iſrael, telling them where it was the Lord's will they ſhould remove to; informing them——

V. 3. That Pharaoh, who ſtill reſiſted the grace of God, and in his heart was ſet againſt the divine will, ſo often made known to him, would in his unbelief conclude, that the children of Iſrael would be ſo entangled in the way they had taken, that the wilderneſs would ſhut them in, and at laſt they would not be delivered as they had expected. And thus it is when men, who have been convinced of ſin, and ſee the danger to which they have expoſed themſelves by their offences againſt God, and reſolve to fly from the wrath to come, and by the grace given them for Jeſus's ſake, to walk in all the ways of his example and commands; then do thoſe, who remain in a ſtate of oppoſition to God as Pharaoh did, conclude with him, that thoſe who have ſet out with Iſrael to follow their God, will never be delivered from the difficulties in which they are already entangled, and ſuch as from their knowledge of the world, like Pharaoh's knowledge of the country, they believe they muſt bring upon themſelves diſtreſs, in the courſe of life they have entered into. When this reaſoning about the loſſes and difficulties of a life given up to God, comes from men eſteemed for their prudence in the management of human affairs; or are reſpected for their property or their authority, their predictions are taken for granted, and all about them conclude with Pharaoh and his ſervants, that it is true, notwithſtanding all they themſelves have heard or read of the power of God, that it muſt be impoſſible for thoſe who ſet out as Iſrael did, under all the ill-wiſhes and

Before Christ. 1491. that he shall follow after them, and I will be honoured upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host; that the Egyptians may know that I am the Lord. And they did so.

5 ¶ And it was told the King of Egypt, e Ps. 105. 25. that the people fled: and e the heart of Pharaoh and of his servants was turned against the people, and they said, Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us?

6 And he made ready his chariot, and took his people with him:

7 And he took six hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt, and captains over every one of them.

8 And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued after f Num. 33. 3. the children of Israel: and f the children of Israel went out with an high hand.

9 But the g Egyptians pursued after them (all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, and his army) and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth before Baal-zephon. Before Christ 1491. g Josh. 24. 6.

10 ¶ And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and behold, the Egyptians marched after them, and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel cried out unto the Lord.

11 h And they said unto Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? Wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt? h Psa. 106. 7.

12 i Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better i Chap. 5. 21. and 6. 9.

and reproaches from the first people about them, that God should bring them through their present difficulties, and such as they must meet with in the way they have taken to follow him, however warranted by his word; and thus concluding, the conduct of the natural man in all ages, is shewn to us in that of Pharaoh and his people.

V. 4. Follow after them—To bring them back again to the state of their former subjection, to that spirit of the wicked one, by which the minds of all men are influenced, till the grace of God converts the soul to his will; and the principle is the same by which the natural man is led to act against the spiritual man, whether it shews itself in declared acts of force, as Pharaoh proceeded against Israel, or by any weapon or expression of persecution from a rack, to torture the follower of Jesus to death, or only ridicule, to turn his conduct into contempt. But those who find cause from the most sober reflection, on what is recorded in the word of God, of the nature of the work of his grace in the human mind, and those universal and plain laws of purity, justice, mercy, truth, and self denial, in which none can walk without that newness of life, which the grace of God alone communicates—they that see it impossible, that a human soul, in which dwell pride, envy, worldly-mindedness, anger, self-will, and a vain love of praise in any degree, cannot, in the nature of things, enjoy communion with God—they that are convinced, if death finds the soul thus unrenewed in the image of God, (Phil. ii. 5.) they cannot, from God's word, or right reason, have any solid grounds to expect to dwell in the presence of God, amongst the spirits of Redeemed souls made perfect—they that are satisfied, from the calmest consideration of God's word, that the course of their past lives hath not, either as to the spirit and temper of their minds, or from their words and actions, flowing from their minds, been such as God declareth those are who possess his Spirit, and are prepared for his presence; and being thus convinced and satisfied of the necessity of a change, both in heart and life, they begin to regard the revealed will of God, and the spirit and nature of real religion, as the one thing needful for an immortal soul; and they begin, not only to seek, but strive, with patience, firmness and diligence, to regard all God's appointed ways of receiving the grace he hath promised, and if, upon their thus setting out to follow God as their leader and guide, they are told, as all the followers of God amongst the Israelites of old were, that it is concluded of them, as it was by Pharaoh and his servants, that God either cannot or will not support, defend, save, and deliver all that truly put their trust in him, committing themselves to him in the ways of his holy will, and when they themselves conclude from the difficulties they meet with, and from the unexpected quarters their opposition cometh from, and, above all, from the justice of God, which might give them up to the evils with which they are threatened, then before they allow their hands to hang down, and their feet to stand still in the ways of well doing, let them look into this sacred History, to see whether it is true that God's gracious promises of mercy and support to all, who take his will for their guide, have been fulfilled, or that the evil predictions of those who did not obey God, came to pass; or that human power and wisdom have not only followed after, but always overthrown human weakness, notwithstanding any dependance which the weak were led to place in God, whose will, however feebly, but sincerely, they endeavoured to follow.

V. 5. The heart of Pharaoh and his servants was turned against the people—Of Israel; and now, after long and severe conflicts, the final trial was to be made, whether the power of satan, influencing the natural minds of the king, and many of the people of Egypt, was to prevail; or the power of God, and that faith in his goodness, which the leaders of the children of Israel received from the spirit of God. The contending parties were, the Redeemer of men, and satan, the prince of the power of the air.

V. 6, 7, 8, 9. Pharaoh made ready his chariot of war; took six hundred chosen chariots more to attend him, besides all the chariots of Egypt to follow him, every one of them under the command of a captain, and they pursued after the children of Israel with all the Egyptian horsemen, and the army; and this was the human power which was to prevent the children of Israel from going on, as they had set out, in obedience to the Lord their Redeemer, or to destroy them.

V. 10. The children of Israel beheld the Egyptian army advancing upon them, and they were sore afraid, knowing themselves to be comparatively weak and helpless, and if God would have permitted them to have made use of any force of their own against Pharaoh, oppressed as they had been in slavery, and incumbered as they were, with the aged, their wives, and their little ones, they had as little hopes of prevailing against the Egyptians, as they had of mercy at their hands. They beheld the army with all the chariots of war and horsemen; they saw themselves men just escaped from slavery, with all their wives and their little ones going to be driven back, to be oppressed with more severity than ever, or to be put to death in such numbers as the Egyptians pleased; and, in this distress, they cried out unto the Lord, at the sense of their danger increasing.

V. 11, 12. They said unto Moses, We did tell thee in Egypt to let us alone; for it had been better than that we should die here under the better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness.

Before Christ 1491.

13 ¶ And Moses said unto the people, [k] Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord, which he will shew to you to day: [‡] for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to day, ye shall see them again no more for ever.

14 [l] The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace.

15 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward.

16 But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it: and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the mids of the sea.

17 And I, behold I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them: and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

18 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

19 ¶ And the angel of God, [m] which went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them.

20 And it came between the camp of the Egyptians, and the camp of Israel; and [n] it was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night.

21 And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and the Lord caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and [o] made the sea dry land, and the waters were [p] divided.

22 And [q] the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and k 2 Chron. 23. 15. 17.

‡ Or, for as touching the Egyptians whom ye have seen to day, &c.

l Neh. 4. 20.

m Chap. 13. 21. and 23. 20.

n See Isa. 8. 14. 2 Cor. 4. 3.

o Psal. 66. 6.

p Josh. 3. 15. and 4. 23. Neh. 9. 11. Psal. 74. 13. & 106. 9. & 114. 3.

q Num. 33. 8. Psal. 78. 13. 1 Cor. 10. 1. Heb. 11. 29.

the rage of those, thou hast led us to provoke beyond forgiveness: They judged from appearance, and reasoning as men, they gave themselves up to that death they had no power to avoid, and which they concluded the king of Egypt and his people would inflict without mercy, who had been such severe sufferers on account of what had passed between Pharaoh and Moses. This surrender, which all Israel make of themselves to die, reduces all the human strength which was to oppose Pharaoh's whole army, to the single person of the leader of Israel.

V. 13. Moses said unto the people, Fear ye not—All that you see of danger from this great army, fear neither their numbers, nor their strength, nor all the rage with which they are pursuing you, but stand still; allow not yourselves to discover a single sign of fear or confusion, but, with calmness of mind, look for the salvation of the Lord, for that which he is both able and willing to do for you, and which he will shew you to day, in which you have given up yourselves for lost. To day shall all these that come against you be destroyed, and no more seen as objects of terror to you.

V. 14. Ye shall hold your peace—With wonder; and adore that power and goodness of the Lord, who will, in the destruction of Pharaoh and his army, shew how little all the powers of darkness, obeyed by any human force, can do against the weakest and most helpless followers of the Lord.

V. 15. The Lord said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me—With all the knowledge which Moses had of the love of God to them that fear him; with all his confidence in the faithfulness of God, to perform what he promises to them that trust in him, Moses, as a man, felt his utter helplessness, and he durst not omit to cry unto the Lord, as his only Saviour. God's gracious answer was, Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward—The prayer was heard, and the answer requires Moses to follow his prayer of faith with active obedience.

V. 16. Stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it—By this action, Shew to all Israel that faith, which my grace has given thee, and on which thou in thy heart relies; and then to all Israel, and in them to all mankind it shall be known, that the Lord thy Redeemer knows of no enemies from which he cannot or will not save them that believe in him; and that he will, for his own name's sake, allow no difficulties to hinder men from doing his will on earth, who will but put their trust in him, and regard what God commands; and, as a proof of that spiritual power, by which believers in all ages are attended, all the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea; and as crystal walls shall it stand, and the water itself be as immoveable on either side of them as the everlasting hills, till all my people are safe upon the farther side.

V. 17. I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host—That I may be trusted in as God, and believed in as one mighty to save by all the children of men.

V. 18. The Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord—And that none may be unacquainted with my power to punish those that act against the peace of mankind, whom to save is my glory and my delight; and that by this overthrow of the Egyptians, men may fear to yield themselves servants to satan, who is ever wanting to inflame the minds of men against one another, and to hinder all the purposes of redeeming love.

V. 19. The Angel of God which went before, removed and went behind them—Not changing his place, for he was the omnipresent God, but his operation, from leading the Israelites forward in their way to the protecting of them from their pursuers.

V. 20. It was a cloud and darkness to them—The Egyptians, to whom it brought their former horrible darkness to mind, and was a merciful warning to the thousands which formed Pharaoh's great army, and who were bound to obey the king and their commanders, to look for some such destruction as followed the dreadful darkness they had been witnesses to before. The same pillar of the cloud gave light to all Israel; and so is God at one and the same time the comfort of them that fear him; and a terror to those that are led to oppose him in the persons of his people.

V. 21. The Lord caused a strong east-wind, and made the sea dry land—The wind is mentioned as that by which God removed the waters; and as the sea was removed by the wind, so does God by his Spirit, which is compared to the wind, (John iii. 8.) remove all those seas of passion and unholy desires, which if not removed, would leave believers in the state of the miserable unconverted, with hearts full of evil, disturbed with every wind that blows.

V. 22. The children of Israel went into the midst of the sea—About midnight, as may be gathered from ver. 24. The waters were a wall—For height, and for firmness; held by his hand who made the waters, and who hath hung and ever holds the globe of earth and sea in the air. And here let the fearful followers of the Lamb to the heavenly Canaan above, enter with Israel between these watery walls, and see themselves safe and on

Before Christ. 1491. that he shall follow after them, and I will be honoured upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host; that the Egyptians may know that I am the Lord. And they did so.

5 ¶ And it was told the King of Egypt, e Ps. 105. 25. that the people fled: and e the heart of Pharaoh and of his servants was turned against the people, and they said, Why have we done this, that we have let Israel go from serving us?

6 And he made ready his chariot, and took his people with him:

7 And he took six hundred chosen chariots, and all the chariots of Egypt, and captains over every one of them.

8 And the Lord hardened the heart of Pharaoh king of Egypt, and he pursued after f Num. 33. 3. the children of Israel: and f the children of Israel went out with an high hand.

9 But the g Egyptians pursued after them (all the horses and chariots of Pharaoh, and his horsemen, and his army) and overtook them encamping by the sea, beside Pi-hahiroth before Baal-zephon. Before Christ 1491. g Josh. 24. 6.

10 ¶ And when Pharaoh drew nigh, the children of Israel lifted up their eyes, and behold, the Egyptians marched after them, and they were sore afraid: and the children of Israel cried out unto the Lord.

11 h And they said unto Moses, Because there were no graves in Egypt, hast thou taken us away to die in the wilderness? Wherefore hast thou dealt thus with us, to carry us forth out of Egypt? h Psa. 106. 7.

12 i Is not this the word that we did tell thee in Egypt, saying, Let us alone, that we may serve the Egyptians? For it had been better i Chap. 5. 21. and 6. 9.

and reproaches from the first people about them, that God should bring them through their present difficulties, and such as they must meet with in the way they have taken to follow him, however warranted by his word; and thus concluding, the conduct of the natural man in all ages, is shewn to us in that of Pharaoh and his people.

V. 4. Follow after them—To bring them back again to the state of their former subjection, to that spirit of the wicked one, by which the minds of all men are influenced, till the grace of God converts the soul to his will; and the principle is the same by which the natural man is led to act against the spiritual man, whether it shews itself in declared acts of force, as Pharaoh proceeded against Israel, or by any weapon or expression of persecution from a rack, to torture the follower of Jesus to death, or only ridicule, to turn his conduct into contempt. But those who find cause from the most sober reflection, on what is recorded in the word of God, of the nature of the work of his grace in the human mind, and those universal and plain laws of purity, justice, mercy, truth, and self denial, in which none can walk without that newness of life, which the grace of God alone communicates—they that see it impossible, that a human soul, in which dwell pride, envy, worldly-mindedness, anger, self-will, and a vain love of praise in any degree, cannot, in the nature of things, enjoy communion with God—they that are convinced, if death finds the soul thus unrenewed in the image of God, (Phil. ii. 5.) they cannot, from God's word, or right reason, have any solid grounds to expect to dwell in the presence of God, amongst the spirits of Redeemed souls made perfect—they that are satisfied, from the calmest consideration of God's word, that the course of their past lives hath not, either as to the spirit and temper of their minds, or from their words and actions, flowing from their minds, been such as God declareth those are who possess his Spirit, and are prepared for his presence; and being thus convinced and satisfied of the necessity of a change, both in heart and life, they begin to regard the revealed will of God, and the spirit and nature of real religion, as the one thing needful for an immortal soul; and they begin, not only to seek, but strive, with patience, firmness and diligence, to regard all God's appointed ways of receiving the grace he hath promised, and if, upon their thus setting out to follow God as their leader and guide, they are told, as all the followers of God amongst the Israelites of old were, that it is concluded of them, as it was by Pharaoh and his servants, that God either cannot or will not support, defend, save, and deliver all that truly put their trust in him, committing themselves to him in the ways of his holy will, and when they themselves conclude from the difficulties they meet with, and from the unexpected quarters their opposition cometh from, and, above all, from the justice of God, which might give them up to the evils with which they are threatened, then before they allow their hands to hang down, and their feet to stand still in the ways of well doing, let them look into this sacred History, to see whether it is true that God's gracious promises of mercy and support to all, who take his will for their guide, have been fulfilled, or that the evil predictions of those who did not obey God, came to pass; or that human power and wisdom have not only followed after, but always overthrown human weakness, notwithstanding any dependance which the weak were led to place in God, whose will, however feebly, but sincerely, they endeavoured to follow.

V. 5. The heart of Pharaoh and his servants was turned against the people—Of Israel; and now, after long and severe conflicts, the final trial was to be made, whether the power of satan, influencing the natural minds of the king, and many of the people of Egypt, was to prevail; or the power of God, and that faith in his goodness, which the leaders of the children of Israel received from the spirit of God. The contending parties were, the Redeemer of men, and satan, the prince of the power of the air.

V. 6, 7, 8, 9. Pharaoh made ready his chariot of war; took six hundred chosen chariots more to attend him, besides all the chariots of Egypt to follow him, every one of them under the command of a captain, and they pursued after the children of Israel with all the Egyptian horsemen, and the army; and this was the human power which was to prevent the children of Israel from going on, as they had set out, in obedience to the Lord their Redeemer, or to destroy them.

V. 10. The children of Israel beheld the Egyptian army advancing upon them, and they were sore afraid, knowing themselves to be comparatively weak and helpless, and if God would have permitted them to have made use of any force of their own against Pharaoh, oppressed as they had been in slavery, and incumbered as they were, with the aged, their wives, and their little ones, they had as little hopes of prevailing against the Egyptians, as they had of mercy at their hands. They beheld the army with all the chariots of war and horsemen; they saw themselves men just escaped from slavery, with all their wives and their little ones going to be driven back, to be oppressed with more severity than ever, or to be put to death in such numbers as the Egyptians pleased; and, in this distress, they cried out unto the Lord, at the sense of their danger increasing.

V. 11, 12. They said unto Moses, We did tell thee in Egypt to let us alone; for it had been better than that we should die here under the better for us to serve the Egyptians, than that we should die in the wilderness.

Before Christ 1491.

13 ¶ And Moses said unto the people, [k] Fear ye not, stand still, and see the salvation of the Lord, which he will shew to you to day: [‡] for the Egyptians whom ye have seen to day, ye shall see them again no more for ever.

14 [l] The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace.

15 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me? Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward.

16 But lift thou up thy rod, and stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it: and the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the mids of the sea.

17 And I, behold I will harden the hearts of the Egyptians, and they shall follow them: and I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

18 And the Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord, when I have gotten me honour upon Pharaoh, upon his chariots, and upon his horsemen.

19 ¶ And the angel of God, [m] which went before the camp of Israel, removed and went behind them; and the pillar of the cloud went from before their face, and stood behind them.

20 And it came between the camp of the Egyptians, and the camp of Israel; and [n] it was a cloud and darkness to them, but it gave light by night to these: so that the one came not near the other all the night.

21 And Moses stretched out his hand over the sea, and the Lord caused the sea to go back by a strong east wind all that night, and [o] made the sea dry land, and the waters were [p] divided.

22 And [q] the children of Israel went into the midst of the sea upon the dry ground: and

‡ Or, for whereas you have seen the Egyptians to day, &c.

k 2 Chron. 23. 15. 17.

l Neh. 4. 20.

m Chap. 13. 21. and 23. 20.

n See Isa. 8. 14. 2 Cor. 4. 3.

o Psal. 66. 6.

p Josh. 3. 15. and 4. 23. Neh. 9. 11. Psal. 74. 13. & 106. 9. & 114. 3.

q Num. 33. 8. Psal. 78. 13. 1 Cor. 10. 1. Heb. 11. 29.

the rage of those, thou hast led us to provoke beyond forgiveness: They judged from appearance, and reasoning as men, they gave themselves up to that death they had no power to avoid, and which they concluded the king of Egypt and his people would inflict without mercy, who had been such severe sufferers on account of what had passed between Pharaoh and Moses. This surrender, which all Israel make of themselves to die, reduces all the human strength which was to oppose Pharaoh's whole army, to the single person of the leader of Israel.

V. 13. Moses said unto the people, Fear ye not—All that you see of danger from this great army, fear neither their numbers, nor their strength, nor all the rage with which they are pursuing you, but stand still; allow not yourselves to discover a single sign of fear or confusion, but, with calmness of mind, look for the salvation of the Lord, for that which he is both able and willing to do for you, and which he will shew you to day, in which you have given up yourselves for lost. To day shall all these that come against you be destroyed, and no more seen as objects of terror to you.

V. 14. Ye shall hold your peace—With wonder; and adore that power and goodness of the Lord, who will, in the destruction of Pharaoh and his army, shew how little all the powers of darkness, obeyed by any human force, can do against the weakest and most helpless followers of the Lord.

V. 15. The Lord said unto Moses, Wherefore criest thou unto me—With all the knowledge which Moses had of the love of God to them that fear him; with all his confidence in the faithfulness of God, to perform what he promises to them that trust in him, Moses, as a man, felt his utter helplessness, and he durst not omit to cry unto the Lord, as his only Saviour. God's gracious answer was, Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward—The prayer was heard, and the answer requires Moses to follow his prayer of faith with active obedience.

V. 16. Stretch out thine hand over the sea, and divide it—By this action, Shew to all Israel that faith, which my grace has given thee, and on which thou in thy heart relies; and then to all Israel, and in them to all mankind it shall be known, that the Lord thy Redeemer knows of no enemies from which he cannot or will not save them that believe in him; and that he will, for his own name's sake, allow no difficulties to hinder men from doing his will on earth, who will but put their trust in him, and regard what God commands; and, as a proof of that spiritual power, by which believers in all ages are attended, all the children of Israel shall go on dry ground through the midst of the sea; and as crystal walls shall it stand, and the water itself be as immoveable on either side of them as the everlasting hills, till all my people are safe upon the farther side.

V. 17. I will get me honour upon Pharaoh, and upon all his host—That I may be trusted in as God, and believed in as one mighty to save by all the children of men.

V. 18. The Egyptians shall know that I am the Lord—And that none may be unacquainted with my power to punish those that act against the peace of mankind, whom to save is my glory and my delight; and that by this overthrow of the Egyptians, men may fear to yield themselves servants to satan, who is ever wanting to inflame the minds of men against one another, and to hinder all the purposes of redeeming love.

V. 19. The Angel of God which went before, removed and went behind them—Not changing his place, for he was the omnipresent God, but his operation, from leading the Israelites forward in their way to the protecting of them from their pursuers.

V. 20. It was a cloud and darkness to them—The Egyptians, to whom it brought their former horrible darkness to mind, and was a merciful warning to the thousands which formed Pharaoh's great army, and who were bound to obey the king and their commanders, to look for some such destruction as followed the dreadful darkness they had been witnesses to before. The same pillar of the cloud gave light to all Israel; and so is God at one and the same time the comfort of them that fear him; and a terror to those that are led to oppose him in the persons of his people.

V. 21. The Lord caused a strong east-wind, and made the sea dry land—The wind is mentioned as that by which God removed the waters; and as the sea was removed by the wind, so does God by his Spirit, which is compared to the wind, (John iii. 8.) remove all those seas of passion and unholy desires, which if not removed, would leave believers in the state of the miserable unconverted, with hearts full of evil, disturbed with every wind that blows.

V. 22. The children of Israel went into the midst of the sea—About midnight, as may be gathered from ver. 24. The waters were a wall—For height, and for firmness; held by his hand who made the waters, and who hath hung and ever holds the globe of earth and sea in the air. And here let the fearful followers of the Lamb to the heavenly Canaan above, enter with Israel between these watery walls, and see themselves safe and on Before Christ 1491. and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

23 ¶ And the Egyptians purſued, and went in after them, to the midſt of the ſea, even all Pharaoh's horſes, his chariots, and his horſemen.

24 And it came to paſs, that in the morning-watch [r] the Lord look'ed unto the hoſt of the Egyptians, through the pillar of fire and of the cloud, and troubled the hoſt of the Egyptians,

25 And took off their chariot-wheels, [‖] that they drave them heavily: ſo that the Egyptians ſaid, Let us flee from the face of Iſrael; for the Lord fighteth for them againſt the Egyptians.

Before Christ 1491.

26 ¶ And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, Stretch out thine hand over the ſea, that the waters may come again upon the Egyptians, upon their chariots, and upon their horſemen.

27 And Moſes ſtretched forth his hand over the ſea, and the ſea returned to his ſtrength when the morning appeared, and the Egyptians fled againſt it: and the Lord * overthrew the Egyptians in the midſt of the ſea.

28 And

[r] See Pſa. 77. 17, &c.

[‖] Or, and made them to go heavily.

* Heb. ſhook off. Deut. 11. 4. Pſ. 78. 53.

dry ground at the bottom of the ſea; and then let them aſk themſelves, What are the dangers that threaten me or mine in the ordinary courſe of Divine Providence, to be compared with the ſituation of all the thouſands of Iſrael; and, whether any one has cauſe to turn back from fear of dangers, in all the reaſonable ways of duty commanded by the ſame God?

V. 23. The Egyptians purſued—Still bent upon bringing back the Iſraelites to ſlavery, or deſtroying them.

V. 24. In the morning-watch—When they hoped for moſt advantage in the purſuit, they met with their greateſt diſaſter. The Lord—Called the Angel of God, (ver. 19.) By which promiſcuous uſe of theſe titles it ſufficiently appears, that this was no ordinary Angel, but the Son of God. Looked—With an eye of indignation and vengeance, as that phraſe is uſed, (Job. xl. 12. Amos ix. 4.) The Father of mercies and Judge of all men, had long waited for the repentance of the Egyptians, and ſome of his loud calls to them for that purpoſe are recorded in this hiſtory of God's dealings with them; but after all they had ſeen and felt of God's diſpleaſure, and of his power to puniſh, deaf and blind to it all, ſtill bent on waging a ſucceſsful war againſt God himſelf, by continuing to do what God had as plainly forbid, as he has that men ſhall not covet, lie, or take his name in vain; and not doing what God as plainly commanded them, as he has commanded all men to depart from all evil, and to live to pleaſe him, and love and do good to each other; but they would not do what God would have them, they would do what they expreſsly forbid; and God is here ſaid to look upon them, not with the paſſions of men, but conſidering how ſatan in all ages would go about to ſeek whom he might devour, by betraying into ſin and leading men captive at his will, to go on in rebellion againſt all God's calls to repentance, and againſt the ſtrongeſt and plaineſt proofs that ſo to do muſt end in their deſtruction; and to ſhew to all men their danger of taking a ſingle ſtep againſt the declarations of God's will, and a conſciouſneſs of what they ought to do, and to convince them of that enmity, unbelief, and hardneſs of heart, which there is in the very nature of men, God is now about to record an example of his juſtice, that men may fear to do wickedly, and be led to ſee the neceſſity of crying unto God for his grace, to prevent the former proofs they have had of his pleaſure, leaving them hardened in ſin. But before the Lord finally deſtroyed the king and people of Egypt, thus purſuing their deſigns in oppoſition to God, he troubled them with terrible winds and rains, and lightnings, and claps and bolts of thunder, as may be gathered from Exod. xv. 10. Pſal. lxxvii. 18, 19, that in the eleventh hour, as expiring upon the croſs in the laſt moments of their lives, they might ſee how dreadful a thing it muſt be to depart this life in the very ſpirit of rebellion againſt the God of glory, and the miſery and horror which they muſt remain under, who end their life of trial, reſolved to obey the wicked influence of the prince of the power of the air, and ſeeing their danger, may at laſt look unto him whom their ſins have pierced, and mourn; and though with diſtraction and fear, yet with penitence of mind, each cry out—God be merciful to me a ſinner againſt thee, juſtly doomed to thy wrath for ever, for my obſtinate continuance in ſin againſt all the admonitions of thy grace upon my conſcience, all the directions of thy word, and all I have ſeen of the acts of thy power, to puniſh the wicked beyond all human power or wiſdom to prevent.

V. 25. And took off their chariot-wheels—Either burning them with lightening, or tearing them in pieces with thunder bolts, or looſening them and making them to fall off. They drave heavily—Hardly and ſlowly. The Egyptians ſaid, Let us flee, for the Lord fighteth for them; and does he, at any time, leſs regard his feeble followers; did not the ſame LORD ſay, many ages after this, to one who had raged againſt his Iſrael, under the name of the firſt Chriſtians—Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou ME, who take to myſelf all that is done to them that are following me! But who could have believed that the people of Egypt would have been ſo long, after all they had known, in being convinced that the LORD was on the ſide of the children of Iſrael.

V. 27. The Egyptians fled—With fear: Thus does ſatan abandon men to all their fears, when their lives are to be taken for their impiety, who before were inſpired with all the confidence of pride, encouraging themſelves and one another in ſhewing their contempt of the power of God to puniſh them for their avowed diſregard to his ſacred will, which they at once knew and deſpiſed: But now they are to die, the deceiver of their ſouls becomes their accuſer, and glories in their ruin; and deſiring now to make them deſpair of all mercy from God, the terrors of death, and of the wrath to come, are left to their full force on the guilty conſcience, the powers of darkneſs are only intent on preventing every ſoul from attending to the final offers of redeeming love: And thus between the contending powers of heaven and hell, was Pharaoh and all his followers driven together, by the gradual approaching ſea that ſurrounded them. But why thus ſlowly does infinite juſtice proceed in the execution of its righteous decrees, when, in the ſight of men and angels, that juſtice would be vindicated in pouring down inſtant deſtruction upon thoſe, who have offended againſt ſuch clear knowledge of what the Almighty required of them? Is it not to ſhew with what reluctance the Creator and Redeemer of ſinful men, gives up a ſingle ſoul to that miſery, which every one by his ſins has choſen: Great God! thy judgments are full of equity: Thou always takeſt pleaſure in being propitious to us, and thy moſt glorious mind feels ſacred joy at our ſalvation, and the Angels of thy preſence, with renewed delight, ſing aloud Thy praiſe, when thy grace gets itſelf the victory where ſatan reigned; but ſuch have been my offences againſt thy purity, and thy truth, that thy mercy can never pardon without obſtructing thy neceſſary juſtice, by which alone the world is kept in order, and the wicked prevented from giving looſe to all

the

Before Christ 1491.

28 And [s] the waters returned and covered the chariots, and the horſemen, and all the hoſt of Pharaoh that came into the ſea after them: there remained not ſo much as [t] one of them.

29 But [u] the children of Iſrael walked upon dry land in the midſt of the ſea: and the waters were a wall unto them on their right hand, and on their left.

30 Thus the Lord ſaved Iſrael that day out of the hand of the Egyptians: and Iſrael ſaw the Egyptians dead upon the ſea-ſhore.

† Heb. hand.

31 And Iſrael ſaw that great † work which the Lord did upon the Egyptians: and the people feared the Lord, and [x] believed the Lord, and his ſervant Moſes.

s Heb. 3.8.13.
t Pſa. 106 11.
u Pſa. 77. 20. x Pſa. 106.12.

CHAP. XV.

THEN ſang Moſes and the children of Iſrael this ſong unto the Lord, and ſpake, ſaying, I will ſing unto the Lord, for he hath triumphed glorioufly; the horſe and his rider hath he thrown into the ſea.

Before Christ 1491.

2 The Lord is my ſtrength and [b] ſong, and he is become my ſalvation: he is my God, and I will prepare him an habitation; my father's God, and I will exalt him.

b Deut. 10 21. Pſa. 18. 2. & 22. 3. & 100. 1. and 118.14. Iſa. 12. 2.

3 The Lord is a man of war: the Lord is his name.

4 Pharaoh's chariots and his hoſt hath he caſt into the ſea: his choſen captains alſo are drowned in the Red ſea.

5 The depths have covered them: [c] they ſank into the bottom as a ſtone.

c Neh. 9. 11.

6 [d] Thy right hand, O Lord, is become glorious in power: thy right hand, O Lord, hath daſhed in pieces the enemy.

d Pſa. 118.15, 16.

7 And in the greatneſs of thine excellency thou haſt overthrown them that roſe up againſt the evil of their nature, and deſtroying the meek and quiet among men. Yes, my God, the greatneſs of my impiety leaves nothing to thee but the choice of my puniſhment; and as my hard heart and rebellious will have oppoſed thy nature and thy laws, gracious as thou art, thou muſt oppoſe thyſelf to all my intereſts, and to my happineſs; and thy mercy muſt leave me to periſh and be driven from thy preſence for ever. And this I owe to myſelf and not to any want of goodneſs in thee; for my own remembrance bears witneſs, that times above all my power to number, thy grace has called me to repent and live: It is for the glory of thy juſtice that I periſh under all the fury of thy wrath, which my pride and luſts have ſo highly and daringly provoked; be thou offended with the tears that run from my eyes: Thunder ſtrike, come ye ſurrounding waves, with all the rage of that black ſtorm which is now poured down from heaven upon me, it is time to render me war for war; and in periſhing, let me adore the juſtice with which ye fall on my polluted ſoul. But where, upon what place on earth, or in the ſea, ſhall the ſtorms of thy indignation break, or thy thunder fall, that is not covered over with the blood of JESUS, thy beloved Son.

V. 28. The waters returned, and covered all the hoſt of Pharaoh, there remained not ſo much as one of them—O God! who ſhall not fear thee!

V. 29. The children of Iſrael walked upon dry land in the midſt of the ſea; the waters were a wall unto them—None periſhed, none were loſt. They had the God of all power for their preſerver, and, in obedience to his command, they went, believing in him.

V. 30. Iſrael ſaw the Egyptians dead upon the ſea-ſhore—The natural power of the ſea caſt up their dead bodies. God cauſed the Iſraelites to abide near the ſea, that they might ſee this. That part of the ſea is ſaid to be about eight or nine miles over.

V. 31. Iſrael ſaw that great work; and the people feared the Lord, and believed the Lord, and his ſervant Moſes—All the thouſands of Iſrael, men, women, and children were witneſſes of God's great power to ſave and to deſtroy; and this was the effect which, by his grace, it had upon them,—they feared to offend againſt ſo mighty a power, and they believed that God was full of mercy and grace to ſave and ſupport all them that put their truſt in him, and that Moſes ſpake nothing to them of God, which God himſelf had not authoriſed him to declare to them. And, to produce the fear of God and faith in him, in the minds of all mankind, is the merciful end, for which God cauſed theſe acts of his mighty power to be commemorated and recorded in the Scriptures; and we do not ourſelves juſtice, to read God's account of his conduct to mankind as we would any other writings: If we do not find an increaſe of fear of his mighty power, and of confidence in his willingneſs and ability to ſave, by reading his word; then we have reaſon to fear we are becoming leſs and leſs ſenſible, both of his greatneſs and of his goodneſs, and, of courſe, of the neceſſity of keeping at the greateſt diſtance from all appearance of evil, and of a conſtant zeal to quit ourſelves, as becomes thoſe that would not only thank him with their lips, but with their lives, by giving up themſelves to his ſervice.

CHAP. XV.

V. 1. Then ſang Moſes and the children of Iſrael—Moſes compoſed the ſong, and he, together with the Iſraelites, ſung it. This ſong unto the Lord—Unto the honour and praiſe of God.

V. 2. The Lord is my ſtrength and ſong—The ſubject of the preſent ſong of praiſe. He is become my ſalvation—Not unto any power, or might, or wiſdom of our own; but unto thy name be the praiſe. He is my God, and I will prepare him an habitation—A place for his ſervice and worſhip, where he will dwell by his ſpecial preſence. And this is the language of the ſoul whoſe ſins are forgiven. (Rom. iv. 7.) It ſays, The Lord is my God; he hath ſaved me, and it is the ſupreme deſire of my ſoul to prepare, by keeping my mind ſtayed upon him, my heart to be the place of his conſtant preſence. Who can be ſaved by the Lord, without loving the Lord? And who can love him who ſo loveth us, without joining with Iſrael in bleſſing and praiſing his ſacred name? Does my heart praiſe the Lord? Are grateful ſongs of praiſe heard within my habitation?

V. 3. The Lord is a man of war—An eminent warrior. The Lord is his name—He is God alone.

V. 4. Pharaoh's chariots and his hoſt hath he caſt into the ſea—With great force, like an arrow out of a bow, as the word ſignifies.

V. 7. Thou haſt overthrown them that roſe up againſt thee—They oppoſed themſelves to thee; and only wanted to overcome us, to ſhew they did not fear thee, nor ſubmit to ſerve the God of thy deſpiſed people. Thou conſumed them as ſtubble—By thy great and glorious power, as eaſily, and as ſpeedily, and as irrecoverably.

V. 8. The depths were congealed—i. e. Hardened; ſtood ſtill as if they had been frozen; and ſo they were a wall on both hands.

V. 9. My

Before Christ 1491.

gainſt thee: thou ſenteſt forth thy wrath, which conſumed them [c] as ſtubble.

c Heb. 5. 24. and 47. 14. Ifai. 14. 21. Joel 2. 5. Nah. 1. 10. Mal. 4. 1.

8 And [f] with the blaſt of thy noſtrils the waters were gathered together: [g] the floods ſtood upright as an heap, and the depths were congealed in the heart of the ſea.

f Pſal. 78. 13. g Pſal. 33. 7.

9 [h] The enemy ſaid, I will purſue, I will overtake, I will divide the ſpoil: my luſt ſhall be ſatisfied upon them, I will draw my ſword, my hand ſhall * deſtroy them.

h Jud. 5. 30.

* Or, repoſſeſs.

10 Thou didſt blow with thy wind, the ſea covered them: [i] they ſank as lead in the mighty waters.

i Verſe 5.

11 [k] Who is like unto thee, O Lord, amongſt the † gods? who is like thee, glorious in holineſs, fearful in praiſes, doing wonders?

k 2 Sam. 7. 22. 1 Kings 8. 23. Pſal. 86. 8. and 89. 6. Jer. 10. 6. and 49. 19.

† Or, mighty ones.

12 Thou ſtretcheſt out thy right hand, the earth ſwallowed them.

13 Thou in thy mercy haſt led forth the people which thou haſt redeemed: thou haſt guided them in thy ſtrength unto thy holy habitation.

14 [l] The people ſhall hear, and be afraid: ſorrow ſhall take hold on the inhabitants of Paleſtina.

l Num. 14. 14. Deut. 2. 25. Joſh. 2. 9.

15 [m] Then [n] the dukes of Edom ſhall be amazed, [o] the mighty men of Moab trembling ſhall take hold upon them, [p] all the inhabitants of Canaan ſhall melt away, m Gen. 36. 40. n Deut. 2. 4. o Num. 23. 3. Heb 3. 6. p Joſh. 5. 1.

16 [q] Fear and dread ſhall fall upon them, by the greatneſs of thine arm they ſhall be as ſtill as a ſtone: till thy people paſs over, O Lord, till the people paſs over, [r] which thou haſt purchaſed.

q Deut. 2. 25. and 11. 25. Joſh. 2. 9. r Chap. 19. 5. Deut. 32. 9. 2 Sam. 7. 23. Tit. 2. 14. 1 Pet. 2. 9.

17 Thou ſhalt bring them in, and [s] plant them in the mountain of thine inheritance, in the place, O Lord, which thou haſt made for thee to dwell in: in the ſanctuary, O Lord, which thy hands have eſtabliſhed.

Before Christ 1491.

s Pſal. 44. 2. and 80. 8.

18 [t] The Lord ſhall reign for ever and ever.

t Pſal. 146. 10. Iſa. 57. 15.

19 For the horſe of Pharaoh went in with his chariots, and with his horſemen into the ſea, and the Lord brought again the waters of the ſea upon them: but the children of Iſrael went on dry land in the mids of the ſea.

20 ¶ And Miriam [u] the propheteſs, the ſiſter of Aaron, [x] took a timbrel in her hand; and all the women went out after her, [y] with timbrels, and with dances.

u 1 Sam. 10. 5. x 1 Sam. 18. 6. y Jud. 11. 34. and 21. 21. 2 Sam. 6. 16. Pſa. 68. 11. 25.

21 And Miriam anſwered them, Sing ye to the Lord, for he hath triumphed gloriouſly; the horſe and his rider hath he thrown into the ſea.

22 So Moſes brought Iſrael from the Red ſea, and the went out into the wilderneſs of [z] Shur; and they went three days in the wilderneſs, and found no water.

z Gen. 16. 7. and 25. 18.

23 ¶ And when they came to [a] Marah, they could not drink of the waters of Marah, for they were bitter: therefore the name of it was called † Marah.

a Num. 33. 8.

† That is, bitterneſs.

24 And the people murmured againſt Moſes, ſaying, What ſhall we drink?

25 And he cried unto the Lord, and the Lord ſhewed him a tree, [c] which when he had caſt into the waters, the waters were made ſweet: there he [d] made for them a ſtatute c See 2 Kings 4. 41.

d See Joſh. 24. 25.

V. 9. My luſt—The luſt of covetouſneſs and revenge. Mine hand ſhall deſtroy them—Take poſſeſſion of them and theirs. With what caution men ſhould ſay, I will do this or that!

V. 10. In the mighty waters—Magnificent; made ſo by being the inſtrument of thy glorious work.

V. 11. O Lord, glorious in holineſs—Thy power is great and glorious, but thou doſt not abuſe it to unrighteous and unworthy purpoſes, but to holy and honourable deſigns, to the puniſhment of wickedneſs, and to the vindication of thine oppreſſed people. Fearful in praiſes—In praiſe-worthy actions thou art to be loved and feared.

V. 12. The earth ſwallowed them—The earth is here put for the ſea, the other part of the ſame globe, as the ſoul is put for the body, the other part of the man.

V. 13. Thou haſt guided them unto thy holy habitation—The place where they ſhall dwell, and thou in and with them.

V. 16. They ſhall be ſtill—They ſhall be ſo ſtruck with amazement, that they ſhall be impotent, both for ſpeech and motion.

V. 17. Thou ſhalt bring them in, and plant them in the place which thy hands have eſtabliſhed—Will certainly build and eſtabliſh. And thus do the ſouls, that have been delivered from the diſtreſs of ſin, encourage themſelves in the hopes of future goodneſs from God, by what they have ſo aſſuredly known of it for the time paſt; and, in this confidence, enjoy preſent peace.

V. 18. To be reconciled to God—to know him to be our friend for our Mediator's ſake, and to know that he reigns for ever, that the angels ſerve him, and that there is no wiſdom nor power can hurt or deſtroy them that put their truſt in him, is a ground of conſolation, to which the friendſhip of the whole world is little to be compared.

V. 20. Miriam the propheteſs—So called, either in a general ſenſe, becauſe ſhe was an inſtructor of other women in the praiſe and ſervice of God; or, in a more ſpecial ſenſe, becauſe ſhe had the ſpirit of prophecy. Numb. xii. 2. and Mich. vi. 4.

V. 21. All Iſrael joined in the praiſes of God; none were ſilent, becauſe the ſame obligation laid upon them all, thus gratefully to praiſe their gracious deliverer.

V. 25. He cried unto the Lord—Forgive the forgetfulneſs of thy people, and their murmurs under their preſent difficulty; and again ſhew them thy power and thy goodneſs. The waters were made ſweet—Not ſo much by any virtue in that tree, as by the power of God who uſed this rather as a ſign to the Iſraelites, than as an inſtrument to himſelf in this work. There he made for them an ordinance—God, or Moſes in God's name; and, by his order, publiſhed to them a ſtatute. He proved them—God, having now eaſed them of the hard and iron yoke of the Egyptians, puts his ſweet and eaſy yoke upon them; and, having undertaken to be their King and Protector, he claims their ſubjection to himſelf and to his laws; he tried their faith by the difficulty now mentioned, viz.

Before Christ 1491.

tute and an ordinance, and there [e] he proved them,

e Chap. 16. 4.

26 And said, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the Lord thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes; [f] I will put none of these diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians: for I am the Lord [g] that healeth thee.

f Deut. 7. 15.

g Chap. 23. 25. Psa. 103. 3. and 147. 3.

27 ¶ [h] And they came to Elim, where were twelve wells of water, and threescore and ten palm-trees: and they encamped there by the waters.

h Num. 33. 9.

CHAP. XVI.

AND they took their journey from Elim, and all the congregation of the children of Israel came unto [a] the wilderness of Sin, which is between Elim and Sinai, on the fifteenth day of the second month, after their departing out of the land of Egypt.

a Num. 33. 11.

2 And the whole congregation of the children of Israel murmured against Moses and Aaron in the wilderness.

3 And the children of Israel said unto them, Would to God we had died by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt, [c] when we sat by the flesh-pots, and when we did eat bread to the full: for ye have brought us forth into this wilderness, to kill this whole assembly with hunger.

c Num 11. 4, 5. Psa. 78. 24, 25. & 105. 40. John 6. 31, 32. 1 Cor. 10. 3.

4 ¶ Then said the Lord unto Moses, Behold, I will rain [c] bread from heaven for you; and the people shall go out and gather * a certain rate every day, that I may [d] prove them, whether they will walk in my law, or no.

* Heb. the portion of a day in his day.

Prov. 30. 8. Matt. 6. 11.

d Chap. 15. 25. Deut. 8. 2, 16.

5 And it shall come to pass, that on the sixth day, they shall prepare that which they bring in; and [e] it shall be twice as much as they gather daily.

Before Christ 1491.

e See Lev. 25. 21.

6 And Moses and Aaron said unto all the children of Israel, [f] At even then ye shall know that the Lord hath brought you out from the land of Egypt.

f See Ver. 13.

7 And in the morning, then ye shall see [g] the glory of the Lord; for that he heareth your murmurings against the Lord: And what are we, that ye murmur against us?

g See Ver. 10.

8 And Moses said, This shall be when the Lord shall give you in the evening flesh to eat, and in the morning bread to the full; for that the Lord heareth your murmurings which ye murmur against him: And what are we? your murmurings are not against us, but [h] against the Lord.

h See 1 Sam. 8. 7. Luke 10. 16. Rom. 13. 2.

9 ¶ And Moses spake unto Aaron, Say unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, Come near before the Lord: for he hath heard your murmurings.

10 And it came to pass, as Aaron spake unto the whole congregation of the children of Israel, that they looked toward the wilderness, and behold, the glory of the Lord [i] appeared in the cloud.

i Chap. 16. 7.

11 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

12 I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel: speak unto them, saying, At even ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be filled with bread: and ye shall know that I am the Lord your God.

13 And it came to pass, that at even [k] the quails k Num 11. 31. Psa. 105. 40.

viz. their want of water, and their future obedience by this general command, which he is about to branch forth into divers particulars.

V. 26. I will put none of these diseases upon thee—Nor other evils or plagues; but, on the contrary, I will bless thee with all manner of blessings. I am the Lord that healeth thee—Thy physician for all thy maladies, both of soul and body.

V. 27. Palm-trees—Pleasant for their shade. Thus the Israelites are obliged and encouraged to obedience.

CHAP. XVI.

V. 1. The wilderness of Sin—A great wilderness between the Red sea and Mount Sinai.

V. 2. The whole congregation of the children of Israel murmured—For want of meat.

V. 3. Would to God we had died in Egypt—By any of those plagues wherewith God destroyed the Egyptians. We did eat bread to the full—Which is not probable; but they magnify their former mercies, that they might aggravate their present calamity, as the manner of impatient men is.

V. 4. Then said the Lord, I will rain bread—Manna, which shall serve them instead of bread. Every day—As much as was sufficient for a man's sustenance that day. That I may prove them—By my giving them such miraculous and excellent provision, if they will be won to love and obey me, and learn to trust me.

V. 5. On the sixth day they shall prepare—Lay up.

V. 6. The Lord brought you out of Egypt—And not we by our own authority or counsel, as you suggest.

V. 7. In the morning, then ye shall see the glory of the Lord—His glorious work in giving manna, and the glorious appearance of God in the cloud, ver. 10.

V. 8. The Lord heareth your murmurings—Yes, and those of all mankind—servants, children, subjects, and all who forget, that instead of their mercies being less than they deserve, they might justly be exchanged for miseries; and that the holiest and most afflicted man on earth has constant cause to say, Blessed be the name of the Lord.

V. 9. Come near before the Lord—Before the cloudy pillar, where God was especially present.

V. 10. The glory of the Lord appeared—An extraordinary brightness suddenly appearing in the pillar of the cloud.

V. 11. The Lord spake—Had spoken before, ver. 7.

V. 12. At even ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be filled with bread—God chooseth the proper time for each kind of provision; the evening for the quails, which being brought from remote

Before Christ 1491. quails came up, and covered the camp: and in the morning the dew lay round about the hoſt.

14 And when [l] the dew that lay was gone up, behold, upon the face of the wilderneſs there lay a ſmall round thing, as ſmall as the hoar froſt on the ground.

15 And when the children of Iſrael ſaw it, they ſaid one to another, † It is manna: for they wiſt not what it was. And Moſes ſaid unto them, [m] This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat.

16 ¶ This is the thing which the Lord hath commanded, Gather of it every man according to his eating: an omer ‡ for every man, according to the number of your § perſons, take ye every man for them which are in his tents.

17 And the children of Iſrael did ſo, and gathered, ſome more, ſome leſs.

18 And when they did mete it with an omer, [n] he that gathered much, had nothing over, and he that gathered little, had no lack: they gathered every man according to his eating.

19 And Moſes ſaid, Let no man leave of it till the morning. Before Christ 1491.

20 Notwithſtanding they hearkened not unto Moſes, but ſome of them left of it until the morning, and it bred worms and ſtank: and Moſes was wroth with them.

21 And they gathered it every morning, every man according to his eating: and when the ſun waxed hot, it melted.

22 ¶ And it came to paſs that on the ſixth day they gathered twice as much bread, two omers for one man: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moſes.

23 And he ſaid unto them, This is that which the Lord hath ſaid, To morrow is [o] the reſt of the holy ſabbath unto the Lord: bake that which ye will bake, to day, and ſeethe that ye will ſeethe; and that which remaineth over, lay up for you to be kept until the morning.

24 And they laid it up till the morning, as Moſes bade: and it did not ſtink, neither was there any worm therein.

25 And

[l] Num. 11. 7. Neh. 9. 15. Pſa. 78. 24. and 105. 40.

† Or, What is this. Or, It is a portion.

[m] John 6. 31. 1 Cor. 10. 3.

‡ Heb. by the poll, or, head.

§ Heb. ſouls.

[n] 2 Cor. 8. 15.

[o] Gen. 2. 3.

remote parts by their day's flight, about evening came thither; and the morning for manna.

V. 13. In the morning the dew lay—There was a bed of dew, wherewith the manna was covered; to this the hidden manna (Revel. ii. 17.) alludes.

V. 14. When the dew was gone up—Into the air.

V. 15. It is manna—This manna was food and nouriſhing, being prepared by the great God for this uſe.

V. 16. Gather of it every man according to his eating—As much as is ſufficient. And thus is the bread of everlaſting life given to every ſoul of man—Love, and joy, and peace, according to the ſoul's deſires from God's holy Spirit.

V. 17. Some more, ſome leſs—As the gatherers were more or leſs ſtrong and active in gathering it. Faith is the ſoul's ſtrength, and as it is exerciſed, ſo does the ſoul increaſe in the poſſeſſion of the heavenly manna.

V. 18. He that gathered little, had no lack—I ſuſtained them; and thus are they comforted who have the bread of life, though they have not the deep humility, and of conſequence not ſo much grace as others.

V. 19. Let no man leave of it till the morning—For the proviſion of the next day, as diſtruſting God's care and goodneſs in giving them more. He that gave grace to go through the difficulties and duties of this day, is the ſame for ever; and nothing is to be done by any that profeſs to be of his church, and to belong to his people, to imply diſtruſt in his faithfulneſs.

V. 20. Some of them left of it—Either diſtruſting God's providence for their future proviſions; or, out of curioſity to learn the nature of this manna, and what they might do when occaſion required. It bred worms and ſtank—Not ſo much from its own nature, which was pure and durable, as from God's judgment. And whoever gives a place in their minds to doubts and diſtruſt of what God has ſaid, ſo will the gold become droſs; heavenly wiſdom will ſoon be exchanged for worldly wiſdom; the courage of the righteous ſink into ſelf-confidence; and heavenly charity which dwelt with faith, when doubts of the certainty of God's love are allowed, will ſoon leave us poſſeſſed of no more of the one thing needful, than form or a fair outſide.

V. 21. It melted—As much of it as was left upon the ground. This was not from its own nature, which was ſo ſolid that it could indure the fire, but that it might not be corrupted or trodden under foot, or deſpiſed; and that they might be obliged to the more entire dependance upon God.

V. 22. On the ſixth day they gathered twice as much bread—Conſidering that the next day was the Sabbath day, which God had bleſſed and ſanctified to his own immediate ſervice, as a day of reſt from all labour, for the ſupply of natural wants: This was to be done the day before.

V. 23. To morrow is the reſt of the holy Sabbath—And no part of that day is to be made uſe of in labouring for the bread of this life, therefore the Lord will not ſend manna for you to gather to morrow; but to day he will ſend you a double ſupply, as much as will ſerve you to day and to morrow; dreſs it as you will, and what is not uſed, lay up for the Sabbath; it being God's will that you ſhould not allow any common care to break in upon that day, in which God himſelf ceaſed from creating the world and all things in it, and ſet it a-part as a day to be ſpent, not in providing for the ſupply of your natural wants, but entirely given up to exerciſes of devotion and praiſe to him, and in acts of heavenly charity and kindneſs to your fellow creatures, to whom you may this day afford your friendly aid without neglecting any of the ordinary duties of your ſtation, for which your Creator has allowed you ſix days, and in which you are alſo to have regard to God's gracious deſign, in preparing you by his Spirit to ſpend an eternal Sabbath in his preſence, of which the ſeventh day is a token, and an earneſt of thoſe holy and happy employments which the redeemed of the Lord will have with him for ever.

V. 24. Neither was there any worm therein—As there was before. (ver. 20.) So great a difference there is between the doing of a thing upon God's command, and with his bleſſing, and the doing of the ſame thing againſt his will, and with his curſe.

V. 25. Moſes

Before Christ 1491.

25 And Moſes ſaid, Eat that to day; for to day is a ſabbath unto the Lord: to day ye ſhall not find it in the field.

26 Six days ye ſhall gather it; but on the ſeventh day which is the ſabbath, in it there ſhall be none.

27 ¶ And it came to paſs that there went out ſome of the people on the ſeventh day for to gather, and they found none.

28 And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, How long refuſe ye to keep my commandments and my laws?

29 See, for that the Lord hath given you the ſabbath, therefore he giveth you on the ſixth day the bread of two days: abide ye every man in his place, let no man go out of his place on the ſeventh day.

30 So the people reſted on the ſeventh day.

31 And the houſe of Iſrael called the name
p Num. 11. 7. thereof Manna: and [p] it was like coriander-ſeed, white; and the taſte of it was like wafers made with honey.

32 ¶ And Moſes ſaid, This is the thing which the Lord commandeth, Fill an omer of it to be kept for your generations; that they may ſee the bread wherewith I have fed you in the wilderneſs, when I brought you forth from the land of Egypt.

33 And Moſes ſaid unto Aaron, [o] Take a pot, and put an omer full of manna therein, and lay it up before the Lord, to be kept for your generations.

Before Christ 1491.

o 1 Kings 8. 9. Heb. 9. 4.

34 As the Lord commanded Moſes, ſo Aaron laid it up before the Teſtimony, to be kept.

35 And the children of Iſrael did eat manna [r] forty years, [s] until they came to a land inhabited: they did eat manna, until they came unto the borders of the land of Canaan.

r Num. 33. 38. Deut. 8. 2, 3.
s Joſh. 5. 12. Neh. 9. 15.

36 Now an omer is the tenth part of an ephah.

CHAP. XVII.

AND [a] all the congregation of the children of Iſrael journeyed from the wilderneſs of Sin, after their journeys, according to the commandment of the Lord, and pitched in Rephidim: and there was no water for the people to drink.

a Chap. 16. 1. Num. 33. 12, 13.

2 [o] Wherefore the people did chide with Moſes, and ſaid, Give us water that we may drink. And Moſes ſaid unto them, Why chide you with me; wherefore do ye [c] tempt the Lord?

o Num. 20. 3, 4.
c Pſa. 78. 41. 1 Cor. 10. 9.

3 And the people thirſted there for water; and the people murmured againſt Moſes, and ſaid,

V. 25. Moſes ſaid, Eat that to day—Theſe words were ſpoken upon the morning of the Sabbath day, as appears from the foregoing verſe. To day is a Sabbath unto the Lord—Wholly conſecrated to his ſervice, and therefore not to be employed in ſervile works.

V. 28. How long refuſe ye to keep my commandments, and my laws—To diſobey God's precepts, and to polute his Sabbaths. By this it appears how diſpleaſing it was to God, ſo much as to look or go about to provide food on this day.

V. 29. The Lord hath given you the Sabbath—Hath given to you and to your fathers, that great command and privilege of the Sabbath. Let no man go out of his place—Out of his houſe or tent into the field to gather Manna.

V. 30. So the people reſted—Ceaſed from gathering Manna.

V. 31. It was like coriander-ſeed—In ſhape and figure, but white coloured.

V. 32. See the bread wherewith I have fed you in the wilderneſs—And under circumſtances of the greateſt difficulty; ſuch is the Divine faithfulneſs, that all that believe in him may call to mind, how graciouſly he gave them the ſupplies of his holy Spirit, that living bread, which every difficulty is only to remind men, that they ſtand in need of it, and to look to God for it.

V. 33. Lay it up before the Lord—In the tabernacle, and by the ark, when they ſhall be built; and at preſent in the place where you meet for the ſolemn worſhip of God.

V. 34. Before the ark, which is called, the ark of the teſtimony.

V. 35. The children of Iſrael did eat manna, until they came to the borders of Canaan—This Moſes might well write; though he did not ſee the ceſſation of the manna, yet he ſufficiently knew from God, that it would ceaſe upon their entrance into Canaan, but not before manna was given from their firſt finding a need of ſome ſuch ſupply, after their being ſaved from the power of Egypt, till they came to the promiſed inheritance; and thus, as ſoon as any ſoul of man is ſaved from the power of ſin, whatever God calls that ſoul to paſs through, the heavenly manna—the grace and Spirit of God will be as certainly, and as conſtantly given to the believing mind, till it is received into glory, as that Iſrael had the manna deſcended upon them during all their journey through the wilderneſs; and the faithfulneſs with which the Lord gave them this ſupply of their natural wants, is the diſcovery to us of that faithfulneſs, on which all that look unto him may depend for the ſupply of all the ſpiritual wants of the ſoul, to keep it in the fear and in the love of God and all mankind; and, whenever the ſudden afflictions or trials of this life come upon us, and the heart is ready to faint; then it is the will of God, that all, and every one of his people, ſhould call to mind, that all Iſrael, in their journey, had this ſurely given them as their conſtant wants required.

CHAP. XVII.

V. 1. The children of Iſrael journeyed, according to the commandment of the Lord—Expreſſed either by word, or by the motion or reſt of the cloudy pillar. And every journey, and every ſtep that is taken from the firſt moment that we begin to be conſcious that we are accountable to God, is ſafely taken, when we are able to ſay—This I do by the commandment of the Lord—I believe it is his will, and my duty, and, ſo far as my fellow creatures are concerned, I do it by the rule God has commanded—doing unto them as I would be done by.

V. 2. Wherefore do ye tempt the Lord—By diſtruſting God's power, faithfulneſs, and goodneſs, upon ſuch a ſmall occaſion; by refuſing to ſubmit to God's will, and to wait upon him by humble and fervent prayer for relief; and, inſtead thereof, quarrelling with me as if it was my fault, and murmuring againſt God under my name.

V. 3. The

Before Christ 1491. said, Wherefore is this that thou haſt brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children, and our cattle with thirſt?

4 And Moſes cried unto the Lord, ſaying, What ſhall I do unto this people? they be almoſt ready to ſtone me.

5 And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, Go on before the people, and take with thee of the elders of Iſrael: and thy rod wherewith [d] thou ſmoteſt the river, take in thine hand, and go.

[d] Chap. 7. 20.

6 [e] Behold, I will ſtand before thee there upon the rock in Horeb; and thou ſhalt ſmite the rock, and there ſhall come water out of it, that the people may drink. And Moſes did ſo in the ſight of the elders of Iſrael.

[e] Num. 20. 9. Pſa. 78. 15. and 105. 41. and 114. 8. 1 Cor. 10. 4.

7 And he called the name of the place [f] * Maſſah, and † Meribah, becauſe of the chiding of the children of Iſrael, and becauſe they tempted the Lord, ſaying, Is the Lord among us, or not?

[f] Num. 20. 13. Pſa. 81. 7. & 95. 8. Heb. 3. 8.

* That is, tentation.

† That is, chiding, or, ſtrife.

8 ¶ [g] Then came Amalek, and fought with Iſrael in Rephidim.

[g] Deut. 25. 17. 1 Sam. 15. 2.

9 And Moſes ſaid unto [h] Joſhua, Chooſe us out men, and go out, fight with Amalek: to morrow I will ſtand on the top of the hill, with [i] the rod of God in mine hand.

Before Chriſt 1491.

[h] Called, Jeſus, Acts 7. 45.

[i] Chap. 4. 20.

10 So Joſhua did as Moſes had ſaid to him, and fought with Amalek: and Moſes, Aaron, and Hur, went up to the top of the hill.

11 And it came to paſs when Moſes held up his hand, that Iſrael prevailed: and when he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed.

12 But Moſes' hands were heavy, and they took a ſtone and put it under him, and he ſat thereon: and Aaron and Hur ſtayed up his hands, the one on the one ſide, and the other on the other ſide; and his hands were ſteady until the going down of the ſun.

13 And Joſhua diſcomfited Amalek and his people with the edge of the ſword.

14 And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearſe it in the ears of Joſhua: for [k] I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven.

[k] Num. 24. 20. 1 Sam. 15. 3. 7. & 30. 1, 17. 2 Sam. 8. 12. Ezra 9. 14.

15 And

V. 3. The people murmured—Complaints are always more ready than prayer. Prayer is what God is always pleaſed with, and what he always requires us to make uſe of under all our neceſſities and difficulties; murmurs are nothing leſs than to blaſpheme againſt God, and in effect to ſay, he does not do ſo well to us as he ought, and we deſerve. Thou haſt brought us up out of Egypt, to kill us and our children—How groundleſs and unjuſt this charge; it might only be a few who made it; and thoſe not of the moſt meek and ſerious. Moſes anſwers their untrue and unkind accuſation, as all injuries are to be anſwered by every one who would follow God their Redeemer, with peace to themſelves and honour to God.

V. 4. Moſes turned and cried unto the Lord, his certain help and ſupport in every time of trouble.

V. 5. The Lord ſaid unto Moſes, take with thee of the elders of Iſrael—That they may be eye-witneſſes of this glorious work, and may report it to the people.

V. 6. Thou ſhalt ſmite the rock, and Moſes did ſo—Smote the rock, and the waters flowed out plentifully and continually, making a river, which God cauſed to follow them to their ſeveral ſtations. (1 Cor. x. 4.)

V. 7. Is the Lord amongſt us—To protect and provide for us according to his word. Will God be as good as his word, or will he not? for it is to us very doubtful. Againſt ſuch doubts there is always occaſion for conſtant care, and whatever may be ſuggeſted to our minds by the enemy of our peace, it is never to be doubted whether God is gracious or not, to all them that truly deſire to follow him in the ways of his holy will.

V. 8. Then—When they were upon their march from Rephidim to Horeb. Amalek fought with Iſrael—The proſecution of the old hatred of Eſau againſt Jacob, and the revenging of themſelves and their father upon the poſterity of Jacob.

V. 9. Moſes ſaid unto Joſhua, Chooſe men and go—Out of the camp, to meet the enemy. I will ſtand on the top of the hill—That I may in that retirement pour out my ſoul unto the Lord of hoſts, that he may give thee victory. With the rod of God—By which having done ſo great exploits formerly, doubt not of the ſame divine aſſiſtance to accompany it, and make thee victorious.

V. 10. Hur—A perſon of eminency both for wiſdom and experience, ſuppoſed to be the huſband of Miriam.

V. 11. When Moſes held up his hand, Iſrael prevailed—This geſture, though fervent prayer was doubtleſs joined with it, ſeems not to have been the geſture of one praying, which is the lifting up of both hands, but of an Enſign-bearer, or of one ready to ſmite his enemies; a ſign whereby Moſes ſtrengthened his faith, and ſhewed that he expected victory, not from the ſkill and proweſs of his army, but from the aſſiſtance of God. When he let down his hand, Amalek prevailed—God ſo diſpenſing his favour, that the honour of the victory might be wholly aſcribed to the power of God, not to Iſrael. Deliverance at the Red Sea was wrought by God; the manna was given daily by him; and now victory in battle was alſo given by him, and the lifting up of the hands, and the immediate ſucceſs which followed that expreſſion of faith in God, is to ſhew that God, the giver of all, gives an anſwer to faith, and as he is believed in for ſpiritual bleſſings, ſo does he grant them; and to be weak in faith, and to allow the hands to hang down, is to give place to him who is with all his might oppoſing himſelf to all, and every one of the Iſrael of God, throughout the world.

V. 12. Aaron and Hur ſtayed up his hands—Not that both hands were erected and joined together, which was not a fit poſture for one holding a rod in his hand, but that Moſes ſhifted the rod out of one hand into the other: Aaron and Hur each of them held up that hand which was next to them ſucceſſively, that they alſo might relieve one the other. Bleſſed employment to hold up their hands who are on the ſide of the Iſrael of God.

V. 13. Joſhua diſcomfited Amalek, and his people—The king of the Amalekites, and thoſe other people who were leagued with them.

V. 14. The Lord ſaid unto Moſes, Write this in a book—In this book, which Moſes was to write by God's inſpiration and appointment. And thus do we owe to God the gift of this ſacred hiſtory, and not to any human deſign; from God are the Scriptures to be received; and not to prefer the word of God to the ſociety of all mankind, were we obliged to make our choice, is enough to ſhew us, that we know not the greatneſs of the worth

of

Before Christ 1491.

15 And Moſes built an altar, and called the name of it ‡ JEHOVAH-niſſi.

‡ That is, The LORD my banner: See Judges 6. 24.

16 For he ſaid, § Becauſe ‖ the Lord hath ſworn that the Lord will have war with Amalek from generation to generation.

§ Or, becauſe the hand of Amalek is againſt the throne of the LORD, therefore, &c.

‖ Heb. the hand upon the throne of the LORD.

CHAP. XVIII.

WHEN [a] Jethro, the prieſt of Midian, Moſes' father in law, heard of all that God had done for Moſes, and for Iſrael his people, and that the Lord had brought Iſrael out of Egypt:

a Chap. 2. 16. and 3. 1.

2 Then Jethro, Moſes' father in law, [o] took Zipporah, Moſes' wife, after he had ſent her back,

o Chap. 4. 26. 27.

3 And her two ſons, of which the [e] name of the one was * Gerſhom (for he ſaid, I have been an alien in a ſtrange land)

e Chap. 2. 22.

* That is, a ſtranger there.

4 And the name of the other was † Eliezer (for the God of my father, ſaid he, was mine help, and delivered me from the ſword of Pharaoh)

† That is, my God is an help.

5 And Jethro, Moſes' father in law, came with his ſons and his wife unto Moſes into the wilderneſs, where he encamped at [d] the mount of God.

d Chap. 3. 1.

6 And he ſaid unto Moſes, I thy father in law Jethro am come unto thee, and thy wife, and her two ſons with her.

7 ¶ And Moſes went out to meet his father in law, and did obeiſance, and kiſſed him, and they aſked each other of their ‡ welfare: and they came into the tent. Before Chriſt 1491.

‡ Heb. peace.

8 And Moſes told his father in law all that the Lord had done unto Pharaoh, and to the Egyptians for Iſrael's ſake, and all the travel that had come upon them § by the way, and how the Lord delivered them.

§ Heb. found them.

9 And Jethro rejoiced for all the goodneſs which the Lord had done to Iſrael: whom he had delivered out of the hand of the Egyptians.

10 And Jethro ſaid, Bleſſed be the Lord, who hath delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of Pharaoh, who hath delivered the people from under the hand of the Egyptians.

11 Now I know that the Lord is greater than all gods: [e] for in the thing wherein they dealt proudly, he was above them.

e Chap. 1. 10. 16. 22. and 5. 7. and 14. 18.

12 And Jethro, Moſes' father in law, took a burnt-offering, and ſacrifices for God: and Aaron came, and all the elders of Iſrael, to eat bread with Moſes' father in law before God.

13 ¶ And it came to paſs on the morrow, that of this gift of God to men. Rehearſe it in the ears of Joſhua—Thy ſucceſſor and the captain of my people, that he and all ſucceeding governors may watch all occaſions to execute this command. I will utterly put out the remembrance of Amalek—I will utterly deſtroy them. From under heaven—From the face of the whole earth.

V. 15. Moſes built an altar—Both for the offering of ſacrifices of praiſe unto God, and to be a monument of this victory and of the author of it. The name of it—Of the altar Jehovah-niſſi. The inſcription engraven upon it, which was not the ſingle name of God, but an entire ſentence, the Lord is my banner. By which words he takes all the praiſe of the victory from the Iſraelites, and gives it to God.

V. 16. The Lord will have war with Amalek—Becauſe his hand was againſt the throne of the Lord; was ſtretched out againſt God himſelf; for ſo God eſteems it, becauſe it was done againſt that people among whom God had placed his throne or dwelling, according to his covenant made with them; which alſo was well known to the Amalekites, by the relation of their progenitors. And the Amalekites doubtleſs heard, as the other neighbours alſo did, in what a miraculous manner God had brought them out of Egypt, and over the Red Sea. And they knew better than others, by tradition from their parents, that God had promiſed Canaan to them, and now they ſaw that he was conducting them thither. And therefore to prevent this, they now commence a war againſt them and againſt God or his throne, whoſe preſence with and conduct over them was manifeſt: Which was a great aggravation of their ſin.

CHAP. XVIII.

V. 2. After he had ſent her back—From the way to Egypt, becauſe ſhe was likely to hinder him from the diſcharge of his great and dangerous office, and to give an ill example to the Iſraelites.

V. 5. Jethro, Moſes father in law came—After the delivery of the law at mount Sinai.

V. 7. They aſked each other of their welfare—Of their peace, proſperity, and all happineſs, which alſo they wiſhed one to the other, as this phraſe implies.

V. 8. Moſes told his father, how the Lord delivered them—What is there that men can relate to men, which for greatneſs and delight is to be compared with telling of the goodneſs of God, whoſe providence is governing all things, whoſe grace is renewing and bleſſing the minds of men at this day, as it ever has been in all ages: Little and contracted are the deſigns and actions of men; but the ways of providence and the works of God, which begin among men on earth, run up to heaven and into eternity, and will never have an end. To employ ourſelves in ſpeaking of the conduct of men compared with the works of God, is infinitely worſe than leaving the ſociety of ſerious, pious, and improved minds, to talk the time away with ſuch as we have often heard ſpeak much on that, which neither did, or tended to hinder any man's miſery, or to promote any man's peace.

V. 9. Jethro rejoiced for all the goodneſs which the Lord had done to Iſrael—And ſo muſt all who love God, and wiſh well to the happineſs of men. Reader, do you rejoice at the goodneſs of God to men? If you love them, you muſt; and if you do not love men whom you have ſeen, you do not love God whom you have not ſeen; and all will one day fail us, but the love of God ſhed abroad in our hearts. (1 Cor. xiii.)

V. 11. Now I know that the Lord is greater than all Gods—More clearly and by certain experience. Wherein they dealt proudly, he was above them—God ſhewed himſelf to be above them, and above their king, though Pharaoh would not own him for his ſuperior.

V. 12. Jethro took a burnt-offering, and ſacrifices for God—Which he did that he might publicly teſtify his embracing of the true religion, and his thankfulneſs to God for the great deliverance given to his people. The elders of Iſrael eat bread with that Moſes ſat to judge the people: and the people ſtood by Moſes, from the morning unto the evening.

Before Christ 1491.

14 And when Moſes' father in law ſaw all that he did to the people, he ſaid, What is this thing that thou doeſt to the people? Why ſitteſt thou thyſelf alone, and all the people ſtand by thee from morning unto even?

15 And Moſes ſaid unto his father in law, Becauſe [f] the people come unto me to inquire of God.

[f] Lev. 24. 12. Num. 15. 34.

16 When they have a matter, they come unto me, and I judge between [‖] one and another, and I do make them know the ſtatutes of God and his laws.

[‖] Heb. a man and his fellow.

17 And Moſes' father in law ſaid unto him, The thing that thou doeſt is not good.

18 [*] Thou wilt ſurely wear away, both thou, and this people that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee; [g] thou art not able to perform it thyſelf alone.

[*] Heb. Fading thou wilt fade.

[g] Num. 11. 14. Deut. 1. 9.

19 Hearken now unto my voice, I will give thee counſel, and God ſhall be with thee: Be thou for the people to God-ward, that thou mayeſt bring the cauſes unto God:

20 And thou ſhalt teach them ordinances and laws, and ſhalt ſhew them the way wherein they muſt walk, and the work that they muſt do.

21 Moreover, thou ſhalt provide out of all the people, [h] able men, ſuch as fear God, men of truth, hating covetouſneſs; and place ſuch over them, to be rulers of thouſands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

Before Christ 1491.

[h] Deut. 1. 16. and 16. 18. 2 Chron. 19. 7, 9.

22 And let them judge the people at all ſeaſons: [i] and it ſhall be, that every great matter they ſhall bring unto thee, but every ſmall matter they ſhall judge: So ſhall it be eaſier for thyſelf, and they ſhall bear the burden with thee.

[i] Deut. 1. 17. and 17. 8.

23 If thou ſhalt do this thing, and God command thee ſo, then thou ſhalt be able to endure, and all this people ſhall alſo go to their place in peace.

24 So Moſes hearkened to the voice of his father in law, and did all that he had ſaid.

25 And [k] Moſes choſe able men out of all Iſrael, and made them heads over the people, rulers of thouſands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens.

[k] Deut. 1. 15.

26 And they judged the people at all ſeaſons: the hard cauſes they brought unto Moſes, but every ſmall matter they judged themſelves.

27 ¶ And Moſes let his father in law depart;

Moſes' father in law before God—Before the altar, and in the place of public worſhip.

V. 13. Moſes ſat to judge the people—As a civil magiſtrate, by hearing and determining cauſes among the people.

V. 15. Moſes ſaid, the people come unto me to inquire of God—Of the mind and will of God, both as to his worſhip and ſervice, and as to their mutual duties to one another.

V. 16. I do make them know the ſtatutes of God—Do interpret and apply them to their ſeveral caſes and circumſtances.

V. 17. The thing that thou doeſt is not good—Not convenient either for thyſelf, or for the people; it was not the work, but the manner in which Moſes diſcharged it, which Jethro did not approve of.

V. 18. Thou wilt ſurely wear away—Waſte and deſtroy thy health and ſtrength by exceſſive labour of mind and body. And this people—By tedious attendance for the deciſion of their affairs.

V. 19. God ſhall be with thee—I doubt not, God will aſſiſt and bleſs thee as well in the courſe which I propoſe to thee, as in that which thou now doſt uſe, becauſe God is a God of order and loves order, and he is a God of mercy, and would not have thee deſtroy thyſelf in his work. Or it may be taken for a prayer, and God be with thee, bleſs and aſſiſt thee therein. Be thou for the people to God-ward—Before God, in hard and weighty cauſes which the inferior judges cannot determine, where they need and ſeek direction from God, there thou ſhalt be as a mediator between God and them, to bring their matters to God, and to receive directions and commands from him.

V. 20. Thou ſhalt teach them ordinances and laws—Thou alone ſhalt deliver and explain God's laws to them, which they may apply to their particular cauſes and occaſions, and ſo end their differences among themſelves without giving thee any trouble.

V. 21. Able men—Men of reſolution, courage, and conſtancy of mind, which is the beſt preſervative againſt partiality and corruption in judgment, to which men of narrow ſouls are eaſily ſwayed by fears or hopes. Such as fear God—Which will reſtrain them from all injuſtice, even when they have opportunity to eſcape the obſervation and cenſure of men. Men of truth—Of faith, or faithful, ſuch as love the truth, and diligently labour to find it out in all cauſes, and then paſs a true and righteous ſentence, not at all reſpecting perſons, but only the truth and right of their cauſes, ſuch as hate lies and ſlanders, and will ſeverely rebuke and puniſh them. Hating covetouſneſs—This, though included in the former, is particularly expreſſed, becauſe gifts and bribes are the great corrupters of men's judgments.

V. 23. If God command thee ſo—If God approve of the courſe which I ſuggeſt, to whoſe wiſdom I ſubmit my opinion. For Jethro might well think, that Moſes neither would nor might make ſo great an alteration in the government without conſulting God about it, and expecting his anſwer. All this people go to their place—To their ſeveral habitations, where their buſineſs lies, from which they are now detained by wearieſome attendances. In peace—Having their minds much eaſed by this courſe, and their contentions ſoon ended.

V. 24. Moſes hearkened to his father in law—This is one evidence of that meekneſs for which Moſes is juſtly magnified, that he diſdained not to receive advice from one ſo much his inferior in wiſdom, and learning, and knowledge of the things of God. And God would have this wiſe counſel to come from Jethro, not from Moſes himſelf, to ſhew how variouſly he diſtributes his gifts, and to teach all men not to think too highly of themſelves, nor to deſpiſe the counſels even of their inferiors. And did all that he had ſaid—Not immediately, but after he had received God's approbation, and the people's conſent.

V. 25. Moſes choſe—Not ſolely, but together with the people.

V. 27. Moſes

Before Christ 1491.

part; and [l] he went his way into his own land.

l Num. 10. 29, 32.

CHAP. XIX.

IN the third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day [a] came they into the wilderness of Sinai.

a Num. 33. 15.

2 For they were departed [o] from Rephidim, and were come to the desart of Sinai, and had pitched in the wilderness, and there Israel camped before the mount.

o Chap. 17. 1, 8.

3 And [c] Moses went up unto God, and the Lord called unto him out of the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel;

c Acts 7. 38.

4 [d] Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how [e] I bare you on eagles wings, and brought you unto myself.

d Deut. 29. 2.
e Deut. 32. 11. Isa. 63. 9. Rev. 12. 14.
f Deut. 5. 2.
g Deut. 4. 20. & 7. 6. & 14. 2, 21. & 26. 18. & 32. 8, 9. Psa. 135. 4. Cant. 6. 12. Isa. 43. 1. Jer. 10. 16. Mal. 3. 17. Tit. 2. 14.
h Deut. 10. 14. Psa. 24. 1. & 50. 12.
i Deut. 33. 2, 3, 4. 1 Pet. 2. 5, 9. Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 10. & 20. 6.

5 Now [f] therefore if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then [g] ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for [h] all the earth is mine.

6 And ye shall be unto me a [i] kingdom of priests, and an holy nation. These are the words which thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel.

7 ¶ And Moses came and called for the elders of the people, and laid before their faces all these words which the Lord commanded him.

Before Christ 1491.

8 And [k] all the people answered together, and said, All that the Lord hath spoken, we will do. And Moses returned the words of the people unto the Lord.

k Chap. 24. 3, 7. Deut. 5. 27. & 26. 17.

9 And the Lord said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee [l] in a thick cloud, [m] that the people may hear when I speak with thee, and [n] believe thee for ever. And Moses told the words of the people unto the Lord.

l Verse 16. Chap. 20. 21. & 24. 15, 16. Psa. 18. 11, 12.
m Deut. 4. 12, 36.
n Chap. 14. 31.

10 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Go unto the people, and sanctify them to day and to morrow, and let them [o] wash their clothes, o Verse 14. Gen. 35. 2. Lev. 15. 3.

11 And be ready against the third day: for the third day the Lord [p] will come down in the sight of all the people, upon mount Sinai.

p Chap. 34. 5. Deut. 33. 2.

12 And thou shalt set bounds unto the people round about, saying, Take heed to yourselves, that ye go not up into the mount, or

V. 27. Moses let his father in law depart—Dismissed him honourably. See Numb. x. 29.

CHAP. XIX.

V. 1. In the third month—Third new moon, called Sivan, including the latter part of May, and the former part of June. The same day—In that day, when the month or new moon began, and when they departed from Rephidim, to note, that there was no station between these two. This is set down thus accurately, because it gives an account of the original of the feast of Pentecost, and the giving of the law, which was three or four days after this time.

V. 2. They were come to Sinai—To that part of the desart which adjoined to mount Sinai.

V. 3. Moses went up unto God—Into the mount of God, to the place where God had now fixed his cloudy pillar; and where he was about to manifest himself in a glorious manner.

V. 4. How I bare you on eagles wings—Safely, out of the reach of danger, and strongly against all opposition. And brought you unto myself—Into my presence, favour, and fellowship, to be my peculiar people, to serve and worship me as your only Lord, Saviour, and King.

V. 5. If ye will obey my voice indeed—If ye will obey me sincerely, diligently, and constantly. Ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me—Highly prized and loved, and carefully kept by me. All the earth is mine—For all people upon earth are mine, by creation and dominion.

V. 6. A kingdom of priests—Because God conferred upon them singular honour, safety, and liberty of coming near to him; as priests among all nations have been esteemed privileged persons. An holy nation—Purged from the idolatry of the heathen world, and separated from them by a wall of partition, allied to me by an holy covenant, and consecrated to my use and service.

V. 8. Moses returned the words of the people unto the Lord—Not for God's information, but for the people's greater obligation, and to learn what answer he should return from God to them.

V. 9. The Lord said unto Moses, Lo, I come unto thee—As to the Mediator between me and them, and the interpreter of my mind to them. Moses told the words of the people unto the Lord—This is here repeated; because God's answer to them now follows.

V. 10. Sanctify them—Command them to sanctify and cleanse themselves from all filthiness of flesh and spirit, and to prepare their hearts for the right receiving of my laws, and solemn entering into covenant with me. Let them wash their clothes—By which external washing, which was agreeable to that state of the church, they were taught the necessity of having their hearts purified.

V. 11. The third day—From this time, and the fiftieth day from the passover. The Lord will come down—In a visible and a glorious manifestation of his presence; and, as God was now to come down by a visible manifestation of himself; so is it his holy promise to come by his Spirit to dwell with men, (2 Cor. vi. 16.) and they only are truly looking for his appearing in them, who, by watchfulness and prayer, resist whatever is unholy, unjust, or contrary to truth and peace; thus sanctifying themselves for the Lord's coming to take up his dwelling-place in the temple of that heart which longs for his appearing; and they also wash their clothes—repent and forsake every outward evil, and by avoiding even the appearance of evil; and on the hearts of such will God write his laws, which he never makes grievous, but joyous to keep. (Heb. viii. 10.)

V. 12. Take heed to yourselves: whosoever toucheth the mount, shall be surely put to death—By this injunction, God designed to restrain men's curious and bold inquiries into the things of God, to possess the Israelites then present, and all succeeding generations, with the dread and reverence of the Divine Majesty, and of his holy law, to prepare the people to the obedience of God's commands, even when they discern not the reasons of them; and to make them sensible of their own impurity and infirmity, and of their absolute need of a Mediator, through whom they might have access to God. (Gal. iii. 19.)

V. 13. There

Before Christ 1491.

o Heb. 12. 20. or touch the border of it: o whosoever toucheth the mount, shall be surely put to death.

13 There shall not an hand touch it, but he shall surely be stoned, or shot through; whether it be beast or man, it shall not live: * Or, cornet. when the * trumpet soundeth long, they shall come up to the mount.

14 ¶ And Moses went down from the mount unto the people, and sanctified the r Verse 10. people, r and they washed their clothes.

15 And he said unto the people, Be ready s 1 Sam. 21. 4, 5. Zech. 7. 3. 1 Cor. 7. 5. against the third day: s come not at your wives.

t Heb. 12. 18. 16 And it came to pass on the third day in the morning, that there were t thunders and lightnings, and a thick cloud upon the mount, and the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud; so that all the people that was in the camp, trembled.

u Deut. 4. 10. 17 And u Moses brought forth the people out of the camp to meet with God, and they x Deut. 4. 11. and 32. 2. Judg. 5. 4. Psa. 68. 7, 8. Heb. 3. 3. y Gen. 15. 17. stood at the nether part of the mount.

18 And x mount Sinai was altogether on a smoke, because the Lord descended upon it in fire: y and the smoke thereof ascended as the smoke of a furnace, and o the whole mount quaked greatly.

Before Christ 1491.

o Heb. 12. 26. 19 And when the voice of the trumpet sounded long, and waxed louder and louder, a Heb. 12. 21. b Neh. 9. 13. Psa. 81. 7. a Moses spake, and b God answered him by a voice.

20 And the Lord came down upon mount Sinai, on the top of the mount: and the Lord called Moses up to the top of the mount, and Moses went up.

21 And the Lord said unto Moses, Go down, † charge the people, lest they break † Heb. contest. through unto the Lord, c to gaze, and many c See 1 Sam. 6. 19. of them perish.

22 And let the priests also which come near to the Lord, sanctify themselves, lest the Lord break forth upon them.

23 And Moses said unto the Lord, The people cannot come up to mount Sinai: for thou chargedst us, saying, Set bounds about the mount, and sanctify it.

24 And the Lord said unto him, Away, get thee down, and thou shalt come up, thou, and Aaron with thee: but let not the priests and

V. 13. There shall not a hand touch it—They shall look upon such a transgressor of my express command as a person, whom they cannot touch without defilement; and therefore he shall be put to death in such a manner as may be performed without touching him. Whether it be beast or man, it shall not live—For, though the beasts are not capable of a law, yet they might be threatned for man's caution, and punished for the fault of their owners in not keeping them at a distance from the mount. When the trumpet soundeth long—With one continued, equal, and gentle sound. An angel made a sound like that of a trumpet. The sound of the trumpet was heard from heaven, when God came upon earth, to deliver his laws to men; and so will the trumpet be heard from heaven, when the same Sovereign LORD of all, shall come to judge the world in righteousness and in equity, according to the knowledge all men have had of his will, or the opportunities of knowing it; and, at the sound of that last trumpet, all the dead shall rise, and appear before God. (1 Cor. xv. 52. Rev. xx. 12.) They shall come up to the mount—They were forbidden to come up to the mount, whilst God was delivering his laws; but allowed it afterwards when that action ceased.

V. 14. Moses sanctified the people—By commanding them to sanctify themselves, and directing them how to do it.

V. 15. Be ready against the third day—According to God's commandment.

V. 16. On the third day in the morning, that there were thunders and lightnings—Sent as evidences of God's glorious presence, and of the anger of God and the dreadful punishments due to the transgressors of the law now to be delivered, and as means to humble, awaken, convince, and terrify proud and secure sinners, that they might more reverently attend to the words and commands of God, more willingly yield obedience to them, and be more afraid of the violation of them. A thick cloud—Which was a signification of the invisible nature of God, and of the obscurity of the legal dispensation, in regard of its types and shadows, (2 Cor. iv. 6.) The voice of the trumpet—A fit instrument, both for the promulgation of God's law, and for the signification of that war that is between God and sinners. All the people trembled—Moses himself not excepted. (Heb. xii. 21.)

V. 17. Moses brought the people to meet with God—The gracious office of Jesus, whom Moses resembled, is as Mediator between God and man, to bring every penitent sinner to meet with God. They stood at the nether part of the mount—One part of the mount they might come to.

V. 18. The Lord descended in fire—For further terror to obstinate sinners. The whole mount quaked greatly—By an earthquake.

V. 19. Waxed louder and louder—Increased and grew very loud. Moses spake, and God answered him by a voice—By plain distinct words. (John xii. 29.)

V. 20. The Lord came on the top of the mount—Here are three parts of the mount distinguished, the top, where the cloud was; the middle part, where Moses stood; and the lower part, where the people were.

V. 21. Charge the people lest they break through to gaze—Through curiosity to know in what form or manner I appear to thee.

V. 22. The priests—Though the priesthood was not yet appointed, it is certain, as there were sacrifices, so there were priests to offer them. Sanctify themselves—The priests, whose duty and privilege it is to approach unto God, and to present the people's prayers and sacrifices to him; and therefore are here particularly admonished not to approach; because they might claim this privilege by their function.

V. 23. Moses said unto the Lord, The people cannot come up, for thou chargedst us—The people are sufficiently admonished, as thou didst command. I have informed and warned them of it, so that it may seem superfluous for me to go again to acquaint them herewith. But God, who better knew the dulness and the hardness of their hearts than Moses did, saw it necessary to repeat the same command again and again. Is this an universal prohibition? —To this answer is given, by a distinction in the next verse, that he and Aaron might come up, but no other.

V. 24. Come

Before Christ 1491. and the people break through, to come up unto the Lord, lest he break forth upon them.

25 So Moses went down unto the people, and spake unto them.

V. 24. Come up, thou, and Aaron with thee—Moses, as the type of the one Mediator between God and man, and Aaron, charged with the priestly office, were only to approach God, all besides, were forbid to do it; and none, however great or sacred their employment may be in the sight of men, can come unto God, but through Jesus Christ the God-man, (John xiv. 6.) whose mediation and atonement can alone procure any soul of man access unto God; and for ever adored be his goodness he ever liveth to make intercession for men; and, by that sacrifice once offered, all may come unto God through him. Heb. iv. 15.

CHAP. XX.

The ten commandments.—God, the Creator of all things, spake himself all these words to Moses and Aaron, and through them to all the people of Israel, the then visible church of God on earth; and which words of God his providence has preserved to this day, as the substance of his Almighty will, and which laws or commands are not repealed or made void, it being of these very words, which the same Almighty Lord and Law-giver when he again came on earth in the person of Jesus, said, Till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle, the least point or part shall in no wise, by no means pass, be abated, or taken from those words in which it is commanded men, as reasonable and accountable creatures, to do the will of God on earth, till all be fulfilled, till the time that the number of the elect of God are completed, and all that will accept of the grace of God to restore them to the image of God, and to enable them to do his commandments, (Ps. cxix. 2. Rev. xxii. 14.) have accepted of that grace, and the end of the world shall come; and till then, whosoever shall break one of these least commandments—the least point or part of any one of them, or in any degree hold themselves guiltless, or teach others that there is no need for strictly and exactly walking by the rule of God's word and commandments, which are of universal extent and belong to all men, such persons shall in no case enter into the kingdom of heaven; if they live and die believing that God will not for Christ's sake give grace to do his will on earth, and that it is not necessary to look to him for the ability and sufficiency so to do. (Matth. v. 18, &c.) These commands, and every part and all the words of them are to be read and read again, examined, thought of, and considered by every one that would not hurry through life with the knowledge of his having reason, but without making use of it, to inquire by what rules God, who gave life and reason, requires both to be used from the beginning to the end of this state of trial here on earth.—What provision God has made for enabling fallen sinful men to escape the penalties of the laws he has given us to live by; and on what foundation those notions are built, which supposes that without the free gift of his grace we can do his will, and therefore need not look to God for it; and that if we do break one or more of his commandments, we are in no danger of being found without the favour of God: Every serious inquirer into the will of God, will be unwilling to form their judgments of God's proceedings with men as his creatures, and accountable to him in the world to come, but by the revelation which God alone could give, and which he has given by his spirit, or, as in these commandments, by words spoken by himself to men, written, preserved, and published under circumstances, and accompanied with evidence, which not to believe to be true, draws upon us (if we do not believe) the obligation of not admitting to be true, without evidence, things much less to be believed than that God did himself deliver these words to Moses, and reveal

CHAP. XX.

Before Christ 1491.

AND God spake all these words, saying,
2 [a] I am the Lord thy God, which have [a] Lev. 26. 1. Deut. 5. 6. Psa. 81. 10. Hos. 13. 4.

himself according to the Scriptures. We must allow that the people of the Jews are in possession of these very commands received from their fathers, and to suppose them not to be true, obliges us to allow that some generation of men must have agreed to begin to commemorate for true what they knew not to be so, and to pretend they had from God these laws when they had them not; against this, the whole of sacred history, common history, and all that is most reasonable to be believed, rises up. But these rules of life—these commands of God, and according to which he declares he will judge all men; these sacred laws themselves are to be examined for evidence from within themselves of their own divine origin; if in any instance they require of men, that which reason cannot reconcile to the nature of that glorious Being, whose wisdom, power, and love, is written in the heavens above, and in all the world about us, in our own frame, and in all that his bountiful hand has provided for our use and comfort; —if any thing is commanded, or forbid to be done, which is unworthy for the Creator of all to command or forbid; if any thing is required to be done, which when done is not for the real good of those who do it, or for the good of others; if any thing is forbid which would be more for the true interests and lasting peace of men to do, if in the spirit and meaning of the words of these commandments, it can be made appear that there is any thing either forbid or required, the contrary of which would have been more for the glory of God, and the good of every man, and of all men, if this is proved to the sober reflection of mankind, then, so far as this may ever be done, there is the appearance of an objection against keeping so much of these commands as are proved to be unworthy of God, and contrary to the true happiness of all or any of the human race; but if in going through these ancient laws, sentence by sentence, calmly weighing the meaning of all that is said in them, either respecting the gracious Author of our being, our fellow-creatures, or ourselves, we cannot but allow that all that is commanded, all that is forbid to be done, is altogether what is worthy of God, every way consistent with his glory, and the good of every man, and of all men, then the same reason which draws this conclusion from the most careful consideration of all that is here commanded; must also draw the sentence of guilt upon every action, word, and design which disregards, neglects, or is opposed to that which is for God's glory, the good of every man, and the good of all men, so far as their actions affect one another; and that the breaking any one of these laws must be the crime of disobedience to God, by whom obedience to the whole is commanded; or in the words in which God himself speaks of the breach of his laws—Whosoever shall keep the whole law which God has given to men universally, agreeing with reason and that which is best for all, and yet they that regard the whole, but are led to offend in one point only, they become transgressors, and are guilty, and exposed to the whole penalty which the eternal God has annexed to the neglect, the disregard and violation of his sacred law; and the offence being against the infinite Majesty of God, the punishment of offences against him are suited to the greatness of them. God declares in all the ways in which we can understand it, that those who are finally found under the sentence of his holy law—That to them God himself is a consuming fire: (Heb. xii. 29.) That to them who do not obey his will, made known in the Scriptures, and by the Spirit of truth to all men, but who obey unrighteousness, that which proceeds from satan, upon them God will inflict tribulation and anguish, as the sure effects to every soul of man who finally have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, [b] out of the house of [a] bondage.

Before Christ 1491.

[b] Chap. 13. 3. [a] Heb. servants.

3 Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

[c] Lev. 26. 1. Deut. 4. 15. Psa. 97. 7.

4 [c] Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing, that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth.

Before Christ 1491.

5 Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am [d] a jealous God, [e] visiting the iniquity disregards all the offers of mercy and grace, and bids defiance to his indignation and wrath, (Rom. ii. 8.) foolishly making a mock—a jest of sin against God, (Prov. xiv. 9.) and impiously concluding that God has given laws (sufficiently proved, it cannot be denied) from himself to men, which men are naturally incapable of keeping, and no provision made, or assistance offered them from God to enable them to keep them, and that therefore God is to be charged with giving laws which cannot be obeyed, without the assistance which he only can give, and which he neither offers or gives, and that therefore when we have spent this life as we please, God must forgive us all the offences we had a mind to commit against his laws, which were only to keep the world a little in order; but because the extent of the commands, and the ability of keeping them, being so disproportioned, and for which men are not at all to blame; therefore, any fear of future sufferings, for having offended against laws that could not be kept, would be childish and absurd. If this reasoning ever meets with a reader that has ventured to proceed in his conduct upon the principles of it, let him not despair of unlearning the language of satan, and of one day being able to say, that God's laws are worthy of God, that the study of them, with a design to keep them, brings with it the proof that they are God's commands, because the purest delight springs up in that breast which is exercised in his holy will on earth, (Ps. i. ii. and cxix. 174.) which to do in heaven is the employment of the blessed.—When Moses returned into the mount to God from before all Israel, then God said,

[d] Chap. 34. 14. Deut. 6. 15. Josh. 24. 19. Nah. 1. 2. [e] Chap. 34. 7. Lev. 20. 5. & 26. 39, 40. Num. 14. 18, 33. 1 Kings 21. 29. Job 5. 4. & 21. 19. Psa. 79. 8. & 109. 14. Isa. 14. 20, 21. & 65. 6, 7. Jer. 2. 9. & 32. 18.

V. 2. I am the LORD—The Almighty Creator, Preserver, and Governor of all things, and thy GOD—in covenant to redeem thee, from all the sinful effects of the fall of the first parents of mankind. Which have brought thee—By my own power out of the land of Egypt, where thou wast suffering in slavery and bondage, as in a prison house, and from which I delivered thee; only requiring thy faith, thy confidence in my all-sufficient strength, that in thee I might make known to all men, my power to save and deliver them from the power and misery of that sinful nature which is common to all the offspring of Adam; and that, as I destroyed the strength of those that oppressed thee, and changed the course of nature to set thee free from the bondage wherein thou wast born, so will I destroy satan's power, and change and convert the natural and sinful minds of men by the power of my Spirit, and give to every one that believes in me, the liberty of the children of God, which is, first, in ceasing to obey satan and sin, and then, by the same power of my grace, having my strength for their sufficiency to do my will for the rest of their lives on earth, as it is done in heaven: And I am no less the God of all them that look unto me in every age and nation, than I am thy God, being no respecter of persons, or ever willing, on my part, the death of a sinner, but always desiring, that all should come unto me as their Saviour from the power of sin, and their Redeemer from the effects of that which they have already committed, and receive from Me grace to help them in every time of need, whether it be to take away from them the last remains of the evil of their nature, or to give them that power and peace, in which my kingdom in the soul consists.

V. 3. Thou who art indebted to Me for natural life; thou who hast received from Me every blessing; thou who art indebted to Me for that atonement which I shall make in the person of a Man by my death; thou who only canst be forgiven and cleansed from thy sin by the sheedding of My blood; thou who only canst have grace from Me, and for my sake, suffering in thy place and stead; thou who hast forfeited thy natural life, and the life of thy soul by thy sins, and is saved by that mercy, for which thou hadst nothing to pay; thou who hast not any thing that is, or can be good or happy, but from that favour, which thou neither hast or canst merit, thou shalt have no other gods; because, besides Me there is no other Saviour, and thy misery must begin, when the desires of thy heart begins to look to any other object for thy happiness. I love not like a creature, to be made happy by returns of love; I love for myself, and solely for thy good and blessedness, and it is my will that thou shouldst delight thyself in Me; because, only in doing so, canst the immortal soul of man, which was made in my image, find all its desires answered, be filled and satisfied with sacred joy and pure delight; and, if thou choosest any other object for the idol of thy heart, and to look to it for thy happiness, thou art doing that which the god of this world is ever intently desiring and labouring to incline every soul of man to do, that he may blaspheme my name, by thy final misery and separation from Me, by the choice and desires of thy heart and mind, preferring some imagined good to thy God, thy Saviour, thy Sanctifier, from whom alone thou hast all of good that thou canst possess or hope for.

V. 4. Thou shalt not make—Either in thy mind, or with thy hand, or by thy command. Unto thee—For thee to worship. Any graven image—Or molten, or any other image. Or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven—As of God, angels, sun, moon, or stars, which the heathens worshipped. Or that is in the earth—As of men and beasts, and creeping things, which the Egyptians and other Gentiles worshipped as gods. Or that is in the water—As of fishes, such as Dagon was, or serpents, crocodiles, and such other Egyptian deities. Under the earth—Thou shalt not allow thyself, out of fear, to bow down to, or acknowledge, that any of the powers of darkness can do thee hurt against My will, and without thy own consent.—I allow no place for any idol in any human heart; to God, and to him alone, must all flesh come, or be one day given up to the desire and longings after that, which they must be separated from for ever.

V. 5. Thou shalt not bow down thyself—Not only inward reverence is forbidden, but also all outward gestures that express reverence, whether bowing down the body, as here, or bending the knee, or kissing the idol, or ones hand towards it, one gesture being named for all. To them—Nor before them; for, to bow to them, and to bow before them, are expressions in Scripture of the same extent and use. Nor serve them—Or worship, either inwardly in thy mind, or outwardly by any sensible sign of worship given to them, as incense or sacrifice, vowing to them, or swearing by them. I the Lord thy God am jealous—Impatient of any partner in thy love and worship, and full of wrath against them that give my glory to images, as jealousy is the rage of a man. God is pleased to call and account himself the husband of his church and people; and therefore idolatry is called adultery, and God's anger against idolaters jealousy. God—The word properly signifies, The strong God, and shews God's ability to avenge himself, as the word, jealous, notes his readiness and resolution to do it. Visiting—Remembering, inquiring into, or punishing, as that word is commonly used. The iniquity of the fathers upon the children—

This

Before Christ 1491. quity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me:

f Deut. 7. 9. Pſa. 89. 34. 6 And f ſhewing mercy unto thouſands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

7 g Thou ſhalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord h will not hold him guiltleſs that taketh his name in vain.

Before Christ 1491.

g Chap. 23. 1. Lev. 19. 12. Deut 5. 11. Pſa. 15. 3. Matt. 5. 33.
h Mich. 6. 11.

8 Remember

This is to be underſtood with an exception of repentance and penitent children, as appears from Ezek. xviii. And if any ſuch be temporally puniſhed for their fathers ſins, God will abundantly recompence it to them ſome other way. But if children tread in their fathers ſinful ſteps, it is but juſt that they ſhould partake of their plagues. Unto the third and fourth generation—And further, as appears in the ten tribes, and afterwards in the two tribes, upon whom the iniquity of their fathers hath been viſited now for many generations. But he mentions them in particular; becauſe a parent may live ſo long, and ſee the dreadful effects of his ſin in his childrens children; becauſe ſo far the memory of a father may extend, and be matter of imitation to his children, and to ſhew the difference between his exerciſe of juſtice and mercy. Them that hate me—This word is oppoſed to the conceit that idolaters love God, more than others do, becauſe they love and honour, and worſhip the creatures for his ſake, and for thoſe excellencies that he hath wrought in them.

V. 6. Shewing mercy unto thouſands—Of their generations for ever: Whereas his puniſhment extended only to three or four of them. So far is God's mercy exalted above his juſtice. Pſal. ciii. 17. Them that love me, and keep my commandments—This conjunction is very obſervable, both againſt thoſe that pretend or inſinuate, that the inward affection of love to God is not neceſſary to ſalvation, and alſo againſt them who preteading inward love to God, live in the breach of God's known commands. 1 John v. 2. All that God beſtows on men proceeds from mercy and mercy alone: It is of his mercy that men are ſpared for repentance, when any other patience but that of God's would fail, and give the careleſs wilful ſinners up to that miſery which, by their ſins, they made choice of: It is of his mercy, that he pardons the penitent, and gives them peace: It is of his mercy, that his holy Spirit is given to every believing mind, to ſtrengthen, ſupport, and comfort it, under all the temptations and conflicts of this life of trial: It is of his mercy, that his gracious and Almighty providence charges itſelf with the care of all his feeble followers, whom he conſtantly calls upon by his ever living word, to caſt their care upon him: It is of his mercy, that the angels of his preſence are made miniſtering ſpirits, and, night and day, inflamed by that loving Spirit of the Moſt High, in which they live, beſtow their kind and watchful care in waiting upon all the heirs of ſalvation: It is of his mercy, that he has given ten thouſand gracious promiſes, followed by numberleſs examples, that his goodneſs never fails them that look unto him for aid, and put their truſt in him: It is of his mercy, that he has ſet before the children of men all thoſe bleſſed and glorious proſpects of life and immortality, which are brought to our knowledge by his revealed will; and it is of his mercy, that he has proved, as he has done, his infinite willingneſs to ſhew all theſe mercies, to beſtow all theſe bleſſings upon men, by taking upon himſelf the perſon of a man, and with all the feelings and affections of a perfect man, laying down that life as the price and purchaſe of all and every mercy which men can poſſeſs, or ever hope to enjoy, whether by his providence in the gift of his holy Spirit in this life, or of glory for ever in the world to come: All, all theſe mercies are his free unmerited gift to men, and all are ſhewn to, and beſtowed upon them, who ſeeing their guiltineſs turn unto the bleſſed and Almighty Being that made them, to ſhew mercy upon them as their only Saviour; and who, from this principle of love to him who firſt loved them, they inquire into the meaning of his will; and becoming acquainted with his commands, they regard them and keep them againſt all oppoſition, then to ſuch he ſhews mercy; and the fulneſs of the Godhead never being exhauſted by giving, thouſands, diſperſed throughout the earth and ſea, are as eaſily bleſſed by him, with a conſcious ſenſe of his favour, as if they all dwelt under the ſame roof, and had Jeſus, the compaſſionate Redeemer of men, for their father, their huſband, their brother, and their friend, perſonally preſent with them; and then, with every increaſe of regard to his ſacred will, as a king moſt gracious, to honour them who honour his government; as a parent moſt willing to encourage affection and duty in his children, he gives to all the thouſands that obey him a conſtant increaſe of ability to do it, with an abundant increaſe of peace and bleſſedneſs in doing it; ever ſaying to all men, If any man ſerve me—if any man is ſincerely minded to do it, let him follow me; let him, in all his deſigns and actions, imitate that which I have approved of in other men; and let him obſerve the example which I have given of that temper and conduct which is pleaſing to God, and which I ſet before mankind in all the variety of a life of labour and ſorrow, exalted as a king, believed in as a teacher ſent from God, and alſo partook of the ſufferings of a common criminal; let all ſee, in one part or other, of this example, that which includes all that is neceſſary for every man to imitate and do, and they who follow my example, where I am—in endleſs peace and glorious bleſſedneſs, there ſhall alſo my ſervant be—all that worſhip me as their God and Saviour, and by the grace which I freely give, keep my commandments; and if any man, in any age, country, or ſtation; however wiſe or ignorant; however blameleſs or guilty he may have been in the ſight of men, from the moment he begins to deny himſelf, take up his croſs, and follow the example which is ſet before him, diſcharging every duty with a ſingle intention to the glory of God, and ſerving Me, by advancing any work of piety towards God, and peace among men; I will not only confeſs his name before the angels of my preſence; but God the Father will honour him; (John xii. 26.) and this bleſſedneſs ſhall they have, who, in ſpirit and in truth, love and worſhip God as their Redeemer, and who evidence that they do ſo, by regarding, with humility and care, the commandments which I have given them.

V. 7. Thou ſhalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain—Either in oaths or in common diſcourſe, lightly, raſhly, irreverently, or unneceſſarily, or without weighty or ſufficient cauſe. The words are general, and ſpeak of any taking God's name into their mouths, either by oaths or any other way. It is alſo here to be obſerved, as well as in the other commands, that when this ſin is forbidden, the contrary duty is commanded, to uſe the name of God, both in ſwearing and otherwiſe, cautiouſly and reverently. Thou ſhalt not make uſe of any of the names by which I have made myſelf known to men, but to ſhew thy reverence of the greatneſs, purity, and goodneſs of God thy Redeemer, that by the ſeriouſneſs and caution with which thou makes mention of my name, or any of my attributes, thou mayeſt call upon thyſelf to pay an increaſing regard to the preſence of thy God, the conſtant giver of thy life, and the ſtrict obſerver of all thy thoughts, deſigns, words, and actions; and that others ſeeing with what care thou conſidereſt thyſelf bound to regard the name of God, may alſo be led to fear me, and be bleſſed in ſo doing; but if by making uſe of my name upon light, vain, and unneceſſary occaſions, thou ſhews thyſelf regardleſs of the greatneſs and majeſty of the Almighty Creator of the world, and the Judge of all men, he will not hold thee guiltleſs, free from guilt,

and

Before Christ 1491.

have brought thee out of the land of Egypt, [b] out of the house of [*] bondage.

[b] Chap. 13. 3. [*] Heb. servants.

3 Thou shalt have no other gods before me.

[c] Lev. 26. 1. Deut. 4. 15. Psa. 97. 7.

4 [c] Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of any thing, that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth.

Before Christ 1491.

5 Thou shalt not bow down thyself to them, nor serve them: for I the Lord thy God am [d] a jealous God, [e] visiting the iniquity disregards all the offers of mercy and grace, and bids defiance to his indignation and wrath, (Rom. ii. 8.) foolishly making a mock—a jest of sin against God, (Prov. xiv. 9.) and impiously concluding that God has given laws (sufficiently proved, it cannot be denied) from himself to men, which men are naturally incapable of keeping, and no provision made, or assistance offered them from God to enable them to keep them, and that therefore God is to be charged with giving laws which cannot be obeyed, without the assistance which he only can give, and which he neither offers or gives, and that therefore when we have spent this life as we please, God must forgive us all the offences we had a mind to commit against his laws, which were only to keep the world a little in order; but because the extent of the commands, and the ability of keeping them, being so disproportioned, and for which men are not at all to blame; therefore, any fear of future sufferings, for having offended against laws that could not be kept, would be childish and absurd. If this reasoning ever meets with a reader that has ventured to proceed in his conduct upon the principles of it, let him not despair of unlearning the language of satan, and of one day being able to say, that God's laws are worthy of God, that the study of them, with a design to keep them, brings with it the proof that they are God's commands, because the purest delight springs up in that breast which is exercised in his holy will on earth, (Ps. i. ii. and cxix. 174.) which to do in heaven is the employment of the blessed.—When Moses returned into the mount to God from before all Israel, then God said,

[d] Chap. 34. 14. Deut. 6. 15. Josh. 24. 19. Nah. 1. 2. [e] Chap. 34. 7. Lev. 20. 5. & 26. 39, 40. Num. 14. 18, 33. 1 Kings 21. 29. Job 5. 4. & 21. 19. Psa. 79. 8. & 109. 14. Isa. 14. 20, 21. & 65. 6, 7. Jer. 2. 9. & 32. 18.

V. 2. I am the LORD—The Almighty Creator, Preserver, and Governor of all things, and thy GOD—in covenant to redeem thee, from all the sinful effects of the fall of the first parents of mankind. Which have brought thee—By my own power out of the land of Egypt, where thou wast suffering in slavery and bondage, as in a prison house, and from which I delivered thee; only requiring thy faith, thy confidence in my all-sufficient strength, that in thee I might make known to all men, my power to save and deliver them from the power and misery of that sinful nature which is common to all the offspring of Adam; and that, as I destroyed the strength of those that oppressed thee, and changed the course of nature to set thee free from the bondage wherein thou wast born, so will I destroy satan's power, and change and convert the natural and sinful minds of men by the power of my Spirit, and give to every one that believes in me, the liberty of the children of God, which is, first, in ceasing to obey satan and sin, and then, by the same power of my grace, having my strength for their sufficiency to do my will for the rest of their lives on earth, as it is done in heaven: And I am no less the God of all them that look unto me in every age and nation, than I am thy God, being no respecter of persons, or ever willing, on my part, the death of a sinner, but always desiring, that all should come unto me as their Saviour from the power of sin, and their Redeemer from the effects of that which they have already committed, and receive from Me grace to help them in every time of need, whether it be to take away from them the last remains of the evil of their nature, or to give them that power and peace, in which my kingdom in the soul consists.

V. 3. Thou who art indebted to Me for natural life; thou who hast received from Me every blessing; thou who art indebted to Me for that atonement which I shall make in the person of a Man by my death; thou who only canst be forgiven and cleansed from thy sin by the sheedding of My blood; thou who only canst have grace from Me, and for my sake, suffering in thy place and stead; thou who hast forfeited thy natural life, and the life of thy soul by thy sins, and is saved by that mercy, for which thou hadst nothing to pay; thou who hast not any thing that is, or can be good or happy, but from that favour, which thou neither hast or canst merit, thou shalt have no other gods; because, besides Me there is no other Saviour, and thy misery must begin, when the desires of thy heart begins to look to any other object for thy happiness. I love not like a creature, to be made happy by returns of love; I love for myself, and solely for thy good and blessedness, and it is my will that thou shouldst delight thyself in Me; because, only in doing so, canst the immortal soul of man, which was made in my image, find all its desires answered, be filled and satisfied with sacred joy and pure delight; and, if thou chooseſt any other object for the idol of thy heart, and to look to it for thy happiness, thou art doing that which the god of this world is ever intently desiring and labouring to incline every soul of man to do, that he may blaspheme my name, by thy final misery and separation from Me, by the choice and desires of thy heart and mind, preferring some imagined good to thy God, thy Saviour, thy Sanctifier, from whom alone thou hast all of good that thou canst possess or hope for.

V. 4. Thou shalt not make—Either in thy mind, or with thy hand, or by thy command. Unto thee—For thee to worship. Any graven image—Or molten, or any other image. Or any likeness of any thing that is in heaven—As of God, angels, sun, moon, or stars, which the heathens worshipped. Or that is in the earth—As of men and beasts, and creeping things, which the Egyptians and other Gentiles worshipped as gods. Or that is in the water—As of fishes, such as Dagon was, or serpents, crocodiles, and such other Egyptian deities. Under the earth—Thou shalt not allow thyself, out of fear, to bow down to, or acknowledge, that any of the powers of darkness can do thee hurt against My will, and without thy own consent.—I allow no place for any idol in any human heart; to God, and to him alone, must all flesh come, or be one day given up to the desire and longings after that, which they must be separated from for ever.

V. 5. Thou shalt not bow down thyself—Not only inward reverence is forbidden, but also all outward gestures that express reverence, whether bowing down the body, as here, or bending the knee, or kissing the idol, or ones hand towards it, one gesture being named for all. To them—Nor before them; for, to bow to them, and to bow before them, are expressions in Scripture of the same extent and use. Nor serve them—Or worship, either inwardly in thy mind, or outwardly by any sensible sign of worship given to them, as incense or sacrifice, vowing to them, or swearing by them. I the Lord thy God am jealous—Impatient of any partner in thy love and worship, and full of wrath against them that give my glory to images, as jealousy is the rage of a man. God is pleased to call and account himself the husband of his church and people; and therefore idolatry is called adultery, and God's anger against idolaters jealousy. God—The word properly signifies, The strong God, and shews God's ability to avenge himself, as the word, jealous, notes his readiness and resolution to do it. Visiting—Remembering, inquiring into, or punishing, as that word is commonly used. The iniquity of the fathers upon the children—

This

Before Christ 1491. quity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me:

f Deut. 7. 9. Pſa. 89. 34. 6 And f ſhewing mercy unto thouſands of them that love me, and keep my commandments.

7 g Thou ſhalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain: for the Lord h will not hold him guiltleſs that taketh his name in vain.

Before Christ 1491.

g Chap. 23. 1. Lev. 19. 12. Deut 5. 11. Pſa. 15. 3. Matt. 5. 33.

h Mich. 6. 11.

8 Remember

This is to be underſtood with an exception of repentance and penitent children, as appears from Ezek. xviii. And if any ſuch be temporally puniſhed for their fathers ſins, God will abundantly recompence it to them ſome other way. But if children tread in their fathers ſinful ſteps, it is but juſt that they ſhould partake of their plagues. Unto the third and fourth generation—And further, as appears in the ten tribes, and afterwards in the two tribes, upon whom the iniquity of their fathers hath been viſited now for many generations. But he mentions them in particular; becauſe a parent may live ſo long, and ſee the dreadful effects of his ſin in his childrens children; becauſe ſo far the memory of a father may extend, and be matter of imitation to his children, and to ſhew the difference between his exerciſe of juſtice and mercy. Them that hate me—This word is oppoſed to the conceit that idolaters love God, more than others do, becauſe they love and honour, and worſhip the creatures for his ſake, and for thoſe excellencies that he hath wrought in them.

V. 6. Shewing mercy unto thouſands—Of their generations for ever: Whereas his puniſhment extended only to three or four of them. So far is God's mercy exalted above his juſtice. Pſal. ciii. 17. Them that love me, and keep my commandments—This conjunction is very obſervable, both againſt thoſe that pretend or inſinuate, that the inward affection of love to God is not neceſſary to ſalvation, and alſo againſt them who pretending inward love to God, live in the breach of God's known commands. 1 John v. 2. All that God beſtows on men proceeds from mercy and mercy alone: It is of his mercy that men are ſpared for repentance, when any other patience but that of God's would fail, and give the careleſs wilful ſinners up to that miſery which, by their ſins, they made choice of: It is of his mercy, that he pardons the penitent, and gives them peace: It is of his mercy, that his holy Spirit is given to every believing mind, to ſtrengthen, ſupport, and comfort it, under all the temptations and conflicts of this life of trial: It is of his mercy, that his gracious and Almighty providence charges itſelf with the care of all his feeble followers, whom he conſtantly calls upon by his ever living word, to caſt their care upon him: It is of his mercy, that the angels of his preſence are made miniſtering ſpirits, and, night and day, inflamed by that loving Spirit of the Moſt High, in which they live, beſtow their kind and watchful care in waiting upon all the heirs of ſalvation: It is of his mercy, that he has given ten thouſand gracious promiſes, followed by numberleſs examples, that his goodneſs never fails them that look unto him for aid, and put their truſt in him: It is of his mercy, that he has ſet before the children of men all thoſe bleſſed and glorious proſpects of life and immortality, which are brought to our knowledge by his revealed will; and it is of his mercy, that he has proved, as he has done, his infinite willingneſs to ſhew all theſe mercies, to beſtow all theſe bleſſings upon men, by taking upon himſelf the perſon of a man, and with all the feelings and affections of a perfect man, laying down that life as the price and purchaſe of all and every mercy which men can poſſeſs, or ever hope to enjoy, whether by his providence in the gift of his holy Spirit in this life, or of glory for ever in the world to come: All, all theſe mercies are his free unmerited gift to men, and all are ſhewn to, and beſtowed upon them, who ſeeing their guiltineſs turn unto the bleſſed and Almighty Being that made them, to ſhew mercy upon them as their only Saviour; and who, from this principle of love to him who firſt loved them, they inquire into the meaning of his will; and becoming acquainted with his commands, they regard them and keep them againſt all oppoſition, then to ſuch he ſhews mercy; and the fulneſs of the Godhead never being exhauſted by giving, thouſands, diſperſed throughout the earth and ſea, are as eaſily bleſſed by him, with a conſcious ſenſe of his favour, as if they all dwelt under the ſame roof, and had Jeſus, the compaſſionate Redeemer of men, for their father, their huſband, their brother, and their friend, perſonally preſent with them; and then, with every increaſe of regard to his ſacred will, as a king moſt gracious, to honour them who honour his government; as a parent moſt willing to encourage affection and duty in his children, he gives to all the thouſands that obey him a conſtant increaſe of ability to do it, with an abundant increaſe of peace and bleſſedneſs in doing it; ever ſaying to all men, If any man ſerve me—if any man is ſincerely minded to do it, let him follow me; let him, in all his deſigns and actions, imitate that which I have approved of in other men; and let him obſerve the example which I have given of that temper and conduct which is pleaſing to God, and which I ſet before mankind in all the variety of a life of labour and ſorrow, exalted as a king, believed in as a teacher ſent from God, and alſo partook of the ſufferings of a common criminal; let all ſee, in one part or other, of this example, that which includes all that is neceſſary for every man to imitate and do, and they who follow my example, where I am—in endleſs peace and glorious bleſſedneſs, there ſhall alſo my ſervant be—all that worſhip me as their God and Saviour, and by the grace which I freely give, keep my commandments; and if any man, in any age, country, or ſtation; however wiſe or ignorant; however blameleſs or guilty he may have been in the ſight of men, from the moment he begins to deny himſelf, take up his croſs, and follow the example which is ſet before him, diſcharging every duty with a ſingle intention to the glory of God, and ſerving Me, by advancing any work of piety towards God, and peace among men; I will not only confeſs his name before the angels of my preſence; but God the Father will honour him; (John xii. 26.) and this bleſſedneſs ſhall they have, who, in ſpirit and in truth, love and worſhip God as their Redeemer, and who evidence that they do ſo, by regarding, with humility and care, the commandments which I have given them.

V. 7. Thou ſhalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain—Either in oaths or in common diſcourſe, lightly, raſhly, irreverently, or unneceſſarily, or without weighty or ſufficient cauſe. The words are general, and ſpeak of any taking God's name into their mouths, either by oaths or any other way. It is alſo here to be obſerved, as well as in the other commands, that when this ſin is forbidden, the contrary duty is commanded, to uſe the name of God, both in ſwearing and otherwiſe, cautiouſly and reverently. Thou ſhalt not make uſe of any of the names by which I have made myſelf known to men, but to ſhew thy reverence of the greatneſs, purity, and goodneſs of God thy Redeemer, that by the ſerioufneſs and caution with which thou makes mention of my name, or any of my attributes, thou mayeſt call upon thyſelf to pay an increaſing regard to the preſence of thy God, the conſtant giver of thy life, and the ſtrict obſerver of all thy thoughts, deſigns, words, and actions; and that others ſeeing with what care thou conſidereſt thyſelf bound to regard the name of God, may alſo be led to fear me, and be bleſſed in ſo doing; but if by making uſe of my name upon light, vain, and unneceſſary occaſions, thou ſhews thyſelf regardleſs of the greatneſs and majeſty of the Almighty Creator of the world, and the Judge of all men, he will not hold thee guiltleſs, free from guilt,

and

Before Christ 1491.

8 Remember the ſabbath-day, to keep it holy.

i Chap. 23. 12. and 31. 14. and 34. 21. Lev. 23. 3. Ezek. 20. 12. Luke 13. 14.

9 [i] Six days ſhalt thou labour, and do all thy work:

10 But the ſeventh day is the ſabbath of the Lord thy God: in it thou ſhalt not do any work, thou, nor thy ſon, nor thy daughter, thy man-ſervant, nor thy maid-ſervant, nor thy cattle, [k] nor thy ſtranger that is within thy gates.

k Neh. 13. 16.

l Gen. 2. 2.

11 For [l] in ſix days the Lord made heaven and earth, the ſea, and all that in them is, and reſted the ſeventh day: wherefore the Lord bleſſed the ſabbath-day, and hallowed it.

Before Christ 1491.

12 ¶ [m] Honour thy father and thy mother: that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

m Chap. 23. 26. Lev. 19. 3. Deut. 5. 16. Jer. 35. 7. Matt. 15. 4. Epheſ. 6. 2.

13 [n] Thou ſhalt not kill.

n Matt. 5. 21. Rom. 13. 9.

14 [o] Thou ſhalt not commit adultery.

o Matt. 5. 27.

15 Thou ſhalt not ſteal.

16 [p] Thou ſhalt not bear falſe witneſs againſt thy neighbour.

p Deut. 19. 16.

17 Thou

and the puniſhment of it: The meaning is, the Lord will look upon him as a guilty perſon, and will ſeverely puniſh him. This phraſe is uſed where more is underſtood than expreſſed; and this reaſon is here added, becauſe ſinners of this ſort are uſually held innocent by men, becauſe they cannot diſcover their fault, when they ſwear falſely, or becauſe they take no care to puniſh the abuſers of God's name by vain and cuſtomary oaths; but, though men ſpare them, I will aſſuredly require every man to give an account of himſelf (Rom. xiv. 12.) for the light and irreverent uſe he has made of my name, as well as for the uſe he has made of the gift of ſpeech which I have beſtowed upon him; and for every idle word men ſhall give account in the day of judgment, (Matth. xii. 36.) and they who live and die in that ſpirit and ſtate of mind, which is without the fear and love of God and love to men, which ſhews itſelf by the light, careleſs profane uſe of the ſacred names, as well as by untrue, inſincere, formal unmeaning profeſſions, fooliſh-jeſting, and idle words, the ſoul that is found in this ſtate is hereby declared to be guilty by Him, whoſe righteous judgment will ſeal the eternal doom of all the living. And this command extends to the whole uſe of words, it being GOD's command, that all that is done by his reaſonable creatures in this life ſhould be done to his glory; and we are no leſs guilty to ſpeak without a ſenſe of the ſacred preſence of God, than we are to conduct ourſelves in our lives as creatures that are not accountable to him. If it has been our cuſtom to think, ſpeak, and act, without regarding what God requires of us, it is high time we ſhould awake out of this ſleep, to a juſt ſenſe that God has not given laws to men to be broken at our pleaſure.

V. 8. Remember the Sabbath-day—This word is here very emphatical; it re-minds us of a former delivery of the ſubſtance of this command, (Gen. ii. 3.) It inſinuates the great neceſſity of conſideration and preparation of the Sabbath before it comes. It ſhews the ſingular importance of this command, which is therefore placed in the heart and centre of the reſt, to ſhew that the religious obſervation of this, is the beſt way to ſecure our obedience to all the reſt, and that the neglect of this will bring in the violation of all the other, as common experience ſhews. Uſe it holily, by a careful abſtinence from ſervile works or worldly buſineſs, and by a diligent employing of the day holy in thoughts, words and exerciſes, in the worſhip of God in public and private, and the celebration of his works, and the furthering of our own and others ſalvation. (Iſa. lviii. 13.)

V. 9. Six days ſhalt thou labour—Be employed in a careful diligent diſcharge of the duties of thy ſtation, in all which God is to be looked to with a conſtant intention to pleaſe him, and all thy work—all that relates to thy profeſſion or calling, ſhall be done in ſix days.

V. 10. But the ſeventh day is the ſabbath of the Lord—Conſecrated to his uſe, honour, and ſervice, commended by his example, and enjoined by his command. In it thou ſhalt not do any work—Any ſervile, laborious, common, or worldly work, tending to thy own profit or pleaſure. Thou, nor thy ſon, nor thy daughter, thy man-ſervant, nor thy maid-ſervant—This clauſe is added, not as if children or ſervants were not immediately obliged by this command, or were excuſed by God for the breach of this law at their maſter's commands, but to reſtrain covetous or ungodly perſons, that they ſhould neither command, nor ſuffer their children, or ſervants, to profane the ſabbath, ſo far as they can hinder it. Nor thy cattle—To teach us to exerciſe mercy towards the brute creatures: And becauſe the uſe of cattle muſt have drawn along with it the employment of men. Nor thy ſtranger that is within thy gates—No perſon under thy roof, or within the city or country with you, ſhall be allowed by you to do any work on the Sabbath-day.

V. 11. In ſix days—Neither in more nor leſs time, as he could have done. The Lord reſted the ſeventh day—Ceaſed from his creating works; God, by his providence and grace, neither is idle, nor weary, but this reſt is aſcribed to him for our imitation. The Lord bleſſed—Made it a day of bleſſing, as well of receiving bleſſings and praiſes from men, as of conferring his bleſſings and favours upon thoſe that religiouſly obſerve it. The day is ſaid to be bleſſed, when men are bleſſed by it and in it, as a man's field, and the work of his hands, are ſaid to be bleſſed, when a man is bleſſed in them. The Sabbath-day—The bleſſing and ſanctification are not appropriated to the ſeventh day, but to the Sabbath day, whether it ſhould be the ſeventh day, as to the Jews it then was, or the firſt day, as now it is. Hallowed it—Separated it from the reſt of the days, and from all common employments, and conſecrated it to his own holy ſervice, and man's holy and religious uſe.

V. 12. Honour—Reverence, love, and obey them, and whenever their wants require thy aid, love and honour them not in word only, but in deed and in truth, by relieving them and ſupporting them to the utmoſt of thy power, as they lived and laboured for thy ſupport and maintenance in all the helpleſs years of thy infancy. Thy father and thy mother—The father is put firſt here, and the mother, (Lev. xix. 3.) to ſhew that we owe this duty promiſcuouſly and indifferently to both of them. Theſe laws are brief and yet comprehenſive; under this is contained all our ſuperiors and governors. That thy days may be long—That thy parents, may prolong thy days, or the days of thy life, by their prayers made to God for thee, and by their bleſſing in my name conferred upon thee.

V. 13. Thou ſhalt not kill—And this prohibition being delivered by God, who made, and ſearcheth and commands men's hearts, muſt be extended not only to the external act of killing, but to all motions of the heart or tongue which tend that way, as anger, hatred, envy, malice, ſtrife, blows, and challenges. (Mat. v. 21. 1 Joh. iii. 15. &c.) And here, as in the reſt, is commanded the contrary duty of preſerving the lives of our neighbours, as much as lies in our power.

V. 14. Thou ſhalt not commit adultery—Here is mentioned one kind of uncleanneſs; but under this are comprehended and forbidden all other kinds of filthineſs, and all means, occaſions, and appearances of them. And all chaſtity and ſobriety in thoughts, affections, words, habits, and geſtures is here preſcribed. (1 Theſ. iv. 3, 4. Heb. xiii. 4.)

V. 15. Thou

Before Christ 1491.

17 [q] Thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's house, [r] thou shalt not covet thy neighbour's wife, nor his man-servant, nor his maid-servant, nor his ox, nor his ass, nor any thing that is thy neighbour's.

18 ¶ And [s] all the people [t] saw the thunderings, and the lightnings, and the noise of the trumpet, and the mountain smoking: and when the people saw it, they removed, and stood afar off.

19 And they said unto Moses, [u] Speak thou with us, and we will hear: but let not God speak with us, lest we die.

20 And Moses said unto the people, Fear not: [x] for God is come to prove you, and that his fear may be before your faces, that ye sin not.

21 And the people stood afar off; and Moses drew near unto [y] the thick darkness where God was.

22 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Thus thou shalt say unto the children of Israel, Ye have seen that I have talked with you [z] from heaven.

23 Ye shall not make [a] with me gods of silver, neither shall ye make unto you gods of gold.

24 ¶ An altar of earth thou shalt make unto me, and shalt sacrifice thereon thy burnt-offerings, and thy peace-offerings, [b] thy sheep, and thine oxen: In all places where I record my name, I will come unto thee, and I will bless thee.

25 And

q Acts 20. 33. Rom. 7. 7.
r Job 31. 9.
s Heb. 12. 18.
t Rev. 1. 12.
u Deut. 5. 24. and 18. 16. Gal. 3. 19, 20. Heb. 12. 19.
x Deut. 13. 3.
y Chap. 19. 16. Deut. 5. 5. 1 Kings 8. 12.
z Deut. 4. 36. Neh. 9. 13.
a See 1 Sam. 5. 4, 5. 2 Kings 17. 33. Ezek. 20. 39. and 43. 8. Zeph. 1. 1, 5. 2 Cor. 6. 14, 15, 16.
b Lev. 1. 2.

V. 15. Thou shalt not steal—Either by deceit or violence, or without his knowledge and consent, take away another man's goods, (Eph. iv. 28.) but on the contrary shalt preserve them when in thy power; and not omit to do that for the welfare of another which thou wouldest others would do unto thee.

V. 16. Thou shalt not bear false witness—Not answer, when thou art asked in judgment, not speak a false testimony, or, as a false witness. Which doth not only forbid perjury in judgment, but also all unjust censure, slander, backbiting, scorning, false accusation, and also requires a just and candid judgment of others, speaking well of them, as far as truth and justice will permit, and defending their good names against the calumnies and detractions of others. Against thy neighbour—No, not for thy neighbour, but it is against, because such perjuries, slanders, &c. are most commonly designed against them. A man's neighbour is any man. The great law of love and charity, which is the life and soul of this and all the commands, and binds us to all, binds us, and bound the Israelites to all mankind.

V. 17. Thou shalt not covet—The coveting here forbidden is, the inward and deliberate purpose and desire of a deceitful or violent taking away of another man's goods. The greedy desire of that which is another man's, though it be without injury to him. Thus Ahab sinned in desiring Naboth's vineyard, though he offered him money for it. Those inward motions of the heart, which from the fountain of original corruption spring up in the heart with secret delight, though they do not obtain the deliberate consent of the will. This law of God is spiritual and holy, and reaches the thoughts, intents, and all the actual motions of the heart, as is apparent from the nature of God and of his law. And if but by intention and design any soul of man would do that which God forbids, or in heart disregards what he requires, that soul is in a state of enmity against God, and like him (Mark x. 17.) who had sincerely kept all the commands of God from his youth, but in his heart loved the world, when the Lord Jesus, who knew his heart, required this person to follow him, he turned from God his Saviour; to be therefore under the influence of any one principle, temper, passion, or desire, which is opposed to the nature of God, and to the law, commands, or declared will of God, is to be in the state of one who breaks any known law—he stands exposed to the penalty: To live in opposition to the Divine nature and will, is to be in a state of enmity against God himself; it is to count the blood that was shed to wash the souls of men from sin, as shed to no purpose—it is not to believe that God, even for Christ's sake, will give his holy spirit to cleanse the thoughts of the fallen souls of men, and purify them from all sin and all uncleanness, and to sanctify them by grace received through and in Jesus. (Acts xxvi. 18.) To be guilty under any one of God's commandments, and not to go to God in Christ Jesus for pardon, is to bid defiance to the justice of God, and not to care for our souls, or to presume to expect the favour of God and future glory, without his image and a conformity to his nature and will, and this against the plainest declarations of his will; (Psal. xcix. 9. Heb. xii. 14.) and not to go to God in Christ Jesus for pardon and grace, to do his will on earth as it is done in heaven, is to be guilty of despising all that redeeming love has done to procure us pardon, and the supplies of his free and sufficient grace. (Heb. vii. 25.) Not to desire and study the will of God as it is revealed, is to treat the Divine Being as unworthy of our regard; To go on in any opposition to his nature and his will, and to think it unavoidable but we must do so, is to charge God with requiring that of men, which he ought not, or with injustice; not to believe he has laid help on one who is able to save us from offending against him, is to charge God with a want of mercy and goodness; it is to deny that evidence of God's love to men, which appears in all the works of God in the visible creation; and not to believe that God, for the sake of his beloved Son, will, by his grace, restore to the souls of men the mind that was in Jesus, and to enable them to serve him acceptably, is to deny the way of salvation to be true and real, which God has revealed. (1 Pet. i. 19. and ii. 9. Phil. ii. 5. Heb. xii. 28. 1 John v. 10.)

V. 18. All the people saw the thunderings and the lightenings—Heard them. One sense is put for another. The people removed—From the bottom of the mountain, where they stood.

V. 19. Let not God speak with us, lest we die—This they speak from a sense of their own guilt, and of the greatness and holiness of the Divine Majesty, to whom they durst not approach but by a Mediator. (Gal. iii. 19.)

V. 20. God is come to prove you—To give you a law, by which you will be proved whether you do indeed love and fear me, as you pretend you do, or whether you do not. That his fear may be before your faces—God's fear is properly in men's hearts, but here the sense seems to be this, That his fear, this dreadful manifestation of his majesty and justice may be now and ever before your eyes, and in your memories, as an effectual preservative from sin.

V. 22. Ye have seen—Heard his voice and speech; they saw no image of him, and therefore should make no resemblances of him. I have talked with you from heaven—From the lower heaven, the air or the clouds, which were over the top of mount Sinai.

V. 23. Ye shall not make with me—To worship together with me. Gods—Idols or images, to whom you may give the name and worship of Gods. Of silver—And consequently not of any other materials, as wood or stone.

Before Christ 1491.

25 And [c] if thou wilt make me an altar of ſtone, thou ſhalt not † build it of hewn ſtone: for if thou lift up thy tool upon it, thou haſt polluted it.

26 Neither ſhalt thou go up by ſteps unto mine altar, that thy nakedneſs be not diſcovered thereon.

[c] Deut. 27. 5. Joſh. 8. 31.
† Heb. build them with hewing.

CHAP. XXI.

Before Christ 1491.

NOW theſe are the judgments which thou ſhalt [a] ſet before them.

2 [b] If thou buy an Hebrew ſervant, ſix years he ſhall ſerve: and in the ſeventh he ſhall go out free for nothing.

[a] Chap. 24. 3, 4. Deut. 4. 14.
[b] Lev. 25. 39. Deut. 15. 12. Jer. 34. 14.

3 If

V. 24. An altar of earth thou ſhalt make unto me—For thy preſent uſe. This they might eaſily and readily erect: God regarded the inward holineſs more than the outward pomp of their devotions. God would make a conſpicuous difference between them and idolaters, who uſed much coſt and curioſity about their altars. In all places—Therefore there is no need of building any ſtately altar in a certain place, as if my preſence were fixed there, and not to be enjoyed elſewhere. I record my name—Or cauſe my name to be remembered by you. I will come unto thee, and I will bleſs thee—The Lord of life, who has now made known to thee his will and thy duty, to prove how ſincerely thou doſt fear him; and if thou accepts of that grace which his faithfulneſs offers to every one with the knowledge of his will, he himſelf will come unto thee and bleſs thee. O Lord ſpeak by thy own ſpirit, and with it by thy word, thy providence, thy ſervants, thy children, by afflictions, and by thy miſeries to all mankind, that all may know thee, and what it is to be bleſſed of thee!

V. 25. Thou haſt polluted it—The action may ſeem indifferent in itſelf; and, as there was nothing morally evil in lifting up a tool upon any ſtone of which the altar was built, it could not be polluted by an action which, in itſelf, had not in it any thing of an immoral nature. It is by reaſoning in this manner, that the will of God is diſobeyed in numberleſs ways. It may be ſaid, there is nothing morally evil in mens loving money, and delighting in the increaſe of wealth, ſo as they do but obtain it juſtly; and thus the delight of a man's ſoul may be in his property, and not in God, his treaſure on earth, from whence death muſt force him away; and not laid up in heaven by any deſign of living to be happy with God; and yet nothing immoral may be juſtly chargeable againſt the perſon whoſe conduct this is. Men may bow down to an image; they may, by name, call upon angels and the ſpirits of their deceaſed fellow-creatures, to procure them bleſſings, as interceſſors with God in heaven; a character which only belongs to the Second perſon in the Godhead—and therefore idolatry; and yet it may be ſaid, there is no moral guilt in this, becauſe no man is injured. Making uſe of any part of the day God has commanded for his own more immediate ſervice, for purpoſes of ordinary buſineſs or amuſement, may be ſaid to defile the Sabbath, as little as lifting up a tool on any ſtone of which the altar was to be built, polluted the altar: But all that can be ſaid on ſuch reaſoning concludes in this—That we are the judges of all caſes of right and wrong between the Everlaſting God and men, and that it cannot be, that any thing ſhould offend God which does no harm to any human creature. The daring preſumption of this way of thinking appears to us by conſidering, that God has given laws to men, and by which he has declared he will judge all men. God commands nothing to be done, but what is for the good of every man, and all men, and there is the higheſt guilt in diſregarding or neglecting any command of God, according to the plain known meaning of it; to do ſo, is no other than declared contempt of the Majeſty of God, and rebellion againſt his laws and government. I can no more be miſtaken, that there are but two powers for every man to obey, than that there is day and night, light and darkneſs: If the rational powers of my ſoul are not bent on doing the will of God, whoſe will am I doing? In that ſoul where God is not feared, believed in, loved and obeyed, the god of this world, as ſatan is called, is as certainly ſerved and obeyed, as that there are but two ſtates after death; one, where the ever bleſſed God reigns in the ſpirits of all that love him; and the other, where the prince of darkneſs, the fallen angels, and the ſpirits of thoſe who reſiſted the laſt offers of redeeming love, by the Spirit of God, dwell in that miſery, which all the wickedneſs, violence, and wretchedneſs which we ſee among men on earth, is but a faint reſemblance; God has told us, that miſery and torment, anguiſh of ſoul, and perſonal pain, without end or abatement, is the ſtate of men after death, who wilfully allowed themſelves to continue, without the knowledge of his will, careleſsly went on with the multitudes about them, who did not ſo much as pretend to live to God, and who died as they lived, not ſeeing their own ſinfulneſs, or having any deſire of being reconciled to that God, whoſe nature, however clearly revealed, made the leaſt part of their ſtudy; whoſe will, however juſtly to be allowed by right of creation, to be the univerſal law, was neither their employment, nor their care. When men will not any longer allow themſelves to hazard their eternal intereſts upon the expectation, that the example of the generality of mankind is ſurely in conformity to the nature and will of God, and the way to heaven—when men begin to form their judgments of what God their Creator and Redeemer is to do for them, to prepare them for his preſence upon good grounds, from his ſacred word, his clearly revealed will; then they begin to ſee what they are aſhamed they have been ſo long in learning; and that is, in every inſtance, where God has not been obeyed by them, the devil has been obeyed by them.—That ſo long as they have lived without a fixed deſign to pleaſe God, it muſt be, that they could not be under the influence of his Spirit, and in the ways of his will; and not being in the ways of God, they of courſe have been living far from him, and not belonging to him; but the children of the devil, whoſe work every one is doing, who is not living to God, agreeable to his word, to his will; no matter whoſe example they have to warrant them in the way in which they have lived; and ſeeing the danger of dying under the ſentence of God's law, inforced by his grace, convicting the conſcience of ſin; the love of God in Chriſt Jeſus is then balm to the ſoul; the whole law of God leads them, by ſhewing them the neceſſity of God for their Mediator and Redeemer; and being convinced of their paſt ignorance, their weakneſs and their guilt, they ſee the neceſſity, not only of being baptized with water, but with the Holy Ghoſt ſent down from heaven, and of feeling for themſelves a death unto ſin in the very tempers, paſſions, and deſires of their ſouls, and what it is to be alive unto God through Jeſus Chriſt their Lord; and that the life they now live, is by faith in him; and that, by grace received through faith in him, they find themſelves in the very ſpirit of that kingdom which they have ſo often prayed might come, and, by the ſtrength of that grace alone, they are as truly enabled to do the will of God on earth—in this life, as that the earth is a reality, and that God's word is true, as God is true; and that God does not command that which is ſlaviſh and miſerable, but that which the more it is regarded, the more of peace, of joy, of love, of heaven, of God, becauſe the more of his Spirit, which does, and ever will enable the believing mind to do his commandments. Mark xii. 24, 27. Hoſ. iv. 6 Exod. xxiii. 2. John xvi. 13, and viii. 44. and v. 23, 29. Rom. xiv. 17. Luke xvi. 19. Rev. xxi. 8. 2 Cor. iii. 5.

CHAP. XXI.

V. 1. Theſe are the judgments—The laws in civil and criminal cauſes.

V. 2. If

Before Christ 1491.

3 If he came in * by himself, he shall go out by himself: if he were married, then his wife shall go out with him.

* Heb. with his body.

4 If his master have given him a wife, and she have borne him sons or daughters; the wife and her children shall be her master's, and he shall go out by himself.

c Deut. 15. 16. † Heb. saying shall say.

5 [c] And if the servant † shall plainly say, I love my master, my wife, and my children, I will not go out free:

d Chap. 22. 28.

6 Then his master shall bring him [d] unto the judges; he shall also bring him to the door, or unto the door-post: and his master shall bore his ear through with an awl; and he shall serve him for ever.

7 ¶ And if a man sell his daughter to be a maid-servant, she shall not go out as the men-servants do.

8 If she ‡ please not her master, who hath betrothed her to himself, then shall he let her be redeemed: To sell her unto a strange nation he shall have no power, seeing he hath dealt deceitfully with her.

Before Christ 1491.

‡ Heb. be evil in the eyes of &c.

9 And if he have betrothed her unto his son, he shall deal with her after the manner of daughters.

10 If he take him another wife; her food, her raiment, [e] and her duty of marriage shall he not diminish.

e 1 Cor. 7. 5.

11 And if he do not these three unto her, then shall she go out free without money.

12 ¶ [f] He that smiteth a man, so that he die, shall be surely put to death.

f Gen. 9. 6. Lev. 24. 17. Matt. 26. 52.

13 And if a man lie not in wait, but God deliver

V. 2. If thou buy an Hebrew servant—This was allowed in two cases: 1. When a man for his crimes was condemned by the judges to be sold. (Exod. xxii. 3. 2 Kings iv. 1. Matt. xviii. 25.) 2. When a man pressed by great poverty, sold himself or his children. Lev. xxv. 39, 40. In the seventh year—From the beginning of his service. He shall go out free for nothing—This was the law by which men were to conduct themselves, who were under God's government, in the case of holding slaves or bond-men; and this, and all other rules of conduct between men and men, since God has fully and finally revealed his will, is to be taken with that universal principle, of doing as we would be done by; to expect, therefore, to find authority from the word of God to countenance perpetual slave-holding, is as hopeless an expectation, as it would be to look for authority from infinite justice and goodness for that which in itself is unjust and unmerciful: And if any number of nations were to make laws, to allow their subjects to make, (if by any means they could,) the men, women, and children of other nations would be their slaves for life, and their children after them; it is to be said of such conduct, as it was of theirs, of whom it is said, It did not enter into the mind of God, that men should so act to one another; the Father of mercies, the common parent of the human race, is the perpetual judge of all the earth, according to his own holy, just, and gracious nature, never for a moment giving up his own Almighty government out of his hands; and men are bound by their regard to their own safety and peace, to remember that God is neither to be mocked nor his justice escaped, because men have human authority for what they do: whatever is contrary to the will of God is to be avoided, as we would avoid the wrath of God, let other men, be they many or few, agree to act as they please; every thing that is in itself opposed to the plain meaning, and to the spirit and principles of God's declared will, being in itself either wilful wickedness, or an ignorant careless compliance with his accursed influence, whose desire to afflict men is such as prevents his waiting in many cases, till they awake up in endless misery: It is on Divine authority, that we know the devil is seeking whom he may devour, by leading men into any conduct, which instead of its being for the glory of God and good of men; is dishonourable to God, and cruel and unjust to men.

V. 4. The children shall be her masters—Which they had become in consequence of the right which he had to the parents; but how different is it for children to continue to live under the same roof where they were born and to be forced away into slavery from their parents, kindred and country.

V. 6. His master shall bring him unto the judges—That it may appear he is not overawed by his master. His master shall bore his ear through with an awl—As a note of a servant, and to represent his obligation to abide in that house, and there to hear and obey his master's commands. He shall serve him for ever—Not only for six years more, but until the Jubilee. Deut. xv. 17. The word ever here used signifies not always eternity, but only a long time.

V. 7. If a man sell his daughter—Which was allowed in case of extreme necessity.

V. 8. Then shall he let her be redeemed—By any person that will redeem her. To sell her unto a strange nation he shall have no power—This was prohibited, because an heathen would keep her for a perpetual servant, which the Israelites might not do. Seeing he hath dealt deceitfully with her—In breaking his promise of marriage made to her, or disappointing the hopes he encouraged her to have of it. The words are, in dealing deceitfully or falsely with her, and they may be added as an aggravation of that sin of selling her to a strange nation, wherein there was a double false-dealing, the one towards God who by his law forbids this, the other towards her, whom he hired upon other terms, and not with a power to dispose of her contrary to the law.

V. 9. He shall deal with her after the manner of daughters—Give her a convenient portion, as he doth to his own daughters, further shews how contrary this selling and holding these bond-servants, was to the manner of obtaining and holding men and women for slaves brought against their will from their native country, and governing them not by laws founded on any principles of equal justice between men and men, but so much the contrary as to disgrace the nations who permit the practice, and allow of such violence being done to all that belongs to common humanity, and the pure principles of revelation. What laws are these which say for such a crime in a slave—chop off a foot? And yet such there are in the language of men, called by the name of Christ, the merciful Redeemer of the world; who are keeping thousands under forced slavery, and cruel and unjust oppression, never to end but with the life of the sufferers. O Lord, if thy grace is withdrawn, and men are left to the force of their own passions, and rise up against just laws, and spread war and confusion amongst us; leave us not to grow harder by our sufferings, but send thy grace, and sanctify them to their intended end, of leading all to look to thee for pardon, on that which has been done and allowed to be done against thy Almighty will, and for grace to make thy holy, just, and merciful commands the only rule and guide.

V. 12. He that smiteth a man—Knowingly and wilfully, as appears by the next verse. So that he die, shall be surely put to death deliver him into his hand; then [g] I will appoint thee a place whither he shall flee.

Before Christ 1491.

[g] Num. 35. 11. Deut. 19. 3. Josh. 20. 2.

14 But if a man come presumptuously upon his neighbour, to slay him with guile; [h] thou shalt take him from mine altar, that he may die.

[h] 1 Kings 2. 28. 2 Kings 11. 15.

15 ¶ And he that smiteth his father, or his mother, shall be surely put to death.

16 ¶ And [i] he that stealeth a man, and selleth him, or if he be found in his hand, he shall surely be put to death.

[i] Deut. 24. 7.

17 ¶ And [k] he that § curseth his father, or his mother, shall surely be put to death.

[k] Lev. 20. 9. Prov. 20. 20. Matt. 15. 4. Mark 7. 10.

§ Or, revileth.

18 ¶ And if men strive together, and one smite ‖ another with a stone, or with his fist, and he die not, but keepeth his bed:

Before Christ 1491.

‖ Or, his neighbour.

19 If he rise again, and walk abroad upon his staff, then shall he that smote him, be quit: only he shall pay for * the loss of his time, and shall cause him to be thoroughly healed.

* Heb. his ceasing.

20 ¶ And if a man smite his servant, or his maid with a rod, and he die under his hand; he shall be surely † punished.

† Heb. avenged.

21 Notwithstanding, if he continue a day or two, he shall not be punished; for [l] he is his money.

[l] Lev. 25. 45.

22 ¶ If

death—Neither the friends of the party slain, nor the magistrate shall give him a pardon, or accept a ransom for him. (Numb. xxxv. 31.) He that smiteth a man called a slave, knowingly and wilfully, and he die in consequence of it, some of the laws under which poor unhappy slaves are held, say a few pounds shall be paid instead of what God appoints as the punishment for thus taking away the life of a man, originally made in the very image of God.

V. 13. If a man lie not in wait—If it appear, that the manslayer did not intend nor desire it, but only it fell out by his heedlessness, or by some casualty. God deliver him into his hand—By some special unexpected providence. I will appoint thee a place whither he shall flee—A city or place of refuge: And this refuge has the love of God provided for guilty men to fly to in Jesus Christ, to be saved from the just wrath of God against all sin: but who have need to fly to the refuge which God has provided? All, for all have sinned; but when shall the refuge be sought? Not now says unbelief; any other time than the present does the deceiver and destroyer of souls suggest, knowing that only delaying to fly for refuge whilst it may be found, is as certainly to lose all benefit from it, as that faith in God's mercy is a present salvation from all fear that hath torment.

V. 14. But if a man come presumptuously—Do this proudly, boldly, purposely and malitiously; for so the word signifies. Thou shalt take him from mine altar—God so abhorring murder, that he will rather venture the pollution of his own altar, than the escape of the murderer.

V. 15. Nor will any think this law too severe, that considers that this is an act full of impiety against God, who hath so expressly commanded children to honour their parents, of highest and most unnatural ingratitude, and utterly destructive to human society.

V. 16. He that stealeth a man, shall surely be put to death—Though he keep him in his own hands for his own use: for still it is a theft, and he is made that man's slave, and it is in his power to sell him to another when he pleaseth, and therefore deserves death. What do they do who go to other countries with bribes and temptations in their hands, to induce some men to steal and sell or procure them other men, women, and children for slaves by any means; and carry them away in their ships by hundreds, as much against their will as if the men, women, and children were forcibly taken from their dwellings in England, to labour under the lash of a negro driver in any of our plantations. The designs of the written word of God is to have the will of God made the rule of every man's conduct; not so to apply it to ourselves, is to forget that all men are to be judged for all they do by the letter and by the principles of it. Does any thing I make or use encourage men stealing: Do I knowingly consume the things which to make is the very end for which slaves are thus made in the face of the declared will of God; and contrary to all justice and mercy, as we may easily understand, would we but figure to ourselves ships coming on our coasts, to carry away all the men, women, and children that are brought them, without distinction; and that now at the door there is a party of our countrymen strong enough to carry us away, and sell us for what the people in the ships bring to give them: And have we any hand in spreading all this fear and misery in which men must live under such circumstances? Yes, as certainly as that there are things in common use amongst us, which are prepared by the labours of the people, who are brought away by force, for the very purpose of preparing those articles. Are we not to consider if it is a less crime to use in common what we know was stolen by some of the hands through which it came to us, than to use the same things prepared for our use by men, that are stolen: Is it a less crime to use what is taken by force, than it is to use what men make that are forced into slavery? What should we say of a people who constantly made use of those things which they knew was the cause of our friends, relations, and countrymen being forced away to live and die in slavery, in order to prepare for them? When poor slaves shall stand before God on a level with their fellow men, what answer shall I make for using things which they were brought away from their own country by force, and made our slaves against their will, in order to cultivate and prepare? Will it be sufficient to say multitudes used the same things, and it would have been to have denied myself what was agreeable to me, and to have made myself singular to no purpose? Then will it concern us for ever, as much as our happiness or misery will concern us, to know whether our conduct has or has not been warranted by the principles of mercy and universal charity, whatever was the conduct of other men; or whatever was our own conduct in the days wherein we neither feared God, or regarded the rights and peace of other men.

V. 17. He that curseth—Revileth, wilfully, maliciously, obstinately against all admonition.

V. 18. With a stone—Or any other instrument fit for such a mischievous purpose.

V. 19. He shall pay for the loss of his time—Of the profit which he commonly made of his time in the way of his calling. Shall cause him to be throughly healed—Pay the charges of the cure.

V. 20. With a rod—A usual instrument for correction whereby it is implied, that if he kill'd him with a sword or any such weapon, he was to die for it. He shall be surely punished—As the Magistrate or Judge shall think fit, according to the circumstances; and therefore no particular punishment is set down.

V. 21. If he continues a day or two, he shall not be punished—Then it may be presumed not to have done this purposely and maliciously.

V. 22. He shall be surely punished—The husband shall impose the fine, and, if it be unreasonable, the Judges shall have a power to moderate it.

V. 23. Thou

Before Christ 1491.

22 ¶ If men ſtrive, and hurt a woman with child, ſo that her fruit depart from her, and yet no miſchief follow: he ſhall be ſurely puniſhed, according as the woman's huſband will lay upon him; and he ſhall pay as the judges determine.

23 And if any miſchief follow, then thou ſhalt give life for life,

[m] Lev. 24.20. Deut. 19. 21. Matt. 5. 38.

24 [m] Eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, 25 Burning for burning, wound for wound, ſtripe for ſtripe.

26 ¶ And if a man ſmite the eye of his ſervant, or the eye of his maid, that it periſh; he ſhall let him go free for his eye's ſake.

27 And if he ſmite out his man-ſervant's tooth, or his maid-ſervant's tooth; he ſhall let him go free for his tooth's ſake.

28 ¶ If an ox gore a man or a woman, that they die: then [n] the ox ſhall be ſurely ſtoned, and his fleſh ſhall not be eaten; but the owner of the ox ſhall be quit.

[n] Gen. 9. 5.

29 But if the ox were wont to puſh with his horn in time paſt, and it hath been teſtified to his owner, and he hath not kept him in, but that he hath killed a man or a woman; the ox ſhall be ſtoned, and his owner alſo ſhall be put to death.

30 If there be laid on him a ſum of money, then he ſhall give for [o] the ranſom of his life, whatſoever is laid upon him.

[o] Num. 35. 31.

31 Whether he have gored a ſon, or have gored a daughter, according to this judgment ſhall it be done unto him.

32 If the ox ſhall puſh a man-ſervant, or maid-ſervant; he ſhall give unto their maſter [p] thirty ſhekels of ſilver, and the ox ſhall be ſtoned.

[p] See Matt. 26. 15. Phil. 2. 7.

33 ¶ And if a man ſhall open a pit, or if a man ſhall dig a pit, and not cover it, and an ox or an aſs fall therein; Before Christ 1491.

34 The owner of the pit ſhall make it good, and give money unto the owner of them; and the dead beaſt ſhall be his.

35 ¶ And if one man's ox hurt another's that he die, then they ſhall ſell the live ox, and divide the money of it, and the dead ox alſo they ſhall divide.

36 Or if it be known that the ox hath uſed to puſh in time paſt, and his owner hath not kept him in; he ſhall ſurely pay ox for ox, and the dead ſhall he his own.

CHAP. XXII.

IF a man ſhall ſteal an ox, or a * ſheep, and kill it, or ſell it; he ſhall reſtore five oxen for an ox, and [a] four ſheep for a ſheep. * Or, goat. [a] 2 Sam. 12. 6. Luke 19. 8.

2 ¶ If a thief be found breaking up, and be ſmitten that he die, there ſhall no blood be ſhed for him. See Prov. 6. 31.

3 If the ſun be riſen upon him, there ſhall be blood ſhed for him: for he ſhould make full reſtitution; if he have nothing, then he ſhall be ſold for his theft.

4 If the theft be certainly found in his hand alive, whether it be ox, or aſs, or ſheep; he ſhall reſtore double.

5 ¶ If a man ſhall cauſe a field or vineyard to be eaten, and ſhall put in his beaſt, and ſhall feed in another man's field: of the beſt of his own field, and of the beſt of his own vineyard, ſhall he make reſtitution.

6 ¶ If fire break out, and catch in thorns, ſo that the ſtacks of corn, or the ſtanding corn, or the field be conſumed therewith; he

V. 23. Thou ſhalt give life for life—By the judgment of the magiſtrate.

V. 24. This is called the law of retaliation, and from hence the heathen lawgivers took it and put it into their laws. But though this might ſometimes be practiſed in the letter, yet it was not neceſſarily to be underſtood and excuſed ſo, as may appear, 1. By the impoſſibility of the juſt execution of it in many caſes, as when a man that had but one eye or hand was to loſe the other, which to him was a far greater miſchief than what he did to his neighbour, whom he deprived but of one of his eyes or hands. And this is a ſure and righteous rule, puniſhments may be leſs, but never ſhould be greater, than the fault. And how could a wound be made neither bigger nor leſs than that which he inflicted? 2. By comparing this with other laws, wherein a compenſation is allowed in like caſes, as ver. 18, 30. And when it is enjoined, that no ſatisfaction ſhall be taken for the life of a wilful murderer, Numb. xxxv. 31. it ſeems therein implied, that ſatisfaction may be taken for leſſer injuries. And indeed the payment of ſuch a price, as the loſs of an eye or hand or foot required, though it might not ſo much ſatisfy the revenge of the party ſo injured, yet it was really more to his benefit. This law was not literally to be inflicted, if the injuring party would give ſuch ſatisfaction as the injured perſon accepted, or the judges determined.

V. 26. He ſhall go free—A fit recompence to a ſervant for ſuch a loſs.

V. 28. An ox—Or any other creature.

V. 29. And it hath been teſtified—Before the magiſtrate.

V. 30. If there be laid on him a ſum of money—Either by the avenger of blood, the next a-kin to the party ſlain, who is willing to exchange the puniſhment; or by the judge.

V. 31. A ſon or a daughter—This is added, leſt the foregoing ſenſe ſhould be reſtrained to their parents.

CHAP. XXII.

V. 3. If the ſun be riſen, there ſhall be blood ſhed for him—He that kills ſhall be put to death, becauſe he might have been otherwiſe ſecured or righted.

V. 5. A field or vineyard—Or other things of like nature, which is generally to be obſerved in laws.

V. 6. He that kindled the fire—Whether wilfully for ſuch a purpoſe, or careleſsly in ſuch a time or place as was dangerous.

Before Christ 1491. he that kindled the fire ſhall ſurely make reſtitution.

7 ¶ If a man ſhall deliver unto his neighbour money or ſtuff to keep, and it be ſtolen out of the man's houſe; if the thief be found, let him pay double.

8 If the thief be not found, then the maſter of the houſe ſhall be brought unto the judges, to ſee whether he have put his hand unto his neighbour's goods.

9 For all manner of treſpaſs, whether it be for ox, for aſs, for ſheep, for raiment, or for any manner of loſt thing, which another challengeth to be his: the cauſe of both parties ſhall come before the judges; and whom the judges ſhall condemn, he ſhall pay double unto his neighbour.

10 If a man deliver unto his neighbour, an aſs, or an ox, or a ſheep, or any beaſt to keep; and it die, or be hurt, or driven away, no man ſeeing it:

11 Then ſhall an oath of the Lord be between them both, that he hath not put his hand unto his neighbour's goods: and the owner of it ſhall accept thereof, and he ſhall not make it good.

b Gen. 31. 39. 12 And [b] if it be ſtolen from him, he ſhall make reſtitution unto the owner thereof.

13 If it be torn in pieces; then let him bring it for witneſs, and he ſhall not make good that which was torn. Before Christ 1491.

14 ¶ And if a man borrow ought of his neighbour, and it be hurt, or die, the owner thereof being not with it; he ſhall ſurely make it good.

15 But if the owner thereof be with it, he ſhall not make it good: if it be an hired thing, it came for his hire.

c Deut. 22. 28. 16 ¶ And [c] if a man entice a maid that is not betrothed, and lie with her; he ſhall ſurely endow her to be his wife.

17 If her father utterly refuſe to give her unto him, he ſhall * pay money according to the dowry of virgins. *Heb. weigh.

d Lev. 19. 26, 31. & 20. 27. Deut. 18. 10, 11. 1 Sam. 28. 9. 18 ¶ [d] Thou ſhalt not ſuffer a witch to live.

e Lev. 18. 23. and 20. 15. 19 ¶ [e] Whoſoever lieth with a beaſt, ſhall ſurely be put to death.

f Deut. 13. 1, 6, 13, 14, 15. and 17. 2. 20 ¶ [f] He that ſacrificeth unto any god, ſave unto the Lord only, he ſhall be utterly deſtroyed.

g Exod. 23. 9. Lev. 19. 33. and 25. 35. 21 ¶ [g] Thou ſhalt neither vex a ſtranger, nor oppreſs him: for ye were ſtrangers in the land of Egypt.

h Deut. 10. 18. & 24. 17. & 27. 19. Iſa. 1. 17. Zech. 7. 10. James 1. 27. 22 ¶ [h] Ye ſhall not afflict any widow, or fatherleſs child.

23 If thou afflict them in any wiſe, and they

V. 11. An oath of the Lord—Becauſe taken by his authority and appointment, and for his honour, and in his name alone, God being made both witneſs, and judge, and avenger by it.

V. 14. If a man borrow ought—Any living thing, which may be hurt or die.

V. 15. It came for his hire—The benefit was the lender's, and not the borrower's, and therefore the former reaſon ceaſeth, and whether the maſter were preſent or abſent, he that receives the gain or hire ſhall bear the loſs, except when it came through the borrower's wilful fault.

V. 16. If a man entice—By perſuaſions, promiſe of marriage, allurements, or rewards. If ſhe were betrothed, it was puniſhed with death, Deut. xxii. 23.

V. 17. If her father refuſe—Which ſhews the neceſſity of parents conſent in marriage.

V. 18. i. e. Any perſon that is in league with the devil, and by his help doth any miſchief. The word is of the feminine gender, to intimate that no pity ſhould be ſhewed to ſuch offenders, though they were of the weaker ſex.

V. 20. He that ſacrificeth, ſave unto the Lord only—He that declares by any offering, or by any other act of worſhip, that he expects the pardon of his ſins, and preſent and future happineſs on any other account than by the free unmerited mercy of God for the ſake of his beloved Son, that perſon ſhall be deſtroyed under this diſpenſation of my will to the children of Iſrael, that through them it may become known to all mankind, that ſuch is the holineſs of God, and ſuch the ſinfulneſs of men, that for any man to expect the mercy and favour of God but through a Mediator, is the moſt ſinful preſumption; that to declare it by any public act of worſhip, is an example of ſo fatal a tendency, that the perſon who is convicted of it ſhall be puniſhed with death, that it may be noted and ever remembered, that beſides the Holy One of Iſrael, the God of the whole earth, there is no other Saviour from ſin, and from the wrath of God, that all the ends of the earth may look unto God their Redeemer for every temporal, every ſpiritual, and every eternal bleſſing; and when the fulneſs of time is come, and the promiſed Saviour ſhall appear among men, and this part of the law ſhall ceaſe, that then it may from hence be known, that he that finally expects ſalvation in any other name than that of Jeſus, muſt by unavoidable conſequence be loſt, and caſt off from God for ever, as that thoſe were utterly deſtroyed, who, by any outward act of worſhip, ſhewed they aſcribed to any other than the living God, power to ſave and to bleſs.

V. 21. Thou ſhalt neither vex—Grieve or unkindly treat a ſtranger; nor by any means oppreſs him; remember what you yourſelves felt under the unkind and cruel treatment in Egypt, and you muſt not do that to another which you would think contrary to juſtice and charity, if done to yourſelves. One great deſign of all the ſufferings you have been brought through, have been to teach you to feel for others under all their difficulties, that by your means their happineſs may be promoted, and God be praiſed on your account; and ſo good be brought to many out of all the evil which ſatan cauſed to be done unto you.

V. 22. Ye ſhall not afflict any widow—When left among you under any of the circumſtances wherein her weakneſs might give an opportunity of advantage over her; neither ſhall you add to the weight of her ſorrow, in remembering the loſs ſhe has ſuffered in her huſband, who would have protected her againſt either injuſtice, or unkindneſs; neither ſhall ye afflict or unkindly treat any fatherleſs child.

V. 23. I will ſurely hear their cry—Whenever they feel themſelves oppreſſed.

V. 24. I will kill you with the ſword—For your unkindneſs, injuſtice, or cruelty to the helpleſs, becauſe the men who can ſo act have

Before Christ 1491.

they cry at all unto me: I will surely hear their cry;

24 And my wrath shall wax hot, and I will kill you with the sword; and [i] your wives shall be widows, and your children fatherless.

25 ¶ [k] If thou lend money to any of my people that is poor by thee, thou shalt not be to him as an usurer, neither shalt thou lay upon him usury.

26 [l] If thou at all take thy neighbour's raiment to pledge, thou shalt deliver it unto him by that the sun goeth down:

27 For that is his covering only, it is his raiment for his skin: wherein shall he sleep? And it shall come to pass, when he crieth unto me, that I will hear: for I am gracious.

28 ¶ [m] Thou shalt not revile the † gods, nor curse the ruler of thy people.

29 ¶ Thou shalt not delay to offer § the first of thy ripe fruits, and of thy ‖ liquors: [n] the first-born of thy sons shalt thou give unto me.

30 Likewise shalt thou do with thine oxen, and with thy sheep: [o] seven days it shall be with his dam; on the eighth day thou shalt give it me.

31 ¶ And ye shall be holy men unto me: [p] neither shall ye eat any flesh that is torn of beasts in the field: ye shall cast it to the dogs.

CHAP. XXIII.

THOU [a] shalt not * raise a false report: put not thine hand with the wicked to be an unrighteous witness.

2 ¶ [b] Thou shalt not follow a multitude to do evil; neither shalt thou † speak in a cause, to decline after many, to wrest judgment:

3 ¶ [c] Neither shalt thou countenance a poor man in his cause.

4 ¶ [d] If thou meet thine enemy's ox or his ass going astray, thou shalt surely bring it back to him again.

5 [e] If thou see the ass of him that hateth thee, i Psa. 109. 9.

k Lev. 25. 35, 36, 37. Deut. 23. 19. Neh. 5. 7. Psal. 15. 5. Ezek. 18. 8, 17.

l Deut. 24. 6, 10, 13. Job 24. 3, 9. Prov. 20. 16. and 22. 27. Amos 2. 8.

m Acts 23. 5. Jude 8.

† Or, judges, Psal. 82. 6.

§ Heb. thy fulness.

‖ Heb. tear.

n Chap. 13. 2, 12. & 34. 19. Deut. 15. 19.

Before Christ 1491.

o Lev. 22. 27.

p Lev. 22. 8. Ezek. 44. 31.

a Psa. 15. 3.

* Or, receive.

b Lev. 19. 15. Deut. 1. 17.

† Heb. answer

c Psa. 72. 2.

d Deut. 22. 1. Job 31. 29. Prov. 24. 17. and 25. 21. Matt. 5. 44. Rom. 12. 20.

e Deut. 22. 4.

have in them the very spirit of satan, and are setting themselves against the whole mind and nature of the God of mercy; and he shall make your wives widows, and your children fatherless, that it may appear to the world, that He that governs it, sets himself against all that thus offend him by afflicting the helpless.

V. 25. My people—Any Israelite. That is poor—This seems to be added not because such are commonly poor, but by way of restriction; for God had promised greatly to bless and enrich the generality of his people, if they by their wickedness did not hinder it, and that there should be few poor among them, yet some such there should be for the exercise of their charity. Thou shalt not lay upon him usury—The word signifies biting: so usury is called, not by way of distinction, as if moderate usury were allowed in this case, which it was not, because the borrower is here supposed to be poor, to whom not the use only, but sometimes even the principal, is to be remitted, Luke vi. 34, 35.

V. 26. Thy neighbours—That is poor, as appears by comparing this with the next verse, where he is supposed to have but one garment. This is rather a prohibition to take any such thing for a pledge as a man hath great and daily need of.

V. 27. I will hear: for I am gracious—In the whole extent of men's dealings with men, whatever shall be done against the weak, the helpless, and the needy I will take it upon myself, and assuredly redress them; it is my nature to hear every cry of distress, and to shew every mercy to men in the concerns of this life, which I see will not be the means of making my spiritual blessings less desireable.

V. 28. Thou shalt not revile the gods—Magistrates and governors, civil or ecclesiastical. This title is commonly given to such. Jude verse 8.

V. 29. Thou shalt not delay to offer— Lest this delay grow to a total neglect What would not that soul give which went yesterday to its own place with thoughts of repenting to morrow. To delay to turn to God, and to offer ourselves a living sacrifice to him, is all that satan desires or requires, in order to secure them that have sinned among the number of the finally impenitent for ever. Thy sons shalt thou give unto me—Not in kind, but by a price of redemption to be paid to me in their stead.

V. 30. Likewise with thine oxen, and with thy sheep—Ye shall offer their first-born. On the eighth day—Not sooner, because it was till then tender and imperfect, and therefore not fit to be offered to God; that the offering made by himself might be constantly kept in view.

V. 31. Ye shall be holy men unto me—Separated from all filthiness and disobedience, for without holiness no man shall see the Lord.

CHAP. XXIII.

V. 1. Thou shalt not raise a false report—Not take up into thy mouth, either by the first raising, or further spreading of it; or, not bear or endure, as that word signifies; not hear it patiently, readily, approvingly, but discourage and reprove the spreader of it. Put not thine hand with the wicked—Not conspire or agree with them; not give them an helping hand; not encourage them.

V. 2. Thou shalt not follow a multitude—Either their counsel or example. The word, both here and in the following clause, is by some rendered great men, men in power and authority, whom we are commanded not to follow; because the examples of such men are most prevalent. Let men know what they will, and not know the word of God, the will of God, it cannot be that they should know, whether the great or the multitude are living as it is safe and wise, to live or not; and till we do become acquainted with the will of God for ourselves, it is reasonable we should think there is no wisdom and virtue equal to power and wealth, and no safety like that of doing as every body else does. To do evil—Either in general, or particularly, to sin, do mischief, oppress or crush another. Wrest judgment—Turn aside right.

V. 3. Respect or prefer his cause, when the richer man's cause is more just. The meaning of this and the former verse is, there shall be no respect of persons, whether rich or poor, but an impartial consideration of the cause.

V. 4. So far shalt thou be from revenging his injuries, that thou shalt render good to him for them, whereby if thou dost not reconcile him, thou wilt procure peace to thyself, an honour to religion.

V. 5. Whatsoever controversy thou hast with him, that shall not hinder thee from succouring him or his in any distress.

V. 6. Thy poor—The poor which is among you, right must be done to all.

V. 7. Keep

Before Christ 1491.

thee, lying under his burden, ‡ and wouldest forbear to help him; thou shalt surely help with him.

‡ Or, wilt thou cease to help him: or, and wouldest cease to leave thy business for him; thou shalt surely leave it to join with him.

6 Thou shalt not wrest the judgment of thy poor in his cause.

7 Keep thee far from a false matter: and the innocent and righteous slay thou not: for [f] I will not justify the wicked.

f Chap. 34. 7. ‖ Deut. 16. 19. Prov. 17. 8, 23. * Heb. he seeing.

8 ¶ And [g] thou shalt take no gift: for the gift blindeth * the wise, and perverteth the words of the righteous.

g Chap. 22. 21. Deut. 10. 19. and 24. 14, 17. and 27. 19. † Heb. soul.

9 ¶ Also [h] thou shalt not oppress a stranger: for ye know the † heart of a stranger, seeing ye were strangers in the land of Egypt.

h Lev. 25. 3.

10 And [i] six years thou shalt sow thy land, and shalt gather in the fruits thereof:

11 But the seventh year thou shalt let it rest, and lie still; that the poor of thy people may eat: and what they leave, the beasts of the field shall eat. In like manner thou shalt deal with thy vineyard, and with thy ‡ olive-yard.

‡ Or, olive-trees.

k Chap. 20. 8. Deut. 5. 13. Luke 13. 14

12 [k] Six days thou shalt do thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest: that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and thy son and thy handmaid, and the stranger may be refreshed.

l Num. 32. 38. Deut. 12. 3. Josh. 23. 7. Psa. 16. 4. Hos. 2. 17. Zech. 13. 2.

13 And in all things that I have said unto you, be circumspect: and [l] make no mention of the names of other gods, neither let it be heard out of thy mouth.

Before Christ 1491.

14 ¶ [m] Three times thou shalt keep a feast unto me in the year.

m Chap. 34. 23. Lev. 23. 5. Deut. 16. 16.

15 [n] Thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened bread: thou shalt eat unleavened bread seven days, as I commanded thee in the time appointed of the month Abib: for in it thou camest out from Egypt: [o] and none shall appear before me empty:

n Chap. 12. 15. and 13. 3. and 34. 18.

o Chap. 34. 20. Deut. 16. 16.

16 [p] And the feast of harvest, the first-fruits of thy labours, which thou hast sown in the field: and the feast of in-gathering, which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the field.

p Deut. 16. 13.

17 [q] Three times in the year all thy males shall appear before the Lord God.

q Chap. 34. 23. Deut. 16. 16.

18 [r] Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leavened bread, neither shall the fat of my § sacrifice remain until the morning.

r Chap. 34. 25. Lev. 2. 11. Deut. 16. 4.

§ Or, feast.

19 [s] The first of the first-fruits of thy land thou shalt bring into the house of the Lord thy God. [t] Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk.

s Chap. 22. 29. and 34. 26. Num. 18. 13.

t Deut. 14. 21.

20 ¶ Behold,

V. 7. Keep thee far—Abstain from all occasions, degrees, or appearances of falsehood. A false matter—An unrighteous judgment. Slay thou not—Condemn not to death, nor to any other unjust penalty. I will not justify the wicked—If thou dost pronounce such a wicked sentence, I will not justify thee, or hold thee guiltless; I will severely punish thee.

V. 8. Thou shalt take no gift—From such whose causes are depending before thee, because if thou dost not sell justice for it, yet thou wilt both seem to do so, and be tempted to do so. The gift blindeth the wise—Interest and affection corrupt the judgment, and render it partial. Perverteth the words of the righteous—Whose righteous cause is by this means perverted, and a wrong sentence given.

V. 9. Ye know the heart of a stranger—The disposition, dejection, and distress of his heart, which makes him an object of pity, not of malice or injustice.

V. 11. Thou shalt let it lie still—From manuring, plowing, tilling and sowing, and reaping also. This God ordained for the more comfortable provision for the poor, and that he might try and secure the obedience of the Israelites; that he might keep them in dependance upon himself, and give to them and to all their neighbours a manifest proof of his singular and gracious providence over his people; that by this kind of quit-rent they might be admonished that God alone was the Lord of the land, and they were only tenants at his will; that being freed from their great labours about the land, they might have the more leisure to meditate upon God's works, and to attend upon his will. That the poor of thy people may eat—God gave a special blessing to the sixth year, whereby it did bring forth the fruit of three years; and, in years of so great plenty, men are generally more negligent in their reaping, and therefore the relics are more. In like manner with thy vineyard and olive-yard—Thou shalt not prune nor dress them, nor gather and appropriate to thy own use what they shall produce, but shalt leave them to the poor.

V. 12. The seventh day thou shalt rest—This command is here repeated, lest any should think the weekly rest might cease when the whole year was consecrated to rest. There were three sorts of Sabbaths to the Jews, 1. Of days. 2. Of years, to wit, the seventh year. 3. Of weeks of years, to wit the jubilee, and all these are types of the eternal rest in heaven, where pain and sorrow shall never enter.

V. 13. Be circumspect—Watch and be sober. When am I to do so? Always. What, no relaxation from constant care? Yes, when there is no world to be loved, no idols to set our hearts upon, no desires that will lead us from the love of him that bought us; nor no deceiver to betray us into sin; when once we are out of the reach of all these evils, then the command to be circumspect will be to mind our part in praising God and the Lamb that redeemed us for ever. Make no mention of the names of other Gods—With honour, or delight, or without detestation;—not mention them in your worship, or in oaths, or in common discourse, and without special occasion, lest the frequent mention of them might keep up their memory, or introduce their worship.

V. 15. None shall come at those times without some offering or other, for the support of the worship of God: What they would give was left to their choice.

V. 16. The feast of harvest—Of wheat-harvest: This feast was otherwise called Pentecost. The feast of in-gathering—Of all the fruits of the earth. This was called also the feast of booths and of tabernacles. All their three feasts had a respect to the harvest, which began in the passover, was carried on at Pentecost, and was fully compleated and ended in this feast. End of the year—Of the common or civil year which began in September, as the sacred year began in March.

V. 17. Thy males—Such as are of years, and have health and strength. Shall appear before the Lord God—In that place where God shall record his name, as the tabernacle or temple.

V. 19. The first-fruits—Were to be given to God of all that the earth produced.

Before Christ 1491.

20 ¶ [u] Behold, I send an Angel before thee to keep thee in the way, and to bring thee into the place which I have prepared.

21 Beware of him, and obey his voice, provoke him not: for he will not pardon your transgressions: for my name is in him.

22 But if thou shalt indeed obey his voice, and do all that I speak; then [x] I will be an enemy unto thine enemies, and ‖ an adversary unto thine adversaries.

23 [y] For mine Angel shall go before thee, and [z] bring thee in unto the Amorites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Canaanites, and the Hivites, and the Jebusites: and I will cut them off.

24 Thou shalt not bow down to their gods, nor serve them, [a] nor do after their works: [b] but thou shalt utterly overthrow them, and quite break down their images.

25 And ye shall serve the Lord your God, and [c] he shall bless thy bread, and thy water: and [d] I will take sickness away from the midst of thee.

26 ¶ [e] There shall nothing cast their young, nor be barren in thy land: the number of thy days I will fulfil.

27 I will send my fear before thee, and will destroy all the people to whom thou shalt come, and I will make all thine enemies turn their * backs unto thee.

28 And [f] I will send hornets before thee, which shall drive out the Hivite, the Canaanite, and the Hittite from before thee.

29 [g] I will not drive them out from before thee in one year; lest the land become desolate, and the beast of the field multiply against thee.

30 By little and little I will drive them out from before thee, until thou be increased, and inherit the land.

31 And [h] I will set thy bounds from the Red u Chap. 14. 19. and 33. 2, 14. Num. 20. 16. Josh. 5. 13. and 6. 2. Isa. 63. 9.

x Gen. 12. 3. Deut. 30. 7. Jer. 30. 20.
‖ Or, I will afflict them that afflict thee.
y Verse 20. Chap. 33. 2.
z Josh. 24. 11.

a Lev. 18. 3. Deut. 12. 31.
b Chap. 34. 13. Num. 33. 52. Deut. 7. 5, 25. and 12. 3.
c Deut. 28. 5, 8.

Before Christ 1491.

d Chap. 15. 26. Deut. 7. 15.
e Deut. 7. 14.

* Heb. neck.

f Deut. 7. 20. Josh. 24. 12.

g Deut. 7. 22.

h Gen. 15. 18. Num. 34. 3. Deut. 11. 24. Josh. 1. 4. 1 Kings 4. 21, 24. Psa. 72. 8.

V. 20. I send an angel—Christ, the angel of the covenant, as may be gathered from the following words; because pardon of sin, which is God's prerogative, is here ascribed to him, and God's name is in him.

V. 21. He will not pardon your transgressions—He will severely punish you for them, if you continue obstinate in your sins. My name is in him—Is in his inward parts, i. e. is intimately united to him, according to John 10. 38. I am in the father, and the father in me. It not only signifies, that he acts in his name, and by his power and authority, which even the apostles did, and other ministers of the gospel do, and therefore it is unreasonable to think no more is ascribed to this angel, but that his divine nature or essence is in him, whence he is called the Lord our righteousness, Jer. xxiii 6. and God, who will not give his glory to another, Isa. xlii. 8. hath given it to Christ, that all men should honour the son, even as they honour the father, John v. 23. which never was nor can be said of any angel without blasphemy. Add to this, that the word name is oft put for the thing or being, whether it be human or divine, as is manifest from Deut. xxviii. 58. Psal. xx. 1. and cxv. 1. Isa. xxx. 27. Act i. 15. Rev. iii. 4. and xi. 13. And so it must be here, because this name is not said to be given to him as it would be, if it were properly taken, but to be in him, or in his inwards, which agrees well to the divine nature or essence, but not to the mere name.

V. 22. If thou do all that I speak—All that I have commanded, and shall further prescribe.

V. 24. Thou shalt not bow down to their gods, nor serve them—Give them neither outward worship with thy body, nor inward with thy mind. Nor do after their works—Nor follow their example in the worship of idols. Thou shalt utterly overthrow them—The people, lest thou be ensnared by their counsel or example. And quite break down their images—Statues, or pillars, or any thing else erected in honour to their false gods.

V. 25. The Lord your God shall bless thy bread and thy water—Thy meat and thy drink, that they shall be able to nourish thee and give thee comfort, which, without my blessing, they will never be able to do.

V. 26. Nothing cast their young, nor be barren—A double mercy. The number of thy days I will fulfil—I will preserve thee as long as the course of nature will permit; as long as life is a blessing to thee, whilst they that live not in fear of offending Me, or by faith in my mercy through the Son of my love, shall not live out half their days.

V. 27. I will send my fear before thee—A terror wrought by me in their minds, as the consequence of their iniquities, the measure of which is now nearly filled up, and the sentence of my justice shall be executed by thee upon them.

V. 28. I will send hornets—Heathen writers give us instances of people driven from their seats by frogs, mice, bees, and wasps. Such is God's power, and such is human weakness, that he can drive thousands of the proudest mortals that ever breathed before the poorest reptiles that creep upon the earth, or the smallest insects that live in the air. How great must be our impiety in forgetting God, and thinking ourselves independent of him for our happiness. In every thing that lives, we see a creature that only needs a single motion of the will of God to torment the whole human race, and make their lives a burthen to them. Yes, but there is no fear of this, God is too merciful. Yes, he is merciful above all human thought; till the last offer of his grace is sinned away; till then, all his mercies and all our sufferings are to lead us to live in his fear, and to place our confidence in his boundless good-will to men, for the sake of his Son, our Saviour; but whenever we make the mercies of God an argument for fearless, careless living, we may be as sure we are not in the way to possess his favour, as that he has said, Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, at the same time that he has told us, It is his Spirit that worketh in us, to will and to do of his good pleasure. God blesses most, where he is most feared and believed in, most loved, and most faithfully and diligently obeyed.

V. 29. Lest the land become desolate—Void of inhabitants in a great measure, because thy present number is not sufficient to occupy their whole land. God's Providence in the government of the world, like his holy Spirit, bestows blessings on his children by the very same dispensation which afflicts the impenitent

V. 31. The sea of the Philistines—The Mediterranean or Midland sea, upon whose coast the land of the Philistines lay. Unto the river—Euphrates, which is oft called the river by way of eminency. All within these bounds were given them by God, but upon conditions, which they manifestly broke; and therefore were, for the most part, confined to a much narrower compass.

Before Christ 1491. Red sea even unto the sea of the Philistines, and from the desert unto the river: for I will deliver the inhabitants of the land into your hand; and thou shalt drive them out before thee.

[b] Chap. 34. 15. Deut. 7. 2.

32 [b] Thou shalt make no covenant with them, nor with their gods.

[b] Chap. 34. 12. Deut. 7. 16. Josh. 23. 13. Judg. 2. 3. 1 Sam. 18. 21. Psa. 106. 36.

33 They shall not dwell in thy land, lest they make thee sin against me: for if thou serve their gods, [b] it will surely be a snare unto thee.

V. 32. Make no covenant with them, nor with their gods—To worship them; thou shalt not engage thyself, either to the people or to their gods, but shalt root out both.

V. 33. If thou serve—Thou wilt serve: This will be the fruit of thy cohabitation with them, thou wilt thereby be drawn to idolatry. It will surely be a snare—An occasion of further sin and utter ruin.

CHAP. XXIV.

V. 1. He said unto Moses, Come up—After thou hast gone down and acquainted the people with my will, and received their answer, then come up again. Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu—Aaron and his two eldest sons, by this special favour, prepared for that office to which they were to be called. Seventy of the elders of Israel—Persons selected by Moses. God himself thus appointing the number of elders, by whom his people were to be governed, and now putting upon them the honour of being admitted into his more immediate presence. Gen. xlvi. 26, 27. Worship ye afar off—Though they may come further than the people, yet let them keep afar off from the top of the mountain, whither thou only shalt be admitted, to receive laws and oracles from me. Moses thus representing the Mediator, who alone has access unto God in behalf of all men, none coming unto God but by him. The Scriptures have in them the greatest variety of information upon all the greatest and most interesting subjects that can engage the human mind; but with all this variety, the subject of SALVATION is that which runs throughout the whole—man's necessity of it, and God's willingness to bestow it in the way he himself has laid down (and it cannot be obtained in any other) and the manner of communicating all the blessings of God to men through a Mediator, are things ever kept in view; to some part or branch of them the word of God is ever directly treating or alluding; and when once we truly set out for the heavenly Canaan, to seek habitations whose builder and maker is God, eternal in the heavens, from that moment we think much less of any sameness in being reminded of that MEDIATOR, through whom alone we can come unto God, and be admitted into his favour, his fellowship, and finally to dwell with him for ever, than men do in being often reminded of a friend, on whom all their expectations of advancement in this world depends. Let but a man's whole mind be taken up with any of the short-lived objects of this world, and whilst they continue to be the desires of his heart, will not the person, the character, the office held by him on whom all our hopes are placed be subjects of continual delight? Well did one say, "O thou bleeding Lamb, the best morality is love of thee." And not less true it is, that to delight ourselves in him, and to take all occasions of turning to think of him, from whom, and for whose sake, we have all we possess or hope for, is our most certain happiness. (Ps. xxxvii. 4.)

V. 2. Moses alone shall come near the Lord—Without any other person. Neither shall the people go up with him—To any part of the mount, but they shall tarry at the bottom.

V. 3. Moses came—Down from the mount to the people, after he had received the laws from God. All the words which the Lord

CHAP. XXIV.

Before Christ 1491.

AND he said unto Moses, Come up unto the Lord, thou and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, [a] and seventy of the elders of Israel: and worship ye afar off. [a] Chap. 1. 1.

2 And Moses alone shall come near the Lord: but they shall not come nigh, neither shall the people go up with him.

3 ¶ And Moses came and told the people all the words of the Lord, and all the judgments:

hath said, will we do—This they so readily and rashly promise, because they were not sensible of their own weakness, and because they did not understand the comprehensiveness, and spirituality, and strictness of God's law, but thought it consisted only in the external performances and abstinences expressed. He that resolves to take the will of God his Saviour for his law to live by, must keep it in mind that the Spirit of God is no less to be looked to for the power to perform what he has resolved on, than that the sun in the firmament is the natural cause of all light and heat. When first the grace of God shines upon the soul, and shews us the love of God in Christ Jesus, and we see a little of the greatness of the glory of God, and the blessedness of having the Ancient of Days for our present and everlasting friend, through the beloved MEDIATOR between God and man, we are then ready to say with Israel of old—"All that my God and Saviour commands me that will I do," and so we truly mean, but deceived into forgetfulness of that grace by which we are only able to stand, satan having diverted us from looking unto the author of our faith, begins to make use of the world about us, and of our pride, passions, and affections, of our worldly hopes and fears to lead us to change our purpose; and when the men of credit and prudence are made use of by him whom they know not to be their employer, and they tell us, the way we are taking will bring us to be numbered with transgressors, and to be like them that are held nearly in as much contempt as were the Israel of God in Egypt, or the first followers of the Lord Jesus, many of whom that knew them all, knew them to have been unrighteous persons, fornicaters, idolaters, adulterers, effeminate persons, abusers of themselves with mankind, thieves, coveteus, drunkards, revilers, and extortioners; and, when the newly resolved servant of God sees it is true, that such were many of those who are now professedly taking upon themselves the commands of God for the law and rule of their lives, (1 Cor. vi. 9, 10, 11,) and forgetting that God their Saviour came not to save them that are righteous in their own eyes and despise others, but to call sinners to repentance, satan prevails, with the pride of the heart, to be ashamed of living to please God, because those do so who are evil spoken of; but if satan discovers, that the convinced sinner is acquainted that some of the most eminent servants of God, in every age, had been amongst the most vile, till they were born again unto God; and that there is no real disgrace of taking the will of God for the rule of life, then satan finding the resolution to follow God, is not to be changed by shame; he knows, all that a man hath will he give for his life; he then suggests the great good there is in having the favour of men, and the comfort there is in prosperity; and when he has thus prepared the soul to be half of the mind, that there may be nearly as much happiness in the love of the world, as in the love of God; he then influences some that heard of our setting out to live to God in a way they do not know, to fall upon our self-love, and, in the pride of their hearts, to give us to understand, that we must suffer hardship, loss, and reproach, if we take to any other way of living than that of the world about us, though they pretend to no warrant from the word of God; either

Before Christ 1491.

ments: and all the people answered with one voice, and said, [b] All the words which the Lord hath said, will we do.

b Verse 7. Chap. 19. 8. Deut. 5. 27.

4 And Moses wrote all the words of the Lord, and rose up early in the morning, and builded an altar under the hill, and twelve pillars according to the twelve tribes of Israel.

5 And he sent young men of the children of Israel, which offered burnt-offerings, and sacrificed peace-offerings of oxen unto the Lord.

6 And Moses took half of the blood, and put it in basons; and half of the blood he sprinkled on the altar.

7 And he took the book of the covenant, and read in the audience of the people: and they said, [c] All that the Lord hath said, will we do, and be obedient.

c Verse 3.

8 And Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people, and said, Behold [d] the blood of the covenant, which the Lord hath made with you concerning all these words.

d Heb. 9. 20. and 13. 20. 1 Pet. 1. 2.

9 ¶ Then went up Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and seventy of the elders of Israel.

Before Christ 1491.

10 And they saw the God of Israel: and there was under his feet, as it were a paved work of [e] sapphire-stone, and as it were the body of heaven in his clearness.

e Ezek. 1. 26. and 10. 1.

11 And upon the nobles of the children of Israel he laid not his hand: also [f] they saw God, and did eat and drink.

f Chap. 33. 20. Gen. 16. 13. and 32. 30. Deut. 4. 33. Judges 13. 23.

12 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Come up to me into the mount, and be there: and I will give thee [g] tables of stone, and a law, and commandments which I have written; that thou mayest teach them.

g Chap. 31. 18. and 32. 16.

13 And Moses rose up, and [h] his minister Joshua: and Moses went up into the mount of God.

h Chap. 33. 11.

14 And he said unto the elders, Tarry ye here for us, until we come again unto you: and behold, Aaron and Hur are with you: if any man have any matters to do, let him come unto them.

15 And

either for their designs in living, or the manner in which they live; and what he could not do by our pride, he does by our self-love, our unwillingness to suffer in our persons and our characters, and our fears of losing our share in the good things of this life, which he had before magnified in our esteem; and thus addressing himself to the soul, he, if possible, inclines the heart to think God is not the only good, that his will on earth is not our only certain happiness; that we may live to please the world and ourselves, and be as sure of heaven as every body else is, who are as little careful as we are to live to God; and by thus proceeding, he brings thousands to do as Israel did, after so confidently declaring with one voice, that they would live according to all the words of the Lord, soon publicly declare their sorrow, that they had set out in obedience to the will of God, but that it would have been better that they had remained in the service of Pharaoh. In going through the remainder of their history, to be benefited by it, we ought to keep it in mind, that it is an account of the conduct of men of like passions with ourselves; and all their fears, murmurs, and their consequent misery and death in their wilderness state, is to caution us against that unbelief which was the cause of all.

V. 4. Moses wrote all the words of the Lord—In a book—the ten commandments God himself wrote in tables of stone. And builded an altar—Representing God in Christ, as one party in the covenant. And twelve pillars—Representing the people of Israel, the other party, the outward signs of a covenant made between God and the Israelites.

V. 6. Moses took the blood, and sprinkled the altar—To signify that God was appeased by the blood of Christ, as also that Christ was sanctified with his own blood, (Heb. ix. 12.)

V. 7. He took the book of the covenant—Wherein Moses had written the covenant, the words and laws of God. In the audience of the people—Read, or otherwise published it to all the people successively.

V. 8. Moses took the blood, and sprinkled it on the people—This sprinkling of the blood upon the people, signified their ratification of the covenant on their parts, and their secret wishing of the effusion of their own blood if they did not keep it. The sprinkling of their consciences with the blood of Christ, and their obtaining redemption, justification, and access to God through it alone. (Heb. ix. 20, 22. and xiii. 20.) The blood of the covenant—Whereby the covenant is made and confirmed, as was usual in Scripture, (Mat. xxvi. 28.)

V. 9. Then went up Moses and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu—In obedience to the command of God given.

V. 10. They saw the God of Israel—The second person in the Trinity, who now shewed himself to them in a glorious shape, as a testimony of his future incarnation. As it were a sapphire-stone—Which is of a clear sky-colour, mixed with golden spots, like stars in the sky. The body of heaven in his clearness—Of glory.

V. 11. They saw God, and did eat and drink—So far were they from being destroyed, that they were not affrighted at this glorious appearance of God, but were refreshed and comforted by it, and did joyfully eat and drink in God's presence, celebrating the sacred feast. Thus God gave them a taste of his grace and mercy in this covenant, and an assurance that for the sake of the blood of Christ, typically represented, he would graciously pardon and accept all that believed in him.

V. 12. And be there—Abide there. I will give thee tables of stone—He chose that material, partly as very durable, yet so that it was capable of being broken, which God, foreseeing their wickedness, intended to do, and partly for signification, to note the hardness of men's hearts; and only capable of being brought into obedience to the will of God by his holy Spirit. A law, and commandments—The ten commandments, so called by way of eminency, for these only were written by God upon the stoney tables; the rest were written by Moses in a book.

V. 13. Moses rose up, and his minister Joshua—Who did not go up with Moses to the top of the mount, but abode in some lower place, waiting for his return; and there Joshua abode forty days, having as the rest had, manna for his meat, and for his drink, water out of the brook that descended out of the mount. (Deut. ix. 21.)

V. 14. He said unto the elders, Tarry ye here for us—For me and Joshua. Aaron and Hur are with you—To determine your causes.

V. 16. The

Before Christ 1491.

15 And Moſes went up into the mount, and [i] a cloud covered the mount.

[i] Chap. 19. 9, 16. [k] Num. 14. 10.

16 And [k] the glory of the Lord abode upon mount Sinai, and the cloud covered it ſix days: and the ſeventh day he called unto Moſes out of the midſt of the cloud.

17 And the ſight of the glory of the Lord was like [l] devouring fire on the top of the mount, in the eyes of the children of Iſrael.

[l] Deut. 4. 36. Heb. 12. 29.

18 And Moſes went into the midſt of the cloud, and gat him up into the mount: and [m] Moſes was in the mount forty days, and forty nights.

[m] Chap. 34. 28. Deut. 9. 9.

CHAP. XXV.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, that they [n] bring me an † offering: [a] of every man that giveth it willingly with his heart, ye ſhall take my offering.

[n] Heb. take for me. † Or, heave-offering. [a] Chap. 35. 5. 1 Chron. 29. 3. 5. 9. 14. Ezra 2. 68. and 3. 5. Neh. 11. 2.

3 And this is the offering which ye ſhall take of them; gold, and ſilver, and braſs,

4 And blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, and ‡ fine linen, and goats hair,

‡ Or, ſilk.

5 And rams ſkins dyed red, and badgers ſkins, and ſhittim-wood,

6 [b] Oil for the light, [c] ſpices for anointing oil, and for [d] ſweet incenſe, [b] Chap. 27. 20. [c] Chap. 30. 23. [d] Chap. 30. 34.

7 Onyx-ſtones, and ſtones to be ſet in the [e] ephod, and in the [f] breaſt-plate.

[e] Chap. 28. 4, 6. [f] Chap. 28. 15.

8 And let them make me a ſanctuary; that [g] I may dwell amongſt them.

[g] Chap. 29. 45. 1 Kings 6. 13. 2 Cor. 6. 16. Heb. 3. 6. Rev. 21. 3.

9 According to all that I ſhew thee, after the pattern of the tabernacle, and the pattern of all the inſtruments thereof, even ſo ſhall ye make it.

Before Christ 1491.

10 ¶ [h] And they ſhall make an ark of ſhittim-wood: two cubits and a half ſhall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

[h] Chap. 37. 1. Heb. 9. 4.

11 And thou ſhalt overlay it with pure gold, within and without ſhalt thou overlay it; and ſhalt make upon it a crown of gold round about.

12 And thou ſhalt caſt four rings of gold for it, and put them in the four corners thereof; and two rings ſhall be in the one ſide of it, and two rings in the other ſide of it.

13 And thou ſhalt make ſtaves of ſhittim-wood, and overlay them with gold.

14 And thou ſhalt put the ſtaves into the rings, by the ſides of the ark, that the ark may be borne with them.

15 [i] The ſtaves ſhall be in the rings of the ark: they ſhall not be taken from it.

[i] 1 Kings 8. 8.

16 And thou ſhalt put into the ark [k] the teſtimony which I ſhall give thee.

[k] Chap. 16. 34. and 31. 18. Deut. 10. 2. 1 Kings 8. 9. Heb. 9. 4.

17 And [l] thou ſhalt make a mercy-ſeat of pure gold: two cubits and a half ſhall be the length thereof, and a cubit and a half the breadth thereof.

[l] Chap. 37. 6.

18 And thou ſhalt make two cherubims of gold: of beaten work ſhalt thou make them, in the two ends of the mercy-ſeat.

19 And make one cherub on the one end, and

V. 16. The glory of the Lord abode upon mount Sinai—The tokens of his glorious preſence in the fire. The cloud covered it ſix days—From the eyes of the people. The ſeventh day he called unto Moſes—So long God made Moſes wait, to prepare him by degrees for ſo great a work. And God might chooſe the ſeventh day, for the beginning of that glorious work, to put the greater honour upon it, and oblige the people to a ſtricter obſervance of it. So it was upon a Lord's day that the revelation was delivered. (Rev. i. 10.)

V. 17. The ſight of the glory of the Lord was like devouring fire—Like it, for it was not devouring fire to Moſes.

V. 18. Moſes went into the midſt of the cloud—The God that called him enabled him to enter and abide there, whereas, when he was left to himſelf, he could not enter into the tabernacle. (Exod. xl. 35.) Moſes was in the mount forty days and forty nights—In which he did neither eat nor drink. (Exod. xxxiv. 28.) There are no wants to be ſupplied when the ſoul is preſent with God its Saviour in glory.

CHAP. XXV.

V. 1. Having delivered the moral and judicial laws, he now comes to the ceremonial law, wherein he ſets down all things very minutely and particularly.

V. 5. Shittim-wood—A kind of wood growing in Egypt and the deſarts of Arabia, very durable and precious.

V. 8. Let them make me a ſanctuary—A place of public and ſolemn worſhip. That I may dwell amongſt them—Not by my eſſence, which is every where, but by my grace and glorious operations.

V. 10. They ſhall make an ark—A little cheſt or coffer. A cubit—Underſtand it of the common cubit, which is generally conceived to contain a foot and an half of our meaſure.

V. 11. A crown of gold—Or, a border, raiſed up above the reſt of the ark as a crown.

V. 16. The teſtimony—The two tables of ſtone, wherein the Decalogue was written, called the teſtimony, and the tables of the teſtimony, becauſe they were witneſſes of that covenant made between God and his people, whence they are called the tables of the covenant, and the ark, the ark of the covenant. This being as a public record both of God's mercy promiſed to them, and of the duty required of them.

V. 17. Thou ſhalt make a mercy-ſeat—Propitiatory; on which God is ſaid to ſit. This covering is a manifeſt type of Chriſt, who is therefore called the propitiation, (1 John ii. 2. and iv. 10.) becauſe he interpoſeth himſelf between God our Judge, and the law by which we all ſtand condemned. (Gal. iii. 10, 13.)

V. 18. Two cherubims—Figures of human ſhape, in which the Angels uſed to appear: But they had wings to ſignify their expedition in God's work and meſſages. And between theſe Angels God is ſaid to ſit and dwell. So this place was a repreſentation of Heaven, where God ſitteth and dwelleth among the Cherubims and other glorious Angels.

V. 20. Their faces ſhall look towards the mercy-ſeat—Towards God, who is ſuppoſed to ſit there, whoſe face the Angels in heaven always behold, and upon whom their eyes are fixed to obſerve and receive his commands; and towards Chriſt, the true propitiatory, and the other cherub on the other end: even § of the mercy-seat shall ye make the cherubims on the two ends thereof.

Before Christ 1491.

§ Or, of the matter of the mercy-seat.

20 And [m] the cherubims shall stretch forth their wings on high, covering the mercy-seat with their wings, and their faces shall look one to another: toward the mercy-seat shall the faces of the cherubims be.

m 1 Kings 8. 7. 1 Chro. 28. 18. Heb. 9. 5.

21 [n] And thou shalt put the mercy-seat above upon the ark, and in the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee.

n Chap. 26. 34.

22 And [o] there I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee, from above the mercy-seat, from [p] between the two cherubims which are upon the ark of the testimony, of all things which I will give thee in commandment unto the children of Israel.

o Chap. 29. 42. and 30. 36. Lev. 16. 2. Num. 17. 4.
p Num. 7. 89.

23 ¶ [q] Thou shalt also make a table of shittim-wood: two cubits shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and an half the height thereof.

q Chap. 37. 10. 1 Kings 7. 48. 2 Chro. 4. 8.

24 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, and make thereto a crown of gold round about.

25 And thou shalt make unto it a border of an hand-breadth round about, and thou shalt make a golden crown to the border thereof round about.

26 And thou shalt make for it four rings of gold, and put the rings in the four corners that are on the four feet thereof.

27 Over against the borders shall the rings be for places of the staves to bear the table.

28 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold, that the table may be borne with them.

29 And thou shalt make [r] the dishes thereof, and spoons thereof, and covers thereof, and bowls thereof, * to cover withal: of pure gold shalt thou make them.

r Num. 4. 7.

* Or, to pour out withal.

30 And thou shalt set upon the table [s] shew-bread before me alway.

s Before Christ 1491. s Lev. 24. 5.

31 ¶ [t] And thou shalt make a candlestick of pure gold: of beaten work shall the candlestick be made; his shaft, and his branches, his bowls, his knops, and his flowers shall be of the same.

t Chap. 37. 17. 1 Kings 7. 49. Zech. 4. 2. Rev. 1. 12. & 4. 5.

32 And six branches shall come out of the sides of it: three branches of the candlestick out of the one side, and three branches of the candlestick out of the other side.

33 Three bowls made like unto almonds, with a knop and a flower in one branch; and three bowls made like almonds in the other branch, with a knop and a flower: so in the six branches that come out of the candlestick.

34 And in the candlestick shall be four bowls made like unto almonds, with their knops and their flowers.

35 And there shall be a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, according to the six branches that proceed out of the candlestick.

36 Their knops and their branches shall be of the same: all it shall be one beaten work of pure gold.

37 And thou shalt make the seven lamps thereof: and [u] they shall † light the lamps thereof, that they may [x] give light over against ‡ it.

u Chap. 27. 21. and 30. 8. Lev. 24. 3, 4.
† Or, cause to ascend.
x Num. 8. 2.
‡ Heb. the face of it.

38 And the tongs thereof, and the snuff-dishes thereof shall be of pure gold.

39 Of a talent of pure gold shall he make it, with all these vessels.

y Chap. 26. 30. Num. 8. 4. 1 Chron. 28. 11, 19. Acts 7. 44. Heb. 8. 5.

40 And [y] look that thou make them after their pattern, § which was shewed thee in the mount.

§ Heb. which thou wast caused to see.

CHAP.

tiatory, which mystery they desire to look into, (1 Pet. i. 12.) not envying mankind their near and happy relation to him, but taking pleasure in the contemplation of it.

V. 22. There I will meet with thee—There I will be in a special and gracious manner present with thee, and looking to his throne of mercy and grace, and keeping his commandments with care and watchfulness, is the way in which God meets all his Israel still.

V. 27. The rings—Place for the carriage.

V. 29. Thou shalt make the dishes—In which the bread and frankincence were put. To cover with all—The table shall be covered in a manner with these vessels.

V. 30. Shew-bread—Bread of the presence, so called, because it was constantly placed in God's presence. The bread was divided into twelve loaves, one for every tribe, and they were in their name presented to God in the nature of an offering, as the frankincence shews, as a public acknowledgment, that they received all their bread or food, both corporal and spiritual, from God's hand, and were to use it as in God's presence.

V. 31. Thou shalt make—Thyself, or some other person.

V. 32. Six branches—In every one of which was a lamp, and there was a seventh lamp in the stem of it; these together represent the seven Spirits of God, (Revel. i. 4. and iv. 5. and v. 6.) Or the Spirit of God, the great enlightener of the church, with his sevenfold or various gifts and operations

V. 37. They—Whom I shall appoint for that work.

V. 39. A talent—Which contains three thousand shekels, or 125 pounds.

V. 40. Look that thou make them after their pattern—Let all be exactly done as God shews thee, in nothing substituting thy reason in the place of the clear discoveries which he has given thee of his will.

Before Christ 1491.

CHAP. XXVI.

MOREOVER, [a] thou shalt make the tabernacle with ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet: with cherubims * of cunning work shalt thou make them.

[a] Chap. 36. 8.

* Heb. the work of a cunning workman, or, embroiderer.

2 The length of one curtain shall be eight and twenty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain, four cubits: and every one of the curtains shall have one measure.

3 The five curtains shall be coupled together one to another: and other five curtains shall be coupled one to another.

4 And thou shalt make loops of blue upon the edge of the one curtain, from the selvedge in the coupling; and likewise shalt thou make in the uttermost edge of another curtain, in the coupling of the second.

5 Fifty loops shalt thou make in the one curtain, and fifty loops shalt thou make in the edge of the curtain that is in the coupling of the second; that the loops may take hold one of another.

6 And thou shalt make fifty taches of gold, and couple the curtains together with the taches: and it shall be one tabernacle.

[b] Chap. 36. 14.

7 ¶ And [b] thou shalt make curtains of goat's hair to be a covering upon the tabernacle: eleven curtains shalt thou make.

8 The length of one curtain shall be thirty cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: and the eleven curtains shall be all of one measure.

9 And thou shalt couple five curtains by themselves, and six curtains by themselves, and shalt double the sixth curtain in the forefront of the tabernacle.

10 And thou shalt make fifty loops on the edge of the one curtain that is outmost in the coupling, and fifty loops in the edge of the curtain which coupleth the second.

11 And thou shalt make fifty taches of brass, and put the taches into the loops, and couple the † tent together, that it may be one.

† Or, covering.

12 And the remnant that remaineth of the curtains of the tent, the half-curtain that remaineth, shall hang over the back-side of the tabernacle.

13 And a cubit on the one side, and a cubit on the other side ‡ of that which remaineth in the length of the curtains of the tent, it shall hang over the sides of the tabernacle, on this side, and on that side, to cover it.

‡ Heb. in the remainder, or, superfluge.

Before Christ 1491.

14 And [c] thou shalt make a covering for the tent, of rams skins dyed red, and a covering above of badgers skins.

[c] Chap. 36. 19.

15 ¶ And thou shalt make boards for the tabernacle, of shittim-wood, standing up.

16 Ten cubits shall be the length of a board, and a cubit and an half shall be the breadth of one board.

17 Two § tenons shall there be in one board, set in order one against another: thus shalt thou make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

§ Heb. hands.

18 And thou shalt make the boards for the tabernacle, twenty boards on the south side, southward.

19 And thou shalt make forty sockets of silver, under the twenty boards: two sockets under one board for his two tenons, and two sockets under another board for his two tenons.

20 And for the second side of the tabernacle on the north side, there shall be twenty boards, 21 And their forty sockets of silver: two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

22 And for the sides of the tabernacle westward, thou shalt make six boards.

23 And two boards shalt thou make for the corners of the tabernacle in the two sides.

24 And they shall be ‖ coupled together beneath, and they shall be coupled together above the head of it unto one ring: thus shall it be for them both; they shall be for the two corners.

‖ Heb twinned

25 And they shall be eight boards, and their sockets of silver, sixteen sockets: two sockets under one board, and two sockets under another board.

26 ¶ And thou shalt make bars of shittim-wood: five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle, 27 And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the side of the tabernacle for the two sides westward.

28 And the middle bar in the midst of the boards shall reach from end to end.

29 And thou shalt overlay the boards with gold,

CHAP. XXVI.

V. 1. The tabernacle—Tent, wherein the ark, table, and candlestick were to be placed.

V. 14. Thou shalt make a covering—To preserve the rest from the injury of the weather.

V. 27. For the two sides westward—For the side looking westward.

V. 30. Which

Before Christ 1491.

gold, and make their rings of gold for places for the bars: and thou shalt overlay the bars with gold.

30 And thou shalt rear up the tabernacle [d] according to the fashion thereof, which was shewed thee in the mount.

[d] Chap. 25. 9, 40. & 27. 8. Acts 7. 44. Heb. 8. 5.

31 ¶ And [e] thou shalt make a vail of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen of cunning work: with cherubims shall it be made.

[e] Chap. 36. 35. 2 Chron. 3. 14. Matt. 27. 51. Heb. 9. 3.

32 And thou shalt hang it upon four pillars of shittim-wood, overlaid with gold: their hooks shall be of gold, upon the four sockets of silver.

33 ¶ And thou shalt hang up the vail under the taches, that thou mayest bring in thither within the vail, the ark of the testimony: and the vail shall divide unto you, [f] between the holy place and the most holy.

[f] Heb. 9. 2, 3.

34 And thou shalt put the mercy-seat upon the ark of the testimony, in the most holy place.

35 And [g] thou shalt set the table without the vail, and the candlestick over against the table on the side of the tabernacle toward the south: and thou shalt put the table on the north side.

[g] Heb. 9. 2.

36 And [h] thou shalt make an hanging for the door of the tent, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needle-work.

[h] Chap. 36. 37.

37 And thou shalt make for the hanging, five pillars of shittim-wood, and [i] overlay them with gold, and their hooks shall be of gold: and thou shalt cast five sockets of brass for them.

[i] Chap. 36. 38.

CHAP. XXVII.

AND thou shalt make [a] an altar of shittim-wood, five cubits long, and five cubits broad: the altar shall be four-square, and the height thereof shall be three cubits.

[a] Chap. 38. 1. Ezek. 43. 13.

2 And thou shalt make the horns of it upon the four corners thereof: his horns shall be of the same: and [b] thou shalt overlay it with brass.

Before Christ 1491.

3 And thou shalt make his pans to receive his ashes, and his shovels, and his basons, and his flesh-hooks, and his fire-pans: all the vessels thereof thou shalt make of brass.

[b] See Num. 16. 38.

4 And thou shalt make for it a grate of net-work of brass; and upon the net shalt thou make four brasen rings in the four corners thereof.

5 And thou shalt put it under the compass of the altar beneath, that the net may be even to the midst of the altar.

6 And thou shalt make staves for the altar, staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with brass.

7 And the staves shall be put into the rings, and the staves shall be upon the two sides of the altar to bear it.

8 Hollow with boards shall thou make it: [c] as * it was shewed thee in the mount, so shall they make it.

[c] Chap. 25. 40. and 26. 30. * Heb. he shewed.

9 ¶ And [d] thou shalt make the court of the tabernacle for the south side, southward: there shall be hangings for the court of fine twined linen of an hundred cubits long, for one side.

[d] Chap. 38. 9.

10 And the twenty pillars thereof, and their twenty sockets, shall be of brass: the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets shall be of silver.

11 And likewise for the north side in length, there shall be hangings of an hundred cubits long, and his twenty pillars, and their twenty sockets of brass: the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets of silver.

12 ¶ And for the breadth of the court on the west side, shall be hangings of fifty cubits: their pillars ten, and their sockets ten.

13 And the breadth of the court on the east side, eastward shall be fifty cubits.

14 The

V. 30. Which was shewed thee—By visible representation. It has pleased God to make the knowledge of his will, of all things, the most plain and certain.

V. 31. A vail of blue—Which was thick and strong, that none could see through it, called the second vail, (Heb. ix. 3.) whereby the Holy of Holies, which represented the highest heaven, was divided from the holy place, where the church militant, or its representatives met and served God, (Heb. ix. 24. and x. 19. 20.)

V. 32. Their hooks—Which were fastened to the top of the pillars, as the vail was fastened to them.

V. 36. The door of the tent—Of the holy-place, where it was divided from the court of the people.

CHAP. XXVII.

V. 1. Thou shalt make an altar—Not that for incense, but another for sacrifices

V. 2. Overlay it with brass—With plates of brass, that the fire might not take hold of the wood.

V. 3. Basons—To receive the blood of the sacrifices, which they were to sprinkle.

V. 4. A grate of net-work—The hearth of the altar, upon which they laid both the wood and the sacrifices.

V. 9. The court of the tabernacle—A court encompassing the tabernacle, in the midst whereof the altar of sacrifices was placed, upon which the offerings were burnt in the open air. Hangings for the court—Whereby the court was distinguished and enclosed.

V. 10. Twenty pillars—On which the hangings were fastened, by the hooks.

V. 20. For the light to burn always—Day and night; as that light ever shines which lighteneth every man that cometh into the world, and which all may be blessed with who will but accept of it.

Before Christ 1491.

14 The hangings of one side of the gate shall be fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

15 And on the other side shall be hangings, fifteen cubits: their pillars three, and their sockets three.

16 ¶ And for the gate of the court, shall be an hanging of twenty cubits, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, wrought with needle-work: and their pillars shall be four, and their sockets four.

17 All the pillars round about the court, shall be filleted with silver: their hooks shall be of silver, and their sockets of brass.

18 ¶ The length of the court shall be an hundred cubits, and the breadth † fifty every where, and the height five cubits, of fine twined linen, and their sockets of brass.

† Heb. fifty By fifty.

19 All the vessels of the tabernacle in all the service thereof, and all the pins thereof, and all the pins of the court shall be of brass.

e Lev. 24. 2.

20 ¶ And [e] thou shalt command the children of Israel, that they bring thee pure oil-olive beaten, for the light, to cause the lamp ‡ to burn always.

‡ Heb. to ascend up.

21 In the tabernacle of the congregation [f] without the vail, which is before the testimony, [g] Aaron and his sons shall order it [h] from evening to morning before the LORD: It shall be a statute for ever unto their generations, on the behalf of the children of Israel.

f Chap. 28. 31, 33.
g Chap. 30. 8. 1 Sam. 3. 3.
h 2 Chro. 13. 11.

Before Christ 1491.

CHAP. XXVIII.

AND take thou unto thee [a] Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him, from among the children of Israel, that he may minister unto me in the priests office, even Aaron, Nadab, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar, Aaron's sons.

a Heb. 5. 1, 4.

2 And [b] thou shalt make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, for glory and for beauty.

b Chap. 29. 5. and 39. 2.

3 And [c] thou shalt speak unto all that are wise-hearted, [d] whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom, that they may make Aaron's garments to consecrate him, that he may minister unto me in the priest's office.

c Chap. 36. 1.
d Chap. 31. 3. and 35. 30.

4 And these are the garments which they shall make; a breast-plate, and an ephod, and a robe, and a broidered coat, a mitre, and a girdle: and they shall make holy garments for Aaron thy brother, and his sons, that he may minister unto me in the priests office.

5 And they shall take gold, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen.

6 ¶ And they shall make the ephod of gold, of blue, and of purple, of scarlet, and fine twined linen, with cunning work.

7 It shall have the two shoulder-pieces thereof it, and under its mild and gentle influence, become children of the light and of the day.

V. 21. The tabernacle of the congregation—So called, because there the people used to meet not only one with another, but with God also. There God declared his mind and will, and man's duty. Without the vail—The second vail, in the holy place. Before the testimony—Before the ark of the testimony. Aaron and his sons shall order it—The lamp, or the lights, taking care that there be a constant supply of them; and thus are they who are charged to make known the mind and will of God to men, to take care that there is a constant supply given to all that are under their care, of that heavenly light and wisdom which cometh from above; and which from the natural forgetfulness of the human mind, especially of divine things, is required to be kept in continual remembrance.

CHAP. XXVIII.

V. 1. Take thou unto thee Aaron, his sons Nadab and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar—Cause them to come near unto thee, that thou mayest before them and before the people declare the will of God herein, and solemnly set them apart for this office.

V. 2. Holy garments—Garments to be used only in holy ministrations. For glory and for beauty—Such as are glorious and beautiful, partly to mind the people of the dignity and excellency of their office and employment, and principally to represent the glorious robes wherewith Christ is clothed himself, and clothes all his people, who are made priests unto God.

V. 3. Wise-hearted—Skilful artists. The Hebrews make the heart, not the brain, the seat of wisdom. Job ix. 4. Whom I have filled with the spirit of wisdom—Every good and perfect gift cometh down from the Father of lights; and every useful discovery among men owes its origin to God as the sole giver; without him none being either wise or holy; and those things that have been known and of use among men for many ages, are still to be looked upon as parts of the numberless obligations we owe to God; and to him alone all the praise is due for whatever contributes to make our lives agreeable to us. Garments to consecrate him—To be an outward sign of my calling, and consecration of him to my holy service.

V. 4. An ephod—This was a short upper garment, made without sleeves, which was girt about the body. And it was twofold, the one made of fine linen, which was common not only to all the priests, but to some others also upon solemn and sacred occasions, the other made of divers stuffs and colours, peculiar to the High-priest, the parts whereof were not sewed, but tied together. A robe—An upper garment, like a surplice. A broidered coat—An under coat curiously wrought with circular works like eyes, as the word notes, and richly adorned with gems and other things. A mitre—A kind of bonnet or cap for the covering of the head, something like a Turkish turband for the form of it. A girdle—To inclose and fasten all the other garments, which were loose in themselves.

V. 6. They shall make the ephod of gold, &c.—Beaten out into plates, and cut into wires.

V. 7. Two shoulder-pieces—Which were two parts of the ephod going up from the body of the ephod, the one before, the other behind, which, when the priest had put over his head, were tied together, and covered the priests shoulders, and part of his back and breast.

V. 8. The

Before Christ 1491.

thereof joined at the two edges thereof; and ſo it ſhall be joined together.

‖ Or, embroidered.

8 And the ‖ curious girdle of the ephod which is upon it, ſhall be of the ſame, according to the work thereof; even of gold, of blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, and fine twined linen.

9 And thou ſhalt take two onyx-ſtones, and grave on them the names of the children of Iſrael:

10 Six of their names on one ſtone, and the other ſix names of the reſt on the other ſtone, according to their birth.

11 With the work of an engraver in ſtone, like the engravings of a ſignet, ſhalt thou engrave the two ſtones, with the names of the children of Iſrael: thou ſhalt make them to be ſet in ouches of gold.

12 And thou ſhalt put the two ſtones upon the ſhoulders of the ephod, for ſtones of memorial unto the children of Iſrael. And Aaron ſhall bear their names before the Lord, upon his two ſhoulders for a memorial.

13 ¶ And thou ſhalt make ouches of gold;

14 And two chains of pure gold at the ends: of wreathen work ſhalt thou make them, and faſten the wreathen chains to the ouches.

f Chap. 39. 8.

15 ¶ And [f] thou ſhalt make the breaſt-plate of judgment, with cunning work, after the work of the ephod thou ſhalt make it; of gold, of blue, and of purple, and of ſcarlet, and of fine twined linen ſhalt thou make it.

16 Four-ſquare it ſhall be, being doubled; a ſpan ſhall be the length thereof, and a ſpan ſhall be the breadth thereof.

g Chap. 39. 10, &c.

† Heb. fill in it fillings of ſtone.

17 [g] And thou ſhalt † ſet in it ſettings of ſtones, even four rows of ſtones: the firſt row ſhall be a ‡ ſardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this ſhall be the firſt row.

Before Christ 1491.

‡ Or, ruby.

18 And the ſecond row ſhall be an emerald, a ſapphire, and a diamond.

19 And the third row a ligure, an agate, and an amethyſt.

20 And the fourth row a beryl, and an onyx, and a jaſper: they ſhall be ſet in gold in their § enclоſings.

§ Heb. fillings.

21 And the ſtones ſhall be with the names of the children of Iſrael, twelve, according to their names: like the engravings of a ſignet, every one with his name ſhall they be according to their twelve tribes.

22 ¶ And thou ſhalt make upon the breaſt-plate, chains at the ends of wreathen work, of pure gold.

23 And thou ſhalt make upon the breaſt-plate two rings of gold, and ſhalt put the two rings on the two ends of the breaſt-plate.

24 And thou ſhalt put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings which are on the ends of the breaſt-plate.

25 And the other two ends of the two wreathen chains, thou ſhalt faſten in the two ouches, and put them on the ſhoulder-pieces of the ephod before it.

26 ¶ And thou ſhalt make two rings of gold, and thou ſhalt put them upon the two ends of the breaſt-plate, in the border thereof, which is in the ſide of the ephod inward.

27 And two other rings of gold thou ſhalt make, and ſhalt put them on the two ſides of the ephod, underneath towards the fore-part thereof, over againſt the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod.

28 And they ſhall bind the breaſt-plate by the rings thereof, unto the rings of the ephod with

V. 8. The curious girdle of the ephod—Which was for the cloſer faſtening of it. Which is upon it—This is added to diſtinguiſh it from the other girdle, ver. 4. which was to gird all the garments, and was tied in a lower place. Shall be of the ſame—Of the ſame kind of materials and workmanſhip.

V. 10. Six of their names on one ſtone, and the other ſix—Levi ſeems to be omitted here, as being ſufficiently repreſented by the High-prieſt himſelf.

V. 11. Ouches—Hollow places, ſuch as are made in golden rings, to receive and hold the precious ſtones, which are put into them.

V. 12. Aaron ſhall bear their names before the Lord—Into the holy of holies. A type of Chriſt's entering into heaven with the names and in the ſtead of his people, the true Iſrael, and preſenting them to his father with acceptance. For a memorial—To the high-prieſt, that he ſhould not forget to pray for them; and to God, that he, beholding their names according to his order, might graciouſly remember them and ſhew mercy unto them. Such a memorial to God was the rainbow; ſuch things are ſpoken of God after the manner of men.

V. 15. The breaſt-plate of judgment—This was a ſquare and curiouſly wrought piece put over the Ephod upon the breaſt, called of judgment; becauſe, from thence, the Iſraelites were to expect and receive their judgment and the mind of God in all thoſe weighty matters of war or peace, wherein they conſulted God for direction; and in this glorious dreſs of the chief-prieſts, the attention was directed to the breaſt; becauſe it is with the heart that man believeth unto ſalvation.

V. 16. It ſhall be doubled—For greater ſtrength that it might better ſecure the precious ſtones which were put into it.

V. 17. Four rows of ſtones—They were precious ſtones ſeverally alloted to the names of the ſeveral tribes according to God's good pleaſure.

V. 21. According to their twelve tribes—According to the order of their birth, the firſt ſtone to the eldeſt, the ſecond to the next.

V. 25. Of the ephod before it—In the fore-part of the ephod; before the high-prieſt, upon his breaſt.

Before Christ 1491. with a lace of blue, that it may be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breast-plate be not loosed from the ephod.

29 And Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel in the breast-plate of judgment, upon his heart, when he goeth in unto the holy place, for a memorial before the Lord continually.

[b] Lev. 8. 8. Num. 27. 21. Deut. 33. 8. 1 Sam. 28. 6. Ezra 2. 63. Neh. 7. 65.

30 ¶ And [b] thou shalt put in the breast-plate of judgment the Urim and the Thummim; and they shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the Lord: and Aaron shall bear the judgment of the children of Israel upon his heart, before the Lord continually.

31 ¶ And [i] thou shalt make the robe of the ephod all of blue. Before Christ 1491.

[i] Chap. 29. 22.

32 And there shall be an hole in the top of it, in the mids thereof: it shall have a binding of woven work, round about the hole of it, as it were the hole of an habergeon, that it be not rent.

33 ¶ And beneath upon the ‖ hem of it thou shalt make pomegranates of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet round about the hem thereof; and bells of gold between them round about.

‖ Or, skirts.

34 A golden bell and a pomegranate, a golden bell and a pomegranate, upon the hem of the robe round about. 35 And

V. 29. Aaron shall bear the names of the children of Israel upon his heart—Partly to admonish the high-priest of that dear affection he should have to his people, and with what ardency he should pray for them, and principally to represent the tender compassions of Christ, the great High-priest, towards his people, and how mindful he is of them and of all their concerns, even when he is in the holy of holies, that is, in heaven, where he remembers them still, and intercedes for them. The holy place—The most holy place.

V. 30. The Urim and the Thummim—The words signify light or illuminations, and perfections, which may be understood of two things, the one noting the knowledge, the other the perfection of virtues and graces, which were required in the high-priest, and which were in Christ in an eminent degree, and from him alone communicated to his people. The great use of this instrument was to give light and direction in difficult cases. This was a singular piece of divine workmanship, which the high-priest was obliged to wear upon solemn occasions, as one of the conditions upon which God engaged to give him answers; which answers God might give to him either by inward suggestion to his mind, or by a vocal expression to his ear. It was the mean through which they were to look to God for grace to acquaint them with his will, and also to enable them to do it. And so does God require us to look to him in the constant use of those means, which he has appointed under the final revelation of his will; and to continue in the wilful neglect of reading his word, frequenting his worship, partaking of the sacrament, prayer, fasting, &c. is to express our indifference as to the will of God, or to presume to expect his blessings in the way which we will choose for ourselves, without regarding what God requires as evidence of our humble submission to his will. If we will not in obedience to God's command, and for the honour of his worship, make use of the outward visible sign; we wilfully take ourselves out of the way of having from God the inward spiritual grace; we forsake our own mercies. They shall be upon Aaron's heart, when he goeth in before the Lord—They that minister in sacred things, shall have their hearts engaged in the means of grace, that feeling their value and importance themselves, it may be made known by them to all that attend their ministry, that what God has thought fit to appoint men to make use of is worthy of regard, and as necessary to their spiritual prosperity, as sowing and planting are necessary to obtain natural plenty. Aaron shall bear the judgment—As the testimony is oft put for the ark of the testimony, so is the judgment here for the breast-plate of judgment, that breast-plate which declared the judgment or mind of God to the Israelites in those cases which they brought to the Lord. When they inquired of God in the way he appointed, they found him faithful in bestowing all the blessings he had promised. Upon his heart, before the Lord continually—At all times when he shall appear before the Lord in the holy place; and as necessary as rain is, to give success to the labours of the husbandman; so necessary is it to all who sow the seed of religious truth to water the same with their prayers to the God of all grace, not only at the time of the public service, but continually bearing upon their hearts, the end for which they labour—their peoples prosperity in the knowledge and love of God. Reader! Has God placed you at the head of a family, or of a congregation, and does your closet bear witness that you give yourself to prayer continually, (Acts vi. 4.) that the eternal interests of all under your charge may prosper?—"Cursed be he that doeth the work of "the Lord deceitfully," or negligently. Jer. xlviii. 10.

V. 31. The robe of the ephod—A long and loose robe called the robe of the epod; because it was worn next under it, about the high-priest's body with the curious girdle of the ephod.

V. 33. Pomegranates—The figures of pomegranates, embroidered. Bells—By the sound whereof the people might be admonished of the work which the priest was employed in; and so unite their prayers and praises to God with his; and this is required to be done by every member of a family, or of a congregation; if we think it not worth while to pray to God for his blessing on those that endeavour to instruct us privately or more publicly; whatever benefits others may receive from that instruction, we must not wonder if our hearts remain hard, and our minds careless. For the members of a family or a congregation to be united in their very hearts, in desiring the same things from God for themselves and for one another, is that dwelling together in unity which is so pleasing in the sight of God, and attended with such blessings on all who are so united. (Ps. cxxxiii.) These pomegranates and bells might note the qualifications of the priest, who was both to declare the sound of pure and wholesome doctrine, and to adorn his doctrine with the fragrancy and fruitfulness of a good conversation. The Lord Christ, caused the sound of his doctrine to be heard by all men, and offered up himself as a sacrifice to God for a sweet-smelling savour, (Eph. v. 2.)

V. 34. A golden bell and a pomegranate—They were thus to appear together. The ministers of religion, in common with all others, are called to enjoy that unction of the holy One to bless them, and to teach them all truth; but whoever may be innocent in being silent, they who are called by the voice of their fellow-creatures, and thrust out by the dictates of the Spirit upon their consciences, or by any human authority appointed to make the will of God understood by their fellow-creatures, for them to be silent, and to be guilty is one and the same thing; and as the sound of the bells were heard from the priests under the law, so must the meaning of the whole will of God be heard from all to whom is committed a dispensation to make it known to others. And what they feel of unwillingness to be suspected of pride in always

Before Christ 1491.

35 And it shall be upon Aaron, to minister: and his sound shall be heard when he goeth in unto the holy place before the Lord, and when he cometh out; that he die not.

l Chap. 39.30.

36 ¶ And [l] thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and grave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

37 And thou shalt put it on a blue lace, that it may be upon the mitre: upon the forefront of the mitre it shall be.

38 And it shall be upon Aaron's forehead, that Aaron may bear the iniquity of the holy things, which the children of Israel shall hallow in all their holy gifts: and it shall be always upon his forehead, that they may be accepted before the Lord.

39 ¶ And thou shalt embroider the coat of fine linen, and thou shalt make the mitre of fine linen, and thou shalt make the girdle of needle-work.

m Chap. 28.8, 9. & 39.28,41. Ezek. 44.18.

40 ¶ [m] And for Aaron's sons thou shalt make coats, and thou shalt make for them girdles, and bonnets shalt thou make for them, for glory and for beauty.

Before Christ 1491.

41 And thou shalt put them upon Aaron thy brother, and his sons with him: and shalt [n] anoint them, and * consecrate them, and sanctify them, that they may minister unto me in the priests office.

n Chap. 29.7. and 30.30. and 40.12. Lev. 10.7.

* Heb. fill their hand.

42 And thou shalt make them linen breeches to cover † their nakedness: from the loins even unto the thighs they shall ‡ reach.

† Heb. flesh of their nakedness.

‡ Heb. be.

43 And they shall be upon Aaron, and upon his sons, when they come in unto the tabernacle of the congregation, or when they come near [o] unto the altar to minister in the holy place; that they bear not iniquity, and die. It shall be a statute for ever unto him, and his seed after him.

o Chap. 20.26.

CHAP. XXIX.

AND this is the thing that thou shalt do unto them to hallow them, to minister unto always shewing that they have the will of God in view, and are always declaring it, such feelings will convince them how proud that mind must be which feels pain at being suspected of any thing, so as the knowledge of the will of God is but advanced, and men are led to know God, without which knowledge, solid peace they cannot know in this life, nor be possessed of happiness in the world to come.

V. 35. That he die not—And was the penalty of death to be inflicted for that which appears to be only an omission of a circumstance? This dress was the visible representation of grace in the heart, of devotion to God in the life, and an open and declared appearing for God before all men; and the severity of this judgment was to shew the divine displeasure on those that are called to bear a public part for God and religion, to be without the spirit, without devotion of heart and life, and without regard to the advancement of God's glory, whose service they appear in, and the good of mankind for whose benefit they are bound to live, by the strongest obligations—the approbation of God, their own happiness, and having God praised on their account; or, on the other hand, in case of their neglect of duty and silence in God's cause, his displeasure upon them during such neglect and silence, and his final condemnation in that day, when every minister of religion shall give an account of himself to God, (Rom. xiv. 12.) and when, if immortal souls were left unwarned by him of their danger of dying in their sins, and without having what God requires all to have who are to dwell in his presence, shame, reproach, and misery will be the fatal reward of that neglect or carelessness which is thus represented by the High-priest's exposing himself to the immediate loss of his life, if he omitted that which God required of him in the public station he filled.

V. 36. HOLINESS TO THE LORD—This was to be most publicly held up to view, as the end of all their worship, because that which was then as well as now to be possessed in the heart, and to run through the whole life. Holiness in men is the present possession of the holy Spirit of God, and by it changed into that image and likeness to God, in which the mind of the first of man was made; it begins by repentance and forsaking all sin, under the influence of grace, it is continued and increased by faith in God, till it loves him that made and died to redeem with all its powers; and, with a view and regard to this holiness, all is to be intended, said, done, and suffered, till a life of faith ends in eternal glory.

V. 37. Upon the fore-front of the mitre it shall be—And holiness to the Lord be thus presented by the High-priest to all the people; to convey to them that which is commonly understood by the title placed in the first page, or the head of a book—implying, this is the subject of the whole.

V. 38. That Aaron may bear the iniquity of the holy things—That he, being consecrated to God for this end, he should take care as far as he could, that both persons and things presented to God should be holy or agreeable to the mind of God, or bear the punishment for any miscarriage committed therein, which he could have prevented; and that he being an holy person, and appointed by God to make a typical reconciliation for the sins of the people, and to intercede for them might obtain from God the pardon of their iniquity wherewith even their holy things are defiled, if God should severely mark what is amiss in them. And the High-priest was eminently a type of Christ, who properly and truly bare and took away the iniquity of his people's holy things, by his sacrifice and intercession. Holy gifts—Consecrated unto God. If there be any thing amiss either in the thing offered or in the manner of offering, God, upon the priest's intercession, will pardon it. Always—At all times of his solemn appearance before God. That they may be accepted before the Lord—Being thus offered with an eye to our great High-priest, (Heb. iv. 14.) who appears in the presence of God for us, and for whose sake alone sin is pardoned, or any person or service accepted of God; that the great object might ever be kept in view—That all grace is given for the sake of Jesus, and that to God through him all thankfulness and praise are to be offered, and every duty performed, and every affliction suffered.

V. 39. The coat—This was a loose and large garment made with sleeves, worn under the Ephod, reaching down to the feet, which was girt with a girdle.

V. 41. Consecrate them—Fill their hands, present them to God with part of the sacrifice in their hands, by that right putting them into their office.

CHAP.

Before Christ 1491.

unto me in the priest's office: [a] Take one young bullock, and two rams without blemish,

[a] Lev. 9. 2.

[b] Lev. 6. 21.

2 And [b] unleavened bread, and cakes unleavened tempered with oil, and wafers unleavened anointed with oil: of wheaten flour shalt thou make them.

3 And thou shalt put them into one basket, and bring them in the basket, with the bullock and the two rams.

4 And Aaron and his sons thou shalt bring unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, [c] and shalt wash them with water.

[c] Lev. 8. 6.

[d] Chap. 28. 2.

5 [d] And thou shalt take the garments, and put upon Aaron the coat, and the robe of the ephod, and the ephod, and the breast-plate, and gird him with [e] the curious girdle of the ephod.

[e] Chap. 28. 8.

[f] Lev. 8. 9.

6 [f] And thou shalt put the mitre upon his head, and put the holy crown upon the mitre.

[g] Chap. 30. 25.

7 Then shalt thou take the anointing [g] oil, and pour it upon his head, and anoint him.

8 And thou shalt bring his sons, and put coats upon them.

9 And thou shalt gird them with girdles (Aaron and his son) and * put the bonnets on them: and the priest's office shall be theirs for a perpetual statute: and thou shalt † [h] consecrate Aaron and his sons.

* Heb. bind.

† Heb. fill the hand of.

[h] Chap. 28. 41.

CHAP. XXIX.

10 And thou shalt cause a bullock to be brought before the tabernacle of the congregation: and [i] Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the bullock.

Before Christ 1491.

[i] Lev. 1. 4. and 8. 14.

11 And thou shalt kill the bullock before the Lord, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

12 And thou shalt take of the blood of the bullock, and put it upon [k] the horns of the altar with thy finger, and pour all the blood beside the bottom of the altar.

[k] Chap. 27. 2. and 30. 2.

13 And [l] thou shalt take all the fat that covereth the inwards, and ‡ the caul that is above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and burn them upon the altar.

[l] Lev. 3. 3.

‡ It seemeth by Anatomy, and the Hebrew Doctors to be the midriff.

14 But [m] the flesh of the bullock, and his skin, and his dung shalt thou burn with fire without the camp: it is a sin-offering.

[m] Lev. 4. 11, 12, 21. Heb. 13. 11.

15 ¶ [n] Thou shalt also take one ram, and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

[n] Lev. 8. 16.

16 And thou shalt slay the ram, and thou shalt take his blood, and sprinkle it round about upon the altar.

17 And thou shalt cut the ram in pieces, and wash the inwards of him, and his legs, and

V. 2. Unleavened—To shew that the priests should be, and that Christ really was, free from all malice and hypocrisy, both which are compared to leaven, (Luke xii. 1. 1 Cor. v. 8.) and that all the services offered to God by the priests were to be pure and unmixed.

V. 4. Thou shalt wash them with water—This signified the universal pollution of all men, and the absolute need they have of washing, especially when they are to draw nigh to God. And this outward washing was only typical of their spiritual washing by the blood and spirit of Christ, in order to their acceptance with God.

V. 5. And gird him—As Christ and his ministers are represented, (Rev. i. 13.)

V. 7. Take the anointing oil, and anoint him—Which signified the gifts and graces of the Holy Ghost, wherewith Christ was, and the priests are to be, replenished; (Isa. lxi. 1. 1 Joh. ii. 27.) The oil was sprinkled upon all the priests, but it was poured out upon the head only of the High-priest, who herein was a type of Christ who was anointed above his fellows, (Psal. xlv. 7. Heb. i. 9.)

V. 9. The priests office shall be for a perpetual statute—So long as the Jewish policy lasts.

V. 10. Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the bullock—To signify that they offered it for themselves, and for their own sins, which the offerer performing this rite was to confess, (Lev. xvi. 21.) that they acknowledged themselves to deserve that death which was inflicted upon this innocent creature for their sakes, and to testify their faith in the future sacrifice of Christ, upon whom their sins were to be laid, and by whose blood their sins were taken away, and that they humbly begged God's mercy in pardoning their sins, and accepting them to and in their holy office.

V. 11. Thou—Moses, who though no priest, yet, for this time and occasion, was called by God to this work. The rites and ceremonies to be made use of in the worship of God being ordained by himself, he also appointed an order of men to minister to him in sacred things; but the human mind not being more prone to any thing than to look no farther than the formal part of religion, and be unmindful of the spirit, it has pleased God, during all the ages in which the Scriptures were written, also to make use of other persons besides the established ministers of religion, to call men to live to God, and to make known to them his holy will. And the pride of the human mind being that part of its fallen nature which most resists grace, God has frequently called men into his public service, not only without any human sanction, but such as for their abilities natural or acquired, their appearance, their professions, and not unfrequently for their former misconduct, were contemptible in the eyes of men in general, and by these he has spread the knowledge of his holy will, cloathing the words of those that spake in great human weakness with his divine power, and this not only in the ages of the prophets and first preachers of the gospel, but in various ages since, when great and evident reformations and revivals of real religion have taken place in different countries; and, by this means, excluding all occasion of that most offensive thing in his sight—human boasting; and obliging all to confess the work of turning the hearts of the disobedient into the ways of the just, was the work of God, and not of men.

V. 13. And burn them upon the altar—To signify the mortification of their inward and most beloved desires, or the dedication of the best of all sacrifices, and of their inward and best parts to God and his service.

V. 14. It is a sin-offering—For the high-priest.

V. 16. Sprinkle it round about upon the altar—Which signifies, that and put them unto his pieces, and § unto his head.

Before Christ 1491.

§ Or, upon.

18 And thou shalt burn the whole ram upon the altar: it is a burnt-offering unto the Lord: it is a sweet savour, an offering made by fire unto the Lord.

o Verse 3. Lev. 8. 22.

19 ¶ [o] And thou shalt take the other ram, and Aaron and his sons shall put their hands upon the head of the ram.

20 Then shalt thou kill the ram, and take of his blood, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of Aaron, and upon the tip of the right ear of his sons, and upon the thumb of their right hand, and upon the great toe of their right foot, and sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

p Chap. 30. 25, 31.

21 And thou shalt take of the blood that is upon the altar, and of [p] the anointing oil, and sprinkle it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon the garments of his sons with him: and

q Heb. 9. 22.

[q] he shall be hallowed, and his garments, and his sons, and his son's garments with him.

22 Also thou shalt take of the ram the fat and the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, and the right shoulder; for it is a ram of consecration:

r Lev. 8. 26.

23 [r] And one loaf of bread, and one cake of oiled bread, and one wafer out of the basket of the unleavened bread, that is before the Lord.

24 And thou shalt put all in the hands of Aaron, and in the hands of his sons; and shalt * wave them for a wave-offering before the Lord.

Before Christ 1491.

* Heb. made to and fro.

s Lev. 8. 28.

25 [s] And thou shalt receive them of their hands, and burn them upon the altar for a burnt-offering, for a sweet savour before the Lord: it is an offering made by fire unto the Lord.

t Lev. 8. 29.

26 And thou shalt take [t] the breast of the ram of Aaron's consecrations, and wave it for a wave-offering before the Lord: and u Psa. 99. 6.

[u] it shall be thy part.

x Lev. 7. 34. Num. 18. 18. Deut. 18. 3.

27 And thou shalt sanctify [x] the breast of the wave-offering, and the shoulder of the heave-offering, which is waved, and which is heaved up of the ram of the consecration, even of that which is for Aaron, and of that which is for his sons.

28 And it shall be Aaron's and his son's by a statute for ever, from the children of Israel: for it is an heave-offering: and y Lev. 7. 34.

[y] it shall be an heave-offering from the children of Israel of the sacrifice of their peace-offerings, even their heave-offering unto the Lord.

z Num. 18. 8. and 35. 25.

29 ¶ And the holy garments of Aaron shall be his son's after him, [z] to be anointed therein, and to be consecrated in them.

† Heb. he of his sons.

a Num. 20. 28.

30 And † [a] that son that is priest in his stead shall put them on seven days, when he cometh into the tabernacle of the congregation to minister in the holy place.

31 ¶ And thou shalt take the ram of the consecration, and seethe his flesh in the holy place.

32 And

that not only our persons, but our very altars and sacrifices, and best services need the sprinkling of Christ's blood upon them, to render them acceptable to God.

V. 18. It is a sweet savour—A savour of rest, wherewith God will be well pleased, and for which, as representing Christ who offered up himself, he will graciously accept of the offerings of the priests for themselves and for the people.

V. 19. Thou shalt take the other ram—For a peace-offering.

V. 20. These parts are consecrated in the name and stead of all the rest, the ear, as the instrument of hearing and receiving the mind and will of God in all their sacred administrations, and in their whole conversation; the hand and foot, as the instruments of action and execution of that which they hear and understand to be the mind of God. And the right parts are chosen, rather than the left, as being usually more vigorous and expeditious. And all these parts are sprinkled with this blood, to shew the absolute necessity of Christ's blood to qualify them for an acceptable and successful discharge of their office. And as, without the blood of Christ, there is no remission of sins, and as this truth is either prefigured, or plainly declared throughout the revealed will of God, Are we not to call to mind in all our attendances on religious instruction, that we are to have our chief attention fixed on this, which was and is the sole cause of success to the labours of the appointed ministers of God's holy word, that, for ourselves, we may have every action, word, and temper sprinkled with that blood by which alone we can be washed from our sins and accepted of God?

V. 22. Of consecration—Of the priests in their office.

V. 24. Wave them—Shake them to and fro, towards the several parts of the world, to note God's dominion over all places and people, and the extent of that true and great sacrifice, represented in these types to all.

V. 26. It shall be thy part—The breast alone.

V. 27. Heaved up—Towards heaven, and by that, indicating that the heart was to be given to God; all without love to him being a vain oblation.

V. 29. The holy garments of Aaron shall be his sons after him—His eldest sons successively. To be consecrated—By some other priest.

V. 30. Seven days—So long the solemnity of the consecration lasted. That by the consecration taking up both the six days and the Sabbath, it might never be forgot, that they were to spend their whole time—their whole lives to God, to whose service they were thus dedicated. To minister in the holy place—Both that strictly so called, and in the most holy place; for as none could go into the most holy place, except the high-priest, so there were some things to be done in the holy place, which none but he could do.

V. 31. In the court-yard at the door of the tabernacle, where it was both boiled and eaten, as appears from this and the next verse. And part of this was eaten by the person or persons that

Before Christ 1491.

32 And Aaron and his ſons ſhall eat the fleſh of the ram, and the [b] bread that is in the baſket, by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

[b] Lev. 8. 31. Matt. 12. 4.

33 And they ſhall eat thoſe things, wherewith the atonement was made, to conſecrate and to ſanctify them: but a ſtranger ſhall not eat thereof, becauſe they are holy.

34 And if ought of the fleſh of the conſecrations, or of the bread remain unto the morning; then thou ſhalt burn the remainder with fire: it ſhall not be eaten, becauſe it is holy.

35 And thus ſhalt thou do unto Aaron, and to his ſons, according to all things which I have commanded thee: [c] ſeven days ſhalt thou conſecrate them.

[c] Exod. 40. 12. Lev. 8. 33, 34.

36 And thou ſhalt offer every day a bullock for a ſin-offering, for atonement: and thou ſhalt cleanſe the altar, when thou haſt made an atonement for it, [d] and thou ſhalt anoint it to ſanctify it.

[d] Chap. 30. 30. and 40. 10.

37 Seven days thou ſhalt make an atonement for the altar, and ſanctify it: [e] and it ſhall be an altar moſt holy: [f] whatſoever toucheth the altar, ſhall be holy.

[e] Chap. 40. 10.

[f] Chap. 30. 29. Matt. 23. 19.

38 ¶ Now this is that which thou ſhalt offer upon the altar; [g] two lambs of the firſt year, [h] day by day continually.

[g] Num. 28. 3.

[h] See Dan. 9. 27. & 12. 11.

39 The one lamb thou ſhalt offer in the morning: and the other lamb thou ſhalt offer at even.

Before Christ 1491.

40 And with the one lamb a tenth-deal of flour mingled with the fourth part of an hin of beaten oil: and the fourth part of an hin of wine for a drink-offering.

41 And the other lamb thou ſhalt offer at even, and ſhalt do thereto according to the meat-offering of the morning, and according to the drink-offering thereof, for a ſweet ſavour, an offering made by fire unto the Lord.

42 This ſhall be [i] a continual burnt-offering throughout your generations at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, before the Lord: [k] where I will meet you, to ſpeak there unto thee.

[i] Chap. 30. 8.

[k] Chap. 30. 36. Num. 17. 4.

43 And there I will meet with the children of Iſrael, and ‡ the tabernacle ſhall be ſanctified by my glory.

‡ Or, Iſrael.

44 And I will ſanctify the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar: I will ſanctify alſo both Aaron and his ſons, to miniſter to me in the prieſts office.

45 ¶ And [l] I will dwell amongſt the children of Iſrael, and will be their God.

[l] Exod. 25. 8. Lev. 26. 12. Zech. 2. 10. 2 Cor. 6. 16. Rev. 21. 3.

46 And they ſhall know that I am the Lord their God, that brought them forth out of the land of Egypt, that I may dwell amongſt them: I am the Lord their God.

CHAP.

brought the offering, though they were of the people, who were not admitted into any other holy place but this.

V. 33. But a ſtranger ſhall not eat thereof—One who is not of the prieſtly race, whereas in other peace-offerings the offerer did eat a part. And ſtrangers to the love of God intermeddle not, are not partakers of the heavenly conſolations which flow from faith in Jeſus.

V. 34. Thou ſhalt burn the remainder with fire—According to the law of all peace-offerings, except thoſe which were vows or voluntary offerings.

V. 36. A ſin-offering for atonement—As well for the prieſts, as for the altar, both which as they were polluted, ſo they needed the ſprinkling of this blood to ſanctify them, to ſhew that all perſons and things were fitted for God's ſervice, and accepted by him only for and through the blood of Chriſt, that none might preſume to juſtify themſelves on account of any office, however ſacred or honourable, or on account of any performances; but only expect to be juſtified by the blood of Jeſus, and ſaved from the wrath of God through him. Rom. v. 9.

V. 37. It ſhall be an altar moſt holy—Becauſe it was not only holy in itſelf, but communicated a legal holineſs to other things. Whatſoever toucheth the altar ſhall be holy—Things belonging to the altar, offerings which, by God's appointment, were to be offered, which were ſanctified by being laid upon this altar, and therefore the altar was greater and more holy than the gift, which the Lord obſerves, Matt. xxiii. 19.

V. 38. Now this is that which thou ſhalt offer—This is the chief uſe of this altar, though it ſerved alſo for other ſacrifices. Two lambs continually—To ſhew that men daily need new pardons; and partly that God is not only to be worſhipped upon Sabbath-days and other ſet and ſolemn times, but every day.

V. 39. Which two ſeaſons were ſelected, as moſt commodious, that men might both begin and end their worldly actions and buſineſſes with God, and might ſee their need of God's aſſiſtance and bleſſing in all their concerns, and the juſtneſs of giving him the praiſe and glory of all.

V. 40. The fourth part of an hin—An hin was a meaſure for liquid things, containing ſix pints of our meaſure.

V. 42. Where I will meet you—In the tabernacle, in the innermoſt part of it, was the principal place where God did ordinarily reſide and meet with his people. The place where God meets them is the ſame place which is ſanctified by his glory.

V. 43. The tabernacle ſhall be ſanctified by my glory—By my glorious preſence and appearance.

V. 45. I will dwell amongſt the children of Iſrael, and will be their God—By my ſpecial grace, and favour, and bleſſing, for by his eſſence he fills all places.

V. 46. They ſhall know that I am the Lord—Almighty to deliver in every difficulty, and their God in covenant to beſtow upon them every bleſſing. That I may dwell amongſt them—Their fear of my power and of my juſtice, being to keep them far from every evil thing; and their knowledge of my love and compaſſion making my preſence moſt deſired by them. I am the Lord their God—And on my part, nothing ſhall be wanting, either in defending and delivering them from evil, or in beſtowing upon them every bleſſing.

CHAP.

CHAP. XXX.

Before Christ 1491.

AND thou shalt make [a] an altar [b] to burn incense upon: of shittim-wood shalt thou make it.

2 A cubit shall be the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, (four-square shall it be) and two cubits shall be the height thereof: the horns thereof shall be of the same.

3 And thou shalt overlay it with pure gold, the * top thereof, and the † sides thereof round about, and the horns thereof: and thou shalt make unto it a crown of gold round about.

4 And two golden rings shalt thou make to it under the crown of it, by the two ‡ corners thereof, upon the two sides of it shalt thou make it: and they shall be for places for the staves to bear it withal.

5 And thou shalt make the staves of shittim-wood, and overlay them with gold.

6 And thou shalt put it before the vail, that is by the ark of the testimony; before the mercy-seat, that is over the testimony, where I will meet with thee.

7 And Aaron shall burn thereon § sweet incense every morning: when [c] he dresseth the lamps he shall burn incense upon it.

8 And when Aaron ‖ * lighteth the lamps † at even, he shall burn incense upon it; a perpetual incense before the Lord, throughout your generations.

9 Ye shall offer no strange incense thereon, nor burnt-sacrifice, nor meat-offering; neither shall ye pour drink-offering thereon.

10 And [d] Aaron shall make an atonement upon the horns of it once in a year, with the blood of the sin-offering of atonements: once in the year shall he make atonement upon it, throughout your generations: it is most holy unto the Lord.

11 And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

12 * When thou takest the sum of the children of Israel, after ‡ their number; then shall they give every man a ransom for his soul unto the Lord, when thou numberest them: that there be no plague amongst them, when thou numberest them.

13 This they shall give, every one that passeth among them that are numbered; [f] half a shekel after the shekel of the sanctuary ([g] a shekel is twenty gerahs) an half-shekel shall be the offering of the Lord.

14 Every one that passeth among them that are

a Chap. 37.25.
b See Ver. 10. Lev. 4. 7, 18.

* Heb. roof.
† Heb. walls.

‡ Heb. ribs.

§ Heb. incense of spices.
c Chap. 27.20.

‖ Or, setteth up.
* Heb. causeth to ascend.
† Heb. between the two evenings.

d Lev. 16. 14. and 23. 27.

e Chap. 38.25. Num. 1. 2, 3. and 26. 2.
‡ Heb. them that are to be numbered. See Num. 31. 50.

f Matt. 17.24.
g Lev. 27.25. Num 3. 47. Ezek. 45. 12.

CHAP. XXX.

V. 1. An altar to burn incense upon—Incense signifies the prayers of God's people, (Psal. cxli. 2. Revel. viii. 3.) which are not acceptable to God, except they be offered upon the true altar, Christ.

V. 3. A crown of gold—A border which encompassed the altar, that the things laid on it might not fall off.

V. 6. Thou shalt put it before the vail—Before the second vail, in the holy place, and near to the holy of holies, and to the ark and mercy-seat.

V. 7. Aaron shall burn sweet incense—Aaron was to do this for the first time, but afterwards any priest might do it, (Luk. i. 9.) This not being done in the holy of holies. When he dresseth the lamps—Cleansed and prepared them for the receiving of the new lights. The High priest being thus employed, to represent the great High-priest, whose gracious care extends to whatever his worshippers stand in need of; nothing being beneath his notice for the good of them that fear him.

V. 8. When Aaron lighteth the lamps at even—The time when all the lamps were to be lighted.

V. 9. Ye shall offer no strange incense—Of any other sort than what I shall here appoint.

V. 10. Once in a year—On the day of expiation. The blood of the sin-offering of atonements—To note, that the prayers of the saints are acceptable to God no otherwise, but through the blood of Christ, who was offered for the expiation of our sins.

V. 12. Then shall they give every man a ransom for his soul—A certain price for the redemption of their lives; whereby they acknowledged the right and power which God had over their lives, and that they had forfeited them by their sins, and that it was God's mercy to continue their lives to them. A ransom was to be offered for every one. When thou numberest them—Upon any eminent occasion, when the service of the tabernacle (which is the end and use of this collection) or temple required it to be imployed in the building of the tabernacle, the repairs or other services of it. That there be no plague amongst them—As there surely will be, if they hold not themselves as ransomed from the punishments due to their sins; and if they do not shew that they look to me for every blessing, by offering for the service of the tabernacle, the place appointed for public worship.

V. 13. The shekel of the sanctuary—Consisting of half a crown of English-money, which is called the shekel of the sanctuary, because the standard by which all shekels were to be examined was kept in the sanctuary, and it was a part of the priest's office to look to the weights and measures. As ministers to God, whose nature is justice, the care of just weights and measures came properly a part of the priest's duty. It is every man's duty, as far as it comes within his power, to assist and forward that which is just amongst men; but the public ministers of religion are required by their trust, more than any other men, never to let any known fraud, deceit, or injustice go unreproved, according to the rules of the Scriptures, they are the possessors of the true standards, and whenever these are departed from, there are no alternatives, but betraying their sacred trust, or declaring against the wrong-doer, which always has procured the faithful servants of God that sure testimony that they acquitted themselves as became them in their station—by being hated and reviled by the deceitful and the wicked, a sure testimony of doing their duty to God, (1 Chron. xxiii. 29.) An half-shekel shall be the offering of the Lord—Not less, that all might be enabled to offer what was required, nor more, least it should be too burthensome for the poor.

V. 14. From twenty years old and above—The time when they began to be fit for employment, and capable of getting and paying money. Women and children are not included here, because they are reckoned in their fathers or husbands.

V. 15. The

Before Christ 1491.

are numbered from twenty years old and above, shall give an offering unto the Lord.

§ Heb. multiply.
‖ Heb. diminish.

15 The rich shall not § give more, and the poor shall not ‖ give less than half a shekel, when they give an offering unto the Lord, to make an atonement for your souls.

16 And thou shalt take the atonement-h Chap. 38. 25. money of the children of Israel, and h shalt appoint it for the service of the tabernacle of the congregation; that it may be a memorial unto the children of Israel before the Lord, to make an atonement for your souls.

17 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

i Chap. 38. 8. 18 i Thou shalt also make a laver of brass, and his foot also of brass, to wash withal: and thou shalt put it between the tabernacle of the congregation and the altar, and thou shalt put water therein.

k Psa. 26. 6. Isa. 52. 11. Heb. 10. 22. 19 For Aaron and his sons k shall wash their hands and their feet thereat.

20 When they go into the tabernacle of the congregation, they shall wash with water, that they die not: or when they come near to the altar to minister, to burn offering made by fire unto the Lord.

21 So they shall wash their hands and their feet, that they die not: and it shall be a statute for ever to them, even to him and to his seed throughout their generations.

22 ¶ Moreover the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Before Christ 1491.

23 Take thou also unto thee principal spices, of pure myrrh five hundred shekels, and of sweet cinnamon half so much, even two hundred and fifty shekels, and of sweet calamus two hundred and fifty shekels.

24 And of cassia five hundred shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, and of oil-olive an l hin.

l Chap. 29. 40.

25 And thou shalt make it an oil of holy ointment, an ointment compound after the art of the * apothecary: it shall be an holy anointing oil.

* Or, perfumer.

26 m And thou shalt anoint the tabernacle of the congregation therewith, and the ark of the testimony.

m Chap. 40. 9. Lev. 8. 10. Num. 7. 1.

27 And the table and all his vessels, and the candlestick and his vessels, and the altar of incense, 28 And the altar of burnt-offering with all his vessels, and the laver and his foot.

29 And thou shalt sanctify them, that they may be most holy: n whatsoever toucheth them shall be holy.

n Chap. 29. 37.

30 o And thou shalt anoint Aaron and his sons, and consecrate them, that they may minister unto me in the priest's office.

o Chap. 29. 7. &c.

31 And

V. 15. The rich shall not give more, and the poor shall not give less—To teach them, that all souls are of equal worth in themselves and price with God, that there is no respect of persons with God, and in God's worship and service, but gospel-graces, ordinances and privileges, are common and equal to all, (Gal. iii. 28.) that all persons are alike obnoxious to divine justice, and are redeemed by one and the same price; partly to check that arrogance and vanity which is apt to despise the poor.

V. 16. For the service of the tabernacle—For the building and furniture of it, and the maintenance of God's worship in it. A memorial—To the people, who hereby profess God to be their Lord and owner, and themselves his subjects, and to God to remember them, and own them for his people.

V. 17. The Lord spake unto Moses—The frequent repetition of this phrase, and the shortness of these discourses in comparison of the length of the forty days, shew that God did not deliver all these laws and prescriptions at one time, but successively at several times. That Moses might have time to meditate on all that was delivered to him; and the word of God is to be read as it was revealed; it is the means of obtaining the greatest benefit from it, by standing to revolve the discoveries which God has made to men; never forgetting, whilst we are pondering the meaning of the Divine will, to look for that unction of the Holy One, by which alone we can be truly blessed, in becoming acquainted with what is revealed.

V. 19. Wash their hands and their feet—To signify their natural impurity and unworthiness, either to handle holy things or to come into the holy place, and their need of washing with the blood and spirit of Christ, which was typified by this washing.

V. 20. They shall wash with water, that they die not—For though the fault might seem small, yet the command was evident and easy, and therefore the disobedience was worse, arguing presumption, rebellion, and contempt. It is the same LORD that says, Do this in remembrance of ME; and shall we say, that he who gives life does not shorten or take away the lives of men, when they will turn their backs upon the sacrament, and live examples to all about them of neglect of public and family worship? God hath said that the wicked live not out half their days; and is it not a part of the character of wickedness to shew openly that we regard not what God requires us to do for his honour, and our own good? But men profess religion for a cloak to wicked designs. By his judgment who knows the heart, are they to stand or fall. If eleven of the apostles, instead of one in the twelve, had been as Judas was, thieves and deceivers, was the twelfth at liberty to turn his back upon God his Saviour, and all he required him to do, for fear of being suspected of wickedness, by professing to take the plain commands of God for his rule and guide? Are men by nature such pure and spotless beings, that they shall not venture to expose themselves to any suspicions, rather than decline a practical regard to the will of God?

V. 23. Take thou unto thee—The words are very emphatical, and it is to infer, that this ointment was but once made, and that by Moses's own hands. Sweet calamus—A sweet reed.

V. 26. Thou shalt anoint the tabernacle—This was only an outward ceremony, signifying the separation and sanctification of these things for the service of God.

V. 30. Thou shalt anoint Aaron and his sons—Those who succeed him in the High-Priest's office. This anointing of them signified God's calling them to this office, and the inward qualifications requisite for it, the gifts and graces of the Holy Ghost, which are designed by this word of anointing, and the solemn setting

Before Christ 1491.

31 And thou shalt speak unto the children of Israel, saying, This shall be an holy anointing oil unto me, throughout your generations.

32 Upon man's flesh shall it not be poured, neither shall ye make any other like it, after the composition of it: it is holy, and it shall be holy unto you.

33 Whosoever compoundeth any like it, or whosoever putteth any of it upon a stranger, [p] shall even be cut off from his people.

[p] Gen. 17. 14.

34 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, [q] Take unto thee sweet spices, stacte, and onycha, and galbanum; these sweet spices with pure frankincense: of each shall there be a like weight.

[q] Chap. 25. 6.

35 And thou shalt make it a perfume, a confection after the art of the apothecary, [†] tempered together, pure and holy.

[†] Heb. salted.

36 And thou shalt beat some of it very small, and put of it before the testimony, in the tabernacle of the congregation, [r] where I will meet with thee: it shall be unto you most holy.

[r] Chap. 29. 37, 42. Lev. 16. 2.

37 And as for the perfume which thou shalt make, you shall not make to yourselves according to the composition thereof: it shall be unto thee holy for the Lord.

38 Whosoever shall make like unto that, to smell thereto, shall even be cut off from his people.

CHAP. XXXI.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

[a] Chap. 35. 30.

2 [a] See, I have called by name, Bezaleel the [b] son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah:

Before Christ 1491.

3 And I have [c] filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship.

[b] 1 Chron. 2. 20. [c] 1 King. 7. 14.

4 To devise cunning works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass,

5 And in cutting of stones to set them, and in carving of timber, to work in all manner of workmanship.

6 And I, behold, I have given with him, Aholiab the son of Ahisamach of the tribe of Dan; and in the hearts of all that are wise-hearted I have put wisdom; that they may make all that I have commanded thee:

7 The tabernacle of the congregation, and the ark of the testimony, and the mercy-seat that is thereupon, and all the * furniture of the tabernacle.

* Heb. vessels.

8 And the table and his furniture, and the pure candlestick with all his furniture, and the altar of incense,

9 And the altar of burnt-offering with all his furniture, and the laver and his foot,

10 And [d] the clothes of service, and the holy garments for Aaron the priest, and the garments of his sons, to minister in the priests office, [d] Chap. 39. 1, 41. Num. 4. 6, &c.

11 [e] And the anointing oil, and sweet incense for the holy place: according to all that I have commanded thee, shall they do.

[e] Chap. 30. 23, 31.

12 ¶ And setting a part of Christ, the true High-Priest, for the mediatorial office.

V. 31. This shall be holy—Reserved for my service alone, not employed to any civil use.

V. 32. Upon man's flesh shall it not be poured—Except those whom God himself, the author of this law, excepts.

V. 33. A stranger—The word stranger is commonly used to note the Gentiles, or such as were not of Israel's race, but sometimes it notes those that are not of the priestly race.

CHAP. XXXI.

V. 3. I have filled him with the spirit of God—The following shewing what gifts of the spirit, God had filled him with, wisdom, &c.

V. 6. In the hearts of all that are wise-hearted I have put wisdom—All that have yielded to that grace, which is offered to all men to incline them to be spiritually minded; and those who were thus wise-hearted, I have given wisdom to do the work which is now wanting to be done. That work is most honourable which God requires to be done at any time; and is it not to imitate the wise-hearted, with our whole minds to be daily making in our place and station that inquiry—Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? What by thy grace shall I do to please thee, O Lord! whose favour is my present peace, and that which must make my everlasting consolation? When we think ourselves sufficiently qualified for all we have to do, without any application to God for that wisdom which cometh from above; on our beginning to desire to be taught of the Lord, his answers may be to us—Cease to do evil; come out from among the wicked; have no fellowship with the vain and worldly-minded; cease from foolish jesting. And, by answers like these, we may soon discover that we were in need of having our heavenly Father to put wisdom into our hearts, when we thought it belonged not to God to communicate knowledge to us. To all it is said, They that wait upon him shall renew their strength. Reader, do you wait upon God to know how you shall live to please him? And if he answers—Suffer not sin upon your brother, but at any risque reprove him; will you give the first swearer you hear offending God to understand that he is heaping guilt upon his own head. If the work God sets you to, is to call your family about you to hear his word, will you be willing to be of the number of the wise-hearted that are taught of the Lord.

V. 8. Pure candlestick—So called, not only because it was made of pure gold, but to mind the Priests of their duty in keeping it clean. The greatest care being to be taken about those things that were the first figures and prime representations of God's giving light and wisdom to his church, and to all that wait upon him; and those things which are the first means God requires to be used for obtaining grace from him, are like the pure candlestick in his sight.

V. 10. The clothes of service—Wherein the ark and other sacred utensils were wrapped up when they were to be removed.

V. 11. According to all that I have commanded thee, shall they do—How often does God in his word call upon all men to do according to it; grace to do his will, only being promised to them who accept of the grace to set their hearts to live by his commandments. When we are not careful about them, call them

Before Christ 1491.

12 ¶ And the Lord spake upon Moses, saying,

13 Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, [f] Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you, throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord, that doth sanctify you.

[f] Lev. 19. 3, 30. and 26. 2. Ezek. 20. 12, 20.

14 [g] Ye shall keep the sabbath therefore: for it is holy unto you. Every one that defileth it, shall surely be put to death: for [h] whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from amongst his people.

[g] Chap. 20. 8. Deut. 5. 12. Ezek. 20. 12. [h] Chap. 35. 2. Num. 15. 34.

15 Six days may work be done, but in the seventh is the sabbath of rest, † holy to the Lord: whosoever doeth any work in the sabbath-day, he shall surely be put to death.

Before Christ 1491.

† Heb. holiness.

16 Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant.

17 It is a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever: for [i] in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed.

[i] Gen. 1. 31. and 2. 2.

18 ¶ And

in effect behind our backs, that is the disposition of mind which frustrates the grace of God. (Gal. ii. 21.)

V. 13. Verily my Sabbaths ye shall keep—This precept is here repeated, to shew the use of the tabernacle, and all this cost and trouble about it, that they might there acceptably serve God, as in some measure upon every day, so especially on the Sabbath day. The Sabbath was not made for them, but they for it. It is a sign between me and you—The Sabbath is to commemorate God's creation and dominion over all things, shewing that men were made to be holy, and that their sanctification can be had from none but from God, by faith in the Redeemer, in the observation of God's appointments. By keeping the Sabbath-day holy, they owned themselves to be the Lord's peculiar people, which the rest of the world grosly neglected, and profanely scoffed at. Prefigurative of that rest which Christ should purchase for them, a rest from sin, and the wrath of God for ever. Confirmative, both assuring them of God's good-will to them, and that as he blessed the Sabbath for their sakes, so he would bless them in the holy use of it, with temporal, spiritual, and everlasting blessings, as he declares in many places of Scripture, and assuring God of their standing to that covenant made between God and them. So that the Sabbath was a ratification of the covenant of grace. I am the Lord that doth sanctify you—That consecrate you to myself, and to my service and worship; that sanctifieth you by my word and ordinances, which are in a more eminent and solemn manner dispensed upon the Sabbath-day, by the observation whereof you declare that you own me as your only sanctifier. And so we may observe, the Sabbath owns the Lord as our Creator and as our Redeemer, and as our Sanctifier; and therefore it is no wonder God so severely enjoins the sanctification of the Sabbath, and punisheth the neglect of it, the doing so being a tacit renouncing or disowning of God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. How for the future shall I spend my Sabbaths? The next may be the last. Lord let me spend it as I would wish to spend an eternal Sabbath in thy sacred presence; let me spend it in looking for thy Spirit; that only purifier of the heart, and preparer for those heavenly habitations, which thy dying love has purchased for all them that sanctify thee in their hearts, by a faithful regard to all thou hast required and promised.

V. 14. Every one that defileth it, shall surely be put to death—And shall that soul live in peace that does its own pleasure on that day, whether in getting gain, or making of it a day of amusement? God said to all Israel that man shall be put to death that defiles the Sabbath; and as well may life be had against God's will, as his favour and true peace of mind in any other ways than those that are agreeable to his will, as he has declared it to the world in his written word. He that enters upon the study of God's word, with a view to live by it, begins to do that which God has provided us with, to advance our eternal interest; to live a day without cultivating a better acquaintance with the written word, is far less wisely done than he who puts to sea without that which is to direct him to the haven where he would be. And shall I yet delay to begin to learn the meaning of the will of the Almighty? Shall all things be the subject of more serious consideration than the truth and extent of what God my Maker and Redeemer requires of me? Is the Divine will of all things of such small extent in its signification, that it is enough only to have turned over the sacred pages where we first learnt to read.

V. 15. Six days may work be done, but in the seventh is the Sabbath of rest—And all wordly business, and all work which only has this world, and the things of it in view must be rested from. He that makes it a day of recreation (save in the things of God, the most delightful recreation to the soul) is no more living on the Lord's day, according to the Divine will, than they that are living to please themselves, are doing the will of God from the heart.

V. 16. The children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, observe the Sabbath—Shall keep the Sabbath, by celebrating it; another emphatical repetition to oblige us to the greater caution and diligence in this great duty, and to shew what stress God lays upon it; who hath therefore placed this in the midst of the commands, as the heart which gives life and vigour to all the rest. Remember the Sabbath-day to keep it holy. Observe the Sabbath; watch its coming and approach; consider attentively the nature and use of it; and that not as a matter of speculation, but of serious practice, so that you may perform all the duties of it. Make it a day of rest, and that no idle rest, but a rest holy to the Lord. A perpetual covenant—Condition of that agreement made between me and them, they have solemnly promised that they will do all that I commanded them, in which this is a chief branch, and I have covenanted to bless and sanctify them in so doing. And this word perpetual, as also the word for ever being added to it, may intimate that this hath a longer perpetuity, than the ceremonies to which this phrase is sometimes ascribed, the rather because the reason of this perpetuity is such, as hath its force not only till Christ, but even till the end of the world, and it is fit and just that men should retain this memorial of the world's creation even till its dissolution, as well as of the Lord's resurrection till the creation shall be dissolved, and the resurrection be come.

V. 17. It is a sign—Of the covenant between us, that I will be their God, and they will be my people. The Lord on the seventh day was refreshed—Not as if he had been weary with working, but it notes the pleasure or delight God took in reflecting upon his works, beholding that every thing he had made was very good. (Gen. i. 31.) And how great must that employment be, which is an imitation of the Divine conduct. How acceptable must be the return of that day, in which God has given all men a right which no man can take from them, to rest from labour in the things of this life, and of fixed purpose enter upon the contemplation of the glorious God, the wonders of redeeming love, in his becoming man and dying for us, reviewing the discoveries which all nature makes of his wisdom, power, and goodness, k Chap. 32. 16. and 34. 28. Deut. 9. 10. 2 Cor. 3. 3.

Before Christ 1491

18 ¶ And he gave unto Moſes, when he had made an end of communing with him upon mount Sinai, [k] two tables of teſtimony, tables of ſtone, written with the finger of God.

CHAP. XXXII.

AND when the people ſaw that Moſes delayed to come down out of the mount, the people gathered themſelves together unto Aaron, and ſaid unto him, [a] Up, make us gods which ſhall go before us: for as for this Moſes, the man that brought us up out of land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

a Acts 7. 40.

2 And Aaron ſaid unto them, Break off the golden ear-rings which are in the ears of your wives, of your ſons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me.

Before Christ 1491.

3 And all the people brake off the golden ear-rings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron.

4 [b] And he received them at their hand, and faſhioned it with a graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf: and they ſaid, [c] Theſe be thy gods, O Iſrael, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

b 1 Kings 12. 28. Pſa. 106. 19. c Neh. 9. 18.

5 And when Aaron ſaw it, he built an altar before it; and Aaron made proclamation, and ſaid, To morrow is a feaſt to the Lord.

6 And they roſe up early on the morrow, and

neſs; conſidering his gracious government, and laſt and moſt of all, the work of his grace in convincing and converting ſinners, and renewing his own holy image in the heart and mind, that end of JESUS death. That ſoul which has learned to ſet itſelf to work on the Sunday, has a life of delight and joy to come, as much above the pleaſures of ſenſe, as communion with God is above all converſation with men, and as the works and ways of God are above the deſigns and actions of men. O Lord! hear thy churches cry for the ſake of her living head, and give of thy Spirit, that all may know the bleſſedneſs of that faith which is the ſubſtance of things hoped for, and by which, lives of weakneſs, pain, and difficulty in a world of ſorrow, are turned into joy unſpeakable, and full of glorious proſpects of thoſe heavenly pleaſures which are with thee for ever. (Pſ. xvi. 11.)

V. 18. Two tables of teſtimony—The witneſs of God's will and Iſrael's duty. Tables of ſtone—Whereby was ſignified the durable and perpetual obligation of the moral law, whereas the ceremonial law was to end with the Jewiſh policy at Chriſt's coming, and the ſtonyneſs of men's hearts by nature, in which the law of God could not be written but by a divine and omnipotent hand. Written with the finger of God—With the Spirit of God; by which it is his gracious promiſe to write his holy will in the hearts and minds of men. (Heb. viii. 10.)

CHAP. XXXII.

V. 1. When Moſes delayed to come down out of the mount—Where he had now been for near forty days. The people—Some of the people, as it is expreſſed, 1 Cor. x. 7. Unto Aaron—As the chief perſon in Moſes's abſence. Make us Gods—Images or repreſentations of God, whom, after the manner of idolaters, they call by God's name. For it is ridiculous to think that the body of the Iſraelites, who were now lately inſtructed by the mouth, and words, and miraculous works of the eternal God, ſhould be ſo ſenſeleſs as to think, that was the true God which themſelves made. Which ſhall go before us—To guide us to the land of promiſe, where they longed to be, when ſatan cannot prevent men from having Canaan—heaven in view; he will then labour to lead them to expect that end, by means which are to the end as dreams are to cultivating the ground, or to the performance of thoſe duties which requires labour and diligence. For as the cloud, which hitherto had guided them ſeemed now to be fixed upon the mount, they thought that Moſes had deſerted them. They do not ſay, make us gods whom we may worſhip, but which ſhall go before us, which ſhews that they wanted not a God, whom they knew by infallible evidences they had, but a viſible guide, who might ſupply the want of Moſes, as the next words ſhew. This Moſes—An expreſſion of contempt. Let them that ſet out to ſerve God, not be diſcouraged if they diſcover after a ſhort abſence that they are ſpoken of as was Moſes; let men but loſe the love of God, and they will not be long in ſpeaking of any of his ſervants with contempt. We wot not what is become of him—Whether he be not conſumed by the fire in the cloud, or taken up to heaven, or conveyed away by God to ſome other place.

V. 2. Break off the golden ear-rings—Which were of good value and common uſe among the eaſtern people, who ſeem to have uſed them ſuperſtitiouſly, and therefore Aaron demands theſe partly that he might take away one occaſion of vice, whilſt the people were intent upon another, and partly that the propoſed loſs of their precious ear-rings might cool their idolatrous deſires. Which are in the ears of your wives—Whom he thought moſt fond of their jewels and moſt unlikely to part with them.

V. 3. All the people brake off the golden ear-rings—Whereby they ſhew both their madneſs upon their idols, and their baſe ingratitude to their God, who had transferred theſe jewels from the Egyptians to them. Which were in their ears—The mens ears, for it is of the maſculine gender: Whereby it ſeems the men were more ſet upon idolatry than the women, parting with their ear-rings for it, which the women would not do.

V. 4. He had made it a molten calf—The meaning is, That Aaron, by artificers did firſt melt the gold, into one maſs, and then form it into the ſhape of a calf and poliſh it, in imitation of the Egyptians. They ſaid, Theſe be thy gods—This is thy God; the meaning is, this is the ſign or ſymbol or image of thy God: They intended to worſhip the true God by this image, as afterwards Jeroboam did by the ſame image. And it is incredible that the generality of the Iſraelites ſhould be ſo void of all ſenſe and reaſon, as to think that this new made calf did bring them out of Egypt before its own creation, and that this was the ſame Jehovah, who had even now ſpoken to them from heaven with an audible voice, ſaying, I am the Lord thy God who brought thee out of the land of Egypt.

V. 5. When Aaron ſaw it, he built an altar before it—Obſerved with what applauſe they received it, and with what fury and reſolution they proſecuted their former deſire, he was borne down with the ſtream, and built an altar to it. To morrow is a feaſt to the Lord—To Jehovah. Which title being peculiar to the true God, and being here given by Aaron to the calf with the approbation of the people, makes it more than probable that the people deſigned to worſhip the true God in this calf, which they made only as a viſible token of God's preſence with them, and an image by which they might convey their worſhip to God.

V. 6. Burnt-offerings and peace-offerings—But no ſin-offerings. People ſat down to eat and to drink—For the ſacrifices were accompanied with feaſting, both among the worſhippers of the true God, and among idolaters. And roſe up to play—By ſhouting, and ſinging, and dancing.

V. 7.

Before Christ 1491.

12 ¶ And the Lord spake upon Moses, saying,

13 Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, [f] Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you, throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord, that doth sanctify you.

[f] Lev. 19. 3, 30. and 26. 2. Ezek. 20. 12, 20.

14 [g] Ye shall keep the sabbath therefore: for it is holy unto you. Every one that defileth it, shall surely be put to death: for [h] whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from amongst his people.

[g] Chap. 20. 8. Deut. 5. 12. Ezek. 20. 12. [h] Chap. 35. 2. Num. 15. 34.

15 Six days may work be done, but in the seventh is the sabbath of rest, † holy to the Lord: whosoever doeth any work in the sabbath-day, he shall surely be put to death.

Before Christ 1491.

† Heb. holiness.

16 Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant.

17 It is a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever: for [i] in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed.

[i] Gen. 1. 31. and 2. 2.

18 ¶ And

in effect behind our backs, that is the disposition of mind which frustrates the grace of God. (Gal. ii. 21.)

V. 13. Verily my Sabbaths ye shall keep—This precept is here repeated, to shew the use of the tabernacle, and all this cost and trouble about it, that they might there acceptably serve God, as in some measure upon every day, so especially on the Sabbath day. The Sabbath was not made for them, but they for it. It is a sign between me and you—The Sabbath is to commemorate God's creation and dominion over all things, shewing that men were made to be holy, and that their sanctification can be had from none but from God, by faith in the Redeemer, in the observation of God's appointments. By keeping the Sabbath-day holy, they owned themselves to be the Lord's peculiar people, which the rest of the world grosly neglected, and profanely scoffed at. Prefigurative of that rest which Christ should purchase for them, a rest from sin, and the wrath of God for ever. Confirmative, both assuring them of God's good-will to them, and that as he blessed the Sabbath for their sakes, so he would bless them in the holy use of it, with temporal, spiritual, and everlasting blessings, as he declares in many places of Scripture, and assuring God of their standing to that covenant made between God and them. So that the Sabbath was a ratification of the covenant of grace. I am the Lord that doth sanctify you—That consecrate you to myself, and to my service and worship; that sanctifieth you by my word and ordinances, which are in a more eminent and solemn manner dispensed upon the Sabbath-day, by the observation whereof you declare that you own me as your only sanctifier. And so we may observe, the Sabbath owns the Lord as our Creator and as our Redeemer, and as our Sanctifier; and therefore it is no wonder God so severely enjoins the sanctification of the Sabbath, and punisheth the neglect of it, the doing so being a tacit renouncing or disowning of God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost. How for the future shall I spend my Sabbaths? The next may be the last. Lord let me spend it as I would wish to spend an eternal Sabbath in thy sacred presence; let me spend it in looking for thy Spirit; that only purifier of the heart, and preparer for those heavenly habitations, which thy dying love has purchased for all them that sanctify thee in their hearts, by a faithful regard to all thou hast required and promised.

V. 14. Every one that defileth it, shall surely be put to death—And shall that soul live in peace that does its own pleasure on that day, whether in getting gain, or making of it a day of amusement? God said to all Israel that man shall be put to death that defiles the Sabbath; and as well may life be had against God's will, as his favour and true peace of mind in any other ways than those that are agreeable to his will, as he has declared it to the world in his written word. He that enters upon the study of God's word, with a view to live by it, begins to do that which God has provided us with, to advance our eternal interest; to live a day without cultivating a better acquaintance with the written word, is far less wisely done than he who puts to sea without that which is to direct him to the haven where he would be. And shall I yet delay to begin to learn the meaning of the will of the Almighty? Shall all things be the subject of more serious consideration than the truth and extent of what God my Maker and Redeemer requires of me: Is the Divine will of all things of such small extent in its signification, that it is enough only to have turned over the sacred pages where we first learnt to read.

V. 15. Six days may work be done, but in the seventh is the Sabbath of rest—And all wordly business, and all work which only has this world, and the things of it in view must be rested from. He that makes it a day of recreation (save in the things of God, the most delightful recreation to the soul) is no more living on the Lord's day, according to the Divine will, than they that are living to please themselves, are doing the will of God from the heart.

V. 16. The children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, observe the Sabbath—Shall keep the Sabbath, by celebrating it; another emphatical repetition to oblige us to the greater caution and diligence in this great duty, and to shew what stress God lays upon it; who hath therefore placed this in the midst of the commands, as the heart which gives life and vigour to all the rest. Remember the Sabbath-day to keep it holy. Observe the Sabbath; watch its coming and approach; consider attentively the nature and use of it; and that not as a matter of speculation, but of serious practice, so that you may perform all the duties of it. Make it a day of rest, and that no idle rest, but a rest holy to the Lord. A perpetual covenant—Condition of that agreement made between me and them, they have solemnly promised that they will do all that I commanded them, in which this is a chief branch, and I have covenanted to bless and sanctify them in so doing. And this word perpetual, as also the word for ever being added to it, may intimate that this hath a longer perpetuity, than the ceremonies to which this phrase is sometimes ascribed, the rather because the reason of this perpetuity is such, as hath its force not only till Christ, but even till the end of the world, and it is fit and just that men should retain this memorial of the world's creation even till its dissolution, as well as of the Lord's resurrection till the creation shall be dissolved, and the resurrection be come.

V. 17. It is a sign—Of the covenant between us, that I will be their God, and they will be my people. The Lord on the seventh day was refreshed—Not as if he had been weary with working, but it notes the pleasure or delight God took in reflecting upon his works, beholding that every thing he had made was very good. (Gen. i. 31.) And how great must that employment be, which is an imitation of the Divine conduct. How acceptable must be the return of that day, in which God has given all men a right which no man can take from them, to rest from labour in the things of this life, and of fixed purpose enter upon the contemplation of the glorious God, the wonders of redeeming love, in his becoming man and dying for us, reviewing the discoveries which all nature makes of his wisdom, power, and goodness; k Chap. 32. 16. and 34. 28. Deut. 9. 10. 2 Cor. 3. 3.

Before Christ 1491

18 ¶ And he gave unto Moſes, when he had made an end of communing with him upon mount Sinai, [k] two tables of teſtimony, tables of ſtone, written with the finger of God.

CHAP. XXXII.

AND when the people ſaw that Moſes delayed to come down out of the mount, the people gathered themſelves together unto Aaron, and ſaid unto him, [a] Up, make us gods which ſhall go before us: for as for this Moſes, the man that brought us up out of land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

a Acts 7. 40.

2 And Aaron ſaid unto them, Break off the golden ear-rings which are in the ears of your wives, of your ſons, and of your daughters, and bring them unto me.

Before Christ 1491.

3 And all the people brake off the golden ear-rings which were in their ears, and brought them unto Aaron.

4 [b] And he received them at their hand, and faſhioned it with a graving tool, after he had made it a molten calf: and they ſaid, [c] Theſe be thy gods, O Iſrael, which brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

b 1 Kings 12. 28. Pſa. 106. 19. c Neh. 9. 18.

5 And when Aaron ſaw it, he built an altar before it; and Aaron made proclamation, and ſaid, To morrow is a feaſt to the Lord.

6 And they roſe up early on the morrow, and

neſs; conſidering his gracious government, and laſt and moſt of all, the work of his grace in convincing and converting ſinners, and renewing his own holy image in the heart and mind, that end of JESUS death. That ſoul which has learned to ſet itſelf to work on the Sunday, has a life of delight and joy to come, as much above the pleaſures of ſenſe, as communion with God is above all converſation with men, and as the works and ways of God are above the deſigns and actions of men. O Lord! hear thy churches cry for the ſake of her living head, and give of thy Spirit, that all may know the bleſſedneſs of that faith which is the ſubſtance of things hoped for, and by which, lives of weakneſs, pain, and difficulty in a world of ſorrow, are turned into joy unſpeakable, and full of glorious proſpects of thoſe heavenly pleaſures which are with thee for ever. (Pſ. xvi. 11.)

V. 18. Two tables of teſtimony—The witneſs of God's will and Iſrael's duty. Tables of ſtone—Whereby was ſignified the durable and perpetual obligation of the moral law, whereas the ceremonial law was to end with the Jewiſh policy at Chriſt's coming, and the ſtonyneſs of men's hearts by nature, in which the law of God could not be written but by a divine and omnipotent hand. Written with the finger of God—With the Spirit of God; by which it is his gracious promiſe to write his holy will in the hearts and minds of men. (Heb. viii. 10.)

CHAP. XXXII.

V. 1. When Moſes delayed to come down out of the mount—Where he had now been for near forty days. The people—Some of the people, as it is expreſſed, 1 Cor. x. 7. Unto Aaron—As the chief perſon in Moſes's abſence. Make us Gods—Images or repreſentations of God, whom, after the manner of idolaters, they call by God's name. For it is ridiculous to think that the body of the Iſraelites, who were now lately inſtructed by the mouth, and words, and miraculous works of the eternal God, ſhould be ſo ſenſeleſs as to think, that was the true God which themſelves made. Which ſhall go before us—To guide us to the land of promiſe, where they longed to be, when ſatan cannot prevent men from having Canaan—heaven in view; he will then labour to lead them to expect that end, by means which are to the end as dreams are to cultivating the ground, or to the performance of thoſe duties which requires labour and diligence. For as the cloud, which hitherto had guided them ſeemed now to be fixed upon the mount, they thought that Moſes had deſerted them. They do not ſay, make us gods whom we may worſhip, but which ſhall go before us, which ſhews that they wanted not a God, whom they knew by infallible evidences they had, but a viſible guide, who might ſupply the want of Moſes, as the next words ſhew. This Moſes—An expreſſion of contempt. Let them that ſet out to ſerve God, not be diſcouraged if they diſcover after a ſhort abſence that they are ſpoken of as was Moſes; let men but loſe the love of God, and they will not be long in ſpeaking of any of his ſervants with contempt. We wot not what is become of him—Whether he be not conſumed by the fire in the cloud, or taken up to heaven, or conveyed away by God to ſome other place.

V. 2. Break off the golden ear-rings—Which were of good value and common uſe among the eaſtern people, who ſeem to have uſed them ſuperſtitiouſly, and therefore Aaron demands theſe partly that he might take away one occaſion of vice, whilſt the people were intent upon another, and partly that the propoſed loſs of their precious ear-rings might cool their idolatrous deſires. Which are in the ears of your wives—Whom he thought moſt fond of their jewels and moſt unlikely to part with them.

V. 3. All the people brake off the golden ear-rings—Whereby they ſhew both their madneſs upon their idols, and their baſe ingratitude to their God, who had transferred theſe jewels from the Egyptians to them. Which were in their ears—The mens ears, for it is of the maſculine gender: Whereby it ſeems the men were more ſet upon idolatry than the women, parting with their ear-rings for it, which the women would not do.

V. 4. He had made it a molten calf—The meaning is, That Aaron, by artificers did firſt melt the gold, into one maſs, and then form it into the ſhape of a calf and poliſh it, in imitation of the Egyptians. They ſaid, Theſe be thy gods—This is thy God; the meaning is, this is the ſign or ſymbol or image of thy God: They intended to worſhip the true God by this image, as afterwards Jeroboam did by the ſame image. And it is incredible that the generality of the Iſraelites ſhould be ſo void of all ſenſe and reaſon, as to think that this new made calf did bring them out of Egypt before its own creation, and that this was the ſame Jehovah, who had even now ſpoken to them from heaven with an audible voice, ſaying, I am the Lord thy God who brought thee out of the land of Egypt.

V. 5. When Aaron ſaw it, he built an altar before it—Obſerved with what applauſe they received it, and with what fury and reſolution they proſecuted their former deſire, he was borne down with the ſtream, and built an altar to it. To morrow is a feaſt to the Lord—To Jehovah. Which title being peculiar to the true God, and being here given by Aaron to the calf with the approbation of the people, makes it more than probable that the people deſigned to worſhip the true God in this calf, which they made only as a viſible token of God's preſence with them, and an image by which they might convey their worſhip to God.

V. 6. Burnt-offerings and peace-offerings—But no ſin-offerings. People ſat down to eat and to drink—For the ſacrifices were accompanied with feaſting, both among the worſhippers of the true God, and among idolaters. And roſe up to play—By ſhouting, and ſinging, and dancing.

V. 7. The

Before Christ 1491. and offered burnt-offerings, and brought peace-offerings: and the [d] people sat down to eat and to drink, and rose up to play.

[d] 1 Cor. 10. 7.

[e] Deut. 9. 12.

7 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, [e] Go, get thee down: [f] for thy people, which thou [f] Chap. 33. 1. Dan. 9. 24.

[g] Deut. 32. 5.

broughtest out of the land of Egypt, [g] have corrupted themselves.

8 They have turned aside quickly out of the way which I commanded them: they have made them a molten calf, and have worshipped it, and have sacrificed thereunto, [h] 1 Kings 12. 28.

and said, [h] These be thy gods, O Israel, which have brought thee up out of the land of Egypt.

[i] Chap. 33. 3. Deut. 9. 6, 13. Isa. 48. 4.

9 And the Lord said unto Moses, [i] I have seen this people, and behold, it is a stiff-necked people.

10 Now therefore let me alone, that my wrath may wax hot against them, and that

[k] Num. 14. 12.

I may consume them: and [k] I will make of thee a great nation.

[l] Deut. 9. 18. Psa. 106. 23.

[*] Heb. the face of the LORD.

11 [l] And Moses besought [*] the Lord his God, and said, Lord, why doth thy wrath wax hot against thy people, which thou hast brought forth out of the land of Egypt, with great power, and with a mighty hand?

Before Christ 1491.

12 [m] Wherefore should the Egyptians speak and say, For mischief did he bring them out, to slay them in the mountains, and to consume them from the face of the earth? Turn from thy fierce wrath, and repent of this evil against thy people.

[m] Num. 14. 13. Deut. 9. 28. and 32. 27.

13 Remember Abraham, Isaac, and Israel thy servants, to whom thou swarest by thine own self, and saidst unto them, [n] I will multiply your seed as the stars of heaven, and all this land that I have spoken of, will I give unto your seed, and they shall inherit it for ever.

[n] Gen. 12. 7. and 13. 15. and 15. 7, 18. and 26. 4. and 28. 13. and 48. 16.

14 And the Lord repented of the evil which he thought to do unto his people.

15 ¶ And Moses turned, and went down from the mount, and the two tables of the testimony were in his hand: the tables were written on both their sides; on the one side and on the other were they written.

16 And the [o] tables were the work of God, and

[o] Chap. 31. 18.

V. 7. Thy people have corrupted themselves—No longer my people, as God had called them hitherto; they have forsaken me, and I do hereby renounce them.

V. 9. A stiff-necked people—Untractable, wilful and stubborn, incorrigible by my judgments, ungovernable by any laws. A metaphor from those beasts that will not bend their necks to receive the yoke, or bridle.

V. 10. Let me alone—Do not hinder me by thy prayers, which I see thou art now about to make on their behalf. I will make of thee a great nation—To come out of thy loins.

V. 11. Moses besought the Lord his God—Moses had not lost his interest in God, though Israel had. Lord, why doth thy wrath wax hot—So hot as to consume them utterly. For though he saw reason enough why God should be angry with them, yet he humbly expostulates with God, whether it would be for his honour utterly to destroy them. Thy people—They are thy people, fallen and sinful as they are, their first natural parent was made by THEE in thine own image, and when by his sin he lost it, thou thyself became the Redeemer of the fallen race; and if thou art not their Saviour who art Almighty, they must perish in their sins, but as thou willeth not the death of a sinner, I still presume to call them thine, that from thee they may have mercy, and live to thy glory, and give the greatest praise.

V. 12. Wherefore should the Egyptians say, For mischief did he bring them out—For the spirit by which they are influenced, is desirous of nothing so much as to blaspheme the God of Israel, and to have it appear to all men, that evil must befal them that set out to obey him. Turn from thy fierce wrath, and repent of this evil against thy people—Change thy just sentence, that thy most merciful designs may not be misunderstood, by the sudden destruction of so many of the people brought out of Egypt by thine Almighty power; they are thine, O LORD, for thou hast redeemed them.

V. 13. Remember to whom thou swarest by thine own self—I presume not to ask mercy for them that have thus disobeyed thy command (in bowing down to an image, whatever is their design) for any thing there is in them to incline thee to forgive; it is to thee, O God, I look alone for mercy, and I humbly remind thee of thy gracious promise, to make the children of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob thy people.

V. 14. The Lord repented—Changed his sentence at the intreaty of Moses; who in this represented the LORD himself as the Mediator and intercessor at the throne of grace for all the sinful race. At the very time that the disobedient Israelites concluded that they were left to themselves, and that the LORD had withdrawn their leader from them, the Lord was then delivering his will to Moses for their good, and that of the generations to come; and at the time they said, with contempt of Moses, they knew not what had become of him, then was Moses engaged for their good, in receiving the commands of God. And when the guilty Israelites were eating and drinking, and rising up to play, then was the Divine displeasure going out against them, and without that very intercessor whom they despised they would have been destroyed; all which was unknown and unthought of by them. And shall we read this history without calling to mind how we have misinterpreted God's gracious designs, and in our short sighted views of things, taken occasion to murmur against his holy will, under the very circumstances which were as necessary for our good, as the delay of Moses in the mount was for the good of all Israel; and how often has the Lord of Divine justice been lifted up to destroy us for our unbelief, our ingratitude and daring presumption, when Jesus our Saviour has stood between the just and the unjust, and as very God and man, stretching out those gracious arms which were nailed to the cross, and laying them upon the sinner's head, and on the altar before the throne of God, procuring pardons and reprieves for numberless offences, and saved us from the wrath of God.

V. 15. Moses turned, and went down from the mount—After God had discovered to him his design to shew mercy to the people; and thus did Moses represent the Lord himself as the Mediator with God his father for all mankind; who after being accepted of God in the sinner's stead, left the throne of glory and descended among men, to convince them of sin, and to save them from the sentence due to their crimes, against the holy nature and will of God.

V. 16. The tables were the work of God, and the writing was the writing of God—And it is the work of God to humble and prepare the heart of man for receiving the grace of God, by which

Before Christ 1491. and the writing was the writing of God graven upon the tables.

17 And when Joshua heard the noise of the people as they shouted, he said unto Moses, There is a noise of war in the camp.

18 And he said, It is not the voice of them that shout for mastery, neither is it the voice of them that cry for † being overcome: but the noise of them that sing, do I hear.

† Heb. weakness.

19 ¶ And it came to pass as soon as he came nigh unto the camp, that he saw the calf, and the dancing: and Moses anger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and brake them beneath the mount.

20 [p] And he took the calf which they had made, and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder, and strawed it upon the water, and made the children of Israel drink of it. Before Christ 1491. p Deut. 9. 21.

21 And Moses said unto Aaron, What did this people unto thee, that thou hast brought so great a sin upon them?

22 And Aaron said, Let not the anger of my Lord wax hot: thou knowest the people that they are set on mischief.

23 For they said unto me, Make us gods, which shall go before us: for as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land which the love of God, and a regard to his holy will, is written upon the heart.

V. 17. When Joshua heard the noise of the people, he said, There is a noise of war in the camp—Joshua had waited upon the middle of the hill for Moses, and so neither knew what the people had done, nor heard what God had said to Moses.

V. 18. It is not the voice of them that shout for mastery—Of a victorious party, who express themselves with triumphant shouts. Neither is it the voice of them that cry for being overcome—Of a cry of weakness, of weak, and wounded, and vanquished men.

V. 19. Moses anger waxed hot, and he cast the tables out of his hands, and brake them—Not through rash anger, but to punish their idolatry with so great a loss, and to shew that the covenant made between God and them so much to their advantage, which was contained in those tables, was by their sin broken, and now of none effect, and not to be renewed but by bitter repentance. The people had solemnly engaged to do all that the Lord had commanded; as all men are ready to engage to do, after his grace has convinced them of the sinfulness of sin; and when the soul is emptied of all self-dependence and trust in man, and only uses means, as channels through which God conveys grace to the soul, and has its sole reliance on God its Saviour, then living by faith in him, it is preserved from sin, and enabled to do the will of God; but if it resolves only in its own strength, and expects to walk in all his commands blameless, without an entire reliance on the support of the Holy Spirit given for Christ's sake, then all its resolutions are like those of the Israelites, and their fall addresses itself to all that are in any degree living to please God, and says Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall after their example, who, with all men, living in perfect sinfulness and weakness had in their own strength, said, They would do all the LORD had required; upon this sand of self-confidence so many souls are lost, that the deceits of satan are here to be guarded against and resisted by watchful prayer and lively faith in God's grace, to shew us whenever he suggests to our pride—Of myself I can do this, or this. No, of myself I can do nothing; but I can do all things, by Christ Jesus the Lord strengthening me by his Spirit in the inner man of my heart: And when the soul thus rests on the Lord Jehovah for strength to do his will, then the tempter's design is to fall in with the humbled soul's just views of itself, and not being lifted up into self-dependence, to cast it down into the pit of despair, that there is no mercy for it. Between these two lies the narrow path for every awakened soul to walk in—I am justly exposed to the righteous sentence of the holy and almighty Being I have offended, but Jesus Christ the righteous died to make an atonement for my sins, and by grace, his purchase and his gift, I am alone enabled to do his will on earth as it is done in heaven, that is with all the powers of the heart, mind, and strength.

V. 20. He took the calf, and ground it to powder—Or dust of gold. And strawed it upon the water—Upon the brook which came out of the rock Horeb. And made the children of Israel—Or the chief rulers of the people, who should by their power and authority have restrained the people from this wickedness. To drink of it. Of the water into which that dust was cast, to make them ashamed of worshipping an idol—a nothing, to be reduced to dust by meer human power. The conduct of Moses shews how offensive sin is in the sight of God, that it is to be treated with abhorrence wherever it shews itself.

V. 21. Moses said unto Aaron, What did this people unto thee—What injury had they done to thee, which thou didst so severely revenge? Thou hast brought great sin upon them—The sin of the people is charged upon Aaron, both because he did not resist and suppress their wicked suggestion, by his counsel, and by the authority which Moses had left in his hand. And are the public sins of men charged against those who are placed in stations of authority, if they do not use their authority and power to restrain or punish them? Why has God given talents for government to the human mind; why has his goodness given men so much information of all that is right and good, and by his providence such power to punish wickedness among men? Shall servants be answerable to their masters, children for their duty to their parents; and are duties to the Divine Governor those which may alone be neglected and disregarded? Is there no danger, is there nothing to be feared from letting those go on who violate any of the commands of God—in the face of the sun; shall men who profess any office or station of authority, civil or sacred, let the wicked and the abandoned do as they please, and whilst they are the ministers of God, for the purpose of restraining or punishing wickedness, act as if they were afraid of offending against any other power but God's?

V. 22. The people are set on mischief—Are altogether wicked, bent upon wickedness, so that it was impossible for me to stop or divert their course. But when Moses came, meek as he was, determined to openly condemn their sin, did he act as a man that thought any number of men in open opposition to the declared will of God were to be feared: He proceeded as a man that feared none but God, and his conduct is an example for all men to follow, who are placed by the providence of God in any authority; whoever are offenders against God's will, or the acknowledged rules of right founded upon it, are always to have their crimes openly condemned, and never to be allowed to pass unreproved, or punished by those who are acquainted with the crimes, and have authority to punish them. For parents, masters, magistrates, or the ministers of religion to wink at wickedness in those under their charge, because the disobedient are bold, many, strong, or great, is to betray the trust God has given them into the hands of the enemy of God and men. The servants of God acting within the rules of his word, are never to fear the wicked.

V. 24. I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf—Not that he thought to persuade Moses, that the melted gold came Before Christ 1491. land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

24 And I said unto them, Whosoever hath any gold, let them break it off: So they gave it me: then I cast it into the fire, and there came out this calf.

25 ¶ And when Moses saw that the people were [q] naked (for Aaron [r] had made them naked unto their shame, amongst [‡] their enemies)

26 Then Moses stood in the gate of the camp, and said, Who is on the Lord's side? let him come unto me. And all the sons of Levi gathered themselves together unto him.

27 And he said unto them, Thus saith the Lord God of Israel, Put every man his sword by his side, and go in and out from gate to gate throughout the camp, and [s] slay every man his brother, and every man his companion, and every man his neighbour.

28 And the children of Levi did according to the word of Moses: and there fell of the people that day about three thousand men.

29 [t] § For Moses had said, ‖ Consecrate yourselves to day to the Lord, even every man upon his son, and upon his brother; that he may bestow upon you a blessing this day.

30 ¶ And it came to pass on the morrow, that Moses said unto the people, Ye have sinned a great sin: and now I will go up unto the Lord; [u] peradventure I shall make an atonement for your sin.

31 And Moses returned unto the Lord, and said, Oh, this people have sinned a great sin, and have made them gods of gold.

32 Yet now, if thou wilt, forgive their sin: and if not, [x] blot me, I pray thee, [y] out of thy book which thou hast written.

33 And the Lord said unto Moses, [a] Whosoever

q Chap. 33. 4, 5.
r 2 Chron. 28. 19.
‡ Heb. those that rose up against them.
s Num. 25. 5. Deut. 33. 9
t Deut. 33. 9, 10.
§ Or, And Moses said, Consecrate yourselves to day to the LORD, because every man hath been against his son, and against his brother, &c.
‖ Heb. Fill your hands.
u 2 Sam. 16. 12. Amos 5. 15.
x Psa. 69. 28. Rom. 9. 3.
y Psa. 56. 8. and 139. 16. Dan. 12. 1. Phil. 4. 3. Rev. 3. 5. and 13. 8. and 20. 12.
a Lev. 23. 30. Ezek. 18. 4.

out of the fire in the form of a calf, by accident, without any art or industry of his, which was easily confuted, but only he conceals his own sin in the forming and graving of it, and lays the whole blame upon the people.

V. 25. When Moses saw that the people were naked—Were stripped of their ornament, which was not so much the jewels of their ears, as the innocency of their minds and lives, and of their defence, the favour and protection of God, by which alone they were secured from the Egyptians, and were to be defended against those many and mighty enemies towards whom they were about to march, and that being thus disarmed and helpless, they would be a prey to every enemy; when Moses considered this, he took the following course to cover their nakedness, to expiate their sins, to regain the favour of God, and by punishing the most eminent and incorrigible offenders to bring the rest to repentance. Aaron had made them naked amongst their enemies—He speaks not only of their present shame, but of their everlasting reproach, especially among their and God's enemies, who being constant to their idols, would justly scorn the Israelites for their levity in forsaking their God so quickly and easily.

V. 26. Moses stood in the gate of the camp—That he might withdraw himself from the company of idolaters as far as he might, as a fit place of concourse and resort for those that were on God's side; and to prevent the escape of the greatest delinquents, the rest of the camp being probably surrounded with some trench, or such like thing, else gates had been superfluous. Who is on the Lord's side—Who will take God's part, and plead his cause, against idolatry and idolaters? All the sons of Levi—The most of that tribe, as that universal particle is oft understood, for some of them were destroyed as guilty.

V. 27. Slay every man his brother—Slay every principal offender, whom you meet with, without any indulgence or exception for brother, or companion, or neighbour. There was no fear of killing the innocent in this case, because, Moses had called to himself all that were on God's side, who thereby were separated from the guilty, who were impudently walking about in the camp, trusting to their numbers.

V. 28. There fell that day about three thousand men—And no more, for it is probable they slew only those whom they knew to have been the ringleaders in this mischief.

V. 29. Consecrate yourselves to day to the Lord—Offer up yourselves to the honour and service of the Lord in this work, which because it was joined with the hazard of their lives, he calls it a consecration or oblation of themselves, as Abraham for the like reason is said to have offered up Isaac. That work of justice which they were going to execute, might seem an inhuman act, but he tells them it was an acceptable sacrifice to God. And thus in the great day of the Lord, when all that have ever lived shall rise from the dead, and them that would not appear on God's side, but lived and died in the ways of this world, they, by the command of the merciful Jesus, the final Judge of all, will be driven from the presence of God, and sent down amongst the wicked to their own place.

Before Christ 1491.

V. 30. Peradventure I shall make an atonement for your sin—He speaks doubtfully, because he was uncertain how far God would pardon them, and to quicken them to the more serious practice of repentance.

V. 31. Moses said, Oh, this people have sinned a great sin—By this it would appear, Moses was not so fully acquainted with the people's sin before he came down among them; and by its not having pleased God fully to shew it to him, we are given to understand that all human judgment is to be formed from the evidence of men's actions taken before them, and where they are to answer in their own defence.

V. 32. If thou wilt forgive their sin—It is well, I and others shall praise thy name. His great passion for his people stops his words, and makes his speech imperfect. Blot me, I pray thee, out of thy book—Out of the book of life; signifying that the very thoughts of the destruction of God's people, and of the reproach and blasphemy which would be cast upon God by means thereof, were so grievous to him, that he rather wisheth, if it were possible, that God would accept of him as a sacrifice in their stead, and by his destruction prevent so great a mischief. And it is to be considered, that Moses speaks this, as also many other things, as the Mediator between God and Israel, and as the type of the true Mediator, Jesus Christ, who was in effect to suffer this which Moses was content to suffer.

V. 33. The Lord said, Whosoever hath sinned, him will I blot out of my book—Presumptuously, obstinately, and impenitently. Him will I cut off out of the land of the living, and eternally deprive of my favour and glory, and not thee who art innocent and righteous.

V. 34. Mine angel shall go before thee—Not the Angel of the covenant, who had hitherto gone before them, but a created Angel.

Before Christ 1491. soever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book.

34 Therefore now go, lead the people unto the place of which I have spoken unto thee: [b] Behold, mine Angel shall go before thee: Nevertheless, [c] in the day when I visit, I will visit their sin upon them.

b Chap. 33. 2, 14, &c. Num. 20. 16.
c Deut. 32. 35.

35 And the Lord plagued the people, because they made the calf, which Aaron made.

CHAP. XXXIII.

[a] AND the Lord said unto Moses, Depart, and go up hence, thou, [a] and the people which thou hast brought up out of the land of Egypt, unto the land which I sware unto Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, saying, [b] Unto thy seed will I give it:

a Chap. 32. 7.
b Gen. 12. 7. Chap 32. 13.

2 [c] And I will send an angel before thee; and I will drive out the Canaanite, the Amorite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, the Hivite, and the Jebusite:

c Chap. 32. 34. Deut. 7. 22. Josh. 24. 11.

3 Unto a land flowing with milk and honey: for I will not go up in the midst of thee, for thou art a [d] stiff-necked people: lest [e] I consume thee in the way.

d Chap. 32. 9. Deut. 9. 13.
e Chap. 23. 21.

4 ¶ And when the people heard these evil tidings, they mourned: [f] and no man did put on him his ornaments.

f Isa. 32. 11.

5 For the Lord had said unto Moses, Say unto the children of Israel, Ye are a stiff-necked people: I will come up into the midst of thee in a moment, and consume thee: therefore now put off thy ornaments from thee, that I may know what to do unto thee.

6 And the children of Israel stript themselves of their ornaments, by the mount Horeb. Before Christ 1491.

7 And Moses took the tabernacle, and pitched it without the camp, afar off from the camp, [g] and called it the Tabernacle of the congregation. And it came to pass, that every one which sought the Lord, went out unto the tabernacle of the congregation, which was without the camp.

g Chap. 29. 42, 43.

8 And it came to pass, when Moses went out unto the tabernacle, that all the people rose up, and stood every man at his tent-door, and looked after Moses, until he was gone into the tabernacle.

9 And it came to pass, as Moses entered into the tabernacle, the cloudy pillar descended, and stood at the door of the tabernacle, and the LORD talked with Moses.

10 And all the people saw the cloudy pillar stand at the tabernacle door: and all the people rose up and worshipped, every man in his tent-door.

11 And [h] the Lord spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend. And he turned again into the camp; but his servant Joshua, the son of Nun, a young man, departed not out of the tabernacle.

h Gen. 32. 30. Num. 12. 8. Deut. 34. 10.

12 ¶ And Moses said unto the Lord, See, thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people: and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me. Yet thou hast said, [i] I know i Jer. 1. 5.

gel. The Lord himself thus expressing his sense of their sin, by withdrawing his more immediate presence. Of what mercies does sin deprive mankind. In the day when I visit, I will visit their sin upon them—When I shall punish them for their other sins, which they will commit, I shall remember and punish this also.

V. 35. The Lord plagued the people—With plagues, in which God also punished them for this sin. Because they made the calf which Aaron made—They made it, because they urged Aaron to make it, as Judas is said to purchase the field, which was purchased by his money, and Aaron made it, by giving command to make it. They worshipped or sacrificed to the calf which Aaron made. And the word which signifies to make is oft used for worshipping or sacrificing.

CHAP. XXXIII.

V. 3. I will not go up in the midst of thee—By my own special and gracious presence, as hitherto I have done, but I will depart from thee. In pursuance hereof, God removes his tabernacle without the camp. I will only make good my promise to thy fathers, and send an Angel to accomplish it, but I will shew no peculiar and further kindness to thee. Lest I consume thee in the way—Lest thy sins should be aggravated by my presence, and favour, and thereby I should be provoked utterly to destroy thee. So God shews that their perverseness makes this severity necessary for them, and that God even in his judgment remembers mercy to them.

V. 4. No man did put on him his ornaments—This was a visible sign and profession of their inward humiliation and repentance for their sin and of their deep sense of God's displeasure.

V. 5. I will come up into the midst of thee—In anger, not in favour. This threatening hath a condition implied, except they repent, as the next words plainly shew. That I may know what to do unto thee—That I may either inflict my judgments or suspend them, as thou art penitent or impenitent.

V. 7. Moses took the tabernacle—A tent set up by Moses for the people to meet in, for sacrifice, and seeking of God, and other parts of God's worship, until the great tabernacle should be finished. And pitched it afar off from the camp—In testimony of God's alienation from them and displeasure, to bring them to a thorough repentance. The tabernacle of the congregation—It was so before, but he called it so now, to shew that God had not wholly forsaken them, and that, if they truly repented, he still permitted them to come into his presence, and to seek the Lord. Every one which sought the Lord, went out unto the tabernacle—To intreat his favour, and for counsel and direction.

V. 8. The people looked after Moses—Testifying their grief for God's departure, their respect to Moses whom they had lately despised, their earnest desire of his intercession for them, their longing for God's favour, and their humble expectation of a gracious return from God, by the hands of Moses.

V. 9. The cloudy pillar descended—Whereby God testified his approbation of Moses, and of that which Moses had done, which might seem to some severe and cruel.

V. 11. The

Before Christ 1491. know thee by name, and thou haſt alſo found grace in my ſight.

13 Now therefore, I pray thee, if I have found grace in thy ſight, ſhew me now thy way, that I may know thee, that I may find grace in thy ſight: and conſider that this nation is thy people.

k Iſa. 63. 9. 14 And he ſaid, k My preſence ſhall go with thee, and I will give thee reſt.

l Chap. 34. 9. 15 And he ſaid unto him, l If thy preſence go not with me, carry us not up hence.

16 For wherein ſhall it be known here, that I and thy people have found grace in thy ſight? Is it not in that thou goeſt with us? So m ſhall we be ſeparated, I and thy people, from all the people that are upon the face of the earth.

m Chap. 34. 10.

17 And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, I will do this thing alſo that thou haſt ſpoken: for thou haſt found grace in my ſight, and I know thee by name.

Before Christ 1491.

18 And he ſaid, I beſeech thee ſhew me thy glory.

19 And he ſaid, n I will make all my goodneſs paſs before thee, and I will proclaim the name of the Lord before thee: o and will be gracious to whom I will be gracious, and will ſhew mercy on whom I will ſhew mercy.

n Chap. 34. 5, 6.

o Rom. 9. 15.

20 And he ſaid, Thou canſt not ſee my face: for p there ſhall no man ſee me, and live.

p Gen. 32. 30. Deut. 5. 24. Judges 13. 22. Iſa. 6. 5. Rev. 1. 16, 17.

21 And the Lord ſaid, Behold, there is a place by me, and thou ſhalt ſtand upon a rock.

22 And it ſhall come to paſs, while my glory paſſeth by, that I will put thee in a clift of

V. 11, The Lord ſpoke unto Moſes face to face—He ſpake with him freely and familiarly, and immediately, not by an angel, or viſion, as he did to other prophets. Joſhua departed not out of the tabernacle—Who abode there to aſſiſt and direct thoſe who reſorted thither to ſeek God.

V. 12. Moſes ſaid, Lord, let me know whom thou wilt ſend with me—What angel it is, whether it be a created angel, for then I profeſs I am diſſatisfied with him, or the ſame increated angel Chriſt, who hath hitherto accompanied us, and then I am content. But I am at a great loſs by thy withdrawing thy cloudy pillar from the people to whom it is to be a guide. Yet thou haſt ſaid, I know thee by name—Diſtinctly and familiarly, as one whom I have much converſe with, and great kindneſs for: Thy name is written in my book.

V. 13. Shew me now thy way—The courſe which thou wouldeſt have me take, and the way by which I ſhall conduct thy people to the promiſed land. That I may know thee—That I may experimentally know thee to be what thou haſt promiſed thou wilt be to me and to thy people. Conſider this nation is thy people—Both by thy own choice, and purpoſe, and promiſe to their parents, and by their owning thee for their God, and their returning to thee again.

V. 14. My preſence ſhall go with thee—I myſelf, and I will not turn thee over to an Angel, as I threatened. I will give thee reſt—Not only reſt from thy preſent perplexity of mind for thy people, but in due time I will bring them to their reſting-place, and ſettled habitation; for it is evident the care and prayer of Moſes was more for the people than for himſelf.

V. 15. If thy preſence go not with me, carry us not up hence—Let us rather live and die in the wilderneſs with thy preſence and favour, than go into Canaan without it: For even that promiſe of reſt I value not without thy preſence. He turns God's promiſe into a prayer. A wilderneſs with the favour and preſence of God, Moſes preferred to the promiſed Canaan. When God is known, company, circumſtances, or ſituation, is of little moment to the ſoul that is taken up with God.

V. 16. Wherein ſhall it be known here, that I and thy people have found grace in thy ſight—By what other token ſhall other nations and after ages know. So ſhall we be ſeparated, I and thy people, from all the people that are upon the face of the earth—Diſtinguiſhed by thy peculiar kindneſs and privileges afforded to us.

V. 18. Shew me thy glory—Thy glorious majeſty, the brightneſs of thy countenance, ſome ſuch manifeſtation of thyſelf as becomes thy excellency, and ſuch as ſhall be ſeen in the other life, or that glorious ſhape, which, together with an human voice, thou haſt now aſſumed. Moſes wanted ſtill to know more of the glorious beauty and perfections of God: God only requires to be known, and the ſoul will be deſirous of further and more intimate knowledge of him above all things; all the beauties of this lower world being only evident diſcoveries to the ſenſes of the perfections of their great Creator, and faint tokens of the ſpiritual delight, which the pureſt faculties of the ſoul has in fellowſhip and communion with God.

V. 19. I will make all my goodneſs paſs before thee—My beauty, to paſs before him, in a viſion. Though it may be underſtood properly of God's goodneſs and kindneſs to men, of which the following words ſpeak. Doubtleſs what Moſes deſired was to be made more clearly acquainted with that which the angels deſired to look into—the myſteries of redeeming love; the good-will of God to men, in ſatisfying the divine juſtice in their behalf, and in obtaining grace to reſtore them to that image of God in which Adam was made. I will proclaim the name of the Lord—I will proclaim, manifeſt, and impart my goodneſs. To whom I will be gracious—I will ſhew this peculiar favour to thee, I will alſo be gracious towards the people thou pleadeſt for, but not promiſcuouſly. They that repent and forſake their ſins—all known ſin, and accept of the further communications of my grace; goodneſs and mercy, ſhall follow them all the days of their lives, and continuing faithful unto death, they ſhall dwell in the houſe of the Lord for ever. They that reſiſt my offered grace, and will remain in ſinful unbelief, and who, after all the ways that are taken to bring them to repentance, they will continue to live to themſelves, by the diſcoveries I am about to make of my goodneſs to thee, it is not to be underſtood that I ſhall clear the wilfully and finally impenitent, of that wrath which is revealed from heaven againſt all unrighteouſneſs of men, who knowing what God requires, hold the truth in unrighteouſneſs.

V. 20. Thou canſt not ſee my face—My glorious preſence. There ſhall no man ſee me, and live—That bliſsful viſion of God in glory ſhall be given to no man here, but is reſerved for the future life. Or the impoſſibility of the thing from man's weakneſs, which is ſuch that if God ſhould diſplay all the beams of his glory to him, it would overwhelm, and deſtroy him.

V. 21. Behold, there is a place by me—In this mountain where my glorious preſence now is, and in that part of it whence my voice now cometh to thee.

V. 22. I will put thee in a cliſt of the rock, and will cover thee with my hand—That thou mayeſt not be undone by thy own deſires, nor ſwallowed up with the ſight of my glory.

V. 23. I

Before Christ 1491. of the rock; and will cover thee with my hand while I pass by.

23 And I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my back-parts; but my face shall not be seen.

CHAP. XXXIV.

[a] Chap. 32. 16, 19. Deut. 10. 1. AND the Lord said unto Moses, [a] Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first: and I will write upon these tables the words that were in the first tables which thou brakest.

2 And be ready in the morning, and come up in the morning unto mount Sinai, and present thyself there to me, [b] in the top of the mount.

[b] Chap. 19. 20.

[c] Chap. 19. 12, 13. 3 And no man shall [c] come up with thee, neither let any man be seen throughout all the mount: neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount.

4 ¶ And he hewed two tables of stone, like unto the first; and Moses rose up early in the morning, and went up unto mount Sinai, as the Lord had commanded him, and took in his hand the two tables of stone.

Before Christ 1491.

5 And the Lord descended in the cloud, and stood with him there, and [d] proclaimed the name of the Lord.

[d] Chap. 33. 19.

6 And the Lord passed by before him, and proclaimed, The Lord, The Lord [e] God, merciful and gracious, long-suffering, and abundant in goodness and truth, [e] Num. 14. 18.

7 [f] Keeping mercy for thousands, forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin, and [g] that will by no means clear the guilty; visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children, and upon the children's children, unto the third and to the fourth generation.

[f] Chap. 20. 6. Deut. 5. 10. Psa. 86. 15. Jer. 32. 18.
[g] Chap. 23. 7, 21. Josh. 24. 19. Job 10. 14. Mic. 6. 11. Nah. 1. 3.

8 And Moses made haste, and bowed his head toward the earth, and worshipped.

9 And

V. 23. I will take away mine hand, and thou shalt see my back parts—Imperfectly and in part, as when we see only a man's back-parts, and not his face. Thou shalt see a shadow or obscure delineation of my glory, as much as thou canst bear, though not as much as thou dost desire.

CHAP. XXXIV.

V. 1. Hew thee two tables of stone—The first tables were made immediately by God, who of his own meer grace and good pleasure, and without man's merit or contrivance, entered into covenant with Abraham and his seed, these tables must be made by Moses, partly in token of God's displeasure for their sin, and partly to signify, that though the covenant of grace was first made without man's care and counsel, yet it should not be renewed but by man's repentance. And as the tables of stone signified the hardness of their hearts, so the hewing of them by Moses might signify the circumcision of their hearts, that they might be fit for the receiving of God's mercies, and the performance of their duties. I will write the words that were in the first tables—To shew God's reception of Israel into his favour, and their former state, and that the law and covenant of God was neither abolished nor changed by their sin.

V. 3. Neither let the flocks nor herds feed before that mount—This is said not for the beasts, which are not capable of a law, but to restrain the presumption and curiosity of the people by this argument, that even the beasts that come too near shall be destroyed, and much more man, whose knowledge aggravates his sin and punishment.

V. 5. The Lord descended in the cloud—In the cloudy pillar, which ordinarily stood up in the air above the mount, but came down to the top of it, when God spake with Moses. And stood with him there—In the mount, and in the clift of a rock, which was in the mount. The Lord manifesting himself to his highly-favoured servant in a place of great retirement. When God calls his servants, who are always the public servants of other men, into places of public resort, he will not withdraw his presence from those minds that are stayed upon him, but will keep them in perfect peace; but those that would antedate their heaven, and dwell much with God upon earth, will find places of calm retirement the best suited for attending to the Divine manifestations, and the farther they are removed from all the distractions of men, whose minds are not engaged with God, the less interrupted will be their intercourse with God, whom to know, as he only can be known by men in the son of his love, the more will they know of the nature of life eternal. (John xx. 31.)

V. 6. The Lord God—This title shews his glorious beings, power and authority, the following titles note his goodness to men. Merciful, gracious, long-suffering, abundant in goodness and truth—In fulfilling all his gracious promises made to Abraham, and to his seed, and to all that believe in him, wherein he is said to be abundant, because his mercies are more above our thoughts than the heavens are above the earth. But in reading those titles of the God of glory, and the sinner's friend, we are to stand and lift up our hearts to heaven, and to the throne of God, as he himself has revealed it, and there through the Lamb of God, as from an infinite fountain, are we to see flowing from God, to every humble believing mind, mercy to pardon, grace to save, purify and support the soul, long-suffering to bear with all our infirmities which God himself is touched with a sense of, (Heb. iv. 15.) abundant in goodness to shew greater mercy, to give more grace, and truth invariably to fulfil all that he has promised. But all eternity can never enable the most ardent spirit among the blessed to comprehend what there is of greatness, beauty, and goodness in a single attribute of God, because he is infinite, and in none of his perfections can any of his creatures ever comprehend all that he is, so that with increasing delight, the wisdom, power, and love of God will be the employment of the blessed for ever.

V. 7. Keeping mercy for thousands—For a thousand generations. His mercy endures for ever to all that fear him, and they that place the Lord before them as their God and Saviour, and trust to that mercy in the ways of true repentance, and an humble reliance on his goodness, never will that mercy fail them. Forgiving iniquity, and transgression, and sin—Sins of all sorts, secret or open, infirmities or presumptions, against God or men, as the heap of various words here put together signifies. And that will by no means clear the guilty—This is commonly esteemed a title of justice or vengeance, which is here added by way of correction, least men should mistake or abuse God's mercy. God is most gracious indeed, but so as he is also just, and will not pity nor spare impudent and impenitent transgressors, but will severely punish them.

V. 8. Moses made haste, and bowed his head, and worshipped—When he found the Lord was so near to him, he delayed not to make his requests known with prayer and supplication. And when by his spirit he is most manifestly drawing nigh to them that draw nigh to him, (James iv. 8.) Moses's example is ever to be imitated; for when God by his grace comes to the soul to bless

Before Christ 1491.

9 And he said, If now I have found grace in thy sight, O Lord, [h] let my Lord, I pray thee, go amongst us (for it is a stiff-necked people) and pardon our iniquity, and our sin, and take us for thine inheritance.

h Chap. 33. 15.

10 ¶ And he said, Behold, [i] I make a covenant: before all thy people I will do marvels, such as have not been done in all the earth, nor in any nation: and all the people amongst which thou art, shall see the work of the Lord: for it is a terrible thing that I will do with thee.

i Deut. 5. 2.

11 Observe thou that which I command thee this day: Behold, I drive out before thee the Amorite, and the Canaanite, and the Hittite, and the Perizzite, and the Hivite, and the Jebusite.

12 [k] Take heed to thyself, lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, whither thou goest, lest it be for a snare in the midst of thee.

k Chap. 23. 32. Deut. 7. 2.

Before Christ 1491.

13 But ye shall destroy their altars, [l] break their * images, and [m] cut down their groves.

l Chap. 23. 24. Deut. 12. 3.
* Heb. statues.
m Judges 6. 25. 2 Kings 18. 4. and 23. 14. 2 Chron. 31. 1. and 34. 3.

14 For thou shalt worship no other God: for the Lord, whose name is Jealous, is a [n] jealous God:

n Chap. 20. 5.

15 Lest thou make a covenant with the inhabitants of the land, and they go a whoring after their gods, and do sacrifice unto their gods, and one call thee, and thou eat of his sacrifice,

16 And thou take of [o] their daughters unto thy sons, and their daughters [p] go a whoring after their gods, and make thy sons go a whoring after their gods.

o 1 Kings 11. 2. Neh. 13. 25. p Num. 25. 1, 2.

17 Thou

it, (John xiv. 21, 23.) he also comes to grant greater blessings to them that ask them; ever saying when he draws nigh—Now what wouldest thou that I should do unto thee. He that allows himself to be diverted from prayer, and to neglect the high privilege of asking God for the blessings he has promised to give to all that ask him, he deprives himself of more than all the kings of the earth could bestow upon him, did they give their crowns and their dominions for the privilege of approaching God in heartfelt prayer—Prayer shall save from natural death, (James v. 15.) prayer shall obtain grace to save the soul from death eternal. (Acts xvi. 30.) See death and hell on one hand, and the whole world on the other, and then say what shall induce me to neglect crying when no eye but God's beholds me—Lord save or I perish; forgive me my trespasses, let me know the blessedness which they have whose iniquities are forgiven, whose sins are covered; the blessedness of that man to whom the Lord will not impute sin. (Rom. v. 7, 8.) Moses made haste, and bowed himself before God; the everlasting gates are open, and the king of glory gives audience to all that call upon him in the name of Jesus: Now is the accepted time; wait at a distance all ye worldly hopes and fears till God has manifested himself according to his word, and by his pardon, and his blessed presence, has given more than the world can give.

V. 9. It is a stiff-necked people—Though it be a stiff-necked people, as thou sayest, yet forsake them not. Take us for thine inheritance—Deal with us as men do with their inheritances, dwell amongst us, protect us, improve us.

V. 10. I make a covenant—I do hereby renew my covenant with thy people, which they had violated by their sin. But the shortness of the phrase, there being no mention here of any with whom this covenant is made or renewed, and the following words make it more probable that this covenant is nothing but a solemn promise or engagement that God will do the thing which here follows. And the word covenant is often used for a mere promise. It is a terrible thing that I will do with thee—In the midst of thy people.

V. 11. Observe thou that which I command thee—Take notice of all that is said, treasure it up in thy heart, that none of the things which are commanded thee of God may be forgotten; for nothing that he requires of thee is to be lightly esteemed as being of little or no moment: All that is commanded of God is for his glory and the good of all that obey him, and that to a far higher degree than is yet known or understood, or indeed can be; for all that God requires men to do during their life of trial on earth, he requires them to do in faith, and with a view to God's everlasting favour.

V. 12. Take heed to thyself—Let neither love of ease, fear of danger, or hopes of advantage lead thee to unite with the people of the land; the spirit by which they allow themselves to be led is the spirit of this world; but thou art required to live and walk in the spirit of God, and to unite with them is to forsake God thy Saviour, and to put thyself under the influence of the spirit of satan, the god of this world; but if thou remainest stedfast, living by faith in the God of Israel, they beholding thy godly carriage, shall be convinced that the Spirit of the holy God dwelleth in thee, and many of them shall turn unto the Lord, and be added unto the number of his people, and be saved; but if thou goest over unto them, who know not the Lord, but are living in that state into which sinful men are fallen, thou shalt be the cause of misleading them, and thou wilt also lose thy own soul—Take heed therefore to thyself, thou wilt either receive and do great good, or sustain thyself the greatest loss, and be the occasion of doing the greatest evil to those that know not the Lord, and who will be confirmed in their infidelity by every compliance which thou shalt make with their spirit and ways of living.

V. 13. Ye shall cut down their groves—Which at first were used by good men for their devotion, but afterwards being abused to superstition and idolatry were by God's command to be destroyed. Thou shalt first shew them that the idols which they worship are nothing, and thus give them warning of their danger, that they may see their folly in looking to any idol or object of sense, to deliver them from the miserable effects of sin, or to make them happy, and by this have a further call to repent and turn unto the Lord, and escape that destruction which otherwise must come upon them, that in their utter ruin it may appear to all mankind, that there is salvation in no other than in the one Mediator between God and man, and that whatever men are looking to besides, to do them good, or to deliver them from evil, the idols of their hearts will fail them, and they and their gods will be destroyed.

V. 14. Thou shalt worship no other God—And to prevent any of them from being misled, do thou stedfastly remain in the worship of the living and the true God, and of the Saviour which he alone has provided. The Lord is jealous—Who hath made himself known by, and glories in that name, the jealous God, who cannot endure any competitor or rival; and who is dishonoured by being compared with any created good, or by being worshipped through any image, or visible representation.

V. 15. Lest thou make a covenant—Or suffer them quietly to live among you whom you should drive out. And they go a whoring after their gods—Commit idolatry, which is called spiritual whoredom.

Before Christ 1491.

17 [q] Thou shalt make thee no molten gods.

18 ¶ The feast of [r] unleavened bread shalt thou keep: Seven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread, as I commanded thee in the time of the month Abib: for in the [s] month Abib thou camest out from Egypt.

19 [t] All that openeth the matrix is mine: and every firstling among thy cattle, whether ox or sheep, that is male.

20 But [u] the firstling of an ass thou shalt redeem with a † lamb: and if thou redeem him not, then shalt thou break his neck. All the first-born of thy sons thou shalt redeem: and none shall appear before me [x] empty.

21 ¶ [y] Six days thou shalt work, but on the seventh day thou shalt rest: in earing-time and in harvest thou shalt rest.

22 ¶ [a] And thou shalt observe the feast of weeks, of the first-fruits of wheat-harvest, and the feast of in-gathering at the ‡ year's end.

23 ¶ [b] Thrice in the year shall all your men-children appear before the Lord God, the God of Israel.

24 For I will cast out the nations before thee, and enlarge thy borders: [c] neither shall any man desire thy land, when thou shalt go up to appear before the Lord thy God, thrice in the year.

Before Christ 1491.

25 [d] Thou shalt not offer the blood of my sacrifice with leaven; [e] neither shall the sacrifice of the feast of passover be left unto the morning.

26 [f] The first of the first-fruits of thy land thou shalt bring unto the house of the Lord thy God. Thou shalt not seethe a [g] kid in his mother's milk.

27 And the Lord said unto Moses, Write thou [h] these words: for after the tenor of these words I have made a covenant with thee and with Israel.

28 [i] And he was there with the Lord forty days and forty nights; he did neither eat bread, nor drink water: and [k] he wrote upon the tables the words of the covenant, the ten * commandments.

29 ¶ And it came to pass when Moses came down from mount Sinai (with the two tables of testimony in Moses' hand, when he came down from the mount) that Moses wist not that [l] the skin of his face shone, while he talked with him.

30 And

q Chap. 32. 8.
r Chap. 12. 15. and 23. 15.
s Chap. 13. 4.
t Chap. 13. 2, 13 & 22. 29. Ezek. 44. 30. Luke 2. 23.
u Num. 18. 15.
† Or, kid.
x Chap. 23. 15. Deut. 16. 16. 1 Sam. 9. 7, 8. 2 Sam. 24. 24.
y Chap. 23. 12. Deut. 5. 12. Luke 13. 14.
a Chap. 23. 16.
‡ Heb. revolution of the year.
b Chap. 23. 14, 17. Deut. 16. 16.
c See Gen. 35. 5. 2 Chro. 17. 10. Acts 18. 10.
d Chap. 23. 18.
e Chap. 12. 10.
f Chap. 23. 19. Deut. 26. 2.
g Chap. 23. 19. Deut. 14. 21.
h Deut. 4. 13.
i Chap. 24. 18. Deut. 9. 9, 18.
k Chap. 31. 18. and 34. 1. Deut. 4. 13. and 10. 2, 4.
* Heb. words.
l 2 Cor. 3. 7, 13.

dom. And thou eat of his sacrifice—Of the remainder of his sacrifices, whereby thou wilt partake with him in an idolatrous worship, because such feasts were a part of the worship offered to the idol, and were accompanied with solemn benedictions and thanksgivings to the idol.

V. 17. Make thee no molten gods—Nor graven, nor any other, as it plainly appears, both from the nature of the things, and from many parallel Scriptures: But he mentions molten, because their late idol was of that kind.

V. 20. None shall appear before me empty—Without a gift to me, so it is a precept; or without benefit to himself; so it is a promise. None shall wait upon the Lord without bringing unto him an offering of thanksgiving and praise for mercies already received, and such will God meet; for he meeteth them that rejoiceth and remembereth him with thankfulness in his appointed ways.

V. 21. The seventh day thou shalt rest; in earing-time, and in harvest thou shalt rest—Which times are expressed, because the great profit and seeming necessity of working at that time was likely to be a temptation to make men break the Sabbath. Again and again is it commanded that no ordinary works or business shall be done on the Sabbath day; the religious duties to be done on this day being such as are not to be broken in upon under any pretence, or by any thing which was not in itself an immediate sacrifice to God.

V. 22. The feast of weeks—Which is numbered by weeks, being just seven weeks after the pass-over, whence it is called Pentecost, i. e. the fiftieth day after the passover. The first fruits of wheat-harvest—This is a designation of the time and business of the feast of weeks. The feast of in-gathering—Of the fruits of the earth. The years end—So it was in regard of the jubilee and civil contracts.

V. 24. I will cast out the nations before thee—So thou shalt have no intestine enemy to do thee or thine mischief. This God promised to do, but upon condition of Israel's discharge of their duty in following God in this work of driving them out, which they neglecting, it was not fully done. Neither shall any man desire thy land—I will not only tie their hands, that they shall make no invasion upon you, but I will take off their thoughts and affections from such an enterprize.

V. 26. The first fruits of thy land thou shalt bring—Thou shalt not delay to do this but shalt bring the very first of them. What is to be done for God is to be done diligently and without delays; and it is evidence to ourselves that we know but little of the Lord when works of piety and mercy are less attended to than worldly business, and when men who live to themselves and this world alone, go before men professing godliness in deligence and dispatch.

V. 27. The Lord said unto Moses, write thou these words—Moses was to write the ritual precepts mentioned here, God wrote the moral law. Moses wrote what he wrote in a book. But what was written upon the tables of stone was written by God himself.

V. 28 He was with the Lord forty days and forty nights—As he had been before, being now to renew the broken covenant. He wrote the Ten Commandments—Not Moses, but the Lord.

V. 29. Moses wist not that the skin of his face shone—Why now, and not when he came down from God before? Because now he obtained, what he did not before, a glimpse of the Divine glory, which, though but very transient, left its print upon his face. What must be the glorious brightness of those that dwell in the presence of God among the redeemed of his kingdom above? Why are our hearts so little engaged with God to prepare us for his blessed presence? Why, but because we are earthly and sensual. But should not the knowledge of our remissness make us take the greater heed to ourselves, that we neglect no occasion, omit none of the means which God has appointed us to make use of to lead us to himself and to be prepared to behold his glory for ever.

V. 31. Moses called unto them: and all the rulers of the congregation returned unto him—To the tabernacle which was still at a distance

Before Christ 1491.

30 And when Aaron and all the children of Israel saw Moses, behold, the skin of his face shone, and they were afraid to come nigh him.

31 And Moses called unto them; and Aaron and all the rulers of the congregation returned unto him: and Moses talked with them.

32 And afterward all the children of Israel came nigh: and he gave them in commandment all that the Lord had spoken with him in mount Sinai.

33 And till Moses had done speaking with them, he put [m] a vail on his face. [m] 2 Cor. 3. 13.

34 But when Moses went in before the Lord to speak with him, he took the vail off, until he came out. And he came out and spake unto the children of Israel, that which he was commanded.

35 And the children of Israel saw the face of Moses, that the skin of Moses' face shone: and Moses put the vail upon his face again until he went in to speak with him.

CHAP. XXXV.

AND Moses gathered all the congregation of the children of Israel together, and said unto them, These are the words which the Lord hath commanded, that ye should do them. a Chap. 20. 9. & 31. 14, 15. Lev. 23. 3. Deut. 5. 12. Luke 13. 14.

2 [a] Six days shall work be done, but on the seventh day there shall be to you [] an holy day, a sabbath of rest to the Lord: whosoever doeth work therein, shall be put to death. [] Heb. holiness.

Before Christ 1491.

3 [b] Ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitations upon the sabbath-day. b Chap. 16. 23.

4 ¶ And Moses spake unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, saying, This is the thing which the Lord commanded, saying,

5 Take ye from amongst you an offering unto the Lord: [c] Whosoever is of a willing heart, let him bring it, an offering of the Lord; gold, and silver, and brass, c Chap. 29. 2.

6 And blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats hair,

7 And rams skins dyed red, and badgers skins, and shittim-wood,

8 And oil for the light, [d] and spices for anointing oil, and for the sweet incense, d Chap. 25. 6.

9 And onyx-stones, and stones to be set, for the ephod, and for the breast-plate.

10 And [e] every wise-hearted among you, shall come and make all that the Lord hath commanded; e Chap. 31. 6.

11 [f] The tabernacle, his tent, and his covering, his taches, and his boards, his bars, his pillars, and his sockets, f Chap. 26. 1, &c.

12 The ark and the staves thereof, with the mercy-seat, and the vail of the covering,

13 The table and his staves, and all his vessels, [g] and the shew-bread, 14 The g Chap. 25. 30.

tance from the camp, though afterwards, God being reconciled, it was set-up in the camp. All the honour God had bestowed on Moses did not lead him to keep at a distance from the people over whom God had placed him; but knowing that God called him to live for the general good and as his public servant he called the rulers to him and talked with them.

V. 33 He put a vail on his face—In condescension to their weakness.

V. 34. Moses went in before the Lord and he came out and spake unto the children of Israel—How does Moses continue to pass backwards and forwards between God and the people, as the servant of both; giving up himself just to do that which for the time was wanted to be done for the glory of God and the people's good; and if we raise our hearts to heaven, and think how angels are employed, can we assign them any higher or more blessed employment than to pass between their Creator and Redeemer, and those who are yet in a state of trial, exposed to eternal ruin, but to be saved by the mercy of God, who makes use of their ministry to assist and serve the sons of men.

CHAP. XXXV.

V. 2. The seventh day shall be to you an holy day, a sabbath of rest to the Lord—This command of the sabbath is repeated, together with the instructions for the building of the tabernacle, to shew that they were made for no other use than the service of God, which was to be performed every day, so in an eminent and peculiar manner upon the sabbath day, and to teach them the absolute necessity of minding that precept in and above all their ceremonial observations.

V. 3. Ye shall kindle no fire upon the sabbath-day—You shall kindle no fire for any handy-work throughout your habitation, no not for the service of this tabernacle, for the heating of any tools, or the melting of any metals, or other things belonging to it, which being to be made for God's service, and deserving and requiring all expedition, they might probably conceive that such work might be done upon that day. And here also, as oft elsewhere, under one kind of work all the rest are comprehended and forbidden.

V. 5. Whosoever is of a willing heart let him bring it, an offering of the Lord—For God values not forced or grudged services, (2 Cor. ix. 7.) that which is done by constraint and against the will in the work of the Lord, might, as to the doer of it, as well not have been done at all; but this does not apply to them who are only sorry that their hearts are not more engaged for God in works of piety and mercy among men, and regret that they do not feel greater delight in doing the will of God on earth; of such it is accepted according to what a man hath, and this knowledge of his wants of a willing heart to serve the Lord goes before the grace which shall make him so; and whenever the desire is known or felt to love God more and to serve him with greater willingness God will give his holy spirit to them that ask him.

V. 10. Every wise-hearted—Skilful artist: for though God had prescribed the things, yet it required wisdom and skill to execute what God commanded.

V. 11. The tabernacle—The boards or structure of the tabernacle. His tent—The inward and finer curtains which covered the boards of it. His covering—The outward and coarser coverings.

V. 12. The vail of the covering—Which was hanged before the ark and mercy seat.

V. 21. Every

Before Christ 1491. 14 The candleſtick alſo for the light, and his furniture, and his lamps, with the oil for the light, h Chap. 30. 1. 15 [h] And the incenſe-altar, and his ſtaves, and the anointing oil, and the ſweet incenſe, and the hanging for the door at the entering in of the tabernacle, i Chap. 27. 1. 16 [i] The altar of burnt-offering, with his braſen grate, his ſtaves, and all his veſſels, the laver and his foot, 17 The hangings of the court, his pillars, and their ſockets, and the hanging for the door of the court,

18 The pins of the tabernacle, and the pins of the court, and their cords, 19 The clothes of ſervice, to do ſervice in the holy place, the holy garments for Aaron the prieſt, and the garments of his ſons to miniſter in the prieſt's office.

20 ¶ And all the congregation of the children of Iſrael departed from the preſence of Moſes.

21 And they came every one whoſe heart ſtirred him up, and every one whom his ſpirit made willing, and they brought the Lord's offering to the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all his ſervice, and for the holy garments.

22 And they came both men and women, as many as were willing-hearted, and brought bracelets, and ear-rings, and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold: and every man that offered, offered an offering of gold, unto the Lord.

23 And every man with whom was found blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, and fine linen, and goats hair, and red ſkins of rams, and badgers ſkins, brought them.

24 Every one that did offer an offering of ſilver and braſs, brought the Lord's offering: and every man with whom was found ſhittim-wood for any work of the ſervice, brought it.

25 And all the women that were wiſe-hearted, did ſpin with their hands, and brought that which they had ſpun, both of blue, and of purple, and of ſcarlet, and of fine linen. Before Christ 1491

26 And all the women whoſe heart ſtirred them up in wiſdom, ſpun goats hair.

27 And the rulers brought onyx-ſtones, and ſtones to be ſet, for the ephod, and for the breaſt-plate:

28 And [k] ſpice, and oil for the light, and for the anointing oil, and for the ſweet incenſe. k Chap. 30. 23.

29 The children of Iſrael brought a willing offering unto the Lord, every man and woman, whoſe heart made them willing to bring for all manner of work, which the Lord had commanded to be made, by the hand of Moſes.

30 ¶ And Moſes ſaid unto the children of Iſrael, See, [l] the Lord hath called by name Bezaleel the ſon of Uri, the ſon of Hur, of the tribe of Judah: l Chap. 31. 2.

31 And he hath filled him with the ſpirit of God, in wiſdom, in underſtanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanſhip;

32 And to deviſe curious works, to work in gold, and in ſilver, and in braſs, 33 And in the cutting of ſtones to ſet them, and in carving of wood to make any manner of cunning work.

34 And he hath put in his heart that he may teach, both he and Aholiab the ſon of Ahiſamach of the tribe of Dan.

35 Them hath he filled with wiſdom of heart, to work all manner of work, of the engraver, and of the cunning workman, and of the embroiderer, in blue, and in purple, in ſcarlet, and in fine linen, and of the weaver, even of them that do any work, and of thoſe that deviſe cunning work.

CHAP. XXXVI.

THEN wrought Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wiſe-hearted man, in whom the 1490.

V. 21. Every one whoſe heart ſtirred him up—Whoſe heart being deſirous and ready to ſerve God engaged his hand to offer what he had to his ſervice. Every one whom his ſpirit made willing. To convince the mind of what is right, is the work of the grace of God. To incline the heart or the will to do that of which it is convinced is alſo of God; and to enable the perſon to perform that of which it is convinced, and to which it is inclined is alſo the work of the ſpirit of God. Convictions of what is right may be fruſtrated, and when the heart is inclined to do the will of God, it may grieve the ſpirit by trifling and delaying to perform the preſent duty; and by not uſing the offered ſtrength of God's grace, it will be left without power to do his holy will, the beginning of good are as carefully to be attended to and embraced, would we love God and be happy, as the beginnings of evil are to be watched againſt and reſiſted, in order to avoid being led by the devices of ſatan away from God into ſin and miſery.

V. 22. Both men and women brought bracelets and ear-rings—Though the generality of the people had before parted with their ear-rings, yet there was a conſiderable number who did not, as being diſſatisfied with that idolatrous deſign.

V. 30, 31. The Lord hath called by name Bezaleel and hath filled him with the Spirit of God—Whom the Lord calls to any work he qualifies for that work, by giving of his ſpirit to do his will.

V. 35. Them hath he filled with wiſdom of heart, to work all manner of work—This is again and again repeated, that it may be the better obſerved that every good and perfect gift cometh from God, and with this merciful deſign that whoſoever lacks wiſdom may aſk of God, who alone is every where to be applied to, is able to give to all that aſk him.

Before Christ 1490. the Lord put wiſdom and underſtanding, to know how to work all manner of work for the ſervice of the ſanctuary, according to all that the Lord had commanded.

2 And Moſes called Bezaleel and Aholiab, and every wiſe-hearted man, in whoſe heart the Lord had put wiſdom, even every one whoſe heart ſtirred him up to come unto the work to do it.

3 And they received of Moſes all the offering which the children of Iſrael had brought, for the work of the ſervice of the ſanctuary, to make it withal. And they brought yet unto him free-offerings every morning.

4 And all the wiſe men that wrought all the work of the ſanctuary, came every man from his work which they made.

5 ¶ And they ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying, The people bring much more than enough for the ſervice of the work which the Lord commanded to make.

6 And Moſes gave commandment, and they cauſed it to be proclaimed throughout the camp, ſaying, Let neither man nor woman make any more work for the offering of the ſanctuary. So the people were reſtrained from bringing.

7 For the ſtuff they had was ſufficient for all the work to make it, and too much.

a Chap. 26. 3. 4. 8 ¶ [a] And every wiſe-hearted man, among them that wrought the work of the tabernacle, made ten curtains of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and ſcarlet: with cherubims of cunning work made he them.

9 The length of one curtain was twenty and eight cubits, and the breadth of one curtain four cubits: the curtains were all of one ſize.

10 And he coupled the five curtains one unto another: and the other five curtains he coupled one unto another.

11 And he made loops of blue on the edge of one curtain, from the ſelvedge in the coupling: likewiſe he made in the uttermoſt ſide of another curtain, in the coupling of the ſecond.

b Chap. 26. 10. 12 [b] Fifty loops made he in one curtain, and fifty loops made he in the edge of the curtain which was in the coupling of the ſecond: the loops held one curtain to another. Before Christ 1490.

13 And he made fifty taches of gold, and coupled the curtains one unto another with the taches. So it became one tabernacle.

14 ¶ And he made curtains of goats hair, for the tent over the tabernacle: eleven curtains he made them.

15 The length of one curtain was thirty cubits, and four cubits was the breadth of one curtain: the eleven curtains were of one ſize.

16 And he coupled five curtains by themſelves, and ſix curtains by themſelves.

17 And he made fifty loops upon the uttermoſt edge of the curtain in the coupling, and fifty loops made he upon the edge of the curtain, which coupleth the ſecond.

18 And he made fifty taches of braſs to couple the tent together, that it might be one.

19 And he made a covering for the tent, of rams ſkins dyed red, and a covering of badgers ſkins above that.

20 ¶ And he made boards for the tabernacle, of ſhittim-wood, ſtanding up.

21 The length of a board was ten cubits, and the breadth of a board one cubit and a half.

22 One board had two tenons, equally diſtant one from another: thus did he make for all the boards of the tabernacle.

23 And he made boards for the tabernacle: twenty boards for the ſouth-ſide, ſouthward:

24 And forty ſockets of ſilver he made under the twenty boards: two ſockets under one board for his two tenons, and two ſockets under another board for his two tenons.

25 And for the other ſide of the tabernacle which is toward the north corner, he made twenty boards, 26 And their forty ſockets of ſilver: two ſockets under one board, and two ſockets under another board.

27 And for the ſides of the tabernacle weſtward, he made ſix boards.

28 And two boards made he for the corners of the tabernacle in the two ſides.

29 And

CHAP. XXXVI.

V. 1. The ſervice of the ſanctuary—Of the holy place, the Tabernacle.

V. 2. Moſes called every man, in whoſe heart the Lord had put wiſdom—It was known before who they were whom God had qualified for this work, and Moſes called thoſe to the work whom God had qualified: thus giving an example to all that are in authority to call thoſe to diſcharge the duties of ſtations for which they are prepared, and not becauſe they deſire to be employed.

V. 3. They brought unto him free-offerings every morning—Which time they choſe as the firſt and beſt part of the day, and therefore fitteſt for God's ſervice.

V. 6. Let neither man nor woman make any more work—For the women did part of this work as well as the men. Now were they alive unto the Lord.

V. 14. For

Before Christ 1490.

29 And they were * coupled beneath, and coupled together at the head thereof, to one ring: thus he did to both of them in both the corners.

* Heb. twined

30 And there were eight boards, and their † sockets were sixteen sockets of silver, † under every board two sockets.

† Heb. two sockets, two sockets under one board.

31 ¶ And he made [c] bars of shittim-wood: five for the boards of the one side of the tabernacle,

c Chap. 25, 28. & 30. 5.

32 And five bars for the boards of the other side of the tabernacle, and five bars for the boards of the tabernacle, for the sides westward.

33 And he made the middle bar to shoot through the boards from the one end to the other.

34 And he overlaid the boards with gold, and made their rings of gold to be places for the bars, and overlaid the bars with gold.

d Chap. 26. 31.

35 ¶ And he made [d] a vail of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen: with cherubims made he it of cunning work.

36 And he made thereunto four pillars of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with gold: their hooks were of gold, and he cast for them four sockets of silver.

e Chap. 26. 36.

37 ¶ And he made an [e] hanging for the tabernacle-door, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen, ‡ of needle-work, ‡ Heb. the work of a needle-worker, or, embroiderer.

38 And the five pillars of it with their hooks: and he overlaid their chapiters, and their fillets with gold: but their five sockets were of brass.

CHAP. XXXVII.

a Chap. 25. 10.

AND Bezaleel made [a] the ark of shittim-wood: two cubits and a half was the length of it, and a cubit and a half the breadth of it, and a cubit and an half the height of it.

2 And he overlaid it with pure gold within and without, and made a crown of gold to it round about.

3 And he cast for it four rings of gold, to be set by the four corners of it: even two rings upon the one side of it, and two rings upon the other side of it.

4 And he made staves of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with gold.

5 And he put the staves in the rings, by the sides of the ark, to bear the ark.

b Chap. 25. 17.

6 ¶ And he made the [b] mercy seat of pure gold: two cubits and an half was the length thereof, and one cubit and an half the breadth thereof.

Before Christ 1490.

7 And he made two cherubims of gold, beaten out of one piece made he them, on the two ends of the mercy-seat:

8 One cherub § on the end on this side, and another cherub ‖ on the other end on that side: out of the mercy-seat made he the cherubims on the two ends thereof.

§ Or, out of, &c.

‖ Or, out of, &c.

9 And the cherubims spread out their wings on high, and covered with their wings over the mercy-seat, with their faces one to another; even to the mercy-seat-ward were the faces of the cherubims.

c Chap. 25. 23.

10 ¶ And he made [c] the table of shittim-wood: two cubits was the length thereof, and a cubit the breadth thereof, and a cubit and a half the height thereof.

11 And he overlaid it with pure gold, and made thereunto a crown of gold round about.

12 Also he made thereunto a border of an hand-breadth, round about: and made a crown of gold for the border thereof round about.

13 And he cast for it four rings of gold, and put the rings upon the four corners that were in the four feet thereof.

14 Over against the border were the rings, the places for the staves, to bear the table.

15 And he made the staves of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with gold; to bear the table.

16 And he made the vessels which were upon the table, his [d] dishes, and his spoons, and his bowls, and his covers § to cover withal, of pure gold.

d Chap. 25. 29.

§ Or, to pour out withal.

e Chap. 25. 31.

17 ¶ And he made the [e] candlestick of pure gold: of beaten work made he the candlestick, his shaft and his branch, his bowls, his knops, and his flowers were of the same.

18 And six branches going out of the sides thereof: three branches of the candlestick out of the one side thereof, and three branches of the candlestick out of the other side thereof.

19 Three bowls made after the fashion of almonds, in one branch, a knop and a flower; and three bowls made like almonds, in another branch, a knop and a flower: so throughout the six branches, going out of the candlestick.

20 And in the candlestick were four bowls made

V. 14. For the tent over the tabernacle—For the outward covering of the tabernacle.

V. 35. He made a vail—The second vail, which separated between the holy place, and the holy of holies.

V. 37. He made an hanging for the tabernacle door—Which divided the holy place from the Court.

V. 8. The

Before Christ 1490.

made like almonds, his knops and his flowers.

21 And a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, and a knop under two branches of the same, according to the six branches going out of it.

22 Their knops and their branches were of the same: all of it was one beaten work of pure gold.

23 And he made his seven lamps, and his snuffers, and his snuff-dishes, of pure gold.

24 Of a talent of pure gold made he it, and all the vessels thereof.

f Chap. 30. 1. 25 ¶ [f] And he made the incense-altar of shittim-wood: the length of it was a cubit, and the breadth of it a cubit (it was four-square) and two cubits was the height of it; the horns thereof were of the same.

26 And he overlaid it with pure gold, both the top of it, and the sides thereof round about, and the horns of it: also he made unto it a crown of gold round about.

27 And he made two rings of gold for it under the crown thereof, by the two corners of it, upon the two sides thereof, to be places for the staves to bear it withal.

28 And he made the staves of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with gold.

g Chap. 30. 23, 35. 29 ¶ And he made [g] the holy anointing oil, and the pure incense of sweet spices, according to the work of the apothecary.

CHAP. XXXVIII

a Chap. 27. 1. AND [a] he made the altar of burnt-offering of shittim-wood: five cubits was the length thereof, and five cubits the breadth thereof (it was four-square) and three cubits the height thereof.

2 And he made the horns thereof on the four corners of it: the horns thereof were of the same, and he overlaid it with brass.

3 And he made all the vessels of the altar, the pots, and the shovels, and the basons, and the flesh-hooks, and the fire-pans: all the vessels thereof made he of brass.

4 And he made for the altar a brasen grate of net-work, under the compass thereof, beneath unto the midst of it.

5 And he cast four rings for the four ends of the grate of brass, to be places for the staves.

6 And he made the staves of shittim-wood, and overlaid them with brass.

7 And he put the staves into the rings on the sides of the altar, to bear it withal; he made the altar hollow with boards.

Before Christ 1490.

8 ¶ And he made [b] the laver of brass, and the foot of it, of brass, of the * looking-glasses of the women † assembling, which assembled at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

b Chap. 30. 18.
* Or, brasen-glasses.
† Heb. assembling by troops, as 1 Sam. 2. 22.

9 ¶ And he made [c] the court: on the south side southward, the hangings of the court were of fine twined linen, an hundred cubits.

c Chap. 27. 9.

10 Their pillars were twenty, and their brasen sockets twenty: the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets were of silver.

11 And for the north side, the hangings were an hundred cubits, their pillars were twenty, and their sockets of brass twenty: the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets, of silver.

12 And for the west side were hangings of fifty cubits, their pillars ten, and their sockets ten: the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets, of silver.

13 And for the east side eastward fifty cubits.

14 The hangings of the one side of the gate were fifteen cubits, their pillars three, and their sockets three.

15 And for the other side of the court-gate, on this hand and that hand, were hangings of fifteen cubits, their pillars three, and their sockets three.

16 All the hangings of the court round about, were of fine twined linen.

17 And the sockets for the pillars were of brass; the hooks of the pillars, and their fillets, of silver; and the overlaying of their chapiters, of silver; and all the pillars of the court were filleted with silver.

18 And the hanging for the gate of the court was needle-work, of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine twined linen: and twenty cubits was the length, and the height in the breadth was five cubits, answerable to the hangings of the court.

19 And their pillars were four, and their sockets of brass four, their hooks of silver, and the overlaying of their chapiters, and their fillets, of silver.

d Chap. 27. 19. 20 And all the [d] pins of the tabernacle, and of the court round about, were of brass.

21 ¶ This is the sum of the tabernacle, even

CHAP. XXXVIII.

V. 8. The looking-glasses—Which so antiently were made of polished brass. The women which assembled—It seems to note a company of religious women who in a more peculiar manner devoted themselves to the service of God about his tabernacle, by fasting, prayer, &c.

Before Christ 1490. even of the tabernacle of teſtimony, as it was counted, according to the commandment of Moſes, for the ſervice of the Levites, by the hand of Ithamar, ſon to Aaron the prieſt.

22 And Bezaleel the ſon of Uri, the ſon Hur, of the tribe of Judah, made all that the Lord commanded Moſes.

23 And with him was Aholiab, ſon of Ahiſamach, of the tribe of Dan, an engraver, and a cunning workman, and an embroiderer in blue, and in purple, and in ſcarlet, and fine linen.

24 All the gold that was occupied for the work, in all the work of the holy place, even the gold of the offering, was twenty and nine talents, and ſeven hundred and thirty ſhekels, after [c] the ſhekel of the ſanctuary.

c Chap. 30.13.

25 And the ſilver of them that were numbered of the congregation, was an hundred talents, and a thouſand ſeven hundred and threeſcore and fifteen ſhekels, after the ſhekel of the ſanctuary.

f Chap. 30.15. * Heb. a poll.

26 [f] Abekah for * every man, that is, half a ſhekel, after the ſhekel of the ſanctuary, for every one that went to be numbered, from g Numb. 1.46.

twenty years old and upward, for [g] ſix hundred thouſand and three thouſand and five hundred and fifty men.

h Chap. 26.19, 21, 25, 32.

27 And of the hundred talents of ſilver, were caſt [h] the ſockets of the ſanctuary, and the ſockets of the vail; an hundred ſockets of the hundred talents, a talent for a ſocket.

28 And of the thouſand ſeven hundred ſeventy and five ſhekels, he made hooks for the pillars, and overlaid their chapiters, and filleted them.

29 And the braſs of the offering was ſeventy talents, and two thouſand and four hundred ſhekels.

30 And therewith he made the ſockets to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the braſen altar, and the braſen grate for it, and all the veſſels of the altar,

31 And the ſockets of the court round about, and the ſockets of the court-gate, and all the pins of the tabernacle, and all the pins of the court round about.

CHAP. XXXIX.

AND of the blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, they made clothes of ſervice, to a Chap. 31.10. and 35. 19.

do ſervice in the holy place, and [a] made the

b Chap. 28.4.

holy garments for Aaron; [b] as the Lord commanded Moſes.

2 And he made the ephod, of gold, blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, and fine twined linen. Before Christ 1490.

3 And they did beat the gold into thin plates, and cut it into wires; to work it in the blue, and in the purple, and in the ſcarlet, and in the fine linen, with cunning work.

4 They made ſhoulder-pieces for it, to couple it together: by the two edges was it coupled together.

5 And the curious girdle of his ephod that was upon it, was of the ſame, according to the work thereof; of gold, blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, and fine twined linen; as the Lord commanded Moſes.

6 ¶ [c] And they wrought onyx-ſtones inc Chap. 28. 9.

cloſed in ouches of gold, graven as ſignets are graven, with the names of the children of Iſrael.

7 And he put them on the ſhoulders of the ephod, that they ſhould be ſtones for a

d Chap. 28. 12.

[d] memorial to the children of Iſrael; as the Lord commanded Moſes.

8 ¶ And he made the breaſt-plate of cunning work, like the work of the ephod: of gold, blue, and purple, and ſcarlet, and fine twined linen.

9 It was four-ſquare, they made the breaſt-plate double: a ſpan was the length thereof, and a ſpan the breadth thereof, being doubled.

10 [e] And they ſet in it four rows of ſtones: e Chap. 28. 17. &c.

the firſt row was a * ſardius, a topaz, and a carbuncle: this was the firſt row. * Or, ruby.

11 And the ſecond row, an emerald, a ſapphire, and a diamond.

12 And the third row, a ligure, an agate, and an amethyſt.

13 And the fourth row, a beryl, an onyx, and a jaſper: they were incloſed in ouches of gold in their incloſings.

14 And the ſtones were according to the names of the children of Iſrael, twelve according to their names, like the engravings of a ſignet, every one with his name, according to the twelve tribes.

15 And they made upon the breaſt-plate chains, at the ends, of wreathen work of pure gold.

16 And they made two ouches of gold, and two gold rings: and put the two rings in the two ends of the breaſt-plate.

17 And they put the two wreathen chains of gold in the two rings on the ends of the breaſt-plate. 18 And

V. 21. For the ſervice of the Levites—For thoſe holy uſes and ſervices which the Levites adminiſtered.

V. 24. Twenty and nine talents—Every talent contained three thouſand ſhekels.

Before Christ 1490.

18 And the two ends of the two wreathen chains they fastened in the two ouches, and put them on the shoulder-pieces of the ephod before it.

19 And they made two rings of gold, and put them on the two ends of the breast-plate upon the border of it, which was on the side of the ephod inward.

20 And they made two other golden rings, and put them on the two sides of the ephod underneath, toward the forepart of it, over against the other coupling thereof, above the curious girdle of the ephod:

21 And they did bind the breast-plate by his rings unto the rings of the ephod, with a lace of blue, that it might be above the curious girdle of the ephod, and that the breast-plate might not be loosed from the ephod; as the Lord commanded Moses.

22 ¶ And he made the robe of the ephod of woven work, all of blue.

23 And there was a hole in the midst of the robe, as the hole of an habergeon, with a band round about the hole, that it should not rent.

24 And they made upon the hems of the robe, pomegranates of blue, and purple, and scarlet, and twined linen.

f Chap. 28.33. 25 And they made [f] bells of pure gold, and put the bells between the pomegranates, upon the hem of the robe, round about between the pomegranates;

Before Christ 1490.

26 A bell and a pomegranate, a bell and a pomegranate, round about the hem of the robe to minister in; as the Lord commanded Moses.

27 ¶ And they made coats of fine linen, of woven work, for Aaron and for his sons.

28 [g] And a mitre of fine linen, and goodly bonnets of fine linen, and [h] linen breeches of fine twined linen, g Ezek. 44.18. h Chap. 28 42.

29 And a girdle of fine twined linen, and blue, and purple, and scarlet, of needle-work; as the Lord commanded Moses.

30 ¶ And they made the plate of the holy crown, of pure gold, and wrote upon it a writing, like to the engravings of a signet, [i] HOLINESS TO THE LORD.

i Chap. 28.36.

31 And they tied unto it a lace of blue, to fasten it on high upon the mitre; as the Lord commanded Moses.

32 ¶ Thus was all the work of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation finished: and the children of Israel did according to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so did they.

33 ¶ And they brought the tabernacle unto Moses, the tent, and all his furniture, his taches, his boards, his bars, and his pillars, and his sockets,

34 And

CHAP. XXXIX.

V. 26. As the Lord commanded Moses—This is often repeated; and perhaps to shew that Moses did not take upon him to reason upon what was proper to be made, but strictly to regard what God had seen fit to command concerning his own worship and service; and though nothing that God commands contradicts right reason, yet so little can reason comprehend of the things of God, and of eternity unassisted by revelation, that to learn only what the Lord commands and humbly to rely upon his aid in doing that, and neither more nor less, is that which is set before us by this great example of Moses.

V. 30. Holiness to the Lord—And thus should every design, and word and work be inscribed. And it is not to be looked upon as a matter of indifference, whether it is so or not. Without holiness of heart and mind, no man shall see the Lord, (Heb. xii. 14.) and if in design, or word or deed there is any thing that is not holy, the tree is known by its fruit; and the mind from whence that which is unholy proceeds, is itself not fit for the presence of God; and when such discoveries are made, whatever we may have besides, we are not to look upon ourselves as if we had already attained, no number of good qualities being in the sight of God any excuse for one bad one, he that faileth in one point being guilty of all; the soul seeing its defect, this one thing does the word of God require it to do—To forget the things that are behind; not to stand looking at the evil it has discovered in itself, but to look unto Jesus the Author and Finisher of its faith for the whole mind that was in him, and in the use of all the means of grace which God has appointed, and in a strict regard to all the ways of obedience which God has commanded, press forward to the mark of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus—Holiness unto the Lord which sooner or later will be engraven on the heart and mind of him that lives by faith in God its Saviour, taking his declared will for its rule and guide. And if instead of its being delightful it was painful thus to live; and if instead of life being some fifty or fourscore years it was five hundred, and all these were spent in receiving grace to be brought into an entire conformity to the holy mind and will of God, would endless ages of glory and blessedness give us any cause to regret that we had so long to live in being prepared for the presence of God, but when all the ways of God are ways of pleasantness and peace, and when this may be the last day in which by a single eye, denying myself, taking up the cross and living by faith, I may have to write holiness to the Lord on all that is done on earth, how small the exchange for all that great, eternal and exceeding weight of glory which awaits the redeemed, the sanctified of the Lord in the blessed world to come.

V. 33. They brought the tabernacle unto Moses—All this work in sacred things was presented to Moses who commanded the work to be done, and who received them as the people's head under God. And shall not every religious duty commanded by the Lord, at last be brought unto Jesus? And shall any thing be forgotten by him, that was done on earth by faith in him? No, not a cup of cold water given in his name—Not a door shall be opened to receive the poor or friendless for his sake, and be any more unnoticed by him at last; than that any thing was forgotten or unnoticed about this visible work of the tabernacle. Not a design to hinder evil or to do good, not a word spoken or step taken to forward either of these designs will be lost: They that live most by faith in God must see most of his love and goodness, and that when they have done all they are unprofitable servants, and see all too little to acknowledge their obligations to him who made and died for them; they remember not what they have done from the desire they have to please him in the present moment; but the Lord

Before Christ 1490.

34 And the covering of rams ſkins dyed red, and the covering of badgers ſkins, and the vail of the covering,

35 The ark of the teſtimony, and the ſtaves thereof, and the mercy-ſeat,

36 The table, and all the veſſels thereof, and the ſhew-bread,

37 The pure candleſtick, with the lamps thereof, even with the lamps to be ſet in order, and all the veſſels thereof, and the oil for light,

38 And the golden altar, and the anointing oil, and * the ſweet incenſe, and the hanging for the tabernacle-door.

* Heb. the incenſe of ſweet ſpices.

39 The braſen altar, and his grate of braſs, his ſtaves, and all his veſſels, the laver and his foot,

40 The hangings of the court, his pillars, and his ſockets, and the hanging for the court-gate, his cords, and his pins, and all the veſſels of the ſervice of the tabernacle, for the tent of the congregation, 41 The clothes of ſervice to do ſervice in the holy place, and the holy garments for Aaron the prieſt, and his ſons garments to miniſter in the prieſts office.

42 According to all that the Lord commanded Moſes, ſo the children of Iſrael made all the work.

43 And Moſes did look upon all the work, and behold, they had done it as the Lord had commanded, even ſo had they done it: And Moſes bleſſed them.

CHAP. XL.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 On the firſt day of the firſt month ſhalt thou ſet up the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation:

3 And thou ſhalt put therein the ark of the teſtimony, and cover the ark with the vail.

Before Christ 1490.

4 And [a] thou ſhalt bring in the table, and ſet in order * the things that are to be ſet in order upon it, and thou ſhalt bring in the candleſtick, and light the lamps thereof.

[a] Chap. 26. 35.

* Heb. the order thereof.

5 And thou ſhalt ſet the altar of gold for the incenſe before the ark of the teſtimony, and put the hanging of the door to the tabernacle.

6 And thou ſhalt ſet the altar of the burnt-offering, before the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation.

7 And [b] thou ſhalt ſet the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and ſhall put water therein.

[b] Chap. 30. 18.

8 And thou ſhalt ſet up the court round about, and hang up the hanging at the court gate.

9 And thou ſhalt take the anointing oil, and [c] anoint the tabernacle and all that is therein, and ſhalt hallow it, and all the veſſels thereof: and it ſhall be holy.

[c] Chap. 30. 26.

10 And thou ſhalt anoint the altar of the burnt-offering, and all his veſſels, and ſanctify the altar: and [d] it ſhall be an altar † moſt holy.

[d] Chap. 29. 36, 37.

† Heb. holineſs of holineſs.

11 And thou ſhalt anoint the laver and his foot, and ſanctify it.

12 [e] And thou ſhalt bring Aaron and his ſons unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and waſh them with water.

[e] Lev. 8. 1, to 15.

13 And thou ſhalt put upon Aaron the holy garments, [f] and anoint him, and ſanctify him; that he may miniſter unto me in the prieſts office.

[f] Chap. 28. 41.

14 And thou ſhalt bring his ſons, and clothe them with coats:

15 And thou ſhalt anoint them, as thou didſt

Lord of all is a faithful remembrancer, and all their work and labour of love will one day appear together like the finiſhed tabernacle to the praiſe of his grace, and when all the faithful devoted minds by whom that work was done, ſhall have praiſe of their Lord, in the preſence of angels and of men.

V. 43. Moſes did look upon all the work—And when the books are opened out of which the dead ſhall be judged ſo will Jeſus, the judge of all, look upon all that has been done with a deſign to pleaſe him. But how ſhall he look upon that which was done with a deſign of having praiſe of men? They had done it as the Lord had commanded—The work they had wrought was agreeable to the will of God; their deſign in doing what they did was agreeable to that grace which taught and inclined them to do it; and in the execution of their work, they ſtrictly adhered to the will of God. And Moſes ſeeing all was done as the Lord had commanded him Bleſſed them—Prayed that God their Saviour would fill them with his heavenly conſolations. What the Lord commanded Moſes with a voice, he communicated the knowledge to perform by his ſpirit to the minds of thoſe by whom the work was done; and when Moſes came to examine all that was done by the rule of the command, the will of God and the work agreed together, and then he bleſſed them; as all theſe will be bleſſed whoſe work ſhall be found to agree with the rule of God's holy will. Reader, do you work by it?

CHAP. XL.

V. 2. On the firſt day of the firſt month—Of the ſecond year after their coming out of Egypt, as is evident.

V. 4. Thou ſhalt ſet in order the things that are to be ſet upon it—The veſſels belonging to it, and the ſhew-bread.

V. 9. Thou ſhalt take the anointing oil, and anoint the tabernacle—All ſtill ſtood in need of being thus conſecrated unto the Lord, as all religious duties ſtand in need of the blood of atonement to make them acceptable to God.

V. 15. Their anointing ſhall be an everlaſting prieſt-hood—A ſeal that their Prieſthood ſhall continue till the coming of the Meſſias.

V. 29. The

Before Christ 1490. didst anoint their father, that they may minister unto me in the priests office: for their anointing shall surely be an everlasting priesthood, throughout their generations.

16 Thus did Moses: according to all that the Lord commanded him, so did he.

17 ¶ And it came to pass, in the first month in the second year, on the first day of g Numb. 7. 1. the month, that the g tabernacle was reared up.

18 And Moses reared up the tabernacle, and fastened his sockets, and set up the boards thereof, and put in the bars thereof, and reared up his pillars.

19 And he spread abroad the tent over the tabernacle, and put the covering of the tent above upon it; as the Lord commanded Moses.

h Chap. 25. 16. 20 ¶ And he took and put h the testimony into the ark, and set the staves on the ark, and put the mercy-seat above upon the ark.

i Chap. 35. 12. 21 And he brought the ark into the tabernacle, and i set up the vail of the covering, and covered the ark of the testimony; as the Lord commanded Moses.

k Chap. 26. 35. 22 ¶ k And he put the table in the tent of the congregation, upon the side of the tabernacle northward, without the vail.

23 And he set the bread in order upon it, before the Lord; as the Lord had commanded Moses.

24 ¶ And he put the candlestick in the tent of the congregation, over against the table, on the side of the tabernacle southward.

25 And he lighted the lamps before the Lord, as the Lord commanded Moses.

26 ¶ And he put the golden altar in the tent of the congregation, before the vail.

27 l And he burnt sweet incense thereon, as the Lord commanded Moses. Before Christ 1490.

28 ¶ And he set up the hanging at the door of the tabernacle. l Chap. 30. 7.

29 And he put the altar of burnt-offering by the door of the tabernacle of the tent of the congregation, and offered upon it the burnt-offering, and the meat-offering; as the m Lord commanded Moses. m Chap. 30. 9.

30 ¶ And he set the laver between the tent of the congregation and the altar, and put water there, to wash withal.

31 And Moses, and Aaron and his sons, washed their hands and their feet thereat.

32 When they went into the tent of the congregation, and when they came near unto the altar, they washed; n as the Lord commanded Moses. n Chap. 30. 19.

33 And he reared up the court round about the tabernacle and the altar, and set up the hanging of the court-gate: so Moses finished the work.

34 ¶ o Then a cloud covered the tent of the congregation, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle. o Lev. 16. 2. Num. 9. 15. 1 Kings 8. 10. 2 Chron. 5. 13. & 7. 2. Hai. 6. 4. Rev. 15. 8.

35 And Moses was not able to enter into the tent of the congregation, because the cloud abode thereon, and the glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle.

36 p And when the cloud was taken up from over the tabernacle, the children of Israel ‡ went onward in all their journeys: p Num. 10. 11. ‡ Heb. journeyed.

37 But if the cloud were not taken up, then they journeyed not, till the day that it was taken up.

38 For q the cloud of the Lord was upon the tabernacle by day, and fire was on it by night, in the sight of all the house of Israel, throughout all their journeys. q Chap. 13. 21.

V. 29. The meat-offering—For the consecration of the altar, this being the first sacrifice.

V. 34. The glory of the Lord filled the tabernacle—The glorious presence of God, which having been forfeited and lost, was now returned to them, and took its habitation among them.

V. 35. Because of the extraordinary brightness and glorious appearance of God, and because he was not called to it, as he was not able to go up into the mount till he was called.

V. 38. The cloud of the Lord was upon the tabernacle by day, and fire was on it by night—The same pillar which in the day time was like a cloud, in the night time had the appearance of fire. By the fire is represented that direction of God, which all that worship him in spirit and in truth, may receive from him in their darkest hours; and by the cloud is represented that divine protection which rests upon all that put their trust in God through the Lord Jesus Christ, for whose sake the care of God is extended to all that fear Him, and cast their care upon him. (1 Pet. v. 7.)

LEVITICUS.

SO called, becauſe it treats of the Tribe of Levi, and the things belonging to their office. It contains about one month's time. After the tabernacle was ſet up, the altar fitted, and all things prepared for public worſhip, the Lord proceeded to give directions to Moſes, and by him to the people, how, when, with what, by whom, and in what manner, his worſhip under that diſpenſation ſhould be performed; which being ſet forth at large from the firſt chapter to the eighth, and the conſecration of Aaron, and his ſons in the ſame chapter; the ninth chapter gives account of the firſt burnt-offerings that were offered by Aaron, firſt for himſelf, and then for the people. To which the Lord was pleaſed to give a gracious teſtimony, by cauſing the fire to come out from before the Lord, which conſumed the burnt-offering upon the altar, in the ſight of the people: Whereupon the people ſhouted for joy, that God had ſo ſignally owned the offering, and in reverence bowed themſelves. This book is ſpent partly in repeating laws given before, partly in giving new laws, ſome judicial, moſt ceremonial; divers typifying the ſincerity, purity, holineſs, and perfection of goſpel-worſhip and worſhippers.

It affords not much of hiſtorical matter. Yet in chapter twenty-four, a relation is given of one whoſe mother's name was Shelomith, an Iſraelitiſh woman, of the tribe of Dan: but his father, it ſeems, was an Egyptian; and ſuppoſed to be a proſelyte to Iſrael.

This young man, going out of his tent among the children of Iſrael, happened to fall out with a man of Iſrael, ſo that they wreſtled or ſtrove together; and Shelomith's ſon blaſphemed the name of the Lord, and curſed, whereupon being apprehended, and brought before Moſes, he was committed to cuſtody, till the mind of the Lord ſhould be known concerning him. For though the third command forbids the taking of the name of the Lord in vain, yet this blaſphemous curſing being an offence of an higher kind, againſt which no poſitive law was yet provided, Moſes had recourſe to the Lord for counſel and direction therein. "And the Lord ſaid, bring forth him that hath curſed without the camp; and let all that heard him lay their hands upon his head, and let all the congregation ſtone him;" which accordingly was done. And a law was thereupon made, that he who thenceforward ſhould blaſpheme the name of the Lord, whether he were an Iſraelite or a ſtranger, ſhould be ſtoned to death. O Lord, hear thy churches cry for the ſake of her living head, and give thy bleſſing to all thy appointed means of making known, and calling mankind to attend to the diſcoveries thou haſt given of the greatneſs of thy power, and the holineſs of thy nature, that thy ſacred name may never be mentioned but in the ſpirit of prayer and praiſe, and in ſerious fear of thee; on whoſe favour the endleſs life and peace of all the living alone depends;

CHAP. I. The burnt-offerings, of the herd of the flocks, of the fowls. CHAP. II. The meat-offering of flour with oil and incenſe, either baken in the oven, or on a plate, or in a frying-pan: and of the firſt-fruits in the year. The ſalt of the meat-offering. CHAP. III. The peace-offering of the herd, of the flock, either a lamb, or a goat. CHAP. IV. The ſin-offering of ignorance, for the prieſt, for the congregation, for the ruler, for any of the people. CHAP. V. He that ſinneth in concealing his knowledge, in touching an unclean thing, or in making an oath: his treſpaſs-offering, of the flock, of fowls, or of flour. The treſpaſs-offering in ſacrilege, and in ſins of ignorance. CHAP. VI. The treſpaſs-offering for ſins done wittingly. The law of the burnt-offering, and of the meat-offering. The offering at the conſecration of a prieſt. The law of the ſin offering. CHAP. VII. The law of the treſpaſs-offering, and of the peace-offerings, whether it be for a thankſgiving, or a vow, or a free-will-offering. The fat, and the blood are forbidden. The prieſt's portion in the peace-offering. CHAP. VIII. Moſes conſecrateth Aaron and his ſons. Their ſin-offering. Their burnt-offering. The ram of conſecration. The place and time of their conſecration. CHAP. IX. The firſt-offerings of Aaron for himſelf and the people. The ſin-offering, and the burnt-offering for himſelf. The offerings for the people. Moſes and Aaron bleſs the people. Fire cometh from the Lord upon the altar. CHAP. X. Nadab and Abihu, for offering of ſtrange fire, are burnt by fire. Aaron and his ſons are forbidden to mourn for them. The prieſts are forbidden wine when they are to go into the tabernacle. The law of eating the holy things. Aaron's excuſe for tranſgreſſing thereof. CHAP. XI. What beaſts may, and what may not be eaten. What fiſhes. What fowls. The creeping things which are unclean. CHAP. XII. The purification of a woman after child-birth: the offerings for her purifying. CHAP. XIII. The laws and tokens whereby the prieſt is to be guided in diſcerning the leproſy. CHAP. XIV. The rites and ſacrifices in cleanſing of the leper. The ſigns of leproſy in an houſe. The cleanſing of that houſe. CHAP. XV. The uncleanneſs of men in their iſſues. The cleanſing of them. The uncleanneſs of women in their iſſues. Their cleanſing. CHAP. XVI. How the high prieſt muſt enter into the holy place. The ſin-offering for himſelf. The ſin-offering for the people. The ſcape-goat. The yearly feaſt of the expiations. CHAP. XVII. The blood of all ſlain beaſts muſt be offered to the Lord, at the door of the tabernacle. They muſt not offer to devils. All eating of blood is forbidden, and all that dieth alone, or is torn. CHAP. XVIII. Unlawful marriages. Unlawful luſts. CHAP. XIX. A repetition of ſundry laws. CHAP. XX. Of him that giveth of his ſeed to Molech. Of him that favoureth ſuch an one. Of going to wizards. Of ſanctification. Of him that curſeth his parents. Of adultery. Of inceſt. Of ſodomy. Of beſtiality. Of uncleanneſs. Obedience is required with holineſs. Wizards muſt be put to death. CHAP. XXI. Of the prieſts mourning. Of their holineſs. Of their eſtimation. Of their marriages. The prieſts that have blemiſhes muſt not miniſter in the ſanctuary. CHAP. XXII. The prieſts in their uncleanneſs muſt abſtain from the holy things. How they ſhall be cleanſed. Who of the prieſt's houſe may eat of the holy things. The ſacrifices muſt be without blemiſh. The age of the ſacrifice. The law of eating the ſacrifice of thankſgiving. CHAP. XXIII. The feaſts of the Lord. The ſabbath. The paſſover. The ſheaf of firſt fruits. The feaſt of Pentecoſt. Gleanings to be left for the poor. The feaſt of trumpets. The day of atonement. The feaſt of tabernacles. CHAP. XXIV. The oil for the lamps. The ſhew-bread. Shelomith's ſon blaſpheməth. The law of blaſphemy: Of murder: Of damage. The blaſphemer is ſtoned. CHAP. XXV. The ſabbath of the ſeventh year. The jubilee in the fiftieth year. Of oppreſſion. A bleſſing of obedience. The redemption of land, of houſes. Compaſſion on the poor. The uſage of bond-men. The redemption of ſervants. CHAP. XXVI. Of idolatry. Religiouſneſs. A bleſſing to them that keep the commandments. A curſe to thoſe that break them. God promiſeth to remember them that repent. CHAP. XXVII. He that maketh a ſingular vow muſt be the Lords. The eſtimation of the perſon. Of a beaſt given by vow. Of a houſe. Of a field, and the redemption thereof. No devoted thing may be redeemed. The tithe may not be changed.

Before Christ 1490.

CHAP. I.

AND the Lord called unto Moſes, and ſpake unto him out of the tabernacle of the congregation, ſaying,

2 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, and ſay unto them, [a] If any man of you bring an offering unto the Lord, ye ſhall bring your offering of the cattle, even of the herd, and of the flock.

a Chap. 22. 18.

3 If his offering be a burnt-ſacrifice of the herd, let him offer a male without blemiſh: he ſhall offer it of his own voluntary will, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation before the Lord.

4 [b] And he ſhall put his hand upon the head of the burnt-offering: and it ſhall be accepted for him to make atonement for him.

b Chap. 4. 15. & 3. 2, 8, 13. & 8. 14, 22. & 16. 21. Exod. 29. 10, 15.

5 And he ſhall kill the bullock before the Lord: [c] and the prieſts Aaron's ſons ſhall bring the blood, [d] and ſprinkle the blood round about upon the altar, that is by the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

Before Christ 1490.

c 2 Chron. 35. 11.
d Chap. 3. 8.

6 And he ſhall flay the burnt-offering, and cut it into his pieces.

7 And the ſons of Aaron the prieſt ſhall put fire upon the altar, and lay the wood in order upon the fire.

8 And the prieſts Aaron's ſons ſhall lay the parts, the head, and the fat, in order upon the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar.

9 But his inwards and his legs ſhall he waſh in water: and the prieſt ſhall burn all on the altar, to be a burnt-ſacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a ſweet ſavour unto the Lord.

10 ¶ And if his offering be of the flocks, namely

CHAP. I.

V. 1. The Lord called unto Moſes—Who ſtood without, waiting for God's call. Out of the tabernacle of the congregation—From the mercy-ſeat in the tabernacle.

V. 2. An offering—There are divers kind of ſacrifices here preſcribed, ſome by way of acknowledgement to God for mercies, others by way of ſatisfaction to God for mens ſins: others were meer exerciſes of piety and devotion. And the reaſon why there are ſo many kinds of them was partly reſpect to the eſtate of Jews, who by their own natural inclinations were much addicted to our rites and ceremonies, as all men in general are; and to repreſent as well the ſeveral perfections of Chriſt the true ſacrifice and the various benefits of his death, as the ſeveral duties which men owe to their Creator and Redeemer, all which could not be ſo well expreſſed by one ſort of ſacrifices. Bring your offering of the herd, and of the flock—Becauſe theſe are the fitteſt repreſentations both of Chriſt and of true chriſtians, as being gentle, and harmleſs, and patient, and moſt uſeful to men. As the beſt and moſt profitable creatures, with which it is fit God ſhould be ſerved, and which we ſhould be ready to part with when God requires us to do ſo, as things moſt common and obvious, that men might never want a ſacrifice when they needed or God required it.

V. 3. A burnt-ſacrifice—Strictly ſo called, ſuch as was to be all burnt, the ſkin excepted. For otherwiſe every ſacrifice was burnt, more or leſs. Theſe ſacrifices did partly ſignify, that the whole man, in whoſe ſtead the ſacrifice was offered, was to be intirely and unreſervedly offered or devoted to Gods ſervice; and that the whole man did deſerve to be utterly conſumed, if God ſhould deal ſeverely with him; and directed us to ſerve the Lord with all ſingleneſs of heart without ſelf ends, and to be ready to offer to God even ſuch ſacrifices or ſervices wherein we ourſelves ſhould have no part nor benefit. Let him offer a male—As more truly repreſenting Chriſt. Without blemiſh—To ſignify, that God ſhould be ſerved with the beſt of every kind, that man, repreſented by theſe ſacrifices, ſhould aim at all purity and perfection of heart and life, and that chriſtians ſhould one day attain to it, (Eph. v. 27.) the ſpotleſs and compleat holineſs of Chriſt, (Heb. ix. 13, 14. 1 Pet. i. 18, 19. and ii. 22.) His own voluntary will—As it was not preſcribed by God to be offered in courſe, but was at the pleaſure and by the voluntary devotion of any perſon either by way of ſupplication for any mercy which he needed or deſired, or by way of thankſgiving for any favour or bleſſing received. At the door of the tabernacle of the congregation—For here it was to be ſacrificed, and here alſo the people might behold the oblation of it. And this further ſignified, that men could have no entrance into the earthly tabernacle, the church, nor into the heavenly tabernacle of glory, but by Chriſt, who is the door. (John x. 7, 9.) by whom alone we have acceſs to God.

V. 4. He ſhall put his hand upon the head of the burnt-offering—Whereby he ſignified, that he willingly gave it to the Lord; that he legally united himſelf with it, and judged himſelf worthy of that death which it ſuffered in his ſtead, and that he laid his ſins upon it, and had an eye to him upon whom God would lay the iniquity of us all, Iſa. liii. 6. and that together with it he did freely offer up himſelf to God. To make atonement for him—Sacramentally, as directing his faith and thoughts, to that true propitiatory ſacrifice which in time was to be offered up for him. (Rom. iii. 25. Heb. ix. 15, 25, 26.)

V. 5. He—The offerer, who is ſaid to do it, by the Prieſt. Sprinkle the blood upon the altar—Whereby was ſignified, that the offerer deſerved to have his blood ſpilt in that manner, that the blood of Chriſt ſhould be poured forth for ſinners, and that was the only mean of their reconciliation to God and acceptance with him.

V. 6. Partly for decency, becauſe the ſacrifices being as it were God's food and feaſt, it was incongruous to offer to God that to ſignify that the great thing which God required and regarded in men was not their outward appearance, but their inſide, and that as he doth ſee all mens inſides, (Heb. iv. 13.) ſo he will one day make them viſible to others.

V. 7. The Prieſt ſhall put fire upon the altar—Diſpoſe the fire, put it together ſo as it might be fit for the preſent work. For the fire there uſed and allowed came down from heaven, and was to be carefully preſerved there, and all other fire was forbidden.

V. 8. The fat—Which was to be ſeparated from the fleſh, and be put together, to increaſe the flame, and to conſume the parts of the ſacrifice.

V. 9. The inwards and his legs, ſhall he waſh—To ſignify the univerſal and perfect purity both of the heart, and of the ways or actions, which was in Chriſt, and which ſhould be in all chriſtians. The Prieſt ſhall burn all—Not only the parts, now mentioned, but all the reſt. An offering made by fire of a ſweet ſavour—As it repreſented Chriſt's offering up himſelf, to God as a ſweet ſmelling, ſavour (Eph. v. 2.) and to admoniſh us of the excellent virtue of divine inſtitutions without which God values no worſhip, though never ſo glorious, and by which even the meaneſt things are precious and acceptable to God.

V. 11. He

Before Christ 1490.

namely of the sheep, or of the goats, for a burnt-sacrifice; he shall bring it a male without blemish.

11 And he shall kill it on the side of the altar northward before the Lord: and the priests Aaron's sons shall sprinkle his blood round about upon the altar.

12 And he shall cut it into his pieces, with his head and his fat: and the priest shall lay them in order on the wood that is on the fire which is upon the altar.

13 But he shall wash the inwards and the legs with water: and the priest shall bring it all, and burn it upon the altar: it is a burnt-sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the Lord.

14 ¶ And if the burnt-sacrifice for his offering to the Lord be of fowls, then he shall e Chap. 5. 7. bring his offering of [e] turtle doves, or of young pigeons.

15 And the priest shall bring it unto the
* Or, pinch off the head with the nail. altar, and * wring off his head, and burn it on the altar: and the blood thereof shall be wrung out at the side of the altar.

16 And he shall pluck away his crop with † Or, the filth thereof. † his feathers, and cast it beside the altar on the east-part, by the place of the ashes.

17 And he shall cleave it, with the wings
f Gen. 15. 10. thereof, but [f] shall not divide it asunder: and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, upon the wood that is upon the fire: it is a burnt-sacrifice, an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the Lord.

CHAP. II.

a Chap. 6. 14. & 9. 17. Numb. 15. 4. AND when any will offer [a] a meat-offering unto the Lord, his offering shall be of fine flour; and he shall pour oil upon it, and put frankincense thereon.

Before Christ 1490.

2 And he shall bring it to Aaron's sons the priests: and he shall take thereout his handful of the flour thereof, and of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof; and the priest shall burn [b] the memorial of it upon the altar, to be an offering made by fire, of a sweet savour unto the Lord.

b Ver. 2. & Chap. 5. 12. & 6. 15. & 24. 7. Isai. 66. 3.

3 And [c] the remnant of the meat-offering shall be Aaron's and his sons: [d] it is a thing most holy of the offerings of the Lord made by fire.

c Chap. 7. 6. & 10. 12. d Exod. 29. 37. Num. 18. 9.

4 ¶ And if thou bring an oblation of a meat-offering baken in the oven, it shall be unleavened cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, or unleavened wafers [e] anointed with oil.

e Exod. 29. 2.

5 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat-offering baken ‡ in a pan, it shall be of fine flour unleavened, mingled with oil.

‡ Or, on a flat plate, or, slice.

6 Thou shalt part it in pieces, and pour oil thereon: it is a meat-offering.

7 ¶ And if thy oblation be a meat-offering baken in the frying-pan, it shall be made of fine flour with oil.

8 And thou shalt bring the meat-offering, that is made of these things, unto the Lord: and when it is presented unto the priest, he shall bring it unto the altar.

9 And the priest shall take from the meat-offering [f] a memorial thereof, and shall burn it upon the altar: it is an [g] offering made by fire of a sweet savour unto the Lord.

f Verse 2. g Exod. 29. 18.

10 And that which is left of the meat-offering, shall be Aaron's and his sons: it is a

V. 11. He shall kill it on the side of the altar northward—Here this and other kinds of sacrifices were killed, Levit. vi. 25. and vii. 2. because here seems to have been the largest and most convenient place for that work, the altar being probably near the middle of the east end of the building, and the entrance being on the south-side: so the north-side was the place of Christ's death, and mount Calvary, was on the north and west side of Jerusalem.

V. 14. Doves, or young pigeons—These birds were appointed for the relief of the poor who could not bring better. And these birds are preferred before others, because they were easily gotten, and because they are fit representations of Christ's meekness or gentleness, for which these birds are remarkable. The pigeons must be young, because then they are best, but the doves are better when they are more grown up, and therefore they are not confined to that age.

V. 16. Cast it beside the altar on the East-part—Or, with its dung or filth, to wit, contained in the crop. Here the filth was cast, because this was the remotest place from the holy of holies, which was in the West-end, to teach us, that impure persons will be cast out of the presence of God.

CHAP. II.

V. 1. A meat-offering—The matter of this offering was things without life, as meal, corn, cakes, &c. These are things of greatest necessity and benefit to man, and therefore meet that God should be served with them, and owned and praised as the giver of them, and in condescension to the poor, that they might not want an offering for God, and to shew that God would accept any services when offered to him with a sincere mind, these were necessary provisions for the feast which was here to be represented to God, and for the use of the Priests, who were to attend upon these holy ministrations. Pour oil upon it—Which may note the graces of the Holy Ghost, which are compared to oil and anointing with it, (Psal. xlv. 7. 1 John ii. 20.) and which are necessary to make any offering acceptable to God. And put frankincense thereon—Which designed Christ's satisfaction and intercession, which is compared to a sweet odour, (Eph. v. 2.) and to incense, (Rev. viii. 3.)

V. 2. He—That Priest to whom he brought it and who is appointed to offer it. The memorial of it—which is called a memorial, to the offerer, who by offering this part is minded, that the whole of that he brought and of all which he hath is God's, to whom this part was paid as an acknowledgment. Or to speak after the manner of men, this did put God in mind of his gracious covenant and promises of favour and acceptance of the offerer and his offering. (Exod. xxx. 16. Levit. vi. 15. Numb. v. 26.)

V. 3. Aaron's and his sons—To be eaten by them. A thing

most

Before Christ 1450. a thing most holy, of the offerings of the Lord made by fire.

11 No meat-offering, which ye shall bring unto the Lord, shall be made with [h] leaven: for ye shall burn no leaven, nor any honey, in any offering of the Lord made by fire.

12 ¶ [i] As for the oblation of the first-fruits, ye shall offer them unto the Lord: but they shall not * be burnt on the altar for a sweet savour.

13 And every oblation of thy meat-offering [k] shalt thou season with salt; neither shalt thou suffer [l] the salt of the covenant of thy God to be lacking from thy meat-offering: with all thine offerings thou shalt offer salt.

14 And if thou offer a meat-offering of thy first-fruits unto the Lord, thou shalt offer for the meat-offering of thy first-fruits, green ears of corn dried by the fire, even corn beaten out of full ears.

15 And thou shalt put oil upon it, and lay frankincense thereon: it is a meat-offering.

16 And the priest shall burn the memorial of it, part of the beaten corn thereof, and part of the oil thereof, with all the frankincense thereof: it is an offering made by fire unto the Lord. Before Christ 1490.

h See Matt. 16. 12. Mark 8. 15. Luke 12. 1. 1 Cor. 5. 8. Gal. 5. 9.

i Exod. 22. 29.

* Heb. ascend.

k Mark. 9. 49.

l Num. 18. 19.

CHAP. III.

AND if his oblation be a [a] sacrifice of peace-offering, if he offer it of the herd, whether it be a male or female; he shall offer it without blemish before the Lord.

a Chap. 7. 11, 29. and 22. 18, 21.

2 And [b] he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and kill it at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: And Aaron's sons the priests shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar round about.

b Chap. 1. 4. Exod. 29. 10.

3 And he shall offer of the sacrifice of the peace-offering, an offering made by fire unto the Lord; [c] the * fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards.

c Exod. 29. 13, 22.

* Or, suet.

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the † caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

† Or, midriff. over the liver, and over the kidneys.

5 And Aaron's sons [d] shall burn it on the altar

d Chap. 6. 12.

most holy—As every design and duty is rendered which is intended and done unto God with a view, or by faith in Christ Jesus.

V. 6. Thou shalt part it in pieces—Because part of it was offered to God, and part given to the Priest.

V. 11. No meat-offering shall be made with leaven—To remind them of their deliverance out of Egypt, when they were forced through haste to bring away their meal or dough which was the matter of this oblation unleavened; and to signify what Christ would be, and what they should be, pure and free from all hypocrisy and malice or wickedness, all which are signified by leaven. Nor any honey—Because it hath the same effect with leaven.

V. 12. As for the oblation of the first-fruits, ye shall offer them—Leaven or honey, were offered and accepted in that case. They shall not be burnt—But reserved for the Priests.

V. 13. Every oblation of thy meat-offering shalt thou season with salt—Which God would have here represented for the signification of that grace, which in Scripture is signified by salt, (Mark ix. 49. Col. iv. 6.) and which is necessary in all them that would offer an acceptable offering to God. And in testimony of that communion which they had with God in these exercises of his worship: salt being the symbol of friendship. The salt of the covenant—So salt is called, because it represented the perpetuity of God's covenant with them. With all thine offerings—Not these only, but all other, and as salt was required in every offering to the Lord, so is the aid and mind of the spirit to be regarded in all things with a view to please him, and what is the amount, what is the gain, the reward of all that has been done by men in all the generations that are now removed into the world of spirits which was done with a single, stedfast regard to please God? No hour is too late in the day of life to begin to do this; and to do it with endless success and advantage. Such is God's mercy that he accepts returning sinners at the eleventh hour—the decline of life when they have wasted their lives in ways and ends of living which only can be looked back upon as vain and empty, or shameful and sinful; and to these returning to him will God give pardon, grace and eternal glory; his word standing sure to all the seed—all that look to God for forgiveness for the sake of that blood which was shed by Jesus Christ the righteous for the sins of men; all that look unto him for that grace by which the tree—the heart and mind is made good, that the fruit—the whole life and actions flowing from the mind may be good also. All for Jesus' sake may have grace to live to God in whatever they have to do during the short remainder of life's uncertain trial for a blessed immortality. And whoever begins to do all to please the Lord of life, their Redeemer, can only have one cause for regret or sorrow, which is, that they did not sooner begin to live to God, whose mercy and favour is boundless to all them that love Him, and by His grace keep His commandments. (Dan. ix. 4.)

V. 14. If thou offer—Of thine own free-will: for there were other first-fruits, and that of several sorts, which were prescribed and the time, quality and proportion of them appointed by God.

V. 15. Thou shalt put oil upon it, and lay frankincense thereon—Whatever thou shalt do with a view to please God; never forget that oil and frankincense, by which thy offerings—thy duties are pleasing in the sight of God, and ascend up acceptably before Him: without his grace, without his mediation and atonement, nothing is acceptable to God; because none can come unto God but through the son of his love; but in the way which God has ordained all may come unto him; and for this the blessed above will praise and adore him for ever. (Rev. vii. 14. &c.)

CHAP. III.

V. 1. A sacrifice of peace-offering—Which was an offering for peace and prosperity, and the favour and blessing of God, either obtained, and so this was a thank-offering, or desired, and so it was a supplication to God. A male or female—was chiefly for the benefit of the offerer, and therefore the choice was left to himself.

V. 5. Aaron's sons shall burn it on the altar upon the burnt-sacrifice—Not till the daily burnt-offering was first offered, both as more eminently respecting God's honour, which ought to be preferred before all things, and as the most solemn and stated sacrifice, which should take place of all voluntary and occasional oblations, and as a sacrifice of an higher nature, being for expiation and atonement, without which no peace could be obtained, nor peace-offering offered with acceptance. And when men set their affections on things above, and begin to live to God, that only good, still

Before Christ 1490. altar upon the burnt-sacrifice, which is upon the wood that is on the fire: it is an offering made by fire of a sweet savour unto the Lord.

6 ¶ And if his offering for a sacrifice of peace-offering unto the Lord, be of the flock, male or female; he shall offer it without blemish.

7 If he offer a lamb for his offering, then shall he offer it before the Lord.

8 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of his offering, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and Aaron's sons shall sprinkle the blood thereof round about upon the altar.

9 And he shall offer of the sacrifice of the peace-offering, an offering made by fire unto the Lord: the fat thereof and the whole rump, it shall he take off hard by the backbone: and the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards.

10 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

11 And the priest shall burn it upon the altar: it is [e] the food of the offering made by fire unto the Lord.

12 ¶ And if his offering be a goat, then he shall offer it before the Lord.

13 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of it, and kill it before the tabernacle of the congregation: and the sons of Aaron shall sprinkle the blood thereof upon the altar round about. Before Christ 1490.

14 And he shall offer thereof his offering, even an offering made by fire unto the Lord; the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards.

15 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

16 And the priest shall burn them upon the altar: it is the food of the offering made by fire, for a sweet savour. [f] All the fat is the Lord's.

17 It shall be a perpetual statute for your generations throughout all your dwellings, that ye eat neither fat nor [g] blood.

CHAP. IV.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, [a] If a soul shall sin through ignorance against any of the commandments of the Lord (concerning things which ought not to be done) and shall do against any of them:

3 [b] If the priest that is anointed, do sin according e See Chap. 21. 6, 8, 17, 21, 22. and 22. 25. Ezek. 44. 7. Mal. 1. 7, 12.

f Chap. 7. 23, 25.

g Gen. 9. 4. Chap. 7. 26. 26. and 17. 10, 14. Deut. 12. 16. 1 Sam. 14. 33. Ezek. 44. 7.

a Num. 15. 22.

b Chap. 8. 12.

still it is ever to be remembered, that the great sacrifice must go first, must be ever kept in view as the sole cause of every mercy, and of every blessing enjoyed or hoped for.

V. 11. It is the food of the offering—It is called food, to note God's acceptance of it, and delight in it, as men delight in their food.

V. 17. Throughout all your dwellings—Not only at or near the tabernacle, nor only of those beasts which you actually sacrifice, but also in your several dwellings, and of all that kind of beasts. Eat neither fat—This was forbidden, to preserve the reverence of the holy rites and sacrifices; that they might be taught to acknowledge God as their Lord, and the Lord of all the creatures, who might reserve what he pleased to himself; to exercise them in obedience to God, and self-denial in those things which probably many of them would desire. Nor blood—This was forbidden to maintain reverence to God and his worship; and out of opposition to idolaters, who used to drink the blood of their sacrifices; and with respect to Christ's blood, thereby manifestly signified; and therefore the type or representation of what God deemed so precious, and what was the sole cause of the pardon and salvation of all that are or shall be saved, might be held sacred by all the Israel of God; and at the time it was not to be made any common use of, in order to convey a right notion of the great value of the blood of atonement; the life of every living creature living in its blood, tenderness and compassion was also taught by this prohibition.

CHAP. IV.

V. 2. If a soul shall sin through ignorance—Not knowing what he did to be sinful, or not considering it, but rashly and unadvisedly falling into sin through the power of some sudden passion or temptation, or about any of the commandments of the Lord, which concern things that should not be done, that he may yet recover his error, and fulfil them. Every neglect in doing the will of God, being equally noticed by him as acts of disobedience to his holy will; an offering was equally required for sins arising from carelessness as from wilfulness. The gracious provision that is made by the love of God in Christ Jesus, extends to all that has ever been done against God, both by neglect of duty and disobedience to his will. And every soul that relies on the infinite merit of the God-man for pardon; in an equal degree desires grace through him to be enabled to do his will on earth, and to be preserved blameless, not looking upon the provision that is made to pardon as a cause for being careless in doing the will of God, or in avoiding to disobey him; knowing that he that turns the mercy of God into wantonness or carelessness, most of all secures to himself his own condemnation.

V. 3. The priest that is anointed—The high-priest, who only was anointed. Do sin—Either in doctrine or practice. And this is noted as a blot and character of imperfection in the priesthood of the law, whereby the Israelites were directed to expect another and better high-priest, even one who is holy, harmless, and separate from sinners, (Heb. vii. 26.) According to the sin of the people—In the same manner as any of the people do: which implies that God expected more circumspection and care from him than from the people. But the words may be rendered, to the sin or guilt of the people, which may be mentioned as a reason of the law, and an aggravation of his sin, that by it he commonly brings sin and guilt and punishment upon the people, who are infected or scandalized by his example. A young bullock—The same sacrifice, which was offered for all the people, to shew how much his sin was aggravated by his quality.

Before Christ 1490.

according to the sin of the people: then let him bring for his sin which he hath sinned, c Chap. 9. 2. c a young bullock without blemish, unto the Lord for a sin-offering.

4 And he shall bring the bullock unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation d Chap. 1. 4. before the Lord; d and shall lay his hand upon the bullock's head, and kill the bullock before the Lord.

e Chap. 16. 14. Num. 19. 4. 5 And the priest that is anointed, e shall take of the bullock's blood, and bring it to the tabernacle of the congregation.

6 And the priest shall dip his finger in the blood, and sprinkle of the blood seven times before the Lord, before the vail of the sanctuary.

7 And the priest shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar of sweet incense before the Lord, which is in the tabernacle of the congregation; and shall pour f Chap. 5. 9. f all the blood of the bullock at the bottom of the altar of the burnt-offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

8 And he shall take off from it all the fat of the bullock for the sin-offering; the fat that covereth the inwards, and all the fat that is upon the inwards:

9 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is upon them, which is by the flanks, and the caul above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

g Chap. 3. 3. 10 g As it was taken off from the bullock of the sacrifice of peace-offerings: and the priest shall burn them upon the altar of the burnt-offering.

h Exod. 29. 14. Num. 19. 5. 11 h And the skin of the bullock, and all his flesh, with his head, and with his legs, and his inwards, and his dung, 12 Even the whole bullock shall he carry forth * without the camp, unto a clean place, i where the ashes are poured out, and k burn him on the wood with fire: † where the ashes are poured out, shall he be burnt.

13 ¶ And l if the whole congregation of Israel sin through ignorance, m and the thing be hid from the eyes of the assembly, and they have done somewhat against any of the commandments of the Lord, concerning things which should not be done, and are guilty:

14 When the sin which they have sinned against it, is known, then the congregation shall offer a young bullock for the sin, and bring him before the tabernacle of the congregation.

15 And the elders of the congregation shall lay their hands upon the head of the bullock before the Lord: and the bullock shall be killed before the Lord.

16 And the priest that is anointed, shall bring of the bullock's blood to the tabernacle of the congregation.

17 And the priest shall dip his finger in some of the blood, and sprinkle it seven times before the Lord, even before the vail.

18 And he shall put some of the blood upon the horns of the altar, which is before the Lord, that is in the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall pour out all the blood at the bottom of the altar of the burnt-offering, which is at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

19 And he shall take all his fat from him, and burn it upon the altar.

20 And he shall do with the bullock as he did n with the bullock for a sin-offering, so

Before Christ 1490.

* Heb. to without the camp.
i Chap. 6. 11.
k Heb. 13. 11.
† Heb. at the pouring out of the ashes.
l Num. 15. 24.
m Chap. 5. 2, 3, 4.
n Verse 3.

V. 4. He shall lay his hand upon the bullock's head—To testify both his acknowledgment of his sin, and his faith in God's promise for the expiation of his sins, through Christ, whom that sacrifice typified.

V. 5. The priest shall bring it to the tabernacle of the congregation—Into the tabernacle; which was not required nor allowed in any other sacrifice, possibly to shew the greatness of the high-priests sin, which needed more than ordinary diligence in him, and favour from God to expiate it; for to whom much is given, of him much will be required; he that knows his master's will and does not do it, or acts contrary to it, will be beaten with many stripes, will be called by the Lord of all to a more strict account.

V. 6. The priest shall sprinkle the blood seven times—A number much used in Scripture, as a number of perfection; and here prescribed, to shew that his sins needed more than ordinary purgation, and more frequent and manifest exercises of his faith and repentance, both which graces he was obliged to join with that ceremonial rite.

V. 12. The whole bullock—No part of this was to be eaten by the Priests, as it was in other sin-offerings. The reason is, because the offerer might not eat of his own sin-offering. Without the camp—To signify the abominable nature of sin, especially in high and holy persons, or when it overspreads a whole people, and their duty of keeping such wickedness out of the camp for time to come, and that Christ should suffer without the camp or gate, as he did, (Heb. xiii. 11.)

V. 13. If the whole congregation of Israel sin through ignorance—The body of the people, or the greater part of them, their rulers concurring with them.

V. 14. Against it—Against any one of the said commandments. A young bullock—But if the sin of the congregation was only the omission of some ceremonial duty, a kid of the goats was to be offered, (Numb. xv. 24.)

V. 15. The Elders of the Congregation—The Rulers of the people who acted in the name of all the people, who could not perform this act in their own persons.

V. 18. The altar before the Lord—That is, before the Holy of holies, where the Lord was in a more special manner present.

V. 20. He

Before Christ 1490. so shall he do with this: and the priest shall make an atonement for them, and it shall be forgiven them.

21 And he shall carry forth the bullock without the camp, and burn him as he burned the first bullock: it is a sin-offering for the congregation.

22 ¶ When a ruler hath sinned, and done somewhat through ignorance against any of the commandments of the Lord his God, concerning things which should not be done, and is guilty;

23 Or if his sin, wherein he hath sinned, come to his knowledge: he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a male without blemish.

24 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the goat, and kill it in the place where they kill the burnt-offering before the Lord: it is a sin-offering.

25 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out his blood at the bottom of the altar of burnt-offering.

26 And he shall burn all his fat upon the altar, as [o] the fat of the sacrifice of peace-offerings: and the priest shall make an atonement for him as concerning his sin, and it shall be forgiven him.

27 ¶ And [p] if ‡ any one of the § common people sin through ignorance, while he doeth somewhat against any of the commandments of the Lord, concerning things which ought not to be done, and be guilty;

28 Or if his sin, which he hath sinned, come to his knowledge: then he shall bring his offering, a kid of the goats, a female without blemish, for his sin which he hath sinned. Before Christ 1490

29 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin-offering, and slay the sin-offering, in the place of the burnt-offering.

30 And the priest shall take of the blood thereof with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar.

31 And [q] he shall take away all the fat thereof, [r] as the fat is taken away from off the sacrifice of peace-offerings; and the priest shall burn it upon the altar, for a [s] sweet savour unto the Lord: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and it shall be forgiven him.

32 And if he bring a lamb for a sin-offering, he shall bring it a female without blemish.

33 And he shall lay his hand upon the head of the sin-offering, and slay it for a sin-offering, in the place where they kill the burnt-offering.

34 And the priest shall take of the blood of the sin-offering, with his finger, and put it upon the horns of the altar of burnt-offering, and shall pour out all the blood thereof at the bottom of the altar.

35 And he shall take away all the fat thereof, as the fat of the lamb is taken away from the sacrifice of the peace-offerings: and the priest shall burn them upon the altar, [t] according to the offerings made by fire unto the Lord: and the priest shall make an atonement for his sin that he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him.

CHAP.

[o] Chap. 3. 5.

[p] Num. 15. 27. ‡ Heb. any soul. § Heb. people of the land.

[q] Chap. 3. 11.

[r] Chap. 3. 5.

[s] Exod. 29. 18.

[t] Chap. 3. 5.

V. 20. He shall do as he did with the bullock for a sin-offering—For the Priests sin-offering.

V. 22. A Ruler—Of the people, or a civil Magistrate. Through ignorance—Not knowing it to be sin, or not observing and considering it, till it be done.

V. 26. His sin shall be forgiven him—Upon repentance and faith in the Messias to come.

V. 27. If any one of the common people—Any of the people of the land, whether Israelites, or strangers embodied with them, for both were under one and the same law, (Exod. xii. 49.)

V. 28. A female—Which here was sufficient, because the sin of one of those was less than the sin of the ruler, for whom a male was required.

V. 33. He—The offerer. And slay it—Not by himself, but by the hands of the priest.

V. 35. The priest shall make an atonement for his sin that he hath committed, and it shall be forgiven him—A person thus appearing publicly with an offering for the sin of which he was convinced, or of which his conscience accused him, was bringing forth fruits meet for repentance, no less evidently, than forsaking of sin, and leaving the society of the careless and the wicked is at this day; and these appointed offerings were acts of faith in that offering which the promised Messiah was to make for the sins of men; and as certainly as it is declared that they were forgiven their sin, so certain is it that they will be forgiven, who do repent and believe that Christ Jesus the Lord died for them. Was there now no knowledge of the forgiveness of sins, the dispensation of Moses would be greater than that of the Gospel of Jesus. Throughout the Old Testament there is a constant looking forward to better things to come; and in the New Testament it is declared that therein is discovered that which was looked for; (Heb. xi. 40.) but it would not have been so, if it was the privilege of the people of Israel, to have known that the sins which they had committed were thus forgiven, and that under the New Testament, the same assurance was not to be obtained or looked for. But must it not be allowed to be an happy thing for a son that has offended a kind father, to be fully forgiven on acknowledging his fault, and forsaking it? Is it not a just occasion of joy to those who have forfeited their lives to the laws of a country, to be pardoned by a prince vested with that privilege? And who shall say that the Father

Before Christ 1490.

CHAP. V.

AND if a ſoul ſin, [a] and hear the voice of ſwearing, and is a witneſs, whether he hath ſeen or known of it; if he do not utter it, then he ſhall bear his iniquity.

[a] 1 Kings 8. 31.

2 Or [b] if a ſoul touch any unclean thing, whether it be a carcaſe of an unclean beaſt, or a carcaſe of unclean cattle, or the carcaſe of unclean creeping things, and if it be hidden from him; he alſo ſhall be unclean, and guilty.

[b] Chap. 11 24, 28, 31, 39.

3 Or if he touch [c] the uncleanneſs of man, whatſoever uncleanneſs, it be that a man ſhall be defiled withal, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he ſhall be guilty.

[c] Chap. 12. & 15. & 15.

4 Or if a ſoul ſwear, pronouncing with his lips [d] to do evil, or [e] to do good, whatſoever it be that a man ſhall pronounce with an oath, and it be hid from him; when he knoweth of it, then he ſhall be guilty in one of theſe.

[d] See 1 Sam. 25. 22. Acts 23. 12.

[e] See Mark 6. 23.

5 And it ſhall be, when he ſhall be guilty in one of theſe things, that he ſhall [f] confeſs that he hath ſinned in that thing.

Before Chriſt 1490.

[f] Num. 5. 7.

6 And he ſhall bring his treſpaſs-offering unto the Lord for his ſin which he hath ſinned, a female from the flock, a lamb or a kid of the goats, for a ſin-offering: and the prieſt ſhall make an atonement for him concerning his ſin.

7 And [g] if ‖ he be not able to bring a lamb, then he ſhall bring for his treſpaſs which he hath committed, two [h] turtle-doves, or two young pigeons, unto the Lord; one for a ſin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering.

[g] Chap. 12. 8. and 14. 21.

‖ Heb. his hand cannot reach to the ſufficiency of a lamb.

[h] Chap. 1. 14.

8 And he ſhall bring them unto the prieſt, who ſhall offer that which is for the ſin-offering firſt, and [i] wring off his head from his neck, but ſhall not divide it aſunder.

[i] Chap. 1. 15.

9 And he ſhall ſprinkle of the blood of the ſin-offering upon the ſide of the altar; and

Father of mercies, and the King of glory cannot, or will not, bleſs with peace the minds of thoſe who have been filled with ſorrow, ſhame, and fear, from a ſenſe of their offences againſt the purity and juſtice of God? Yes, the angels in the preſence of God rejoice when one ſinner repenteth, and looketh to God for pardon and acceptance through the Son of his love. (Luke xv. 10.) And let them that think it is not within the gracious deſigns of infinite goodneſs, that they ſhould ever know the bleſſedneſs of the man whoſe ſins are forgiven, (Rom. iv. 7.) begin to inquire in the word of God, what it is that the Lord their God would have them do; (Acts ix. 6.) and let them, as is only becoming with humble and ſincere minds, regard God's holy will as their rule of life, looking to Chriſt Jeſus the Lord as the cauſe of their pardon and acceptance with God; allowing nothing to enduce them to do what God has forbid, nor omitting thoſe means of grace which he has appointed, nor neglecting the duties he has commanded, ever regarding the favour of God as that which alone is to be lived for and valued; and then let thoſe who thus live, aſk themſelves, whether they find that they ſeek the knowledge of the favour of God in vain. To ſpeak againſt the knowledge of the forgiveneſs of our treſpaſſes, and the happineſs conſequent upon that knowledge, whilſt we are not regarding either repentance towards God, or faith in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, nor ſearching the Scriptures, to know what it is to repent and believe the Goſpel, it is to ſpeak againſt that knowledge which we are not ſo much as in the way of having, whilſt we ſo continue to live; and they that know our lives to be without ſerioufneſs, temperance and diligence in the known duties of religion, can only conclude juſtly, when they hear us ſpeak againſt this bleſſed attainment, that however ſincerely we declare what we think, our declarations are to be conſidered in the ſame light as if we declared to others, that the meaning of the Scriptures, as they concerned us in this life, was a thing never to be known; when thoſe to whom we thus expreſſed ourſelves, were ſatisfied that we ourſelves did not make the meaning of the Scriptures the ſubject of our ſtudy or regard. ‖

CHAP. V.

V. 1. Whether he hath ſeen or known of it—Being preſent, when it was ſaid; or by ſufficient information from others. He ſhall bear his iniquity—The puniſhment of it, as that word is uſed.

V. 2. If it be hidden from him—If he do it unwittingly, yet that would not excuſe him, becauſe he ſhould have been more diligent and circumſpect to avoid all unclean things. Hereby God deſigned to awaken men to watchfulneſs againſt and repentance for their unknown or unobſerved ſins.

V. 3. When he knoweth of it—As ſoon as he knoweth it, he muſt not delay to make his peace with God. And though it was ſin before, though not known, yet the knowledge of it made it worſe, and therefore required the more ſpeedy repentance. Then he ſhall be guilty—Not only ceremonially by that touch, but morally for his violation and contempt of God's authority and command.

V. 4. If a ſoul ſwear—Raſhly, without conſideration either of God's law or His own power or right. Pronouncing with his lips to do evil—Either to himſelf, to puniſh himſelf either in his body, or eſtate, or ſomething elſe which is dear to him. Or to his neighbour. Or to do good—To his neighbour, as when a man either may not or cannot do it, which may frequently happen. And it be hid from him—He did not know or not conſider that what he ſwore to do, was or would be impoſſible or unlawful. When he knoweth of it—When he diſcovers it to be ſo either by his own conſideration, or by information from others. Then he ſhall be guilty in one of theſe—Either in the good or evil which he ſwore to do.

V. 5. He ſhall be guilty in one of theſe things—In one of the three caſes, either by ſinful ſilence and compliance with others in their ſin, or by an unclean touch, or by raſh ſwearing. He ſhall confeſs—Before the Lord in the place of public worſhip. And this confeſſion is not to be reſtrained to the preſent caſe, but by a party of reaſon and comparing of other Scriptures, to be extended to other ſacrifices for ſin, to which this was a conſtant companion, and as it was ſignified by the guilty perſons laying his hand upon his offering, ſo it is probable it was expreſſed in words, (Numb. v. 6, 7.)

V. 7. If he be not able to bring a lamb, then he ſhall bring two turtle-doves—To teach us not to reſt in general confeſſions and repentances for ſin, as hypocrites commonly do, but diſtinctly and particularly, as far as we can, to ſearch out and confeſs, and loath and leave our particular ſins, without which God will not accept our other religious ſervices.

V. 9. It

Before Christ 1490.

and [k] the rest of the blood shall be wrung out at the bottom of the altar: it is a sin-offering.

[k] Chap. 4. 7, 18, 30, 34.

10 And he shall offer the second for a burnt-offering, according to the [*] [l] manner: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, for his sin which he hath sinned, and it shall be forgiven him.

[*] Or, ordinance.

[l] Chap. 1. 14.

11 ¶ But if he be not able to bring two turtle-doves, or two young pigeons; then he that sinned, shall bring for his offering the tenth part of an ephah of fine flour for a sin-offering: [m] he shall put no oil upon it, neither shall he put any frankincense thereon: for it is a sin-offering.

[m] Num. 5. 15.

12 Then shall he bring it to the priest, and the priest shall take his handful of it, [n] even a memorial thereof, and burn it on the altar, [o] according to the offerings made by fire unto the Lord: it is a sin-offering.

[n] Chap. 2. 2.

[o] Chap. 4. 35.

13 And the priest shall make an atonement for him, as touching his sin that he hath sinned in one of these, and it shall be forgiven him: and [p] the remnant shall be the priests, as a meat-offering.

[p] Chap. 2. 3.

14 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

15 [q] If a soul commit a trespass, and sin through ignorance, in the holy things of the Lord; then he shall bring for his trespass unto the Lord, a ram without blemish out of the flocks, with thy estimation by shekels of silver, after [r] the shekel of the sanctuary, for a trespass-offering.

[q] Chap. 22. 14.

[r] Exod. 30. 13.

16 And he shall make amends for the harm that he hath done in the holy thing, and [s] shall add the fifth part thereto, and give it unto the priest: and the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass-offering, and it shall be forgiven him.

Before Christ 1490.

[s] Chap. 22. 14. and 27. 13. 15, 27. Num. 5. 7.

17 ¶ And if a [t] soul sin, and commit any of these things which are forbidden to be done by the commandments of the Lord; [u] though he wist it not, yet is he guilty, and shall bear his iniquity.

[t] Chap. 4. 27.

[u] Luke 12. 48.

18 And he shall bring a ram without blemish out of the flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass-offering, unto the priest: and the priest shall make an atonement for him concerning his ignorance wherein he erred, and wist it not; and it shall be forgiven him.

19 It is a trespass-offering: he hath certainly trespassed against the Lord.

CHAP. VI.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 If a soul sin, and commit a trespass against the Lord, and lie unto his neighbour in that which was delivered him to keep, or in [*] [†] fellowship, or in a thing taken away by violence, or hath deceived his neighbour;

[*] Or, in dealing.

[†] Heb. putting of the hand.

3 Or have found that which was lost, and lieth concerning it, and [a] sweareth falsly; in any of all these that a man doeth, sinning therein:

[a] Num. 5. 6.

4 Then it shall be, because he hath sinned, and is guilty, that he shall restore that which he took violently away, or the thing which

V. 9. It is a sin-offering—This is added as the reason why its blood was so sprinkled and spilt.

V. 10. The Priest shall make an atonement for him for his sin, and it shall be forgiven him—Either declaratively, he shall pronounce him to be pardoned: or typically, with respect to Christ. That God for the promised Redeemer's sake would pardon those who confessed and what is implied in it forsook their sin. And what is our hope of mercy, if we are carefully or wilfully continuing in any known sin?

V. 11. He shall put no oil upon it, neither shall he put any frankincense thereon—To signify that by his sins he deserved to be utterly deprived both of the oil of gladness, the gifts, graces and comforts of the Holy Ghost, and of God's gracious acceptance of his prayers and sacrifices, which is signified by incense, and to teach them how evil a thing sin was, how hateful to God, and how uncomfortable to themselves.

V. 15. If a soul commit a trespass in the holy things of the Lord—In things consecrated to God and to holy use, such as tithes and first-fruits, or any things due or devoted or offered to God, which possibly a man might either with-hold or employ to some common use. A trespass-offering—A more chargeable sacrifice than the former, as the sin of sacriledge was greater.

V. 16. He shall add the fifth part—So much they were to add to holy things redeemed.

V. 17. Though he wist it not—For if he did it knowingly he must die, (Numb. xv. 30.)

CHAP. VI.

V. 2. If a soul sin and commit a trespass against the Lord—This sin, though directly committed against man only, is here said to be done against the Lord, for so every sin against man is also against the Lord, whose image in man is thereby injured, and whose law, which obligeth us to love, and fidelity and justice to other men, is thereby violated; and because this was a violation of human society, whereof God is the author and president and defender; and because it was a secret sin, of which God alone was the witness and judge. Which was delivered him to keep—In trust.

V. 3. And sweareth falsly—His oath being required.

V. 4. He hath sinned, and is guilty—By his voluntary confession, that he only restores the principal with the addition of a fifth part, whereas if he were convicted of his fault, he was to pay double.

V. 5. In the day of his trespass-offering—It must not be delayed, but restitution to man must accompany repentance towards God. (Matt. v. 23.) And this is for his glory, whose grace gives repentance; and by which grace the same soul that becomes a true penitent in the sight of God, is intirely fixed on making the most effectual return for whatever any other person may have suffered by his injustice or indiscretion, during the time of his living without the fear of God.

Before Christ 1490.

which he hath deceitfully gotten, or that which was delivered him to keep, or the lost thing which he found,

5 Or all that about which he hath sworn falsly; he shall even [b] restore it in the principal, and shall add the fifth part more thereto, and give it unto him to whom it appertaineth, ‡ § in the day of his trespass-offering.

6 And he shall bring his trespass-offering unto the Lord, a ram without blemish out of the [c] flock, with thy estimation, for a trespass-offering, unto the priest.

7 And the priest shall make an atonement for him before the Lord: and it shall be forgiven him, for any thing of all that he hath done, in trespassing therein.

8 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

9 Command Aaron and his sons, saying, This is the law of the burnt-offering: (It is the burnt-offering, ‖ because of the burning upon the altar all night unto the morning, and the fire of the altar shall be burning in it.)

10 [d] And the priest shall put on his linen garment, and his linen breeches shall be put upon his flesh, and take up the ashes which the fire hath consumed with the burnt-offering on the altar, and he shall put them [e] beside the altar.

11 And he shall put off his garments, and put on other garments, and carry forth the ashes without the camp, [f] unto a clean place.

12 And the fire upon the altar shall be burning in it, it shall not be put out: and the priest shall burn wood on it every morning, and lay the burnt-offering in order upon it, and he shall burn thereon [g] the fat of the peace-offerings.

13 The fire shall ever be burning upon the altar: it shall never go out.

14 ¶ [h] And this is the law of the meat-offering: the sons of Aaron shall offer it before the Lord, before the altar.

15 And he shall take of it his handful, of the flour of the meat-offering, and of the oil thereof, and all the frankincense which is upon the meat-offering, and shall burn it upon the altar, for a sweet savour, even the [i] memorial of it unto the Lord.

16 And [k] the remainder thereof shall Aaron and his sons eat: with unleavened bread shall it be eaten in the holy place: [l] in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation they shall eat it.

17 It shall not be baken with leaven: [m] I have given it unto them for their portion of my offerings made by fire: [n] it is most holy, as is the sin-offering, and as the trespass-offering.

18 All

‡ Or, in the day of his being found guilty.
§ Heb. in the day of his trespass.
‖ Or for the burning.

[b] Chap. 5. 16.
[c] Chap. 5. 15.
[d] Chap. 16. 4. Exod. 28. 40, 41, 43.
[e] Chap. 1. 16.
[f] Chap. 4. 12.
[g] Chap. 3. 3, 9, 14.
[h] Chap. 2. 1. Numb. 15. 4.
[i] Chap. 2. 2, 9.
[k] Chap. 2. 3.
[l] Chap. 10. 12.
[m] Numb. 18. 9, 10.
[n] Exod. 29. 37. Chap. 2. 3.

V. 7. And it shall be forgiven him, for any thing of all that he hath done—Mercy is provided for every offence both against God and man; that they that were guilty (1 Cor. vi. 11.) of many and great crimes, might exchange lives of sin and misery for lives of godliness, sincerity and peace.

V. 9. Command Aaron and his sons—Hitherto hath been prescribed the sacrifices themselves, now the manner of them. This is the law of the burnt-offering—Of the daily one. The meaning is, the evening-burnt-offering was to be so managed and laid on piece after piece, that the fire might be constantly maintained by it. That there might not be a moment of time in which the sacrifice was not offered unto God to make an atonement for the sins of the people; to represent the continual as well as the extensive sacrifice of Jesus Christ the righteous, who abideth a priest continually (Heb. vii. 3.) at the golden altar which is before the throne of God; (Rev. viii. 3.) and being himself the lamb that was slain from the foundation of the world, and having suffered in his own person the penalty of the Divine justice in the sinners place and stead; that sacrifice of himself is as continually present before God as when Jesus was upon the cross; and when the justice of God would destroy the sinner, Jesus says, This I suffered that he might be spared for repentance, that he might be pardoned, and have grace to save him from the power of sin.

V. 12. The fire shall not be put out—The fire coming down from Heaven, was to be perpetually preserved, and not suffered to go out, that there might be no occasion to offer strange fire, nor to mingle their inventions with God's appointments; and to teach them whence they were to expect the acceptance of all their sacrifices, even from the divine mercy and grace, signified by the fire which came down from Heaven, which was an usual token of God's favourable acceptance. The priest shall burn wood on it every morning—Though the evening also be doubtless intended, as it appears from v. 9. and from the nature of the thing, yet the morning only is mentioned; and what a lively image is the employment of the priests, of that which is required of all that stand between the living and the dead—continually to feed the flame of divine love upon the altar of the people's hearts. The knowledge of the love of God to man, for the sake of the God-man, accompanied with the unction of the Holy Spirit for Jesus's sake sent down from heaven, kindles that flame of heavenly charity in the hearts and minds of men, which it is the will of God should never go out, and prayer, praises, the use of the sacred word, and of all the means of grace, accompanied with unfeigned devotion of heart and life, are to be cast upon the altar of a Mediator, that the heavenly fire may ascend up to God from whom it came, and spread and increase among the children of men, till the love of God and man shall burn with its pure and holy flame in every breast, and heaven and earth be filled with the praise of God and of the lamb who has redeemed us. He shall burn thereon—Upon the burnt-offering, which thereby would be sooner consumed. that so way might be made for other sacrifices, which were many.

V. 13. The fire shall ever be burning, it shall never go out—God will give it a continual supply, and it shall be the constant care and employment of his servants to increase the heavenly flame.

V. 16. The remainder thereof shall Aaron and his sons—The males only might eat these, because they were most holy things. In the holy place—The reason why this was to be eaten only by holy

Before Christ 1490.

18 All the males among the children of Aaron shall eat of it: it shall be a statute for ever in your generations concerning the offerings of the Lord made by fire: [o] Every one that toucheth them shall be holy.

o Exod. 29. 37. Chap. 22. 4, 5, 6.

19 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

p Exod. 29. 2.

20 [p] This is the offering of Aaron, and of his sons, which they shall offer unto the Lord, in the day when he is anointed; the tenth part of an [q] ephah of fine flour for a meat-offering perpetual, half of it in the morning, and half thereof at night.

q Exod. 16. 36.

21 In a pan it shall be made with oil, and when it is baken, thou shalt bring it in: and the baken pieces of the meat-offering shalt thou offer for a sweet savour unto the Lord.

r Chap. 4. 3.

22 And the priest of his sons [r] that is anointed in his stead, shall offer it: It is a s Exod. 29. 25.

statute for ever unto the Lord, [s] it shall be wholly burnt.

23 For every meat-offering for the priest shall be wholly burnt: it shall not be eaten.

24 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

25 Speak unto Aaron and to his sons, saying, [t] This is the law of the sin-offering:

t Chap. 4. 2.

u Chap. 1. 3, 5, 11. & 4. 24, 29. 33.

x Chap 21. 22.

y Numb. 18. 9.

[u] In the place where the burnt-offering is killed, shall the sin-offering be killed before the Lord: [x] it is most holy.

26 [y] The priest that offereth it for sin, shall eat it: in the holy place shall it be eaten, in the court of the tabernacle of the congregation.

27 Whatsoever shall touch the flesh thereof shall be holy: and when there is sprinkled of the blood thereof upon any garment, thou shalt wash that whereon it was sprinkled, in the holy place.

z Chap. 11. 33.

28 But the earthen vessel wherein it is sodden, [z] shall be broken: and if it be sodden in a brasen pot, it shall be both scoured and rinsed in water.

Before Christ 1490.

29 All the males among the priests shall eat thereof; it is most holy.

30 [a] And no sin-offering whereof any of the blood is brought into the tabernacle of the congregation to reconcile withal in the holy place, shall be eaten: it shall be burnt in the fire.

a Chap. 4. 5, 6, 11, 12, 18, 21. & 16, 27. Heb. 13. 11.

CHAP. VII.

1 Likewise [a] this is the law of the trespass-offerings: [b] it is most holy.

a Chap. 5. & 6.

b Chap. 21, 22.

2 [c] In the place where they kill the burnt-offering, shall they kill the trespass-offering: and the blood thereof shall he sprinkle round about upon the altar.

c Chap. 1. 5, 11. & 4. 24, 29, 33.

3 And he shall offer of it, [d] all the fat thereof; the rump, and the fat that covereth the inwards, d Chap. 3. 4, 10. & 4. 8, 9. Exod. 29. 13.

4 And the two kidneys, and the fat that is on them, which is by the flanks, and the caul that is above the liver, with the kidneys, it shall he take away.

5 And the priest shall burn them upon the altar, for an offering made by fire unto the Lord: it is a trespass-offering.

6 [e] Every male among the priests shall eat thereof: it shall be eaten in the holy place: [f] it is most holy.

e Numb. 28. 9, 10.

f Chap. 2, 3.

7 As the sin-offering is, so is [g] the trespass-offering: there is one law for them: the priest that maketh atonement therewith, shall have it.

g Chap. 5. 26.

8 And the priest that offereth any man's burnt-offering, even the priest shall have to himself the skin of the burnt-offering which he hath offered.

9 And [h] all the meat-offering that is baken in the oven, and all that is dressed in the frying-pan, and * in the pan, shall be the priests that offereth it.

h Chap. 2. 3 to. Numb. 18. 9.

* Or, on the flat plate, or slice.

10 And holy persons, and that in an holy place, is because it is most holy, and therefore to be treated with greater reverence. The blessings of the Lord are for those that are prepared for them; strangers do not intermeddle with them: new wine is not put into old bottles—The spiritual food which is eaten by those who live by faith in God their Saviour, is not given, because it cannot be received by such as are resisting the grace of repentance; neither are the blessings of a penitent mind given to such as are both in heart and life opposing that grace which is convincing them of sin. And they partake not of holy things; they sup not with the Lord, who open not their hearts to receive the Lord. (Rev. iii. 20.)

V. 18. Every one that toucheth them shall be holy—None should touch, or eat them but consecrated persons.

V. 23. Every meat offering for the priest shall be wholly burnt—To signify the imperfection of the Levitical Priests, who could not bear their own iniquity; for the Priests eating part of the people's sacrifices did signify his typical bearing of the people's iniquity, and to teach the Priests and Ministers of God, that it is their duty to serve God with singleness of heart, and to be content with God's honour, though they have no present advantage by it.

V. 26. The priest that offereth it for sin, shall eat it—For the sins of the rulers, or of the people, or any of them, but not for the sins of the priests; for then its blood was brought into the tabernacle, and therefore it might not be eaten.

V. 27. Thou shalt wash that whereon it was sprinkled in the holy place—Out of reverence to the blood of sacrifices.

CHAP. VII.

V. 10. One as much as another—These were to be equally divided among all the priests. God is no respecter of persons, and they who wait upon him alike, will alike be made partakers of the same blessings. And for this spiritual food is God to be worshipped, His will to be done, His word to be read.

V. 12. If

Before Christ 1490.

10 And every meat-offering mingled with oil, and dry, shall all the sons of Aaron have, one as much as another.

[1] Chap. 3. 1. & 22. 18, 21.

11 And [1] this is the law of the sacrifice of peace-offerings, which he shall offer unto the Lord.

12 If he offer it for a thanksgiving, then he shall offer with the sacrifice of thanksgiving unleavened cakes mingled with oil, [k] Chap. 2. 4. Numb. 6. 15.

and unleavened wafers [k] anointed with oil, and cakes mingled with oil, of fine flour, fried.

13 Besides the cakes, he shall offer for his offering, leavened bread, with the sacrifice of thanksgiving of his peace-offerings.

14 And of it he shall offer one out of the whole oblation, for an heave-offering unto the Lord, and it shall be the priests that sprinkleth the blood of the peace-offerings.

15 And the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings for thanksgiving, shall be eaten the same day that it is offered: he shall not leave any of it until the morning.

[l] Chap. 19. 6, 7, 8.

16 But [l] if the sacrifice of his offering be a vow, or a voluntary offering, it shall be eaten the same day that he offereth his sacrifice: and on the morrow also the remainder of it shall be eaten.

17 But the remainder of the flesh of the sacrifice on the third day, shall be burnt with fire.

Before Christ 1490.

18 And if any of the flesh of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings be eaten at all on the third day, it shall not be accepted, neither shall it be imputed unto him that offereth it: it shall be an abomination, and the soul that eateth of it, shall bear his iniquity.

19 And the flesh that toucheth any unclean thing, shall not be eaten, it shall be burnt with fire: and as for the flesh, all that be clean shall eat thereof.

20 But the soul that eateth of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings, that pertain unto the Lord, [m] having his uncleanness upon him, even that soul [n] shall be cut off from his people.

[m] Chap. 15. 3. [n] Gen. 17. 14.

21 Moreover, the soul that shall touch any unclean thing, as [o] the uncleanness of man, or any [p] unclean beast, or any abominable unclean thing, and eat of the flesh of the sacrifice of peace-offerings, which pertain unto the Lord, even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

[o] Chap. 12. & 13. & 15. [p] Chap. 11. 24, 28.

22 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

23 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying,

V. 12. If he offer it for a thanksgiving—For mercies received.

V. 13. He shall offer for his offering, leavened bread—Because this was a sacrifice of another kind than those in which leaven was forbidden, this being a sacrifice of thanksgiving for Gods blessings, among which leavened bread was one: and to shew that leaven was not so strictly forbidden in other sacrifices as if it were evil in itself, but to teach us wholly to rest in the will of God in all his appointments, without two scrupulous an enquiry into the particular reasons of them. His peace-offerings—The sacrifice of thanksgiving for his peace or prosperity.

V. 16. If the sacrifice be a vow—Offered in performance of a vow, the man having desired some special favour from God, and vowed the sacrifice to God if he would grant it. A voluntary offering—Which a man freely offered to God, in testimony of his faith and love to God, without any particular injunction from God. The remainder of it shall be eaten—Which was not allowed for the thank-offering. The reason of which difference is to be fetched only from God's good pleasure and will, to which he expects our obedience, though we discern not the reason of his appointments.

V. 17. The sacrifice, shall be burnt with fire—That it might neither be exposed to contempt; nor yet be reserved for superstitious abuse, or for the Priests domestick use, which would savour of covetousness and of distrust of God's care for their future provisions.

V. 18. Neither shall it be imputed unto him—For an acceptable service to God. Whatsoever is not of faith is sin. God requires to be worshipped in spirit and in truth, and whatsoever is not done agreeable to the will of God, is not acceptable to God. All blessedness to men flowing from God through the one Mediator between God and man, men only live for their real good so far as they live to God.

V. 19. All that be clean shall eat thereof—Both the flesh and the eaters of it must be clean.

V. 20. The soul that eateth having his uncleanness upon him—Knowingly: for if it were done ignorantly, a sacrifice was accepted for it.

V. 22. The Lord spake—This is often repeated, and doubtless to remind all that read the Scriptures that God is to be looked to and regarded as the speaker of what we are reading. Did we know of any writings which contained the plainest discoveries of all that was ever known by all the best and wisest men that ever lived, as necessary to our present and endless happiness, with what respect and care ought we to read and consider them? Did we know of any writings in which angels submitted to men things that were the result of ten thousand years experience in all that is wise and good, such writings would surely be prized by all who had desires after wisdom and goodness. Far less than the light and heat of the stars, which appear to us, are to be compared to the light and heat of the sun, are the wisdom and goodness in men and angels to be compared to the wisdom and goodness of God. He is the fountain, and from him alone proceeds all that is wise or good, all that angels and the spirits of the blessed possess that is to be desired by men, can only be a faint resemblance of what God is. How is it then, when it is as certain that God speaks to men in the Scriptures, as that there are writings which bear that name, that we can allow ourselves to neglect to make them the grand object of our study? Why is it that we do not buy up all the moments we can of time to employ them in considering what God speaks to men?

V. 23. Ye shall eat no manner of fat of ox, sheep, or goat—The general prohibition of eating the fat, of those kinds of creatures which were sacrificed to God is forbid.

V. 24. Ye

Before Christ 1490.

ing, [q] Ye shall eat no manner of fat, of ox, or of sheep, or of goat.

24 And the fat of the * beast that dieth of itself, and the fat of that which is torn with beasts, may be used in any other use: but ye shall in no wise eat of it.

25 For whosoever eateth the fat of the beast, of which men offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord, even the soul that eateth it, shall be cut off from his people.

26 [r] Moreover, ye shall eat no manner of blood, whether it be of fowl or of beast, in any of your dwellings.

27 Whatsoever soul it be that eateth any manner of blood: even that soul shall be cut off from his people.

28 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

29 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, He that offereth the sacrifice of his peace-offerings unto the Lord, shall bring his oblation unto the Lord of the sacrifice of his peace-offerings.

30 [s] His own hands shall bring the offerings of the Lord made by fire, the fat with the breast, it shall he bring, that [t] the breast may be waved for a wave-offering before the Lord.

31 And the priest shall burn the fat upon the altar: but the breast shall be Aaron's and his sons.

32 And the right shoulder shall ye give unto the priest for an heave-offering, of the sacrifices of your peace-offerings.

33 He among the sons of Aaron that offereth the blood of the peace-offerings, and the fat, shall have the right shoulder for his part.

34 For [u] the wave-breast, and the heave-shoulder have I taken of the children of Israel, from off the sacrifices of their peace-offerings, and have given them unto Aaron the priest, and unto his sons, by a statute for ever, from among the children of Israel.

35 ¶ This is the portion of the anointing of Aaron, and of the anointing of his sons, out of the offerings of the Lord made by fire, in the day when he presented them to minister unto the Lord in the priest's office:

36 Which the Lord commanded to be given them of the children of Israel, [x] in the day that he anointed them by a statute for ever, throughout their generations.

37 This is the law of the burnt-offering, of the meat-offering, and of the sin-offering, and of the trespass-offering, and of the consecrations, and of the sacrifice of the peace-offerings:

38 Which the Lord commanded Moses in mount Sinai, in the day that he commanded the children of Israel to offer their oblations unto the Lord, in the wilderness of Sinai.

CHAP. VIII.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 [a] Take Aaron and his sons with him, and [b] the garments, and [c] the anointing oil, and a bullock for the sin-offering, and two rams, and a basket of unleavened bread;

3 And gather thou all the congregation together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 And Moses did as the Lord commanded him; and the assembly was gathered together unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

5 And Moses said unto the congregation, [d] This is the thing which the Lord commanded to be done.

6 And Moses brought Aaron and his sons, [e] and washed them with water.

7 [f] And he put upon him the [g] coat, and girded him with the girdle, and clothed him with the robe, and put the ephod upon him, and q Chap. 3. 17. * Heb. caul case.

r Gen. 9. 4. Chap. 3. 17. and 17. 14.
s Chap. 3. 3, 4, 9, 14.
t Exod. 29. 24, 27.
u Exod. 29. 28. Chap. 10. 14. Num. 18. 18. Deut. 18. 3.
x Chap. 8. 12, 30. Exod. 40. 13, 15.
a Exod. 29. 4.
b Exod. 28. 2, 4.
c Exod. 30. 24.
d Exod. 29. 4.
e Exod. 29. 4.
f Exod. 29. 5.
g Exod. 28. 4.

V. 24. Ye shall in no wise eat of it—This prohibition reacheth not only to the fat of those beasts which were offered to God, but also of those that died or were killed at home. This prohibition reached only to the priests, verse 4.

V. 29. He that offereth shall bring—Not by another, but by himself. His oblation—Those parts of the peace-offering, which are in a special manner offered to God. Unto the Lord—To the tabernacle, where the Lord was present in a special manner.

V. 30. His own hands shall bring—After the beast was killed and the parts of it divided, the Priest was to put the parts mentioned into the hands of the offerer.

V. 34. The heave-shoulder—The breast or heart is the seat of wisdom, and the shoulder of strength for action. God is to be served with all our heart, mind and strength.

V. 35. This is the portion of Aaron, and his sons—Appointed them by God in that day. God kindly providing for them that are given up entirely to his immediate service in things sacred.

V. 37. The trespass-offering, of the consecrations—Of the sacrifice offered at the consecration of the Priests.

CHAP. VIII.

V. 1. The Lord spake unto Moses—This is here premised, to shew that Moses did not confer the Priesthood upon Aaron by virtue of his relation or affection to him, but by God's appointment.

V. 3. Gather all the congregation—The elders which represented all, and as many of the people, as would and could get thither, that all might be witnesses both of Aaron's commission from God, and of his work and business.

V. 4. Moses did as the Lord commanded him—No words are so plain as the commands of God, he only is that king and governor that gives power to do all that he requires; God, and God alone is that master who is sure to reward with blessings all that obey him; what wisdom then exceeds this that is written of Moses—Moses did as the Lord commanded him?

Before Christ 1490.

and he girded him with a curious girdle of the ephod, and bound it unto him therewith.

8 And he put the breast-plate upon him: also he [h] put in the breast-plate the Urim and Thummim.

[h] Exod. 28. 30.

9 [i] And he put the mitre upon his head; also upon the mitre, even upon his forefront, did he put the golden plate, the holy crown; as the Lord [k] commanded Moses.

[i] Exod. 29. 6.

[k] Exod. 28. 37, &c.

10 [l] And Moses took the anointing oil, and anointed the tabernacle, and all that was therein, and sanctified them.

[l] Exod. 30. 26.

11 And he sprinkled thereof upon the altar seven times, and anointed the altar, and all his vessels, both the laver and his foot, to sanctify them.

12 And he [m] poured of the anointing oil upon Aaron's head, and anointed him to sanctify him.

[m] Chap. 21. 10, 12. Exod. 29. 7. and 30. 30. Psa. 133. 2.

13 [n] And Moses brought Aaron's sons, and put coats upon them, and girded them with girdles, and * put bonnets upon them; as the Lord commanded Moses.

[n] Exod. 29. 8.

* Heb. bound.

14 [o] And he brought the bullock for the sin-offering: and Aaron and his sons [p] laid their hands upon the head of the bullock for the sin-offering.

[o] Exod. 29. 10.

[p] Chap. 1. 4.

15 And he slew it, and Moses took the blood, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about with his finger, and [q] purified the altar; and poured the blood at the bottom of the altar, and sanctified it, to make reconciliation upon it.

[q] Exod. 29. 36.

16 And he took all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and Moses burned it upon the altar.

17 But the bullock and his hide, his flesh and his dung, he burnt with fire without the camp; as the Lord [r] commanded Moses.

[r] Chap. 4. 11. Exod. 29. 14.

18 ¶ [s] And he brought the ram for the burnt-offering: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram:

[s] Exod. 29. 15.

19 And he killed it, and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

20 And he cut the ram into pieces, and Moses burnt the head, and the pieces, and the fat.

21 And he washed the inwards and the legs in water; and Moses burnt the whole ram upon the altar: it was a burnt-sacrifice for a sweet savour, and an offering made by fire unto the Lord; [t] as the Lord commanded Moses.

Before Christ 1490.

[t] Exod. 29. 18.

22 ¶ And [u] he brought the other ram, the ram of consecration: and Aaron and his sons laid their hands upon the head of the ram.

[u] Exod. 29. 19, 31.

23 And he slew it, and Moses took of the blood of it, and put it upon the tip of Aaron's right ear, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

24 And he brought Aaron's sons, and Moses put of the blood upon the tip of their right ear, and upon the thumbs of their right hands, and upon the great toes of their right feet: and Moses sprinkled the blood upon the altar round about.

25 And he took the fat, and the rump, and all the fat that was upon the inwards, and the caul above the liver, and the two kidneys, and their fat, and the right shoulder.

26 [x] And out of the basket of unleavened bread, that was before the Lord, he took one unleavened cake, and a cake of oiled bread, and one wafer, and put them on the fat, and upon the right shoulder.

[x] Exod. 29. 23.

27 And he put all [y] upon Aaron's hands, and upon his sons hands, and waved them for a wave-offering before the Lord.

[y] Exod. 29. 24, &c.

28 And Moses took them from off their hands, and burnt them on the altar, upon the burnt-offering: they were consecrations for a sweet savour: [z] it is an offering made by fire unto the Lord.

[z] Exod. 29. 25.

29 And Moses took the breast, and waved it for a wave-offering before the Lord: for of the ram of consecration it was Moses' [a] part; as the Lord commanded Moses.

[a] Exod. 29. 26.

30 And [b] Moses took of the anointing oil, and of the blood which was upon the altar, and sprinkled it upon Aaron, and upon his garments, and upon his sons, and upon his sons garments with him; and sanctified

[b] Exod. 29. 21. and 30. 30.

V. 11. He sprinkled thereof upon the altar seven times—To signify the singular use and holiness of it, which it was not only to have in itself, but also to communicate to all the sacrifices laid upon it. And thus does the blood of atonement communicate itself to all that is done in the name of Jesus, with a view to him—by faith in his blood shed for our pardon and acceptance with God.

V. 12. He poured the oil upon Aaron's head—In a plentiful manner, as appears from (Psal. cxxxiii. 2.) whereas other persons and things were only sprinkled with it.

V. 14. He brought the bullock—There were indeed seven to be offered at his consecration, one every day, but here he mentions only one, and leaves the rest to be gathered from it.

V. 19. He killed it—Moses, or some other person by his appointment.

V. 29. It was Moses' part—Who at this time administering the Priests office was to receive the Priests wages.

V. 33. For

Before Christ 1490.

fied Aaron, and his garments, and his ſons, and his ſons garments with him.

31 ¶ And Moſes ſaid unto Aaron, and to his ſons, Boil the fleſh at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: and there c Exod.29.31. [c] eat it with the bread that is in the baſket of conſecrations, as I commanded, ſaying, Aaron and his ſons ſhall eat it.

32 And that which remaineth of the fleſh and of the bread, ſhall ye burn with fire.

33 And ye ſhall not go out of the door of the tabernacle of the congregation in ſeven days, until the days of your conſecration be d Exod. 29. 30, 35. Ezek. 43. 25. at an end: for [d] ſeven days ſhall he conſecrate you.

34 As he hath done this day, ſo the Lord hath commanded to do, to make an atonement for you.

35 Therefore ſhall ye abide at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation day and night, ſeven days, and keep the charge of the Lord, that ye die not: for ſo I am commanded.

36 So Aaron and his ſons did all things which the Lord commanded by the hand of Moſes.

CHAP. IX.

a Exek.43.27. AND [a] it came to paſs on the eigth day, that Moſes called Aaron and his ſons, and the elders of Iſrael;

b Chap. 4. 3. & 8. 14. Exod. 29. 1. c Chap. 8. 18. 2 And he ſaid unto Aaron, [b] Take thee a young calf for a ſin-offering, [c] and a ram for a burnt-offering, without blemiſh, and offer them before the Lord.

d Chap. 4.23. Ezra 6. 17. 3 And unto the children of Iſrael thou ſhalt ſpeak, ſaying, [d] Take ye a kid of the goats for a ſin-offering; and a calf, and a lamb, both of the firſt year, without blemiſh, for a burnt-offering;

Before Christ 1490.

4. Alſo a bullock and a ram for peace-offerings, to ſacrifice before the Lord; and a meat-offering mingled with oil; for [e] to day the Lord will appear unto you.
e Ver. 23. Exod. 29. 43.

5 And they brought that which Moſes commanded, before the tabernacle of the congregation: and all the congregation drew near and ſtood before the Lord.

6 And Moſes ſaid, This is the thing which the Lord commanded, that ye ſhould do: and the glory of the Lord ſhall appear unto you.

7 And Moſes ſaid unto Aaron, Go unto the altar, and [f] offer thy ſin-offering, and thy burnt-offering, and make an atonement for thyſelf and for the people: and offer the offering of the people, and make an atonement for them; as the Lord commanded.
f Heb. 5. 3. & 7. 27. & 9. 7.

8 ¶ Aaron therefore went unto the altar, and ſlew the calf of the ſin-offering, which was for himſelf.

9 [g] And the ſons of Aaron brought the blood unto him: and he dipt his finger in the blood, and [h] put it upon the horns of the altar, and poured out the blood at the bottom of the altar.
g Chap. 8. 15. h See chap. 4 7.

10 [i] But the fat and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver of the ſin-offering he burnt upon the altar; [k] as the Lord commanded Moſes.
i chap. 3. 16. k chap. 4. 8.

11 [l] And the fleſh and the hide he burnt with fire, without the camp.
l chap. 4. 11. & 8. 17.

12 And he ſlew the burnt-offering; and Aaron's ſons preſented unto him the blood, which

V. 33. For ſeven days—In which the ſame ceremonies were to be repeated. Shall he conſecrate you—God ſhall do it.

V. 35. The charge of the Lord—What God hath commanded you concerning your conſecration. That ye die not—Offences againſt God are not to be eſteemed or meaſured by the fancies of men, but by the authority, majeſty, and will of the great, and wiſe, and juſt Law-giver. So I am commanded—I require nothing of you to pleaſe myſelf; my greateſt honour is in being the meſſenger of God to men, my greateſt happineſs is in carefully regarding what I am commanded of God, and neither more nor leſs than this it is which I deliver to you.

CHAP. IX.

V. 1. The elders of Iſrael—To wit, from the firſt day of his conſecration, or when the ſeven days of his conſecration were ended, (chap. viii. 33, 35.) as appears from (Exod. xxix. 30. &c. Ezek. xliii. 27.) The eighth day is famous in Scripture for the perfecting and purifying both of men and beaſts, (See Levit. xii. 2, 3. and xiv. 8, 9, 10.) were called to be witneſſes of Aaron's inſtalment and of the firſt execution of his office.

V. 2. A ſin-offering—For himſelf and his own ſins, which was an evidence of the imperfection of that Prieſt-hood, and of the neceſſity of another and a better.

V. 3. A ſin-offering—For the people, for all their ſins.

V. 4. To day the Lord will appear unto you—And ſhould the living be this day called to die, or the judge of all the earth appear as his word deſcribes his laſt coming; is the only offering which he will accept of men as the ſatisfaction to his juſtice for the ſins of men offered unto Him. Reader, Do you hope to ſee God as your judge in peace on any other account than having God for your Redeemer? Do you offer up, regard and only look to the Lamb that was ſlain for the ſin of the world, as the ſole cauſe of God's not finding you in your ſins, and in your blood, whenever he ſhall call you to appear before him?

V. 5. All the congregation drew near and ſtood before the Lord—Before the tabernacle where God appeared.

V. 6. The glory of the Lord ſhall appear unto you—The glorious manifeſtation of God's powerful and gracious preſence. Not His wrath, when the commanded offerings are made.

V. 7. Moſes ſaid unto Aaron, Go unto the altar and offer—Moſes had hitherto ſacrificed, but now he reſigneth his work to Aaron, and actually gives him that commiſſion which from God he had received for him. Make an atonement for thyſelf, and for the people—Firſt for thyſelf, otherwiſe thou art unfit to do it for the people. How important it is, that God's Miniſters ſhould be in the grace and favour of God themſelves, that their miniſtrations may be acceptable to God and profitable to the people.

V. 12. The

Before Christ 1490.

m which he ſprinkled round about upon the altar.

m chap. 8. 16.
n chap. 8. 20.

13 n And they preſented the burnt-offering unto him, with the pieces thereof, and the head: and he burnt them upon the altar.

o chap. 8. 21.

14 o And he did waſh the inwards and the legs, and burnt them upon the burnt-offering on the altar.

15 ¶ And he brought the people's offering, and took the goat which was the ſin-offering, for the people, and ſlew it, and offered it for ſin, as the firſt.

16 And he brought the burnt-offering,

p chap. 1. 3. 10.
* Or, an ordinance.
q Chap. 2. 1, 2.
† heb. filled his hand out of it.
r Exod. 29. 38

and offered it p according to the * manner.

17 And he brought q the meat-offering, and † took an handful thereof, and burnt it upon the altar, r beſide the burnt-ſacrifice of the morning.

s chap. 3. 1.

18 He ſlew alſo the bullock and the ram, for s a ſacrifice of peace-offerings which was for the people: and Aaron's ſons preſented unto him the blood (which he ſprinkled upon the altar round about)

19 And the fat of the bullock, and of the ram, the rump, and that which covereth the inwards, and the kidneys, and the caul above the liver.

Before Christ 1490.

20 And they put the fat upon the breaſts, and he burnt the fat upon the altar:

21 And the breaſts and the right ſhoulder Aaron waved t for a wave-offering before the Lord; as Moſes commanded.

t Exod. 29. 24. 28. Chap. 7. 31, 32. 33, 34.

22 And Aaron lift up his hand towards the people, and u bleſſed them; and came down from offering of the ſin-offering, and the burnt-offering, and peace-offerings.

u Num. 6. 23. Deut. 21. 5.

23 And Moſes and Aaron went into the tabernacle of the congregation, and came out, and bleſſed the people: and the glory of the Lord appeared unto all the people.

24 And x there came a fire out from before the Lord, and conſumed upon the altar the burnt-offering, and the fat: which when all the people ſaw, they ſhouted, and fell on their faces.

x Gen. 4. 4. Judg. 6. 21. 1 Kings 18, 38. 2 Chron. 7. 1.

CHAP. X.

AND a Nadab and Abihu, the ſons of Aaron, b took either of them his cenſer, and put fire therein, and put incenſe thereon, a Num. 3, 3, 4, & 26. 61. 1 Chron. 24. 2.

b Chap. 16. 12.

V. 12. The blood he ſprinkled round about—Without ſhedding of blood there is no remiſſion of any man's ſin. The head, the hands and feet all require to be waſhed with it; and without it can none be ſaved. Other foundation for pardon, grace or glory, cannot be laid, than Jeſus Chriſt and him crucified.

V. 15. The people's offering—Which was to be offered for the people, as the former was for himſelf.

V. 16. The burnt-offering—Which alſo was offered for the people, as the laſt mentioned ſin-offering was.

V. 17. The meat-offering—Which was always to be added to the burnt-offering. Beſides the burnt-ſacrifice of the morning—Which was to be firſt offered every morning: for God will not have his ordinary and ſtated ſervice neglected in atonement of extraordinary duties. Inſtead of omitting private or family prayer, the days on which we have had the privilege of uniting in the duties of public worſhip, we are here ſhewn we are not to neglect our ſtated duty. To neglect the duty at the ſtated time, when that time is not neceſſarily required for other duties, but meerly becauſe we have that day or evening attended more public worſhip, is to ſay by our conduct, That we have that day done enough, without adding our ſtated worſhip to that which we have been already engaged in.

V. 22. Aaron liſt up his hand—By this poſture he ſignified both whence he expected the bleſſing, and his hearty deſire of it for them. And bleſſed them—This bleſſing was an act of his Prieſtly office no leſs than ſacrificing. Came down—Becauſe it was nearer the holy place and the holy of holies, which was the upper end.

V. 23. Moſes went into the tabernacle—With Aaron to direct him, and to ſee him perform thoſe parts of his office which were to be done in the holy place, about the lights, and the table of ſhew-bread, and of the altar of incenſe, upon which part of the blood of the ſacrifices now offered was to be ſprinkled according to the law. And bleſſed the people—Prayed to God for his bleſſing upon the people, and particularly for his gracious acceptation of theſe and all ſucceeding ſacrifices, and for his ſignification thereof by ſome extraordinary token, which accordingly happened. The glory of the Lord appeared unto all the people—A glorious and viſible diſcovery of God's gracious preſence and acceptance of the preſent ſervice.

V. 24. There came a fire—In token of God's acceptation and approbation of the Prieſt-hood now inſtituted, and the ſacrifices now offered, and conſequently of others of the like nature. And this fire now given was to be carefully kept, and not ſuffered to go out, and therefore was carried in a particular veſſel in their journeys in the wilderneſs. From before the Lord—From the face or preſence of the Lord, from the place where God was in a ſpecial manner preſent. Which when all the people ſaw, they ſhouted—As wondering at, rejoicing in, and bleſſing God, for this wonderful and gracious diſcovery of himſelf and of his favour to them.

CHAP. X.

V. 1. Nadab, and Abihu the ſons of Aaron, offered ſtrange fire—So called, as not appointed for, nor belonging to, the preſent work, fire not taken from the altar, but from ſome common fire. Before the Lord—Upon the altar of incenſe. Which he commanded them not—Not commanding may be here put for forbidding, as it is, (Jer. xxxii. 35.) Their ſin was doubtleſs in preſuming to approach God in this public act of his worſhip in a temper and manner contrary to his declared will; and the Divine ſeverity is recorded in mercy, to guard all againſt committing the ſame crime ſpiritually, who approach God in every act of public worſhip. That fire which is required to burn on every heart before God, is the ſpirit of his grace, which is to have every religious duty caſt upon it as a ſacrifice, and to be fed with the fuel of every duty to our fellow creatures, doing all as unto the Lord. To offer ſtrange fire before the Lord, muſt therefore be to approach God in a ſpirit and temper of mind oppoſed to the declared nature of his holy ſpirit, and this with ſelf-confidence, and performing the duty from an actual principle of pride, ſeeking the praiſe of men, or having ſome end in view, contrary to that heavenly charity—the love of God and of all men for his ſake. And though God does not deſpiſe the day of ſmall things, and thoſe that in their hearts truly intend to promote his glory, and the good of mankind in the Before Chrift 1490. thereon, and offered ſtrange fire before the Lord, which he commanded them not.

2 And there went out fire from the Lord and devoured them, and they died before the Lord.

3 Then Moſes ſaid unto Aaron, This is it that the Lord ſpake, ſaying, I will be ſanctified in them [c] that come nigh me, and before all the people I will be glorified. And Aaron held his peace.

[c] Exod. 19. 22. & 29. 43. Iſai. 52. 11.

4 And Moſes called Miſhael and Elzaphan, the ſons of [d] Uzziel the uncle of Aaron, and ſaid unto them, Come near, carry your brethren from before the ſanctuary out of the camp.

[d] Exod. 6. 18, 22. Numb. 3. 19.

5 So they went near, and carried them in their coats out of the camp; as Moſes had ſaid.

6 And Moſes ſaid unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar his ſons, [e] Uncover not your heads, neither rend your clothes; leſt you die, and leſt wrath come upon all the people: but let your brethren, the whole houſe of Iſrael, bewail the burning which the Lord hath kindled.

Before Chriſt 1490.

[e] Chap. 13. 45. & 21. 1, 10. Numb. 6. 6. Deut. 33. 9. Ezek. 24. 16.

7 And ye ſhall not go out from the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, leſt you die: [f] for the anointing oil of the Lord is upon you. And they did according to the word of Moſes.

[f] Exod. 28. 41.

8 ¶ And the Lord ſpake unto Aaron, ſaying,

9 [g] Do not drink wine nor ſtrong drink, thou, nor thy ſons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation; leſt ye die: It ſhall be a ſtatute for ever throughout your generations:

[g] Ezek. 44. 21. 1 Tim. 3. 3. Tit. 1. 7.

10 And

the name of His Son, God himſelf has declared their ſervices ſhall be accepted by him, though it may only be the giving a cup of cold water in his name; yet from this example of the wrath of God againſt theſe ſons of Aaron, makes it of the laſt moment to every one to know well from what motives he appears in the public ſervice of God. The fruit of the holy ſpirit, that true fire (Matt. iii. 11. Acts ii. 3, 17.) which is to burn on the altar of the heart —is love, joy, peace, long-ſuffering, gentleneſs, goodneſs, faith, meekneſs, temperance, (Gal. v. 22, &c.) And as men are bound to fear how they draw upon themſelves the Divine diſpleaſure, are they not bound to inquire if the real principle of their ſouls by which they are led publicly to appear in the ſervice of God, is of the very nature of this ſpirit of God; and this whether it is ſuch as are appointed by any eſtabliſhed authority, to take a public part in ſacred things, or ſuch as do the ſame thing under the ſanction that is given to every one that labours to advance the intereſts of religion among mankind; and in this important head of ſelf-examination, it is to be obſerved, that no external diſtinction, nor no number of human qualifications, can make a ſingle temper or habit acceptable in the ſight of God, which in its very nature is contrary to love, thankfulneſs, peace, long-ſuffering, gentleneſs, goodneſs, faith, meekneſs, temperance. To continue careleſsly or wilfully to appear in the public ſervice of religion, under the actual influence of motives, principles, or habits contrary and oppoſed to the ſpirit of God, muſt be to offer ſtrange fire before the Lord: if the very ſpring of action in the mind, is the deſire of the praiſe of men, the honour that is annexed to any religious ſtation or employment, if love of gain, or eaſe, or any other principle of the natural mind is at the bottom, that principle by which we are led to appear publicly in the ſervice of religion, much does it concern us to behold the ſeverity of God in this and other examples, which come under the ſame head. As light is ſown to the upright, the diſtinction between being tempted to what is wrong, and being guilty of what is ſo, will ſurely be ſhewn by that gracious Being, who, in his diſpleaſure againſt the ſelf-confident, will diſcover unto them that are fearful of offending him, that they may truſt to his kind acceptance of all they do in his ſervice in the name of Jeſus; as on the other hand, thoſe that may be conſcious that they would not appear in the public ſervice of of religion, if eaſe, honour, or advantage could be obtained by them in a greater degree in any other employment, are not to think themſelves in no danger from the Divine diſpleaſure, by having their hearts far from him, or againſt his nature or his will, becauſe his long-ſuffering and patience has made him wait for their accepting of his offered grace to ſerve him with reverence and godly fear. (Heb. xii. 28.)

V. 2. There went out fire from the Lord—From heaven, or rather from the ſanctuary. Devoured them—Deſtroyed their lives.

V. 3. Moſes ſaid, this is it that the Lord ſpake—Though the expreſs words be not recorded. I will be ſanctified—This may note their duty to ſanctify God, to demean themſelves with ſuch care and reverence and watchfulneſs as becomes the holineſs of the God whom they ſerve, and of the worſhip in which they are engaged. In them that come nigh me—Who draw near to me. It is a deſcription of the Prieſts office, and of thoſe that approach him in public worſhip. Before all the people I will be glorified—As they have ſinned publicly I will vindicate my honour in a public and exemplary manner, that all men may learn to give me the glory of my ſovereignty and holineſs, by a conformity to my laws. Aaron held his peace—In acknowledgment of God's juſtice and ſubmiſſion to it. He murmured not, nor replied againſt God, nor againſt Moſes, wiſely conſidering that their ſin was directly againſt God, and in that which is moſt dear and honourable in God's account, his worſhip; and that God's honour ought to be dearer to him than his ſons.

V. 5. In their coats—In the holy garments, becauſe being polluted both by their ſin and by the touch of their dead bodies, God would not have them any more uſed in his ſervice.

V. 6. Uncover not your heads, neither rend your clothes—Give no ſignification of your ſorrow, mourn not for them, leſt you ſhould ſeem to juſtify and approve of your brethren, and tacitly reflect upon God as too ſevere in his proceedings with them. Let the whole houſe of Iſrael bewail the burning whish the Lord hath kindled—Not in compaſſion to them againſt whom I have ſhewed ſuch indignation, but in ſorrow for the tokens of Divine diſpleaſure.

V. 7. Ye ſhall not go out from the door of the tabernacle—Ye are perſons conſecrated peculiarly to God's ſervice, which ye ſhould prefer before all other ſolemnities, and duties.

V. 9. Do not drink wine nor ſtrong drink—This here added, either becauſe Nadab and Abihu had been led to their error by drinking too much, or leſt others might thereby be drawn to commit the ſame miſcarriages. Drunkenneſs is ſo odious a ſin in itſelf, eſpecially in a miniſter, that God ſaw fit to prevent all occaſions of it.

V. 10. That ye may put difference between holy and unholy—Perſons and things, which Nadab and Abihu did not, miſtaking unholy or common fire for that which was ſacred and appointed by God for their uſe.

Before Christ 1490.

10 And that ye may [h] put difference between holy and unholy, and between unclean and clean:

h Jer. 15. 19. Ezek. 22. 26. & 44. 23.

11 And that ye may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which the Lord hath spoken unto them by the hand of Moses.

12 ¶ And Moses spake unto Aaron, and unto Eleazar and unto Ithamar his sons that were left, Take [i] the meat-offering that remaineth of the offerings of the Lord made by fire, and eat it without leaven beside the altar: for [k] it is most holy.

i Exod. 29. 2. Chap. 8. 2.

k Chap. 21. 22.

13 And ye shall eat it in the holy place, because it is thy due and thy sons due of the sacrifices of the Lord made by fire: for [l] so I am commanded.

l Chap. 2. 3. & 6. 16.

14 And [m] the wave-breast and heave-shoulder shall ye eat in a clean place; thou, and thy sons, and thy daughters with thee; for they be thy due, and thy sons due, which are given out of the sacrifices of peace-offerings of the children of Israel.

m Exod. 29. 24. Chap. 7. 31, 34.

15 [n] The heave-shoulder, and the wave-breast shall they bring, with the offerings made by fire of the fat, to wave it for a wave-offering before the Lord, and it shall be thine, and thy sons with thee, by a statute for ever; as the Lord hath commanded.

n Chap. 7. 29, 30.

Before Christ 1490.

16 ¶ And Moses diligently sought [o] the goat of the sin-offering, and behold, it was burnt: and he was angry with Eleazar and Ithamar, the sons of Aaron, which were left alive, saying,

o Chap. 9. 3.

17 [p] Wherefore have ye not eaten the sin-offering, in the holy place, seeing it is most holy, and God hath given it to you to bear the iniquity of the congregation, to make atonement for them before the Lord?

p Chap. 6. 26, 29.

18 Behold, the blood of it was not brought in, within the holy place: ye should indeed have eaten it in the holy place, [q] as I commanded.

q Chap. 6. 26.

19 And Aaron said unto Moses, Behold, [r] this day have they offered their sin-offering, and their burnt-offering before the Lord; and such things have befallen me: and if I had eaten the sin-offering to day, should it have been accepted in the sight of the Lord?

r Chap. 9. 8, 12.

20 And when Moses heard that, he was content.

CHAP.

V. 11. That ye may teach the children of Israel—Aright, drunken persons being unfit to give instruction to others.

V. 12. Take the meat-offering that remaineth, and eat it—Moses repeateth the former command, to encourage them to go on in their holy services, and not to be dejected for the late severity, as if God would no more accept them or their sacrifices.

V. 14. In a clean place—In any place where the women, as well as the men, might come, for the daughters of the Priests might eat these as well as their sons.

V. 17. God hath given it you, to bear the iniquity of the congregation—As a reward of your service and function whereby you do expiate, bear and take away their sins, by offering those sacrifices and performing those rites, by which God through Christ is reconciled to the penitent and believing offerers.

V. 19. This day have they offered—They have done the substance of the thing, though they have mistaken this one circumstance. Such things have befallen me—Whereby having been oppressed with grief and almost bereft of my reason, it is not strange nor unpardonable if I have mistaken. Should it have been accepted in the sight of the Lord—Because it was not to be eaten with sorrow, but with rejoicing and thanksgiving, and I thought it fitter to burn it, as I did, than to profane it by eating it unworthily.

V. 20. When Moses heard that, he was content—He rested satisfied with his answer. It has pleased God to give us (Heb. ix. and x.) the following full explanation of what we have now seen established under the Levitical priesthood; and to consider the types and figures with a view to what truly was and is intended by them, is the means of obtaining the benefit designed us by this part of the word of God. The first covenant had ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary. For there was a tabernacle made, the first wherein was the candlestick and the table, and the shew-bread; which is called the sanctuary. And after, the second vail the tabernacle, which is called the holiest of all: Which had the golden censer and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant; and over it the cherubims of glory shadowing the mercy-seat: of which we cannot now speak particularly. Now when these were thus ordained, the priests went always into the first tabernacle accomplishing the service of God: But into the second went the high-priest alone once every year, not without blood, which he offered for himself, and for the errors of the people. The Holy Ghost this signifying, that the way into the holiest of all, was not yet made manifest, while as the first tabernacle was yet standing: Which was a figure for the time then present, in which were offered both gifts and sacrifices, that could not make him that did the service perfect, as pertaining to the conscience. Which stood only in meats and drinks, and divers washings, and carnal ordinances, imposed on them until the time of reformation. But Christ being come an high-priest of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle not made with hands, that is to say, not of this building; neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he entered once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us: for if the blood of bulls, and of goats, and ashes of an heifer sprinkling the unclean, sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh: How much more shall the blood of Christ, who, through the eternal Spirit, offered himself without spot to God, purge your conscience from dead works to serve the living God? And for this cause he is the mediator of the New Testament, that by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first Testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance. For, where a testament is, there must also of necessity be the death of the testator. For a testament is of force after men are dead; otherwise it is of no strength at all whilst the testator liveth. Whereupon neither the first testament was dedicated without blood. For when Moses had spoken every precept to all the people, according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats with water and scarlet wool, and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book and all the people, saying, This is the

Before Christ 1490.

CHAP. XI.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, and to Aaron, ſaying unto them,

2 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, ſaying, [a] Theſe are the beaſts which ye ſhall eat among all the beaſts that are on the earth.

Before Christ 1490.

3 Whatſoever parteth the hoof and is cloven-

[a] Deut. 14. 4. Acts 10. 12, 14.

the blood of the teſtament which God hath enjoined unto you. Moreover, he ſprinkled likewiſe with blood both the tabernacle, and all the veſſels of the miniſtry. And almoſt all things are by the law purged with blood; and without ſhedding of blood is no remiſſion. It was therefore neceſſary that the patterns of things in the heavens ſhould be purified with theſe; but the heavenly things themſelves with better ſacrifices than theſe. For Chriſt is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itſelf, now to appear in the preſence of God for us: Nor yet that he ſhould offer himſelf often, as the high-prieſt entereth into the holy place, every year with blood of others: For then muſt he often have ſuffered ſince the foundation of the world, but now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away ſin by the ſacrifice of himſelf. And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment: So Chriſt was once offered to bear the ſins of many; and unto them that look for him ſhall he appear the ſecond time, without ſin, unto ſalvation. For the law having a ſhadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with thoſe ſacrifices which they offered year by year continually make the corners thereunto perfect. For then would they not have ceaſed to be offered, becauſe that the worſhippers once purged, ſhould have had no more conſcience of ſins. But in thoſe ſacrifices there is a remembrance again made of ſins every year. For it is not poſſible that the blood of bulls and of goats ſhould take away ſins. Wherefore when he cometh into the world, he ſaith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldeſt not, but a body haſt thou prepared me. In burnt-offerings, and ſacrifices for ſin, thou haſt had no pleaſure: Then, ſaid I, Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me) to do thy will, O God. Above, when he ſaid, Sacrifice and offering, and burnt-offerings, and offering for ſin thou wouldeſt not, neither hadſt pleaſure therein (which are offered by the law). Then, ſaid he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the firſt, that he may eſtabliſh the ſecond. By the which will we are ſanctified, through the offering of the body of JESUS CHRIST once for all. And every prieſt ſtandeth daily miniſtering and offering oftentimes the ſacrifices, which can never take away ſins: But this man, after he had offered one ſacrifice for ſins, for ever ſat down on the right hand of God; from henceforth expecting till his enemies be made his footſtool. For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are ſanctified. Whereof the Holy Ghoſt alſo is a witneſs to us: for after that he had ſaid before, This is the covenant that I will make with them after thoſe days, ſaith the Lord: I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them: and their ſins and iniquities will I remember no more. Now, where remiſſion of theſe is, there is no more offering for ſin. Having, therefore, brethren boldneſs to enter into the holieſt by the blood of Jeſus, by a new and living way which he hath conſecrated for us, through the vail, that is to ſay, his fleſh; and having an high-prieſt over the houſe of God: Let us draw near with a true heart, in full aſſurance of faith, having our hearts ſprinkled from an evil conſcience, and our bodies waſhed as with pure water by the ſpirit of our God. (1 Cor. vi. 11.) The natural inacquaintance of the human mind, with the things of the ſpirit of God, lays us under an entire neceſſity of regarding what God in condeſcenſion to our capacities, has favoured us with in thoſe types and figures; that by ſeeing a lamb ſlain, blood ſprinkled, and men ſtanding between God and men in the office of prieſts and miniſters, we may be led up by the means of things which we can comprehend to the right underſtanding of the great myſtery and plain truth of the ſalvation of fallen guilty ſouls, through the God-man, CHRIST JESUS the Lord, the Lamb that was ſlain from the foundation of the world, the ſole cauſe of every ſoul's ſalvation; whoſe ſacrifice alone had in it worth and merit enough to ſatisfy the juſtice of God for the ſins of the world, all man kind, without which ſacrifice, and only for the ſake of it, can any ſin be pardoned; and by the application of this ſacrifice—this blood of Jeſus ſhed for the ſins of men, can the ſoul be pardoned the guilt of ſin, and reſtored to peace with God, and by the ſpiritual application of the ſame blood can the ſoul be cleanſed or ſanctified, and reſtored to the nature and image of God; and though it is true that we have nothing to do with the actual performance of theſe ceremonies of the ancient church of God, it is our duty to inquire what is the deſign of God in giving of us in the final revelation of his will, ſuch an application as we have in the Epiſtle to the Hebrews, of thoſe ſacred inſtitutions? If we can only anſwer, that all theſe types and figures were to lead to the knowledge of the way of ſalvation, to the recovery of mankind from their fallen ſtate, and to lead the minds of men by means of a viſible repreſentation given by command from God, up to the knowledge of his love in taking our nature upon him, and dying to redeem us, then we are of courſe as much concerned in becoming acquainted with the meaning of theſe repreſentations as the Jews were; their preſent and eternal advantage were in being led by a right underſtanding of them, to the knowledge of the love of God to men in a Saviour to come, and our preſent and eternal happineſs depend on obtaining that which God intends in the ſelf ſame way; there being no other way of receiving pardon or grace, but through, and for the ſake of Jeſus Chriſt. To lightly eſteem, and in conſequence of doing ſo to neglect the conſideration of this part of God's word for ourſelves, is therefore to neglect our own mercies. But with the viſible or written word, the living word, the ſpirit of His grace, muſt ever be taken, to give the mind of the careful, diligent reader of God's word, the bleſſed application of any or every part of it; all that is ſaid as well as all that is repreſented being to lead the ſoul to God Himſelf as Parent and Redeemer—as Prophet, Prieſt and King, and to live on earth the life of a child of God and an heir of eternal glory, by enjoying heartfelt communion and fellowſhip with the Father and the Son by the Spirit. O ye glorious THREE what praiſe and gratitude is your due for ſuch deſigns of mercy and favour to men, as this word publiſhes and offers to every returning ſinner!

CHAP. XI.

V. 1. From the laws concerning the Prieſts he now comes to thoſe which belong to all the people. The Lord ſpake unto Moſes, and to Aaron—To both of them, becauſe the congnizance of the following matters belonged to both, the Prieſt was to direct the people about the things forbidden or allowed, where any doubt or difficulty aroſe, and the Magiſtrate was to ſee the direction here given followed.

V. 2. Theſe are the beaſts which ye ſhall eat—Though every creature of God be good and pure in itſelf, (Mat. xv. 11. Rom. xiv. 14.) yet it pleaſed God to make a difference, and to reſtrain the uſe of them, which God did to aſſert his own ſovereignty over man and over all the creatures, which men may not uſe but with God's leave, and to inure that people to obedience, to keep up the wall of partition between the Jews and other nations, which was very neceſſary for many great and wiſe purpoſes, that by bridling their appetite in things in themſelves lawful, and ſome of them very deſireable for food, they might be better prepared and enabled to deny themſelves in things ſinful, for the preſervation of their health, ſome of the creatures forbidden being, though uſed by the neighbouring nations, of unwholeſome nouriſhment,

and

Before Christ 1490. ven-footed, and cheweth the cud among the beasts, that shall ye eat.

4 Nevertheless, these shall ye not eat, of them that chew the cud, or of them that divide the hoof: as the camel, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof; he is unclean unto you.

5 And the cony, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof: he is unclean unto you.

6 And the hare, because he cheweth the cud, but divideth not the hoof: he is unclean unto you.

7 And the swine, though he divide the hoof, and be cloven-footed; yet he cheweth not the cud: [c] he is unclean to you.

[c] Isai. 65. 4. & 66. 3. 17.

8 Of their flesh shall ye not eat, and their carcase shall ye not touch: [d] they are unclean to you.

[d] See Acts 10. 14, 15. & 15, 29. Rom. 14. 14, 17. 1 Cor. 8. 8. Col. 2. 21.

9 ¶ These shall ye eat, of all that are in the waters: whatsoever hath fins and scales in the waters, in the seas, and in the rivers; them shall ye eat.

10 And all that have not fins nor scales in the seas, and in the rivers, of all that move in the waters, and of any living thing, which is in the waters; they shall be an abomination unto you.

11 They shall be even an abomination unto you: ye shall not eat of their flesh, but you shall have their carcases in abomination.

12 Whatsoever hath no fins nor scales in the waters, that shall be an abomination unto you.

13 ¶ And these are they which ye shall have in abomination among the fowls, they shall not be eaten, they are an abomination: the eagle, and the ossifrage, and the ospray,

14 And the vulture, and the kite, after his kind:

15 Every raven after his kind:

16 And the owl, and the night-hawk, and the cuckow, and the hawk after his kind, Before Christ 1490.

17 And the little owl, and the cormorant, and the great owl,

18 And the swan, and the pelican, and the gier-eagle, 19 And the stork, the heron after her kind, and the lapwing, and the bat.

20 All fowls that creep, going upon all four, shall be an abomination unto you.

21 Yet these may ye eat of every flying creeping thing that goeth upon all four, which have legs above their feet, to leap withal upon the earth:

22 Even these of them ye may eat: [e] the locust after his kind, and the bald-locust after his kind, and the beetle after his kind, and the grashopper after his kind. [e] Matth. 3. 4. Mark 1. 6.

23 But all other flying creeping things, which have four feet, shall be an abomination unto you.

24 And for these ye shall be unclean: whosoever toucheth the carcase of them, shall be unclean until the even.

25 And whosoever beareth ought of the carcase of them, [f] shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even. [f] Chap. 14. 8, 27. & 28 40. Numb. 19. 10, 22. & 31. 24.

26 The carcases of every beast which divideth the hoof, and is not cloven-footed, nor cheweth the cud, are unclean unto you: every one that toucheth them shall be unclean.

27 And whatsoever goeth upon his paws, among all manner of beasts, that go on all four, those are unclean unto you: whoso toucheth their carcase, shall be unclean until the even.

28 And he that beareth the carcase of them, shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: they are unclean unto you.

29 ¶ These and for moral signification, to teach them to abhor that filthiness and all those ill qualities for which some of these creatures are noted.

V. 7. The swine—Which the Jews would not so much as name, lest the naming of it should tempt them to eat this meat, which was so commonly used, and so much esteemed by others.

V. 8. Their carcase shall ye not touch—In order to eating the fat and the skins of some of the forbidden creatures were useful, and were used.

V. 11. They shall be even an abomination unto you—For food. This clause is added, to shew that they were neither abominable in their own nature, nor for the food of other nations, and consequently, when the partition wall between Jews and Gentiles was taken away, these distinctions of meats were to cease. (Act. x.)

V. 13. The fowls—In general, this may be observed, that the fowls forbidden in diet, are all either ravenous and cruel, or such as delight in the night and darkness, or such as feed upon impure things, and so the signification and reason of these prohibitions is manifest, to teach men to abominate all cruelty or oppression, and all works of darkness and filthiness. Ossifrage, and the Ospray—Which are two peculiar kinds of eagles, distinct from that which being the chief of its kind, is called by the name of the whole kind, as it usually happens.

V. 22. The locust—Locusts, though unusual in our food, were commonly eaten by the Æthiopians, Lybians, Parthians, and other eastern people bordering upon the Jews.

V. 24. Shall be unclean—And such were excluded both from the courts of God's house, and from free conversation with other men. Until the even—Which possibly might signify; that even the smallest defilements could not be cleansed, but by the death of Christ, who was to come and offer up himself in the evening, or end, or declining age of the world, as the Prophets signify, and the Apostle expresseth, (Heb. ix. 26.)

V. 34. That

Before Christ 1490.

29 ¶ These also shall be unclean unto you among the creeping things that creep upon g Isai. 66. 17. the earth: the weasel, and g the mouse, and the tortoise after his kind,

30 And the ferret, and the chameleon, and the lizard, and the snail, and the mole.

31 These are unclean to you among all that creep: whosoever doth touch them when they be dead, shall be unclean until the even.

32 And upon whatsoever any of them, when they are dead, doth fall, it shall be unclean; whether it be any vessel of wood, or raiment, or skin, or sack, whatsoever vessel it be, wherein any work is done, it must be put into water, and it shall be unclean until the even; so it shall be cleansed.

33 And every earthen vessel, whereinto any of them falleth, whatsoever is in it shall h Chap. 6. 28. & 15. 12. be unclean; and h ye shall break it.

34 Of all meat which may be eaten, that on which such water cometh, shall be unclean: and all drink that may be drunk in every such vessel, shall be unclean.

35 And every thing, whereupon any part of their carcase falleth, shall be unclean; whether it be oven, or ranges for pots, they shall be broken down: for they are unclean, and shall be unclean unto you.

* Heb. a gathering together of waters. 36 Nevertheless, a fountain or pit, * wherein there is plenty of water, shall be clean: but that which toucheth their carcase, shall be unclean.

37 And if any part of their carcase fall upon any sowing-seed which is to be sown; it shall be clean.

38 But if any water be put upon the seed, and any part of their carcase fall thereon; it shall be unclean unto you.

39 And if any beast of which ye may eat, die; he that toucheth the carcase thereof, i Chap. 17. 15, & 22. 8. Deut. 14. 21. Ezek. 4. 14. & 44. 31. shall be unclean until the even.

40 And i he that eateth of the carcase of it, shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even: he also that beareth the carcase of it, shall wash his clothes, and be unclean until the even. Before Christ 1490.

41 And every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth, shall be an abomination: it shall not be eaten.

42 Whatsoever goeth upon the belly, and whatsoever goeth upon all four, or whatsoever † hath more feet, among all creeping things that creep upon the earth; them ye shall not eat, for they are an abomination. † Heb. doth multiply feet.

43 k Ye shall not make your ‡selves abominable with any creeping thing that creepeth, neither shall ye make yourselves unclean with them, that ye should be defiled thereby. k Chap. 20. 25. ‡ Heb. souls.

44 For I am the Lord your God: ye shall therefore sanctify yourselves, and l ye shall be holy; for I am holy: neither shall ye defile yourselves with any manner of creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. l Chap. 19. 2. and 20. 7. 1 Thess. 4. 7. 1 Pet. 1. 15, 16.

45 For I am the Lord that bringeth you up out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: ye shall therefore be holy, for I am holy.

46 This is the law of the beasts, and of the fowl, and of every living creature that moveth in the waters, and of every creature that creepeth upon the earth:

47 To make a difference between the unclean and the clean, and between the beast that may be eaten, and the beast that may not be eaten.

CHAP. XII.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If a m woman have conceived seed, and m Chap. 15. 19.
borne a man-child: then n she shall be unclean seven days; o according to the days of o Chap. 15. 19.
the separation for her infirmity shall she be unclean. n Luke 2. 22.

3 And in the p eight day, the flesh of his fore skin shall be circumcised. p Gen. 17. 12. Luke 1. 59. and 2. 21. John 7. 22.

4 And

V. 34. That on which such water cometh, shall be unclean—As water thus conveyed legal uncleanness, so does speaking or writing, or any other way of representing that which is impure, unholy, or evil in itself, convey their own likeness to the minds of those that hear, read, or see that which is so represented. They are the enemies of the immortal interests of the human race, who, by words, books, pictures, or any other representation, convey that which is contrary to purity to the minds of others.

V. 36. Nevertheless, a fountain wherein there is plenty of water, shall be clean—Water being scarce in those countries, God would have the ceremonial law of sacrifices to be offered to God, give place to the moral law of mercy towards men.

V. 37. If their carcase fall upon sowing seed, it shall be clean—Because such seed would not be used for man's food, till it had received many alterations in the earth, whereby such pollution was taken away.

V. 44. Ye shall be holy—By which he gives them to understand, that all these cautions and prohibitions about the eating or touching of these creatures, was not for any real uncleanness in them, all being God's creatures, but only that by the diligent observation of these rules, they might learn with greater care to avoid all moral pollutions, and to keep themselves from all filthiness of flesh and spirit, and particularly from all familiar and intimate converse with all careless or wilful sinners.

CHAP. XII.

V. 2. From uncleanness contracted by the touching or eating of external things, he now comes to that uncleanness which ariseth from ourselves. And by these we are informed of the natural evil there is in our spirits, and in the world about us—Evil without and from within, that we may be the more fully convinced of the necessity we are under of that atoning blood which was shed for sin and for uncleanness.

Before Christ 1490.

4 And she shall then continue in the blood of her purifying three and thirty days: she shall touch no hallowed thing, nor come into the sanctuary, until the days of her purifying be fulfilled.

5 But if she bear a maid-child, then she shall be unclean two weeks, as in her separation: and she shall continue in the blood of her purifying threescore and six days.

6 And when the days of her purifying are fulfilled, for a son, or for a daughter; she shall bring a lamb * of the first year for a burnt-offering, and a young pigeon, or a turtle-dove for a sin-offering, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, unto the priest:

* Heb. a son of his year.

7 Who shall offer it before the Lord, and make an atonement for her, and she shall be cleansed from the issue of her blood. This is the law for her that hath borne a male or a female.

c Chap. 5. 7. Luke 2. 24. † Heb. her hand find not sufficiency of.

8 * And if † she be not able to bring a lamb, then she shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons; the one for the burnt-offering, and the other for a sin-offering: and the priest shall make an atonement for her, and she shall be clean.

CHAP. XIII.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron, saying,

2 When a man shall have in the skin of his flesh, a * rising, a scab, or bright spot, and it be in the skin of his flesh like the plague of leprosy; a then he shall be brought unto Aaron the priest, or unto one of his sons the priests.

* Or, swelling.

a Deut. 17. 8. and 24. 8.

3 And the priest shall look on the plague in the skin of the flesh: and when the hair in the plague is turned white, and the plague in sight be deeper than the skin of his flesh; it is a plague of leprosy: and the priest shall look on him, and pronounce him unclean.

4 If the bright spot be white in the skin of his flesh, and in sight be not deeper than the skin, and the hair thereof be not turned white; then the priest shall shut up him that hath the plague, seven days.

Before Christ 1490.

5 And the priest shall look on him the seventh day: and behold, if the plague in his sight be at a stay, and the plague spread not in the skin; then the priest shall shut him up seven days more.

6 And the priest shall look on him again the seventh day: and behold, if the plague be somewhat dark, and the plague spread not in the skin; the priest shall pronounce him clean: it is but a scab: and he shall wash his clothes, and be clean.

7 But if the scab spread much abroad in the skin, after that he hath been seen of the priest for his cleansing; he shall be seen of the priest again.

8 And if the priest see, that behold, the scab spreadeth in the skin; then the priest shall pronounce him unclean; it is a leprosy.

9 ¶ When the plague of leprosy is in a man, then he shall be brought unto the priest:

10 And the priest shall see him: and behold, if the rising be white in the skin, and it have turned the hair white, and there be † quick raw flesh in the rising;

† Heb. the quickening of living flesh.

11 It is an old leprosy in the skin of his flesh, and the priest shall pronounce him unclean, and shall not shut him up: for he is unclean.

12 And if a leprosy break out abroad in the skin, and the leprosy cover all the skin of him that hath the plague, from his head even to his foot, whereseever the priest looketh;

13 Then the priest shall consider: and behold, if the leprosy have covered all his flesh, he shall pronounce him clean that hath the plague:

V. 7. This is the law for her that hath borne a male or a female—For though there was a difference in the time for the one and for the other, yet both were to be purified one and the same way, to note that though all sins and sinners were not equal, yet all were to be cleansed by the same means, by Christ and by faith. (Gal. iii. 28.)

CHAP. XIII.

V. 2. The plague of leprosy—A distemper most frequent in Egypt and Syria, known also among the Greeks, who note that it was not so properly a disease, as a distemper in the skin, whence Christ is not said to heal, but to cleanse the lepers that came to him. And this distemper is here provided against, not because it was worse than others, but because it was externally and visibly filthy, and because of its infectious nature, that we might be instructed to avoid converse with such vicious persons who were likely to infect us. He shall be brought unto Aaron the priest—Not to the physician, but the priest. The distemper itself being the representation of living openly in sin, the ministers of religion were made the judges of the reality of this infectious plague.

V. 3. The priest shall pronounce him unclean—Make him unclean, ministerially and declaratively, in which sense ministers are said to remit sins, (Mat. xvi. 19.) and to destroy nations, (Jer. i. 10.)

V. 4. The priest shall shut up him that hath the plague seven days—For greater assurance; to teach all men, but particularly ministers, not to be hasty in their judgments, but diligently to search and examine all things before-hand. Not condemning the accused till he have leave and opportunity to answer for himself; and neither speaking or acting from suspicion.

V. 6. He shall wash, and be clean—Though it was no leprosy, to teach us, that no sin was so small which did not need to be washed by the blood of Christ, which was the thing designed by all these washings.

V. 22. If

Before Christ 1490.

plague: it is all turned white: he is clean.

14 But when raw fleſh appeareth in him, he ſhall be unclean.

15 And the prieſt ſhall ſee the raw fleſh, and pronounce him to be unclean: for the raw fleſh is unclean: it is a leproſy.

16 Or if the raw fleſh turn again, and be changed unto white; he ſhall come unto the prieſt:

17 And the prieſt ſhall ſee him: and behold, if the plague be turned into white; then the prieſt ſhall pronounce him clean that hath the plague: he is clean.

18 ¶ The fleſh alſo, in which, even in the ſkin thereof, was a boil, and is healed,

19 And in the place of the boil there be a white riſing, or a bright ſpot white, and ſomewhat reddiſh, and it be ſhewed to the prieſt;

20 And if when the prieſt ſeeth it, behold, it be in ſight lower than the ſkin, and the hair thereof be turned white; the prieſt ſhall pronounce him unclean: it is a plague of leproſy broken out of the boil.

21 But if the prieſt look on it, and behold, there be no white hairs therein, and if it be not lower than the ſkin, but be ſomewhat dark; then the prieſt ſhall ſhut him up ſeven days.

22 And if it ſpread much abroad in the ſkin, then the prieſt ſhall pronounce him unclean; it is a plague.

23 But if the bright ſpot ſtay in his place, and ſpread not, it is a burning boil; and the prieſt ſhall pronounce him clean.

24 ¶ Or if there be any fleſh, in the ſkin whereof there is ‡ a hot burning, and the quick fleſh that burneth have a white bright ſpot, ſomewhat reddiſh, or white;

‡ Heb. a burning of fire.

25 Then the prieſt ſhall look upon it: and behold, if the hair in the bright ſpot be turned white, and it be in ſight deeper than the ſkin; it is a leproſy broken out of the burning: wherefore the prieſt ſhall pronounce him unclean: it is the plague of leproſy.

Before Christ 1490.

26 But if the prieſt look on it, and behold, there be no white hair on the bright ſpot, and it be no lower than the other skin, but be ſomewhat dark; then the prieſt ſhall ſhut him up ſeven days.

27 And the prieſt ſhall look upon him the ſeventh day: and if it be ſpread much abroad in the skin, then the prieſt ſhall pronounce him unclean: it is the plague of leproſy.

28 And if the bright ſpot ſtay in his place, and ſpread not in the skin, but it be ſomewhat dark; it is a riſing of the burning, and the prieſt ſhall pronounce him clean: for it is an inflammation of the burning.

29 ¶ If a man or woman hath a plague upon the head or the beard;

30 Then the prieſt ſhall ſee the plague: and behold, if it be in ſight deeper than the skin, and there be in it a yellow thin hair; then the prieſt ſhall pronounce him unclean: it is a dry ſcall, even a leproſy upon the head or beard.

31 And if the prieſt look on the plague of the ſcall, and behold, it be not in ſight deeper than the skin, and that there is no black hair in it; then the prieſt ſhall ſhut up him that hath the plague of the ſcall, ſeven days.

32 And in the ſeventh day the prieſt ſhall look on the plague: and behold, if the ſcall ſpread not, and there be in it no yellow hair, and

V. 22. If it ſpread, then the prieſt ſhall pronounce him unclean— In reading and meditating on this (perhaps it may be ſaid with truth much neglected) part of the Scripture, it is neceſſary to remember that ſin of every kind, the evil of it, and its infectious nature, is that which it is intended we ſhould be informed of by all that is ſaid of theſe diſorders; and the means here required to be uſed to prevent the ſpreading of that which is ſo dangerous to others, is to be applied as cautions to prevent the ſpreading of any moral evil among men; and to ſhew us that to allow any known ſin to paſs unreſtrained in the ſociety of men, is of much more danger to the general good, than to allow thoſe that we know to be infected with the plague, to go about and ſpread it among men. An infectious diſorder may only deſtroy the body, but the infection of ſin, if communicated and not cured, will deſtroy the happineſs of the ſoul for ever. And as all men are bound to prevent the communication of a deadly diſeaſe to themſelves, their families, the inhabitants of the ſame town, city, country or the whole family of the earth, ſo are all men, but particularly thoſe that Providence has placed in any ſtation of religious or civil authority, bound to avoid themſelves, and by all means in their power, to prevent all moral evil whatever, God has forbid Every bad temper, every impure, covetous or ambitious deſire; whatever is unjuſt, deceitful or wicked, when it ſhews itſelf by its fruits, is to be guarded againſt as an infectious diſeaſe, the danger of which is endleſs in its nature. To chooſe the ſociety of thoſe whoſe deſigns, deſires, tempers, and in conſequence, their words and actions, are oppoſed to the nature and will of God, is to expoſe ourſelves to a danger much greater than any bodily diſeaſe, that it admits of no compariſon. Duty may call us to be with thoſe that are ſuffering under an infectious diſeaſe, and duty may call us to be with thoſe that are ſlaves to ſin; but if we are living in any known ſin, or under the influence of any principle that is oppoſed to the nature and will of God, they who deſire the ſociety of the wicked, whatever inducement they may have, deſire that which has a far more dangerous influence than an unneceſſary intercourſe with men in raging fevers, or infected with the leproſy, the plague, or any deadly diſeaſe. Make no friendſhip with an angry man; and with a furious man thou ſhalt not go; leſt thou learn his ways, and get a ſnare to thy ſoul. (Prov. xxii. 24, 25.) And ſo with men, who are wilfully or careleſsly living under the dominion of any other bad temper, paſſion, deſire, or habit.

V. 37. The

Before Christ 1490.

and the ſcall be not in ſight deeper than the ſkin;

33 He ſhall be ſhaven, but the ſcall ſhall he not ſhave: and the prieſt ſhall ſhut up him that hath the ſcall, ſeven days more.

34 And in the ſeventh day the prieſt ſhall look on the ſcall: and behold, if the ſcall be not ſpread in the ſkin, nor be in ſight deeper than the skin; then the prieſt ſhall pronounce him clean: and he ſhall waſh his clothes, and be clean.

35 But if the ſcall ſpread much in the ſkin after his cleanſing;

36 Then the prieſt ſhall look on him: and behold, if the ſcall be ſpread in the skin, the prieſt ſhall not ſeek for yellow hair; he is unclean.

37 But if the ſcall be in his ſight at a ſtay, and that there is black hair grown up therein; the ſcall is healed, he is clean: and the prieſt ſhall pronounce him clean.

38 ¶ If a man alſo, or a woman have in the skin of their fleſh bright ſpots, even white bright ſpots;

39 Then the prieſt ſhall look: and behold, if the bright ſpots in the skin of their fleſh be darkiſh white: it is a freckled ſpot that groweth in the skin; he is clean.

§ Heb. head is pilled.

40 And the man whoſe § hair is fallen off his head, he is bald: yet is he clean.

41 And he that hath his hair fallen off from the part of his head toward his face, he is forehead-bald: yet is he clean.

42 And if there be in the bald head, or bald forehead, a white reddiſh ſore; it is a leproſy ſprung up in his bald head, or his bald forehead.

43 Then the prieſt ſhall look upon it: and behold, if the riſing of the ſore be white reddiſh in his bald head, or in his bald forehead, as the leproſy appeareth in the skin of the fleſh;

44 He is a leprous man, he is unclean: the prieſt ſhall pronounce him utterly unclean, his plague is in his head.

b Ezek. 24. 17, 22. Mic. 3. 7.

45 And the leper in whom the plague is, [b] his clothes ſhall be rent, and his head bare, and he ſhall put a covering upon his upper lip, and ſhall cry, Unclean, unclean.

46 All the days wherein the plague ſhall be in him, he ſhall be defiled; he is unclean: he ſhall dwell alone, [c] without the camp ſhall his habitation be.

Before Christ 1490.

c Num. 5. 2. and 12. 14. 2 Kings 7. 3. and 15. 5. 2 Chro. 26. 21.

47 ¶ The garment alſo that the plague of leproſy is in, whether it be a woollen garment, or a linen garment,

48 Whether it be in the warp, or woof, of linen or of woollen, whether in a skin, or in any ‖ thing made of skin:

‖ Heb. work of.

49 And if the plague be greeniſh or reddiſh in the garment, or in the skin, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any * thing of skin; it is a plague of leproſy, and ſhall be ſhewed unto the prieſt.

* Heb. veſſel, or, inſtrument

50 And the prieſt ſhall look upon the plague, and ſhut up it that hath the plague, ſeven days.

51 And he ſhall look on the plague on the ſeventh day: if the plague be ſpread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in a skin, or in any work that is made of skin; the plague is a fretting leproſy; it is unclean.

52 He ſhall therefore burn that garment, whether warp, or woof, in woollen or in linen, or any thing of ſkin, wherein the plague is: for it is a fretting leproſy; it ſhall be burnt in the fire.

53 And if the prieſt ſhall look, and behold, the plague be not ſpread in the garment, either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of ſkin;

54 Then the prieſt ſhall command that they waſh the thing wherein the plague is, and he ſhall ſhut it up ſeven days more.

55 And the prieſt ſhall look on the plague after that it is waſhed: and behold, if the plague have not changed his colour, and the plague be not ſpread; it is unclean, thou ſhalt burnt it in the fire; it is fret inward, † whether it be bare within or without.

† Heb. whether it be bald in the head thereof, or in the forehead thereof.

56 And if the prieſt look, and behold, the plague be ſomewhat dark after the waſhing of it; then he ſhall rend it out of the garment, or out of the ſkin, or out of the warp, or out of the woof.

57 And if it appear ſtill in the garment, either

V. 37. The prieſt ſhall pronounce him clean—The truth of the thing, and not the ſentence of the prieſt, made him clean, and if the prieſt had partially pronounced one clean who was not clean, his ſentence had been null. And therefore it is a dangerous conceit to think, that the abſolution given to any ſinner by a prieſt will ſtand him in any ſtead, if he do not truly repent.

V. 45. His head bare—A ſign of mourning, God would have men though not overwhelmed with, yet deeply ſenſible of, his judgments.

V. 46. He ſhall dwell alone—For his humiliation, to prevent the infection of others, and to ſhew the danger of converſe with ſpiritual lepers, or wilful ſinners. Without the camp—And afterward without cities and places of great concourſe.

CHAP.

Before Christ 1490.

either in the warp, or in the woof, or in any thing of skin; it is a spreading plague: thou shalt burn that wherein the plague is, with fire.

58 And the garment, either warp, or woof, or whatsoever thing of skin it be, which thou shalt wash, if the plague be departed from them, then it shall be washed the second time, and shall be clean.

59 This is the law of the plague of leprosy in a garment of woollen or linen, either in the warp, or woof, or any thing of skins, to pronounce it clean, or to pronounce it unclean.

CHAP. XIV.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 This shall be the law of the leper, in the day of his cleansing: He [a] shall be brought unto the priest:

[a] Matt. 8.2,4. Mark 1.40,44. Luke 5.12,14. and 17. 14.

3 And the priest shall go forth out of the camp: and the priest shall look, and behold, if the plague of leprosy be healed in the leper;

4 Then shall the priest command to take for him that is to be cleansed, two § birds alive, and clean, and [b] cedar-wood, and [c] scarlet, and [d] hyssop.

§ Or, sparrows.
[b] Num. 19. 6.
[c] Heb. 9. 19.
[d] Psa. 51. 7.

5 And the priest shall command that one of the birds be killed in an earthen vessel, over running water.

6 As for the living bird, he shall take it, and the cedar-wood, and the scarlet, and the hyssop, and shall dip them and the living bird, in the blood of the bird that was killed over the running water.

Before Christ 1490.

7 And he shall sprinkle upon him that is to be cleansed from the leprosy, seven times, and shall pronounce him clean, and shall let the living bird loose * into the open field.

* Heb. upon the face of the field.

8 And he that is to be cleansed shall wash his clothes, and shave off all his hair, [e] and wash himself in water, that he may be clean, and after that he shall come into the camp, and [f] shall tarry abroad out of his tent seven days.

[e] Chap. 11.25.
[f] Num. 12.15.

9 But it shall be on the seventh day, that he shall shave all his hair off his head and his beard and his eye-brows, even all his hair he shall shave off: and he shall wash his clothes, also he shall wash his flesh in water, and he shall be clean.

10 And on the eighth day he shall take two he-lambs without blemish, and one ewe-lamb ‡ of the first year, without blemish, and three tenth-deals of fine flour for [g] a meat-offering, mingled with oil, and one log of oil.

‡ Heb. the daughter of her year.
[g] Chap. 2. 1. Num 15. 4, 15.

11 And the priest that maketh him clean, shall present the man that is to be made clean, and those things before the Lord, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

12 And the priest shall take one he-lamb, and [h] offer him for a trespass-offering, and the log of oil, and [i] wave them for a wave-offering before the Lord.

[h] Chap. 4. 2.
[i] Exod. 29. 24.

13 And

CHAP. XIV.

V. 2 The leper shall be brought unto the priest—As the person convinced of sin, of the impurity of their nature, must be brought unto Christ Jesus the Lord, the sinner's High-Priest in the presence of God, (Heb. iv. 14.) from whom virtue proceeds, and heals all them who, by faith, apply to him now as in the days of his flesh, (Luke vi. 19.) Christ Jesus being the same yesterday, and to-day, and for ever. (Heb. xiii. 8.)

V. 3. If the plague of leprosy be healed—By God. For God alone did heal or cleanse him really, the priest only declaratively, as ministers are said to remit sins, though none can truly and properly forgive sins but God, (Mark ii. 7.)

V. 4. Two birds—The one to represent Christ as dying for his sins, the other to represent Him as rising again for his justification. And scarlet—A thread of wool of a scarlet colour, (Heb. ix. 19.) to represent both the lepers sinfulness, (Isa. i. 18.) and the blood of Christ.

V. 5. Over running water—To wit, by some other man. The priest did not kill it himself, because it was not properly a sacrifice, as being killed without the camp, and not in that place to which all sacrifices were confined; and if it had been a sacrifice, that might be killed by another, so long as the sprinkling of the blood of it, which was the most proper and essential act in the sacrifice, was done by the priest. Thus the blood of the bird and the water were mixed together, to signify CHRIST, who came by water and blood, (1 John v. 6.) The running water, by its liveliness and motion, did fitly signify the restoring of liveliness to the leper, who was in a manner dead with his leprosy. And thus is the sinful soul cleansed by the blood of Christ, applied by his holy spirit to the guilty conscience, as the body is washed with pure water. (Heb. x. 22.)

V. 7. Seven times—To signify his perfect cleansing and restoration to all his former privileges. Shall let the living bird loose into the open field—The place of its former abode, signifying the taking off that restraint which was laid upon the leper, and the liberty which the leper now had to return to his former habitation and conversation with other men. And thus is the justified person restored to God, and the communion of truly religious persons; and living and dying in the faith of Jesus Christ, will dwell in the presence of God, and with the spirits of the blessed for ever.

V. 10. A meat-offering, mingled with oil—Oil is added here as a fit sign of God's grace and mercy, and of the lepers healing. One log—A measure for liquid things, containing six egg shells full.

V. 11. The priest that maketh him clean—The healing is ascribed to God, but the ceremonial cleansing, or making of him clean and fit for society, was an act of the priest using the rites which God had prescribed, whereby the sinner was cleansed. So does Jesus justify the sinner in the sight of God, and the Spirit of the Father and the Son gives newness of life unto the soul. (1 Cor. vi. 11.)

V. 12. A trespass-offering—To teach them, that sin was the cause of leprosy, and of all diseases, and that these ceremonial observations had a farther meaning, even to make them sensible of

Before Christ 1490.

13 And he shall slay the lamb [k] in the place where he shall kill the sin-offering, and the burnt-offering, in the holy place: for [l] as the sin-offering is the priest's, so is the trespass-offering: [m] it is most holy.

14 And the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass-offering, and the priest shall put it [n] upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

15 And the priest shall take some of the log of oil, and pour it into the palm of his own left hand:

16 And the priest shall dip his right finger in the oil that is in his left hand, and shall sprinkle of the oil with his finger, seven times before the Lord.

17 And of the rest of the oil that is in his hand, shall the priest put upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot, upon the blood of the trespass-offering.

18 And the remnant of the oil that is in the priest's hand, he shall pour upon the head of him that is to be cleansed: and the priest shall make an atonement for him before the Lord.

19 And the priest shall offer [o] the sin-offering, and make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed from his uncleanness, and afterward he shall kill the burnt-offering.

20 And the priest shall offer the burnt-offering, and the meat-offering upon the altar: and the priest shall make an atonement for him, and he shall be clean.

21 And [p] if he be poor, and * cannot get so much; then he shall take one lamb for a trespass-offering † to be waved, to make an atonement for him, and one tenth-deal of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering, and a log of oil:

22 And two turtle-doves, or two young pigeons, such as he is able to get; and the one shall be a sin-offering, and the other a burnt-offering.

23 And he shall bring them on the eighth day, for his cleansing, unto the priest, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, before the Lord.

24 And the priest shall take the lamb of the trespass-offering, and the log of oil, and the priest shall wave them for a wave-offering before the Lord.

25 And he shall kill the lamb of the trespass-offering, and the priest shall take some of the blood of the trespass-offering, and put it upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot.

26 And the priest shall pour of the oil into the palm of his own left hand.

27 And the priest shall sprinkle with his right finger, some of the oil that is in his left hand, seven times before the Lord. 28 And [k] Exod. 29. 11. Chap. 3. 8. & 4. 4. 24.

[l] Chap. 7. 7.
[m] Chap. 2. 3. and 21. 22.
[n] Exod. 29. 20. Chap. 8. 23.
[o] Chap. 5. 1.
[p] Chap. 5. 7.
* Heb. his hand reach not.
† Heb. for a waving.

their spiritual diseases, their sins, and to fly to God in Christ for the cure of them.

V. 14. The priest shall take some of the blood—To signify, that he was now free to hear God's word in the appointed places, from which he was before excluded, and to touch any person or thing without defiling it, and to go whither he pleased.

V. 15. The priest shall take some of the oil—As the blood signified Christ's blood, by which men obtain remission of sins, so the oil noted the graces of the spirit, by which they are regenerated and renewed.

V. 16. Before the Lord—Before the second vail, which covered the Holy of Holies, where God is often said to dwell, and to be present.

V. 17. Upon the blood of the trespass-offering—As the blood was put in those places, so shall the oil be. And so are the pardon and the grace of God together applied to the sinner's conscience.

V. 18. The priest shall make an atonement for him—And unless the atonement made by the one Mediator between God and man, is looked to and regarded as the sole cause of pardon and acceptance with God, the sinners safety is like that of the house built upon the sand, which fell before the storm, God's justice and anger at all sin, in thought, word, or deed, being appeased on no other account, than by the sacrifice made by his equal Son, Emmanuel, God in the person of Christ Jesus, dying for the sins of men. This atonement looked to and regarded as the cause of pardon and acceptance with God, is the first and only foundation for the soul to stand upon; this is that Rock on which, if a man build, all the spirits and powers of darkness that issue at the gates of hell, with all their rage, and all their guile shall not prevail against it; a stedfast look—regard to the blood of atonement shall quench their fiery darts, and sinful desires, tempers, and passions shall sink, be calm, and cease as the storm and raging sea did at the command of Jesus. (Mat. xvi. 18. Eph. vi. 16. Mat. viii. 26.) Grace only proceeds from God, through and for the sake of Jesus Christ, for his sake all may be pardoned, but besides him there is no other Saviour, seperate from him can none be pardoned, and without grace given for his sake, the wisest and the strongest can do nothing that is pleasing in the sight of God. (John vi. 5.) None can make an atonement for himself either by doing or suffering, and no man can make an atonement for the sins of another, and there is no promise of grace from God, but for the sake of Christ Jesus, the sinner's friend and Saviour. (Mat. xv. 27.) And as the person to be pronounced clean was to bring his own offering to be presented by the priest before the Lord, so must every one bring, and by faith offer up, the Lamb that was slain for the sins of the world, to satisfy the Divine justice for every offence. Am I this day expecting to be pardoned, justified in the sight of God on any other account. Was this day life's trial to end by the command of God, should I be found with or without that nature of everlasting life, which there only is in the spiritual knowledge of the only true God and Jesus Christ? (John xvii. 3.)

V. 34. And

Before Christ 1490.

28 And the priest shall put of the oil that is in his hand, upon the tip of the right ear of him that is to be cleansed, and upon the thumb of his right hand, and upon the great toe of his right foot; upon the place of the blood of the trespass-offering.

29 And the rest of the oil that is in the priest's hand, he shall put upon the head of him that is to be cleansed, to make an atonement for him before the Lord.

30 And he shall offer the one of the turtle-doves, or of the young pigeons, such as he can get:

31 Even such as he is able to get, the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, with the meat-offering. And the priest shall make an atonement for him that is to be cleansed, before the Lord.

32 This is the law of him in whom is the plague of leprosy, whose hand is not able to get [q] that which pertaineth to his cleansing.

q Verse 10.

33 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, saying,

34 When ye be come into the land of Canaan, which I give to you for a possession, and I put the plague of leprosy in a house of the land of your possession;

35 And he that owneth the house shall come and tell the priest, saying, It seemeth to me there is as it were a plague in the house:

36 Then the priest shall command that they § empty the house, before the priest go into it to see the plague; that all that is in the house be not made unclean: and afterward the priest shall go in to see the house.

§ Or, prepare.

37 And he shall look on the plague, and behold, if the plague be in the walls of the house, with hollow strakes, greenish or reddish, which in sight are lower than the wall;

Before Christ 1490.

38 Then the priest shall go out of the house to the door of the house, and shut up the house seven days.

39 And the priest shall come again the seventh day, and shall look: and behold, if the plague be spread in the walls of the house;

40 Then the priest shall command that they take away the stones, in which the plague is, and they shall cast them into an unclean place without the city.

41 And he shall cause the house to be scraped within round about, and they shall pour out the dust that they scrape off, without the city into an unclean place.

42 And they shall take other stones, and put them in the place of those stones; and he shall take other mortar, and shall plaister the house.

43 And if the plague come again, and break out in the house, after that he hath taken away the stones, and after he hath scraped the house, and after it is plaistered;

44 Then the priest shall come and look, and behold, if the plague be spread in the house, it is a fretting leprosy in the house: it is unclean.

45 And he shall break down the house, the stones of it, and the timber thereof, and all the mortar of the house: and he shall carry them forth out of the city into an unclean place.

46 Moreover, he that goeth into the house

V. 34. And I put the plague of leprosy in a house—And thus does God chastise and afflict the children of men, not willingly, but out of necessity, to convince them of sin, and the misery that is now, and must be for ever, the consequence of it, if they do not turn unto him for mercy in his own appointed way. And as God has ever the good of all in view, when he visits any one with more than a common share of suffering for sin, it is to shew to all their danger, and the disease in their nature, which calls for the application of the same grace of God, which alone bringeth salvation.

V. 36. That all that is in the house be not made unclean—It is observable here, that neither the people nor the houshold stuff were polluted, till the leprosy was discovered, and declared by the priest. The legal knowledge of uncleanness did not commence before the priest had declared it; and it is the spirit of the everlasting High-priest to convince the world of sin, (John xvi. 8.) the knowledge, the real heart-felt conviction of sin being of so much moment to every soul of man, the Divine faithfulness itself is alone that monitor, that none may depart this life uninformed of their danger, and of the necessity of the all-cleansing blood that has been poured out for the sins of All; and which the same Spirit is ready to apply to them that yield to its convictions, and with godly sorrow produce true repentance, turn unto God for mercy; that he that made known the sinfulness of sin, may pardon and absolve the penitent mind, and cleanse it from all unrighteousness. And thus from the first conviction of sin, to the possession of that holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord, (Heb. xii. 14.) it is all of grace that the whole of every soul's salvation may not be of any works or righteousness of our own, but by faith only in the Lord Jesus Christ, who gave himself for us; that his name alone may be exalted. And thus is God our Redeemer to be looked to for all we want, and though there are many operations of the same Spirit, and the work of the Spirit being infinite, and therefore never to be known to the uttermost, yet in the true worship of God there is no perplexity nor distraction, as there is in the choice of different objects, or in the choice of different ways to the same end; God himself is All in All, and but one thing is needful, the knowledge of himself, whom to be acquainted with is peace, whom to know is eternal life begun in this life. (Job xxii. 21. 1 John v. 11, 12.)

V. 37. If the plague be in the walls of the house—This was an extraordinary judgment of God, and to shew the mischievous nature of sin, typified by leprosy, which did not only destroy persons, but their habitations also.

V. 53. He

Before Christ 1490.

house all the while that it is shut up, shall be unclean until the even.

47 And he that lieth in the house, shall wash his clothes: and he that eateth in the house, shall wash his clothes.

* Heb. in coming in shall come in, &c.

48 And if the priest * shall come in, and look upon it, and behold, the plague hath not spread in the house, after the house was plaistered: then the priest shall pronounce the house clean, because the plague is healed.

r Verse 4.

49 And r he shall take to cleanse the house two birds, and cedar-wood, and scarlet, and hyssop.

50 And he shall kill the one of the birds in an earthen vessel, over running water.

51 And he shall take the cedar-wood, and the hyssop, and the scarlet, and the living bird, and dip them in the blood of the slain bird, and in the running water, and sprinkle the house seven times.

52 And he shall cleanse the house with the blood of the bird, and with the running water, and with the living bird, and with the cedar-wood, and with the hyssop, and with the scarlet.

53 But he shall let go the living bird out of the city into the open fields, and make an atonement for the house: and it shall be clean.

s Chap. 13.30.

54 This is the law for all manner plague of leprosy, and s scall,

55 And for the leprosy of a garment, and of an house,

56 And for a rising, and for a scab, and for a bright spot:

† Heb. In the day of the unclean, and in the day of the clean.

57 To teach † when it is unclean, and when it is clean: this is the law of leprosy.

CHAP. XV.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, and to Aaron, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, a When any man hath a * running issue out of his flesh, because of his issue he is unclean.

a Num. 5. 2. * Or, running of the reins.

3 And this shall be his uncleanness in his issue: whether his flesh run with his issue, or his flesh be stopped from his issue, it is his uncleanness.

4 Every bed whereon he lieth that hath the issue, is unclean: and every † thing whereon he sitteth, shall be unclean.

Before Christ 1490.

† Heb. vessel.

5 And whosoever toucheth his bed, shall wash his clothes, b and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

b Chap.11.25.

6 And he that sitteth on any thing whereon he sat that hath the issue, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

7 And he that toucheth the flesh of him that hath the issue, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

8 And if he that hath the issue spit upon him that is clean; then he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

9 And what saddle soever he rideth upon, that hath the issue, shall be unclean.

10 And whosoever toucheth any thing that was under him, shall be unclean until the even: and he that beareth any of those things, shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

11 And whomsoever he toucheth that hath the issue (and hath not rinsed his hands in water) he shall wash his clothes, and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even.

c Chap. 6. 28. & 11. 32, 33.

12 And the c vessel of earth, that he toucheth which hath the issue, shall be broken: and every vessel of wood shall be rinsed in water.

d Chap.14.10.

13 And when he that hath an issue is cleansed of his issue; then d he shall number to himself seven days for his cleansing, and wash his clothes, and bathe his flesh in running water, and shall be clean.

e Chap.14.22.

14 And on the eighth day he shall take to him e two turtle-doves, or two young pigeons, and come before the Lord, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and give them unto the priest.

15 And the priest shall offer them, the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering; and the priest shall make an atonement

V. 53. He shall make an atonement for the house: and it shall be clean—For the house, for the whole family as well as for every individual there must be an atonement. All with which we are surrounded would communicate evil to us, was it not for the healing preserving influence of the grace of God, which bringeth salvation from every evil, inward as well as outward.

V. 57. To teach when it is unclean—To direct the priest when to pronounce a person or house clean or unclean. So it was not left to the priest's power or will, but they were tied to plain rules, such as the people might discern no less than the priest.

CHAP. XV.

V. 13. And shall be clean—Admitted to converse with men and with God in public ordinances.

V. 16. He shall be unclean—If it was voluntary, and by a man's own procurement, it was esteemed abominable, and a degree of murder. (Gen. xxxviii. 9.)

V. 31. When

Before Christ 1490.

ment for him before the Lord, for his iſſue.

16 And [f] if any man's ſeed of copulation go out from him, then he ſhall waſh all his fleſh in water, and be unclean until the even.

[f] Deut. 23.10.

17 And every garment, and every ſkin whereon is the ſeed of copulation, ſhall be waſhed with water, and be unclean until the even.

18 The woman alſo with whom man ſhall lie with ſeed of copulation, they ſhall both bathe themſelves in water, and be unclean until the even.

19 ¶ And [g] if a woman have an iſſue, and her iſſue in her fleſh be blood, ſhe ſhall be ‡ put apart ſeven days: and whoſoever toucheth her, ſhall be unclean until the even.

[g] Chap. 12. 2.

‡ Heb. in her ſeparation.

20 And every thing that ſhe lieth upon in her ſeparation, ſhall be unclean: every thing alſo that ſhe ſitteth upon, ſhall be unclean.

21 And whoſoever toucheth her bed, ſhall waſh his clothes, and bathe himſelf in water, and be unclean until the even.

22 And whoſoever toucheth any thing that ſhe ſat upon, ſhall waſh his clothes, and bathe himſelf in water, and be unclean until the even.

23 And if it be on her bed, or on any thing whereon ſhe ſitteth, when he toucheth it; he ſhall be unclean until the even.

[h] See Chap. 20. 18.

24 And [h] if any man lie with her at all, and her flowers be upon him, he ſhall be unclean ſeven days: and all the bed whereon he lieth, ſhall be unclean.

[i] Mat. 9. 20.

25 And if [i] a woman have an iſſue of her blood many days out of the time of her ſeparation, or if it run beyond the time of her ſeparation; all the days of the iſſue of her uncleanneſs ſhall be as the days of her ſeparation: ſhe ſhall be unclean.

26 Every bed whereon ſhe lieth all the days of her iſſue, ſhall be unto her as the bed of her ſeparation: and whatſoever ſhe ſitteth upon, ſhall be unclean, as the uncleanneſs of her ſeparation.

27 And whoſoever toucheth thoſe things ſhall be unclean, and ſhall waſh his clothes, and bathe himſelf in water, and be unclean until the even.

28 But if ſhe be cleanſed of her iſſue, then ſhe ſhall number to herſelf ſeven days, and after that ſhe ſhall be clean.

Before Christ 1490.

29 And on the eighth day ſhe ſhall take unto her two turtles, or two young pigeons, and bring them unto the prieſt, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

30 And the prieſt ſhall offer the one for a ſin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering; and the prieſt ſhall make an atonement for her before the Lord, for the iſſue of her uncleanneſs.

31 Thus ſhall ye ſeparate the children of Iſrael from their uncleanneſs; that they die not in their uncleanneſs, when they defile my tabernacle that is among them.

32 This is the law of him that hath an iſſue, and of him whoſe ſeed goeth from him, and is defiled therewith:

33 And of her that is ſick of her flowers, and of him that hath an iſſue, of the man, and of the woman, and of him that lieth with her which is unclean.

CHAP. XVI.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, after [a] the death of the two ſons of Aaron, when they offered before the Lord, and died:

[a] Chap. 10. 2.

2 And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, ſpeak unto Aaron thy brother, that he [b] come not at all times into the holy place within the vail, before the mercy-ſeat, which is upon the ark; that he die not: for [c] I will appear in the cloud upon the mercy-ſeat.

[b] Exod. 30 10. Chap. 23. 27. Heb. 9. 7.

[c] Exod. 40. 35. 1 Kings 8. 12.

3 Thus ſhall Aaron come into the holy place: [d] with a young bullock for a ſin-offering, and a ram for a burnt-offering.

[d] Chap. 4. 3.

4 He ſhall put on [e] the holy linen coat, and he ſhall have the linen breeches upon his fleſh, and ſhall be girded with the linen girdle, and with the linen mitre ſhall he be attired: theſe are holy garments; therefore [f] ſhall he waſh his fleſh in water, and ſo put them on.

[e] Exod. 28. 39, 43. and Chap. 6. 10.

[f] Exod. 30. 20

5 And he ſhall take of the congregation of the children of Iſrael, two kids of the goats for a ſin-offering, and one ram for a burnt-offering.

6 And Aaron ſhall offer his bullock for the ſin-offering, which is for himſelf, and make

V. 31. When they defile my tabernacle—Which they did both ceremonially, by coming into it in their uncleanneſs, and morally by the groſs neglect and contempt of God's expreſs and poſitive command to cleanſe themſelves.

CHAP. XVI.

V. 2. That he come not at all times—Not whenſoever he pleaſeth, but only when I ſhall appoint him, to take down the parts and furniture of it upon every removal, and to miniſter unto me once in the year, into the holy of holies. That he die not—For his irreverence and preſumption. For I will appear—Viſibly and gloriouſly: That is as it were my preſence chamber, whither the prieſt ſhall not come but when I call him.

V. 6. Aaron ſhall make an atonement for himſelf, and for his houſe—His family, the prieſts and Levites.

Before Christ 1490. g make an atonement for himself, and for his house.

g Heb. v. 27, 28. & 9. 7.

7 And he shall take the two goats, and present them before the Lord, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

8 And Aaron shall cast lots upon the two goats: one lot for the Lord, and the other lot for the * scape-goat.

* Heb. Azazel.

9 And Aaron shall bring the goat upon which the Lord's lot † fell, and offer him for a sin-offering.

† Heb. went up.

10 But the goat on which the lot fell to be the scape-goat, shall be presented alive before the Lord, to make an atonement with him, and to let him go for a scape-goat into the wilderness.

11 And Aaron shall bring the bullock of the sin-offering, which is for himself, and shall make an atonement for himself, and for his house, and shall kill the bullock of the sin-offering, which is for himself.

h Chap. 10. 1. 12 And he shall take h a censer full of burning coals of fire from off the altar before the Lord, and his hands full of i sweet incense beaten small, and bring it within the vail.

i Exod. 30. 34.

13 And he shall put the incense upon the fire before the Lord, that the cloud of the incense may cover the mercy-seat that is upon the testimony, that he die not.

k Heb. 9. 13, 25. and 10. 4. l Chap. 4. 6. 14 And k he shall take of the blood of the bullock, and l sprinkle it with his finger upon the mercy-seat eastward: and before the mercy-seat shall he sprinkle of the blood with his finger seven times.

15 ¶ Then shall he kill the goat of the sin-offering that is for the people, and bring his blood within the vail, and do with that blood as he did with the blood of the bullock, and sprinkle it upon the mercy-seat, and before the mercy-seat. Before Christ 1490.

16 And he shall m make an atonement for the holy place, because of the uncleanness of the children of Israel, and because of their transgressions in all their sins: and so shall he do for the tabernacle of the congregation that † remaineth among them, in the midst of their uncleanness. m See Exod. 29. 36. Heb. 9. 28. † Heb. dwelleth.

17 n And there shall be no man in the tabernacle of the congregation, when he goeth in to make an atonement in the holy place, until he come out, and have made an atonement for himself, and for his household, and for all the congregation of Israel. n Luke 1. 10.

18 And he shall go out unto the altar, that is before the Lord, and make an atonement for it; and shall take of the blood of the bullock, and of the blood of the goat, and put it upon the horns of the altar round about.

19 And he shall sprinkle of the blood upon it with his finger seven times, and cleanse it, and hallow it from the uncleanness of the children of Israel.

20 ¶ And when he hath made an end of reconciling the holy place, and the tabernacle of the congregation, and the altar, he shall bring the live goat:

21 And Aaron shall lay both his hands upon

V. 8. One lot for the Lord, and the other lot for the scape-goat—For the Lord's use and service by way of sacrifice. Both this and the other goat typified Christ, this in his death and passion for us, that in his resurrection for our deliverance.

V. 14. He shall take of the blood and sprinkle it upon the mercy-seat—To teach us, that God is merciful to sinners only through and for the blood of Christ. Eastward—With his face eastward, towards the people, who were in the court which lay east-ward from the Holy of holies, which was the most western part of the tabernacle. This signified that the High-priest in this act represented the people, and that God accepted it on their behalf.

V. 16. He shall make an atonement for the holy place, because of the children of Israel—For though the people did not enter into that place, yet their sins entered thither, and would hinder the effects of the High-priests mediation on their behalf, if God was not reconciled to them. In the midst of their uncleanness—Encompassed with their sins, being in the midst of a sinful people who defile not themselves only, but also God's sanctuary, as God complains.

V. 17. And there shall be no man in the tabernacle of the congregation, when he goeth in to make an atonement—In the holy place, where the Priests and Levites were at other times. This was commanded for the greater reverence to the Divine Majesty then in a more special manner appearing.

V. 19. He shall sprinkle of the blood upon it seven times—To signify its perfect cleansing, and our perfect reconciliation by the blood of Christ here represented.

V. 21. And confess over him all the iniquities of the children of Israel—Confession of sin being a duty to accompany the sacrifice offered for it. All their transgressions, all their sins—Iniquities, transgressions, and sins, to note sins of all sorts, and that a very free and full confession was to be made, and that the smallest sins needed, and the greatest sins were not excluded from, the benefit of Christ's death here represented. He that confesseth his sins to God, and forsaketh them, shall have mercy. Putting them upon the head of the goat—Charging all their sins and the punishment due to them upon the goat, which though only a ceremony, yet being done according to God's appointment, and pointing at Christ upon whom their iniquities and punishments were laid, (Isa. liii. 5, 6.) it was available for this end. A fit man—One who may be trusted with this work. Into the wilderness—Which signified the removal of their sins far away both from the people, and out of God's sight, or from the place of his presence. (Prov. xxviii 13.) The Lamb of God taketh away the sins of the world, and whosoever by true repentance and faith in Him, cast themselves upon the mercy of God in him, he does take them away of a truth; God for Christ's sake does forgive, and in forgiving he will remember them no more. (Jer. xxxi. 34, & xxxiii. 8.) Whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins, (Acts x. 43) and unless they return to their former sins (Ezek. xxi. 23, 24) they upon the head of the live goat, and confeſs over him all the iniquities of the children of Iſrael, and all their tranſgreſſions in all their ſins, putting them upon the head of the goat, and ſhall ſend him away by the hand of a * fit man into the wilderneſs.

Before Christ 1490.

* Heb. a man of opportunity.

22 And the goat ſhall bear upon him all their iniquities, unto a land † not inhabited: and he ſhall let go the goat in the wilderneſs.

† Heb. of ſeparation.

23 And Aaron ſhall come into the tabernacle of the congregation, and ſhall put off the linen garments, which he put on when he went into the holy place, and ſhall leave them there.

24 And he ſhall waſh his fleſh with water in the holy place, and put on his garments, and come forth, and offer his burnt-offering, and the burnt-offering of the people, and make an atonement for himſelf, and for the people.

o Chap. 4. 10. 25 And [o] the fat of the ſin-offering ſhall he burn upon the altar.

26 And he that let go the goat for the p Chap. 15. 5. ſcape-goat, ſhall waſh his clothes, [p] and bathe his fleſh in water, and afterward come into the camp.

q Chap. 4. 12, 21. & 6. 30. Heb. 13. 11. 27 [q] And the bullock for the ſin-offering, and the goat for the ſin-offering, whoſe blood was brought in to make atonement in the holy place, ſhall one carry forth without the camp, and they ſhall burn in the fire their ſkins, and their fleſh, and their dung.

28 And he that burneth them, ſhall waſh his clothes, and bathe his fleſh in water, and afterward he ſhall come into the camp.

29 ¶ And this ſhall be a ſtatute for ever r Exod. 30. 10. Chap. 23. 27. Num. 29. 7. unto you: that [r] in the ſeventh month, on the tenth day of the month, ye ſhall afflict your ſouls, and do no work at all, whether it be one of your own country, or a ſtranger that ſojourneth among you.

30 For on that day ſhall the prieſt make an atonement for you, to cleanſe you, that ye may be clean from all your ſins before the Lord.

Before Christ 1490.

31 It ſhall be a ſabbath of reſt unto you, and ye ſhall afflict your ſouls by a ſtatute for ever.

s Chap. 4. 3. 5, 16. † Heb. fill his hand.

32 [s] And the prieſt whom he ſhall anoint, and whom he ſhall † conſecrate to miniſter in the prieſts office in his father's ſtead, ſhall make the atonement, and ſhall put on the linen clothes, even the holy garments.

33 And he ſhall make an atonement for the holy ſanctuary, and he ſhall make an atonement for the tabernacle of the congregation, and for the altar: and he ſhall make an atonement for the prieſts, and for all the people of the congregation.

34 And this ſhall be an everlaſting ſtatute unto you, to make an atonement for the children of Iſrael, for all their ſins, [t] once a year. And he did as the Lord commanded Moſes.

t Exod. 30. 10. Heb. 9. 7.

CHAP. XVII.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and unto his ſons, and unto all the children of Iſrael, and ſay unto them, This is the thing which the Lord hath commanded, ſaying,

3 What man ſoever there be of the houſe of Iſrael, [a] that killeth an ox, or lamb, or goat in the camp, or that killeth it out of the camp, a See Deut. 12. 5, 15, 21.

4 [b] And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer an offering unto the Lord before the tabernacle of the Lord; blood ſhall be imputed unto that man, he hath ſhed blood; and that man

b Deut. 12. 13.

they ſhall not be brought to remembrance againſt them. (Heb. viii. 12.)

V. 23. Aaron ſhall come into the tabernacle—Forthwith, not expecting the return of the man who carried the goat away, but ſecurely committing that to God's providence, he ſhall go on in his work.

V. 29. The ſeventh month—Anſwering part to our September, and part to our October; when they had gathered in all their fruits, and were moſt at leaſure for God's ſervice: This time God choſe for this and other feaſts, herein graciouſly condeſcending to mens neceſſities and conveniences, being contented with that time which men could beſt ſpare. Afflict your ſouls—Yourſelves, as the word ſoul is frequently uſed, both your bodies by abſtinence from food and other delights, and your minds by anguiſh and grief for former ſins, which though bitter, yet is voluntary in all true penitents, who are therefore here ſaid not to be afflicted, but to afflict themſelves, or to be active in the work.

V. 31. It ſhall be a ſabbath of reſt unto you—Obſerved as a ſabbath day by ceſſation from all worldly and ſervile works, and diligent attendance upon God's worſhip and ſervice.

CHAP. XVII.

V. 3. What man ſoever killeth an ox—Not for common uſe or eating, for ſuch might be killed by any perſon in any place, but for ſacrifice.

V. 4. The door of the tabernacle—This was appointed in oppoſition to the heathens, who ſacrificed in all places; and to cut off occaſions of idolatry; to prevent the people's uſurpation of the Prieſt's office; and to ſignify, that God would accept of no ſacrifices but through Chriſt and in the church; (of both which the tabernacle was a type, Heb. ix. 11.) and according to his own preſcript. But though men were tied to this law, God was free to diſpenſe with his own law, which he did ſometimes to the Prophets, and afterwards more fully and generally in the days of the Meſſiah, (John iv. 21, 24.) Blood ſhall be imputed unto that man—He ſhall be eſteemed and puniſhed as a murderer both by God and by men, (Iſa. lxvi. 3.) The reaſon is, becauſe he ſhed that blood man shall be cut off from among his people;

Before Christ 1490.

5 To the end that the children of Israel may bring their sacrifices, which they offer in the open field, even that they may bring them unto the Lord, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation unto the priest, and offer them for peace-offerings unto the Lord.

6 And the priest shall sprinkle the blood upon the altar of the Lord, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and burn the fat for a [c] sweet savour unto the Lord.

[c] Exod. 29. 18. Chap. 4. 31.

7 And they shall no more offer their sacrifices [d] unto devils, after whom they [e] have gone a whoring: This shall be a statute for ever unto them throughout their generations.

[d] Deut. 32. 17. 2 Chron. 11. 15. Isa. 13. 21. 1 Cor. 10. 20. Rev. 9. 20.

[e] Ezek. 23. 8.

8 ¶ And thou shalt say unto them, Whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers which sojourn among you, that offereth a burnt-offering or sacrifice.

9 And bringeth it not unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, to offer it unto the Lord; even that man shall be cut off from among his people.

10 ¶ [f] And whatsoever man there be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, that eateth any manner of blood; [g] I will even set my face against that soul that eateth blood, and will cut him off from among his people.

Before Christ 1490.

[f] Gen. 9. 4. Chap. 7. 26. and 19. 26. Deut. 12. 16, 23. & 15. 23. 1 Sam. 14. 33. Ezek. 44. 7.

[g] Jer. 44. 11.

11 For the life of the flesh is in the blood, and I have given it to you upon the altar, to make an atonement for your souls: for [h] it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul.

[h] Heb. 9. 22.

12 Therefore I said unto the children of Israel, No soul of you shall eat blood, neither shall any stranger that sojourneth among you, eat blood.

13 And whatsoever man there be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn among you, * which [i] hunteth and catcheth any beast or fowl that may be eaten; he shall even pour out the blood thereof, and cover it with dust.

* Heb. that hunteth any hunting.

[i] Chap. 7. 26.

14 [k] For it is the life of all flesh, the blood of it is for the life thereof: therefore I said unto blood which though no man's blood, yet was as precious, being sacred and appropriated to God, and typically the price by which men's lives and souls were ransomed. (Lev. xvii. 4.) The crime was the making the sacrifice which God had commanded no more than a common thing. And may not something like this crime (which was punished with death) be committed at this day? May not both ministers and people perform religious duties as common things: Not that any thing is to be done without faith in God, which includes the fear of his greatness and an humble watchful regard to his holy will. But is it not to expose ourselves to the wrath of God, to present ourselves in his more immediate presence, in acts of worship, as men who know not God, go through the ordinary duties of life. Are we in no danger when we think as little in standing up between the living and the dead, as men commonly do who appear in any place of public resort. Is there no hazard of going into a place where God is publicly to be worshipped in the same spirit and manner that men in general are in among their fellow creatures on any public occasion? To be without some degree of solemnity on our minds in all our approaches to God, especially in public acts of worship, is doubtless a discovery to us that we are without a due reverence for the Lord of life and glory, whose sentence upon our whole conduct must soon award to us blessedness or misery for ever. That man shall be cut off from among his people—By death, either by the hand of God, in case men do not know it or neglect to punish it, or by men, if the fact was public and evident.

[k] Gen. 9. 4. Deut. 12. 23.

V. 5. Which they offer in the open field—The Egyptians and other idolatrous nations, commonly sacrificed to idols in fields, or any places, and the Israelites before the building of the tabernacle, took the same liberty the Gentiles did, from which they are now restrained.

V. 6. The priest shall sprinkle the blood and burn the fat—This verse contains a reason of the forgoing law.

V. 7. They shall no more offer their sacrifices unto devils—So they did not directly or intentionally, but because the devil is the author of idolatry, and is eminently served, pleased and honoured by it. And as the Egyptians were notorious for their idolatry, as appears by the testimony of Scripture, and of all antient writers, so the Israelites were infected with their leaven. And the name of devils is commonly given in Scripture to idols, even to those which seemed most innocent, and the worshippers of idols are esteemed and called worshippers of devils. They have gone a whoring—For idolatry, is called whoredom, and that justly, because it is a violation of that covenant by which the people of Israel were made the people of God in such a peculiar and evident manner, to represent the relation which God bears to his church and people in all ages, which is spoken of as the married state, and therefore any departure from God in heart and spirit, in the affection and desires of the minds of those who have known any thing of God, is called by the name of that crime. What is the object this day of my heart's desires? Is God my Saviour, who alone can satisfy them with his infinite goodness, the only object of my highest regard, or is it my name, my rank among men, worldly success? If it is any thing that is not God, what then is the spirit of my conduct in his sight who made me, and by whose death I live, and can only live for ever, and who calls upon me to give him my heart. (Prov. xxiii. 26. Hos. ii. 18, 19, 20.)

V. 10. I will even set my face against that soul—I will be an enemy to him, and execute vengeance upon him, because such persons probably would do this in private, so as the Magistrate could not know nor punish it.

V. 11. The life of the flesh is in the blood—It depends upon the blood, is preserved and nourished by it, and is extinguished when the blood is gone. Typically, and in respect of the blood of Christ which it represented, by which the atonement is really made, (Heb. ix. 12.) So the reason is double; 1. because this was the eating up of the price or ransom of their own lives, which in construction was the destroying of themselves, 2. because this was ingratitude and irreverence towards that sacred blood of Christ, for which they ought to have a continual veneration.

V. 13 Whatsoever man hunteth and catcheth any beast, he shall pour out the blood thereof—He instanceth in this, because persons given to that exercise are commonly licentious, and being in haste, might easily transgress, or because some might think the former prohibition did reach only to the blood of such creatures as were offered to God in sacrifice. Cover it with dust—To beget an honourable unto the children of Israel, Ye shall eat the blood of no manner of flesh: for the life of all flesh is the blood thereof: whosoever eateth it, shall be cut off.

Before Christ 1490.

l Exod. 22.31. Chap. 22. 8. Ezek. 44. 31. † Heb. a carcase.

15 l And every soul that eateth † that which died of itself, or that which was torn with beasts (whether it be one of your own country, or a stranger) m he shall both wash his clothes, n and bathe himself in water, and be unclean until the even: then shall he be clean.

m Chap. 11. 25.

n Chap. 15. 5.

16 But if he wash them not, nor bathe his flesh; then he shall bear his iniquity.

CHAP. XVIII.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, I am the Lord your God.

3 After the doings of the land of Egypt wherein ye dwelt, shall ye not do: and a after the doings of the land of Canaan whither I bring you, shall ye not do: neither shall ye walk in their ordinances.

a Chap. 20. 23.

4 Ye shall do my judgments, and keep mine ordinances to walk therein: I am the Lord your God.

5 Ye shall therefore keep my statutes and my judgments: b which if a man do, he shall live in them: I am the Lord.

b Ezek. 20. 11, 13. Luke 10. 28. Rom. 10. 5. Gal. 3. 12.

6 ¶ None of you shall approach to any that is * near of kin to him, to uncover their nakedness: I am the Lord.

Before Christ 1490.

* Heb. remainder of his flesh.

7 c The nakedness of thy father, or the nakedness of thy mother, shalt thou not uncover: she is thy mother, thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

c Chap. 20. 11.

8 d The nakedness of thy father's wife shalt thou not uncover: it is thy father's nakedness.

d Chap. 20. 11. Deut. 22. 30. and 27. 20. Ezek. 22. 10. Amos 2. 7. 1 Cor. 5. 1.

9 e The nakedness of thy sister, the daughter of thy father, or daughter of thy mother, whether she be born at home, or born abroad, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover.

e Chap. 20. 17. 2 Sam. 13. 12. Ezek. 22. 11.

10 The nakedness of thy son's daughter, or of thy daughter's daughter, even their nakedness thou shalt not uncover; for theirs is thine own nakedness.

11 The nakedness of thy father's wife's daughter, begotten of thy father, (she is thy sister) thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

12 f Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's sister: she is thy father's near kinswoman.

f Chap. 20. 19.

13 Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister: for she is thy mother's near kinswoman.

14 Thou

nourable respect unto the blood even of beasts, and much more of men, and to lead them to that blood on which their pardon and acceptance with God solely depended.

V. 16. If he wash not, he shall bear his iniquity—The punishment of it, and therefore must offer a sacrifice for it.

CHAP. XVIII.

V. 2. I am the Lord your God—Your Sovereign, and Lawgiver. This is oft repeated here, because the things here forbidden were practised and allowed by the Gentiles, to whose custom he here opposeth Divine authority and their obligation to obey his commands.

V. 3. Egypt, Canaan—These two nations he mentions, because their habitation and conversation among them made their evil example in the following matters more dangerous. But under them he includes all other nations. Neither shall ye walk in their ordinances—Either because their laws allowed such things, or because prevailing customs have the force of laws.

V. 4. Ye shall do my judgments and keep mine ordinances—Mine universally, mine solely, (Mat. iv. 10.) and therefore those that here follow, though you do not see the particular reason of some of them, and though they be contrary to the laws and usages of other nations.

V. 5. Keep my statutes, which if a man do, he shall live in them—Not only happily here, but also eternally hereafter, as it is expounded, (Mat. xix. 17.) this is added as a powerful argument why they should follow God's commands rather than men's examples, because their life and happiness depends upon the one, not the other. The divine statutes and judgments are first those that are to bring the soul to the knowledge of God a Mediator, to receive pardon of sins past, and the life of God in the soul freely given without money and without price,—unmerited by actions done or designed, but for the alone sake of the God-man; and then the universal statutes and judgments of God are to regulate the conduct of all that are born unto God; and who do his will, by the spirit of his grace dwelling in them, on earth as it is done in heaven; being born of God, they overcome the evil customs of the world, the wicked one has not power over them, they believe that Jesus is the son of God, and that he died for them, (1 John v. 4, 15, 18.) that for his sake they are pardoned, and for his sake God of his very faithfulness gives them grace in every time of need; they can do all things through Christ Jesus the Lord strengthening them, though of themselves they can do nothing; they know it becomes the children of God to fulfill all righteousness; and knowing that in the LORD JEHOVAH there is everlasting strength, in that strength they find with all the opposition of the world, the flesh and the powers of darkness, the ways which God's statutes and laws require them to walk in, are ways of pleasantness and peace; they see but one design in all the gracious commands and promises of God, they know they all lead to the knowledge of himself, all that comes from him leading to himself again; they delight themselves only in God their Saviour, and in the Father through him, and in the spirit of his love, with meek and humble zeal they attend to the openings of his providence, the directions of his word and the constant dictates of his grace, and to them the precepts are as acceptable as the promises, they are both their Heavenly Fathers and their Saviours, they cast themselves upon him, they only live to please him, and by a power all his own to walk in the steps of that example which Jesus as very man gave in his life on earth, their will is lost in his and God is All in All.

V. 6. Near of kin to him—The women are also bound by this law. This is the general rule, which is particularly expounded and applied in the following instances.

V. 9. Thy sister—By both parents. The daughter of thy father, or daughter of thy mother—Thy sister by either of thy parents.

V. 10. Thy sons daughter, or of thy daughters daughter—And consequently of all thy children and children's children, and all downwards.

Before Christ 1490.

14 [g] Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's brother, thou shalt not approach to his wife: she is thine aunt.

15 [h] Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy daughter in law: she is thy son's wife, thou shalt not uncover her nakedness.

16 [i] Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy brother's wife: it is thy brother's nakedness.

17 [k] Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of a woman and her daughter, neither shalt thou take her son's daughter, or her daughter's daughter, to uncover her nakedness; for they are her near kinswomen: it is wickedness.

18 Neither shalt thou take * a wife to her sister, to vex her, to uncover her nakedness, besides the other in her life-time.

19 [l] Also thou shalt not approach unto a woman to uncover her nakedness, as long as she is put apart for her uncleanness.

20 Moreover, [m] thou shalt not lie carnally with thy neighbour's wife, to defile thyself with her.

21 And thou shalt not let any of thy seed [n] pass through the fire to [o] Molech, neither shalt thou profane the name of thy God: I am the Lord.

22 [p] Thou shalt not lie with mankind, as with womankind: it is abomination.

23 [q] Neither shalt thou lie with any beast to defile thyself therewith: neither shall any woman stand before a beast to lie down thereto: it is confusion.

Before Christ 1490.

24 Defile not yourselves in any of these things: for in all these the nations are defiled which I cast out before you.

25 And the land is defiled: therefore I do visit the iniquity thereof upon it, and the land itself vomiteth out her inhabitants.

26 [r] Ye shall therefore keep my statutes and my judgments, and shall not commit any of these abominations; neither any of your own nation, nor any stranger that sojourneth among you:

27 (For all these abominations have the men of the land done, which were before you, and the land is defiled)

28 That [s] the land spue not you out also, when ye defile it, as it spued out the nations that were before you.

29 For whosoever shall commit any of these abominations, even the souls that commit them, shall be cut off from among their people.

30 Therefore shall ye keep mine ordinance, [t] that ye commit not any one of these abominable customs, which were committed before you, and that ye defile not yourselves therein: I am the Lord your God.

CHAP. XIX.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak

g Chap. 20. 20.
h Chap. 20. 12. Ezek. 22. 11.
i Chap. 20. 21. Matt. 14. 4. See Deut. 25. 5.
k Chap. 20. 14.
* Or, one wife to another.
l Chap. 20. 18. Ezek. 18. 6. and 22. 11. m Chap. 20. 10. Exod. 20. 14. n Chap. 20. 2. 2 Kings 16. 3. 2 Kings 23 10. Jer. 19. 5. Ezek. 23. 37, 39.
o Called Acts 7. 43. Moloch.
p Chap. 20 13. 1 Cor. 6. 9. 1 Tim. 1. 10.
q Chap. 20. 15, 16. Exod. 22. 19.
r Chap. 20. 22.
s Jer. 9. 19. Ezek. 36. 13, 17.
t Verse 3. Chap. 20. 23.

V. 14. Thy father's brother, his wife, she is thine aunt—Some infer from hence, that it is unlawful for cousin-germans, or the children of brethren and sisters to marry. But there is not the same reason, nor the same degree of distance, for my uncle or aunt are nearer akin to me than their children are. Yet because it seems doubtful to many, and may hereafter prove occasion of grievous perplexities of mind, especially to tender and scrupulous consciences, christian prudence directs us to choose the safest way.

V. 18. Neither shalt thou take a wife to her sister—The word sister is here understood either ones wifes sister after the wifes death. Or any other woman, as persons, of the same kind are often called, sisters and brethren, and that by this, that Polygamy, which Christ condemns (Mat. xix. 5.) is forbidden here. But it is observable that Christ confutes Polygamy and divorces not by any of Moses's laws (which probably he would not have omitted, if they had been to this purpose) but by the first institution of marriage, (Gen. ii. 23.) In her life-time—This clause is added to signify God's allowance to marry one wife after another, when she is dead, and thereby to intimate how the word sister is to be understood.

V. 21. Thou shalt not let any of thy seed pass through the fire—This was done by burning them in the fire, and by making them pass between two fires, which was a kind of consecration of them to that God. Molech—Or, Moloch, called also Milcom, an idol chiefly of the Ammonites. This seems to be the Saturn of the heathens, to whom children and men were sacrificed. This is mentioned, because the neighbours of Israel were most infected with this idolatry, and therefore they are particularly cautioned against it, though under this all other idols and acts or kinds of idolatry are comprehended and forbidden. Neither shalt thou prophane the name of thy God—Either by joining him with, or by forsaking him for an idol, whereby the name, honour, and service of God would be defiled, and exposed to the scorn as if he were but one of the same kind with their deities.

V. 25. The land itself vomiteth out her inhabitants—As no less burdens to the earth than corrupted food is to the stomach.

V. 26. Neither any of your own nation, nor any stranger—For though they might not force them to submit to their religion, yet they might restrain them from the public contempt of the Jewish laws, and from the violation of natural laws, which, besides the offence against God and nature, were matters of evil example and consequence to the Israelites themselves.

V. 29. The souls that commit them shall be cut off—By death to be inflicted by the magistrates, in case of idolatry with Moloch or other false Gods; and, in case of the magistrates neglect, by God himself.

V. 30. Commit not any one of these abominable customs—The Heathen nations committed these crimes, the Jews are forbid to commit them, which necessarily supposes them capable of committing them; in the laws and judgments of God against these crimes, the depraved state of the human race is discovered to us. What must his love be, who died for men, when they were thus dead and lost to God, and the nature of everlasting life? What must be the crime of slighting a Redeemer from such a state; what must be the crime of preventing men from regarding the Spirit of God, as the sole cause of every soul's recovery from so deep a fall? (Phil. ii. 13. 1 John v. 18.)

CHAP.

Before Christ 1490.

2 Speak unto all the congregation of the children of Israel, and say unto them, [a] Ye shall be holy: for I the Lord your God am holy.

a Chap. 11. 44. and 20. 7, 26. 1 Pet. 1. 16.

3 ¶ [b] Ye shall fear every man his mother and his father, and [c] keep my sabbaths: I am the Lord your God.

b Exod. 20. 12.

4 [d] Turn ye not unto idols, [e] nor make to yourselves molten gods: I am the Lord your God.

c Exod. 20. 8. and 31. 13.
d Exod. 20. 4.
e Exod. 34. 17. Deut. 27. 15.

5 ¶ And

CHAP. XIX.

V. 2. Ye shall be holy—Separated from all the fore-mentioned defilements, and intirely consecrated to God, and obedient to all his laws and statutes. By my grace ye shall be enabled to do them, and by the Spirit of your God given unto you for the sake of the promised Seed and Saviour, ye shall have that holiness without which no man shall dwell with me in glory. (Heb. xii. 14.) I the Lord your God am holy—Both in my essence, and in all my laws, which are holy, and just, and good, and in all my actions.

V. 3. Ye shall fear every man his mother, and his father—The mother is put first, partly because the practice of this duty begins there; mothers, by perpetual converse being more and sooner known to their children than their fathers, and partly because this duty is most commonly neglected to the mother, upon whom children have not so much dependance as they have upon their father. And this fear includes the two great duties of reverence and obedience. And keep my sabbaths—This is here added, to shew, that, whereas it is enjoyned to parents, that they should take care that the Sabbath be observed both by themselves, and by their children, it is the duty of children to fear and obey their parents, and if parents should neglect their duty herein, or by their command, counsel, or example, draw them to pollute the Sabbath, yet the children in that case must keep the Sabbath, and in all such cases prefer the command of God, before the commands of their parents or superiors.

V. 4. Turn ye not—Turn not your hearts and faces from me. This intimates, that there turning to idols is a turning from God, and that they could not serve both God and idols. Unto idols—The word signifies such as are no Gods, or nothings, as they are called, (1 Cor. viii. 4.) many idols having no being, but only in the fancy of their worshippers, and all of them having no virtue or power to do good or evil. Nor make to yourselves molten gods—Nor graven gods, such expressions are generally to be understood of all idol or image worship. The gross idolatry of bowing down to any representations of the Divine Being, still continues to be a part of the evidence of the fallen and corrupt state of the human mind; but where men are informed that an idol is nothing, and that to make any visible representation of God, whom the heaven of heavens cannot contain, is to dishonour God, then the deceiver of mankind endeavours to keep every one from the spiritual worship of God, by offering temporal or fancied objects, as the idols of their hearts: the more gross and evident these are, the more dishonourable to God, and therefore most desired by satan and his angels, whose temptations are suited to every temper, passion, and desire of the soul. And those that would be shocked at bowing down to an idol, or parents who would be at making their children pass through the fire, shall be led to educate their children from their infancy in a way as contrary to the mind and will of God, as idol worship, or a consecration to an idol by name, is to the true worship of God. We cannot but allow that to live for those ends, and in that manner which God would have us live in from first to last of our life of trial, must of all other things be most to be desired; because God is too good to desire men should live for any other ends, or in any other manner than that which his infinite wisdom knows is best for us, both here and for ever. And for what ends, and in what manner God would have us live, we need not be at a loss to know: God himself has been upon earth in the person of the Lord Jesus Christ, who, besides performing the glorious work peculiar to himself, as a Man he has given all men an example both of the ends of living, and the manner of living; and when the life and example of the Lord Jesus is regarded as that which must be most pleasing to God, and by certain consequence the best for us to imitate, then those views and ends of living, which are contrary to all that can be collected from the life of the Lord Jesus, are spiritually as idolatrous as bowing down to an idol, or making a child pass through the fire. When the end that is truly aimed at, the object that is lived for is not God, it is an idol, and whatever name it is called by honour, credit, gain, or the pleasures of sense, it is only a fancied good, not a real one; it will soon be separated from us, and become nothing to us; and the soul that has not God for its good, before it is separated from the body by death, it will be separated from God and from blessedness for ever; and the difference between a visible and professed idol, and having the heart set on any thing that has not God for its end, is only that difference which there is between one evil and another; and after we see a little of the danger of allowing ourselves to live a day in this state of separation from God our Saviour, the only rest for our souls, it requires our utmost caution, that we are not still misled by the suggestions of satan, and the language of those that know not God, nor regard his will, as the rule of judging of that which is right and wrong. That infinite goodness is ever willing to increase and encourage the least degree of goodness in any soul of man, there can be no doubt, because that goodness however small came from himself; but finally every soul must either go to God, or be seperated from Him: In God's designs of mercy to every soul of man, he has declared he willeth not the death of a sinner; but we must not allow ourselves to be deceived by being made to believe, that it is only the confined thoughts of particular persons to suppose that there is any such danger in living in the spirit of the world, and for objects that are confined to time. It is not the language of particular persons or of any sect or party, it is God that says, He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life: And he that believeth not the Son shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him, (John iii. 36.) He that believeth on the Son of God hath the witness in himself, that he is passed from death unto life. He that believeth not God hath made him a liar; and the whole world—All men in their natural state lieth in wickedness. He that hath the Son hath life, hath the nature of eternal life, by the Spirit of God dwelling in him; and he that hath not the Son of God, hath not life; (1 John v.) is not possessed of the life of God in his soul, is without the nature of God and of everlasting life; and the state in which he is living that is without God in the world, stands exposed to the wrath to come till he turns unto God. To bring up therefore and educate children in ways and with views altogether unlike and contrary to all that can be drawn from the life and example of Christ Jesus the Lord, is doing that spiritually and in truth, which was done visible by a consecration of children to an idol god; and all that we see in the Scriptures of outward idol worship, is to inform us of the natural inclination of the minds of all men to depart from the living God; and it is to forget that the hearts of all men are alike, to think that the people of Israel had either harder hearts or were more inclined to forget God than the people of any other country. Satan's temptations are ever to lead men into the greatest evils, into the most gross idolatry; but when by the light of revelation the ignorance and folly of all open sin is seen; and when the wrath of God has been made evident against open vice; then to prevail with men to do that in heart, in affection, in the very spring and spirit of our minds, which men in other ages and countries did openly and visibly, is the constant design of the enemy of God and man. To bow down to an idol called Mammon, to sing praises

Before Christ 1490.

5 ¶ And [f] if ye offer a ſacrifice of peace-offerings unto the Lord; ye ſhall offer it, at your own will.

[f] Chap. 7. 16.

6 It ſhall be eaten the ſame day ye offer it, and on the morrow: and if ought remain until the third day, it ſhall be burnt in the fire.

7 And if it be eaten at all on the third day, it is abominable; it ſhall not be accepted.

8 Therefore every one that eateth it ſhall bear his iniquity, becauſe he hath profaned the hallowed thing of the Lord: and that ſoul ſhall be cut off from among his people.

[g] Chap. 23. 22. Deut. 24. 19. Ruth 2. 15, 16.

9 ¶ And [g] when ye reap the harveſt of your land, thou ſhalt not wholly reap the corners of thy field, neither ſhalt thou gather the gleanings of thy harveſt.

10 And thou ſhalt not glean thy vineyard, neither ſhalt thou gather every grape of thy vineyard; thou ſhalt leave them for the poor and ſtranger: I am the Lord your God.

Before Christ 1490.

11 ¶ [h] Ye ſhall not ſteal, neither deal falſly, neither lie one to another.

[h] Exod. 20. 15. and 22. 1, 7, 10.

12 ¶ And ye ſhall not [i] ſwear by my name falſly, neither ſhalt thou profane the name of thy God: I am the Lord.

[i] Exod. 20. 7. Chap. 6. 3. Deut. 5. 11. Matt. 5. 34. James 5. 12.

13 ¶ Thou ſhalt not defraud thy neighbour, neither rob him: [l] the wages of him that is hired, ſhall not abide with thee all night until the morning.

[l] Deut. 24. 14, 15. Mal. 3. 5. James 5. 4.

14 ¶ Thou ſhalt not curſe the deaf, [m] nor put a ſtumbling-block before the blind, but ſhalt fear thy God: I am the Lord.

[m] Deut. 27. 18.

15 ¶ Ye ſhall do no unrighteouſneſs in judgment; thou ſhalt not [n] reſpect the perſon of the poor, nor honour the perſon of the mighty; but in righteouſneſs ſhalt thou judge thy neighbour.

[n] Exod. 23. 3. Deut. 1. 17. and 16. 19. and 27. 19. Prov. 24. 23. James 2. 9.

16 ¶ [o] Thou ſhalt not go up and down as a

[o] Exod. 23. 1. Pſal. 15. 3. and 50. 20. Prov. 11. 13. and 20. 19.

praiſes before an image, and to addreſs prayer to a figure of wood or ſtone; and to give our very hearts deſires to get money, only rejoicing when riches increaſe, are but different diſcoveries of the ſame diſeaſe of the ſoul. And the ſevere ſentence againſt idolatry, in the outward act is declared in God's word, both to keep men from committing that crime,—And to make known to all men that the ſoul will be cut off from God and everlaſting life as the natural conſequence of living and dying with the its deſires ſet upon any other object but the one ſupreme good; the Lord of life and glory who offers himſelf to any ſoul of man; and whoſe offers are rejected by us when we ſet our hearts upon any other good; and the endleſs danger of idolatry being the ſame to men in all ages, in all countries, it is no leſs the command of God in the New Teſtament than it is in the Old to keep ourſelves from idols. (1 John v. xxi.)

V. 5. Ye ſhall offer it at your own will—What you think fit: yet in ſuch manner as it may be accepted by God on your behalf, and not in ſuch manner as to loſe the end you aim at God's acceptance: for if ye do otherwiſe than God hath preſcribed, it ſhall not be accepted, v. 7. but on the contrary ſeverely puniſhed.

V. 8. Every one that eateth it ſhall bear his iniquity—The puniſhment of his iniquity, inſtead of acceptation he ſhall receive puniſhment.

V. 10. I am the Lord your God—Who gave you all theſe things with a reſervation of my authority over you and right in them, and with a charge of giving part of them to the poor.

V. 11. Neither lie one to another—To the defrauding of him of any of his goods, to which kind of lying the words foregoing and following ſeem here to reſtrain it, though all ſorts of lying are unlawful. (Rev. ixx. 11.) All liars ſhall have their part in the lake that burneth with fire and brimſtone: which is the ſecond death. (Rev. xxi. 8.) Who ſhall be ſaved? He that repenteth, forſaketh his ſin, and believeth the Goſpel, believeth in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt as having by his death made an atonement to God for the ſins of the world, and that for his ſake all that believe in him ſhall receive grace to ſave them from the nature of ſin in them, and from the power of it over them. Have I this day this teſtimony that I am paſſed from death unto life, that I ſpeak the truth from the heart, believing that God hates lying lips—the ſoul that is wilfully or careleſsly living in a ſpirit of deceit or falſhood?

V. 12. Ye ſhall not ſwear by my name falſly—This is here added, to ſhew, how one ſin draws on another, and that when men will lie for their own advantage they will eaſily be induced to perjury. Neither ſhalt thou prophane the name of thy God—By any unholy uſe of it. It is an additional precept, thou ſhalt not abuſe my holy name by ſwearing even to the truth raſhly, becauſe in ſo doing thou wilt prophane the name of thy God.

V. 13. The wages of him that is hired ſhall not abide with thee all night—Becauſe his neceſſities require it for preſent ſubſiſtence.

V. 14. Thou ſhalt not curſe the deaf, nor put a ſtumbling block before the blind—Under theſe two particulars are forbidden all injuries done to ſuch as are unable to right or defend themſelves; of whom God therefore takes the more care. Fear thy God—Who both diſcerns the injuries you do them and can avenge them, though the blind and deaf cannot.

V. 15. Thou ſhalt not reſpect the perſon of the poor—So as through pity to him to give an unrighteous ſentence. In righteouſneſs ſhalt thou judge—According to the plain rules of right between man and man; neither fearing the reproach of favouring the rich and oppreſſing the poorer party if the ſentence is againſt him; nor being partial to the rich or great either from any dread of his anger or deſire of his kindneſs; knowing that every ſentence ſmall and great which is given by men, is not only recorded in the memories of men, or in the books of courts of juſtice, but written in thoſe books, according to which all that have ever lived to know right from wrong, ſhall after death be finally judged of God, and then have peace or ſhame according to the truth of their conduct. (Rev. xx. 12.)

V. 16. Thou ſhalt not go up and down as a tale-bearer—Go from one to another, and divine evil and falſe reports concerning others, which though many times it proceeds only from levity and talkativeneſs, yet apparently tends to the great injury of our neighbour. Do we remember when we ſpeak of other perſons, that He who alone can ſave us, ſo loved thoſe we ſpeak of, as to die for them? Muſt not every unkind thing that is ſaid or inſinuated of any perſon give him grief who died for all; and whoſe will it is that all our words ſhall be ſpoken as well as our works done in charity? Neither ſhalt thou ſtand againſt the blood of thy neighbour—In judgment as a falſe accuſer, or falſe witneſs: In Courts of Judicature.

V. 17. Thou ſhalt not hate—Hatred, which is the common cauſe

Before Christ 1490.

a tale-bearer among thy people; neither shalt thou stand against the blood of thy neighbour: I am the Lord.

17 ¶ [p] Thou shalt not hate thy brother in thine heart: [q] thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbour, * and not suffer sin upon him.

18 ¶ Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge against the children of thy people, [r] but thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself: I am the Lord.

19 ¶ Ye shall keep my statutes: Thou shalt not let thy cattle gender with a diverse kind: [s] Thou shalt not sow thy field with mingled seed: [t] neither shall a garment mingled of linen and woollen come upon thee.

20 ¶ And whosoever lieth carnally with a woman that is a bond-maid * † betrothed to an husband, and not at all redeemed, nor freedom given her; ‡ ‖ she shall be scourged: they shall not be put to death, because she was not free.

21 And [u] he shall bring his trespass-offering unto the Lord, unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, even a ram for a trespass-offering.

Before Christ 1490.

22 And the priest shall make an atonement for him with the ram of the trespass-offering, before the Lord, for his sin which he hath done: and the sin which he hath done, shall be forgiven him.

23 ¶ And when ye shall come into the land, and shall have planted all manner of trees for food; then ye shall count the fruit thereof as uncircumcised: three years shall it be as uncircumcised unto you: it shall not be eaten of.

24 But in the fourth year all the fruit thereof shall be § holy to praise the Lord withal.

25 And in the fifth year shall ye eat of the fruit thereof, that it may yield unto you the increase thereof: I am the Lord your God.

26 ¶ [x] Ye shall not eat any thing with the blood: [y] neither shall ye use inchantment, nor observe times.

27 Ye

p 1 John 2. 11. and 3. 15.
q Matt. 18. 15. Luke 17. 3. Gal. 6. 1. Ephes. 5. 11. 1 Tim. 5. 20.
* Or, that thou bear not sin for him. See Rom. 1. 32. 1 Cor. 5. 2. Ephes. 5. 11. 1 Tim. 5. 22. 2 John 10. 11.
r Prov. 20. 22. Matth. 5. 43. & 22. 39. Rom. 13. 9. Gal. 5. 14. James 2. 8. s Deut. 22. 9, 10.
t Deut. 22. 11.
* Or, abused by any.
† Heb. reproached by, or, for man.
‡ Or, they.
‖ Heb. there shall be a scourging.
u Chap. 5. 15.
§ Heb. holiness of praises to the LORD.
x Chap. 17. 10, &c. Deut. 12. 23.
y Deut. 18. 10. 1 Sam. 15. 23.

cause, and a degree, of murder, (1 John iii. 15.) Thy brother—The same with neighbour, every man. (Matth. v. 44.) God's Law commanded them to love strangers no less than Israelites. Thou shalt in any wise rebuke thy neighbour—If thy brother hath done thee or others any injury, thou shalt neither divulge it to others as a tale-bearer, nor hate him, and smother that hatred by sullen silence, (as 2 Sam xiii. 22.) nor justify and flatter and encourage him therein, but shalt freely and in love, not with hatred, tell him of his fault. And not suffer sin upon him—Not suffer him to lay under the guilt of any sin, which thou by rebuking of him, and thereby bringing him to true repentance, couldst in some sort free him from. But the phrase of suffering sin upon him may be rendered. Thou shalt not bear sin for him, thou shalt not make thyself guilty of his sin, as thou wilt assuredly do, if thou dost not perform thy duty of rebuking him for his sin, which is a likely way, and a course appointed by God to remove the guilt of his sin from him, and consequently, as it was his fault that he sinned and contracted guilt, so it is thy fault, that his guilt continues upon him. Do I believe that man is a creature as certainly accountable to God, as that he is a reasonable creature? Do I believe the Scriptures that the soul that sinneth shall surely die,—lose itself or be cast off from God, and that he that committeth sin is of the devil, (1 John iii. 8.) and living and dying in that state, will remain subject to the power of darkness and wickedness; He that loves not his fellow creatures whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen? Do we love those whom we know or believe to be living in sin, when we allow them to pass by us, or continue about us, uninformed of the danger, to which every man exposes himself to by every sin?

V. 18. Thou shalt not avenge, nor bear any grudge—Nor keep the injury in thy memory. This is opposed to those who say they will forgive, but not forget an injury. If we forgive men their trespasses, our heavenly Father will also forgive us. But if we forgive not men their trespasses, neither will God forgive us our offences. (Matth. vi. 14. 15.) Thy neighbour as thyself—Not the Israelites only, but every other man as appears by comparing this place with verse 33. where this law is applied to strangers. I am the Lord—Who will judge all men by this law of love; and nothing will avail a man in that day if he is destitute of this principle of divine charity, by which those that possess it are led to hinder all that can hurt, and to forward whatever can promote the welfare of their fellow creatures; remembering that God who has commanded men to love one another as themselves, has no less the good of all than every one in view, and that he whose conduct proceeds upon this principle, has no less certainty that it shall go well with him, than that God has commanded men to live by this rule; and that they who consider themselves as stewards of every talent of the mind, and of all they possess to be employed and laid out agreeable to the Divine will, are securing the best return to themselves whilst they are living for the good of others.

V. 19. Ye shall keep my statutes—My ordinances, of nature, or the order which I have appointed. By these laws we see that nothing is beneath the care of God; and that men in all things small and great are to consider the will of God and make that the rule in all they do.

V. 23. When ye shall have planted trees for food; three years it shall not be eaten of—Hereby men were taught to bridle their appetites, a lesson of great use and absolute necessity in a godly life.

V. 24. The fourth year all the fruit thereof shall be holy—Consecrated to the Lord, as the first-fruits and tithes were, and therefore given to the Priests and Levites, yet so that part of them were communicated to the poor widows, and fatherless and strangers. To bless the Lord by whose power and goodness the trees bring forth fruit to perfection.

V. 25. That it may yield unto you the increase thereof—That God may be pleased to give his blessing, which alone can make them fruitful. I am the Lord your God—And the God of nature, on whose will, the fruits of the earth depend, who will give plenty to them that obey me; and will make a fruitful land barren, to punish the sins of those that dwell therein.

V. 26. Ye shall not eat any thing with the blood—Any flesh out of which the blood is not first poured,—Other nations, when they offered sacrifices to the devils, did eat part of the sacrifices beside the blood, which was kept in basins for that end. Neither shall ye observe times—Superstitiously, by the observation of the clouds, or stars, or otherwise, by esteeming some days lucky, others unlucky.

Before Christ 1490.

27 [y] Ye shall not round the corners of your heads, neither shalt thou mar the corners of thy beard.

[y] Chap. 21. 5. Jer. 9. 25. & 48. 37.

28 Ye shall not [a] make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead, nor print any marks upon you: I am the Lord.

[a] Deut. 14. 1. Jer. 16. 6. & 48. 37.

29 ¶ [b] Do not † prostitute thy daughter, to cause her to be a whore; lest the land fall to whoredom, and the land become full of wickedness.

[b] Deut. 23. 17.
† Heb. profane.

30 ¶ [c] Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the Lord.

[c] Chap. 26. 2.

31 ¶ [d] Regard not them that have familiar spirits, neither seek after wizards, to be defiled by them: I am the Lord your God.

[d] Chap. 20. 6, 27. Deut. 18. 10. Isai. 8. 19. Acts 16. 16.

32 ¶ [e] Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and fear thy God: I am the Lord.

[e] 1 Tim. 5. 1.

33 ¶ And [f] if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not ‡ vex him.

[f] Exod. 22. 21. & 23. 9.
‡ Or, oppress.

34 [g] But the stranger that dwelleth with you, shall be unto you as one born amongst you, and [h] thou shalt love him as thyself; for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.

[g] Exod. 23. 9.
[h] Deut. 10. 19.

35 ¶ Ye shall do no unrighteousness in judgment, in mete-yard, in weight, or in measure.

Before Christ 1490.

36 [i] Just balances, just ‖ weights, a just ephah, and a just hin shall ye have: I am the Lord your God, which brought you out of the land of Egypt.

[i] Deut. 25. 13. Prov. 11. 1. & 16. 11. & 20. 10.
‖ Heb. stones

37 Therefore shall ye observe all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them: I am the Lord.

CHAP. XX.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 [a] Again, thou shalt say to the children of Israel, [b] Whosoever he be of the children of Israel, or of the strangers that sojourn in Israel, that giveth any of his seed unto Molech; he shall surely be put to death; the people of the land shall stone him with stones.

[a] Chap. 18. 21.
[b] Deut. 18. 10. 2 Kings 17. 17. & 23. 10. Jer. 32. 35.

3 And [c] I will set my face against that man, and will cut him off from among his people: because he hath given of his seed unto Molech, to defile my sanctuary, and to profane my holy name.

[c] Chap. 17. 10.

4 And

V. 27. Ye shall not round the corners of your heads—Your temples. This the Gentiles did, God would not have his people agree with idolaters, neither in their idolatries, nor so much as in appearances.

V. 28. Ye shall not make any cuttings in your flesh for the dead—Which the Gentiles commonly did, both in the worship of their idols, and in their solemn mournings. Such actions being of the nature of human sacrifice; and might convey to others the mistaken notion that it was in the power of the living to do something in behalf of the dead, contrary to the word of God, which declares this life to be the only time and state of trial, and that as the tree falls—as life ends, so it lies—so is the soul found in the world of spirits. (Eccl. xi. 3.)

V. 29. Do not prostitute thy daughter—As the Gentiles frequently did for the honour of some of their idols, to whom diverse women were consecrated and publicly prostituted.

V. 30. Ye shall reverence my sanctuary—Not presuming to approach it without remembring that you are approaching the more immediate presence of God.

V. 31. Regard not them that have familiar spirits—That have entered into covenant with the devil, by whose help they foretel many things to come, and acquaint men with secret things. Them and their knowledge alike avoid; evil never being to be resorted to, that good may come of it. To disregard any of God's commands, exposes those that do so to the wrath of God, who, to them that disobey Him, and remain impenitent, He is a consuming fire. (Heb. xii. 29.) Neither seek after wizards—Another name expressing the same thing for substance, to wit, persons in league with the devil, with some difference only in the manner of their operation.

V. 32. Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head—To do them reverence when they pass by. A reason of the former precept, because old men in some respect most resemble God, who is stiled the ancient of days, and this respect is due to such especially, for God's sake who requires this reverence, and whose singular blessing old age is.

V. 33. A stranger ye shall not vex him—With opprobrious expressions, or grievous exactions.

V. 34. The stranger shall be unto you as one born amongst you—As to the matters of common right. Ye were strangers—And therefore are sensible of the fears, distresses, and miseries of such, which call for your pity, and you ought to do to them, as you would that others should do to you, when you were such. Our past sufferings are to teach us to be kind to those who are under the same circumstances; and thus are mens difficulties intended by the Lord to be turned to good account, and ever afterwards the means of promoting other mens peace.

V. 37. Therefore shall ye observe all my statutes, and all my judgments, and do them—Because my blessings and deliverances are not indulgences to sin, but greater obligations to all duties to God and men. So that if religion and righteousness were utterly lost in the world, they ought in all reason to be found among you as my peculiar people and freed men. I am the Lord—And none shall wait for my salvation in my appointed ways without finding cause to rejoice that he ever set himself to seek my favour; first by looking to me for grace, and then by the strength thereof to live conformable to my will; overcoming all difficulties and opposition by the blood of the lamb. (Rev. xxii. 11.)

CHAP. XX.

V. 2. Shalt say to the children of Israel—Here follow the punishments of the crimes forbidden in the former chapters. Whosoever he be that giveth any of his seed unto Molech, shall be put to death—Not only such as were proselytes, but all others, these being gross immoralities, and therefore the toleration of such actions was not only against reason and the interest of the commonwealth by the imitation of such examples, but also against the light of nature and laws of humanity.

V. 3. I will set my face against that man—Deal with him as an enemy, and make him a monument of my justice, either by punishing him immediately and eminently, when the Magistrate cannot or will not do it, or by adding to his corporal punishments my curse

Before Christ 1490.

4 And if the people of the land do any ways hide their eyes from the man, when he giveth of his seed unto Molech, and kill him not:

d Chap. 17. 10. 5 Then [d] I will set my face against that man, and [e] against his family, and will cut e Exod. 20. 5. him off, and all that [f] go a whoring after f Chap. 17. 7. him, to commit whoredom with Molech, from among their people.

g Chap. 19. 31. 6 ¶ And [g] the soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits, and after wizards, to go a whoring after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people.

h Chap. 11. 44. & 19. 2. 1 Pet. 1. 16. 7 ¶ [h] Sanctify yourselves therefore, and be ye holy: for I am the Lord your God.

8 And ye shall keep my statutes, and do them: I am the Lord which sanctify you.

9 ¶ [i] For every one that curseth his father or his mother, shall be surely put to death: he hath cursed his father or his mother; his blood shall be upon him.

Before Christ 1490.

i Exod. 21. 17. Deut. 27. 16. Prov. 20. 20. Matth. 15. 4.

k Chap. 18. 20. Deut. 22. 22. John 8. 4, 5. 10 ¶ And [k] the man that committeth adultery with another man's wife, even he that committeth adultery with his neigbour's wife, the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death.

l Chap. 18. 8. 11 [l] And the man that lieth with his father's wife, hath uncovered his father's nakedness: both of them shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

m Chap. 18. 15. Deut. 27. 23. 12 [m] And if a man lie with his daughter in law, both of them shall surely be put to death: they have wrought confusion; their blood shall be upon them.

13 If

curse upon his soul and name. This shall be the consequence to every soul of man that neither fears my justice, nor regards the obligations he is under to love and serve his Creator and Redeemer, but despises his own mercies, and turns his heart from God the fountain of blessedness to any idol. And will cut him off from among his people—From the land of the living. Because he hath given of his seed unto Molech, to defile my sanctuary—The sanctuary was said to be defiled by gross abominations committed in that city or land where God's sanctuary was. And where the will of God is fully to be known, crimes committed against it have in them an higher degree of guilt, and draw after them a greater degree of misery, as the punishment of that conduct which is contrary to the declared will of God; which as it requires nothing but that which is certainly best for us, so is our own misery the consequence of our disregard and opposition to the Divine nature and will, as certain as the nature of things; and is never to be avoided but by accepting and yielding to that grace of God which produces true repentance, and restores the life of God to the soul, and makes it conformable to his holy will. And to profane my holy Name—Partly by despising it themselves, and partly by disgracing it to others, and giving them occasion to blaspheme it, and to abhor the true religion, because they saw it deserted and condemned by those that best knew it and once embraced it.

V. 4. And if the people hide their eyes from the man when he giveth of his seed unto Molech, and kill him not—Wink at his fault, and forbear to accuse and punish him.

V. 5. Then I will set my face against that man, and against his family—Who by their connivance make themselves guilty of his sin, Such being the evil of sin in God's sight, that all who know of it, and let it pass and continue with their concurrence, using no endeavours to bring the offenders against the Divine will to a sense of their danger, or to the appointed punishment, if they will not be reclaimed, are here made principals like men of the same party by whom when murder is committed, and God himself pronounces the same sentence against those that wink at the crime and those who commit it; all sin being of the nature of murder with God, who himself in our nature, suffered death for every sin, which his infinite wisdom saw would be committed; sins of all kinds are therefore the thorns, nails and spears with which Jesus was pierced and wounded when he died for men, bearing the iniquities of us all; and he that sins or winks at sin, says alike in the strongest of all language, his conduct—I do not care what the compassionate Son of God suffered for sin, though my own salvation solely depends upon his love to me and his suffering for my sake.

V. 6. The soul that turneth after such as have familiar spirits and wizards—To seek knowledge or counsel or help from them. I will set my face against that soul, and will cut him off—I will destroy him, though his crime may be unknown to men. He that seeks right knowledge from those that receive their knowledge from Satan, wilfully become the servants of him whom they thus shew they are willing to obey on the terms of what they think to be their own advantage. To deny that there is any communication between Satan and the souls of men, is to declare our ignorance of God's word; and on the other hand, to believe that the God of this world (as satan is called) can and does communicate knowledge to them that set their hearts to obey him, and then to apply to such as are familiar with the father of lies, and whose design is only to deceive and finally destroy, is at once the greatest folly and the greatest wickedness—It is folly because it is looking for good from the author of all evil, and it is wickedness to sue to satan or those that obey him for aid, because that is to prefer satan's aid to God's, whose goodness makes him wait to be gracious to every soul of man, there not being a single strait or difficulty in which he does not say to all that will but hear him, cast ye your care upon me; and who has promised to guide the meek in judgment, and to give all necessary knowledge to them that ask him. (1 Pet. v. 7. Psal. xxv. 9. James i. 5.)

V. 7. Be ye holy—This is often repeated, that it may constantly be brought to our minds that the end of all our faith in God's redeeming love, in the work of his grace, and regard to his will, is to bring the soul to that by the second Adam, which was lost by the first—The image of God in the soul, the mind that was also in Christ Jesus, that holiness without which no man can see, or dwell with the Lord, who is of purer eyes, of a nature that cannot behold, or allow any thing that has the nature of evil to be with him, and the spirits of the just made perfect.

V. 8. I am the Lord which sanctify you—Who separated you from all impurities and idolatries, to be a peculiar people to myself, and who sanctify you, and give you my grace to do what I require, to keep my statutes.

V. 9. For every one that curseth—Which is not meant of every perverse expression, but of bitter reproaches or imprecations. His blood shall be upon him—He is guilty of his own death: he deserves to die for so unnatural a crime.

V. 10. The adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death—The design, the intention to commit the crime, is the crime in his sight, who sees the heart; the law of God condemns the guilty to lose his or her natural life, and the soul that is living in this sinful state, if separated from the body without being changed

Before Christ 1490.

13 [a] If a man also lie with mankind, as he lieth with a woman, both of them have committed an abomination: they shall surely be put to death; their blood shall be upon them.

14 [c] And if a man take a wife and her mother, it is wickedness: they shall be burnt with fire, both he and they: that there be no wickedness among you.

15 [p] And if a man lie with a beast, he shall surely be put to death: and ye shall slay the beast.

16 And if a woman approach unto any beast, and lie down thereto, thou shalt kill the woman and the beast; they shall surely be put to death: their blood shall be upon them.

17 [q] And if a man shall take his sister, his father's daughter, or his mother's daughter, and see her nakedness and she see his nakedness; it is a wicked thing; and they shall be cut off in the sight of their people: he hath uncovered his sister's nakedness, he shall bear his iniquity.

18 [r] And if a man shall lie with a woman having her sickness, and shall uncover her nakedness; he hath * discovered her fountain, and she hath uncovered the fountain of her blood: and both of them shall be cut off from among their people.

19 [s] And thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy mother's sister, nor of thy father's sister: for he uncovereth his near kin: they shall bear their iniquity.

20 [t] And if a man shall lie with his uncle's wife, he hath uncovered his uncle's nakedness: they shall bear their sin, they shall die childless.

21 [u] And if a man shall take his brother's wife, it is † an unclean thing: he hath uncovered his brother's nakedness, they shall be childless.

22 ¶ Ye shall therefore keep all my [x] statutes, and all my judgments, and do them: that the land whither I bring you to dwell therein, [y] spue you not out.

23 [z] And ye shall not walk in the manners of the nation, which I cast out before you; for they committed all these things, and therefore I abhorred them.

24 But I have said unto you, Ye shall inherit their land, and I will give it unto you to possess it, a land that floweth with milk and honey: I am the Lord your God, which have separated you from other people.

25 [b] Ye shall therefore put difference between clean beasts and unclean, and between unclean fowls and clean: and ye shall not make your souls abominable by beast, or by fowl, or by any manner of living thing that ‡ ‖ creepeth on the ground, which I have separated from you as unclean.

26 And

[a] Chap. 18. 22.
[c] Chap. 18. 17. Deut. 27. 23.
[p] Chap. 18. 23. Deut. 27. 21.
[q] Chap. 18. 9. Deut. 27. 22.
[r] Chap. 18. 19. See Chap. 15. 24.
* Heb. made naked.
[s] Chap. 18. 12, 13.
[t] Chap. 18. 14.
[u] Chap. 18. 16.
† Heb. a separation.
[x] Chap. 18. 26.
[y] Chap. 18. 25, 28.
[z] Chap. 18. 3, 30.
[a] Chap. 18. 27. [a] Deut. 9. 5.
[b] Chap. 11. 2. Deut. 14. 4.
‡ Or, moveth. ‖ Heb. creepeth.

changed in its very nature, cannot have everlasting life. (1 Cor. vi. 9, 10.)

V. 12. They have wrought confusion—By perverting the order which God hath appointed.

V. 13. They shall surely be put to death—Except the one party was forced by the other. God appoints the punishment of death to him that is wilfully guilty of this crime; and this also makes known that the soul living in the spirit of this crime is excluded from his presence, and everlasting life, shut out from all communication with the pure, just and good, externally to remain without among dogs, sorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers and idolaters, and all that love or make lies. (Rev. xxii. 15.)

V. 14. It is wickedness—Extraordinary wickedness, as the singularity of the punishment sheweth. They shall be burnt with fire, both he and they—All of them, if they consented to it.

V. 15. Ye shall slay the beast—To blot out the memory of so loathsome a crime, and that by so severe a punishment of that creature which was only a passive instrument to man's sin, men might be assured that a more dreadful punishment than corporal death was reserved for them, if they repented not.

V. 17. They shall be cut off in the sight of their people—Publicly, for the terror and caution of others.

V. 20. They shall die childless—They shall either have no children from such an unlawful bed, or their children shall die before them.

V. 21. Except in the case allowed by God, (Deut. xxv. 5.)

V. 23. They committed all these things, and therefore I abhored them—Blessed be the name of the Lord for the plainness of his word; no sincere mind that would do his will, need be at a loss to know what God is pleased with, and what he abhors.

V. 24. I am the Lord your God, which have separated you from other people—By my special grace and favour vouchsafed to you above all people, in glorious and miraculous works wrought for you and among you, and in ordinances and singular privileges and blessings imparted to you, all which calls for your special love and service. And as much as the people of Israel were required to be separated from all other nations, so are all the Israelites, the members of the true church of God, all that would live godly in Christ Jesus, required to separate themselves from all unnecessary intercourse with them that neither fear to offend God, nor discover any desire to live to please him.

V. 25. Ye shall put difference between clean and unclean—As things which by my sentence I have made unclean, and which you must avoid as such. And all those things which the people of Israel were forbid to do or to use in which there was no moral guilt, are so many ways by which their faithfulness to the will of God was to be proved, as every believers faithfulness is proved by his denying himself whatever is not consistent with any institution of God. And many as the restraints are which the people of Israel were laid under, they are doubtless to be considered as so many ways by which all the faithful among them would as certainly grow in grace and in the knowledge and love of God, as that it was God that laid them under these restraints, and it requires our care that we are not misled in forming our judgments on the way to true happiness, by listening to the dictates of our natural inclinations, and to the opinions and examples of the natural world about us, and so concludes that a life of ease, of fulness, indulgence and what is called pleasure, is our greatest good, contrary to the meaning of God's will and the example of

Before Christ 1490.

26 And ye shall be holy unto me: [c] for I the Lord am holy, and have severed you from other people, that ye should be mine.

c Verse 7. Chap. 19. 2. 1 Pet. 1. 16.

27 ¶ [d] A man also or woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall surely be put to death: they shall stone them with stones: their blood shall be upon them.

d Chap. 19. 31. Exod. 22. 18. Deut. 18. 10, 11. 1 Sam. 28. 7, 8.

CHAP. XXI.

AND the Lord said unto Moses, Speak unto the priests the sons of Aaron, and say unto them, [a] There shall none be defiled for the dead among his people.

a Ezek. 44. 25.

2 But for his kin, that is near unto him, that is, for his mother, and for his father, and for his son, and for his daughter, and for his brother,

3 And for his sister a virgin, that is nigh unto him, which hath had no husband: for her may he be defiled.

Before Christ 1490.

4 But * he shall not defile himself, being a chief man among his people, to profane himself.

* Or, being an husband among his people, he shall not defile himself for his wife, &c.

5 [b] They shall not make baldness upon their head, neither shall they shave off the corner of their beard, nor make any cuttings in their flesh.

b See Ezek. 24. 15, 17. Chap. 19. 27, 28. Deut. 14. 1. Ezek. 44. 20.

6 They shall be holy unto their God, and not profane the name of their God; for the offerings of the Lord made by fire, and [c] the bread of their God they do offer: therefore they shall be holy.

c See Chap. 3. 11.

7 [d] They shall not take a wife that is a whore, or profane; neither shall they take a woman

d Ezek. 44. 22.

which he himself has given us in the life of Jesus, and in what he says to all, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily and follow me." (Luke ix. 23.)

V. 26. Have severed you from other people, that ye should be mine—The true church or Israel of God, all that are living by faith in God their Redeemer, dwell in the spirit of God, and he in them, (1 John iv. 13.) and all besides these, the whole world lieth in wickedness (1 John v. 19.) however different the natural characters of men may be. Those that are truly born of the spirit of God, are the children of God, and as the people of Israel were severed from all the other nations, so are the heirs of salvation distinguished by that newness of life which they have received of God through the Lord Jesus Christ. And though nothing can be more certain than that every soul must either be of the number of the children of God by adoption and grace, or not of that number, yet nothing seems to give the human mind greater offence whilst it remains in its natural state, than the bringing home to ourselves this distinction, which God makes between those whose minds or souls have become spiritual, and those that are still carnal, or in the state into which all men are by nature fallen, and which is declared by the word of God to be a state of death to the soul (Rom. viii. 6.) to learn what this change meaneth, must be the great duty of our lives, because on the possession of the nature of God it depends whether our immortal nature shall dwell with God or not, after this life.

CHAP. XXI.

V. 5. They shall not make baldness, &c.—None of the children of Israel shall make use of any of these superstitious and heathenish rites, but the Priests in a more peculiar manner, because they are by word and example to teach the people their duty, not to sorrow for the dead as persons without hope.

V. 6. They shall be holy unto their God—Devoted to God's service, and always prepared and fit for it, and therefore shall keep themselves from all defilement, which makes them unfit for their masters service. And not profane the name of their God—Which they especially bear: they shall not disparage the service of God. Those that are in the priests office, or they who think it their duty to labour for the advancement of the eternal interests of men, such is the importance of this service, that they that are employed in it, are not to allow themselves to be hindered by any human regards, neither sorrow for the dead, nor the temporal interests of the living, are to detain them from the duties of their station, the nature of which is sacred, and to every word and step of their's, consequences of great good or evil are immediatly connected, all which consequences are in themselves eternal, and if possible more important than the consequences of other mens conduct. And for men who are to be employed in the immediate service of God, to lose sight of what is required to be always before them, and to shew they give way to other things, and in their esteem look upon the things of time as if they were to be compared to the interests of eternity; this is to act much worse than the servants of a prince, who shew, that the interests of his kingdom is but the second object with them; which only makes it necessary for such a prince, to have enemies who can gratify the leading wishes of his servants, and then the safety and prosperity of his government is betrayed by the very persons who were entrusted with it. What can be the use of all these cautions against the ministers of God, under the law, giving way to any thing which had but the appearance of not having God and eternity always uppermost in their hearts and minds? must it not be to shew that nothing can be so fatal to the spiritual and everlasting welfare of the souls of men, as for those who are to make known and to keep in mind the truths of God's word, to shew their hearts are set upon other objects, than God and his spiritual kingdom; which never for a moment wants all the rage of satan and his angels against his advancement: Those that are in the stations of the servants of God who will be taken up with any thing below the glory of God, the good of souls, will be sure not to want the offers of every temptation that comes within the power of satan and the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye or the pride of life, to induce them to counteract the divine designs by an example of living to themselves, that all they say from God's word may be made to go for nothing; that all that are under their care may at once be left dead in trespasses and sins, and whilst they are so, think themselves secure from danger; because they know or firmly believe that they only love and take pleasure in the same things which those do, who stand between them and God. That the Judge of all the earth is and will be for ever more displeased with those that allow themselves to be thus misled, and to betray their trust into the hands of the enemy of God and man, than with those that have no such charge committed to them can only be expected, but it is still to be remembered, that God has given his word to the world, and his holy Spirit enlightens every soul of man that comes into it; that if all the ministers of religion of every name, were with one heart to give themselves up to the desire of praise, gain, or self indulgence; the worm that dieth not will still dwell within that soul, which for itself neglected to make use of that knowledge of the way of life, which God's faithfulness and compassion makes known; leaving it in the power of none, whatever may be the neglects of men, to say "It was not made known to them what they should do to be saved."

V. 7. They shall not take a wife that is a whore, or profane—Because the Priest must take care that all the members of his family be free not only from gross wickedness, but from all suspicions of evil and occasions of reproach or contempt, because this would reflect upon himself, and upon God, and religion. The word

Before Christ 1490. woman put away from her husband: for he is holy unto his God.

8 Thou shalt sanctify him therefore, for he offereth the bread of thy God: he shall be holy unto thee: for I the Lord which sanctify you, am holy.

e Gen. 38. 24. 9 ¶ [e] And the daughter of any priest, if she profane herself by playing the whore, she profaneth her father: she shall be burnt with fire.

10 And he that is the high-priest among f Exod. 30. 30. his brethren, upon whose head [f] the anoint- g Exod. 28. 2. Chap. 16. 32. ing oil was poured, and [g] that is consecrated h Chap. 10. 6. to put on the garments, [h] shall not uncover his head, nor rent his clothes:

11 Neither shall he go in to any dead body, nor defile himself for his father, or for his mother:

i Chap. 10. 7. 12 [i] Neither shall he go out of the sanctuary, nor profane the sanctuary of his God; k Exod. 29. 6. for [k] the crown of the anointing oil of his God is upon him: I am the Lord.

l Ezek. 44. 22. 13 And [l] he shall take a wife in her virginity.

14 A widow, or a divorced woman, or profane, or an harlot, these shall he not take: but he shall take a virgin of his own people to wife.

15 Neither shall he profane his seed among his people: for I the Lord do sanctify him.

16 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, Before Christ 1490. saying,

17 Speak unto Aaron, saying, Whosoever he be of thy seed in their generations, that hath any blemish, let him not approach to offer the † bread of his God. † Or, food.

18 For whatsoever man he be that hath a blemish, he shall not approach: a blind man, or a lame, or he that hath a flat nose, or any thing [m] superfluous, m Chap. 22. 23.

19 Or a man that is broken-footed, or broken-handed,

20 Or crook-backt, or § a dwarf, or that § Or, too slender. hath a blemish in his eye, or be scurvy, or scabbed, or hath his stones broken:

21 No man that hath a blemish, of the seed of Aaron the priest, shall come nigh to offer the offerings of the Lord made by fire; he hath a blemish, he shall not come nigh to offer the bread of his God.

22 He shall eat the bread of his God, both of the most holy, and of the holy.

23 Only he shall not go in unto the vail, nor come nigh unto the altar, because he hath a blemish; that he profane not my sanctuary: for I the Lord do sanctify them.

24 And Moses told it unto Aaron, and to his sons, and unto all the children of Israel.

CHAP.

may note one deflowred by any person, though it were by her husband, or a widow, because not only the High-priest was obliged to marry a virgin, ver. 13. but also the inferiour Priests, as appears from Ezek. 44. 22. and that is either signified by this word, or by none other here. It is true, a widow, and a profane person are distinguished, ver. 14. but the same word may be and oft is taken in different senses, both more largely and more strictly, in the same chapter. And there was some reason why it should be more expressly and distinctly set down there, a widow, or one profane or deflowred otherwise, because there was the more need of caution in the High-priest, and therefore the widow is particularly mentioned, which in the former case might be sufficient. Neither shall they take a woman put away from her husband—Though not for adultery, but for light causes, as that would leave some blemish upon her.

V. 8. He shall be holy unto thee—To thy service, he is to act with God, and therefore shall preserve himself in a state of holiness and acceptation with God. I the Lord am holy—And therefore my Ministers must be such also.

V. 9. The daughter of any priest—And by analogy his son and his wife, because the reason of the law here added concerns all. And nothing is more common than to name one kind for the rest of the same nature. She profaneth her father—Exposeth his person and office, and consequently religion, one of whose prime ministers he is, to contempt. She shall be burnt with fire—Which was the severest of all the kinds of punishments among the Jews. Whereby God would shew, both the greatness of their sins who stand in nearer relation to God than others, and how far God is from allowing sin in those who are nearest to him.

V. 12. For the crown of the anointing oil of his God is upon him—The anointing oil, which to him was instead of a crown, by which he was advanced not only above the rest of his brethren, but even above all the people, whose chief governor he was in the things of God, and whilst he discharged the duties of his office, agreeable to the word of God, was accountable to none but God, but if he offended against any law of God, then he was subject and accountable to the civil Magistrate.

V. 13. He shall take a wife—A virgin, because as he was a type of Christ, so his wife was a type of the church, which is compared to a virgin, (2 Cor. xi. 2. Rev. xiv. 4.)

V. 14. He shall take a virgin of his own people to wife—Of the seed of Israel.

V. 15. I the Lord do sanctify him—I have separated him from all other men, for my immediate service.

V. 17. He that hath any blemish, let him not approach to offer—That he might more fully represent Christ, the great High-priest, who was typified both by the priest and sacrifice, and therefore both were to be without blemish, and to teach all men, and especially ministers of holy things, what purity and perfection of heart and life they should labour after.

V. 18. Whatsoever man hath a blemish shall not approach—Unto God, or to serve him in his sanctuary.

V. 22. He shall eat the bread of his God—Whereby God would shew the difference between natural infirmities, and moral defilements, which a man brought upon himself.

V. 23. He shall not go in unto the vail—To the second vail, which was between the Holy and the most Holy place, to burn incense, to order the shew-bread. Nor come nigh the altar, because he hath a blemish, that he prophane not my sanctuary—The holy place set apart for holy uses, to manifest my presence and grace, and to receive my worship and service in them.

CHAP.

Before Christ 1490.

CHAP. XXII.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and to his sons, that they separate themselves from the holy things of the children of Israel, and that they profane not my holy name, in those things which they hallow unto me: I am the Lord.

3 Say unto them, Whosoever he be of all your seed, among your generations, that goeth unto the holy things, which the children of Israel hallow unto the Lord, having his uncleanness upon him, that soul shall be cut off from my presence: I am the Lord.

4 What man soever of the seed of Aaron is a leper, or hath [a] a * running issue; he shall not eat of the holy things, [b] until he be clean. And [c] whoso toucheth any thing that is unclean by the dead, or [d] a man whose seed goeth from him:

5 Or [e] whosoever toucheth any creeping thing, whereby he may be made unclean, or [f] a man of whom he may take uncleanness, whatsoever uncleanness he hath:

6 The soul which hath touched any such shall be unclean until even, and shall not eat of the holy things, unless he wash his flesh with water.

7 And when the sun is down, he shall be clean, and shall afterward eat of the holy things, because it is his food.

8 [g] That which dieth of itself, or is torn with beasts, he shall not eat to defile himself therewith: I am the Lord.

9 They shall therefore keep mine ordinance, lest they bear sin for it, and die therefore, if they profane it: I the Lord do sanctify them.

10 [h] There shall no stranger eat of the holy thing: a sojourner of the priest, or an hired servant shall not eat of the holy thing.

11 But if the priest buy any soul * with his money, he shall eat of it, and he that is born in his house: they shall eat of his meat.

12 If the priest's daughter also be married unto † a stranger, she may not eat of an offering of the holy things.

13 But if the priest's daughter be a widow, or divorced, and have no child, and is returned unto her father's house, [i] as in her youth, she shall eat of her father's meat? but there shall no stranger eat thereof.

14 ¶ And if a man eat of the holy thing unwittingly, then he shall put the fifth part thereof unto it, and shall give it unto the priest, with the holy thing.

15 And they shall not profane the holy things of the children of Israel which they offer unto the Lord:

16 Or ‡ suffer them to bear the iniquity of trespass, when they eat their holy things: for I the Lord do sanctify them.

17 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

18 Speak unto Aaron, and to his sons, and unto all the children of Israel, and say unto them, [k] Whatsoever he be of the house of Israel, or of the strangers in Israel, that will offer his oblation for all his vows, and for all his free-will-offerings, which they will offer unto the Lord for a burnt-offering:

19 [l] Ye shall offer at your own will a male without blemish of the beeves, of the sheep, or of the goats.

20 [m] But whatsoever hath a blemish, that shall ye not offer: for it shall not be acceptable for you.

21 And [n] whosoever offereth a sacrifice of peace-offerings unto the Lord, to accomplish his vow, or a free-will-offering in beeves, or * sheep, it shall be perfect, to be accepted: there shall be no blemish therein.

22 [o] Blind, or broken, or maimed, or having a wen, or scurvy, or scabbed, ye shall not offer these unto the Lord, nor make an offering by fire of them upon the altar unto the Lord.

23 Either a bullock, or a † lamb that hath any thing [p] superfluous or lacking in his parts, that mayest thou offer for a free-will-offering; but for a vow it shall not be accepted.

24 Ye shall not offer unto the Lord that which a Chap. 15. 2. * Heb. running of the reins.

b Chap. 14. 2. and 15. 13.
c Num. 19. 11.
d Chap. 15. 16.
e Chap. 11. 24.
f Chap. 15. 7. 19.
g Exod. 22. 31. Chap. 17. 15. Ezek. 44. 31.
h See 1 Sam. 21. 6.
* Heb. with the purchase of his money.
† Heb. a man a stranger.
i Chap. 11. 14.
‡ Or, lade themselves with the iniquity of trespass in their eating.
k Chap. 1. 2. 3. 10.
l Chap. 1. 3.
m Deut. 15. 21. & 17. 1. Mal. 1. 8.
n Chap. 3. 1.
* Or, goats.
o Verse 20.
† Or, kid.
p Chap. 21. 18.

CHAP. XXII.

V. 7. When the sun is down, he shall be clean, because it is his food—This may be added, to signify why there was no greater nor longer a penalty put upon the priests than upon the people in the same case, because his necessity craved some mitigation: Though otherwise the priests being more sacred persons, and obliged to greater care and exemplariness, incurred a greater punishment.

V. 9. They shall keep mine ordinance—I have made them the guardians of holy places and things, to keep them from all defilement by themselves or others.

V. 15. They shall not profane the holy things—The priests shall not profane them. The people shall not do it, nor the priests suffer it. The ministers of religion, as a part of the honourable service in which they are employed, are required to use their authority and their influence, to prevent all that is immoral and profane.

V. 24. Ye shall not offer unto the Lord—Any thing that hath a blemish from the hand of another; ye shall give no countenance to that which is contrary to the command of God.

V. 29. Offer

Before Christ 1490.

which is bruiſed, or cruſhed, or broken, or cut; neither ſhall you make any offering thereof in your land.

25 Neither from a ſtranger's hand ſhall ye offer the bread of your God of any of theſe; becauſe their corruption is in them, and blemiſhes be in them: they ſhall not be accepted for you.

26 ¶ And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying, q Exod. 22. 30. and 23. 19. and 34. 26. Deut. 14. 21.

27 q When a bullock, or a ſheep, or a goat is brought forth, then it ſhall be ſeven days under the dam; and from the eighth day and thenceforth, it ſhall be accepted for an offering made by fire unto the Lord.

‡ Or, ſhe-goat.

28 And whether it be cow or ‡ ewe, ye r Deut. 22. 6.

ſhall not kill it r and her young both in one day.

29 And when ye will offer a ſacrifice of thankſgiving unto the Lord, offer it at your own will.

30 On the ſame day it ſhall be eaten up,

s Chap. 7. 15.

ye ſhall leave s none of it until the morrow: I am the Lord.

31 Therefore ſhall ye keep my commandments, and do them: I am the Lord.

32 Neither ſhall ye profane my holy name,

t Chap. 10. 3.

but t I will be hallowed among the children of Iſrael: I am the Lord which hallow you, 33 That brought you out of the land of Egypt, to be your God: I am the Lord.

CHAP. XXIII.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, and ſay unto them, Concerning the feaſts of the Lord, which ye ſhall proclaim to be holy convocations, even theſe are my feaſts.

u Exod. 20. 9. and 23. 12. and 31. 15. and 34. 21. Chap. 19. 3. Deut. 5. 13. Ifaiah 58. 13.

3 u Six days ſhall work be done, but the ſeventh day is the ſabbath of reſt, an holy convocation; ye ſhall do no work therein: it is the ſabbath of the Lord in all your dwellings.

4 ¶ Theſe are the feaſts of the Lord, even holy convocations, which ye ſhall proclaim in their ſeaſons.

Before Christ 1490.

b Exod. 12. 18. and 13. 3. and 23. 15. and 34. 18. Num. 9. 2. and 28. 16. Deut. 16. 1.

5 b In the fourteenth day of the firſt month at even, is the Lord's paſſover.

6 And on the fifteenth day of the ſame month, is the feaſt of unleavened bread unto the Lord: ſeven days ye muſt eat unleavened bread.

7 In the firſt day ye ſhall have an holy convocation: ye ſhall do no ſervile work therein.

8 But ye ſhall offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord ſeven days: in the ſeventh day is an holy convocation, ye ſhall do no ſervile work therein.

9 ¶ And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

10 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, and ſay unto them, c When ye be come into the land which I give unto you, and ſhall reap the harveſt thereof, then ye ſhall bring a * † ſheaf of the firſt-fruits of your harveſt unto the prieſt:

c Exod. 23. 16. and 34. 22. Num. 28. 26. Deut. 16. 9. Joſh. 3. 15.

* Or, handful.

† Heb. omer.

11 And he ſhall wave the ſheaf before the Lord, to be accepted for you: on the morrow after the ſabbath the prieſt ſhall wave it.

12 And ye ſhall offer that day when ye wave the ſheaf, an he-lamb without blemiſh, of the firſt year, for a burnt-offering unto the Lord.

13 And the meat-offering thereof ſhall be two-tenth-deals of fine flour mingled with oil, an offering made by fire unto the Lord for a ſweet ſavour: and the drink-offering thereof ſhall be of wine, the fourth part of an hin.

14 And ye ſhall eat neither bread, nor parched corn, nor green ears, until the ſelf-ſame day that ye have brought an offering unto your God: It ſhall be a ſtatute for ever throughout your generations, in all your dwellings.

15 And

V. 29. Offer it at your own will—Regularly, cheerfully.

V. 31. Keep my commandments, I am the Lord—In breaking or neglecting them, you offend againſt infinite juſtice, in keeping of them by grace received through faith in the promiſed Seed, there is great reward; whatſoever ye do unto God, the bleſſing annexed to the obedience of faith ſhall be endleſs, becauſe the Father of mercies who only commands for your good is infinite.

V. 32. Neither ſhall ye profane my holy name—By deſpiſing me and my commands yourſelves, or by giving others occaſion to profane it. I will be hallowed—By you in keeping my holy commands, or upon you in executing my holy and righteous judgments, I will manifeſt myſelf to be an holy God that will not bear the tranſgreſſion of my laws. I am the Lord which hallow you—By ſeparating you from all the world unto myſelf and ſervice, by giving you holy laws, and my holy ſpirit to enable and incline you to keep them.

CHAP. XXIII.

V. 3. The ſeventh day is the ſabbath of reſt, ye ſhall do no work—Excluding all works about earthly employments, whether of profit or of pleaſure. It is the Sabbath of the Lord in all your dwellings—To be kept in all places, both in ſynagogues, and in their private houſes.

V. 11. He ſhall wave the ſheaf before the Lord, to be accepted for you—That God may accept of you, and bleſs you in the reſt of your harveſt.

V. 13. An offering made by fire unto the Lord—In thankſgiving to God for the fruits of the earth.

V. 17. Ye

Before Christ 1490.

15 ¶ And [d] ye shall count unto you from the morrow after the sabbath, from the day that ye brought the sheaf of the wave-offering; seven sabbaths shall be complete:

16 Even unto the morrow after the seventh sabbath, shall ye number fifty days, and ye shall offer a new meat-offering unto the Lord.

17 Ye shall bring out of your habitations two wave-loaves, of two tenth-deals: they shall be of fine flour, they shall be baken with leaven, they are [e] the first-fruits unto the Lord.

18 And ye shall offer with the bread seven lambs without blemish, of the first year, and one young bullock and two rams: they shall be for a burnt-offering unto the Lord, with their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings, even an offering made by fire of sweet savour unto the Lord.

19 Then ye shall sacrifice [f] one kid of the goats, for a sin-offering, and two lambs of the first year for a sacrifice of [g] peace-offerings.

20 And the priest shall wave them with the bread of the first-fruits, for a wave-offering before the Lord, with the two lambs: [h] they shall be holy to the Lord for the priest.

21 And ye shall proclaim on the self-same day, that it may be an holy convocation unto you: ye shall do no servile work therein: It shall be a statute for ever in all your dwellings throughout your generations.

22 ¶ And [i] when ye reap the harvest of your land, thou shalt not make clean riddance of the corners of thy field, when thou reapest, [k] neither shalt thou gather any gleaning of thy harvest: thou shalt leave them unto the poor, and to the stranger: I am the Lord your God.

23 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

24 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, In the [l] seventh month, in the first day of the month shall ye have a sabbath, [m] a memorial of blowing of trumpets, an holy convocation.

25 Ye shall do no servile work therein; but ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord.

26 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

27 [n] Also on the tenth day of this seventh month, there shall be a day of atonement, it shall be an holy convocation unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls, and offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord.

28 And ye shall do no work in that same day: for it is a day of atonement, to make an atonement for you before the Lord your God.

29 For whatsoever soul it be that shall not be afflicted in that same day, [o] he shall be cut off from among his people.

30 And whatsoever soul it be that doeth any

d Chap. 25. 8. Deut. 16. 9.
e Exod. 23. 16, 19. and 22. 29. and 34. 26. Num. 15. 17. and 28. 26. Deut. 26. 2.
f Chap. 4. 2.
g Chap. 3. 1.
h Num. 18. 12. Deut. 18. 4.
i Chap. 19. 9.
k Deut. 24. 19.
l Num. 29. 1.
m Chap. 25. 9.
n Chap. 16. 30. Num. 29. 7.
o Gen. 17. 14.

V. 17. Ye shall bring out of your habitations—Corn of your own land, for which, and for the fruits of it, you are now to offer praises unto God.

V. 18. And ye shall offer—The extraordinary sacrifices of every feast, did not hinder the oblation of the daily sacrifice.

V. 19. Ye shall sacrifice one kid—This is not the only instance wherein the greater sins are expiated by smaller sacrifices, and the smaller sins by greater sacrifices, which was to instruct us, that sins were not expiated by the sacrifices for any worth in them, but only in respect of Christ, and that, though all sins are not equal, yet they are all expiated by one and the same price, even by the blood of Christ.

V. 21. That it may be an holy convocation—A Sabbath, or day of rest, called Pentecost, which was instituted, in remembrance of their deliverance out of Egypt, as God had promised, and of that blessing of giving the law to them, and forming them into a commonwealth, under his own immediate government. To make known to them, and by their means, his gracious designs to all mankind.

V. 22. When YE reap the harvest of your land, THOU shalt not make clean riddance of thy field, when thou reapest.—By mentioning both the plural, ye, and the singular, thou, God would press this duty upon every person who hath an harvest to reap, that none might plead exemption from it. And it is observable, that though the present business is only concerning worship, yet a former law is repeated of providing for the poor, to shew that piety and devotion to God is to be accompanied with charity to men.

V. 24. A memorial of blowing of trumpets—To solemnize the beginning of the new year, as to civil matters, and particularly as to the jubilee, this was the first day; concerning which it was fit the people should be admonished, both to excite their thankfulness for God's blessings in the last year, and to put a special honour upon this month. For as the seventh day was the Sabbath, and the seventh year was a sabbatical year, so God would have the seventh month to be a kind of sabbatical month, for the many Sabbaths and solemn feasts which were observed in this, more than in any other month. And by this sounding of the trumpets in its beginning, God would quicken and prepare them for the following Sabbaths, as well that of atonement and humiliation for their sins, as those of thanksgiving for God's mercies.

V. 27. Ye shall afflict your souls—With fasting, and repentance for all, especially their national sins.

V. 29. Whatsoever soul it be that shall not be afflicted in that day, shall be cut off—Hereby God would signify the absolute necessity which every man had of repentance and forgiveness of sin, and the dangerous condition of all impenitent persons. The application of the real meaning of the word of God to our own times, and to the things which we ourselves are concerned in, is our duty, and therefore to be our care; and this can never be done without benefit to them, that in truth and in deed make the Divine will the law and rule of their lives. And when men are called upon by public authority to spend a day in fasting and prayer, if we find ourselves so much unconcerned as to have no sorrow for any offences we ourselves have been guilty of, or for those that appear Before Christ 1490. any work in that same day, [p] the same soul will I destroy from among his people.

[p] Chap. 20. 3, 5, 6.

31 Ye shall do no manner of work: it shall be a statute for ever throughout your generations in all your dwellings.

32 It shall be unto you a sabbath of rest, and ye shall afflict your souls in the ninth day of the month at even: from even unto even shall ye * celebrate your sabbath.

* Heb. rest.

33 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

34 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, [q] The fifteenth day of this seventh month shall be the feast of tabernacles for seven days unto the Lord.

[q] Exod. 23. 16. Num. 29. 12. Deut. 16. 13.

35 On the first day shall be an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work therein.

36 Seven days ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord: [r] on the eighth day shall be an holy convocation unto you, and ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord: it is a † * solemn assembly, and ye shall do no servile work therein.

[r] John 7. 37.

† Heb. day of restraint.

* 2 Chron. 7. 9.

37 These are the feasts of the Lord, which ye shall proclaim to be holy convocations, to offer an offering made by fire unto the Lord, a burnt-offering, and a meat-offering, a sacrifice, and drink-offerings, every thing upon his day:

Before Christ 1490

38 Besides the sabbaths of the Lord, and besides your gifts, and besides all your vows, and besides all your free-will-offerings, which ye give unto the Lord.

39 Also in the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the Lord seven days: on the first day shall be a sabbath, and on the eighth day shall be a sabbath.

40 And [t] ye shall take you on the first day the ‡ boughs of goodly trees, branches of palm-trees, and the boughs of thick trees, and willows of the brook; and ye shall rejoice before the Lord your God seven days.

[t] Neh. 8. 15.

‡ Heb. fruit.

41 And ye shall keep it a feast unto the Lord seven days in the year: It shall be a statute for ever in your generations, ye shall celebrate it in the seventh month.

42 Ye shall dwell in booths seven days; all that are Israelites born, shall dwell in booths:

43 That your generations may know that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths, to us to have been committed by the community to which we belong, is not that want of concern that God has been so offended, a discovery to ourselves, that we are in a fearless impenitent state of mind, and in consequence of that state, cut off from the true church of God, and whilst we remain so, exposed to the wrath to come.

V. 30, 31. In that day, ye shall do no manner of work—In the day that is appointed as a day of general humiliation before God, ye shall do no common work, which would be a discovery of your want of concern at God's being offended, and that you did not care so much for his displeasure, as to cease from your common labour for a single day, to unite with those that feared him, to entreat his forgiveness and his favour.

V. 32. The ninth day—This day of atonement began at the evening of the ninth day, and continued till the evening of the tenth day. The Jews begin their Sabbaths at the evening, in remembrance of the creation, (Gen. i. 5.) as christians begin their Sabbaths with the morning in memory of Christ's resurrection.

V. 34. The feast of tabernacles—Of tents, booths or arbours. This feast was appointed principally to remind them of that time when they had no other dwellings in the wilderness, and to stir them up to bless God for the gracious conduct and protection then afforded them, and for their more commodious and secure habitations now given them; and to excite them to gratitude for all the fruits of the year newly ended, which were now compleatly brought in. And when the redeemed of the Lord are removed from their dwellings in these earthly tabernacles, to those blessed mansions whose builder and maker is God eternal in the heavens, what praises will be due from every inhabitant in that country, where pain, sorrow or fear shall be known no more for ever; and O! what regret and self condemnation must ever be felt by all that trifled or sinned away their time of preparation, and found by death in that state in which none can inherit the kingdom of God. (1 Cor. xv. 50.)

V. 36. On the eighth day shall be an holy convocation—This feast consisted of seven days, and they did not dwell longer in tabernacles, yet this is called the great day of the feast, (John vii. 37.) because it represented that happy time wherein their forty years tedious march in the wilderness was ended, with their settlement in the land of Canaan, which it was just they should acknowledge with such a solemn day of thanksgiving. A solemn assembly—Because they were obliged to attend upon God's worship, and be detained before the Lord, and kept together for his service, and not suffered to return to their tents, till this was over. The duties of public worship are looked upon as severe restraints by those whose hopes of happiness are from the world about them; they that worship God in spirit and in truth, embrace all occasions of waiting upon him with far more delight than men attend the courts of princes; and with this great difference, that all expectations from the best men must be uncertain in their nature, and of short continuance, but that inward and spiritual blessedness which God bestows on all that delight in him, is at once certain and endless.

V. 37. A sacrifice—A sin-offering, called by the general name, a sacrifice, because it was designed for that which was the end of all sacrifices, for the expiation of sin. By being offered in faith in his all-sufficient sacrifice who then was to come, and hath now died for the sins of the world.

V. 43. That your generations may know that I brought them out of Egypt—Where the Jews are allowed the liberty of erecting these booths, they continue to do it; the present generation of the Jews do this yearly in London. And by commemorating these events, by the continuance of this custom of leaving their houses and going to live in booths in the public streets, it is evidence of the Before Christ 1490. booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.

44 And Moſes declared unto the children of Iſrael the feaſts of the Lord.

CHAP. XXIV.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

a Exod. 27 20. 2 [a] Command the children of Iſrael, that they bring unto thee pure oil-olive, beaten, for the light, * to cauſe the lamps to burn continually.

* Heb. to cauſe to aſcend.

3 Without the vail of the teſtimony, in the tabernacle of the congregation, ſhall Aaron order it from the evening unto the morning, before the Lord continually: It ſhall be a ſtatute for ever in your generations.

b Exod. 31. 8. 4 He ſhall order the lamps upon [b] the pure candleſtick before the Lord continually.

c Exod. 25. 30. 5 ¶ And thou ſhalt take fine flour, and bake twelve [c] cakes thereof: two tenth-deals ſhall be in one cake.

6 And thou ſhalt ſet them in two rows, ſix on a row, upon the pure table before the Lord.

7 And thou ſhalt put pure frankincenſe upon each row, that it may be on the bread for a memorial, even an offering made by fire unto the Lord.

8 Every ſabbath he ſhall ſet it in order before the Lord continually, being taken from the children of Iſrael by an everlaſting covenant.

9 And [d] it ſhall be Aaron's and his ſons, and they ſhall eat it in the holy place: for it is moſt holy unto him, of the offerings of the Lord made by fire, by a perpetual ſtatute.

Before Christ 1490.

d Exod. 29. 33. Chap. 8. 31. 1 Sam. 21. 6. Matt. 12. 4.

10 ¶ And the ſon of an Iſraelitiſh woman, whoſe father was an Egyptian, went out among the children of Iſrael; and this ſon of the Iſraelitiſh woman, and a man of Iſrael ſtrove together in the camp;

11 And the Iſraelitiſh woman's ſon blaſphemed the name of the LORD, and curſed: and they brought him unto Moſes (and his mother's name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri, of the tribe of Dan) e Num. 15. 34. * Heb. to expound unto them according to the mouth of the LORD.

12 And they [e] put him in ward, * that the mind of the Lord might be ſhewed them.

13 ¶ And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

14 Bring forth him that hath curſed, without the camp, and let all that heard him, [f] lay their hands upon his head, and let all the congregation ſtone him.

f Deut. 13. 9. and 17. 7.

15 And thou ſhalt ſpeak unto the children of Iſrael, ſaying, Whoſoever curſeth his God, ſhall bear his ſin.

g 1 Kings 21. 10, 13. 16 And [g] he that blaſphemeth the name of the Lord, he ſhall ſurely be put to death, and all the congregation ſhall certainly ſtone him: as well the ſtranger, as he that is born in the truth of the Scriptures, and a call upon the attention of mankind to read the ſacred writings, in which the will of God, and the only way of man's recovery from the ſinful effects of the fall, is made known to the nation of the Jews, and through them to all mankind.

CHAP. XXIV.

V. 2. Command the children of Iſrael that they bring unto thee pure oil—At their common charge, becauſe it was for their common good and ſervice. The holy ſpirit is compared to oil, and as the people of Iſrael were to bring in theſe ſupplies to their High-Prieſt, ſo are the Iſrael of God to bring forth fruits unto holineſs, that what they receive from his grace may be returned unto their living head and High-prieſt Chriſt Jeſus the Lord; and though He who gave fire from heaven, could have kept that fire burning without any human aid, yet it pleaſed Him thus to require men to be workers together with him; and though the love of God for Jeſus's ſake, to men is free and unmeritted on man's part, yet God requires men to ſhew their ſenſe of the value of his grace, by conſtantly returning him thoſe fruits of the ſpirit in their lives, which on their part is to feed the flame of Divine love, as the oil ſupplied the flame of the lamps.

V. 3. Shall Aaron order it before the Lord continually—As Jeſus orders all things between God and men, appearing continually in the preſence of God in behalf of men; receiving gifts for them, and ſending them grace to help in every time of need.

V. 5. Twelve cakes—Repreſenting the twelve tribes—None of the Iſrael of God are omitted or excluded; they are all remembered in the preſence of God.

V. 6. Thou ſhalt ſet them in two rows—Not one above another, but one beſides another.

V. 7. Thou ſhalt put pure frankincenſe upon each row—And this was done every time that the bread was changed.

V. 8. By an everlaſting covenant—By virtue of that compact made between me and them, by which they are to endure as long as the Jewiſh religion and policy ſtood. And to be a type of that covenant which ſhall never end, till all that will ſubmit to the grace and government of God their Saviour, are ſaved with an everlaſting ſalvation.

V. 10. This ſon of the Iſraelitiſh woman, and a man of Iſrael ſtrove together—The provocation to ſin is no juſtification of ſin.

V. 11. The Iſraelitiſh woman's ſon blaſphemed the name of the Lord—The words of the LORD, or of JEHOVAH, are here conveniently ſupplied out of verſe 16. where they are expreſſed, but here they are omitted for the aggravation of his crime, he blaſphemed the name, ſo that name which a man ſhould in ſome ſort tremble to mention, which is not to be named without cauſe and without reverence. For which reaſon the godly Jews did many times rather underſtand than expreſs the name of God. And curſed—Not the Iſraelite only, but his God alſo, as appears from verſe 15, 16. They brought him unto Moſes—According to the order ſettled by Jethro's advice.

V. 12. That the mind of the Lord might be ſhewed them—For God had only ſaid in general, that he would not hold ſuch guiltleſs; that is, he would puniſh them, but had not declared how he would have them puniſhed by men.

V. 16. All the congregation ſhall certainly ſtone him—To ſhew their

Before Christ 1490.

in the land; when he blaſphemeth the name of the LORD, ſhall be put to death.

h Exod.21.12. Numb.35.31. Deut.19.21. § Heb.ſmiteth the life of a man.

17 ¶ [h] And he that § killeth any man, ſhall ſurely be put to death.

‡ Heb. life for life.

18 And he that killeth a beaſt, ſhall make it good; ‡ beaſt for beaſt.

i Exod.21.23. Deut.19.21. Matt.5.38.

19 And if a man cauſe a blemiſh in his neighbour; as [i] he hath done, ſo ſhall it be done unto him:

20 Breach for breach, eye for eye, tooth for tooth: as he hath cauſed a blemiſh in a man, ſo ſhall it be done to him again.

k Exod.21.33.

21 [k] And he that killeth a beaſt, he ſhall reſtore it: and he that killeth a man, he ſhall be put to death.

l Exod.12.49.

22 Ye ſhall have [l] one manner of law, as well for the ſtranger, as for one of your own country: for I am the Lord your God.

23 ¶ And Moſes ſpake unto the children of Iſrael, that they ſhould bring forth him that had curſed, out of the camp, and ſtone him with ſtones: and the children of Iſrael did as the Lord commanded Moſes.

CHAP. XXV.

1491.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes in mount Sinai, ſaying,

2 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, and ſay unto them, When ye come into the land which I give you, then ſhall the land * keep a ſabbath unto the Lord.

* Heb. reſt. a Exod.23.10. See Chap.26.34.

3 Six years thou ſhalt ſow thy field, and ſix years thou ſhalt prune thy vineyard, and gather in the fruit thereof.

Before Christ 1491.

4 But in the ſeventh year ſhall be a ſabbath of reſt unto the land, a ſabbath for the Lord: thou ſhalt neither ſow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard.

b 2 Kings 19.29.

5 [b] That which groweth of its own accord of thy harveſt, thou ſhalt not reap, neither gather the grapes † of thy vine undreſſed: for it is a year of reſt unto the land.

† Heb. of thy ſeparation.

6 And the ſabbath of the land ſhall be meat for you; for thee, and for thy ſervant, and for thy maid, and for thy hired ſervant, and for thy ſtranger that ſojourneth with thee.

7 And for thy cattle, and for the beaſt that are in thy land, ſhall all the increaſe thereof be meat.

8 ¶ And thou ſhalt number ſeven ſabbaths of years unto thee, ſeven times ſeven years, and the ſpace of the ſeven ſabbaths of years ſhall be unto thee forty and nine years.

‡ Heb. loud of ſound.

9 Then ſhalt thou cauſe the trumpet ‡ of the jubilee to ſound, on the tenth day of the ſeventh month; [c] in the day of atonement, ſhall ye make the trumpet ſound throughout all your land.

c Chap.23.24, 27.

10 And ye ſhall hallow the fiftieth year, and proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof: it ſhall be a jubilee unto you, and ye ſhall return every man their zeal for God, and to beget in them the greater dread and abhorrence of blaſphemy.

V. 17. He that killeth any man ſhall be put to death—To prevent the miſchievous effects of men's ſtriving or contending together.

V. 22. One manner of law, as well for the ſtranger, as for one of your own country—In matters of common right, but not as to religious privileges.

CHAP. XXV.

V. 2. When ye come into the land, keep a ſabbath unto the Lord—In obedience and unto the honour of God. With every new mercy God is to be honoured with praiſe and thankſgivings; and though the bleſſings we are conſtantly receiving, are more than can be numbered, yet the more attentive we are to the continual mercies we are receiving, and the more conſtantly we are praiſing God with an heart-felt gratitude, the more does this life become like heaven itſelf, becauſe God ever meets thoſe that rejoice under a true ſenſe of his goodneſs. This Sabbath, or year of reſt, was alſo to be a type of that bleſſed reſt, which remaineth for the people of God in this life, when his kingdom of love, and joy, and peace, is ſet up within them, and their will is given up, and reſigned to the will of God.

V. 6. The ſabbath of the land ſhall be meat for you—That fruit which groweth in the Sabbatical year, and when the legal ſtrife is over; with far more eaſe than the Iſraelites were ſupplied with food in the year of reſt, are the ſouls that reſt in God, ſupplied with all ſpiritual wants: they delight themſelves in the Lord, and he abundantly gives them their heart's deſires.

V. 9. Then ſhalt thou cauſe the trumpet of the jubilee to ſound—Which ſignifies the true liberty from our ſpiritual debts and ſlaveries purchaſed by Chriſt, and publiſhed to the world by the ſound of the goſpel. On the tenth day of the ſeventh month—Month of the year for civil and worldly affairs, which were mainly concerned in the Jubilee. And therefore it began in that month, and, as it ſeems, upon this very tenth day, when the trumpet ſounded. The day of atonement—That when they faſted and prayed for God's mercy to them in the pardon of their ſins, then they might exerciſe their kindneſs to men in forgiving their debts, which is the true faſt, and to teach us, that the foundation of all ſolid comfort and joy, muſt be laid in repentance and atonement for our ſins through Chriſt.

V. 10. Proclaim liberty unto all the inhabitants—Such as were Iſraelites; principally to all ſervants, even to ſuch as would not and did not go out at the ſeventh year, and to the poor, who now were acquitted from all their debts, and reſtored to their poſſeſſions. A jubilee—So called either from the Hebrew word Jobel, which ſignifies firſt a ram, and then a ram's horn, by the ſound whereof it was proclaimed; or from Jubal, the inventor of muſical inſtruments, becauſe it was celebrated with muſic, and all expreſſions of joy. Ye ſhall return every man unto his poſſeſſion—Which had been ſold or otherwiſe alienated from him. This law was not at all unjuſt, becauſe all buyers and ſellers had an eye to this condition in their bargains; but it was neceſſary to mind them, that God alone was the Lord, owner, and proprietor, both of them, and of their lands; that hereby inheritances, families, and tribes, might be kept entire and clear until the coming of the Meſſias, who was to be known as by other things, ſo by the tribe and family out of which he was to come. And this accordingly was done by the ſingular providence of God until the Lord

Jeſus

Before Christ 1491. man unto his poſſeſſion, and ye ſhall return every man unto his family.

11 A jubilee ſhall that fiftieth year be unto you: ye ſhall not ſow, neither reap that which groweth of itſelf in it, nor gather the grapes in it of thy vine undreſſed.

12 For it is the jubilee, it ſhall be holy unto you: ye ſhall eat the increaſe thereof out of the field.

13 In the year of this jubilee, ye ſhall return every man unto his poſſeſſion.

14 And if thou ſell ought unto thy neighbour, or buyeſt ought of thy neighbour's hand; ye ſhall not oppreſs one another.

15 According to the number of years after the jubilee, thou ſhalt buy of thy neighbour, and according unto the number of years of the fruits he ſhall ſell unto thee:

16 According to the multitude of years thou ſhalt increaſe the price thereof, and according to the fewneſs of years thou ſhalt diminiſh the price of it: for according to the number of the years of the fruits doth he ſell unto thee.

17 Ye ſhall not therefore oppreſs one another; but thou ſhalt fear thy God: for I am the Lord your God.

18 ¶ Wherefore ye ſhall do my ſtatutes, and keep my judgments, and do them; and ye ſhall dwell in the land in ſafety.

19 And the land ſhall yield her fruit, and Before Christ 1491. [d] ye ſhall eat your fill, and dwell therein in ſafety.

d Chap. 26. 5.

20 And if ye ſhall ſay, What ſhall we eat the ſeventh year? behold, we ſhall not ſow, nor gather in our increaſe:

21 Then I will command my bleſſing upon you in the ſixth year, and it ſhall bring forth fruit for three years.

22 And ye ſhall ſow the eighth year, and eat yet of old fruit, until the ninth year; until her fruits come in, ye ſhall eat of the old ſtore.

23 ¶ The land ſhall not be ſold ‖ § for ever: for the land is mine, for ye are [e] ſtrangers and ſojourners with me.

‖ Or, to be quite cut off. § Heb. for cutting off.

e Pſa. 119. 19. 1 Pet. 2. 11.

24 And in all the land of your poſſeſſion, ye ſhall grant a redemption for the land.

25 ¶ [f] If thy brother be waxen poor, and hath ſold away ſome of his poſſeſſion, and if [g] any of his kin come to redeem it, then ſhall he redeem that which his brother ſold.

f Ruth 2. 20. and 4. 6.

g See Ruth 3. 2, 9, 12. Jer. 32. 7.

26 And if the man have none to redeem it, and * himſelf be able to redeem it:

* Heb. his hand hath attained and found ſufficiency.

27 Then let him count the years of the ſale thereof, and reſtore the overplus unto the man to whom he ſold it; that he may return unto his poſſeſſion.

28 But if he be not able to reſtore it to him, then that which is ſold ſhall remain in the Jeſus did come. Since which time thoſe characters are confounded: which is no ſmall argument that the Meſſias is come; to ſet bounds both to the inſatiable avarice of ſome, and the fooliſh prodigality of others, that the former might not wholly and finally ſwallow up the inheritances of their brethren, and the latter might not be able to undo themſelves and their poſterity for ever, which was a ſingular privilege of this law and people. Ye ſhall return every man unto his family—From whom he was gone, or ſold to ſome other family. And thus, when that day of jubilee comes, that the ſinner is pardoned for Jeſus's ſake, the ſoul returns to the poſſeſſion of the favour of God, which ſin had forfeited.

V. 12. It is the jubilee, it ſhall be holy unto you—Dedicated to God, and to the exerciſe of holy joy and thankfulneſs; and becauſe it was a type of that holy and happy jubilee which ſpiritually they were to enjoy, who looked for ſalvation, by faith in the promiſed Meſſiah.

V. 14. Ye ſhall not oppreſs one another—Neither the ſeller by requiring more, nor the buyer by taking the advantage from his brother's neceſſities, to give him leſs than the worth of it.

V. 16. According to the number of the years of the fruits doth he ſell unto thee—He ſelleth not the land, but only the fruits thereof, and that for a certain time.

V. 17. Ye ſhall not oppreſs one another, for I am the Lord—If one man deals unjuſtly with another, he is guilty by the ſame act againſt God; he forgets that God is the righteous judge of all the earth.

V. 18. Do my ſtatutes, and keep my judgments, and ye ſhall dwell in ſafety—Ye have now been taught the way of coming unto me for mercy through a mediator, and for his ſake to receive the conſtant and all-ſufficient ſupplies of my grace, to enable you to do my will on earth, as it is done in heaven, and if you accept of the ſtrength of my grace and live to me; ye ſhall dwell in ſafety, none ſhall harm you, or make you afraid.

V. 21. I will command my bleſſing upon you in the ſixth year—God would hereby try their faith, and exerciſe obedience, ſo he gave them an eminent proof of his own exact providence, and tender care over them, in making proviſion ſuitable to their neceſſities. That by their ſeeing the faithfulneſs of God, in giving them all that he had promiſed in the things of this life, they might, and all mankind by means of the Divine dealings with them, be led to believe, that God would aſſuredly do that for which the Son of God has taſted death; that is, give to every humble, believing mind, the bleſſings of his ſpiritual kingdom within them—Righteouſneſs, peace, and joy in the Holy Ghoſt.

V. 23. The land ſhall not be ſold for ever—You who poſſeſs my revealed will, in which a future life of glory, honour, and immortality is brought to your knowledge for thoſe that love me; muſt not be guilty of miſleading the heathen world about you, by ſhewing them that you have any view to endleſs poſſeſſions to you and yours here upon earth; men are naturally ſo much inclined to ſet their hearts upon houſes and lands, that for you that are called to be the children of God, and heirs of the kingdom of heaven, to act as if you could hold poſſeſſion for ever of what I only let you have the uſe of for a ſeaſon; is for you to rob yourſelves of an endleſs inheritance for one which neither you nor yours can ſecure to yourſelves for a day, and alſo to be guilty of miſleading mankind againſt all the light of revelation, to look for their chief good in earthly poſſeſſions.

V. 24. In all the land ye ſhall grant a redemption—A right of redemption.

V. 25. If thy brother hath ſold his poſſeſſion, if any of his kin come, then ſhall he redeem that which his brother ſold—This act was a type

Before Christ 1491.

the hand of him that hath bought it, until the year of jubilee: and in the jubilee it shall go out, and he shall return unto his possession.

29 And if a man sell a dwelling-house in a walled city, then he may redeem it within a whole year after it is sold: within a full year may he redeem it.

30 And if it be not redeemed within the space of a full year; then the house that is in the walled city, shall be established for ever to him that bought it, throughout his generations: it shall not go out in the jubilee.

31 But the houses of the villages which have no walls round about them, shall be counted as the fields of the country: † they may be redeemed, and they shall go out in the jubilee.

† Heb. redemption belongeth unto it.

32 Notwithstanding, [h] the cities of the Levites, and the houses of the cities of their possession, may the Levites redeem at any time.

h See Num. 35. 2. Josh. 21. 2, &c.

33 And if ‡ a man purchase of the Levites, then the house that was sold, and the city of his possession shall go out in the year of jubilee: for the houses of the cities of the Levites are their possession among the children of Israel.

‡ Or, one of the Levites redeem them.

34 But the field of the suburbs of their cities may not be sold, for it is their perpetual possession.

35 ¶ And if thy brother be waxen poor, and § fallen in decay with thee; then thou shalt ‖ relieve him: yea, though he be a stranger, or a sojourner; that he may live with thee.

§ Heb. his hand falleth. ‖ Heb. strengthen.

36 [i] Take thou no usury of him, or increase: but [k] fear thy God; that thy brother may live with thee.

i Exod. 22. 25. Deut. 23. 19. Prov. 28. 8. Ezek. 18. 8. and 22. 12. k Neh. 5. 9.

37 Thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase.

38 I am the Lord your God, which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, to give you the land of Canaan, and to be your God.

39 ¶ And [l] if thy brother that dwelleth by thee be waxen poor, and be sold unto thee; thou shalt not * compel him to serve as a bond-servant:

l Exod. 21. 2. Deut. 15. 12. Jer. 34. 14.

Before Christ 1491.

* Heb. serve thyself with him with the service, &c.

40 But as an hired servant, and as a sojourner, he shall be with thee, and shall serve thee unto the year of jubilee.

41 And then shall he depart from thee, both he and his children with him, and shall return unto his own family, and unto the possession of his fathers shall he return.

42 For they are my servants, which I brought forth out of the land of Egypt: they shall not be sold ‡ as bond-men.

‡ Heb. with the sale of a bond-man.

43 [m] Thou shalt not rule over him with rigour, but shalt fear thy God.

m Ephes. 6. 9. Col. 4. 1.

44 Both thy bond-men, and thy bond-maids, which thou shalt have, shall be of the heathen that are round about you; of them shall ye buy bond-men and bond-maids.

45 Moreover, of the children of the strangers that do sojourn among you, of them shall ye buy, and of their families, that are with you, which they begat in your land: and they shall be your possession.

46 And ye shall take them as an inheritance for your children after you, to inherit them for a possession, ‡ they shall be your bond-men for ever: but over your brethren the children of Israel, ye shall not rule one over another with rigour.

‡ Heb. ye shall serve yourselves with them.

47 ¶ And if a sojourner or stranger § wax rich by thee, and thy brother that dwelleth by him wax poor, and sell himself unto the stranger or sojourner by thee, or to the stock of the stranger's family:

§ Heb. his hand obtain, &c.

48 After that he is sold, he may be redeemed again; one of his brethren may redeem him:

49 Either his uncle, or his uncle's son may redeem him, or any that is nigh of kin unto him, of his family, may redeem him; or if he be able, he may redeem himself.

50 And he shall reckon with him that bought of Christ, who was made near a kin to us, by taking our flesh, that he might perform the work of redemption for us.

V. 29, 30. A dwelling-house in a walled city shall be established for ever to him that bought it—Houses being commonly built by the owner's cost and diligence, and therefore they had a fuller power to dispose of them. And God gives to every one, that for ever which he builds upon that ground, that only foundation which God himself has given and laid, CHRIST; and Christ Jesus, like the land of Canaan, is the gift of God, and all that is built upon him—done by faith in his name, shall, like the houses in Canaan, become an endless possession to the praise of God, and the consolation of every soul of man that had an eye to the recompense of reward, in that day when the Judge of all shall say to every one who lived by his grace to please him,—"Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

V. 31. The houses of the villages may be redeemed—Because they belonged to, and were necessary or convenient for the management of the lands.

V. 36. Fear thy God, that thy brother may live with thee—And shew thy regard of God, by thy kindness and good-will to men, especially the poor; if thou dost not do so, thou hast not that charity, without which nothing will avail thee.

V. 42. They are my servants—However poor, and no less than you are members of my church and people, and therefore are not to be oppressed or abused, neither are you absolute Lords over them, to deal with them as you please.

V. 43. Fear thy God—Though thou dost not fear them who are in thy power, and unable to right themselves, yet fear that God who hath commanded thee to use them kindly, and who can and will avenge their cause, if thou dost oppress them.

V. 47. If a stranger wax rich, and thy brother wax poor, and sell himself unto the stranger—Yet even such an one shall not have power

Before Christ 1491. bought him, from the year that he was sold to him, unto the year of jubilee: and the price of his sale shall be according unto the number of years, according to the time of an hired servant shall it be with him.

51 If there be yet many years behind; according unto them he shall give again the price of his redemption, out of the money that he was bought for.

52 And if there remain but few years unto the year of jubilee, then he shall count with him, and according unto his years shall he give him again the price of his redemption.

53 And as a yearly hired servant shall he be with him: and the other shall not rule with rigour over him in thy sight.

‖ Or, by these means. 54 And if he be not redeemed ‖ in these years, then he shall go out in the year of jubilee, both he, and his children with him.

55 For unto me the children of Israel are servants, they are my servants, whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt: I am the Lord your God.

CHAP. XXVI.

a Exod. 20. 4. Deut. 5. 8. & 16. 12. & 27. 15. Psal. 97. 7. * Or, pillar. † Or, figured stone. ‡ Heb. a stone of picture. b Chap. 19. 30.

YE shall make you [a] no idols, nor graven image, neither rear you up a * standing image, neither shall ye set up any † ‡ image of stone in your land, to bow down unto it: for I am the Lord your God.

2 [b] Ye shall keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary: I am the Lord.

3 ¶ [c] If ye walk in my statutes, and keep my commandments, and do them; Before Christ 1491.

c Deut. 28. 1.

4 Then I will give you rain in due season, and the land shall yield her increase, and the trees of the field shall yield their fruit.

d Amos 9. 13.

5 And [d] your threshing shall reach unto the vintage, and the vintage shall reach unto the sowing-time: and [e] ye shall eat your bread to the full, and [f] dwell in your land safely.

e Chap. 25. 19. f Job 11. 18.

6 And I will give peace in the land, and [g] ye shall lie down, and none shall make you afraid: and I will ‖ rid evil beasts out of the land, neither shall the sword go through your land.

g Job 11. 19. Isai. 35. 9. Ezek. 34. 25. ‖ Heb. cause to cease.

7 And ye shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you by the sword.

8 And [h] five of you shall chase an hundred, and an hundred of you shall put ten thousand to flight: and your enemies shall fall before you by the sword.

h Deut. 32. 30. Josh. 23. 10.

9 For I will have respect unto you, and make you fruitful, and multiply you, and establish my covenant with you.

10 And ye shall eat old store, and bring forth the old because of the new.

11 [i] And I will set my tabernacle amongst you: and my soul shall not abhor you.

i Ezek. 37. 26.

12 [k] And I will walk among you, and will be your God, and ye shall be my people.

k 2 Cor. 6. 16.

13 I

power to keep an Israelite servant from the benefit of redemption.

V. 53. The other shall not rule with rigour over him in thy sight Thou shalt not suffer this to be done, but whether thou art a magistrate, or a private person, thou shalt take care according to thy capacity to get it remedied.

CHAP. XXVI.

V. 1. Make you no idols—Images to worship.

V. 2. Keep my sabbaths, and reverence my sanctuary—By preserving it from all uncleanness, by approaching to it and managing all the services of it with reverence, and in such manner only as God hath appointed.

V. 4. I will give you rain—Which God kept in his own hand, that so he might the more effectually oblige them to obedience, in which their happiness consisted. And is this blessing less the gift of God now than it was then?

V. 5. Your threshing shall reach unto the vintage—You shall have so plentiful an harvest, that you shall not be able to thresh out your corn in a little time, but that work will last till the vintage. And as plenty in the things of this life was promised to the Israelites of old, so are the same blessings, in all ages, promised to those that live in the fear of God, and by faith in his love, through the Redeemer.

V. 6. Neither shall the sword go through your land—It shall not enter into it, nor have passage through it, much less shall your land be made the seat of war. These gracious promises include all that men want in this life; and the faithfulness with which they were given, when God was worshipped and obeyed as he commanded, was to be the evidence to all mankind, in all ages, of the faithfulness with which mercy, grace, and glory, with all the blessings necessary to a Godly life, would be ever given to all who worshipped God, as he then and now requires by faith in the Lord our Saviour—the sole cause of all mercy, all grace to do his will, and of every blessing possessed or hoped for.

V. 8. Your enemies shall fall before you—And thus do the spiritual enemies of every soul that is alive unto God, fall before that power with which the prince of peace strengthens all them that look unto him.

V. 9. I will have respect unto you—Yes, reader, and unto you, if the only foundation of all your hopes of mercy from God is placed on the Lord Jesus Christ: to be looked upon with respect by our superiors, by great and good men, how acceptable is this in the day of adversity? But what return of gratitude and praise can ever be made to God, that he has provided a mean through which he will assuredly look with respect on the work of his hands? And establish my covenant with you—Actually perform all that I have promised you.

V. 10. Ye shall bring forth the old, because of the new—And thus does his grace abound to all who live by faith; new supplies of love and goodness from God constantly follows that which is already given; mercy after mercy, blessing following blessing, and grace upon grace, to every worshipper of God in Christ Jesus.

V. 11. I will set my tabernacle amongst you—As I have placed it, so I will continue it among you, and not remove it from you, as once I did, upon your miscarriage.

V. 12. I will walk among you—As I have hitherto done, and stand among you in all your stations, to protect, conduct, instruct, and comfort you. If men will but humble themselves to walk with

Before Christ 1491.

13 I am the Lord your God, which brought you forth out of the land of Egypt, that ye should not be their bond-men, and I have broken the bands of your yoke, and made you go upright.

14 ¶ [t] But if ye will not hearken unto me, and will not do all these commandments;

15 And if ye shall despise my statutes, or if your soul abhor my judgments, so that ye will not do all my commandments, but that ye break my covenant:

16 I also will do this unto you, I will even appoint § over you terror, consumption, and the burning-ague; that shall consume the eyes, and cause sorrow of heart: and [m] ye shall sow your seed in vain, for your enemies shall eat it.

17 And [n] I will set my face against you, and ye shall be slain before your enemies: they that hate you shall reign over you, and [o] ye shall flee when none pursueth you.

18 And if ye will not yet for all this hearken unto me, then I will punish you [p] seven times more for your sins.

19 And I will break the pride of your power; and I will make your heaven as iron, and your earth as brass:

20 And your strength shall be spent in vain: for your land shall not yield her increase, neither shall the trees of the land yield their fruits.

21 ¶ And if ye walk * contrary unto me, and will not hearken unto me; I will bring seven times more plagues upon you, according to your sins.

22 [q] I will also send wild beasts among you, which shall rob you of your children, and destroy your cattle, and make you few in number, and [r] your high-ways shall be desolate.

23 And if ye will not be reformed by me by these things, but will walk contrary unto me:

24 [s] Then will I also walk contrary unto you, and will punish you yet seven times for your sins.

25 And I will bring a sword upon you, that shall avenge the quarrel of my covenant, and when ye are gathered together within your cities, § Heb. upon you.

* Or, at all adventures with me, and so Ver. 24.

t Deut. 28. 15. Lam. 2. 17. Mal. 2. 2.

m Deut. 28. 33. Job 31. 8. Jer. 5. 17. & 12. 13.

n Chap. 17. 10.

o Psal. 53. 5. Prov. 28. 1.

p 1 Sam. 2. 5. Psal. 119. 165. Prov. 24. 16.

q Deut. 32. 24. Ezek. 5. 17.

r Judges 5. 6. 2 Chro. 15. 5. Isa. 33. 8. Lam. 1. 4.

s 2 Sam. 22. 27. Psal. 18. 26.

with God, he will (because love is his nature, and he waits to be gracious) walk with men. But who attend to the Divine Leader? They that are spiritually minded; calmly and humbly listening to his voice, and obeying him from the heart in things small and great. Ye shall be my people—I will own you for my peculiar people, which I have singled out of the mass of mankind, to bless you here and to save you hereafter. And how shall his name be praised sufficiently, for making the way so plain for all to be of the number of his people; and for making that which is commanded as our duty our best interest, our only certain happiness. What are men to do on their part to become of the number of the Israel of God; and have the Lord for their God? Repent and believe the Gospel; turn from all known evil; regard God's word as the rule, and believe that God, for Christ's sake, will forgive and save from sin.

V. 13. I have broken the bands of your yoke, and made you go upright—With heads lifted up, not pressed down with a yoke. It notes their liberty, security, confidence, and glory—And thus it is with those which were tied and bound with the chains of their sins, and bound down with sorrow for them, when God in his mercy sets them free. Reader, does either sin, or sinners, lead you captive to do that which is against your conscience? Whoever is thus led, is the slave of the worst tyrant.

V. 15 If ye break my covenant—You discharge me from the blessings promised.

V. 16. Ye shall sow for your enemies—Whoever commits sin, is sowing—labouring for his greatest enemy.

V. 17. I will set my face against you—He that obeys satan, sets himself against God; and whatever is done contrary to that which God has commanded small and great, is serving satan. God's face is against him that is not living to God. We are the servants of him, whom we obey in every design that is entertained in our hearts, by every word that we speak, and in all the conduct of our lives.

V. 18. I will punish you seven times more for your sins—When God afflicts, if the soul does not with an humble submission turn unto God, it becomes harder and more impenitent by adversity, and so becomes exposed to seven times greater sufferings.

V. 19 I will break the pride of your power—Your strength, of which you are proud; your numerous and united forces, and your kingdom. I will make your heaven as iron, and your earth as brass—The heavens shall yield you no rain, nor the earth fruits. My Spirit shall not descend from heaven, and therefore ye shall not have either peace or power.

V. 20. Your strength shall be spent in vain—In plowing, and sowing, and tilling the ground. Every blessing—all things in heaven and in the earth are mine, and at my disposal; and as you are my visible church on earth, in my dealings with you, all mankind may know, in your example, how they may escape their own miseries; and receive, and for ever secure their own present peace and endless happiness.

V. 21. If you walk contrary unto me—Carelessly, or heedlessly before me, so as to be unconcerned whether you please me or offend me. This is opposed to exact and circumspect walking with God, as Abraham did, and all are to do. (Ephes. v. 15.)

V. 22. Your high-ways shall be desolate—By reason of the fewness of travellers, and people, and the terror of wild beasts growing more numerous. And where God is not obeyed, the high-ways of the heavenly Canaan are not frequented; and, as evil beasts increased among the Israelites when they regarded not the will of God, so do evil spirits increase where folly, vice, and impiety abounds. Satan reigns wherever sin is obeyed.

V. 24. Then will I also walk contrary unto you—Carelessly towards you. I will put you out of my care and protection. And what must it be for God to forsake and disregard any soul of man; for love and goodness to cast us off?

V. 25. A sword shall avenge the quarrel of my covenant—My quarrel with you for your breach of faith made with me. Ye shall be delivered into the hand of the enemy—Because those few that shall be left, will be unable to defend themselves.

V. 26. When

Before Christ 1491.

cities, I will ſend the peſtilence among you; and ye ſhall be delivered into the hand of the enemy.

t Iſaiah 3. 1. Ezek. 4. 16. and 5. 16. and 14. 13.

26 t And when I have broken the ſtaff of your bread, ten women ſhall bake your bread in one oven, and they ſhall deliver you your bread again by weight: and u ye ſhall eat and not be ſatisfied.

u Mic. 6. 14. Hag. 1. 6.

27 And if ye will not for all this hearken unto me, but walk contrary unto me:

28 Then I will walk contrary unto you alſo in fury; and I, even I, will chaſtiſe you ſeven times for your ſins.

x Deut. 28. 53. Ezek. 5. 10.

29 x And ye ſhall eat the fleſh of your ſons, and the fleſh of your daughters ſhall ye eat.

30 And I will deſtroy your high places, y 2 Chro. 34. 7. Iſaiah 27. 9. Ezek. 6. 4, 5, 13.

and y cut down your images, and caſt your carcaſes upon the carcaſes of your idols, and my ſoul ſhall abhor you.

a Pſa. 74. 7. Lam. 1. 10. Ezek. 9. 6. and 21. 7.

31 And I will make your cities waſte, and a bring your ſanctuaries unto deſolation, and I will not ſmell the ſavour of your ſweet odours.

32 And I will bring the land into diſolation: and your enemies which dwell therein, ſhall be aſtoniſhed at it.

b Deut. 4. 27. & 28. 62, 64.

33 And b I will ſcatter you among the heathen, and will draw out a ſword after you: and your land ſhall be deſolate, and your cities waſte.

34 c Then ſhall the land enjoy her ſabbaths, as long as it lieth deſolate, and ye be in your enemies land; even then ſhall the land reſt, and enjoy her ſabbaths.

Before Christ 1491.

c 2 Chron. 36. 21.

35 As long as it lieth deſolate, it ſhall reſt: becauſe it did not reſt in your d ſabbaths when ye dwelt upon it.

d Chap. 25. 2.

36 And upon them that are left alive of you I will ſend a faintneſs into their hearts in the lands of their enemies; and e the ſound of a † ſhaken leaf ſhall chaſe them; and they ſhall flee, as fleeing from a ſword: and they ſhall fall when none purſueth.

e Prov. 28. 1. † Heb. driven.

37 And f they ſhall fall one upon another, as it were before a ſword, when none purſueth: and ye ſhall have no power to ſtand before your enemies.

f Iſaiah 10. 4.

38 And ye ſhall periſh among the heathen, and the land of your enemies ſhall eat you up.

39 And they that are left of you, g ſhall pine away in their iniquity in your enemies land; and alſo in the iniquities of their fathers ſhall they pine away with them.

g Deut. 4. 30. and 30. 1. Neh. 1. 9. Jer. 3. 25. & 29. 12, 13. Ezek. 4. 17. & 6. 9. & 20. 43. & 24. 23. & 33. 10. & 36. 31. Hoſ. 5. 15. Zec. 10. 9.

40 h If they ſhall confeſs their iniquity, and the iniquity of their fathers, with their treſpaſs, which they treſpaſſed againſt me, and that alſo they have walked contrary unto me;

h Num. 5. 7. 1 Kings 8. 33, 35, 48.

41 And that I alſo have walked contrary unto

V. 26. When I have broken the ſtaff of your bread—By taking away that virtue of nouriſhing which I have put into bread or food, which, when I withdraw, it will be unable to nouriſh.

V. 28. I will walk contrary unto you alſo in fury—Like a raging lion, and like a man that meets his enemy in the fury of battle.

V. 29. The fleſh of your ſons, and daughters ſhall ye eat—Through extreme hunger.

V. 30. I will deſtroy your high places—In which you will ſacrifice after the manner of the Heathens. And caſt your carcaſes upon the carcaſes of your idols—To ſhew that their idols ſhould be ſo far from helping them, that they ſhould be thrown down with them. My ſoul ſhall abhor you—Is God on better terms with wilful ſinners now than he was then? No, what he ſaid unto them, he ſays unto all. They that give their hearts to any other good, to any idol, and forſake the fountain of bleſſedneſs, thus does God expreſs himſelf to ſhew the miſery men bring upon themſelves.

V. 31. I will not ſmell the ſavour of your ſweet odours—Not own or accept your ſacrifices, which, when offered with faith and obedience, are very ſweet and acceptable to me. But when your hearts are turned from me, then the very acts of worſhip which you perform, ſhall not aſcend up before me.

V. 32. Your enemies ſhall be aſtoniſhed at it—At the change in your circumſtances, not knowing me, they ſhall not be able to account for the afflictions that you bring upon yourſelves by diſobeying me.

V. 33. I will ſcatter you, and will draw out a ſword after you—The ſword ſhall follow you into ſtrange lands, and you ſhall have no reſt there.

V. 34. Then ſhall the land enjoy her ſabbaths—Shall now enjoy thoſe Sabbatical years of reſt from tillage, which you, through covetouſneſs, would not give it, though God commanded it.

V. 36. I will ſend a faintneſs into their hearts—The word notes a tenderneſs and ſoftneſs of mind, whereby they are diſenabled from bearing the preſent miſeries, and are in continual dread of greater. How different from the ſtate of the righteous; who, having the teſtimony of God's ſpirit, and the evidence of his holy word, that they are living in the ways of his will, they have neither miſery nor fear, but are always ſaying, This is the Lord, we have waited for him, we will be glad, and rejoice in the God of our ſalvation. (Iſa. xxv. 9.)

V. 37. When none purſueth—Your guilt and fear cauſing you to imagine that they do purſue you, when they do not. Ye ſhall have no power to ſtand before your enemies—Here is the true cauſe of men's not having power againſt their ſpiritual enemies;—becauſe they are at enmity with God.

V. 39. They ſhall pine away in their iniquity—Be conſumed, and melt away by degrees through diſeaſes, oppreſſions, griefs, and manifold miſeries.

V. 40. If they ſhall confeſs their iniquity—To this confeſſion they add ſincere humiliation and reformation, I will do what follows.

V. 41. If they accept of the puniſhment of their iniquity—If they ſincerely acknowledge the righteouſneſs of God and their own wickedneſs, and patiently ſubmit to his correcting hand, and would rather be in their preſent ſuffering condition, than in their former ſinful, though proſperous, eſtate; if with David, they are ready to ſay, It is good for them that they are afflicted, that they may learn God's ſtatutes, and obedience to them, which is evidence of true repentance.

Before Christ 1491.

unto them, and have brought them into the land of their enemies; if then their [h] uncircumcised hearts be humbled, and they then accept of the punishment of their iniquity:

h See Jer. 6 10. and 9 25, 26. Rom. 2. 29. Col. 2. 11.

42 Then will I remember my covenant with Jacob, and also my covenant with Isaac, and also my covenant with Abraham will I remember; and I will remember the land.

43 The land also shall be left of them, and shall enjoy her sabbaths, while she lieth desolate without them: and they shall accept of the punishment of their iniquity; because, even because they despised my judgments, and because their soul abhorred my statutes.

44 And yet for all that, when they be in the land of their enemies, [i] I will not cast them away, neither will I abhor them, to destroy them utterly, and to break my covenant with them: for I am the Lord their God.

i Deut. 4. 31. Rom. 11. 26.

45 But I will for their sakes remember the covenant of their ancestors whom I brought forth out of the land of Egypt, in the sight of the heathen, that I might be their God: I am the Lord.

46 These are the statutes, and judgments, and laws, [k] which the Lord made between him and the children of Israel, in mount Sinai, by the hand of Moses.

k Chap. 27. 34.

CHAP. XXVII.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When a man shall make a singular vow, the persons shall be for the Lord, by thy estimation.

3 And thy estimation shall be, of the male from twenty years old, even unto sixty years old; even thy estimation shall be fifty shekels of silver, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

4 And if it be a female, then thy estimation shall be thirty shekels.

5 And if it be from five years old, even unto twenty years old; then thy estimation shall be of the male twenty shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

Before Christ 1491.

6 And if it be from a month old, even unto five years old; then thy estimation shall be of the male five shekels of silver, and for the female thy estimation shall be three shekels of silver.

7 And if it be from sixty years old, and above; if it be a male, then thy estimation shall be fifteen shekels, and for the female ten shekels.

8 But if he be poorer than thy estimation; then he shall present himself before the priest, and the priest shall value him: according to his ability that vowed, shall the priest value him.

9 And if it be a beast whereof men bring an offering unto the Lord; all that any man giveth of such unto the Lord, shall be holy.

10 He shall not alter it, nor change it, a good for a bad, or a bad for a good: and if he shall at all change beast for beast; then it, and the exchange thereof shall be holy.

11 And if it be any unclean beast, of which they do not offer a sacrifice unto the Lord; then he shall present the beast before the priest:

12 And the priest shall value it, whether it be good or bad: * as thou valuest it who art the priest, so shall it be.

* Heb. according to thy estimation, O priest &c.

13 But if he will at all redeem it, then he shall add a fifth part thereof unto thy estimation.

14 ¶ And when a man shall sanctify his house to be holy unto the Lord; then the priest shall estimate it, whether it be good or bad: as the priest shall estimate it, so shall it stand.

15 And if he that sanctified it, will redeem his house, then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be his.

16 And if a man shall sanctify unto the Lord some part of a field of his possession; then

V. 42. Then will I remember my covenant—So as to perform it, and make good all that I have promised. I will remember the land—Which now seems to be forgotten and neglected, as if I had never chosen it to be the peculiar place of my presence and blessing.

V. 44. I am the Lord their God—Invariably, and the God of all them that fear my name in every nation, and amongst every people, and will perform to all them that put their trust in me, all that I have promised.

CHAP. XXVII.

V. 2. The persons shall be for the Lord—Dedicated unto his immediate service, and as they could not be sacrificed they must be redeemed with a price which was to be estimated by the priest.

V. 8. If he be poorer then thy estimation, the priest shall value him according to his ability—If after his vow he be decayed and impoverished and not able to pay the price which thou requirest of him.

V. 10. He shall not alter it, nor change it—God would preserve the sanctity and reverence of consecrated things.

V. 16. If a man shall sanctify unto the Lord some part of a field of his possession—It was unlawful to vow away all his possessions, because thereby he had disenabled himself from the performance of divers duties by way of sacrifice, almsgiving, and made himself burdensome to his brethren.

Before Christ 1491.

then thy estimation shall be according to the seed thereof: † an homer of barley-seed shall be valued at fifty shekels of silver.

† Or, the land of an homer, &c.

17 If he sanctify his field from the year of jubilee, according to thy estimation it shall stand.

18 But if he sanctify his field after the jubilee; then the priest shall reckon unto him the money according to the years that remain, even unto the year of the jubilee, and it shall be abated from thy estimation.

19 And if he that sanctified the field, will in any wise redeem it; then he shall add the fifth part of the money of thy estimation unto it, and it shall be assured to him.

20 And if he will not redeem the field, or if he have sold the field to another man; it shall not be redeemed any more.

21 But the field, when it goeth out in the jubilee, shall be holy unto the Lord, as a field devoted: the possession thereof shall be the priest's.

22 And if a man sanctify unto the Lord a field which he hath bought, which is not of the fields of his possession;

23 Then the priest shall reckon unto him the worth of thy estimation, even unto the year of the jubilee: and he shall give thine estimation in that day, as a holy thing unto the Lord.

24 In the year of the jubilee, the field shall return unto him of whom it was bought, even to him to whom the possession of the land did belong.

25 And all thy estimations shall be according to the shekel of the sanctuary: [a] twenty gerahs shall be the shekel.

[a] Exod. 30. 13. Num. 3. 47. Ezek. 45. 12.

26 ¶ Only the ‡ [b] firstling of the beasts, which should be the Lord's firstling, no man shall sanctify it; whether it be ox, or sheep: it is the Lord's.

Before Christ 1491.

‡ Heb. firstborn, &c.

[b] Exod. 13. 2, 12.

27 And if it be of an unclean beast, then he shall redeem it according to thine estimation, and shall add a fifth part of it thereto: or if it be not redeemed, then it shall be sold according to thy estimation.

28 [c] Notwithstanding, no devoted thing that a man shall devote unto the Lord, of all that he hath, both of man and beast, and of the field of his possession, shall be sold or redeemed: every devoted thing is most holy unto the Lord.

[c] Josh. 6. 19.

29 [d] None devoted, which shall be devoted of men, shall be redeemed: but shall surely be put to death.

[d] Num. 21. 2, 3.

30 And [e] all the tithe of the land, whether of the seed of the land, or of the fruit of the tree, is the Lord's: it is holy unto the Lord.

[e] Gen. 28. 22. Num. 18. 21, 24. 2 Chro. 31. 5, 6, 12. Mal. 3. 8, 10.

31 And if a man will at all redeem ought of his tithes, he shall add thereto the fifth part thereof.

32 And concerning the tithe of the herd, or of the flock, even of whatsoever [f] passeth under the rod; the tenth shall be holy unto the Lord.

[f] See Jer. 33. 13. Ezek. 20. 37.

33 He shall not search whether it be good or bad, neither shall he change it: and if he change it at all, then both it and the change thereof shall be holy; it shall not be redeemed.

34 [g] These are the commandments which the Lord commanded Moses, for the children of Israel, in mount Sinai.

[g] Chap. 26. 46.

V. 21. A field devoted: the possession thereof shall be the priests—For their maintenance, particular lands might be vowed and given to the priests for the service of the sanctuary.

V. 23. As a holy thing—As that which is to be consecrated to God in stead of the land redeemed by it.

V. 26. The firstling of the beasts no man shall sanctify it—Because it is not his own, but the Lord's already, and therefore to vow such a thing to God is a usurpation of the Lord's right, and only pretending to give him what we cannot withhold from him. Whether it be ox or sheep it is the Lord's—Under these two kinds he comprehends all other beasts which might be sacrificed to God, the firstlings whereof could not be redeemed, but were to be sacrificed, whereas the firstlings of men were to be redeemed, and therefore were capable of being vowed.

V. 27. Then it shall be sold—And the price thereof was given to the priests, or brought into the Lord's treasury.

V. 28. No devoted thing shall be sold or redeemed: every devoted thing is most holy unto the Lord—Set a part for his service alone, for that was the state of the most holy things.

The book thus concludes; and from the whole of these commandments we have much to learn. What thankfulness is due for the mercies we enjoy in the clear light of the gospel, when these shadows are passed away, and Christ the son of righteousness arisen, to guide our feet into the paths of peace? We now no longer see through the dark glass of types and figures, though we are assisted by them, but face to face, behold a reconciled God in Christ. The burdensome services of the ceremonial ordinances are ceased, and all our present required offering is the broken and contrite heart. In this liberty, wherewith Christ has made us free, every humble believer rejoices, and whilst ceremonial uncleanness is no longer his concern, he labours more sollicitously to cleanse himself from all filthiness of flesh and spirit, and to perfect holiness in the fear of God.

NUMBERS.

SO called, from numbering the people, containing an hiſtory of about thirty eight years, beginning from the ſecond month of the ſecond year after the children of Iſrael came out of Egypt; and 4490 years before the coming of the Lord JESUS. who in this book is repreſented to the Iſraelites, and through them to all men, by a figure altogether diſſerent to any that had gone before. This is by the ſerpent Moſes was commanded to make, by the looking to which, the people were cured of the dreadful effects of the poiſon of the ſerpent, by which they were ſtung or bit, as a puniſhment for their ſin againſt God.

By the ſacrifices and ſhedding of blood which we have already ſeen, the atonement made for the ſins of the world by the Lamb that was ſlain from its foundation is ſet forth, and the deſign of that only meritorious ſacrifice explained to us as the ſole cauſe of every ſinner's pardon and acceptance with God; and on which account only grace is given by God to heal the ſoul of the miſery of ſin, and cleanſe it from its evil nature, and this grace proceeding from God through the Son of his love; this ſerpent is made uſe of to repreſent and fully make known to us: God in his boundleſs goodneſs, making uſe of means of conveying knowledge to the minds of men, which were the moſt plain and certain to be underſtood. It is not left as a matter of ſubtile reaſoning, that the Iſraelites, who had received the ſerpent's poiſon, were preſerved from death, and reſtored to health and perfect ſoundneſs, by looking to the figure which was lifted up by the command of God. They knew it of a truth, That "it did come to paſs, that if a ſerpent had bitten any man, when he beheld the ſerpent of braſs he lived." (Num. xxi. 9.) "And as Moſes lifted up the ſerpent in the wilderneſs, even ſo," ſaith our Lord, "muſt the ſon of man be lifted up; That whoſoever believeth in him ſhould not periſh, but have eternal life. (John iii. 15, 16.) The Lord JESUS ſays this after he had juſt been declaring that all men muſt be born again, or have that evil nature changed. This book, as well as every other part of God's word, is to be read as the foundation title-deeds, by which our way is to be made to the preſent and everlaſting poſſeſſion of the Divine mercy and ſavour, through JESUS CHRIST the friend and Saviour of all that believe in him,—all that have an intereſt in that blood which was ſhed to take away the ſins of men. How precious this blood is God's word declares, and many of the living can tell; and the benefits procured by it, is the ſong and ſubject of praiſe to God and the Lamb in heaven for ever.

This book contains thirty ſix chapters.

CHAP. I. God commandeth Moſes to number the people. The princes of the tribes. The number of every tribe. The Levites are exempted for the ſervice of the Lord. CHAP. II. The order of the tribes in their tents. CHAP. III. The ſons of Aaron. The Levites are given to the prieſts, for the ſervice of the tabernacle, inſtead of the firſt-born. The Levites are numbered by their families. The families, number, and charge of the Gerſhonites of the Kohathites, of the Mevarites. The place and charge of Moſes and Aaron. The firſt-born are freed by the Levites. The overplus are redeemed. CHAP. IV. The age and time of the Levites ſervice. The carriage of the Kohathites, when the prieſts have taken down the tabernacle. The charge of Eleazar. The office of the prieſts. The carriage of the Gerſhonites. The carriage of the Mevarites. The number of the Kohathites, of the Gerſhonites and of the Meravites. CHAP. V. The unclean are removed out of the camp. Reſtitution is to be made in treſpaſſes. The trial of jealouſy. CHAP. VI. The law of Nazarites. The form of bleſſing the people. CHAP. VII. The offering of the princes at the dedication of the tabernacle. Their ſeveral offerings at the dedication of the altar. God ſpeaketh to Moſes from the mercy-ſeat. CHAP. VIII. How the lamps are to be lighted. The conſecration of the Levites. The age and time of their ſervice. CHAP. IX. The paſs-over is commanded again. A ſecond paſſover allowed for them that were unclean or abſent. The cloud guideth the removings and encampings of the Iſraelites. CHAP. X. The uſe of the ſilver trumpets. The Iſraelites remove from Sinai to Paran. The order of their march. Hobob is intreated by Moſes not to leave them. The bleſſing of Moſes at the removing and reſting of the ark. CHAP. XI. The burning at Taberah quenched by Moſes' prayer. The people luſt for fleſh, and loath manna. Moſes complaineth of his charge. God divideth his burden unto ſeventy elders. Quails are given in wrath at Kibreth-hattaavah. CHAP. XII. God rebuketh the ſedition of Miriam and Aaron. Miriam's leproſy is healed at the prayer of Moſes. God commandeth her to be ſhut out of the hoſt. CHAP. XIII. The names of men who were ſent to ſearch the land: Their inſtructions: Their acts. Their relation. CHAP. XIV. The people murmur at the news. Joſhua and Caleb labour to ſtill them. God threateneth them, Moſes perſuadeth God, and obtaineth pardon. The murmurers are deprived of entering into the land. The men who raiſed the evil report die by a plague. The people that would invade the land againſt the will of God are ſmitten. CHAP. XV. The law of the meat-offering, and the drink-offering. The ſtranger is under the ſame law. The law of the firſt of the dough for an heave-offering. The ſacrifice for ſins of ignorance. The puniſhment of preſumption. He that violated the ſabbath is ſtoned. The law of fringes. CHAP. XVI. The rebellion of Korah, and Dathan, and Abiram. Moſes ſeparateth the people from the rebel's tents. The earth ſwalloweth up Korah, and a fire conſumeth others. The cenſers are reſerved to holy uſe. Fourteen thouſand and ſeven hundred are ſlain by a plague for murmuring againſt Moſes and Aaron. Aaron by incenſe ſtayeth the plague. CHAP. XVII. Aaron's rod among all the rods of the tribes only flouriſheth. It is left for a monument againſt the rebels. CHAP. XVIII The charge of the prieſts and Levites. The prieſts portion. The Levites portion. The heave-offering to the prieſts out of the Levites portion. CHAP. XIX. The water of ſeparation made of the aſhes of a red heifer The law for the uſe of it in purification of the unclean. CHAP. XX. The children of Iſrael come to Zin, where Miriam dieth. They murmur for want of water. Moſes ſmiting the rock, bringeth forth water at Meribah. Moſes at Kadeſh deſireth paſſage through Edom, which is denied him. At mount Hor Aaron reſigneth his place to Eleazar, and dieth. CHAP. XXI. Iſrael with ſome loſs deſtroy the Canaanites at Horma. The people murmuring are plagued with fiery ſerpents. They repenting are healed by a braſen ſerpent. Sundry journeys of the Iſraelites. Sihon is overcome, and Og. CHAP. XXII. Balak's firſt meſſage for Balaam is refuſed. His ſecond meſſage obtaineth him. An angel would have ſlain him, if his aſs had not ſaved him. Balak entertaineth him. CHAP. XXIII. Balak's ſacrifice. Balaam's parable. CHAP. XXIV. Balaam leaving divination; propheſieth the happineſs of Iſrael.

Balak

Balak in anger diſmiſſeth him. He propheſieth of the ſtar of Jacob, and the deſtruction of ſome nations. CHAP. XXV. Iſrael at Shittim commit whoredom and idolatry. Phinehas killeth Zimri and Cozbi. God therefore giveth him an everlaſting prieſthood. The Midianites are to be vexed. CHAP. XXVI. The ſum of all Iſrael is taken in the plains of Moab. The law of dividing among them the inheritance of the land. The families and number of the Levites. None were left of them which were numbered at Sinai, but Caleb and Joſhua. CHAP. XXVII. The daughters of Zelophehad ſue for an inheritance. The law of inheritance. Moſes being told of his death, ſueth for a ſucceſſor. Joſhua is appointed to ſucceed him. CHAP. XXVIII. Offerings are to be obſerved. The continual burnt-offering. The offering on the ſabbath, on the new moons at the paſs-over, in the day of the firſt-fruits. CHAP. XXIX. The offering at the feaſt of trumpets, at the day of afflicting their ſouls, and on the eight days of the feaſt of tabernacles. CHAP. XXX. Vows are not to be broken. The exceptions of a maid's vow, of a wife's, of a widow's, or her that is divorced. CHAP. XXXI. The Midianites are ſpoiled, and Balaam ſlain. Moſes is wroth with the officers, for ſaving the women alive. How the ſoldiers with their captives and ſpoil are to be purified. The proportion whereby the prey is to be divided. The voluntary oblation unto the treaſury of the Lord. CHAP. XXXII. The Reubenites and Godites ſue for their inheritance on that ſide Jordan. Moſes reproveth them. They offer him conditions to his content. Moſes aſſigneth them the land. They conquer it. CHAP. XXXIII. Two and forty journeys of the Iſraelites. The Canaanites are to be deſtroyed. CHAP. XXXIV. The borders of the land. The names of the men which ſhall divide the land. CHAP. XXXV. Eight and forty cities for the Levites with their ſuburbs, and meaſure thereof. Six of them are to be cities of refuge. The laws of murder. No ſatisfaction for murder. CHAP. XXXVI. The inconvenience of the inheritance of daughters is remedied by marrying in their own tribe, leſt the inheritance ſhould be removed from the tribe. The daughters of Zelophehad marry their father's brother's ſons.

Before Chriſt 1490.

CHAP. I.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes in the wilderneſs of Sinai, in the tabernacle of the congregation, on the firſt day of the ſecond month, in the ſecond year, after they were come out of the land of Egypt, ſaying, a Exod. 30. 12. and 38. 26.

2 [a] Take ye the ſum of all the congregation of the children of Iſrael, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, with the number of their names, every male by their poll:

3 From twenty years old and upward, all that are able to go forth to war in Iſrael: thou and Aaron ſhall number them by their armies.

4 And with you there ſhall be a man of every tribe; every one head of the houſe of his fathers.

5 ¶ And theſe are the names of the men that ſhall ſtand with you: Of the tribe of Reuben; Elizur the ſon of Shedeur.

6 Of Simeon; Shelumiel the ſon of Zuriſhaddai.

7 Of Judah; Naſhon the ſon of Amminadab.

8 Of Iſſachar; Nethaneel the ſon of Zuar.

9 Of Zebulun; Eliab the ſon of Helon.

10 Of the children of Joſeph: of Ephraim, Eliſhama the ſon of Ammihud; of Manaſſeh, Gamaliel the ſon of Pedahzur.

Before Chriſt 1490.

11 Of Benjamin; Abidan the ſon of Gideoni.

12 Of Dan; Ahiezer the ſon of Ammiſhaddai.

13 Of Aſher; Pagiel the ſon of Ocran.

14 Of Gad; Eliaſaph the ſon of [b] Deuel.

b Chap. 2. 14. he is called, Reuel.

15 Of Naphtali; Ahira the ſon of Enan.

16 [c] Theſe were the renowned of the congregation, princes of the tribes of their fathers, heads of thouſands in Iſrael.

c 1 Chron. 27. 16.

17 ¶ And Moſes and Aaron took theſe men, which are expreſſed by their names.

18 And they aſſembled all the congregation together on the firſt day of the ſecond month, and they declared their pedigrees after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, by their poll.

19 As the Lord commanded Moſes, ſo he numbered them in the wilderneſs of Sinai.

20 And the children of Reuben, Iſrael's eldeſt ſon, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, by their poll, every male from twenty years old and upward,

CHAP. I.

V. 1. The Lord ſpake unto Moſes in the wilderneſs of Sinai—Where now they had been a year, or near it. In the tabernacle—From the mercy ſeat.

V. 2. Take ye the ſum of the children of Iſrael—That the great number of the people might be known to the praiſe of God's faithfulneſs, in making good his promiſes of multiplying them, and to their own comfort and encouragement, for the better ordering of their camp and march, for they were now beginning their journey, and that this account might be compared with the other in the cloſe of the book, where we read that not one of all this vaſt number, except Caleb and Joſhua, were left alive, which was an evident diſcovery of the miſchievous nature of ſin, by which ſo vaſt a company were deſtroyed, and a warning to all future generations, to take heed of rebelling againſt the Lord, for which their anceſtors had been ſo dreadfully plagued even to extirpation. Their families, the houſe of their fathers—The people were divided into twelve tribes, the tribes into great families, theſe great families into leſſer families, called the houſes of their fathers.

V. 4. A man of every tribe—To inſpect the work, that it might be faithfully and impartially done.

V. 5. The men that ſhall ſtand with you—With Moſes and Aaron, who were the chief managers of the work.

V. 16. Theſe were the renowned—The named, or called, by Moſes, and by God's appointment, to manage this affair and others.

Before Christ 1490. upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

21 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Reuben, were forty and ſix thouſand and five hundred.

22 ¶ Of the children of Simeon, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, thoſe that were numbered of them, according to the number of the names, by their polls, every male from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

23 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Simeon, were fifty and nine thouſand and three hundred.

24 ¶ Of the children of Gad, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

25 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Gad, were forty and five thouſand ſix hundred and fifty.

26 ¶ Of the children of Judah, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

27 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Judah, were threeſcore and fourteen thouſand and ſix hundred.

28 ¶ Of the children of Iſſachar, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

29 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Iſſachar, were fifty and four thouſand and four hundred.

30 ¶ Of the children of Zebulun, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

31 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Zebulun, were fifty and ſeven thouſand and four hundred.

32 ¶ Of the children of Joſeph, namely, of the children of Ephraim, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

Before Christ 1490.

33 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Ephraim, were forty thouſand and five hundred.

34 ¶ Of the children of Manaſſeh, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

35 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Manaſſeh, were thirty and two thouſand and two hundred.

36 ¶ Of the children of Benjamin, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

37 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Benjamin, were thirty and five thouſand and four hundred.

38 ¶ Of the children of Dan, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

39 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Dan, were threeſcore and two thouſand and ſeven hundred.

40 ¶ Of the children of Aſher, by their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

41 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Aſher, were forty and one thouſand and five hundred.

42 ¶ Of the children of Naphtali, throughout their generations, after their families, by the houſe of their fathers, according to the number of the names, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war;

43 Thoſe that were numbered of them, even of the tribe of Naphtali, were fifty and three thouſand and four hundred.

44 Theſe

V. 27. The tribe of Judah—Far more than any other tribe, in accompliſhing of Jacob's prophecy.

V. 33. The tribe of Ephraim—Above eight thouſand more than Manaſſeh, towards the accompliſhment of that promiſe, (Gen. xlviii. 20.)

37. The tribe of Benjamin—The ſmalleſt number except one though Benjamin had more immediate children than any of his brethren.

V. 49. Thou ſhalt not number the tribe of Levi—Becauſe they were not generally to go out to war, but were to attend upon the ſervice of the tabernacle.

Before Christ 1490.

44 These are those that were numbered, which Moses and Aaron numbered, and the princes of Israel, being twelve men: each one was for the house of his fathers.

45 So were all those that were numbered of the children of Israel, by the house of their fathers, from twenty years old and upward, all that were able to go forth to war in Israel;

46 Even all they that were numbered, were [d] six hundred thousand and three thousand and five hundred and fifty.

[d] Exod. 38. 26. See Exod. 12. 37. Chap. 26. 51.

47 ¶ But [e] the Levites, after the tribe of their fathers, were not numbered among them.

[e] See Chap. 3. and 4 and 26. 57. 1 Chron. 6. and 21. 6.

48 For the Lord had spoken unto Moses, saying,

49 [f] Only thou shalt not number the tribe of Levi, neither take the sum of them among the children of Israel:

[f] Chap. 26. 62.

50 But thou shalt appoint the Levites over the tabernacle of testimony, and over all the vessels thereof, and over all things that belong to it: they shall bear the tabernacle, and all the vessels thereof, and they shall minister unto it, and shall encamp round about the tabernacle.

51 And when the tabernacle setteth forward, the Levites shall take it down: and when the tabernacle is to be pitched, the Levites shall set it up: [g] and the stranger that cometh nigh, shall be put to death.

[g] Chap. 3. 10, 38. & 18. 22.

52 And the children of Israel shall pitch their tents every man by his own camp, and every man by his own standard, throughout their hosts.

53 But the Levites shall pitch round about the tabernacle of testimony; that there be no wrath upon the congregation of the children of Israel; and the Levites shall keep the charge of the tabernacle of testimony.

54 And the children of Israel did according to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so did they.

CHAP. II.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, saying,

2 Every man of the children of Israel shall pitch by his own standard, with the ensign of their fathers house: [*] far off about the tabernacle of the congregation shall they pitch.

[*] Heb. over against.

3 ¶ And on the east side toward the rising of the sun, shall they of the standard of the camp of Judah pitch, throughout their armies: and Nahshon the son of Amminadab shall be captain of the children of Judah.

Before Christ 1490.

4 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were threescore and fourteen thousand and six hundred.

5 And those that do pitch next unto him, shall be the tribe of Issachar: and Nethaneel the son of Zuar shall be captain of the children of Issachar.

6 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were fifty and four thousand and four hundred.

7 Then the tribe of Zebulun: and Eliab the son of Helon shall be captain of the children of Zebulun.

8 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were fifty and seven thousand and four hundred.

9 All that were numbered in the camp of Judah, were an hundred thousand and fourscore thousand and six thousand and four hundred, throughout their armies: these shall first set forth.

10 ¶ On the south side shall be the standard of the camp of Reuben, according to their armies: and the captain of the children of Reuben, shall be Elizur the son Shedeur.

11 And his host, and those that were numbered thereof, were forty and six thousand and five hundred.

12 And those which pitch by him, shall be the tribe of Simeon: and the captain of the children of Simeon, shall be Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

13 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were fifty and nine thousand and three hundred.

14 Then the tribe of Gad: and the captain of the sons of Gad, shall be Eliasaph the son of † Reuel.

† Deuel, Chap. 1. 14. and 7. 42, 47. and 10. 20.

15 And his host, and those that were numbered of them, were forty and five thousand and six hundred and fifty.

16 All that were numbered in the camp of Reuben, were an hundred thousand and fifty and one thousand and four hundred and fifty, throughout

V. 53. That there be no wrath—From God, who is very tender of his worship, and will not suffer the profaners of it to go unpunished, whose wrath is called simply wrath by way of eminency, as the most terrible kind of wrath. The Levites shall keep the charge—Shall suffer no stranger to approach through curiosity, or any other motive.

CHAP. II.

V. 2. Every man shall pitch by his own standard—There were four great standards or ensigns.

V. 18. The camp of Ephraim—Who is here preferred before his brother, according to the prophesy.

V. 33. The

Before Christ 1490. throughout their armies: and they ſhall ſet forth in the ſecond rank.

17 ¶ Then the tabernacle of the congregation ſhall ſet forward with the camp of the Levites, in the midſt of the camp: as they encamp, ſo ſhall they ſet forward, every man in his place by their ſtandards.

18 ¶ On the weſt ſide ſhall be the ſtandard of the camp of Ephraim, according to their armies: and the captain of the ſons of Ephraim, ſhall be Eliſhama the ſon of Ammihud.

19 And his hoſt, and thoſe that were numbered of them, were forty thouſand and five hundred.

20 And by him ſhall be the tribe of Manaſſeh: and the captain of the children of Manaſſeh, ſhall be Gamaliel the ſon of Pedahzur.

21 And his hoſt, and thoſe that were numbered of them, were thirty and two thouſand and two hundred.

22 Then the tribe of Benjamin: and the captain of the ſons of Benjamin, ſhall be Abidan the ſon of Gideoni.

23 And his hoſt, and thoſe that were numbered of them, were thirty and five thouſand and four hundred.

24 All that were numbered of the camp of Ephraim, were an hundred thouſand and eight thouſand and an hundred, throughout their armies: and they ſhall go forward in the third rank.

25 ¶ The ſtandard of the camp of Dan ſhall be on the north ſide by their armies: and the captain of the children of Dan ſhall be Ahiezer the ſon of Ammiſhaddai.

26 And his hoſt, and thoſe that were numbered of them, were three-ſcore and two thouſand and ſeven hundred.

27 And thoſe that encamp by him, ſhall be the tribe of Aſher: and the captain of the children of Aſher, ſhall be Pagiel the ſon of Ocran.

28 And his hoſt, and thoſe that were numbered of them, were forty and one thouſand and five hundred.

29 Then the tribe of Naphtali: and the captain of the children of Naphtali, ſhall be Ahira the ſon of Enan.

30 And his hoſt, and thoſe that were numbered of them, were fifty and three thouſand and four hundred. Before Christ 1490.

31 All they that were numbered in the camp of Dan, were an hundred thouſand and fifty and ſeven thouſand and ſix hundred: they ſhall go hindmoſt with their ſtandards.

32 ¶ Theſe are thoſe which were numbered of the children of Iſrael by the houſe of their fathers; [a] all thoſe that were numbered of the camps throughout their hoſts, were ſix hundred thouſand and three thouſand and five hundred and fifty. a Exod. 38. 25. Chap. 1. 46.

33 But [b] the Levites were not numbered among the children of Iſrael; as the Lord commanded Moſes. b Chap. 1. 47.

34 And the children of Iſrael did according to all that the Lord commanded Moſes: ſo they pitched by their ſtandards, and ſo they ſet forward, every one after their families, according to the houſe of their fathers.

CHAP. III.

THESE alſo are the generations of Aaron and Moſes, in the day that the Lord ſpake with Moſes in mount Sinai. 1491

2 And theſe are the names of the ſons of Aaron; Nadab the [a] firſt-born, and Abihu, Eleazar, and Ithamar. a Exod. 6. 23.

3 Theſe are the names of the ſons of Aaron, the prieſts which were anointed, * whom he conſecrated to miniſter in the prieſt's office. * Heb. whoſe hand he filled.

4 [b] And Nadab and Abihu died before the Lord, when they offered ſtrange fire before the Lord in the wilderneſs of Sinai, and they had no children: and Eleazar and Ithamar miniſtered in the prieſt's office, in the ſight of Aaron their father. 1490. b Lev. 10. 1. Chap. 26. 61. 1 Chron. 24. 2.

5 ¶ And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

6 Bring the tribe of Levi near, and preſent them before Aaron the prieſt, that they may miniſter unto him.

7 And they ſhall keep his charge, and the charge of the whole congregation before the tabernacle of the congregation, to do [c] the ſervice of the tabernacle. c See Chap. 1. 50.

8 And they ſhall keep all the inſtruments of

V. 33. The Levites were not numbered among the children of Iſrael—Becauſe their warfare was of another kind.

V. 34. They pitched by their ſtandards—Each of them under his principal ſtandard.

CHAP. III.

V. 6. Bring the tribe of Levi near, and preſent them—Offer them to the Lord for his ſpecial ſervice. This was promiſed to them before, and now conferred upon them.

V. 7. They ſhall keep his charge—Aaron's charge, or thoſe things which are committed principally to Aaron's care, and under his direction to the Levites. The charge of the whole congregation—Of all the ſacrifices and ſervices which were due to the Lord from all the people, and becauſe all the people could not and might not perform them, or at leaſt diverſe of them, in their own perſons, therefore they were to be performed by ſome particular perſons in their name and ſtead, formerly by the firſt-born,

(Num

Before Christ 1490.

of the tabernacle of the congregation, and the charge of the children of Israel, to do the service of the tabernacle.

d Chap. 8. 19. 9 And [d] thou shalt give the Levites unto Aaron and to his sons: they are wholly given unto him out of the children of Israel.

10 And thou shalt appoint Aaron and his sons, and they shall wait on their priest's office: and e Verse 38. Chap. 1. 51. and 16. 40. [e] the stranger that cometh nigh, shall be put to death.

11 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

f Chap. 8. 16. and 18. 6. 12 And I, behold, [f] I have taken the Levites from among the children of Israel, instead of all the first-born that openeth the matrix among the children of Israel: therefore the Levites shall be mine, g Exod. 13. 2. Lev. 27. 26. Chap. 8. 16. Luke 2. 23. h Exod. 13. 12, 15. 13 Because [g] all the first-born are mine; [h] for on the day that I smote all the first-born in the land of Egypt, I hallowed unto me all the first-born in Israel, both man and beast, mine they shall be: I am the Lord.

14 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, saying, 15 Number the children of Levi, after the house of their fathers, by their families: i Chap. 26. 62. [i] every male from a month old and upward, shalt thou number them.

16 And Moses numbered them according † Heb. mouth. to the † word of the Lord, as he was commanded.

k Gen. 46. 11. Exod. 6. 16. Chap. 26. 57. 1 Chron. 6. 1. and 23. 6. 17 [k] And these were the sons of Levi, by their names: Gershon, and Kohath, and Merari.

18 And these are the names of the sons of Gershon by their families; Libni, and Shimei.

19 And the sons of Kohath by their families; l Exod. 6. 18. [l] Amram, and Izehar, Hebron, and Uzziel.

20 And the sons of Merari by their families; Mahli, and Mushi: these are the families of the Levites, according to the house of their fathers. Before Christ 1490.

21 Of Gershon was the family of the Libnites, and the family of the Shimites: these are the families of the Gershonites.

22 Those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, even those that were numbered of them, were seven thousand and five hundred.

23 The families of the Gershonites shall pitch behind the tabernacle westward.

24 And the chief of the house of the father of the Gershonites, shall be Eliasaph the son of Lael.

m Chap. 4. 24. 25 And [m] the charge of the sons of Gershon, in the tabernacle of the congregation, shall be n Exod. 25. 9. [n] the tabernacle, and o Exod. 26. 1. [o] the tent, p Exod. 26. 7, 14. [p] the covering thereof, and q Exod. 26. 36. [q] the hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congregation:

r Exod. 27. 9. s Exod. 27. 16. 26 And [r] the hangings of the court, and [s] the curtain for the door of the court, which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar round about, and t Exod. 35. 18. [t] the cords of it for all the service thereof.

u 1 Chron. 26. 23. 27 ¶ [u] And of Kohath was the family of the Amramites, and the family of the Izeharites, and the family of the Hebronites, and the family of the Uzzielites: these are the families of the Kohathites.

28 In the number of all the males, from a month old and upward, were eight thousand and six hundred, keeping the charge of the sanctuary.

29 The families of the sons of Kohath shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle southward.

30 And the chief of the house of the father

(Num. viii. 16.) and now by the Levites. (See Num. i. 53. and xvi. 9.) Before the tabernacle—Not within the tabernacle, for the care of these things within the holy place was appropriated to the priests, as the care of the most holy place was peculiar to the High priest.

V. 8. The charge of the children of Israel—Those things which all the children of Israel are in their several places and stations obliged to take care of, though not in their persons, yet by others in their stead.

V. 9. Thou shalt give the Levites unto Aaron—To attend upon him, and observe his orders.

V. 10. Aaron and his sons shall wait on their priests office—In their own persons, not by the Levites. And the stranger—Every one who is of another family than Aaron's, though he be a Levite. That cometh nigh shall be put to death—To execute any part of the priest office.

V. 12. Instead of all the first-born—Who were God's, by right of redemption, and to whom the administration of holy things was formerly committed.

V. 13. I am the Lord—Who may appoint whom I please for my service.

V. 15. Number the children of Levi, every male from a month old—Because at that time the first-born, in whose stead the Levites came, were offered to God, and to be redeemed. And from that time the Levites were consecrated to God, and were, as soon as they were capable, to be instructed in their work. Elsewhere they are numbered from twenty-five years old, when they were entered as novices to part of their work; and from thirty years old, when they were completely admitted to their whole office.

V. 27. Kohath—This family had many priviledges above the others: Of that were Moses and Aaron, and all the priests: They had the chief place about the tabernacle, and the care of the most holy things.

V. 28. Keeping—Keepers appointed for that work, as soon as they were capable of it. The charge of the sanctuary—Of those holy things belonging to the sanctuary.

V. 32. Eleazar the son of Aaron, shall be chief—Next under the High-priest, whence he is called the second priest, and in case of ther of the families of the Kohathites, shall be Elizaphan the son of Uzziel.

Before Christ 1490.

x Chap. 4. 4. 15.
y Exod. 25. 10.
c Exod. 25. 23.
a Exod. 25. 31.
b Exod. 27. 1. and 30. 1.
c Exod. 26. 31.

31 And [x] their charge shall be [y] the ark, and [c] the table, and [a] the candlestick, and [b] the altars, and the vessels of the sanctuary wherewith they minister, and [c] the hanging, and all the service thereof.

32 And Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, shall be chief over the chief of the Levites, and have the oversight of them that keep the charge of the sanctuary.

33 ¶ Of Merari was the family of the Mahlites, and the family of the Mushites: these are the families of Merari.

34 And those that were numbered of them, according to the number of all the males from a month old and upward, were six thousand and two hundred.

35 And the chief of the house of the father of the families of Merari, was Zuriel the son of Abihail: these shall pitch on the side of the tabernacle northward.

‡ Heb. the office of the charge.
d Chap. 4. 31.

36 And ‡ [d] under the custody and charge of the sons of Merari, shall be the boards of the tabernacle, and the bars thereof, and the pillars thereof, and the sockets thereof, and all the vessels thereof, and all that serveth thereto,

37 And the pillars of the court round about, and their sockets, and their pins, and their cords.

38 ¶ But those that encamp before the tabernacle toward the east, even before the tabernacle of the congregation eastward, shall be Moses and Aaron, and his sons, keeping the charge of the sanctuary, for the charge of the children of Israel; and [e] the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.

e Verse 10.

39 [f] All that were numbered of the Levites, which Moses and Aaron numbered at the commandment of the Lord, throughout their families, all the males from a month old and upward, were twenty and two thousand.

f See Chap. 26. 62.

40 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Number all the first-born of the males of the children of Israel, from a month old and upward, and take the number of their names.

Before Christ 1490.

41 And thou shalt take the Levites for me (I am the Lord) in stead of all the first-born among the children of Israel; and the cattle of the Levites, in stead of all the first-lings among the cattle of the children of Israel.

42 And Moses numbered, as the Lord commanded him, all the first-born among the children of Israel.

43 And all the first-born males, by the number of names, from a month old and upward, of those that were numbered of them, were twenty and two thousand two hundred and threescore and thirteen.

44 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

45 Take the Levites in stead of all the first-born, among the children of Israel, and the cattle of the Levites in stead of their cattle, and the Levites shall be mine: I am the Lord.

46 And for those that are to be redeemed of the two hundred and threescore and thirteen, of the first-born of the children of Israel, which are more than the Levites;

47 Thou shalt even take five shekels apiece by the poll, after the shekel of the sanctuary shalt thou take them: [g] the shekel is twenty gerahs.

g Exod. 30. 13. Lev. 27. 25. Chap. 18. 16. Ezek. 45. 12.

48 And thou shalt give the money, wherewith the odd number of them is to be redeemed, unto Aaron and to his sons.

49 And Moses took the redemption-money of them that were over and above them that were redeemed by the Levites.

50 Of the first-born of the children of Israel took he the money; a thousand three hundred and three-score and five shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

51 And Moses gave the money of them that were redeemed, unto Aaron and to his sons, according to the word of the Lord, as the Lord commanded Moses.

CHAP. IV.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, saying,

2 Take the High-priest's absence by sickness, he was to perform his work, and he had a superiority over all the rest of the priests and Levites. The chief of the Levites—Over those persons, who were each the chief of their several families.

V. 38. The sanctuary for the charge of the children of Israel—God had committed it to those for their good, for their preservation, as the word may be rendered. All that God commands in things civil and sacred, were for their good.

V. 41. The cattle of the Levites—For themselves, as God's ministers, and for their support in God's work.

V. 47. Take five shekels a piece—The price to be paid for the redemption of a first-born, a month old.

V. 48. Thou shalt give the number to be redeemed unto Aaron and to his sons—To whom all the Levites were given, and therefore the money which came in their stead.

CHAP.

Before Christ 1490.

2 Take the sum of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, after their families, by the house of their fathers;

3 [a] From thirty years old and upward, even until fifty years old, all that enter into the host, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation.

4 This shall be the service of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of the congregation, about the most holy things.

5 ¶ And when the camp setteth forward, Aaron shall come and his sons, and they shall take down [b] the covering vail, and cover the ark of testimony with it:

6 And shall put thereon the covering of badgers skins, and shall spread over it a cloth wholly of blue, and shall put in [c] the staves thereof.

7 And upon the [d] table of shewbread they shall spread a cloth of blue, and put thereon the dishes, and the spoons, and the bowls, and covers to ‖ cover withal: and the continual bread shall be thereon.

8 And they shall spread upon them a cloth of scarlet, and cover the same with a covering of badgers skins, and shall put in the staves thereof.

9 And they shall take a cloth of blue, and cover the [e] candlestick of the light, [f] and his lamps, and his tongs, and his snuff-dishes, and all the oil-vessels thereof, wherewith they minister unto it.

10 And they shall put it and all the vessels thereof within a covering of badgers skins, and shall put it upon a bar.

11 And upon the golden altar they shall spread a cloth of blue, and cover it with a covering of badgers skins, and shall put to the staves thereof.

12 And they shall take all the instruments of ministry, wherewith they minister in the sanctuary, and put them in a cloth of blue, and cover them with a covering of badgers skins, and shall put them on a bar.

13 And they shall take away the ashes from the altar, and spread a purple cloth thereon:

14 And they shall put upon it all the vessels thereof, wherewith they minister about it, even the censers, the flesh-hooks, and the shovels, and the ‖ basons, all the vessels of the altar; and they shall spread upon it a covering of badgers skins, and put to the staves of it.

15 And when Aaron and his sons have made an end of covering the sanctuary, and all the vessels of the sanctuary, as the camp is to set forward; after that, the sons of Kohath shall come to bear it: [g] but they shall not touch any holy thing, lest they die. [h] These things are the burden of the sons of Kohath, in the tabernacle of the congregation.

16 ¶ And to the office of Eleazar the son of Aaron the priest, pertaineth [i] the oil for the light, and the [k] sweet incense, and [l] the daily meat-offering, and the [m] anointing oil, and the oversight of all the tabernacle, and of all that therein is, in the sanctuary, and in the vessels thereof.

17 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, and unto Aaron, saying,

18 Cut ye not off the tribe of the families of the Kohathites, from among the Levites.

19 But thus do unto them, that they may live and not die, when they approach unto the most holy things; Aaron and his sons shall go in, and appoint them every one to his service, and to his burden.

20 [n] But they shall not go in to see when the holy things are covered, lest they die.

21 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

22 Take also the sum of the sons of Gershon, throughout the houses of their fathers by their families;

23 From thirty years old and upward, until fifty years old shalt thou number them; all that enter in ‡ to perform the service, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation.

24 This is the service of the families of the Gershonites, to serve, and for § burdens.

25 And [o] they shall bear the curtains of the tabernacle, and the tabernacle of the congregation, his covering, and the covering of the badgers skins that a See Chap. 8. 24.

b Exod. 26. 31.

c Exod. 25. 13.

d Exod. 25. 30.

‖ Or, pour out withal.

e Exod. 25. 31.

f Exod. 25. 37, 38.

g 2 Sam. 6. 6.

h Chap. 3. 31.

i Exod. 25. 6.

k Exod. 30. 34.

l Exod. 29. 40.

m Exod. 30. 25.

n See Exod. 19. 21. 1 Sam. 6. 19.

‡ Heb. to war the warfare.

§ Or, carriage.

o Chap. 3. 25.

CHAP. IV.

V. 3, Thirty years old—This age was prescribed, as the age of full strength of body, and of maturity of judgment, which is necessary for the right management of holy services. Whence even John, and the LORD CHRIST, entered not upon their ministry till that age. The society of sacred ministers he calls an host, because of that excellent order which was among them as to persons, place, time, the matter and manner, of their services.

V. 18. Cut ye not off the families of the Kohathites—Do not, by your neglect, provoke God to cut them off for touching the holy things.

V. 19. Aaron and his sons shall appoint every one to his service—To that which is peculiarly allotted to him, the services and burdens being equally distributed among them.

V. 32. By

Before Christ 1490. that is above upon it, and the hanging for the door of the tabernacle of the congretion, 26 And the hangings of the court, and the hanging for the door of the gate of the court which is by the tabernacle, and by the altar round about, and their cords, and all the instruments of their service, and all that is made for them: so shall they serve.

‖ Heb. mouth. 27 At the ‖ appointment of Aaron and his sons, shall be all the service of the sons of the Gershonites, in all their burdens, and in all their service: and ye shall appoint unto them in charge all their burdens.

28 This is the service of the families of the sons of Gershon, in the tabernacle of the congregation: and their charge shall be under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

29 ¶ As for the sons of Merari, thou shalt number them after their families, by the house of their fathers;

30 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old shalt thou number them, every one that entereth in to the [a] Heb. warfare. [a] service, to do the work of the tabernacle of the congregation.

[b] Chap. 3. 36. 31 And [b] this is the charge of their burden, according to all their service in the tabernacle of the congregation: [c] the boards of the tabernacle, and the bars thereof, and the pillars thereof, and sockets thereof,

[c] Exod. 26. 15. 32 And the pillars of the court round about, and their sockets, and their pins, and their cords, with all their instruments, and with all their service: and by name ye shall reckon the instruments of the charge of their burden.

33 This is the service of the families of the sons of Merari, according to all their service in the tabernacle of the congregation, under the hand of Ithamar the son of Aaron the priest.

34 ¶ And Moses and Aaron and the chief of the congregation numbered the sons of the Kohathites, after their families, and after the house of their fathers;

35 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that entereth in to the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation:

36 And those that were numbered of them by their families, were two thousand seven hundred and fifty.

37 These were they that were numbered of the families of the Kohathites, all that might do service in the tabernacle of the congregation; which Moses and Aaron did number, according to the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moses. Before Christ 1490.

38 And those that were numbered of the sons of Gershon, throughout their families, and by the house of their fathers;

39 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that entereth in to the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation:

40 Even those that were numbered of them, throughout their families, by the houses of their fathers, were two thousand and six hundred and thirty.

41 These are they that were numbered of the families of the sons of Gershon, of all that might do service in the tabernacle of the congregation, whom Moses and Aaron did number, according to commandment of the Lord.

42 ¶ And those that were numbered of the families of the sons of Merari, throughout their families, by the house of their fathers;

43 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that entereth in to the service, for the work in the tabernacle of the congregation:

44 Even those that were numbered of them after their families, were three thousand and two hundred.

45 These be those that were numbered of the families of the sons of Merari, whom Moses and Aaron numbered, according to the word of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

46 All those that were numbered of the Levites, whom Moses and Aaron and the chief of Israel numbered, after their families, and after the house of their fathers;

47 From thirty years old and upward, even unto fifty years old, every one that came to do the service of the ministry, and the service of the burden in the tabernacle of the congregation;

48 Even those that were numbered of them were eight thousand and five hundred and fourscore.

49 According to the commandment of the Lord, they were numbered by the hand of Moses,

V. 32. By name ye shall reckon the instruments—To teach us, that God esteems nothing small in his worship and service, and that he expects his will should be observed in the minutest circumstances.

CHAP.

Before Christ 1490. Moſes, every one according to his ſervice, and according to his burden: thus were they numbered of him, as the Lord commanded Moſes.

CHAP. V.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 Command the children of Iſrael, that they put out of the camp every [a] leper, and every one that hath an [b] iſſue, and whoſoever is defiled [c] by the dead;

a Lev. 13. 3. 46. & Chap. 12. 14.
b Lev. 15. 2.
c Lev. 21. 1. Chap. 9. 6, 10. & 19. 11. & 31. 19.

3 Both male and female ſhall ye put out, without the camp ſhall ye put them; that they defile not their camps in the midſt whereof I dwell.

4 And the children of Iſrael did ſo, and put them out without the camp: as the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſo did the children of Iſrael.

5 ¶ And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying, d Lev. 6. 2, 3.

6 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, [d] When a man or woman ſhall commit any ſin that men commit, to do a treſpaſs againſt the Lord, and that perſon be guilty;

e Lev. 26. 40. Joſh. 7. 19.
f Lev. 6. 5.

7 [e] Then they ſhall confeſs their ſin which they have done: and he ſhall recompence his treſpaſs [f] with the principal thereof, and add unto it the fifth part thereof, and give it unto him againſt whom he hath treſpaſſed.

8 But if the man have no kinſman to recompence the treſpaſs unto, let the treſpaſs be recompenſed unto the Lord, even to the prieſt: beſide [g] the ram of the atonement, whereby an atonement ſhall be made for him,

g Lev. 6. 6. & 7. 8.
* Or, heave-offering.
h Exod. 29. 28. Lev. 6. 18. 26. & 7. 6, 32. Chap. 18. 8. Deut. 18. 3.

9 And every * [h] offering of all the holy things of the children of Iſrael, which they bring unto the prieſt, ſhall be his.

Before Christ 1490.

10 And every man's hallowed things ſhall be his: whatſoever any man giveth the prieſt, it ſhall be [i] his.

i Lev. 10. 13.

11 ¶ And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

12 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, and ſay unto them, If any man's wife go aſide, and commit a treſpaſs againſt him,

13 And a man lie with her carnally, and it be hid from the eyes of her huſband, and be kept cloſe, and ſhe be defiled, and there be no witneſs againſt her, neither ſhe be taken with the manner;

14 And the ſpirit of jealouſy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and ſhe be defiled; or if the ſpirit of jealouſy come upon him, and he be jealous of his wife, and ſhe be not defiled:

15 Then ſhall the man bring his wife unto the prieſt, and he ſhall bring her offering for her, the tenth part of an ephah of barley-meal; he ſhall pour no oil upon it, nor put frankincenſe thereon, for it is an offering of jealouſy, an offering of memorial, bringing iniquity to remembrance.

16 And the prieſt ſhall bring her near, and ſet her before the Lord.

17 And the prieſt ſhall take holy water in an earthen veſſel, and of the duſt that is in the floor of the tabernacle the prieſt ſhall take, and put it into the water.

18 And the prieſt ſhall ſet the woman before the Lord, and uncover the woman's head, and put the offering of memorial in her hands, which is the jealouſy-offering: and the prieſt ſhall have in his hand the bitter water that cauſeth the curſe.

19 And

CHAP. V.

V. 2. Put out of the camp every leper—In which the people dwelt, as afterward out of the cities and towns, that they might not converſe with others, and infect them.

V. 3. Without the camp ſhall ye put them—By which caution God would intimate the danger of men's being made guilty by other men's ſins, and the neceſſary duty of avoiding intimacies with wicked men. In the midſt whereof I dwell—By my ſpecial and gracious preſence, and nothing that is impure can dwell with God.

V. 6. A treſpaſs againſt the Lord—Injuries done to men are alſo ſins againſt God, who hath commanded juſtice to men, as well as religion to himſelf.

V. 7. They ſhall confeſs their ſin—They ſhall not continue in the denial of the fact, but ſhall give glory to God, and take ſhame to themſelves, by acknowledging their ſin. He that confeſſeth and forſaketh his ſin, ſhall find mercy.

V. 8. Let the treſpaſs be recompenſed unto the Lord, even to the prieſt—Whom God appointed as his deputy to receive his dues, and take them to his own uſe, that ſo he might more cheerfully and intirely devote himſelf to the miniſtration of holy things.

V. 13. And there be no witneſs againſt her—For if it was witneſſed, ſhe was to die for it.

V. 14. The ſpirit of jealouſy—A ſtrong opinion or ſuggeſtion, whether from a good or evil ſpirit.

V. 15. He ſhall bring her offering—By way of ſolemn appeal to God, whom hereby ſhe deſired to judge between her and her huſband, and partly by way of atonement to appeaſe God. An offering bringing iniquity to remembrance—Both to God before whom ſhe appeared as a ſinner, and to her own conſcience, if ſhe were guilty, and, if ſhe were not guilty of this, yet it reminded her of her other ſins, for which this might be a puniſhment.

V. 16. Before the Lord—Before the ſanctuary where the ark was.

V. 17. An earthen veſſel—It was to be broken in pieces, that the remembrance of the accuſation might be blotted out as far as was poſſible.

V. 18. The prieſt ſhall ſet the woman before the Lord—That ſhe might be made ſenſible how manifeſt ſhe and all her ways were before God.

Before Christ 1490.

19 And the prieſt ſhall charge her by an oath, and ſay unto the woman, if no man have lien with thee, and if thou haſt not gone aſide to uncleanneſs † ‡ with another in ſtead of thy huſband, be thou free from this bitter water that cauſeth the curſe:

† Or, being in the power of thy huſband. ‡ Heb. under thy huſband.

20 But if thou haſt gone aſide to another inſtead of thy huſband, and if thou be defiled, and ſome man hath lien with thee beſide thine huſband:

21 Then the prieſt ſhall charge the woman with an oath of curſing, and the prieſt ſhall ſay unto the woman, The Lord make thee a curſe, and an oath among thy people, when the Lord doth make thy thigh to § rot, and thy belly to ſwell;

§ Heb. fall.

22 And this water that cauſeth the curſe ſhall go into thy bowels, to make thy belly to ſwell, and thy thigh to rot: And the woman ſhall ſay, Amen, amen.

23 And the prieſt ſhall write theſe curſes in a book, and he ſhall blot them out with the bitter water:

24 And he ſhall cauſe the woman to drink the bitter water that cauſeth the curſe: and the water that cauſeth the curſe ſhall enter into her, and become bitter.

25 Then the prieſt ſhall take the jealouſy-offering out of the woman's hand, and ſhall wave the offering before the Lord, and offer it upon the altar.

26 And the prieſt ſhall take an handful of the offering, even the memorial thereof, and burn it upon the altar, and afterward ſhall cauſe the woman to drink the water.

27 And when he hath made her to drink the water, then it ſhall come to paſs, that if ſhe be defiled, and have done treſpaſs againſt her huſband; that the water that cauſeth the curſe ſhall enter into her, and become bitter, and her belly ſhall ſwell, and her thigh ſhall rot, and the woman ſhall be a curſe among her people.

Before Christ 1490.

k Deut. 28. 37. Pſal. 83. 9, 11. Jer. 24. 9. & 29. 18, 22. & 42. 18. Zech. 8. 13

28 And if the woman be not defiled, but be clean; then ſhe ſhall be free, and ſhall conceive ſeed.

29 This is the law of jealouſies, when a wife goeth aſide to another inſtead of her huſband, and is defiled;

30 Or when the ſpirit of jealouſy cometh upon him, and he be jealous over his wife, and ſhall ſet the woman before the Lord, and the prieſt ſhall execute upon her all this law.

31 Then ſhall the man be guiltleſs from iniquity, and this woman ſhall bear her iniquity.

CHAP. VI.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 Speak unto the children of Iſrael, and ſay unto them, When either man or woman ſhall * ſeparate themſelves to vow a vow of a Nazarite, to ſeparate themſelves unto the Lord.

* Or, make themſelves Nazarites.

3 He ſhall ſeparate himſelf from wine, and ſtrong drink, and ſhall drink no vinegar of wine, or vinegar of ſtrong drink, neither ſhall he drink any liquor of grapes, nor eat moiſt grapes or dried.

4 All the days of his † ſeparation ſhall he eat nothing that is made of the ‡ vine-tree, from the kernals even to the huſk.

† Or, Nazaritelhip. ‡ Heb. vine of the wine.

5 All the days of the vow of his ſeparation, there ſhall no [a] razor come upon his head:

a Judg. 13. 5. 1 Sam. 1. 31.

V. 22. The woman ſhall ſay, Amen, amen—So let it be if I be guilty. The word is doubled by her, as an evidence of her innocency, and ardent deſire that God would deal with her according to her deſert.

V. 23. Write theſe curſes in a book—Whoever commits ſins, writes his own condemnation in the books that ſhall be opened at the great day of accounts. What are the things which I have written againſt myſelf; and have I, with a penitent mind, applied to that only Mediator between God and men for pardon, to whom alone power is given on earth to forgive ſins? If I have not ſo applied by true repentance and faith in his blood, there is pardon in no other; and depart from me all ye workers of iniquity, will be the ſentence of the Righteous Judge, on every impenitent ſoul of man.

V. 31. Then ſhall the man be guiltleſs from iniquity—Which he ſhould not have been, if he had either diſſembled, or indulged her in ſo great a wickedneſs, and not endeavoured to bring her to repentance or puniſhment—This woman ſhall bear her iniquity—The puniſhment of her iniquity, whether ſhe was falſe to her huſband, or by any light and fooliſh carriage, gave him occaſion to ſuſpect her to be ſo.

CHAP. VI.

V. 2. When either man or woman ſhall ſeparate themſelves—For both ſexes might make this vow, if they were free. A vow of a Nazarite—Whereby they intirely conſecrated themſelves to God's ſervice.

V. 3. He ſhall ſeparate himſelf from wine and ſtrong drink—Leſt they ſhould inflame or diſpoſe him to luxury, and conſequently to the breaking of his vow: or cloud his reaſon, and thereby occaſion ſome miſtake or miſcarriage in the rules to which he had bound himſelf. Nor eat moiſt grapes, or dried—Which was forbidden him, for greater caution to keep him at the further diſtance from wine. They that give themſelves to God, he calls them to purer delights than thoſe that ariſe from taking the ſweeteſt food or fineſt wine: to live to pleaſe our ſenſes, is to let the immortal nature ſink down to a level with the beaſts, who know no higher happineſs; but every ſoul of man is called to be a partaker of the glory and the joys of the world to come; and in this life to have fellowſhip with the Father, and with the Son, by the Holy Spirit; and to this end a life of ſelf-denial is the means, and not the painful, but the delightful way.

V. 5. There ſhall no razor come upon his head—This was appointed, head: until the days be fulfilled in the which he separateth himself unto the Lord, he shall be holy; and shall let the locks of the hair of his head grow.

Before Christ 1490.

6 All the days that he separateth himself unto the Lord, [b] he shall come at no dead body.

[b] Lev. 19. 28. Chap. 19. 11.

[c] Lev. 21. 1.

7 [c] He shall not make himself unclean for his father, or for his mother, for his brother, or for his sister, when they die: because the § consecration of his God is upon his head.

§ Heb. separation.

8 All the days of his separation, he is holy unto the Lord.

9 And if any man die very suddenly by him, and he hath defiled the head of his consecration; then he shall shave his head [d] in the day of his cleansing, on the seventh day shall he shave it.

[d] 1 Chron. 19. 14.

[e] Lev. 5. 7. & 14. 22. & 15. 14, 29.

10 And [e] on the eighth day he shall bring two turtles, or two young pigeons to the priest, to the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

11 And the priest shall offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering, and make an atonement for him, for that he sinned by the dead, and shall hallow his head that same day.

12 And he shall consecrate unto the Lord the days of his separation, and shall bring a lamb of the first year [f] for a trespass-offering: but the days that were before shall ‖ be lost, because his separation was defiled.

[f] Lev. 5. 6.

‖ Heb. fall.

13 ¶ And this is the law of the Nazarite: When the days of his separation are fulfilled, he shall be brought unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

Before Christ 1490.

14 And he shall offer his offering unto the Lord, one he-lamb of the first year without blemish, for a burnt-offering, and one ewe-lamb of the first year without blemish, [g] for a sin-offering, and one ram without blemish, [h] for peace-offerings,

[g] Lev. 4. 2, 27. 32.

[h] Lev. 3. 6.

15 And a basket of unleavened bread, [i] cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, and wafers of unleavened bread [k] anointed with oil, and their meat-offering, and their drink-offerings.

[i] Lev. 2. 4.

[k] Exod. 29. 2.

16 And the priest shall bring them before the Lord, and shall offer his sin-offering, and his burnt-offering.

17 And he shall offer the ram for a sacrifice of peace-offerings unto the Lord, with the basket of unleavened bread: the priest shall offer also his meat-offering, and his drink-offering.

18 [l] And the Nazarite shall shave the head of his separation, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall take the hair of the head of his separation, and put it in the fire which is under the sacrifice of the peace-offerings.

[l] Acts 21. 24.

19 And the priest shall take the sodden shoulder of the ram, and one unleavened cake out of the basket, and one unleavened wafer; and shall put them upon the hands of the Nazarite, after the hair of his separation is shaven.

20 And

ed, partly as a sign of his mortification to worldly delights and vain affectation of outward beauty, as a testimony of that purity which hereby he professed, because the cutting off the hair was a sign of uncleanness, and that others might be admonished and stirred up to the imitation of his example. He shall be holy—Wholly consecrated to God and his service, whereby he shews that inward and substantial holiness was the great thing which God required and valued in these, and consequently in other rites and ceremonies.

V. 7. He shall not make himself unclean for his father, or for his mother—Wherein he was equal to the High-priest, being, in some sort, as sacred a person, and as eminent a type of Christ, and therefore justly required to prefer the service of God, to which he had so fully and peculiarly given himself before the expressions of his affections to his dearest and nearest relations. Because the consecration of his God is upon his head—The token of his consecration, his long hair. Whereby he hath devoted himself to his God in an eminent manner.

V. 9. If any man die very suddenly by him, he hath defiled the head of his consecration—By such an accident, which he ought to impute to God's providence so ordering the matter possibly for the punishment of his other sins, or for the quickening of him to more caution and purity, and detestation of all dead works, whereby he would be defiled.

V. 11. The priest shall offer a sin-offering—Because such a pollution was, though not his sin, yet the chastisement of sin, and had an appearance of negligence, in not standing sufficiently upon his guard, which in such persons was in a manner equivalent to a sin. For that he sinned—Contracted a ceremonial uncleanness, which is called sinning, because it was a type of sin, and a violation of a law, though through ignorance and inadvertency, as many other sins were. And shall hallow his head that same day—Begin again to hallow or consecrate it. And thus should these do, that are conscious of having offended God in any degree; after applying to that offering made for all sin, by the sacrifice which Jesus made of himself, they should again immediately give themselves to God.

V. 12. The days that were before shall be lost—Not reckoned or imputed to him, fall to the ground, be void or of none effect. How much may be lost in an unguarded moment?

V. 14. A sin-offering—Whereby he confessed and bewailed his frailties and miscarriages, notwithstanding the strictness of his vow, and all the diligence and care which he could use, and consequently acknowledged his need of the grace of God in Christ Jesus. Peace-offerings—For thankfulness to God, who had given him grace to make, and in some measure to keep such a vow. So he offered all the three sorts of offerings, that he might so far fulfil all righteousness, and profess his obligation to observe the will of God in all things.

V. 23. On

Before Christ 1490.

20 And the prieſt ſhall wave them [m] for a wave-offering before the Lord; this is holy for the prieſt, with the wave-breaſt, and heave-ſhoulder: and after that, the Nazarite may drink wine.

[m] Exod. 29. 27, 28.

21 This is the law of the Nazarite, who hath vowed, and of his offering unto the Lord for his ſeparation, beſides that that his hand ſhall get: according to the vow which he vowed, ſo he muſt do after the law of his ſeparation.

22 And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying.

23 Speak unto Aaron and unto his ſons, ſaying, On this wiſe [n] ye ſhall bleſs the children of Iſrael, ſaying unto them,

[n] Lev. 9. 22.

24 The Lord bleſs thee, and keep thee.

25 The Lord make his face ſhine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee.

[o] Pſal 4. 6.

26 [o] The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee, and give thee peace.

27 And they ſhall put my name upon the children of Iſrael, and I will bleſs them.

CHAP. VII.

AND it came to paſs on the day that Moſes had fully [a] ſet up the tabernacle, and had anointed it, and ſanctified it, and all the inſtruments thereof, both the altar and all the veſſels thereof, and had anointed them, and ſanctified them;

[a] Exod. 40. 18. Lev. 8. 10.

2 That [b] the princes of Iſrael, heads of the houſe of their fathers (who were the princes of the tribes, * and were over them that were numbered) offered:

[b] Chap. 1. 4, &c.

* Or, who ſtood.

3 And they brought their offering before the Lord, ſix covered waggons, and twelve oxen; a waggon for two of the princes, and for each one an ox: and they brought them before the tabernacle.

Before Christ 1490.

4 And the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

5 Take it of them, that they may be to do the ſervice of the tabernacle of the congregation; and thou ſhalt give them unto the Levites, to every man according to his ſervice.

6 And Moſes took the waggons and the oxen, and gave them unto the Levites.

7 Two waggons and four oxen [c] he gave unto the ſons of Gerſhon, according to their ſervice.

[c] Chap. 4. 25.

8 [d] And four waggons and eight oxen he gave unto the ſons of Merari, according unto their ſervice, [e] under the hand of Ithamar the ſon of Aaron the prieſt.

[d] Chap. 4. 32.

[e] Chap. 4. 28, 33.

9 But unto the ſons of Kohath he gave none: becauſe [f] the ſervice of the ſanctuary belonging unto them, [g] was that they ſhould bear upon their ſhoulders.

[f] Chap. 4. 15.

[g] Chap. 4. 6, 8, 10, 12, 14. 2 Sam. 6. 6, 13.

10 ¶ And the princes offered for [h] dedicating of the altar, in the day that it was anointed, even the princes offered their offering before the altar.

[h] See Deut. 20. 5. 1 Kings 8. 63. Ezra 6. 16. Neh. 12. 27. Pſa. 30. title.

11 And the Lord ſaid unto Moſes, They ſhall offer their offering, each prince on his day, for the dedicating of the altar.

12 ¶ And he that offered his offering the firſt day, was Nahſhon the ſon of Amminadab, of the tribe of Judah.

13 And

V. 23. On this wiſe ye ſhall bleſs the children of Iſrael—Thus, in this manner, or in theſe words: yet ſo as that they were not tied to theſe very words, becauſe after this we have examples of Moſes, and David, and Solomon, and others, bleſſing the people in other words.

V. 24. The Lord bleſs thee—Beſtow upon you all manner of bleſſings, temporal and ſpiritual. Continue his bleſſings to thee, and preſerve thee to the uſe of them, and keep thee from ſin and its bitter effects.

V. 25. The Lord make his face ſhine upon thee—Smile upon thee: this is oppoſed to the hiding of his face, and to the covering himſelf or his face with a cloud; and it is explained by the following words, be gracious unto thee. Others expound it of illumination or direction and the diſcovering of himſelf and of his will to them.

V. 26. The Lord lift up his countenance upon thee—Look upon thee with a cheerful and pleaſant countenance, as one that is reconciled to thee and well pleaſed with thee, and thy offerings and ſervices. And give thee peace—Peace with God, and with thy own conſcience and with all men, and all proſperity, which is comprehended under this word.

V. 27. They ſhall put my name upon the children of Iſrael—Shall call them by my name, ſhall recommend them to me as my own people, and bleſs them and pray unto me for them as ſuch: which is a powerful argument to prevail with God for them, and therefore hath been often uſed by the prophets interceeding for them. I will bleſs them—I will ratify their bleſſings, and give thoſe bleſſings to the people which the prieſts pray for.

CHAP. VII.

V. 3. They brought ſix covered waggons—For the more convenient and ſafe carriage of ſuch things as were moſt cumberſome.

V. 5. Give them unto the Levites, to every man according to his ſervice—More or fewer of them, as the nature of their ſervice and of the things to be carried required.

V. 8. Under the hand of Ithamar—Under his care and inſpection.

V. 9. The ſons of Kohath ſhould bear upon their ſhoulders—Becauſe of the greater worth and holineſs of the things which they carried.

V. 11. The Lord ſaid unto Moſes, They ſhall offer each prince on his day—As well for the greater ſolemnity and ſplendor of the work, as for the prevention of confuſion.

V. 12. He that offered the firſt day, was Nahſhon of the tribe of Judah—In whoſe name and behalf, this offering was made, and ſo in the reſt.

V. 84. In

Before Christ 1490.

13 And his offering was one silver charger, the weight thereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after [i] the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them were full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a [k] meat-offering:

14 One spoon of ten shekels of gold, full of incense:

15 [l] One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

16 One kid of the goats for a [m] sin-offering:

17 And for [n] a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Nahshon the son of Amminadab.

18 ¶ On the second day Nethaneel the son of Zuar, prince of Issachar, did offer.

19 He offered for his offering one silver charger, the wight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

20 One spoon of gold of ten shekels, full of incense:

21 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year for a burnt-offering:

22 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

23 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

24 ¶ On the third day Eliab the son of Helon, prince of the children of Zebulun, did offer.

25 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

26 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

27 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

28 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

29 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Eliab the son of Helon.

30 ¶ On the fourth day Elizur the son of Shedeur, prince of the children of Reuben, did offer.

31 His offering was one silver charger, of an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

Before Christ 1490.

32 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

33 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

34 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

35 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Elizur the son of Shedeur.

36 ¶ On the fifth day Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai, prince of the children of Simeon, did offer.

37 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

38 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

39 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

40 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

41 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

42 ¶ On the sixth day Eliasaph the son of Deuel, prince of the children of Gad, offered.

43 His offering was one silver charger, of the weight of an hundred and thirty shekels, a silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

44 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

45 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

46 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

47 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

48 ¶ On the seventh day Elishama the son of Ammihud, prince of the children of Ephraim, offered.

[i] Exod. 30. 13.

[k] Lev. 2. 1.

[l] Lev. 1. 2.

[m] Lev. 4. 28.

[n] Lev. 3. 1.

Before Christ 1490.

49 His offering was one silver charger, the wight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

50 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

51 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

52 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

53 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Elishama the son of Ammihud.

54 ¶ On the eighth day offered Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur, prince of the children of Manasseh.

55 His offering was one silver charger of an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

56 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

57 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

58 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

59 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

60 ¶ On the ninth day Abidan the son of Gideoni, prince of the children of Benjamin, offered.

61 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, a silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

62 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

63 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

64 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

65 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Abidan the son of Gideoni.

66 ¶ On the tenth day Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai, prince of the children of Dan, offered.

Before Christ 1490.

67 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

68 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

69 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

70 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

71 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

72 ¶ On the eleventh day Pagiel the son of Ocran, prince of the children of Asher, offered.

73 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

74 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

75 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

76 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

77 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Pagiel the son of Ocran.

78 ¶ On the twelfth day Ahira the son of of Enan, prince of the children of Naphtali, offered.

79 His offering was one silver charger, the weight whereof was an hundred and thirty shekels, one silver bowl of seventy shekels after the shekel of the sanctuary, both of them full of fine flour mingled with oil, for a meat-offering:

80 One golden spoon of ten shekels, full of incense:

81 One young bullock, one ram, one lamb of the first year, for a burnt-offering:

82 One kid of the goats for a sin-offering:

83 And for a sacrifice of peace-offerings, two oxen, five rams, five he-goats, five lambs of the first year. This was the offering of Ahira the son of Enan.

84 This

Before Christ 1490.

84 This was the dedication of the altar (in the day when it was anointed) by the princes of Israel: twelve chargers of silver, twelve silver bowls, twelve spoons of gold:

85 Each charger of silver weighing an hundred and thirty shekels, each bowl seventy: all the silver vessels weighed two thousand and four hundred shekels, after the shekel of the sanctuary.

86 The golden spoons were twelve, full of incense, weighing ten shekels apiece, after the shekel of the sanctuary: all the gold of the spoons was an hundred and twenty shekels.

87 All the oxen for the burnt-offering were twelve bullocks, the rams twelve, the lambs of the first-year twelve, with their meat-offering: and the kids of the goats for sin-offering, twelve.

88 And all the oxen for the sacrifice of the peace-offerings, were twenty and four bullocks, the rams sixty, the he-goats sixty, the lambs of the first year sixty. This was the dedication of the altar, after that it was anointed.

89 ¶ And when Moses was gone into the tabernacle of the congregation, to speak with * him; then he heard ° the voice of one speaking unto him from off the mercy-seat that was upon the ark of testimony, from between the two cherubims: and he spake unto him.

* That is, God.

° Exod.25.22.

CHAP. VIII.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

2 Speak unto Aaron, and say unto him, When thou [a] lightest the lamps, the seven lamps shall give light over against the candlestick.

Before Christ 1490

a Exod.25.37. and 40.25.

3 And Aaron did so; he lighted the lamps thereof, over against the candlestick; as the Lord commanded Moses.

4 [b] And this work of the candlestick was of beaten gold, unto the shaft thereof, unto the flowers thereof, was [c] beaten work: [d] according unto the pattern which the Lord had shewed Moses, so he made the candlestick.

b Exod.25.31.

c Exod.25.18.

d Exod.25.40.

5 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

6 Take the Levites from among the children of Israel, and cleanse them.

7 And thus shalt thou do unto them, to cleanse them: Sprinkle [e] water of purifying upon them, and * let them shave all their flesh, [f] and let them wash their cloaths, and so make themselves clean.

e Chap. 19. 9, 17, 18.

* Heb. let them cause a razor to pass over, &c.

f Lev. 11. 25.

8 Then let them take a young bullock with [g] his meat-offering, even fine flour mingled with oil, and another young bullock shalt thou take for a sin-offering.

g Lev. 2. 2.

9 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the tabernacle of the congregation; and thou shalt gather the whole assembly of the children of Israel together:

10 And thou shalt bring the Levites before the Lord, and the children of Israel shall put their hands upon the Levites: 11 And

V. 84. In the day when it was anointed—This is again repeated, to shew why it is called the dedication of the altar, because it was the first offering made by any particular persons or tribes.

V. 89. When Moses was gone into the tabernacle of the congregation—Into which Moses was permitted to enter by God's special license. To speak with him—To consult God. Then he heard the voice of one speaking unto him from off the mercy-seat—This seems to be added in this place, to shew that when men had done their part in the dedication of the tabernacle, God was not wanting in the performance of his part, and promise made, (Exod. xxv. 22.) There I will meet with thee, and commune with thee from above the mercy-seat.

CHAP. VIII.

V. 2. The seven lamps shall give light over against the candlestick—The candlestick is put for the bulk or shaft of the candlestick, the meaning is, that all the lamps were to be lighted on that part which was towards the middle, looking that way whence they had their light; for the middle lamp was lighted with the fire of the altar, and from that the other lamps received light. The lights were on both sides of the sanctuary, which was necessary, because it was wholly dark in itself, and had no window in it. And as it was in the tabernacle, so is it ever in the church; there is no light but that which comes from the Father of lights, (James i. 17.) and as all the lamps were lighted from the fire that came down from heaven, so is every good and perfect gift which men do or can possess, communicated to them from the fountain of goodness; and the situation of the lamps to give their light over against the candlestick, may shew us how all those are to stand disposed in heart and mind, who receive grace by faith from Jesus—That is ever looking to him, from whom they are alone supplied with every degree of the Divine life.

V. 4. This work of the candlestick was of beaten gold—Not hollow, but solid and massy gold.

V. 6. Take the Levites and cleanse them—Wash or purify them, which was also done with the Priests and others when they were to approach to God and his service.

V. 7. Sprinkle water of purifying upon them—For the expiation of sin, therefore may seem to have been prescribed before, though it be mentioned after, such kind of transplacings of passages being frequent in Scripture. And this sprinkling with water signifies that which is included in the promise by (Ezekiel xxxvi. 25. &c.) God by his grace for the sake of JESUS, cleansing the natural sinful minds of men from all impurity, and giving them a new heart or renewing right spirits within them.

V. 8. And another young bullock shalt thou take for a sin-offering—The same sacrifice which was offered for a sin-offering for the whole congregation, because the Levites came in the stead of all the first-born, which did in a manner represent the whole congregation.

V. 10. The children of Israel shall put their hands upon the Levites—Whereby they signified their transferring of that right of ministering to God from the first-born, in whose hands it formerly,

Before Christ 1490.

11 And Aaron shall † offer the Levites before the Lord, for an ‡ offering of the children of Israel; that § they may execute the service of the Lord.

† Heb. wave.
‡ Heb. wave-offering.
§ Heb. they may be to execute, &c.

12 And the Levites shall lay their hands upon the heads of the bullocks: and thou shalt offer the one for a sin-offering, and the other for a burnt-offering unto the Lord, to make an atonement for the Levites.

13 And thou shalt set the Levites before Aaron, and before his sons, and offer them for an offering unto the Lord.

14 Thus shalt thou separate the Levites from among the children of Israel: and the Levites shall be [h] mine.

h Chap. 3. 45.

15 And after that shall the Levites go in, to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation: and thou shalt cleanse them, and offer them for an offering.

16 For they are wholly given unto me from among the children of Israel; [i] in stead of such as open every womb, even in stead of the first-born of all the children of Israel, have taken them unto me.

i Chap. 3. 12, 45.

17 [k] For all the first-born of the children of Israel are mine, both man and beast: on the day that I smote every first-born in the land of Egypt, I sanctified them for myself.

k Exod. 13. 2, 12, 15. Chap. 3. 13. Luke 2. 23.

18 And I have taken the Levites for all the first-born of the children of Israel.

Before Christ 1490.

19 And [l] I have given the Levites as ‖ a gift to Aaron, and to his sons, from among the children of Israel, to do the service of the children of Israel in the tabernacle of the congregation, and to make an atonement for the children of Israel: [m] that there be no plague among the children Israel, when the children of Israel come nigh unto the sanctuary.

l Chap. 3. 9.
‖ Heb. given.
m Chap. 16. 46. 2 Chron. 26. 16.

20 And Moses and Aaron, and all the congregation of the children of Israel did to the Levites according unto all that the Lord commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did the children of Israel unto them.

21 And the Levites were purified, and they washed their clothes: and Aaron offered them as an offering before the Lord; and Aaron made an atonement for them to cleanse them.

22 And after that went the Levites in, to do their service in the tabernacle of the congregation before Aaron and before his sons: [n] as the Lord had commanded Moses concerning the Levites, so did they unto them.

n Chap. 4. 4.

23 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

24 This is it that belongeth unto the Levites: from ly was, unto the Levites, and their renouncing of their interest in the Levites, from whom they might otherwise have expected help in their common concerns, and their intire resignation and dedication of them to God's service; as the person offering by laying his hand upon the head of his sacrifice, signified his translation of his guilt upon the beast, and his dedication of it unto God.

V. 11. Aaron shall offer the Levites before the Lord for an offering—To serve God according to their capacity whersoever they should be.

V. 12. The Levites shall lay their hands upon the heads of the bullocks—To signify, that they were offered by them, and for them. Though the Levites were thus offered to God and his service, yet a sacrifice and atonement was to be made for them: and it is now to be remembered that no dedication of ourselves to live to God, will make any designs or services, acceptable unto God, but through the great atonement made by the son of his love, who must by faith be placed before and first, as that which alone can procure acceptance with God, for all that is done or suffered.

V. 13. Set the Levites before Aaron, and before his sons—Put them into the power of Aaron and his sons, to employ them in holy ministrations. Offer them for an offering unto the Lord—For to him they were first properly offered, and by him given to the priests in order to his service.

V. 14. 15. The Levites shall be mine, and after that shall the Levites go in, to do the service of the tabernacle—To wait upon the priests at the altar of burnt-offering; and into the tabernacle, to take it down and set it up. They were first to be the Lord's, and then they were to enter upon his service.

V. 16. They are wholly given unto me—By the peoples consent, as well as taken by my choice and command.

V. 19. I have given the Levites, to do the service of the children of Israel—To serve God in their stead and behalf, to do what otherwise they had been obliged to do in their own persons. To make an atonement for the children of Israel—Not by offering sacrifices, which the priests alone might do, but by assisting the priests in that expiatory work, and by a diligent performance of all the parts of their office, whereby God was pleased both with them and with the people. That there be no plague among the children of Israel—This is added as a reason why God appointed them to serve in or about the tabernacle, that they might watch and guard it, and not suffer any of the people to come near it, or meddle with holy things, which, if they did, it would bring a plague upon them.

V. 21. The Levites were purified—Which was done by washing, sprinkling, and sacrifices. It is of equal moment to all men, to be purified in the very spirit of their minds, as without holiness no man shall see the Lord; but if possible in a more particular manner, it is required that they who are employed in the public service of religion, should know in whom they have believed, and never rest but in a conscious sense that the Redeemer of men has indeed cleansed them by his blood; and that the life they now live is by faith in the son of God; and that by the power of his grace they are purified from those low and worldly desires, which render those that are led by them, unfit for the service of the Lord; as it must be the last injury to the interests of religion for the sons of Levi, its public servants, to be led by any impure, sensual, selfish desire, or be taken up with any other ends or ways of living, which are not consistent with the example of Him, in whose steps all, but especially the ministers of religion, are commanded to walk.

V. 22. After that went the Levites in, before Aaron, and before his sons—In their presence, and by their direction and appointment.

V. 25. From

Before Christ 1490.

from twenty and five years old, and upward, they shall go in * to wait upon the service of the tabernacle of the congregation:

* Heb. to war the warfare of, &c.

25 And from the age of fifty years they shall † cease waiting upon the service thereof, and shall serve no more.

† Heb. return from the warfare of the service.

26 But shall minister with their brethern in the tabernacle of the congregation, to keep the charge, and shall do no service. Thus shalt thou do unto the Levites touching their charge.

CHAP. IX.

AND the Lord spake unto Moses in the wilderness of Sinai, in the first month of the second year, after they were come out of the land of Egypt, saying, a Exod. 12. 1, &c. Lev. 23. 5. Chap 28. 16. Deut. 16. 2.

2 Let the children of Israel also keep [a] the passover at his appointed season.

* Heb. between the two evenings.

3 In the fourteenth day of this month * at even, ye shall keep it in his appointed season: according to all the rites of it, and according to all the ceremonies thereof shall ye keep it.

4 And Moses spake unto the children of Israel, that they should keep the passover.

5 And they kept the passover on the fourteenth day of the first month at even, in the wilderness of Sinai: according to all that the Lord commanded Moses, so did the children of Israel.

b Chap. 5. 3. and 19. 11.

6 ¶ And there were certain men who were [b] defiled by the dead body of a man, that they could not keep the passover on that day: and they came before Moses, and before Aaron on that day.

Before Christ 1490.

7 And those men said unto him, We are defiled by the dead body of a man: wherefore are we kept back, that we may not offer an offering of the Lord in his appointed season among the children of Israel?

8 And Moses said unto them, Stand still, and I will hear what the Lord will command concerning you.

9 ¶ And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying,

10 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, If any man of you, or of your posterity shall be unclean by reason of a dead body, or be in a journey afar off, yet he shall keep the passover unto the Lord.

c 2 Chron. 30. 2, 3.

11 [c] The fourteenth day of the second month at even they shall keep it, and eat it with unleavened bread and bitter herbs.

d Exod. 12. 10.

12 [d] They shall leave none of it unto the morning, [e] nor break any bone of it: according to all the ordinances of the passover, they shall keep it.

e Exod. 12. 46. John 19. 36.

13 But the man that is clean, and is not in a journey, and forbeareth to keep the passover; even the same soul shall be cut off from his people, because he brought not the offering of the Lord in his appointed season: that man shall bear his sin.

14 And

V. 25. From the age of fifty years they shall cease waiting—Upon the difficult and cumbersome part of their work.

V. 26. But shall minister with their brethren—By way of advice, and assistance in lesser and easier works. How merciful and full of compassion are the laws of God. When his servants became advanced in years in his service, they were not then to be bound to do the same work which they did when young: but doubtless many of them who were of an age to take the benefit of the kind provision made for them, would doubtless shew their love to God, by exerting their last remains of strength: and surely happy are they, who, by the blessing of God on a temperate life, are preserved to old age with strength to labour in his service, who gave them life, and died to redeem the body from the power of death, and the soul from the nature and misery of sin.

CHAP. IX.

V. 1. The Lord spake unto Moses in the first month of the second year—And therefore before the numbering of the people, which was not till the second month, (Num. i. 1, 2.) But it is placed after it, because of a special case relating to the passover, which happened after it, and which is here related, upon occasion whereof he mentions the command of God for the keeping of the passover in the wilderness, which was done but once, and without this command they had not been obliged to keep it at all, till they came to the land of Canaan.

V. 2, 3. The passover ye shall keep, according to all the rites of it—So far as concerned the Lamb and the unleavened bread, &c. for there were some things peculiar to the first passover in Egypt, as that they were to eat it in haste, with their loins girded, their shoes on their feet, and their staff in their hand, which were not properly rites or ceremonies of the passover, but circumstances of their present condition, being then travellers and ready to depart.

V. 7. Those men said, we are defiled, we may not offer an offering of the Lord—Which if we neglect, we must be cut off, and if we keep it in these circumstances, we must also be cut off. What shall we do? Sin committed seperates the soul from God; and the commands of God still continue in force, and on their not being performed according to the will of God, the penalties annexed to disobedience are incurred: how great then the necessity of applying to that blood of Jesus, by which alone sin can be pardoned, and through which alone grace can be received, to preserve the soul blameless in the sight of God.

V. 8. Moses said, I will hear what the Lord will command—God having promised to answer, and direct him upon his address to him.

V. 10. If any man of you, be unclean by reason of a dead body, or be in a journey—Under these two instances the Hebrews think, that other hinderances of like nature are comprehended, as if one be hindred by a disease, or by any other such kind of uncleanness, which may seem probable both from the nature of the thing, and the reason of the law. Afar off—In some remote country, whence he cannot return sooner.

V. 13. But the man that forbeareth to keep the passover—Through contempt or neglect, without these or any other just impediments, as before. The same soul shall be cut off from his people—He shall be excluded, from his part in the blessings bestowed on all the

Before Christ 1490.

14 And if a ſtranger ſhall ſojourn among you, and will keep the paſſover unto the Lord, according to the ordinance of the paſſover, and according to the manner thereof, ſo ſhall he do: [f] ye ſhall have one ordinance, both for the ſtranger, and for him that was born in the land.

f Exod. 12. 49.

15 ¶ And [g] on the day that the tabernacle was reared up, the cloud covered the tabernacle, namely, the tent of the teſtimony: and [h] at even there was upon the tabernacle as it were the appearance of fire, until the morning.

g Exod. 40. 34.

h Exod. 13. 21. & 40. 38.

16 So it was alway: the cloud covered it by day, and the appearance of fire by night.

17 And when the cloud was taken up from the tabernacle; then after that the children of Iſrael journeyed: and in the place where the cloud abode, there the children of Iſrael pitched their tents.

18 At the commandment of the Lord the children of Iſrael journeyed, and at the commandment of the Lord they pitched: [i] as long as the cloud abode upon the tabernacle, they reſted in the tents.

i 1 Cor. 10. 1.

19 And when the cloud † tarried long upon the tabernacle many days; then the children of Iſrael kept the charge of the Lord, and journeyed not.

† Heb. prolonged.

20 And ſo it was when the cloud was a few days upon the tabernacle; according to the commandment of the Lord they abode in their tents; and according to the commandment of the Lord they journeyed.

Before Christ 1490.

21 And ſo it was when the cloud ‡ abode from even unto the morning, and that the cloud was taken up in the morning, then they journeyed: whether it was by day or by night that the cloud was taken up, they journeyed.

‡ Heb. was.

22 Or whether it were two days, or a month, or a year that the cloud tarried upon the tabernacle, remaining thereon, the children of Iſrael [k] abode in their tents, and journeyed not: but when it was taken up, they journeyed.

k Exod. 40. 36. 37.

23 At the commandment of the Lord they reſted in the tents, aad at the commandment of the Lord they journeyed: they kept the charge of the Lord, at the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moſes.

CHAP. X.

AND the Lord ſpake unto Moſes, ſaying,

2 Make thee two trumpets of ſilver; of an whole piece ſhalt thou make them that thou mayeſt uſe them for the calling of the aſſembly, and for the journeying of the camps.

3 And when [a] thou ſhall blow with them, all the aſſembly ſhall aſſemble themſelves to thee, at the door of the tabernacle of the congregation.

a Joel 2. 15.

4 And if they blow but with one trumpet, then the princes which are heads of the thouſands the members of the church of God, who knows the will of God and neglects to do it: the grace of God in the ſoul ever leads to the will of God; as on the other hand careleſs or wilful diſobedience in any degree, grieves his Spirit and the ſoul becomes more and more dead unto God and regardleſs of his will; ſo that in every one an entire conformity to the mind and will of God, or an entire ſeperation from God finally takes place; and every deſign word and action, is either in obedience to the grace of God and the word of God, or is oppoſed to the Spirit and contrary to the word: every moment carries its report from every accountable creature to the Creator and Judge of all: of how much concern is it then to enquire, Is that which I am now intending: ſaying or doing that which is agreeable to the will of God, or is it oppoſed to any thing he has commanded; if the latter, the ſame ſoul ſhall be cut off from his people, if in that ſtate of oppoſition it enters his preſence, who requires all that he made and died to redeem, to love him with all their hearts, and ſerve him with all their ſtrength.

V. 14. If a ſtranger—A proſelyte.

V. 15. The cloud covered the tabernacle—This was an evident token of God's ſpecial preſence with and providence over them. This cloud was eaſily diſtinguiſhed from other clouds, both by its peculiar figure, and by its conſtant reſidence in that place. At even there was upon the tabernacle, as it were the appearance of fire—That they might better diſcern it and direct themſelves and their journies by it.

V. 17. When the cloud was taken up, then after that the children of Iſrael journeyed—Aſcended on high, above its ordinary place, by which it became more viſible to all the camp.

V. 18. At the commandment of the Lord, the children of Iſrael journeyed—The motion or ſtay of the cloud is fitly called the command of God, becauſe it was a ſignification of God's will, and their duty, which a command properly is.

V. 19. When the cloud tarried, the children of Iſrael kept the charge of the Lord, and journeyed not—The command of God mentioned before, that they ſhould ſtay as long as the cloud ſtayed and this they did, though it were long in one place, which was tedious to them, who deſired to change places, and make haſte to Canaan, yet they obeyed God.

V. 22. Whether it were two days, or a month, or a year that the cloud tarried upon the tabernacle, the children of Iſrael journeyed not: but when it was taken up, they journeyed—They followed the guidance of God: they were now the church of God, and an example of the true church or faithful followers of God in all ages and nations. And as God's immediate preſence reſted upon the Tabernacle, ſo does his Spirit reſt upon every believer, whoſe perſon is the tabernacle—The temple of the Holy Ghoſt (1 Cor. 6. 19.) and every ſtep that is taken by ſuch, is taken with a regard to the will of God.

CHAP. X.

V. 2. Make thee two trumpets—For Aaron's two ſons: though afterwards the number of the trumpets was much increaſed, as the number of the prieſts alſo was. Theſe trumpets were ordained, both for ſignification of the great duty of Miniſters in proclaiming the will of God, and for uſe, as here follows. Of ſilver—A metal pure and precious, and giving a clear ſound.

V. 6. They

Before Christ 1490.

sands of Israel, shall gather themselves unto thee.

5 When ye blow an alarm, then the camps that lie on the east parts shall go forward.

6 When you blow an alarm the second time, then the camps that lie on the south side, shall take their journey: they shall blow an alarm for their journies.

7 But when the congregation is to be gathered together, you shall blow; but you shall not sound an alarm.

b 1 Chron. 15, 24. 2 Chron 13, 12.

8 [b] And the sons of Aaron the priests shall blow with the trumpets; and they shall be to you for an ordinance for ever throughout your generations.

c Chap. 31, 6. Josh. 6, 5. 2 Chron. 13, 14.

9 And [c] if ye go to war in your land against the enemy that oppresseth you, then ye shall blow an alarm with the trumpets; and ye shall be remembered before the Lord your God, and ye shall be saved from your enemies.

d Chap. 29, 1. Lev. 23, 24. 1 Chron. 15, 24. 2 Chron. 5, 12. & 7. 6. & 29. 26. Ezra 3. 10. Neh. 12. 35. Psal. 81. 3.

10 Also [d] in the day of your gladness, and in your solemn days, and in the beginnings of your months, ye shall blow with your trumpets over your burnt-offerings, and over the sacrifices of your peace-offerings; that they may be to you for a memorial before your God: I am the Lord your God.

11 ¶ And it came to pass on the twentieth day of the second month, in the second year, that the cloud was taken up from off the tabernacle of the testimony.

12 And the children of Israel took [e] their journies out of the wilderness of Sinai; and the cloud rested in the wilderness of Paran.

Before Christ 1490.

e Exod. 40. 36.

13 And they first took their journey, according to the commandment of the Lord by the hand of Moses.

Chap. 2. 9, 16, 24, 31.

14 ¶ [f] in the first place went the standard of the camp of the children of Judah according to their armies: and over his host was [g] Nashon the son of Amminadab.

f Chap. 2. 3.

g Chap. 1. 7.

15 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Issachar, was Nethaneel the son of Zuar.

16 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Zebulun, was Eliab the son of Helon.

17 And [h] the tabernacle was taken down; and the sons of Gershon, and the sons of Merari set forward, [i] bearing the tabernacle.

h Chap. 1, 51.

i Chap. 4, 21. 31.

18 ¶ And [k] the standard of the camp of Reuben set forward according to their armies: and over his host was Elizur the son of Shedeur.

k Chap. 2. 10.

19 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Simeon, was Shelumiel the son of Zurishaddai.

20 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Gad, was Eliasaph the son of Deuel.

21 And the Kohathites set forward, bearing

V. 6. They shall blow an alarm for their journies—As a sign for them to march forward, and consequently for the rest to follow them, which is easily understood, out of these words.

V. 8. The sons of Aaron shall blow with the trumpets—To oblige them to the greater regard and observance, as if God himself had called them.

V. 9. If ye go to war in your land against the enemy that oppresseth you—The people that inhabited the land of Canaan before the Israelites, forfeited it by their sins, and God gave the land to the descendants of faithful Abraham; and the children of Israel had the authority of God for driving out the ancient inhabitants of Canaan; and it was after they had taken possession of the land, that this permission was given them to go to war with any people that oppressed them; they were not to go to war to make conquests of any other country than that which God had given them; they were only to go to war against those that oppressed them, or in their own defence; and when they thus went out to war, they were to blow an alarm with the trumpets, and by this they were to express their faith in this promise, annexed to the command of blowing with the trumpets—Ye shall be remembered before the LORD of Hosts, your God and Saviour, and ye shall be saved from your enemies. And thus were the Israelites made an example to all mankind, of what the Almighty would ever do for every nation, and for every man, that would in all things regard the declared will of God; and then enter upon the performance of what was agreeable to the Divine will, in an humble reliance on His faithfulness—To all such the promise is—Ye shall be saved. We may be at the expence of purchasing the word of God; we may give up our time to read it, and we may still be oppressed with our enemies—fears, passions, and those sorrows of the world, that lead to and produce death eternal to the soul. But this is not the will of God. His blessed will is, that whatever it is that oppresses us, whether brought upon ourselves by our own misconduct, or the wrong designs or conduct of others; that we should consider, What it is that the Lord our God requires of us, in the very circumstances that occasion our distress, and then setting out with a careful regard to the letter and spirit of God's declared will, and availing ourselves of all the friendly advice and assistance of those that fear God, whom his providence kindly casts in our way; place an entire faith and confidence in the goodness of God our Saviour; believing that God will only withhold whatever we desire, when to withhold is truly more kind than to give. And who that believes that thus kind is God for the sake of Jesus, and also believes, that his wisdom and power governs all things, can for a moment be miserable or sink under any oppression? No, they shall be saved: all that truly believe, shall be heard in the things that they fear, the things that are the cause of their distress.

V. 10. Ye shall blow with the trumpets over your burnt-offerings, and over the sacrifices, that they may be to you for a memorial before your God—That God may remember you for good, to accept and bless you; as he assuredly will do, when you thus stedfastly avow your faith in his mercy to pardon, in his grace to comfort, and in his providence to guide and direct you.

V. 21. And the other did set up the tabernacle against they came—The Gershonites, and Merarites, whose office it was to take down and set up the tabernacle, and who therefore marched after the first camp, and before the Kohathites, that they might prepare ing the [l] sanctuary; and * the other did set up the tabernacle against they came.

Before Christ 1490.

l Chap. 4. 4. & 7. 9.

22 ¶ And [m] the standard of the camp of the children of Ephraim set forward according to their armies: and over his host was Elishama the son of Ammihud.

* That is, the Gershonites, and the Merarites: See Ver. 17.

23 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Manasseh, was Gamaliel the son of Pedahzur.

m Chap. 2. 18.

24 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Benjamin, was Abidan the son of Gideoni.

25 ¶ And [n] the standard of the camp of the children of Dan set forward, which was the rereward of all the camps throughout their hosts: and over his host was Ahiezer the son of Ammishaddai.

n Chap. 2. 25. Josh. 6. 9.

26 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Asher, was Pagiel the son of Ocran.

27 And over the host of the tribe of the children of Naphtali, was Ahira the son of Enan.

† Heb. These

28 † Thus were the journeyings of the children of Israel, according to their armies, when they set forward.

29 ¶ And Moses said unto Hobab, the son of Raguel the Midianite, Moses' father in law, We are journeying unto the place of which the Lord said, I will give it you: come

o Judg. 1. 16.

thou with us, and [o] we will do thee good: for the Lord hath spoken good concerning Israel.

Before Christ 1490.

30 And he said unto him, I will not go; but I will depart to mine own land, and to my kindred.

31 And he said, Leave us not, I pray thee; forasmuch as thou knowest how we are to encamp in the wilderness, and thou mayest be to us in stead of eyes.

32 And it shall be, if thou go with us, yea, it shall be, that what goodness the Lord shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee.

p See Exod. 3. 1.

33 ¶ And they departed from [p] the mount of the Lord three days journey: and the ark of the covenant of the Lord went before them in the three days journey, [q] to search out a resting-place for them.

q Deut. 1. 33. Jer. 31. 2. Ezek. 20. 6.

r Exod. 13. 21.

34 And [r] the cloud of the Lord was upon them by day, when they went out of the camp.

s Psal. 68. 1. 2. & 132. 8.

35 And it came to pass when the ark set forward, that Moses said, [s] Rise up, Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered: and let them that hate thee, flee before thee.

‡ Heb. ten thousand thousands.

36 And when it rested, he said, Return, O Lord, unto the ‡ many thousands of Israel.

CHAP. XI.

a Deut. 9. 22. * Or, were as it were complainers. † Heb. it was evil in the ears of, &c.

AND [a] when the people * complained, † it displeased the Lord: and the Lord heard it; and his anger was kindled; and the pare the tabernacle, for the reception of its utensils, which the Kohathites brought after them. Thus orderly were all things done.

V. 29. Moses said unto Hobab, the son of Raguel—Called also Reuel, (Exod. ii. 18.) who seems to be the same who is called Jethro, (Exod. iii. 1.)

V. 30. He said, I will not go but I will depart to mine own land—So he might sincerely say, though after this speech he was overcome by the intreaties and persuasions of Moses. Or, he did go and settle his affairs and afterwards return: for we find his posterity settled among the Israelites. (Judg. i. 16.)

V. 31. Leave us not, I pray thee, forasmuch as thou mayest be to us instead of eyes—To direct and guide us: for though the cloud determined them to a general place, yet many particulars might be uncertain and unknown to Moses, wherein Hobab, having long lived in those parts, might be able to advise him, as concerning the conveniences of water for their cattle, concerning the safety or danger of the several parts by reason of serpents, or wild beasts, or enemies in the parts adjoining to them, that so they might guard themselves better against them. Or, this is to be understood of his directing them not so much in their way, as about great and difficult matters, wherein the counsel he had from God did not exclude the advice of men, as we see (Exod. xviii. 19. &c.) by the Divine approval of the advice given by Jethro, as to the appointment of Elders to assist Moses; which advice was given with great submission to what God himself should make known to Moses on the subject of it.

V. 32. If thou go with us, what goodness the Lord shall do unto us, the same will we do unto thee—This is the language of Moses, who possessed so high a degree of the Spirit of God his Saviour: he does not desire that the goodness of God should be confined, even to all that bear the name of Israel, but that others should join themselves to the visible church, and be partakers of all the blessings bestowed by his living head.

V. 33. They departed from the mount of the Lord three days journey—With continued journeys, only it seems most probable, that the cloud made little pauses, that they might have time for sleep and necessary refreshments. The ark of the covenant of the Lord went before them—Not so much in place, as in office and authority, as a general who is said to go before or lead his army, though he do not go in the very first place. The ark is said to go before and direct them, not as if the ark could be seen by all the camps, which being carried only upon men's shoulders was impossible, but because the cloud, which always attended upon the ark, and together with the ark, continued in a manner one sign of God's presence, did lead and direct them. To search out a resting place for them—Where they might safely and commodiously rest. But this is a metaphorical expression, for discovering to them, for otherwise the ark could not search, and God, who knew all places and things, needed not to search.

V. 34. The cloud of the Lord was upon them by day—And by night too, as was expressed before. So we must learn to compare places of scripture, and to supply the defects of one out of another, as we do in all authors.

V. 35. Rise up, Lord, and let thine enemies be scattered—Let thy power appear in behalf of thy people whom thou hast redeemed, and who put their trust in thee.

V. 36 Return, O Lord, unto the many thousands of Israel—Let thy Before Christ 1490. the fire of the Lord burnt [b] among them, and consumed them that were in the uttermost parts of the camp.

b Psa. 78. 21.

2 And the people cried unto Moses; and when Moses prayed unto the Lord, the fire ‡ was quenched.

‡ Heb. sunk.
§ That is, A burning.

3 And he called the name of the place § Taberah: because the fire of the Lord burnt among them.

c As Exod. 12. 38.

4 ¶ And the [c] mixt multitude that was among them ‖ fell a lusting: and the children of Israel also * wept again, and said, [d] Who shall give us flesh to eat?

‖ Heb. lusted a lust.
* Heb. returned and wept.
d Psa. 78. 18. and 106. 14. 1 Cor. 10. 6.

5 [e] We remember the fish which we did eat in Egypt freely: the cucumbers, and the melons, and the leeks, and the onions, and the garlick:

e Exod. 16. 3.

6 But now our soul is dried away; there is nothing at all, besides this manna, before our eyes.

7 And thy gracious presence rest upon all thy people, and give them a safe and quiet place, free from all enemies and danger.

CHAP. XI.

V. 1. The people complained—Murmured in their hearts, and expressed their dissatisfaction at their situation. It displeased the Lord—As every murmuring thought does; every murmur being the same thing as to charge God, whose providence governs all things, with either injustice in laying upon us what we ought not to suffer, or want of compassion in not giving us what we think we ought to have. The Lord heard their complaint, not as he hears all supplication to his mercy for relief; but being in effect charged with want of justice and mercy. His anger was kindled—His gracious Spirit was grieved, and withdrew itself from them. And the fire of the Lord burnt among them, and consumed them that were in the uttermost parts of the camp—And thus does misery as a fire consume the peace of every heart, that entertains hard thoughts of God; or is led to look upon the God of all grace, mercy and love, as unjust or unmerciful in any thing that he lays upon us: Murmuring and misery being as inseperably united, as cause and consequence, or the spring and the stream; and we are strangers to satan's devices, if we do not know that it is the constant design of all the powers of darkness, to seduce every soul of man, thus to blaspheme the God of glory and of love; but more especially to prevail with those to murmur, and to think their lot hard who are among those that are hearing that God so loved the world, as not to with hold his only Son, but gave him up to taste death for every man. To raise murmurs and complaints amongst the Israel of God, is the grand design of satan and his angels; because that is the very language of hell; and in whatever degree we murmur and complain, in that degree the very spirit of satan reigns in us; no matter what is the cause, friend or foe, a sudden difficulty or disappointment, or long continued trials. How little do we consider when we murmur, that every sin we have committed has justly exposed us to the wrath of God: How little do we think of what Jesus endured for us, when we give way to any complaint: How much do we shew when we are dissatisfied with our lot, and the circumstances we are under, that we are not subjects of that kingdom, the Spirit of which is love, and joy and peace; and the language of which is always "Father, not my will but thine be done." No less contrary to the will of God are murmurs and complaints, than rude and wicked oaths and curses are; and our own misery is no less secured by complaining of this person, or on such an occasion, than by allowing the same person or occasion to lead us to take the sacred names in vain. To live in a spirit of complaining, and in a spirit of anger or deceit, only differs as one disease, or rather one way of wickedness differs from another.

V. 2. The people cried—Either being penitent or fearful of the Divine displeasure, which they had brought down upon themselves by their murmurs against his goodness. Unto Moses—Whose prayer they knew was prevalent with God. And when Moses—Had heard the people cry, he prayed unto the LORD, the fire was quenched. And are the two worlds farther distant from each other now than they were then? When a penitent cry is made unto Jesus, is God for his sake less willing to hear, and answer, and relieve than he was to hear the prayer of Moses? What words can express, or thoughts estimate the value of discoveries like these in the word of God, which shews when the very fire of God's anger has begun to burn against men, because of their sin; and God is applied to through the person of that Mediator whom Moses represented; he hears, and in mercy for his sake, pities, answers, and relieves from all the distress and misery which was produced by disobedience to his will.

V. 3. He called the name of the place Taberah—Burning, from this fire, as it was called Kibroth-hattaavah from another occasion, ver. 34, 35. Both these names were imposed as monuments of the people's sin, and of God's just judgment: That whenever the place was but named where these crimes were committed, and these judgments inflicted, all that heard of them might be informed that the same crimes would produce the same or other expressions of God's displeasure, and for this merciful purpose is every sin and the punishment inflicted upon it, recorded in the word of God; that all may shun their own sufferings, by not committing the crimes which produce them, as by a natural and unavoidable consequence, till turned away by applying unto the only Mediator, by true repentance, and faith in the mercy of God, for his sake.

V. 4 The mixt multitude—Consisting of Egyptians or other people, which being affected with God's miraculous works in Egypt, and thereupon believing the promise of God to carry them to a land of milk and honey, for their own advantage joined themselves to the Israelites, and now finding themselves disappointed they discover their evil minds. And the children of Israel—Whose special relation and obligation to God should have restrained them from such conduct. Also wept again it—This relates either to their former murmuring, or to their complaining. ver. 1. to note the aggravation of their sin, that having just now sinned in the same kind, and sorely smarted for their sin, and being but newly delivered from their fears and dangers, they forthwith murmur again, and that more passionately than before, expressing themselves in tears and bitter words. Who shall give us flesh—This word is here taken generally. They had indeed flesh and cattle, which they brought with them out of Egypt, but these were reserved for breed to be carried into Canaan, and were so few that they would scarce have served them for a month, as may be gathered from Numb. xi. 20, 21, 22.

V. 5. We remember the fish which we did eat in Egypt freely—Either without price, for fish was very plentiful, and fishing was there free, or for a little.

V. 6. Our soul—Our life, as the soul signifies. Is dried away—Is withered and pines away, which might be true through discontent and inordinate appetites. There is nothing at all, besides this manna—This language is—We think that good which we have not, and that bad which God hath given us. We surely say truly when we call the Jews a dissatisfied hard-hearted people; and we acknowledge the justice of God in the judgments that followed their aggravated disobience and murmurs after all the goodness he shewed them. But who has not heard, when God

Before Christ 1490.

7 And [f] the manna was as coriander-seed, and the † colour thereof as the colour of [g] bdellium.

f Exod. 16. 14.

† Heb. eye of it as the eye of.

g Gen. 2. 12.

8 And the people went about, and gathered it, and ground it in mills, or beat it in a mortar, and baked it in pans, and made cakes of it: and the taste of it was as the taste of fresh oil.

9 And when the dew fell upon the camp in the night, the manna fell upon it.

10 ¶ Then Moses heard the people weep throughout their families, every man in the door of his tent: and [h] the anger of the Lord was kindled greatly; Moses also was displeased.

h Psa. 78. 21.

11 [i] And Moses said unto the Lord, Wherefore hast thou afflicted thy servant? and wherefore have I not found favour in thy sight, that thou layest the burden of all this people upon me?

i Deut. 1. 12.

12 Have I conceived all this people? have I begotten them, that thou shouldest say unto me, Carry them in thy bosom, (as a nursing-father beareth the sucking child) unto the land which thou swarest unto their fathers?

Before Christ 1490.

13 Whence should I have flesh to give unto all this people? for they weep unto me, saying, Give us flesh, that we may eat.

14 [k] I am not able to bear all this people alone, because it is too heavy for me.

k Exod. 18. 18.

15 And if thou deal thus with me, [l] kill me, I pray thee, out of hand, if I have found favour in thy sight; and let me not see my wretchedness.

l See 1 Kings 19. 4. Jonah 4. 3.

16 ¶ And the Lord said unto Moses, Gather unto me [m] seventy men of the elders of Israel, whom thou knowest to be the elders of the people, and officers over them; and bring them unto the tabernacle of the congregation, that they may stand there with thee.

m See Exod. 4. 9.

17 And I will come down and talk with thee there: and [n] I will take of the spirit which is upon thee, and will put it upon them; and they shall bear the burden of the people with n Neh. 9. 20.

has been watering the earth, and making the clouds drop fatness, some express themselves as much dissatisfied with rain as the Israelites did with manna; and as discontented with the things they had, and as impatient for the things they had not, as the Jews ever were? For what purpose has it pleased God to give us so full an account of the crimes of this people? For beneath infinite goodness must it be to publish men's sins to the world, was it not that all men might read their own nature in other men's crimes; and by being so admonished, be led to look to the only Restorer of our fallen nature—That grace of God given for the Redeemer's sake, which only worketh in us to will and do of God's good pleasure.

